DISASTROUS BLAZE WIPES OUT A LOCAL INDUSTRY

Majority of Former Members are Re-Elected to County Council --- City Council Organizes

CITY COUNCIL IS READY FOR WORK

Mayor Morley Duff Duly Installed At Inauguration This Morning

MAYOR'S ADDRESS

Chairmanships Allotted And Usual Appointments Are Made

Belleville's 1928 City Council assembled in the Council Chamber for the inaugural meeting this morning at eleven o'clock with every member of the civic body present.

Mayor Morley Duff was invested with the insignia of office and the chairman ships of the various committees were announced. The City Clerk gave a detailed report of the count in the recent vote and announced the names of the successful candidates.

Mayor Morley Duff was escorted to the chair which he will occupy as Chief Magistrate, by Aldermen C. A. Payne and George Reid.

Rev. Dr. P. E. Malott, Pastor of Bridge Street United Church invoked the Divine Blessing following which Mayor Duff read his address.

Mayor's Address

"I desire to take this opportunity of expressing to the citizens of Belleville my sincere appreciation of the honor they have conferred on me, in electing me as Mayor of this fine City, and also for the expression of confidence placed in me in electing me as an Alderman the past two years," said His Worship in opening.

"To the Aldermen elected for 1928 I offer you my hearty congratulations and wish you every success in your endeavors on behalf of the people.

We will have considerable responsibility and many difficult problems will have to be seriously considered and decided. The most important of which will be the continuance and close check of our expenditures. As our tax rate has now reached a high figure, and the payment of these taxes is to many of our citizens quite a hardship, we should therefore do everything in our power to ease this burden as much as possible, exercising with efficient management all City affairs. The fixed charges which are assessed against this city at the present time, especially that on account of Provincial Highways, Suburban Roads etc., are very high, and a heavy burden on the city, and particularly the cost on the Bay Bridge levy. Deputations from the Council have already waited on the Minister at Toronto on various occasions and also by mail. I would strongly urge this years council to follow this matter up energetically and take strong steps to bring about some relief if at all possible to all so far mentioned.

Gas Plant Important

"Another important matter which will require your early and serious consideration will be that of completing the program of putting the gas plant in satisfactory operating conditions. Considerable work has already been done

MONTH IN JAIL FOR TAKING RING

Faces More Serious Charges Later Of Car Theft And Fraud

Gordon Rose, at one time an inmate of the Children's Shelter here, appeared in the local police court this morning facing a charge of stealing a diamond ring from Percy Coote, Pinnacle Street on or about the 5th of December. The ring had a value of $27.00 and Rose sold it to a local second hand dealer for $5.00. The accused was sentenced to a month in the county jail.

Rose is wanted in Toronto for theft of a car in that city, and a case is wanted in Oshawa for passing worthless cheques. This accounts for the lightness of the sentence passed upon him by the magistrate.

WILBY HUNT TELLS HIS STORY

Another Murder Added To Record

Wm. Hickman added another murder to his kidnapping and killing case when he told of part in a hold-up on Christmas Eve in 1926, in Los Angeles, when he shot Ivy Thoms, a druggist. His story he involved Willy Hunt as a pal who aided him. Hunt was located, grilled and placed under arrest. The picture shows Hunt (centre), telling Los Angeles detectives of his share in the hold-up.

STRAIGHTENING OUT REGULATIONS RELICS OF WAR YEARS' ECONOMIES

Will Soon Be Possible To Buy a Smoke After Eight

London, Jan. 3.—(Canadian Press Cable)—For some time previous it has been heaped upon regulations with regards to the early closing hour of shops which are generally dependent from the war days, when shops, with certain exceptions, were compelled to close at eight pm., primarily with a view to economy in fuel, light and labor. These regulations have been divided, partly because they are regarded as an infringement on the liberty of the subject and also because of their obvious irritating anomalies. For instance, a person may not legally buy tobacco, candies or ice cream, in a theatre or public house after 9.30 p. m.

A committee of the Government has been looking into the matter and the revised edition in operation with May 1st, straightening out the tangle that has been existing incongruous ever since the war and the committee has just passed it's report. The report recommends discretionary power of the regulations affecting the sale of refreshments in theatres and public houses and allowing the sale in theatres during the whole performance and in public houses during licensed hours.

SIX U. S. MARINES KILLED IN FIGHTING

Managua, Nicaragua, Jan. 3.—Reinforced garrison of United States marines today held Quilali after fierce fighting in which six marines were killed and twenty-eight wounded. The forces of Sandino, rebel leader, were driven out. The reinforcements, consisting of 400 men, which captured Quilali Friday, resulted in the death of five United States marines and many rebels. Rebel casualties in the two encounters were not determined because the dead and wounded were quickly removed to save them from vultures.

COLD WEATHER BOTHERS STOCKMEN OF ALBERTA

Lethbridge, Alta., Jan. 3 — With better Winter entering its third half without a real Chinook or warm break, the weather situation is giving increased concern. Old timers declare that not in forty years have they seen such a continuous period of cold weather. In addition to low temperatures, that have dropped all the way from 25 to 35 below zero there have been heavy snowfalls, the second of this season having occurred on Christmas Day. Heavy drifts are piled up on the prairies, which block roads throughout the County yesterday. For the most part the County Council will be composed of the same men as last year, the greater majority of them having been returned.

D. Tyrrell was one of the hottest fights was staged. Mr. Sam Rollins was returned by a majority of 128 over S. O. Way. Mr. Rollins is conceded the Wardenship next year. He will likely be followed in the succeeding sessions of the County Council by his confreres.

E. C. Tufts Back

In Madoc Village, Mr. E. C. Tufts, who has been a member from the Council for some years, made another run following the resignation of Mr. Fred Curry as Reeve. Mr. Tufts gained the verdict over John Robertson and Harry Bowen. Mr. Tufts is a well-known business man of Madoc Village and will be a welcome addition to the Council. He is regarded as a man well versed in municipal affairs.

Wm. Hare was returned as Deputy Reeve in Tudor Township, having defeated William Tufts.

G. E. Ashley Elected

Mr. George A. Stokes, President of the South Hastings Conservative Association, was returned as Reeve in Huntingford Township.

Ex-Warden G. Bruce Aylsart had a close fight on his hands in Marmora Village but won out by a majority of forty votes.

One of the biggest surprises of the election was the defeat sustained by W. A. McMurray in Tudor and Cashel Township. Mr. H. Wray, who was the successful candidate, is popular in the North country and is an able business man.

The complete returns are as follows:

Thurlow Township

Reeve—R. Sills (by acclamation).

Councillors—Fred McDonald, Wesley Gray, Harry Townsend.

Marmora and Lake Township

Reeve—Tinnuss R. Laycock defeated Mayfield Aylsart. Majority 46.

Council—W. Billings, O. Leonard, J. Downard, G. E. Goodrich defeated Wm. Hare and Jas. Hutchinson.

Marmora Village

NEW YEAR WAS WARMLY GREETED

Belleville Club Puts On Merry Party To Welcome 1928

Twelve o'clock New Year's Eve and a merry care-free throng at the Belleville Club. It was a scene not soon to be forgotten. The orchestra, feeling the urge of the occasion played frantic jolly and the flame low was piled deep with ribbons and streamers. Friends greeted friend in real New Year style and there was no room for the word sorrow.

To common consent the New Year dance of the Belleville Club was voted one of the best ever held in the City. The Club rooms were beautiful, the ben Ten orchestra never played better and the floor was perfect. Close to two hundred guests thronged the rooms. From the opening dance to the end there was not a dull moment and when the affair was officially declared closed the crowd broke up into smaller house parties to carry on the welcome to 1928.

The directors of the Club are being besieged by those fortunate enough to attend to put on another party in the near future.

Milder Today But Another Cold Snap On Way South

Toronto, Jan. 3.—The severe cold spell which ushered in the New Year in Ontario, showed signs of abating today with the mercury in Toronto, Ottawa and Kingston around twelve above zero. The wind which nearly reached gale proportions on Sunday today was blustering at a speed of twenty miles an hour. The storm centre had passed to the Atlantic coast but another was reported on the way south from Hudson's Bay.

REMANDED FOR SEVENTH TIME

John Shannon Will Likely Know His Fate On Jan. 11th

For the seventh, and if the Crown Attorney has anything to say about it, the last time, John Shanlon was given another remand by Magistrate Mikel in police court this morning at the request of Shannon's counsel, Mr. H. H. Collins. Shannon this time was remanded until the 11th of January, 1928, eight days hence.

"Your honour," said Mr. Bryson Donnan this morning, "I want it distinctly understood that the case will proceed next week!" Shannon, it will be remembered, is charged with being drunk in charge of a car, when some time ago he figured in an automobile accident and was arrested afterwards by the local police and the present charge laid against him.

John Shannon, who is a storekeeper on Front street, is arraigned for the second time on a drunk driving charge. The first time he appeared in court Magistrate Mikel sentenced him to a week in jail, and as this is Shannon's second offense if he is convicted it will be impossible for him to get a suspended sentence and he will have to see the inside of the city stone building on the hill for the second time. Shannon wistfully informed the press a short time ago that he had "taken the pledge" and was not going to drink any more.

The total vote yesterday, 85,830, fell a little short of last year's record of 87,238.

OUR INVESTMENTS

When one speaks of the enormous investment of outside capital in Canada, there is one angle to the situation which is commonly overlooked, and that is amount of Canadian capital which is invested abroad. The Financial Post, analyzing the situation, says it is difficult to determine "whether Canada is actually drawing more money from the United States and Britain, its two chief sources of capital funds, than it is sending out to European and South American countries, investing in American enterprises and utilizing to repurchase its own securities formerly sold abroad." Making a rough estimate, the Post calculates that, while Canada has drawn $5,300,000,000 of foreign capital, it has invested about $1,200,000,000 of its own funds in other countries. Not only have these investments been made but Canadian manufacturers are setting up branch factories in the United States and conducting other enterprises there. These enterprises are of a diversified character and represent an important investment. Besides these, there are large undertakings controlled by Canadian companies in countries other than the United States, especially in South America, many of them huge public utility undertakings. For a young country, industrially, the situation is reassuring. These foreign investments total up to a significant figure. "

A DYING INDUSTRY

Thirty years ago, there were twenty-eight binder twine factories in operation in Canada. The prospect now is that within a year or two not a pound of binder twine will be manufactured in the Dominion.

It used to be a staple cry of exhortation with our free traders that the binder twine industry in Canada was a glorious example of hour our industries ought to be able to get along without tariff protection. The Brantford Cordage Company, with the largest plant in the British Empire, was the bright particular example. There was a Canadian industry carrying on a successful manufacturing business and prospering without the artificial aid of any tariff. If this Brantford company could make twine and profits in unrestricted competition with the world, why not any Canadian industry?

The president of the Brantford Cordage Company has announced that it can't hold on unless it gets some protection. His company, he says in his annual statement to his shareholders, has never asked and does not now ask for tariff protection against fair competition. "However," he goes on to say, "if the present situation which has developed should be allowed to continue with the unpredictable conditions resulting therefrom, it will ultimately become impossible to continue."

But what does he mean by "fair" competition? There is no unfair competition, except that other countries are using their advantages to undersell him. It is fair enough—if we in this country permit it. Foreign manufacturers, either by the aid of having their own market protected or by cheap labor, are able to undersell the Canadian manufacturer.

Dartmouth cordage mill, one of the important industries in Nova Scotia, is being closed down, as many other Canadian factories have been compelled to do.

The free trader will retort, "Well, what of it? Are not our farmers getting cheaper binder twine than the Canadian factories can make?" For the moment, yes. But when our Canadian binder twine industry disappears, will the cheaper foreign price continue? Not a chance. American binder twine manufacturers are dumping binder twine in Canada at a lower price than they charge in the United States, because they must undersell Canadian factories to get business. But when the Canadian factories disappear will the American continue to sell cheaper here than they do at home? Ah they fool? We will have lost our binder twine industry, and the price of binder twine to our farmers will be up.

GOOD NEWS

An announcement made by Premier Ferguson will be received by all ratepayers in this province as a pleasant New Year message. Mr. Ferguson says there will be no increase in the gasoline tax next year. Such an increase has been feared by many, and the premier's promise will be very welcome. True, he says also that there will not be any decrease in the motor license fee; but ear-owners will not feel inclined to object to the retention of the present fee if they are not obliged to pay more for gas.

Expenditure on highways is likely to be greater next year then ever; but the premier hopes that, with the exercise of rigid economy, the revenue can be made to cover the outlay. Probably the government looks for increased revenue from the gasoline tax, for it is estimated that this province will absorb at least 50,000 new motor vehicles next year.

COLLEGE EDUCATION

Dean Woodbridge of Columbia University, New York, tries to explore that tendency which too little of "scholarship." He regrets that "study is regarded as an instrument for personal improvement, rather than an inquiry into the nature of things." The Dean holds that universities should be reserved for the advancement of students who possess or show a disinterested love of learning, and to whom the supreme object is the attainment of scholarship.

If any university's chief end is not to make a better and bigger man—mentally, morally and physically—it is a pretty poor kind of university, we think.

The universities which devote themselves most completely to scholarship are the Chinese ones, and their chief product are mandarins.

CHICAGO PLANNING NEW STYLE STREETS

Chicago—A combination "open air" subway and motorcar speedway, constructed on the principle of the double deck street has been outlined for Chicago by Mayor Thompson.

The plan calls for "subway" tracks close to the surface of the lower street level. The centre of the subway, open to the sky, would be used for high speed motor traffic. On the upper level would be stores, sidewalks and, on either side of the opening above the speedway, lanes for slow-moving motor traffic.

Cross streets would be carried over the open-cut speedways by bridges with ramps connecting the two levels. Stores could have show windows and entrance on both levels.

If the plan is accepted, preliminary work could be started at once. The cost of construction would be spread over a period of 20 years.

AMERICA NEVER PART OF EUROPE

Theory Was Exploded By Session Of Geologists Recently

Cleveland—The theory that the North American continent once was a part of the continent of Europe and "floated" away, leaving 3,000 miles of water between, has been exploded, in the opinion of many leading geologists who are here for the convention of the Geological Society of America.

Their conclusions are based upon studies made by Arthur Keith, veteran of the United States Geological Survey and president of the American Society.

The theory, Keith said, is that the North American continent is composed of light rocks which are floating around on heavy rocks.

It would be reasonable it you grant that the rocks all are in motion," he said. "In that event, the lighter rock, such as granite, would 'float' to the surface and the heavier rock, such as basalt, would sink."

His conclusion, he added, is that the rocks are not free to move about and that North America is located today where it always was. He said he has obtained proof of this in the study of the Appalachian and Rocky mountain ranges.

NEW YEAR'S DANCE

The East-End Club held their monthly dance in St. Agnes Madge last evening when a large number of young people attended. A special New Year's program was arranged. Jack Denmark presided at the piano.

CUSTOMS RETURNS

The Customs returns for December were $447,612.42 and for the nine period in 1927 $309,233.15, an increase of $138,379.47. Quarter ending December 31st, 1927, $1,141,840.05; 1926, $905,287.37, an increase of $429,156.72.

NO ACCIDENTS

For the long week-end just past no accidents of any description were reported to the local police. Despite the nasty condition of the weather and treacherous state of the highways the cars were overturned in the ditch around the city.

MINUS QUANTITY OF "DRUNKS."

Although New Year's Eve and New Year's Day is conceded by everyone to be the proper time to "celebrate", and when all bachelors are planning their decretions, not one solitary "drunk" climbed the witness stand in the police court this morning. Quiet is distinctly a record and another boost for Government Control.

SCHOOL AGAIN.

Public Schools, the High School and Albert College re-opened today after the Christmas vacation. The vacation was shorter this year than those of previous years, All schools reported a good attendance considering it was the first day of school.

MANY AT P. OF W. SCHOOL.

A large attendance was present last evening at the Community Club dance held at the Prince of Wales School. The dance was in the form of a New Year's festive and was enjoyed by the served.

ENCELLED THEMSELVES

Marietta and Margaret Forster, young daughters of Dr. and Mrs. O. J. Forster excelled themselves yesterday when they danced to several encores before a capacity house at the Belle Theatre. These little ladies are pupils of Prof. and Mrs. Johnstone.

SMART TEA DANCE.

Upwards of one hundred couples attended the tea dance held yesterday afternoon in the assembly room of the armouries under the auspices of the Argyll Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire. The assembly hall was excellently with the regimental colors; and the ceiling was draped in a canopy of fect. Mr. Jack Denmark presided at the piano. Tea was served in the officers' mess. The large attendance presented a homey appearance and the tea table was decorated with red candles and a modern luncheon set and red candles in silver candlesticks. Mrs. A. W. Grindley and Mrs. S. W. Vernon pea poured coffee. The members of the Chapter assisted.

GOLDEN WEDDING.

An interesting item appeared in the "Daily Province" of Vancouver, B. C., in an issue of the 23rd of December. It announced the celebration of the Golden Wedding of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Gordon, 2266 45th Avenue West, Vancouver. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon were married in Belleville and went to the West in 1905. Many of friends visited the couple on this afternoon and in the evening relations only were present. Mrs. Gordon was at one time a leading keeper for the Ritchie Company and is a sister of Mr. Harry Greenleaf of this city.

MANY AT RECEPTION

Many personal friends as well as the family of Rev. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, called on their minister, the Rev. R. G. Stewart, at the Manse, George Street, this afternoon to extend greetings. The house present is a beautiful appearance with bowers of fresh flowers and Christmas decorations and glowing hearth fires. Mrs. A. McGregor, assisted at the coffee table and assisting Mrs. Stewart were Mrs. A. Roberts, Miss Etta McIntyre and Miss Beryl Greenleaf.

COAST GUARD BOAT GROUNDED IN GALE

EXPRESS RATES NOW EFFECTIVE

Comparison Of Charges Of Post Office And Express Interesting

New rates have been announced by all the Express Companies for shipments on parcels up to fifteen pounds in weight which are obviously designed to compete with the parcel post. On very small parcels from one to five or six pounds the post office is still much cheaper but the Express Companies' charges include the cost of picking up the parcels at the point of shipment and delivering the same at their destination, and also protection against loss or damage up to the amount of $50.00. The new rates came into effect on Sunday, Jan. 1st. The Post Office have a special zone rate by which a parcel delivered within twenty miles of the point of origin pays five cents for the first pound gradually increasing to twenty-five cents for a package weighing from ten to fifteen pounds. To points beyond the twenty mile radius but within the Provincial limits the post rates are ten cents for the first pound and run up to fifty-five cents for ten to fifteen pounds.

The express rates do not take into consideration any distance greater than the provinces' That is, any package weighing up to five pounds will be collected at the home of the sender and delivered to any address in Ontario for 30c and it will be carried while in transit up to the value of $50. As it is possible to get a distance in excess of about a thousand miles for such express rates provide cheap and convenient transportation for small parcels. Where five pounds the rate gradually increases to the for a fifteen pound parcel.

To points within twenty miles of the shipping point.

Post Office 10c
Express Companies 30c
From any point beyond twenty miles but still within the same Province:—
Post Office 30c
Express Companies 30c
From any point in Ontario to any point in the adjoining provinces of Quebec or Manitoba:—
Post Office 30c
Express Companies 40c
From any point in Ontario to Saskatchewan or the Maritime Provinces:—
Post Office 45c
Express Companies 50c
From any point in Ontario to Alberta. 55c
Post Office 50c
Express Companies 60c
From any point in Ontario to British Columbia.
Post Office 60c
Express Companies 70c

In all cases the Express Companies' charge includes the picking up of the parcel at the point of origin and insurance in transit.

LOCAL SPEAKER ON BABIES' DIET

F. Bernstein Tells Of One Of Belleville's Newer Industries

Mr. F. Bernstein, Manager of the Meadi-Johnson Company, this city, was the speaker at Rotary today. Mr. Bernstein gave a talk on the product of his company which is a specially prepared baby food. He stated that it was made from a product of malt, starch, milk and water. "We do not supply drugs with our goods, but have physicians prescribe them to the mothers of babies," said the speaker. Mr. Bernstein stated that his company had no salesmen to sell their products but employed doctors who called upon the physicians throughout Canada.

Speaking on the big advancement which had been made in the rearing of babies during the past quarter of a century, the manager of the baby diet company said that the infant mortality rate had decreased to a large degree due to the better understanding of dietary habits.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Bernstein by the President, Mr. J. O. Herity, which had been moved by J. A. Coleru.

Another treat which the Rotarians enjoyed today was two solos by Mr. Jack Deacon, son of Mr. W. B. Deacon who is studying music at the Conservatory of Music, Toronto. Mr. W. B. Deacon, who was married last week, also came in for some comments as a good whistler.

Frank Goodchild Here

Among the visitors at the luncheon were Ald. Grannell Sinclair, Messrs. Jack and Fred Empey, Frank Goodchild, of South Norwalk, Conn., Frank Goodchild, Montreal (both of the latter two are nephews of Mr. Frank Goodchild.

Mr. Lee Higgs acted as the accompanist and Mr. Stanley Burrows was the song leader. Mr. Al. Donnelly was board to good advantage in two solos.

President Owen Herity announced that the local Rotarians were invited to hear the National President speak at Trenton, Friday, January 13th.

ORIENTALS BECOMING BEST OF CHRISTIANS

Vancouver, B.C.—(By The Canadian Press)—Religious trends in the Far East are changing so rapidly that the time is not far off when the world will see over an Oriental missionary zone to teach it the word of God, according to two clergymen who have just left the Orient from here recently.

Monsignor J. A. Chambon, archbishop of a Roman Catholic diocese in Yokohama, who is returning to his charge after a sojourn in France, is of the view that the Oriental, with his natural inquiring mind and love for mystic, is becoming a better Christian than the Occidental.

Rev. M. C. Harrison, Irish Presbyterian, who is on his way to a mission post in Manchuria, states that the Chinese understanding of Christian philosophy is deeper than that of Europeans.

Both believe that the Oriental devotion for the Saviour's perspective on life will find its way into the hearts of Oriental priests and ministers to convert to teach true Christianity to the Christians.

LOCKOUT IN STOCKHOLM

Stockholm, January 2—A lockout of 20,000 workers of the wood pulp industry started this morning.

Negotiations for the settlement of a dispute, in which employers were trying to reduce wages, broke down last night. Government mediation is now expected, but the dispute will possibly last more than a fortnight.

CITY COUNCIL

The question of management of our public utilities by a Public Utility Commission was considered by last year's Council. After thorough investigation the Council decided in favor of submitting a by-law to the people, but, going to the laterest of the season it was considered advisable to lay this over until the following year. I would strongly urge the present Council to go over their early and serious consideration, and I feel by co-ordinating these departments more efficient and more economical management can be obtained.

The Mayor made reference in another matter that of the flooding conditions in various parts of the City which regularly occurs at certain seasons of the year. "A few nights ago I accompanied several of the Aldermen to Bridge Street where the City Engineer where numerous houses were flooded and ruined, resulting in fires being put out and with a great hardship to the residents at these points, also making very unhealthy conditions. This condition is caused by the ice gorging at the back of proper drainage. In my opinion steps should be taken by the Council to relieve the situation where possible to do so. The condition of the Moira River should also be closely watched during the winter and early spring with a view to preventing floods from that source if possible.

DEATH NOTICE

DOWNEY—At Long Beach, California, Miss Eliza Downey.

Funeral to take place tomorrow (Wed.) at 2.30 p.m. from Bellevile Burial Company Private Funeral Parlors to St. Michael's Church. Mass at 9 a.m. Interment at St. James' Vault. Jan 3 1 td

You don't need to take Belleville Motor's word that the New Model Ford will actually go sixty miles an hour; a few minutes' demonstration will show you that such is the case. A phone call will have Belleville Motors bring a car around for a demonstration.

We are still in need of more Industries in our city. During the past year or so we have acquired a new good industrial plants and many of our present plants have been enlarging and extending their facilities. Let us co-operate with the Chamber of Commerce and do everything possible in our power to encourage more good and sound industries to locate here.

Traffic By-Laws

Our traffic and parking by-laws should be further considered as I feel certain districts are concerned. I refer particularly to traffic on Front Street at the conclusion at this point are far from satisfactory and very dangerous. Serious consideration should be given to this problem to see if some consolidation on Front Street cannot be relieved.

I also fully expect to have our financial year for 1927 well within our estimates if not showing a small surplus. So that we as the Council of 1928 will commence the present year with a clear balance and not instead a deficit carried over from the previous year.

The employment situation during the latter part of the year has been very satisfactory, and we are entering on the new year very hopeful of a good business.

The Aldermen elected are men of ability and experience and I can certain the different departments will be ably conducted under their guidance.

From the above I solicit their interest in public affairs and sympathetic support. If we all work together in harmony and for the best interests of the city we should make 1928 one of the best in the history."

A vote of thanks was rendered to the Mayor by Aldermen Rollins and second by Ald. Reid. Reid for the fine address which he delivered.

Chairmanships

The chairmanships were announced as follows:

SHIEK ATTRIBUTES NOT LASTING LURE

By LOUIS F. BISCH

In essential respects woman's love is the opposite or man's. Or maybe it would be better to say that the feminine type of love dovetails with the masculine, the two tending to offset each other and form a perfect unit.

Woman's love is based very solidly upon trying to find a single love object. For this love object also she must have admiration and esteem. When once the woman feels such admiration and esteem she is quite willing, nay eager, to make sacrifices and to devote herself to the cause of that love, to home, children, and to everything that flows from it.

Unlike man, woman's love is not a selfish emotion. To be sure, loving she her and rounds out her personality, it also satisfies certain biological urges leading to motherhood.

Nor is woman's love sensual like man's. She is not roused by aesthetic values of personal appearance. She will love an ugly man as readily as a handsome one. Whether a man dress as well or does not make a much difference. Whether he be tall or short, or thin, does not disturb her.

For woman admires achievement in man. Not merely does she admire it; she wants, if possible, to ally herself with the man who represents so much and to glorify herself in this reflected light. She doesn't care to achieve the unusual herself. It is satisfying enough if she has made a "big" man fall in love with her.

There is an element of conquest and personal ownership in woman's love the same as in man's, but in woman it means something quite different from what it does in man.

Woman wants to feel she has succeeded in attracting a man — yes. Also that he belongs to her, that he loves her above all other women. But she does not want to feel herself superior to man. Ego does not motivate her as it does the spirit of the conqueror. She only wants to conquer in the sense of succeeding. But she does not want to subjugate.

In fact, if a woman is able to subdue a man and bend him to her will she at once loses respect for him, and because of this her love is very likely to receive a decened setback.

Woman wants to feel that her personal attractiveness and appeal can influence a man so that he wants to please her. She likes to overcome an gets a thrill in testing herself out. In initial resistance to her charms. She being able to determine whether her ability as a coquette is still telling.

But if it is too easy, if the man "falls" too readily, she loses interest in that case, you see, the man in her eyes is no longer the big, strong, powerful male she thought she worshipped.

Woman's love is not fickle, because it is built upon a solid foundation. A woman delights to flirt a little, but the flirting may be quite harmless and negligible—just an attempt to see what the result will be—whether she still possesses sufficient attractiveness to invite attentions.

And rather strangely, too, although woman makes so much use of her personal charms to attract man, she often abhors the idea that a man may be desiring her for her physical values alone.

Sex, as such, can easily become sordid and vulgar to a woman. This is because unconsciously, at least it is linked up with her maternal strivings. Woman's love may become very material and self-seeking, but this is not from choice. Necessity forces unfortunate upon a woman. Woman is ethically an idealist, an incurable romantic, when it comes to love.

A woman will not marry for a home and support merely because she wants to. She will do it only because she is compelled to, because of economic pressure, and only after she has settled for a idealized romantic love quest.

With a man love is often less important than his work. When a woman is in love she thinks of her man all day long, watches for him, with her or not. When a man is in love he thinks of his sweetheart only when he is not thinking of his work.

Men and women most certainly love differently.

But is this perhaps not an advantage rather than a disadvantage?

A Double treatment for Headache

Run forehead and temples with Vicks; also melt in a cup of hot water and inhale its healing vapors. This clears the head and usually brings quick relief.

If headaches are continuous a physician or good oodlist should be consulted.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young married woman. I am the mother of a little boy, three years old. But my husband is terribly jealous of our son. He says that I pay too much attention to the child and neglect him, and also he asserts that I do not love him any longer. This is not true. I love him more than ever and it hurts me to have our little son come between us, when he should instead make us supremely happy.

What shall I do?

VALERIE

VALERIE: Perhaps you are somewhat at fault, my dear, and if you let your baby absorb all your attention to the exclusion of consideration for your husband, I cannot blame him for his assertions. If you allow yourself to become so wearied with your duties that by the time your husband comes home, you are too tired to greet him with a cheery smile, too cross to be agreeable, too weary to be anything but irritable, you can only expect your husband to feel that the child is draining you apart instead of binding you closer together as it should. You must show your husband that his suppositions are entirely incorrect and rearrange your schedule so that you have more time for him. Make him realize that you are interested in everything that concerns him and I am sure he will be only too happy to retract his statement.

WHAT IS QUINTE BALM ? WATCH WEDNESDAY'S INTELLIGENCER

A SUITOR TOO MANY

By MILDRED BARBOUR

In her car, driving up-town, Dorothy was conscious of the subtle scent of the flowers beside her on the seat. Lilies of-the-valley always made her think of moonlight nights and the cool brick paths of old-fashioned gardens; of flowers sleeping in the dew; of the song of a nightingale; and the silhouette of a masculine figure waiting at a gate.

It was a foolish thought, she felt. The figure waiting at a gate was only a dream-lover, a phantom. And yet, though men came and went, she waited for that dream-lover. It was her heart's tryst, a secret, exquisite tryst, and if had no place in the life of a capable, independent young woman with her pretty sophistications and her whimsical sense of humor.

When she reached home, she took from the box the envelop Herbert had noticed. It was addressed to Miss Lilla Latham. The handwriting she knew. She had seen it many times in the early days of the war, when Jack Farquahar's love-letters had come to her studio, adressed to Lila. It was a firm, strong hand. She felt that she would recognize it anywhere.

The sealed envelop she placed with the little bundle of letters she was keeping for Lila. Dorothy's fingers lingered over them for a moment, and she sighed.

It seemed to her a pity that the love of such a man as Farquahar should be wasted. More than wasted; even the cause of anxiety, distress, and anguish.

When she was ready for the ball, she hesitated a moment and then remembered that she had told Herbert that the flowers were for this special occasion.

Reluctantly, she pinned them to the low-cut corsage of her gold lace gown. The orchids were very lovely, unusual in color, for it was a deep bronze. Against her white flesh they were gleaming and burnished.

She straight up her wrap, flung it carelessly across her shoulders, and hurried down to her car.

In the lower corridor she came face to face with a lean, dark young man, who seemed to be studying the names on the letter-boxes.

She stopped dead, with a little, involuntary gasp. She stood revealed under the brilliant lights of the entrance, a gleaming, lovely, appealing vision.

Her gaze met the stranger's for a full moment. Then she slipped past him and fairly ran out to her car. Once in it, she couldn't resist a swift, backward glance.

The dark young man was still standing in the doorway of the building. He was staring after her.

ANOTHER JEALOUS HUSBAND

"You look like the Queen of Sheba," May remarked, eyeing the gold lace gown enviously. "And there's no doubt that you've got a millionaire beau."

"Why?" laughed Dorothy.

May pointed to the orchids.

"Thats the new variety that Sherman is exploiting. They say he's imported them from South Africa and that he's asking outrageous prices."

"Really?" murmured Dorothy.

"Who is he?" demanded May.

"Who is who?"

"The new suitor?"

"I haven't the slightest idea," laughed Dorothy, and left Mrs. Varney in a vast state of bewilderment.

Lila hurried up to her, as she entered the ballroom, and squeezed her hand reassuringly.

"Dot, you're a wonder! You got me off in fine shape. Herbert hasn't asked another question about where we spent the afternoon. He's very formal and dignified, but he'll get over that, after a while."

"I'm sorry to steal your flowers," Dorothy whispered. "May's just been telling me that they are very rare and expensive."

Lila sighed.

"Poor Jack! Isn't that just like him! He's giving what money he has to reimburse the government for that insurance and now he buys rare orchids!"

"I think it's rather sporting," murmured Dorothy. "By the way, there was a note with the flowers."

"Didn't I see it?" Lila made a wry grimace.

"I put it away with your letters in my studio. You can get it tomorrow."

Lila shook her head.

"Like fun I can! Herbert laid down the law on the way home. He says he is not going to have any more letters from Jack. I'm to burn them unopened this week. I am to finish with him every single day."

"What about Captain Farquahar?"

"That's just the point, Dot, will you be an angel and telephone him for me tomorrow. Tell him that I can't meet him for lunch?"

"But why can't you do it yourself? He'd like it better."

"I don't dare. He'd ask too many questions that I couldn't answer on the spur of the moment. All you have to say is that Miss Latham is avoiding detained and will not be able to keep her appointment. He's at the Sheridan Hotel."

Dorothy promised. Just then some one claimed her for a dance. She didn't see Lila for some time. At supper she sat beside May Varney. Herbert joined them and at once demanded jealously: "Where is Lila?"

Another woman, who enjoyed teasing Herbert, said:

"The last time I saw her she was with that fascinating Spaniard, and you can't blame her for lingering. He's simply divine!" She cast up her eyes dramatically and sighed.

"Poof!" scoffed May. "I have no use for foreigners. I detest the whole tribe!"

Herbert, who had been looking around worriedly, at half a mind to go look for Lila, turned slowly to stare at May Varney.

"You dislike foreigners?"

May became suddenly conscious of a French heel squarely on her toe.

"Ouch!" she said, and glanced about her indignantly. Her eyes met Dorothy's pleading ones.

She had a sudden swift remembrance of a certain afternoon when Dorothy had taken tea with her and had made a confession, over which they had both laughed. She remembered saying: "So I'm cast hereafter for the role of the broken-hearted victim of a foreign adventurer?"

"Well, I adore novelty!"

Herbert had repeated his question slowly:

"You really dislike foreigners, Mrs. Varney?"

May's face underwent a change. She lifted eyes of haunting radiance to Herbert and drew him nearer to her.

"Can you ask?" she said, her voice bitter experience?"

"I'm sorry—" began Herbert uncomfortably, realizing that his suspicion and jealousy had led him to tread on delicate ground.

The voice of May's husband cut him short.

"What's this, May? What do you mean bitter experience?"

May was temporarily at a loss for words. There was Herbert, watching her closely; there was also Jack Varney, staring open-mouthed.

"Why, I mean my family once had a French chauffeur. He — he stole all the silver and was incarcerated to murder us in our beds, if we — er — had him arrested."

Her fingers reached out surreptitious ly to pinch Herbert's arm, as a signal that this story was manufactured solely for her husband's benefit.

"What the deuce is this all about?"

It was Dorothy who created a diversion:

Does illness keep you from your work?

A GIRL who earns her living — whether in store, office, factory or home — realizes the necessity of regular attendance at her place of employment. For this reason she works on day after day. When she becomes tired out and run-down, she feels that she must keep at her work without taking time to rest.

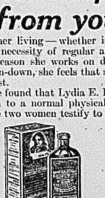

Thousands of girls have found that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored them to a normal physical condition, and has made them fit for work. These two women testify to that fact:

HEALTHY AND STRONG

Silverton, Oregon:— "I am writing to tell you how much your medicine has helped me. I was doing ordinary work, running, sewing, etc., but had to quit work when sick as I would be so weak I could hardly walk across the room. A friend of mine told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have found relief when sick and it helps me more each time. Every one says I am a healthier and stronger girl. I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to all my friends." Julia Schmidt, 113 Willow St., Silverton, Oregon.

LOOK AS YOUNG

Fruitdale, South Dakota:— "I felt badly. It seemed like my back broke all to pieces and I couldn't stoop down to get anything from the floor. Then a friend told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. So I did, and it sure has helped me. I can work all day long and I feel so good. I am 38 years old and I look just as young as if I were 20. I am glad to answer letters from any one about this medicine because it has done me good." Mrs. Francis Fajardo, Box 31, Fruitdale, South Dakota.

OH! BACKACHE RUB PAIN OUT

Rub this soothing, penetrating oil right on your painful back, and relief comes. St. Jacobs Oil is a harmless backache, lumbago and sciatica remedy which never disappoints and doesn't burn the skin.

Straighten up! Quit complaining! Stop those torturous stitches. In a moment you will forget that you ever had a weak back, because it won't hurt or be stiff or lame. Don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle of old, honest St. Jacobs Oil from your druggist now and get this lasting relief.

FIERY, ITCHY SKIN SOOTHED WITH SULPHUR

Mentho-Sulphur, a pleasant cream, will soothe and heal skin that is irritated or broken out with eczema; then is rough or dry. Nothing subdues fiery is rough or dry. Nothing subdues fiery skin eruptions so quickly, says a noted skin specialist.

The moment this sulphur preparation is applied the itching stops and after two or three applications, the eczema is gone and the skin is delightfully clear and smooth. Sulphur is so precious as a skin remedy because it destroys the parasites that cause the burning, itching or disfigurement. Mentho-Sulphur always heals eczema right up.

Speed, comfort, economy, smart appearance and flexibility—these are a few of the main features you'll find in the new Ford car—and what more could one ask? Phone Belleville Motors for a demonstration.

FOOT CAUGHT IN ENGINE STOKER

Scotsman Lost Foot—Narrow Escape From Death

Moncton, N.B.—Alexander Gray, aged about 18, of Aberdeen, Scotland, lost his right foot and had a narrow escape from a horrible death when his foot became caught in the automatic stoker in the tender of the engine of the Maritime Express from Montreal, this morning. When the train stopped at Bathurst, N.B., about 4.30 o'clock, members of the engine crew heard moans which seemed to come from the tender of the engine. On investigation they found the unfortunate fellow in his terrible plight. They did what they could to help him and summoned medical assistance. On the arrival of Dr. Duncan of Bathurst, it was discovered that the only way to release the right leg of the victim from the powerful worm gear was to amputate his foot at the ankle. The operation was performed under very unsatisfactory conditions in the tender and the man was immediately rushed to the hospital.

The victim of the accident was said to be an immigrant to this country and was trying to beat his way east. The worm gear in the bottom of the cost tender when in use rotated very slowly, but with great power and crushed the cost as it carries it into the furnace of the engine. If Gray's plight had not been discovered when it was he eventually, very slowly, but surely would have been ground to pieces.

In spite of the fact that the amputation of the foot was performed under anything but ideal conditions and that his other foot was badly crushed, the young man, is reported, to be doing as well as could be expected in the Bathurst Hospital where he now lies.

Owing to the delay caused by the operation the train was held up for three hours.

KILLED BRIDE OF THREE WEEKS

Bayeda, Ill., December 29.—Ivan M. Hart, convicted of second degree murder for killing his bride of three weeks, Mabel Marmont Hart, by shaking her throat with a pocket knife on July 4, today was sentenced to 99 years in prison by District Judge Ayres. Hart's attorneys indicated there would be no appeal.

PUT CREAM IN NOSE AND STOP CATARRH

Tells How To Open Clogged Nostrils and End Head-Colds.

You feel fine in a few moments. Your cold in head or catarrh will be gone. Your clogged nostrils will open. The air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more dullness, headache or hawking and snuffling, mucous discharges or dryness; no struggling for breath at night.

Tell your druggist you want a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream in your nostrils, let it penetrate through every air passage of the head; soothe and heal the swollen, inflamed mucous membrane, and relief comes instantly.

It is just what every cold and catarrh sufferer needs. Don't stay stuffed-up and miserable.

After a long wait the New Ford is now at Belleville Motors ready to be demonstrated to you. The four wheel brakes and shock absorbers are two features that make for comfort able safe driving at high speed over all kinds of roads. WIRELESS FIRST SPANNED WORLD 25 YEARS AGO

Marconi Invention Boasts Rapid Strides In Quarter Of Century

Twenty-five years ago this month Guglielmo Marconi sent the first wireless message across the Atlantic.

The world marvelled, then it scoffed at the statement that one day wireless telegraphy would be adapted to practical use.

Development Rapid

Development of radio in the last two years has been more rapid than ever before. Some of the advances made include:

More than 200 ships now are being fitted with the new directional wireless ranging system, the latest application of wireless for safety of life at sea. Atlantic belts are now in a special service whenever an S.O.S. or other important message is received while the radio operator is off duty.

Radiophone service linking Canada, England, Australia, Hawaii, Japan and India will be inaugurated in the next 18 months. It will permit telephone conversation simultaneously with high speed radio telegraphy.

A high powered directional or "beam" system of wireless communication will be put into use between New York and London within a few weeks.

Ships now can talk to shore stations by means of wireless telephony.

The greatest advance in radio has been in the last decade. Foundation for its later development was laid in the period from Dec. 16, 1902, when Marconi's first message was flashed across the Atlantic until the end of the World War.

Experiments Discouraging

Up until 1915, few experiments had been made with telephony and those were discouraging. In that year spoken words were transmitted 3,500 miles, short bits of conversation permitted from Washington across the Atlantic to Paris and Westward to Honolulu.

This noteworthy achievement occurred in the World War, but conditions did not again become favorable for research in trans-oceanic telephony until 1921 and 1922.

Broadcasting, although an industry but seven years old, has attained phenomenal proportions. In the world today there are hundreds of broadcasting stations and radio audiences scattered throughout the world run into millions.

Reach Every Field

Beginnings of broadcasting were so inconspicuous as to have found no permanent place in the records. Particularly sensational was the transcontinental amateurs here and there built small transmitters for their personal amusement. Today these transmitters would be considered diminutive, but each, in its own time and environment, was highly important. These sets frequently were used for transmission of phonograph music.

Radio programs no longer originate entirely in the studio. Means have been developed whereby it is possible through the agency of a special telephone circuit to incorporate in a radio program, symphony concerts, addresses and classic services, from opera to political meetings, from football and baseball games to international yacht races now are broadcast.

PASTEUR BORN CENTURY PAST

On December 27, 1822, was born Louis Pasteur, the son of a tanner in Dole, Franche-Comte. When Louis graduated from college he was reported as only "mediocre" in chemistry. However, he persisted in studying it, and within a short time made a discovery which amazed the scientists of the day. The "enantiomorphism" in particular, was incredulous; he insisted on the repetition of the experiment in his presence, and when convinced of the truth of Pasteur's explanation, he exclaimed: "My dear fellow, I have in my life no much love of the sciences that this makes my heart leap with joy."

Thus at one step Pasteur gained a place of honor among the chemists of the day, and was immediately appointed professor of chemistry at the Faculty of Science at Strasbourg. It was the following up this same experiment that he made his classical discoveries in fermentation, which culminated in the whole groundwork of modern antiseptics and sanitation."

Pasteur was distinguished particularly by his extraordinary capacity for work. "If Faut travailler" was his favorite phrase, and in fact the last twenty years of perhaps the most unusual address as dean at Lille he used these significant words: "In the field of observation chance only favors those who are prepared."

The crowning glory of his achievement was in his discovery of a method of curing hydrophobia by inoculation. On November 14, 1818, the Pasteur Institute in Paris was founded, and since that time thousands of persons suffering from bites from rabid animals have been cured, and the death-rate from this most horrible disease decreased.

SCHEME OF GROUP TEACHERS INSURANCE

Toronto—A scheme of group insurance for all permanent school teachers in Ontario was suggested at the Annual meeting of the Ontario Provincial School Teachers' Federation, held in Hart House today. The proposal was referred to a committee for report.

The report of W. D. Lowe, president of the federation showed that membership had reached the new high mark of 2,235. It read in part: "There has been during the year no serious collision with any school board in the province. This is a happy state of affairs, indicating that school boards are, too, realize that in seeking a square deal for the teacher the federation has no desire to hamper them in the performance of their duties, but is assisting materially in securing conditions essential to the greatest success of our schools."

Addresses of welcome were given by Sir Robert Falconer, president of the University of Toronto, and Lefroi H. Reid, chairman of the Toronto Board of Education. E. G. Woodley, past president of the Quebec Association of Protestant Teachers also spoke.

Have you seen the New Ford? Seeing is only part of it, for a demonstration is what will reveal its extraordinary features; to you. Belleville Motors will be glad to demonstrate the New Ford at any time without obligation.

BELLE THEATRE

There are several "firsts" in "Open Range" the new Paramount-Zane Grey picture now playing at the Belle Theatre. In it, Lane Chandler, newcomer discovery, plays his first leading role. It is the first Western picture for Betty Bronson, the "Peter Pan" girl who is cast as the heroine, Lucy Blake. It is the first time Fred Kohler "died of the screen" ever played a half-breed Indian. And, according to the Manager of the Belle, it is the first Western picture in which the thrilling excitement of both a cattle stampede and an Indian attack on a town are seen in the climax.

REGENT THEATRE

"Sorrows of Satan" that ironic spectacle of the devil-on-earth which was written so expertly and so painstakingly by Marie Corelli is a triumph.

"Those views of fantasy, glorious mist ing control in a Satanic-screen effect presenting a conception of Lucifer being cast out of heaven, constitute scenic and dramatic sensational and camera treatments which I ever have seen. The scenes of Satan amid snow in the silk hat and cape of Mephisto on earth and his entrance into the lives of his victims are beautifully, impressively done.

CAPITOL THEATRE

For the first time in Canada, Marion Davies latest, and one of her greatest, screen successes, "Quality Street" is presented in this country yesterday and picture of the English were the favorites to see this great film. Supported by Conrad Nagel beautiful Marion Davies, foremost among screen comediennes, presents to us on this occasion a great comedy of love and war, a story written by the great James Barrie. The "finest contribution which Marion Davies has made to the screen" is what has been said of "Quality Street" and it lives up to its reputation The film comes to Belleville straight from its triumph in New York City, and commenced a three day run at the Capitol yesterday before large holiday crowds.

On the stage and rounding out an entertaining bill is a good novelty act demonstrating clever tricks including the art of voice throwing. The act is distinctly different and was highly appreciated by yesterday's audiences.

David said that all men were liars, and he might have added that some were work overtime at the job.

OVERTIME GAME RESULTS IN WIN FOR MAROONS OVER BROCKVILLE

Daw Whalen Stars As Locals Capture Second Straight

SCORE 4-3

Belleville Overcome Three-Goal Lead—Visiting Player Injured

Belleville Intermediates scored their second win of the season over Brockville here last night 4-3 but it took eighty minutes of fast hockey to do it and by virtue of this win the locals are sitting on top of the loop with two wins, along with Kingston who beat Cornwall last night in Cornwall 6-2. Ed Thomas and his gang are determined to stay there and it will take a lot of beating to knock them off their perch.

The locals were very slow in hitting their stride and before half the 1st period was over Brockville looked like sure winners with 3 counters tucked away.

The game was very fast for so early in the season with play on the 1st perfect little in the visitors favor but after this period the game was fairly even Brockville came here last night with only seven players, and the regular who started finished the game without being relieved once, except after Woodcock was badly hurt in the neck from the butt-end of Gwyer's stick, did their only sub get into action, the accident to Woodcock happened as an accident and Gwyer was not to blame. Woodcock had to retire and medical aid was summoned.

Bill Green also retired soon after the second period and was replaced by Bruce muscle in his leg and did not appear on the ice afterwards.

Great credit is due the Brockville gang for their lively game and had they had more than a handful more on the line-up it is just a question if the locals would have come out on top. It is expected back on the 10th of this week, and will greatly strengthen the team.

Jack Rooney at centre ice played a great game and was going as strong at the end as at the start. He along with Whalen licked the best of the locals although Bolan, Gregg, Hagerman, Green, Jarvis, and Hibbard all turned in nice games. Bohan turned in another great game, and the goals that beat him were all well-earned, for the 3 that beat him he stopped a dozen that were labelled for the net.

Mort Kennedy at centre for Brockville was perhaps the best man on the ice, although Whalen ran him a close second and the former drew many rounds of applause for his fine work. He is a wonderful centre man and with out him Brockville would be very weak as he rushes, stick-handles and checks back in remarkable fine style.

McIntyre and Sheridan played fine hockey for the losers, the former showed no favorites and was in numerous bumping bees and not always did he come out second best.

Sheridan bore the brunt of the defence work, but Shorey did well also. While in goal Jack Murray, saved his team time and time again with wonderful saves. Jack is still the same good goaler he always was and should have a fine season.

Whalen played a lively game for the locals, in fact he was the pick, of Eddie Thomas' clan and to "Daw" goes the credit for all the goals scored by Belleville.

In the first five minutes of the second overtime period it was Whalen who tallied the winning goal from left wing with a beautiful waist-high shot into the corner of the net that Murray never saw.

"Soup" Gwyer played his usual steady game, but when he broke away, generally a couple opposing players were on top of him.

Jarvis the new lad, looks better each time out and only the hardest of luck kept him from scoring at least a couple of goals, he got for himself the nick-name "hornet" from numerous fans, as he was a menace all the time while on the ice.

Johnny Hibbard was going like a house on fire and before the season is over, Johnny will be one of the best. Eddie Thomas has two good subs in Hibbard and Jarvis.

Hagerman tried hard but had not much luck although he took Whalen's pass in the second period and made no mistake.

About four hundred paid admissions were in attendance last night, but the brand of hockey displayed should have brought out a full house, it is very discouraging to the management when such small crowds turn out as Belleville are out in front and mean to stay there. Eddie Thomas has done everything possible to put the fans a winning team and so far this season he has done well, with two wins and no black marks against his team, and it is hoped that when the next game is scheduled that a crowded house will greet the team.

The fans went away last night ticked all over not because they got their fifty cents worth, but as many said they were not dollar's worth, also the man showed the fans that they are fighters from the drop of the hat when with a three goal lead during at the end of the 1st period they went out and not only cut the lead to a tie at half time but went on to win in the extra overtime.

1st Period

Play had hardly started when Jack Rooney scored but it was offside. When Webster relieved and shot, Mort Kennedy tore in for the rebound and scored. Broderick's first goal before the crowd had hardly got settled in their seats.

Kennedy came right back in less than three minutes when he stickhandled in alone and scored a beautiful goal to put the visitors two up.

Green was banished when he tripped Kennedy to earn a goal. Hibbard sane on play speeded up. Whalen and Webster went off for a minor mix-up. Play was held up when Woodcock was truck on the bridge of the nose. Whalen just missed scoring and Kennedy did the same. The locals' stock dropped with a bang when Woodcock going down and out for the count. This gave the Maroons a new lease in life and they started to bombard Murray with "Daw's" pass from the corner to score number two.

2nd Period

Whalen and Gwyer came home to start the 2nd period. Brockville's rivals pressed when Woodcock went down, Kennedy and Whalen got the first goal for the locals, when the puck reflected off of Shorey's stick giving Murray no chance. This also gave the Maroons a new lease in life and they started to bombard Murray with "Daw's" pass from the corner to score number two.

Near the end of the period Whalen was hurt and had to retire, but he was back again when the 3rd period got under way.

3rd Period

It was "Daw" all the way and the score and it was "Daw" who won the game and it was the same player who got the score at the start of the period. Play became very fast, Rooney and Shorey both were given the axe for tripping neither team took any chances.

Woodcock was badly hurt in the throat and retired for the rest of the game, Frego the veteran of veterans and the visitors only sub, took his place, and the latter nearly broke the ice when Bolan robbed him. Once again Whalen scored but it was off-side, Jarvis, Gwyer and Hibbard all missed close ones near the end.

Overtime

1st 10 Minutes

Kennedy was through but missed by inches and Frego and Hagerman were two minutes each for fighting. The two players changed ends but no score resulted in the second five minutes.

2nd 10 Minutes

In less than three minutes Whalen grabbed a loose puck near Brockville's goal and drilled in a well-placed shot into the mesh behind Murray which the latter never saw, which proved the winning tally amid thunderous cheering.

Hagerman and Gwyer were sent away for tripping almost together but the locals managed to stave off the rush of the easterners, Gwyer was still serving his penalty when the bell rang.

Whalen was easily the best of the locals as the score sheet will show, he scored three goals himself and assisted in the other one.

SHORT SKIRTS NO MODERN THING

Berne, Switzerland. — Short frocks for women may disturb some conservative folk in many countries but they are an old story for Switzerland.

A seeker for historical facts delving into the life of the sixteenth century has discovered that a few years before the Reformation movement and under reign of Charles III. of Savoie, women wore skirts that stopped at the knee.

Thus, says the Swiss writer, 300 women dared to show their lower limbs during the reign of Francis I. of France when Fashion strictly order ed a dress which swept the floor.

Intelligencer Black Hawks Meet Ciaco On Wednesday Night.

The local Senior City Hockey League will pry off the lid on Wednesday evening at Arena's arena with a double header commencing at 8 o'clock. The first game of the evening will be between the Intelligencer and Ciaco and at 9 o'clock the Tigers will take on the Moose. Both games should give the fast and interesting affairs as each team will be out for a win to start the season off right.

The games should provide fast hockey as all teams are very evenly matched and the fans can be assured of their money's worth. The small sum of 15c will entitle the fans to see the game and a big crowd is hoped for.

On Friday evening of this week another double header will be played between the Imperial Oil at 8 p.m. and the Y's Men, and at 9 p.m. the Quinte Electric will stack up against the fast Bonnie crowd.

On Monday Jan. 9th at 8 p.m. Point Ann will tackle the Moose and at 9 p. m. the Intelligencer will try to take a fall out of the Quinte Electrics.

CENTRAL LEAGUE IS REORGANIZED

Enthusiastic Meeting Held At Queen's Hotel, Port Hope, Saturday

OFFICERS CHOSEN

Senior Baseball Assured In Central Ontario In Coming Summer.

(By a Staff Reporter)

Senior baseball is assured for the fans of Central Ontario this year, after a lapse of one year the league was reorganized at one of the most enthusiastic meetings ever held on Saturday at the Queen's Hotel in Port Hope. Interest ran high and the enthusiasm was such as to denote that a strong revival of the great summer pastime is in store for this season. The towns involved in the old League tried other means to supply the fans with good baseball last season but each and everyone was not satisfied with the results and a stig was noticed some weeks ago which eventually brought the representatives together on Saturday. Belleville was represented by the strongest delegation of the towns in Central Ontario, and fans in this city will be proud of the fact that several of them were named as officers in the new circuit. The league will bear the same name as it has in the past, "Central Ontario Baseball League," and the teams included will be practically the same.

Peterboro, Belleville and Oshawa are sure (latters and although Kingston was not represented, a phone conversation with a prominent baseball authority in that city revealed that Joe Daley and his crew are strong for the circuit. Cobourg and Port Hope were both represented and although they did not definitely announce their entry, the delegates left the meeting with high hopes that an amalgamated team might be placed in the field.

Belleville, Ontario champions in 1919, and several times C.O.B.L. winners will be back as strong as ever and it is expected that the fans will get behind the men who are working for baseball in the city. A meeting of all citizens will be called within a few days and supporters are urged to turn out and show these men that their actions in placing Belleville back in the Senior series are appreciated.

Harry Crossland of Belleville was elected as Chairman and Newton Thompson acted as Secretary. The representatives present were as follows:

Peterboro—D. Hamilton, T. Holyman M. Swanston, J. Beckham.

Oshawa—F. G. Chester, J. Dobson, A. Legge and H. Luke.

Port Hope—M. Hewson, H. Cox, A. Christy, Si. Rennals and R. H. Burnham.

Cobourg—C. W. Vivian.

Belleville—W. E. Rowsome, S. Harrison, R. Collins, W. Anderson, W. Ceiling, H. W. Greenleaf and Newton Thompson.

Max Swanston, veteran catcher with the Peterboro club stated that the Petes would come back provided four club entered but they were not in favor of a three-team circuit.

Mr. Chester of Oshawa stated the Motor City Club had not found continuance in the Lake Shore group satisfactory and they were strong for the reorganization of the Central League. With Belleville, Peterboro and Oshawa in a good position to place a team in the field he felt that efforts should be directed towards assisting an amalgamated team of Port Hope and Cobourg. He stated the executive of the Oshawa Club were opposed to the club jump to Kingston. Mr. Chester was of the opinion that with Port Hope and Cobourg in, the League would be more compact.

Mr. Vivian of Cobourg said that the Maguis in the Lake Shore Town were seriously considering the question but were not in favor of the proposed combination with Port Hope.

Port Hope representatives stated that they had figured on some substantial new Cobourg and it was not deemed advisable with the present material on hand to re-enter the Senior series. Mr. Rennals questioned the delegates on the possibility of splitting the gates in each town as the smaller centres would then be in a much better position to carry on.

Mr. W. E. Rowsome on behalf of the Belleville delegation, said the Quinte City would enter on any agreement which was suitable to the others.

It was moved by Mr. Chester and seconded by W. E. Rowsome that the League be formed.

Vice-Pres.—H. L. Broomfield, Oshawa; W. E. Rowsome, Belleville; Newton Thompson, Mr. Hewson, Port Hope; Kemp Payne, Cobourg; Bob Stacey, Kingston.

Sec.-Treas.—A. Thompson, Belleville.

The executive may send substitutes to the meetings if desired.

The League will apply to the O.B. A. for full assistance at an early date.

The executive will receive the applications of clubs which must be in the hands of the Secretary by February 1st.

The old constitution will remain the same.

Peterboro, Belleville and Oshawa representatives said they were not in favor of a split gate with Cobourg and Port Hope.

RUMOUR OF PRO. HOCKEY BATTLE

Boston, Mass.—Rumors and rumblings of a "hockey war" between the National League, major organization of the ice game, and the Canadian American junior circuit, were heard here as the latest phase of the Leland "Hazel" Harrington case. Harrington, a member of the Boston Bruins National League team, who has been farmed out to the New Haven senet of the Canadian-American League, recently refused to obey a recall order to Boston and according to newspapers played with the New Haven team recently "on advice of Canadian-American officials."

President Charles P. Adams, of the Bruins, announced that Harrington probably would be sold in the near future to some other team in the Canadian-American League. At the same time, he advised the New Haven club that any offers the Bruins had made to sell Harrington outright to New Haven were withdrawn. The Bruins owner said he had received two offers for Harrington from other Canadian-American clubs. Harrington probably will be sold to the junior circuit, he added, inasmuch as the Bruins have no desire to sell him out of a league in which he has made a good drawing card.

Adams also notified President Frank Calder, of the National League, that Harrington's reported participation in a recent New Haven game, but as far as known during the possibility of a hock ey war, he confined himself to advising the club officials and not the team's commandment." The Canadian-American League began this year's operations with the announced intention of admitting fewer National League reserve players than before, but almost every club has a few in their regular line-up and, according to hockey circles, there could ill-afford a break with the senior organization just now.

WHEN the salesman demonstrates a General Motors car today, he reveals to his customers a new conception of motor car value, safety, comfort and beauty—the conception of greater quality assured by the emblem, Body by Fisher. Expect him, therefore, to give you complete details about the body of the car you are considering—for it is a Body by Fisher. The best motor car merchants join discriminating buyers everywhere in recognizing the superiorities in Fisher Bodies. Before selecting a motor car, you should actually see and realize the important advantages built into every Body by Fisher.

Clear Vision Corner Pillars—The narrow front pillars of a Fisher Body eliminate the "blind spot" in driving, enabling the driver to see objects in front and on the sides at all times—thus increasing safety.

Doors—The strength of a Fisher door permits a 200 pound man to swing on it without sagging in the slightest. Merely closing the door of a Body by Fisher indicates the staunch and solid construction which is hidden away beneath its beauty.

Inspection—Every part and every operation, which is employed in making a Body by Fisher, must pass rigid inspection. For every Fisher Body manufactured during a day, there is a Fisher inspector, expert in his work, testing and scrutinizing, rejecting and approving.

U.S. TO PUSH CAMPAIGN AGAINST NICARAGUA REBELS

Hickman Admits Killing, Pleading Insanity---Thornton's Visit To Mexico To Be Aired In House

INVESTIGATION STARTED TODAY

FIX RESPONSIBILITY

Commission Covers Attempted Rescue Work And Cause Of Failure

Washington, January 4.—President Coolidge today in a special message asked Congress to authorize him to appoint a commission of five, three to be civilians to inquire into the sinking of the submarine "S-4." Chairman Hale, of the Senate Naval Committee, introduced the resolution for this purpose and it was referred to his committee. A similar measure was prepared by Chairman Butler of the House Naval Committee.

Boston, January 4.—Navy inquiry into the sinking of the submarine S-4 of Provincetown, on December 17, with the loss of forty lives, opened at the Navy Yard today, Admiral Richard Jackson, presided. Proceedings began with the reading of a rescript by Secretary of the Navy Wilbur. The secretary ordered "a thorough investigation into all circumstances connected with the loss of the S-4, the cause thereof, damages to property resulting therefrom, injuries to personnel incidental thereto, and responsibility therefore, and also into all circumstances attending the sunquest rescue operations."

LOCAL CONDUCTOR PAINFULLY INJURED

Kingston, Jan. 4.—E. McQuaid Belleville, a former resident of Kingston, was rather painfully injured at Pinder Station. Owing to a break in the freight train on which he was conductor, the sudden application of the air brakes on the rear segment, caused him to be precipitated from his seat in the caboose, through the window frame of the car, the result was he was badly lacerated on the face and arms and suffered severe concussion of the knee joint, which will probably incapacitate him for some time.

The engineer of the freight conveyed him to Kingston and Dr. Charles Morrison, the C.N.R. surgeon, was summoned. Mr. McQuaid was subsequently taken to Belleville.

LONDON-CANNES AIR SERVICE

Cannes, January 4.—Daily passenger plane service between London and Cannes will be inaugurated March first by the Air Union. The trip will be made in three flights, first from London to Le Bourget and thence to Marseilles, near Marcelles where passengers will change to a seaplane for the final lap to Cannes.

REBEKAH LODGE 1928 OFFICERS

SIR HENRY'S MEXICAN TRIP WILL CAUSE BIG PARLIAMENTARY STIR

SIXTY DEATHS

From Effects Of Cold In United States Since January First

Chicago, Jan. 4.—The greater part of United States today was coming slowly out of the anaesthetic of low temperatures which since New Year's day has extended its chill as far south as the Gulf of Mexico. Fewer fatalities were reported Tuesday, although cubzero temperatures were not uncommon throughout most of the north and middle west. Sixty deaths attributed to cold and snow have been recorded from widely separated sections of country since January 1.

Motion Before House Asks For Recall Of Mexican Consul

Ottawa, Jan. 4.—Hon. Charles Marcil, M.P. for Bonaventure, is submitting a motion at the coming session of Parliament asking for the recall of Medina Barron, Mexican Consul, at Toronto, and urging that "until the policy of persecution against Roman Catholics in Mexico has been stopped" Canada should discontinue all further intercourse with Mexico. The motion further disapproves "the unsalled-for trip of Sir Henry Thornton, President of the Canadian National Railways, to Mexico."

The effect of this motion, when it comes before the House of Commons, will be to precipitate a debate on the trip of Sir Henry Thornton to Mexico and the controversy which followed the subsequent open letter on the subject sent by Bishop Fallon to Premier King.

Mr. Marcil asks for the recall of Mr. Barron on the charge that Mr. Barron in a statement in the Press during the controversy, made "false and insulting statements" regarding the Roman Catholic Church.

USED CHAIR HIS FATHER SAT IN

Ottawa's New Mayor Had Old Seat Brought From Home

Ottawa, Jan. 4.—On assuming the duties of Mayor last night, Arthur Ellis, who was elected the first of December, although he promised no tax reduction, gave assurance that every effort would be made that the rate of last year be not exceeded. Last year's rate was 21.70 mills including public school rates; separate school supporters paid another 4 mills.

Mayor Ellis occupied the same chair his father, J. A. Ellis, sat in during the years he served as chief magistrate. It is the practice in Ottawa to present the chair to the retiring Mayor and have a new one for his successor. For sentimental reasons, however, the old chair was brought back from the J. A. Ellis' home for his son to use.

RUSHING TROOPS FOR NICARAGUA

Navy Department Sending Thousand More Marines To Trouble Zone

PUSH CAMPAIGN

U.S. Warships Congregating At Scene Of Trouble To Give Aid

Washington, Jan. 4.—As plans went forward today for rushing 1,000 additional marines to Nicaragua to reinforce the 1400 now on the ground, the Navy Department announced that over 200 bombs, machine guns and several hundred blue jackets either were on the scene or proceeding to the troubled country to be used if the need arose.

The cruiser "Rochester" flagship of the United States fleet in Central American waters and the "Tulsa" are on the way from Balboa to Corinto with re-inforcements. The "Denver" is already at Puerto Cancsa, former seat of the fascist Liberal Government with 14 officers, 200 blue jackets and 58 marines.

Build Landing Base

Managua, Nicaragua, Jan. 4.—The garrison of the United States marines at Quilali turned its efforts today toward the establishment of an effective base for an offensive against the rebel General Augustino Sandino.

Preparations will be rushed on a landing field for the long mule back trip now necessary to Ocotal, where the marines hold the railroad. Large quantities of ammunition, including hand grenades, bombs and machine guns, will be carried in large transport planes from Managua to Quilali when a landing field is ready.

Marine and railroad guardsmen will be consolidated for an offensive against bandits when additional supplies arrive. With the promise of a thousand more marines from United States, Col. Cullick, marine command er, is hopeful of pushing the campaign actively and the rebels to a success ful termination.

Y.P.S. OFFICERS WERE ELECTED

At Bridge St. Church—O. B. C. Students Will Be Entertained

Officers for the ensuing year of 1928 were elected at the regular weekly meeting of the Young People's Society of Bridge Street United Church held in the church last night. The Y.P.S. officers for the new officers are:

Past President—J. E. Dixon.
President—Miss Dorothy Bird.
1st. Vice—Dr. Anderson.
2nd Vice—Miss Ethel Payne.
3rd Vice—Miss Sprague.
4th Vice—Miss Muriel Moran.
Sec.—Miss Laura Rhinock Duffy (hard charging her with cruelty and habitual intemperance. Davey's suit charged that his wife's cruelty began on the honeymoon when she cursed him and called him a "bum actor."

Davey were married in December, 1926, and separated December 21, 1927, according to the complaint. The actor accused his wife of attempting to shoot him and stab him on several occasions.

Treasurer—Carl Sills.
Pianist—Charles Earle and assistant Miss Marion Davies.

It was announced at the meeting last night that Social evenings of the students of Ontario Business College and the staff of the Ontario School for the Deaf will be entertained at the church. This is a yearly social affair and is looked forward to eagerly by the students of O.B.C. STILL RISING

Floods In England Causing Alarm —Country Inundated

London, Jan. 4.— Great floods which have followed England's Christmas snowstorm continued to spread today, causing much damage to property but without loss of life. In places England is being turned into great lakes. The Thames has risen a foot during the 24 hours ending at nine o'clock this morning, and was four feet above normal with officials describing the situation as "alarming" .....

FLOOD DAMAGES GETTING SERIOUS

England Dotted With Lakes As Result Of Continued Thaw

London, January 4.—The Thames continues to rise rapidly and yesterday was three feet higher owing to continued thaw and heavy downfall of snow, hundreds of acres of land, and miles of roads are flooded. London is dotted with lakes and ponds.

Besides the Thames many placid streams which are ordinarily narrow burst their banks and become torrents. Several railway bridges collapsed, and others are in grave anxieties after a passenger train passed over it.

Milder weather checked the thaw and prevented a worse overflow. The current of the Thames bore many barges from their moorings last night and today. These dislodged others, and several bridges and some small. In Walthamstow street cars and buses stopped, increasing the burden of trains and delaying people going to and from work. In the Edgeware section, many residents are marooned in the upper storeys of houses. The Hayter section is experiencing the worst floods in forty years.

So far none of the streams flowing under London have broken out of banks.

Bridges Wrecked

Further south, in Kingston and Edmonton districts, the floods wrecked the bridge on the main line and trains between London and Portsmouth have been unable to use it.

Guilford, in Surrey, was hit seriously. The water in the River Wey is a foot higher than any previous record and many persons had to be rescued from stores and private dwellings.

In West England, Bath and the surrounding country districts were so flooded that scouts were posted to direct traffic and keep while the inhabitants of various towns are being rescued from their homes.

The railways are carrying on as well as possible, the London Northeastern Railway announcing it shall continue to run trains until the water reaches the fire boxes."

The Automobile Association has issued a long list of routes throughout England which can be followed by motorists because of flooded conditions.

The publication of the decidedly unusual conditions throughout the countryside was supplied today by the aid of the air service, who arrived at Croydon from College. He reported that the whole of the southeast of England looked like inland lakes from the air. The appearance of the terrain had changed so completely that instead of flying by his regular land marks, he had to set a compass course just as if he were flying over the sea.

Hickman's Trial Set For Jan. 26th Despite Plea For Delay

NO DEMONSTRATION

Step-Brother Of Slain Girl Present For Preliminary Hearing

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 4.—William Edward Hickman, confessed kidnapper and slayer of Marian Parker, will make his fight against the gallows with a plea of insanity.

In Superior Court here yesterday afternoon Hickman entered pleas of not guilty to charges of murder and kidnapping, and coupled with his answer the defense that he was insane when he abducted and killed the 12-year-old schoolgirl.

January 25th Fixed

Hickman, brought from his cell to the courtroome by guards armed with tear bombs to quell any possible demonstration by a throng of curious, at first pleaded insanity on the murder charge alone, but attorneys for the latter.to cover both accusations. Asked by the Court if he knew the insanity plea constituted an admission of the killing, he replied: "Yes."

Jerome Walsh, Hickman's youthful attorney, who was hired to defend him by the accused youth's mother, after a session of the hearing filed an affidavit asking for delay in entering his client's plea, but this was denied.

Renews His Argument

After Hickman pleaded not guilty, Walsh renewed his argument for a delay in the trial, asking a 35-day continuance, which is five days over the legal limit fixed by the State laws. The Judge set Jan. 25 as the day.

Hickman was asked by the Court if Walsh was his only attorney and he replied: "Yes, your Honor."

The accused spoke only twice during the session. Throughout the proceedings he sat with his head bowed in the counsel table, with eyes fixed on the floor.

Behind him, at the rear of the courtroom was the only representative of the Parker family present, Perry (Bill) Parker, step-brother of the slain girl. Young Parker appeared to be under a severe nervous strain, riveting his eyes alternately on the Judge and the prisoner.

CHEESEMAKERS QUIT ON SUNDAY

Dairymen's Convention Are Warned That Lord's Day Alliance Objects

Kingston, Jan. 4.—Over one hundred dairymen were present from Ontario Eastern Ontario at the opening session of the fifty-first annual convention this morning when the principal item of the proceedings was the address of the president, Alex McGruer of Brinston, who predicted that the dairy industry of Eastern Ontario is entering upon a period that will have in it many changes and much prosperity."

The president called attention to the activities of United States' interests in Eastern Ontario with thousands of cattle being shipped across the border and cattle increasing in value. Referring to the Australian treaty the president stated, "With our increased consumption and population it is eminently desirable that we have adequate protection so as to maintain production as a guarantee of fair prices both for consumer and producers.

No Sunday Work

Charles W. Fralith of Bloomfield, director for Prince Edward County, in addressing the convention this morning, stated that he would like the association to take some stand on the question of Sunday cheesemaking. He stated that he had received a letter from the officials of the Lord's Day Alliance to the effect that the Government felt Sunday cheesemaking was not necessary and that if it continues this year, prosecutions will follow.

COLD SNAP CAUSED BOILER EXPLOSION

When a water boiler in the office of the W. J. Gage Company exploded on Sunday some damage was done to the fixtures and filing cabinets. Luckily no one was in the office at the time although the watchman was burned slightly about the hands when he entered the room. The explosion was due to the fact that the hot-water heating system froze up in Sunday's cold spell.

BROOKS' TRIAL SET FOR JAN. 16

New Hearing Granted By Supreme Court To Go In Person

Toronto, Jan. 4.—New trial granted Bartlett Brooks in connection with the death of Miss Ruth Dembner a year ago, Supreme Court on January 16, it was announced today. Brooks was convicted of attempting to procure abortion and sentenced to five years in the penitentiary but after various appeals the Supreme Court granted a new trial. The new trial will be before Mr. Justice Wright in Assizes and special attorney W. J. Gordon of Owen Sound will against prosecute.

Dr. O.C.J. Withrow, convicted jointly with Brooks, is now serving a seven year sentence at Portsmouth Penitentiary.

CANADIAN NAVY SHOWING NO INDECROUS HASTE

London, Jan. 4 (Canadian Press Cable)—The London weekly paper "Truth" is ironical with reference to the two torpedo boat destroyers which the Canadian Government proposed obtaining from Great Britain at an approximate cost of $2,700,000 to take the place of the destroyers "Patrial" and "Patrican," and to be delivered within three years.

Truth says, "Canadian sea-going navy, consisting of two cruisers, the "Patriot" and "Patrician" is almost worn out, so the Parliament at Ottawa is to be asked to vote money for the building of two more. There is no indecrous hurry over this matter, as the new destroyers are to be three years under construction or about three times as long as is necessary for the normal construction of vessels of this type.

"However, as they are to be built in this country we must be thankful even for small mercies. The idea of war does not seem to worry the Dominion. She probably takes it for granted that the Monroe Doctrine stretches north as well as south, in which case we must be rather welcoming the big new naval programme of United States."

NEEDED A "SNIFTER" TO GIVE HIM THE COURAGE

Charles Deane, 251 1-2 Front street appeared before Magistrate Mikel in police court this morning on a "drunk" charge. This was Charley's second offence, and as he did not have the necessary $200 fine in his pockets he must go to jail for a month. He was first sentenced to two months, but a little later the Magistrate reduced the sentence to the shorter period.

When asked why he had got in that condition Deane stated that he had to have a tooth pulled. "Did you get drunk afterwards or before you had your tooth extracted" queried Chief Kidd? "Both," replied the accused, "I had two or three little "snifters" before I went to the dentist.

TO-DAY'S THOUGHT

MOVIE FASHIONS

According to a moving picture director, the sex-story photoplay era is "doomed." Fashions run in seven-year cycles, he declares, and the "sex-story cycle" is about finished. It seems a much longer period than seven years that these nauseating films have held the boards; but everybody will be profoundly thankful that the disease has at last run its course and that these loathsome exhibitions of returning health. It is to be hoped that the director is right, but the question is, what is going to hold sway during the next seven-year cycle? This particular authority does not sound very reassuring. The "eternal fist fight between the hero and the villian" is regarded as the "season-ing of the dish;" but though this time-honored feature is to be retained, a greater effort will be made to "end" when the gruesome" with the wholesome. The public, being in an "unusual idealistic mood," is to be regaled with "romance and clean comedy." It is all very interesting, though rather disappointing. Cannot the powers that be in the movie world give us something a little more original than this? The public is in their hands, even though they profess to be in the hands of the public. Boxoffice patronage determines the bill of fare, they tell us. When sex stories fail to draw the crowds, something else must be tried. But when there is nothing better than sex stories and "something else," what is the public going to do for its entertainment? It has to take what the directors send, or stay away.

It would surely be possible to cater to this "unusual idealistic mood" in a more satisfying manner than by returning to the "romantic drama," with its sugary sentiment and general unreality. Idealism cannot subsist on such unsubstantial fare as this. The unusual public mood which is said to exist is the producers' opportunity for doing something unusual on their own account. Why revert to romantic drama with its suggestion of melodrama, that outgrown vogue of the stage—when there are so many ways of stimulating the desire for wholesome entertainment found to be characteristic of the movie fans of the present generation? Romantic drama may be better than sex problems but it is not a question of choosing between two unsatisfactory alternatives, but of providing entertainment of a higher category altogether.

TIME'S LESSONS

Another year has gone by and it is well to reflect upon its lessons, for it is impossible to go through a whole year without adding very much to our store of experiences and the wisdom which comes with those experiences. In every individual life, if we will look back and think, there have been many occasions during the year now ended when opportunities came, of which perhaps the fullest advantage was not taken. So much depends upon the right use of time, that we should always be on our guard not to waste it, and especially not to misuse it. Take time by the forelock, says the old adage, and all who do this are sure to find happiness and success. What is meant by taking time by the forelock? Simply to grasp opportunities directly they appear. Twelve months is a long time, if day by day we employ the hours profitably. If we note the mere passage of the hours which makes up life, but the way we spend those hours as they go by. "We live in feelings, not in figures on a dial," says the poet, and the truth of that fact is not always properly appreciated.

Here we have before us the prospect of another new year, with all its pleasures, its inevitable disappointments and its opportunities for progress and increased enjoyment. What should be our attitude at this time? Not to dishonor the occasion by excitement and efforts of forgetfulness, but rather quietly to remember and to resolve. We have made mistakes in the past year; we have sinned deeply, individually and ing year. We have neglected to make the most of ourselves; the time is given us to redeem those lost opportunities and to do better in future. Let us make up our mind that the year 1928 will be a profitable year for us—we could form no better resolution than that. Abandon bad habits, and form good ones; where we are weak, let us strive to be strong. Of our own will it is not, perhaps, possible to accomplish all that we desire; but we must draw on those spiritual forces which are always ready to help us when called upon. If we order our lives aright, it will be surprising what progress we shall have made towards the goal by the time another new year comes around. Hold high ideals and endeavor to live up to them, and nothing will be able to prevent this coming year being for us a happy and a satisfying one.

WHAT WENT WRONG

The only intelligible message from the missing airplane "Dawn", picked up at the Canadian Government radio station at Sable Island, consisted of three words, "Something gone wrong." It is now clear that something very important did go wrong. What it was may be learned when the wreck of the plane is discovered. But whatever it was, it was not the only thing that went wrong in connection with that foolhardy adventure. Something went wrong even before the party started on their fatal flight.

Mrs. Grayson was consumed with an ambition to be the first woman to fly across the ocean. It became something more than an ambition with her. It had become an obsession. She wrote that she could hardly breathe at "still mind voice" urging her to start on the transatlantic expedition. She admitted that the weather conditions were unfavorable and would likely continue to be so throughout the winter. She admitted that almost all experts as well as her friends counselled her to delay the flight to a more propitious time. But she declared that she had more confidence in the "still small voice" than she had in any human advisers. And yet she must have been somewhat dubious of the success of the winter flight upon which she had determined, for she took with her an automatic receiver, explaining that she did not choose to suffer long in an agony of suspense if the machine were forced down and help was beyond reach.

It is not improbable that Mrs. Grayson had concentrated so much attention upon her great adventure that she became a mono-maniac on the subject, and hardly responsible for her actions. Something probably went wrong with her mental equipment. For her own sake as well as for the sake of the brave and skilful aviators who have doubtless died with her, it is to be regretted that she was not restrained from putting her plans into effect.

JOY OF THE MORNING

I hear you, little bird,
Shouting, sewing above the broken wall,
Shout louder yet; no song can tell it all.

Sing to my soul in the deep still wood:
'Tis wonderful beyond the wildest word:
I'd tell it, too, if I could.

Ost, when the white, still dawn
Lifted the skies and pushed the hills apart
I've felt it like a glory in my heart—
(The world's mysterious stir)
But had no throat like yours, my bird.
Nor such a listener.

CHURNING

Some valuable hints on churning are given in a Dominion Department of Agriculture bulletin on Buttermaking on the Farm. In the first place all cream should be passed through a finely perforated tin strainer as it is being put into the churn. The churn should never be more than one-half full and the operation will be completed in a shorter time after only one-third full. In churning the speed which gives the greatest (economy is most effective. If for any reason the butter is coming a little too fast it is advisable to add just when the cream is breaking, some water with a little salt in it about two degrees colder than the cream. Common causes for cream churning too slow are too much cream in the churn and too low a temperature. The quality of the butter is considerably affected by the time of stopping the churning. The churn should be stopped when the granules are about the size of wheat or split peas. If they are too small many of them will go through the strainer into the buttermilk and cause a considerable loss. Overchurned butter will retain a large amount of buttermilk which will be difficult to remove in washing. The buttermilk should be drawn off as soon as the churning is completed. The bulletin, which deals with all phases of buttermaking, may be obtained from the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa.

IMPORTANCE OF JACK PINE

Although at one time looked upon as more or less of a "weed tree," the Jack pine (Pinus Banksiana) today is of considerable commercial importance. The average annual production of jack pine Ties and lumber is probably not less than 35,000,000 feet board measure, the greater part of this being utilized as railway ties. Some 20,000 cords are also cut for pulpwood and some 19,000,000 laths and 1,900,000,000 shingles are made each year.

UNSOLVED CRIME WORRIES POLICE

Scotland Yard Has Blot On Record At Closing Of 1927

London, January 3.—An unsolved mystery and an unchecked wave of burglaries, which reached the height of audacity during the Christmas holidays, mar a happy New Year's at Scotland Yard, headquarters of Great Britain's famous sleuths.

Scotland Yard tries to wipe its crime slate clean every year, and often succeeds. Therefore, the failure of King George's best detectives to unravel the mystery of the murder of a country policeman in Essex County after months of investigation is considered by some of the officials as a reflection on the Yard's high reputation.

Many Burglaries

Burglars had a "big year" in Great Britain, and just before Christmas they robbed the department stores and jewelry shops seemingly at will. They reached the height of daring by a series of robberies of the homes of Scotland Yard's chief operatives. Throughout the year robbers got huge hauls from big country mansions, utilizing stolen motor cars to a greater extent than ever before in this country.

The prevalence of burglaries in Great Britain has led the humorous weekly, Punch to ask householders who have been robbed twice in the same month to be patient with the robbers until a system can be worked out whereby the thieves will leave receipts, thus insuring a certain degree of protection for at least a month.

"Smash and Grab"

Scotland Yard is faced with an increase in what is known here as the American type of crime such as "smash and grab" window robbers and daylight holdups of bank and factory cashiers carrying money in the streets, with the getaways in high-powered cars equipped with wireless and many secret devices, is credited with numerous victories over the modern scientific thieves. One of the Yard's greatest successes this year was the final breaking up of a gang of forgers, associated with the notorious Josephine Clark, as comely a crook as every figured in a detective story or a modern crime play. Josephine entertained lifted London society in her fashionable drawing room while a gang of dings in the basements servant quarters planned her guests' undoing.

The first issue was all red in the city by the end of January and it is expected that they will all be put away. About eight thousand motor cars are registered yearly in Mr. Kelley's area. A new system will be started this year which will speed up the issuance of license plates.

CAR BURNED

A car owned by Mr. Charles Lourie of Canniffton, was burned beyond repair on the Canniffton Road on Saturday evening. Mr. Lourie was not with the car at the time of the accident. The flames spread so rapidly that the car was soon a mass of ruins. The Rowes Corners fire department responded but could not reach the scene in time to save the car. No cause has been determined.

A demonstration of the New Ford will convince you that for style, comfort, speed, safety and economy, it's the car you've been seeking. Belleville Motors will gladly demonstrate the car to you at any time.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The Belleville Horticultural Society will hold their annual meeting at the Chamber of Commerce building on the evening of Friday, January 13th. Business of the year will be wound up and new officers elected.

Liverpool Steady

Chicago, Jan. 4.—With Liverpool quotations easier and reports that British buyers were reluctant to follow up advances in price, Chicago wheat ave raged a little lower early today. Despatches telling of lack of snow protection from domestic winter wheat, however tended somewhat to steady the market. Opening at 1-4c decline to 1-2c advance wheat values here closed a slight subsequent general setback. Corn, oats and provisions were easy, from starting unchanged to 3-4c off and later ranging all around.

Exchange Rates

New York, Jan. 4.—Foreign exchange steady, demand rates on cable. Great Britain 487 9 -16. Canadian dollar 11-64 of one per cent discount.

Market Shows Strength

New York, Jan. 4.—Stock prices ex tended to work higher in today's market. Some irregularity developed during the morning when selling, inspired by price cuts, broke out in some of the motor shares but the whole market soon turned upward when call money rate was lowered from 5 1-2 to 5 per cent Banks reported a heavy flow of funds here from the interior.

Steel shares figled to make most progress, buying apparently being held back pending more definite advices of the course of trade. The weekly steel trade reviews reported good specifications for sheets, bars, plates and structural material in the last ten days of December. Copper shares continued to respond to reports of improving trade conditions although Anaconda and Greene Cananea, which is reported 5 points to new record high at 64 1-2 to harbor large short interest, rallied by early afternoon.

Public Utilities, which quieted down on the announcement of proposed United States Senate investigation last recent public utility financing and sector power projects, entered strength under leadership of Brooklyn Union Gas, Brooklyn Edison and American Express, some of gains running as high as 5 points. Adams Express soared 13 1-2 points on small turn over running as high as 5 points.

WATCHING CHILDREN FOR CRIMINAL TENDENCIES

By LOUIS E. BISCH

No two children are alike. Each child is not only actually but potentially different. And it is these individual differences that will either "make or break" them as adults.

We hear a great deal about crime and the methods for curbing it. Usually it is about the police, the courts, the penal institutions, our social and economic structure.

But too seldom is the problem attacked at its source. That source is childhood. This statement does not imply, of course, that all children are likely to grow up criminals. Far from it.

It does mean, however, that practically every case of recorded criminality can be traced back to childhood days —the days when the child is impressionable and open to good as well as bad influences.

It is during the early years that we discover in the child's individual differences the germ of possible future lawlessness.

The boy and girl start out being materialists. The child is not by nature altruistic. He is selfish. Dependent as he is for everything upon the parents, he comes to accept all sorts of favors, needs and advantages, as a matter of course, as his rightful due.

Thus he soon develops into a petty tyrant in his own sphere. And it is just in this necessary and unavoidable attitude on the part of the child that the germ of delinquency lies.

Leave him unhampered and unbridled, allow his ever-present desires to be satisfied without question, and before the sixth year is reached the child has become wellnigh unbearable.

In the decidedly different children these social and anti-social tendencies soon become marked. It is not long before the child becomes a real problem. And from the merely different child to the problem child, the next step to the delinquent child is a short one.

As early as possible, the child should be taught self-control. He should learn the pleasure that can be derived from giving pleasure to others.

In some degree the child will work out this matter for himself, soon finding that by making an effort to be agreeable to others greater benefits will redound to himself.

Still, parents should take no chances in this matter. They should try always to iron out the child's material selfishness. They should also be especially watchful over those children who are markedly self-seeking.

The stubborn boy or girl also requires special training. So does the irritable one, the one with bad temper, the over-timid child.

If a child is mentally unbalanced or defective the best place for him as well for himself as for the community at large is in an institution.

Never think that your child cannot possibly do wrong. Be on the safe side and believe that everything is possible. Then you won't be shocked when it is too late.

Advice to Girls
By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young girl eighteen years of age. I like a fellow of whom my mother does not approve. The only time I see him is when I go to a dance, which is very seldom. My mother objects to his coming to the house.

Would it be proper to meet him without my mother's knowledge?

CURLEY.

CURLEY: Why not have a talk with your mother and find out what her objections are? Surely she has a right to object to your going with him. Talk it over with her and if her prejudice is not removed, be man enough to admit it. On the other hand, if you feel that she is wrong, ask her to give this boy a chance to prove worthy of your friendship. By no means meet him without the consent and knowledge of your mother.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am in love with a first cousin of mine—she is a very nice girl but is it right for a boy to keep company and be in love with a girl being his first cousin and a few years his senior.

ANXIOUS LOVER.

ANXIOUS LOVER: It is never advisable for first cousins to marry and I were you, Anxious Lover, I would cease a wile outside the circle of blood relationship. In some countries the marriage of first cousins is prohibited as most undesirable. A few years difference in age does not matter much but it is usually considered better to have the advantage of years on the side of the man.

WHAT'S NEW
(From a Woman's Standpoint)

Gray is becoming quite the smart winter color, but grays that verge on the Oxford tones rather than the pale grays, and New York, which adds more or more black is worn for luncheon and tea than all the other colors put together.

A Paris hostess recently gave a "maggie jazz," to which the guests were bidden to wear black, white, or black and white, and to come to such a studio with ebony black floor and silver walls.

Gunmetal silk stockings are said to have recently inspired one Paris millinery creation in the market a new shade of felt hat which has been designated as "gun-fire"—a dark shade with a metallic sheen.

New York reports a vogue for the amusing new Deauville dogs, which are conveniently flat for carrying under the arm and made like a hooded rug on the outer side, and can be used as a pillow when wanted.

Most of the new greens are very light, with a great deal of yellow and chartreuse is still being strongly urged in Paris.

A Man of Rare Attainment

Honored politically and professionally, during his lifetime, Dr. R. V. Pierce, who died several years since, made a success few have equalled. He was the originator of that great herbal tonic, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the sale of which has, each succeeding year, been greatly increased.

When you feel weak, tire easily, become discouraged quickly and sometimes fail like giving up the struggle, just ask your nearest druggist for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, or "G.M.D." as it is called for short.

Users everywhere laud its praises.

A SUITOR TOO MANY
By MILDRED BARBOUR

May flashed Dorothy a glance that said, plain as any words: "The next time I put myself in jeopardy trying to help you out!"

Nevertheless, she was sport enough later on, to whisper to Herbert: "You understand, don't you? No poor, poor heart——"

Shortly afterward, Varney insisted that they go home. As they were leaving, Dorothy heard him saying wrathfully: "Your poor, poor heart, indeed! What's that got to do with this French chauffeur? Jaxy, I'm going to get to the bottom of this!"

CHAPTER 22.

OUT OF LUCK ALL AROUND

True to her promise, Dorothy rang up the Sheridan Hotel the following morning and asked for Captain Farquhar.

The voice that answered was very pleasant—a mellow baritone—but it was the voice of a man who knows what he wants—and gets it.

"This is a friend of Miss Latham's speaking," she said, crisply. "She has asked me to find you and explain that she will be unable to meet you to-day. She sends her excuses."

"You are kind to call me," said the pleasant voice, very cheerfully. "However, why didn't Miss Latham herself phone?"

Dorothy hesitated.

"It was impossible. She was——er——called away suddenly."

There was an instant's silence. Then the voice said:

"I see," very slowly, even thoughtfully. "Will you tell Miss Latham, please, when she returns, that I will expect her to meet me for tea at the Ritz this afternoon? I have something very important to say to her. . . . Thank you very much!"

Dorothy hung up the receiver thoughtfully.

"That young man is going to be a hard nut!" she thought. She was dressing to go out to keep a luncheon engagement herself, when Lila dashed in.

"I haven't a minute to spare. Herbert is probably waiting for me now. But, what did Jack say?"

Dorothy repeated the message, with a grin.

Lila clasped her forehead dramatically.

"At the Ritz! How can I, when every one I know will be there? And this afternoon! I'll never be able to shake Herbert, after yesterday's fiasco!"

Dorothy shrugged.

"What could I do? He didn't give me an alternative. Simply told me to transmit the message."

Lila sank into a chair, despairingly.

"And May Varney called me up this morning, too, and gave me the dickens. She's been having an awful time with her husband, on account of that stupid story she told about a French chauffeur. She said she was set for hands of me completely, and, if I was carrying on an affair, I'd have to do it without her help."

She sprang up, glanced at her watch, and gave an exclamation.

"I must fly. You've been an angel, Dot. I'll have to manage somehow this afternoon."

She kissed Dorothy hastily and hurried away. Dorothy herself sat shortly afterward to keep her luncheon engagement. She thought of the man who piled her with lobsters—mayonnaise, cold cut lets, and out-of-season asparagus was stupid beyond belief. As occurred to her, for the first time, that his voice was resolute and unpleasant. She began to reflect on the fact that there are so few pleasant masculine voices, and she had to call her self to order to repeat the question he had just put to her.

It was rather embarrassing, since it turned out that he had been asking her to marry him.

Meanwhile, Lila was winning her way back to favor with her husband. She had never been so sweet, so attentive, so obviously adoring. He forgot all about the times when he had been cross with her. She was so pretty, so fault lessly dressed, the envy of so many admiring eyes. He was a proud husband.

And Lila was thinking: "Oh, if only there wasn't Jack! If only I could be happy with Herbert! I love him so!"

The ordeal of the afternoon haunted her and spoiled her pleasure. It was downright dangerous to have ties with Jack Farquhar at the Ritz. Any one of a score of friends might see them, and someone would be sure to greet her as "Mrs. Ware."

She shuddered at the thought.

"What are you doing this afternoon, darling?" asked Herbert finally, as they left the restaurant.

"I thought of doing a bit of shopping," murmured Lila.

That would take her in the neighborhood of the Ritz, and she could dash in and persuade Jack Farquhar to have tea at some less popular restaurant.

Her spoken Lila wandered among the shops, made a few purchases, and, just prior to the minute, arrived at the hotel.

Farquahar was waiting in the lobby. He was unsmiling.

"I'm so sorry about luncheon, Jack," she began, but he said grimly:

"I want a word with you."

Lila nodded brightly. "Let's go to a quieter place, where we can talk un disturbed."

"We'll stay right here," he announced. "I'm tired of skulking in quiet, obscure places. Whats the idea, Lila? Are you ashamed of being seen with me?"

"Jack! Of course not!"

He marshalled her into the tea-room determinedly. Lila cast an apprehensive glance around, but failed to see any one she knew. However, it was early.

"What did you mysteriously want to say, Jack?" she asked meekly, hoping to get the ordeal over quickly.

"I did you get the away the orchids I sent you yesterday?"

Lila stared, open-mouthed, and Farquahar smiled grimly.

"You think I don't know? Well, I'll admit my case isn't exactly conclusive, but I'll put you in touch: Last night I went to the place where Ive always sent your letters, and, in the lobby, I met a girl who was wearing the identical bouquet that I had select ed for you, with another especially loving care."

Lila's laugh held a trace of hysteria.

"Jack, don't be absurd! As if any one could identify flowers."

"There happened to be a variety of orchid that is not sold broadcast, and I waited to see the bouquet completed. According to my own directions. I think I should know it again. Take al se into consideration the fact that you didn't wear them, as I intended you should, and that some girl in the building, where you claim to have a dear friend, appears with the identical bouquet. Do not two and two make four in this instance?"

"I won't listen to you," declared Lila in a panic. She rose to her feet, but Farquahar had been lurking around the studio. "It's too fantastic for words."

He shrugged and raised his brows ironically, but he said no more on the subject, apparently accepting defeat.

"And, Jack," said Lila tentatively, "you mustn't be worried trying to find ow me—if that's what you were doing at the studio last night. I simply won't have it. It's—it's an insult to me."

There was such trusty ni his gray eyes that she looked away uncomfortably. Then she suddenly froze.

CHAPTER 23.

THE TANGLED WEB

Lila's only hope was that her father wouldn't glance across the restaurant

Cascades Of Laces And Drapery And A New Buckle

and catch sight of her. If he would nod a greeting, it would be all right; but the chances were thin, since she hadn't seen him for some time, he would come over to the table and ask questions that might be difficult to answer in Jack's presence. So she turned her back to her father, wondering what could have brought a middle-aged financier up-town and into that leisurely atmosphere at such an hour of the day.

Farquahar noted her movement and said:

"What's the matter? Aren't you comfortable?"

"The sun—in my eyes," she murmured vaguely.

"Then change place with me," he said quickly.

"Oh, no, I really like it where I am," she declared hastily.

Farquahar looked puzzled.

"You're very strange, sometimes, Lila I don't understand you at all. If the sun's in your eyes, why not get out of it?"

"But then it would be in your eyes." He smiled quizzically.

"Lately, you don't seem very much concerned with my happiness or comfort, Lila, when are you going to break that preposterous engagement and marry me?"

"My father—" she began, with a guilty side glance toward the four mid die-aged men.

"He's no better today?"

She shook her head, and then snatched at a straw of truth:

"He's no worse."

"Well, that's something," remarked Farquahar gloomily.

A few minutes later, out of the corner of her eye, Lila saw her father signal the waiter, pay the check, and rise from the table with his companions.

She bent over the tea-service and fumbled, with trembling fingers, with the lid of the teapot.

If only he would pass without recognizing her!

The hope was vain. He saw her, said a brief word to his companions, who passed on without him, and came over to Lila.

"Hello, Lila. Haven't seen you in a coon's age. How goes it?"

Lila murmured an introduction that neither man understood.

"How's Herbert?" asked her father blandly.

"Quite well, thank you," she said hastily. "I——"

"Come to the house for lunch some day. By the way, how would you like a little cruise to Florida in March. I'm getting out the Naiad this year?"

"Splendid!" bubbled Lila, with false enthusiasm, hoping desperately that he would go away quickly.

Tat French call it "panache". It means "plume" literally—but it means a hundred other things too. It means swagger, dash, arrogance, brilliance. Applied to dressing gowns it means a dress like this. And here's a secret—no need for a diet to be slender when one can look it in a gown with these lines. All over lace for the blouse and flowing drapery and lace flounting to match for the two flared skirt that ends in cascades at the outer front; a realistic bolero of georgette to match the color of the lace fills in the deep V front and the belt is fastened with one of the new "jeweled" buckles. These make a dress that will go successfully through many dinner parties, except when at parties where there are "dinnies for the love with a bolero of lace de chine in flesh or to match.

SINCLAIR'S

Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

Put a little butter under spout of the cream pitcher before pouring it on the table. The cream will not drip over the buttered line and greasy spots on the linen will be avoided.

Don't try on gloves for the first time when in a hurry." Even if you do get them on without splitting, they will never fit so well as when they are carefully put on, stretching the kid gently to conform to every line of the hand. If this is done the first time, all other times will be easy.

To clean plastic stockings—Shake them, spread on a kitchen table and rub them gently but firmly with a mixture of equal parts of salt and flour. When the latter seems soiled, shake and lightly beat the stockings in the open air, and if possible, leave them exposed to the fresh air for a few hours.

The fashionable housewife has a large folder in which bills are put upon their receipt. Then they are always paid in time to prevent unpleasantness, because they are never mislaid and forgotten.

RED PEPPERS END PAIN OF RHEUMATISM

When you are suffering with rheumatism so you can hardly get around just try Red Pepper Rub and you will have the quickest relief known.

Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers. Instant relief. Just as soon as you apply Red Pepper Rub you feel the tingling heat. In three minutes it warms the sore spot through and through. Frees the blood circulation, breaks up the congestion—and the old rheumatism torture is gone.

Hunkle Red Pepper Rub, made from red peppers, costs little at any drug store. Get a jar at once. Use it for lumbago, neuritis, backache, stiff neck sore muscles, colds in chest. Almost instant relief awaits you. Be sure to get the genuine, with the name Rowles on each package.

KIDNEYS NEED LOT OF WATER

Drink Freely and Often, Also Take Salts if Your Back Hurts

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it may mean you have been eating foods which create acids, ruin a well-known authority. An excess of such acids overworks the kidneys in their effortto filter it from the blood and they become sore and of paralyzed and sloggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach cums, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to get up two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the system, so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, can not injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink. It is of soft water. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

CENSURE POLICY OF CENSORSHIP

Mrs. Phillip Snowden Will Raise Issue At Next B.B.C. Meeting

London, January 4.—The British Broadcasting Company, which, under a Government charter, has a monopoly of wireless entertainments in this country, will be called on to answer a challge on its censorship policy at the next British Broadcasting Company board meeting on January 11. The issue will be raised by Mrs. Phillip Snowden, the only woman member of the board, who is supported by a strong public opinion.

For many months there has been a growing popular dissatisfaction over the programmes B.B.C., in the absence o frompetition, has been able to force into the ears of the wireless fans, and the recent censorship of a certain play brought matters to a head.

This play, "Machines," by Captain Reginald Berkeley, was commissioned by B.B.C. and paid for, but it will not be broadcast, because, in the opinion of the radio censor, it comes within the Postmaster-General's ban upon "political, religious or industrial controversy."

"Machines" is said to "present violent views violently" on syndicalism and capitalism, and the B.B.C. censor, in banning it, appears to have been actuated by the fact that many listeners-in hear only part of the play and receive an entirely wrong impression.

It is recalled that Father Ronald Knox, when some months ago broadcasting a humorous and imaginary account of revolutionary attack on Westminster, caused great alarm among thousands of listeners-in, who switched in on the middle of his item and thought that it was a news bulletin of an actual happening.

The trouble is that the Postmaster-General issued only general instructions in the matter of censorship to B.B.C., and that the latter, in the opinion of many people, has not interpreted those instructions to the best advantage. The board of directors of B.B.C. have never faced the issue and Mrs. Snowden will demand that a definite attitude on the subject of censorship be adopted.

The belief is that if this issue is satisfactorily settled it may lead to an improvement in the wireless programme generally and will meet the popular demand that, if the public must submit to B.B.C. monopoly, it shall at least have what it wants over the radio.

Now is the time to place your order for one of the new model Fords. Then you'll be able to secure delivery when you want it. A phone call to 1300 will have Belleville Motors demonstrate one of the new cars to you.

You may not be able to get "SALADA" Orange Pekoe Blend in every store, but most good grocers sell it. A great many people do not realize that such a tea is on the market—"SALADA" is much the finest Orange Pekoe Blend you can buy.

SALVAGED SHIPS FROM LAKE NEMI

Ancient Ships Of Tiberius Raised In Honor Of Mussolini

Rome, January 4.—The problem of recovery of the famous "ships of Tiberius" lying at the bottom of Lake Nemi, which for scores of years has formed the dream of Italian archeologists, entered its final phase today when Mussolini signed a convention with five firms, which offered to salvage the largest of the two ships, lying nearest the surface free of charge as "homage to Il Duce."

It is proposed to lower the level of Lake Nemi some twenty feet by pouring its water into the nearby Lake Albano, which lies at a lower level. This will be accomplished by means of powerful pumps which will eject the water through an ancient tunnel built at the time of the Roman Republic. The preparatory work, which will begin immediately, will take about three months, while another month will be required to lower the level of the lake twenty feet. It is hoped therefore, that recovery of the ships will be accomplished fact this summer. It is proposed also to build a funicular railway to the water's edge permitting easy access to sightseers.

The two ancient ships, usually known as "the ships of Tiberius," but which historians now state were built by Emperor Caligula, were two floating palaces which he used as a pleasure resort. According to contemporary accounts they were filled with all sorts of art treasures, and were considered one of the wonders of the world. What happened to them eventually is unknown, but both sank near shore, the larger in about twenty feet of water and the smaller in about thirty feet. Repeated attempts to salvage them have been only partly successful, but sufficient fragments were recovered to prove that the ships actually do exist, and are still so well preserved that it will be possible to re-float them.

Recovery of the ships from Lake Nemi, together with a continuation of excavations at Hercularenum, has always been one of the fondest hopes of Italian archeologists. Excavations at Herculaneum are now in full swing, and recovery of the ships is merely a matter of time.

SUGGESTS FRANC BE NOT THE UNIT

French Economist Gives Reasons For Using The "Ecu"

Paris, January 4.—Abandonment of the franc as a standard unit of the currency, and substitution of the ancient five-franc piece, the ecu, with value equivalent to the American dollar, is advocated by the eminent economist, Prof. Charles Gide, of the College of France. Discussing the forthcoming legal stabilization, Prof. Gide declares the spectacle of the franc, which formerly enjoyed wide prestige in Europe and influenced the currencies of a dozen other countries, at a fifth of its pre-war value, was so pitiful as a sight as the war-maimed are encountered in the streets. He asserts that no return to former value is possible and the sole means of deliverance lies in severing all ties between past and present.

Italy, Prof. Gide points out, after repeated fervent declarations that the lire must be restored to pre-war value, finally stabilized at 27 centimes in gold about one-fourth of what it was originally worth, while Belgium, Austria, Hungary, Russia and Brazil had all replaced their original monetary units with a new one.

Even before the war, Prof. Gide says the franc was gravely criticized because of the smallness of the unit only the official franc being a silver five-gram piece. Gold francs were then minted only in five and ten-franc pieces, while today a gold five-franc piece valued at 20 cents would be ridiculous.

The best reason for revival of the ecu, Prof. Guide says, is that it would stop the French from thinking in francs, the common measure between past and present and abolish the ever present comparison of salaries and prices with pre-war days. The fact that the dollar is also based upon hundred cent multiples, he says, would permit the establishment of the ecu on the same basis. He advocates dropping the centime which he calls a "ridiculous unit, which never served any purpose except to complicate bills and infest columns with fractions." He declares if one was able to count the number of hours lost in reckoning these "microbes and parasites," the centime would have been dropped long ago.

While ants which cause so much damage to wood are plagued by mites and other microscopic enemies

WASHDAY WORRY FINALLY ENDED

FEEBLE MINDEDNESS DUE TO HEREDITY

Vancouver, B. C., (By The Canadian Press)—Feeble-mindedness is due to hereditary influences, according to Dr. Algernon G. McKay, of New Westminster, specialist in mental hygiene, who is urging the Provincial Government to introduce a limited sterilization law.

Absence of any regulation over the issuance of marriage licenses to persons suffering from mental diseases is the greatest handicap society offers in the effort to combat such cases, said Dr. McKay. Lack of a check-up on the mental or mental capabilities of contracting parties in marriage, he added, is responsible for many pitiful cases.

"There should be some agency to look after feeble-minded children after they leave school," said Dr. McKay. "It is not quite enough for the state to provide institutions for the care of these children. The harm they do comes afterwards. Four or five generations implicated in serious cases at the recent provincial assizes had been sub-normal students at school."

In vestigation during recent years, added Dr. McKay, had taught the world mental disease developed gradually and was not of a sudden seizure; that mental troubles were not classified as disease, and that the asylums were now being turned into hospitals in which 25 to 40 per cent. of the patients were being discharged. When it was realized that mental cases should be treated the same as other diseases the same progress would be made against it as had been made against the ravages of tuberculosis.

Dr. McKay pointed out the great increase of patients at the mental hospitals in British Columbia, adding that 75 per cent. of them were sub-normals

GOLF, WEAKNESS OF OLD JOHN D.

At 88 Years Of Age Finds Golf Biggest Weakness

Ormond Beach, Fla., December 30 — John D. Rockefeller at the age of 88, has discovered his greatest weakness in golf—he stands too close to the ball.

He had a chance to correct this today in a close six-hole match with his old friend, General Adelbert Ames, despite the fact that he lost a nickel "bet" on his ability to make a certain difficult shot, he won from the Civil War veteran, one up.

The match would have gone further, but the generous oil magnate quit when the ell magnate won the sixth hole. After Mr. Rockefeller had picked up the score Mr. Ames bundled his clubs into his automobile and drove off, shouting as he departed: "The honest man hasn't got any chance in this game anyway."

"That is Mr. Rockefeller," said Mr. Rockefeller, "

Then, as if reflecting, after his opponent's departure, he said: "Oh, life has its ups and downs, just like a friendly golf game and the lurching waves of the ocean. The golf course is a place to see others as they see us, and is the mental mirror of many beautiful people."

Mr. Rockefeller experienced a well-played round, managing to get an average drive of a hundred yards for the six holes and staying out of the sand.

Once he was on the green in one, his tee shot falling 165 yards. This brought the remark from Mr. Ames: "I don't believe I know what dog story you're referring to, General," Mr. Rockefeller replied.

"Why, you know if the dog hadn't stopped to rest he'd have caught the rabbit, and if you couldn't put that ball on the back so much every time you made a good shot, you'd be able to play a better game."

Once, General Ames stopped Mr. Rockefeller and bet him a nickel that his next shot would not be satisfactory. The oil magnate accepted, swung and topped the ball.

"Pay up," he said, reaching for the nickel, "but don't tell my one that I'm out here making such big wagers or people will think I'm a regular gambler."

FRENCH COUNT CRAVES COUGAR

Only Canadian Animal That He Has Not Shot

Victoria, B.C.—(By The Canadian Press)—M. Paul Sunor, French consul for Western Canada, has shot big game in the wilds of Africa and India and northern British Columbia. He has hunted lions and elephants, but his experiences in other lands did not go him of the thrill he felt when an eight-foot cougar leaped from the branch of a tree in the Soake Hills and tried its best to gore the famous hunter's dogs to death.

"There is one animal I have not killed in all Canada," said M. Sunor. "It is the cougar. Before I end my hunting days I want to bag one."

So M. Sunor sought out "cougar" Smith, noted Vancouver Island panther hunter. Smith was working on a government contract to clear out the fur-loaded prowlers that had been decimating the sheep flocks of Sooke farmers.

The Frenchman accompanied Smith on one of his expeditions. The yelping of the dogs gave the alarm and a big cougar was treed. The exact whereabouts of the animal were unknown until it sprang from a mass of foliage a few feet from M. Sunor and attacked one of his dogs, ripping him wide with his claws. Sunor's first shot felled the beast, but the cougar arose and put up a fight to attack the new adversary). A second shot felled the animal and, as Sunor and the poachers the trophy he so much desired.

UNIQUE DEVICE AIDS PASSAGE

Dawson, Y.T., (By The Canadian Press)—Probably the only device in the world is navigation effected in the same way as on the Five Finger Rapids, has been used for the days of the Klondike gold rush and now a place of thrilling interest to travelers into the Yukon country.

The Yukon river is navigable from Dawson to White Horse, a distance of 2000 miles from the sea. Only at one point is navigation particularly dangerous and that is Five Finger Rapids where prospectors defied death on frail barges in the early days of the Klondike excitement. At certain periods when the rush of water is at its height the stern of the steamers is raised above the surface for a few seconds as they go plunging through the rapids. At other times and most time it is possible for the vessel to lose its headway and crash into the rocks.

To overcome this danger a unique device has been installed consisting of a steel cable attached to ringbolts in the solid rock above and below the rapids, and lying slack in the water. When the steel approaches the rapids the cable is picked up and run around a steam-driven drum. As fast as the steamer pulls itself up the river the cast-off slack or lower end of the cable is paid out to maintain the same water again, and the next steamer coming up goes through the same routine.

YET ANOTHER WOMAN WANTS LONG FLIGHT

New York, Dec. 30.—The New York American says today that Mabel Boll, known as "The diamond queen" is seek ing Fred Bennett and Bert Balchen as pilots for a proposed flight to Paris next May.

Bennett, who accompanied Commander Richard E. Byrd on his flight to the North Pole, and Balchen, a member of Byrd's transatlantic crew, were said to have tentatively agreed to head a company in the process of organization to back the flight. Miss Boll will foot the entire expense it was said, $100,000 of which will be for the services of the two men.

The proposed attempt would be made in a tri-motored Fokker plane similar to that used by Commander Byrd.

Miss Boll made similar attempts to enter a flight from Paris to New York last summer.

BELLE THEATRE

Petite Shirley Mason made decided a hit in the title role of "Secret Rose O'Grady," a Columbia success of last season, that she was the immediate choice of Harry Cohn, vice-president in charge of production, for the starring role in "Sally in Our Alley," this company's screen romance of an East Side waif, which comes to the Belle Theatre tomorrow.

Miss Mason has achieved distinction in the portrayal of the Cinderella type of role demanded by the part of "Sally," and was pronounced by Mr. Cohn—and other studio officials as being ideal for the character. As the heroine of the modern adaptation of the famous old ballad, Miss Mason is said to give one of the best characterizations in her career, Richard Arlen (courtesy Paramount Famous Lasky) is cast as the hero, a young plumber lad.

REGENT THEATRE

Crammed with some of the most thrilling action ever photographed, including a wild horse stampede, a running gun fight and a thrilling mountain climb at an altitude of 8000 feet, a bare knuckle battle to a knockout, picturesque scenery and a wholesome, stirring love story, Paramount's latest Western, "Shootin' Irons" will come to the Regent screen tomorrow.

Fred Kohler, the "Wolf of the Screen" remembered for his cast-iron hardened sergeant in "The Rough Riders" and the gangster chief in "Underworld" has the villain role. The cast includes Guy Oliver, Richard Carlyle, Loyal Underwood, Scott McGee and Spec-Allen Miller.

BALL FANS MEET JANUARY 17TH

General Gathering of Interested Parties Arranged At City Hall

Baseball Committees held an important meeting at the Alemite plant last evening when further plans were laid for the coming season, President W. E. Rowsome was in the chair and some real live discussions resulted on the various matters brought to the attention of the meeting.

With Belleville back in the Central Ontario League there is a great deal to be done before the commencement of the regular season.

A general meeting has been called on Tuesday, January 17th at the City Hall when all parties interested in the welfare of the Belleville baseball team are urged to turn out. This meeting will be called for the purpose of electing permanent officers as the present set accepted the positions only on the condition that a permanent set be chosen at a later date.

The question of an Intermediate team for the city for 1928 was discussed at last night's committee meeting, but no satisfactory conclusion was reached.

It was the unanimous opinion of those present that an Intermediate team should consist of those boys who are not fast enough for the Senior ball. This team would be chosen from the younger material in the city league who have shown themselves to be aspiring players. This team may be given a franchise in the Bay of Quinte League with Point Anne and Deloro. Then in the following spring some of the boys will no doubt be ready for Senior ball.

A manager fro the Senior as well as the Intermediate team will be chosen at the Public Meeting. Walter Gerow's name is the most prominent mentioned as pilot of the Senior Club.

The Central League will likely be either a four or five team circuit with Belleville, Oshawa and Peterboro sure starters while Cobourg and Port Hope are attempting to muster a team. Kingston may also be included in the new circuit.

CITY LEAGUERS OPEN TONIGHT

Double-Header At Arnott's Arena Should Attract Large Crowd

Belleville's Senior City Hockey League will open to-night with a double-header at Arnott's arena commencing at eight o'clock. The boys of this loop dished out a fast brand of hockey for the fans last season and the final game drew a large crowd. Several of the teams playing last year will not be in the fight, notably Basil Doolittle's Bell Telephone squad. This club provided plenty of opposition last year and they will be missed. Another crew which turned in some smart games was the Canadian National Express and the green-clad boys decided not to enter this year.

The Intelligencer Black Hawks will mix it with the C6rbyville team in offering in the season and these two appear to be fairly evenly matched. The Clares created quite a stir in the Industrial loop last season and made the others step every inch of the way while the same team will represent the suburbanites this year. The Black Hawks have picked up some new players, namely Bill Scott, Henry Canning, Gerald O'Brien, "Bo" McNeil, and Bill and Sid Hopping, and with an exhibition game and a couple of practices they will give a good account of themselves.

The second game will see the Moose, a new entry to local sport circles clashing with the Tigers at nine o'clock. The Moose have planned a fast team and a keen contest is in store. The Bengals with Jimmy Hedger at the helm have been getting into shape in preparation for this game.

Both of these tilts will be well worth the price of admission and it is expected that a large crowd will be on hand to see the quartette open the season. A small admission price of 15 cents will be charged at the gate. Managers are advised to have their entry fee as well as the list of players ready before they step on the ice to-night.

VETERAN HOCKEY STAR RETIRING

"Cully" Rocher of Listowel One of Oldest In Game

Listowel, Jan' 4.—Old "Cully" Rocher is going to lay his stiff down and study hockey no more. If the grand old war horse of amateur sport in Ontario hotel been able to take the fee this season, he would have attained, the quarter-century mark as a hockey player. But as his 25th anniversary approaches "Cully" finds that his legs don't stand the strain—the "old dog" begin to bark.

Says Cully

"You can say," said "Cully", when questioned yesterday, "that I won't be in the game. Yes, I know I've loosed an annual statement to the same effect for the past ten years or so, but this time I don't mean perhaps or maybe, but sure enough. Something tells me that after five minutes' going I'd need a pair of crutches, and one stick is enough to manipulate."

Twenty-four years ago Rocher, as a junior, started upon the ponds of Uxbridge, and for a couple of seasons hockey fans around Simcoe were dazzled by his speed in the days of seven-man hockey when a body-check was a knockout and hickory was hewn from the forest primeval. He traveled around considerably and played at London, Kitchener, Waterloo and several other centres in Western Ontario before he came to Listowel about 15 years ago.

For the last five years Rocher has been playing on his brains. Father Time sapped the veteran of his youthful speed, but filled his think-tank to overflowing. The years had taught him tricks which would still effrey him day night and with the big boy in the line-up they should do much better. The Inland Town team gave the Maroons plenty to worry about and it should be a great argument when these two meet again later in the season.

The Maroons still lack a scoring punch around the nets and several times on Monday night they could have gone into the lead and a scoring ace been up in front. Jarvis and Hibbard are showing up well in centre ice and take care of that position. Jack Rooney is going at a nice clip and is improving every time out. "Daw" Whalen is the same reliable boy that he was ten years ago. Douglas seems to improve with age and he is now numbered among the veterans of the local squad. "Porch-climer", some one has dubbed him and he certainly came through in great style in that capacity on Monday night. "Daw" is leading among the marksmen with an excellent average. No better amateur left wing man can be found in these parts and without him and his scoring power last Monday night the locals would have most likely come out on the short end of the score sheet.

Manager Thomas plans to work the Juniors out with the Intermediates and it seems a fine way of improving the Juniors who will naturally learn heaps from the older ones. Belleville will be represented by a sprightly clever Junior team this year and fans will be wise in keeping their dates open. All of the good hockey is not played in the Intermediate ranks.

With two games already tucked away in the bag the Senior Intermediates are sitting pretty in the race for the group honors. The Maroons had a narrow escape on Monday night but they came out on top and convinced the fans that they will be in the fight for the honors from the drop of the hat.

They have a rest until next Monday when they face the Kingston Frontenacs at the Jack Harty rink. The Limestoners have already grabbed both of their games and the team to win on Monday night will have a clear-cut lead. The Kingstonians will in all probability be strengthened by "Chummy" Lawlor when they step out against the Maroons. The latter has been laid up for the past two weeks with an injured arm.

Belleville Juniors open the season on Thursday evening at Trenton and with several of the youngsters showing up well in practice Manager Eddie Thomas should land the group title this year. The two Cannings have been showing up well in the workouts. Another stiff practice will be held tonight when the boys who will don the colors on morrow night will be chosen. Mr. Thomas invites any youngsters who wish to try for a place to turn out to these sessions.

Brockville team was weakened without Saundercock here on Monday night and with the big boy in the line-up they should do much better. The Inland Town team gave the Maroons plenty to worry about and it should be a great argument when these two meet again later in the season.

BOWLING

There was only one game played on the "Y" Alleys in the Elimination Series between Miss H. Bland and R. Miles vs. Miss Benedict and C. Cornell, and it proved to be a battle royal all the way. In the first game Bland and Miles were up 21 pins but lost the second by 8 pins; this left them 40 pins down but they came to the fore in the third won it by 42 pins and the total by 2 pins.

Elimination Series

H. Bland	152	131	117—400
R. Miles	133	146	191—470
Totals	285	277	308 870
E. Benedict	151	168	101—420
C. Cornell	112	170	165—448
Totals	264	338	266—868

RECREATION BOWLING

The Alemite and the Quinte B's played their play-off game at the Recreation Alleys last night as a result of both teams being a tie in the Junior League. The Quinte B's were the first to score one point when they took the first game by 7 pins, but in the second game Alemite came back strong and won this game by 62 pins and the final by 164 pins which gave them three points to the Quinte B's one. T. Barrett for the losers rolled 246 for the highest single and 726 for his three strings, while for the Alemite Belnap was the best bowler.

MUNRO UNPOPULAR WITH STRATFORD

Stratford, Jan. 4.—Assassins Alley can get ready for the next visit of the popular (?) referee, Tom Munro of London. Mr. Munro officiated at the Mohawk-Olympics game in Detroit Sunday night and taking the word of Roy Brothers for it allowed Frank Foyston's crew to tally an off-side goal which meant the balance of victory in one of the tightest tilts seen on Detroit ice his season. The said Mr. Munro handed out some fairly poor decisions in his appearances here. It looks as if President King of the Canucks needs a few new referees. It's not the writer's habit to pan the officials. They usually do their best on all occasions but the teams and players must be considered at some time or other as rank decisions help to take the heart out of them.

QUEBEC CABINET MEETS

Quebec, January 4.—A meeting of the Cabinet has been called for today. It is expected that business will be especially confined to the preparation of the session material. However, it is possible that the commission which is to look after the floating of bonds for the building of a roadway of the Quebec Bridge, may be appointed at that meeting.

RECREATION

Ontario Baseball league for the coming year. The delegates made no mistake when they chose M. R. McFadden as he was one of the best preseys the league ever had and it was no fault of his that the loop was forced to disband. In Newton Thompson the league has an efficient Secretary who through his long connection with the game in Central Ontario is widely known and honored by baseball men.

NEW REGULATIONS PROVE EFFECTIVE

Quebec.—In a preliminary report on the enforcement of the regulations affecting autobuses in this province, Jos. Ahearn, K.C., secretary of the public service commission, announces today that there has been a considerable improvement towards protecting the public through the control of the Commission and the co-operation generally of the owners of the autobuses owners.

Mr. Ahearn, in his report which has been presented to Mr. Adrien Beaudry chairman of the commission, states that while there are still a few autobuses which are operating without meeting the requirements of the law, generally the owners have complied with the provisions. For instance, at present all autobuses are covered by insurance policies and the owner himself is the public. Reference is also made to the fact that speeding on only one autobuses service is allowed on each route. This has been done to prevent unfair competition and in certain cases to eliminate the danger of speeding.

It is surprised in the report that taxi and truck owners be subject to the same obligation to protect the public as the autobus owners. It is added that an amendment to the law has been prepared with a view to deal with this matter. This amendment would prevent truck owners from carrying passengers in competition to autobuses.

Man So Nervous Gets Sore When Spoken To

"It actually irritated me to have anyone talk to me, I was so nervous," Vinol ended this and I feel wonderful now."—Wm. Pahy.

Vinol is a compound of iron, phosphates, cod liver peptone, etc. The very FIRST bottle makes you sleep better and have a BIG appetite. Nervous, easily tired people are surprised how QUICK the iron, phosphates, etc., give new life and pep. Vinol tastes delicious. J. S. McKeown, Druggist.

DICTIONARY NOW TO BE PRINTED

Oxford Edition In Course Of Preparation For Over 70 Years

London, Jan. 4.—"Zyxt" is the last word in words—the final word in the final volume of the Oxford English Dictionary, now completed and in the printer's hands. The great dictionary has occupied more than 300 people for more than seventy years.

"Zyxt" is a very old Kentish word meaning thou sest. Other words in the last volume include "wish," mean ing to make a soft rushing sound; "wife," meaning to wave, to swing; "whutter," the sound of flapping wings; "woop," meaning a convulsive sobbing, and "modo," which is something trembling as animal but not one.

The making of the Oxford dictionary is one of the romances of English literature. Before its vast scope it is declared that Dr. amuel Jonson's effort pales into insignificance. It is asserted that it will be the most complete authority on the meaning and derivation of English words in existence.

Two of its editors have died since the work was commenced. Sir James Murray, who began it, and Dr. Henry Bradley, who worked on it continuously for twenty-seven years. It has cost $250,000 to produce, part of which has been raised by public subscription.

The present editors of the dictionary are Dr. W. A. Craigie and C. T. Onions. Mr. Craigie was professor of English at the University of Chicago and acquired an American background. He is likely to be of great importance in regard to the popularity of the dictionary in the United States.

"The time for any prejudice against 'Americanism' is past," he said recently. "They have already proved their value as additions to the English tongue wherever it is used. It is in phrases made up of common nouns and verbs that the inventive genius of the American tongue most displays itself.

"No doubt many of these might be described as slang, but they have a way of rising out of this character and taking their place in serious discourse and writing."

CITY WINS DAMAGE SUIT OVER ICY WALK ACCIDENT

Cheese Industry In Eastern Ontario Decreases In 1927---Anti-war Pact Of France And U. S.

PACT TO OUTLAW WAR PROGRESSES

Will Serve As Preamble To Arbitration Treaty Between Countries

BRITAIN INFORMED

France And United States To Sign Agreement— Others May Follow

Paris, France, Jan. 5.—The French cabinet today undertook consideration of the negotiations between France and United States for a pact to outlaw war when Foreign Minister Briand presented Secretary of State Kellogg's proposed treaty text and informed his colleagues of the state of the negotiations.

In the opinion of official circles the pact as it is now being elaborated will in no way affect the obligations of France as a member of the League of Nations. The understanding is that this resolution to outlaw war will be incorporated in the preamble to a treaty of arbitration being negotiated separately between France and United States and other countries with the arbitration treaty attached to give judicial form to the anti-war resolution.

Great Britain Notified

London, Eng., Jan. 5.—British foreign Office announced today that the text of the Kellogg proposals for treaties to outlaw war had been received by the Government. It was stated that Great Britain merely has been informed of the proposed treaties and not asked for any expression of opinion for which there seems to be no need.

EXPLOSION KILLED SEVEN RESIDENTS

Berlin, Jan. 5.—Seven persons were killed and twenty injured in a violent explosion which wrecked and set fire to a house in the northern part of the city shortly after midnight. It is feared other persons may have been buried in the ruins.

Of the injured, seventeen were tenants of place the remainder being firemen, who worked superhumanly to put out the flames. Explosion is believed to have been due to some defect in the main gas pipe. The explosion caused a panic throughout the neighborhood, hundreds of persons rushing from their homes.

CITY NEEDS NEW POLICE OFFICER

Constable Morris Resigns To Join Provincials— Fine Record

Constable Price Morris who has been attached to the local police department for the past five years has handed his resignation to take effect on the 15th of this month. Constable Morris has been accepted as a member of the Provincial Police and will assume the duties immediately upon his leaving the local force. His departure will leave another vacancy in the city force but it is not yet known who will fill the office.

Constable Morris has been regarded as one of the most efficient members of the department and while his decision is regretted by the police commissioners nevertheless the best wishes go with him in his new field of endeavor. Always painstaking and capable in the discharge of his duties he has gained the confidence of the public as well as his confreres. Constable Morris has not as yet received any intimation as to where he will be stationed but has will likely be despatched to one of the northern outposts. He is the second member of the local force in recent months to leave. Constable Wilfred Franks having joined the Provincials some time ago.

Chief of Police Alex Kidd under whom Constable Morris has served is keenly regrets his departure and has stated it will be difficult to secure a man of his calibre.

TRAGEDY OF AN ONTARIO VILLAGE

Mrs. Eleanor Howe of Appin

(1) being held by the authorities on a charge of murder following the discovery by her husband in a crib of the dead body of their three and a half year old daughter, Eleanor, an imbecile since birth. It was indicated the child had been strangled. Also revealed was the fact that the mother had been discharged from a mental hospital where she had been treated for "maniacal depression," indeed, it was said, by the condition of the dead child. (1) shows Mrs. Howe, the accused woman; (2) her husband; (3) Jack Howe, 14, the eldest of four other healthy children; (4) Irene, 7; (5) Harold, 12; (6) Tom, 10; (7) the Howe home, where the tragedy occurred, which was once the Commercial hotel.

CUSTOMS COMMISSION REPORT TO BE TABLED FIRST IN THE HOUSE

Expect Recommendations To Prevent Smuggling And Tighten Service

Ottawa, Jan. 5.—W. D. Euler, Minister of National Revenue, said today that the report of the Royal Commission on Customs will not be made public before Parliament meets. It will be tabled in the House of Commons. The report was made by the Commission after exhaustive investigation which covered the whole Dominion, included a visit to Washington and occupied about eight months.

Recommendations for a general tightening up of customs service, modification and rigid enforcement of terms of anti-smuggling treaty, improvement of appraisal system, reduction in number of ports where goods may be entered into Dominion, etc., are expected in the report, which will be tabled shortly after the members gather here.

FLOODS SUBSIDE IN DEVASTATED AREAS

London, Eng., Jan. 5.—The worst stage of floods which have been disturbing England today is believed to have been passed although the lower Thames is still rising a little. Floods in England usually caused by purely temporary conditions disappear as quickly as they come. In Hartford and Kent, where hundreds of families went to other parts last night in the upper floors of their flooded homes. Inhabitants woke this morning to find that waters had disappeared as if by magic and that the river had resumed normal condition.

EXPECT TO HAVE PARIS MINISTER

Appointments Of Representatives May Be Announced Shortly

New York, Jan. 5.—Appointment of Hon. Philippe Roy as the first Canadian Minister to France is expected in Paris shortly, according to a maid-article received by the Associated Press from its bureau in the French capital today. Hon. Mr. Roy has been representing Canada as Commissioner-General in France since 1911.

France is expected to select as its first minister to Canada Baron Regis-Dartmaid de Vitrolles, Consul-General at Montreal and principal French representative in Canada, the Paris bureau of the Associated Press is informed.

PICTURES NORTH POLE AS PLEASANT SUMMER RESORT

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 5.—The glamor of the frozen northlands and the heroism of intrepid explorers of the Arctic was unmercifully "debunked" here last night by Vilhjalmur Stefansson, noted explorer and author. In his lecture Stefansson revealed that the hero is an amazing cliche, to an Eskimo, that the latter, unless he is a circus freak himself would not drink oil, that the annual show fall at the North Pole has been exercised by a single snowfall in Virginia, and that experimental under which the Arctic Circle averages 65 degrees and has exceptionally approachable hundred degrees in the shade.

Mr. Stefansson explained that the Eskimo is really happy and that Kentucky blue grass grows in the most northerly part of the world, as do lots of varieties of flowing plants in addition to sturdy trees which measure over three hundred feet in height. Iceland he said, is by no means cold. The temperature there in January is the same as it is in Milton Hall.

He pointed out his exposures within no sense to injure the reputation of the Arctic regions, but merely to correct misconceptions created by fictionists and the head of education in America.

LESS CHEESE WAS MADE LAST YEAR

Factories, Patrons and Cows Of Eastern Ontario Show Decreases

QUALITY WAS HIGH

Only 7 Per Cent. Of Cheese From This Section Under First Grade

Kingston, Ont., Jan. 5.—At the Thursday morning session of the Dairy men's Association convention of Eastern Ontario the report of G. G. Publow, chief dairy instructor and assistant inspector for Eastern Ontario, was the most important matter taken up. In his report Mr. Publow stated that the total number of factories in operation during the year was 845, twelve less than in 1926. In the factories there was a total of 22,503 patrons, a decrease of 1,176. These patrons milked a total of 235,279 cows, a decrease of 37,962 from the previous year.

The standard of workmanship in the making of cheese is very high as evidenced from the fact that less than two percent of undergrade cheese were so placed on account of mechanical defects. "It is interesting to note" said Mr. Publow, "that including all cases, only about seven per cent of the cheese in Eastern Ontario, is under first grade.

Total production of milk for six months ending October 31st, was 980,-677,806 pounds, an average yield per cow of 3,787 pounds. Yield of cheese per pound of fat was 2.50 pounds. The average selling price of cheese was about 19 2-4 cents, a rise on this basis of total value of $46,116,

CHANGES MIND

Hickman, Senior, Would Now Have His Son From Gallows

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 5.—Reversing his former views, Thomas Hickman, father of William Edward Hickman, yesterday expressed the hope that the youthful slayer of Marian Parker would be saved from the death penalty. The elder Hickman said his son undoubtedly was insane and wished that he would be ruled as a witness at the sanity trial of the accused youth

FATHER OF FIVE CHILDREN HELD

Charred Bodies With Crushed Heads In Ruins Of Farm House

Little Rock, Ark., Jan. 5.—W. O. Dendy, railroad show worker, was held in jail on suspicion of arson today while the coroner investigated the death of five of the Dendy children, whose charred bodies were found in the ruins of the Dendy farm home here yesterday. Dendy sobbed as he told the story of misfortune which he said had been trailing him around for two years. He showed bruises which, he said, had been given him by sheriffs who attempted to serve papers on him. He said he was awakened by the flames of the burning room in which the children were trapped.

Dendy's arrest followed the report of neighbors that the children were all in one bed, although there were two beds in the room and that some of the bodies had crushed heads. However, the neighbor stated that father and mother might have struck some of the children on their heads, causing the injuries.

MOIRA RIVER IS ABOVE NORMAL

About Five Feet Higher Than Regular Level— Rose Yesterday

"The Moira River rose one foot from o'clock yesterday morning" stated Mr. Charles Campbell to the Intelligencer today. "At the present time the river is about 5 feet above its regular level, measured at the railway bridge."

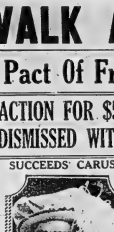

"There is not necessarily an indication that there will be a flood", continued Mr. Campbell, "but the crest of the river had attained its present height by December 6th."

More Thereafter?

"In my opinion the Thermite last year was a success", stated Mr. Gough, "although another people disagree with me. As to whether we will use it again this coming year rests with the City Council, of course. I don't know whether there would have been a flood last year if we had not used Thermite."

EXPENSIVE TALK AT $5 PER WORD

Young Farmer Failed To Use Discretion In His Remarks

Four rather expensive words were uttered by Ross Caverly on the 24th of December last, an expensive in fact that ithy cost him about $5 apiece in police court this morning. Ross, who lives in West Huntingdon, accompanied by a friend, came into Belleville on the day before Christmas, and when here saw a neighbour of his on the street, and yelling gaily at the aforementioned neighbour, one Clarence Wilson, said "Go on tome, you —"

The trouble arose, not from Wilson, but from Miss Evelyn Wilson, the comely sister of Clarence—who hapened to be with her brother when the offensive words were uttered. She resented the words exceedingly rude and Caverly are not good friends, not friends at all, in fact and the youthful Ross was made to pay for his indiscretion to the tune of a $1 fine with approximately $20 costs.

Caverly absolutely denied using any bad language, and was backed up in his statement by the friend that accompanied him, but the Crown proved its case and the accused was found guilty. Caverly and Evelyn Wilson have not been on speaking terms for the past six or seven months. When Miss Wilson was referred to as the "boy friend" once or twice, Ross, with some of his friends, staged a chivvari outside the Wilson home, much to Wilson's mortification, and., Caverly was brought up in court on this charge. He has been in court on two previous occasions, one for speeding and once for laying a whiskey bottle on a main road.

EXECUTE RUSSIAN AS A RED SPY

Canton, Jan. 5.—Advices from the interland of Honan opposite Canton today told of the execution of a Russian who was arrested by anti-communists Dec. 27, after his discovery with Russian documents in the Red disorders of December 11.

St. Catharines, Jan. 5.—With a gun pressed into to ribs from the rear, as he sat in his office today and accompanying command "Hands Up," Jerry Heston coolly asked a masked youth what was wanted. Upon being told that money was wanted, Heston declared the visitor was in the wrong place for that and ordered him out in very expressive language, at the same time reaching for a revolver. The youth was the would-be bandit departed.

Police later arrested Harold Gough, 19, and Leslie Reece, 21. Gough was charged with attempted robbery while armed and Reece is being held on nominal charges.

Alexander Moore Loses Suit Over Fall On Alleged Icy Walk

NO NEGLIGENCE

Judge Deroche Rules That All Reasonable Precautions Were Taken

In a decision handed down this morning by Judge Deroche, the suit of Alexander Moore against the City of Belleville for $3,000 damages is dismissed and costs are assessed against the plaintiff, Moore. Whether the case will be appealed or not will not be known for a few days but fourteen days are allowed in which such an appeal may be made.

The suit which was the result of a fall on an alleged icy sidewalk is of great interest to the citizens of Belleville in view of the decision given in the now famous Mrs. Mary Paul case, in which the plaintiff got judgment for $1,500 and costs. This case was fought through to the Supreme Court with the result that Mrs. Paul was out and the total cost to the city was about $3,500.

Fell On Icy Walk

The present case of Moore vs. City of Belleville had its origin on January 13th, 1926, when Alexander Moore broke his leg in a fall on Foster Avenue near the corner of Pine Street. He claimed $5,000 damages and the City decided to fight the suit. The judgment given this morning dismisses the action holding the City not to blame.

The accident to Mr. Moore occurred about 5.30 in the afternoon in front of the house of Mr. W. Bonnell at 239 Foster Avenue. In his decision, Judge Deroche pointed out that the snow and ice had been regularly cleared from the walk by a man engaged by the Nortons as was proved by witnesses. Examination of the walk, by the man who cleans it and by Mr. Bonnell showed that there was no possibility of drainage onto the sidewalk from the driveway and from the back boulevard on the outer edge of the sidewalk.

City Sanded Walks

On the day of the accident there had been mild weather in the forenoon, then rain, followed by sleet and snow in the afternoon. Immediately the older weather set in. In the afternoon the City sent out men to sand the walks, which showed different spots as was reasonable, and was first placed on the known spots of danger, especially on the hills and the business section. This particular street had never been sanded as it had been found unnecessary free from snow and ice and the City had no notice that it required sanding on this day, if it did not.

City Engineer Campbell deposed stated by him that the contract books composing the sidewalk were not more than 1-4 to 1-3 inch higher than the surface of the street and Mr. Aylesworth, the Engineer for the plaintiff, said that when he took his measurements the sidewalk was level. The Judge expressed himself to satisfy

BANDIT'S NERVE FAILED IN PINCH

Police later arrested Harold Gough, 19, and Leslie Reece, 21. Gough was charged with attempted robbery while armed and Reece is being held on nominal charges.

Curran was a member of the party at Coronation Block, a rooming apartments frequented by down and outs of the city. The jury found that methyl hydrate caused Curran's death. Thirty witnesses, including a number of friends of the victim who live in the ramshackle Chinatown apartment testified at the inquest.

CURB SELLING OF METHYL HYDRATE IN DRUG STORES

Winnipeg, Jan. 5.—Rigid inspection of all rooming houses, licensing of rooming apartments and strict supervision of the sale of methyl hydrate in drug stores were among the recommendations of the coroner's jury which has just investigated the death of Timothy Curran, one of the eleven victims of a "wood alcohol" orgy in winnipeg's Chinatown on December 27th. 5

DETLOR—MARTIN
Deseronto, Jan. 5.—A marriage was solemnized at the United Church parsonage on Saturday last when Olga, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Martin of Calumet, Michigan, became the bride of Thomas, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Detlor, formerly of Deseronto.

Tom will be remembered by the residents of Deseronto for his sterling worth as a backstop when Deseronto boasted of a real honest-to-goodness baseball team, and for his never-failing fund of humor while working in Detlor's bakery. After leaving here, some five years ago, he has travelled throughout the length and breadth of North America, and has met with astonishing success so far in his career.

Anglia June 5.—1418 London streets were lighted by replacing house owners to hang a lantern outside the leaves in dark nights.

TODAYS MARKETS

Heavier European Demand

Chicago, Jan. 5. — Assertions that European import requirements have been underestimated in a material extent were a factor in making wheat prices average higher early today. On other hand houses with Winnipeg connections were sellers here, presumably spreading against purchases at Winnipeg. Opening at 1-8c to 3-8c advance Chicago wheat held near to the initial range. Corn and oats were also firmer corn starting 1-4 to 1-2c up and subsequently showing further gains. Provisions tended to sag.

New York, N.Y., Jan. 5.—Cautious hearting followed by a partial recovery took place in today's stock market. Early selling was based on the unexpectedly large increase in stock exchange member loans, with the subsequent recovery influenced by a reduction in call money rate from 6 per cent to 5 per cent against an opening rate of 7-12 yesterday.

Chicago Grains

Chicago, Jan. 5.—Wheat Mar. 120, 5-8; May 122 1-4; Corn, Mar. 87 3-8; May 90 7-8; Oats, March 54 3-4; May 53.

Winnipeg Grain

Winnipeg, January 5.—Wheat May unchanged to 1-4c higher at 117 to 117 1-4, July 1-8 to 1-4c higher at 120 to 120 3-8. Oats May unchanged at 64 3-8.

POLICE COURT

The Quality of Mercy

Purcell Sculth, of Montreal, on the 27th of December, 1927, stole a pair of rubber boots, the property of the Pioneer Shoe Company of Canada, at press 10 parking out at Corbyville.

It is beyond from all rules that proclaiming attorneys are always hard-heart ed and enure for convictions and staid audiences, but to one Mr. Mahoney them they have also a habit of that great human attribute, mercy. Despite the fact that the accused pleaded guilty to the offence of stealing the boots, and despite the fact that this is an indictable offence, the Crown Attorney pleaded with the Magistrate that he take into consideration the accused was a married man with children to and to speak. Sculth was sentenced to a month's sentence, but it was suspended.

SUNSTROKE WAS CAUSE OF CRIME

Albany, N.Y., Jan. 5.—The last fight for the lives of Mrs. Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray, convicted and sentenced to death for the murder of the woman's husband, Albert Snyder, was made before Governor Smith of State Home today.

Sunstroke, suffered as a little girl, so affected Mrs. Snyder's mind when she grew up, Edgar Bordlon, her chief counsel, told the Governor, that she lost her sense of responsibility and so could not help killing her husband.

U. S. SENATE BROADCAST

Washington, Jan. 5.—Radio broadcasting of Senate proceedings was proposed in a resolution offered today by Senator Dill, Democrat, Washington, who would have each desk in the Senate Chamber equipped with a loudspeaker.

APPLE SHIPMENTS TO BRITAIN

Halifax, Jan. 5.—Apple shipments to Great Britain from the port of Halifax for the week ending December 31 total 29,094 barrels, as compared with 5,534 barrels for the previous week. The total shipments to date for the season aggregate 311,291 barrels.

CHILLY DAY IN HAVANA

Havana, Cuba, January 5.—Havana, to which country many visitors annually, today continued to suffer from a cold wave of several days' duration. Thermometers registered 41 above zero temperature yesterday (about 37 degrees Fahrenheit).

FIRE SWEEPS NORTH BAY BUSINESS BLOCK

North Bay, Jan. 5.—Fire breaking out in the Canadian Pacific Railway Stores building in the heart of the business district at noon today, had caused many loss. Early afternoon, the department stores premises were gutted. The roof of the buildings being a complete loss in addition, the stocks of J. W. Richardson, furniture dealer, were damaged to the extent of several thousand dollars and the firemen were concentrating on the work of attempting to save the Richardson store from flames.

EXPEDITION TO LOOK FOR DATA

Of Ancient Civilization Flourishing 3000 Years Before Christ

New Orleans—In search of data on a civilization that flourished 3000 years before the birth of Christ, an expedition of Tulane University will leave here in December on an eight month exploration of the Mayan country of southern Mexico.

Professor Frans Blom, archaeologist of the department of Middle American research, will be accompanied only by Weshter Hichfeld and Louis Bristow, two students, and native guides into regions where the tribes are reported fierce and resentful of intruders.

The Mayans not only cultivated their lands and built great cities, but were leaders in the arts of sculpture and painting. Professor Blom says, Theirs was the first mathematically correct calendar in use.

Covering thousands of miles, the Tuendales forests have never been fully traversed by explorers. It is there that the expedition hopes to make discoveries of incalculable value in tracing the history of the Mayans, who is believed to have come to Alaska from Asia and then gradually fought their way down through the western United States into Mexico and Central America.

In these forests are to be found the Lacandon Indians, who still worship sun and rain gods and make war with bows and flint-headed arrows. They are of a warlike nature. Women of the forests wear clothes made from the bark of trees.

Huge temples, built of squarely cut blocks of stone, have withstood the ravages of passing ages and indicate they were the work of master architects, says Professor Blom. Erected at places to offer prayers to appease the anger of the sun and rain gods, the temples as a rule are at the summit of hills and in many instances almost inaccessible due to centuries of jungle growth.

NO CURE YET FOR DREAD DISEASE

London, Eng.—The 22th annual report of the Imperial Cancer Research Fund recently issued here tells a story of continued investigation which for a quarter of a century has been in progress. Unhappily there is as yet no indication that the goal of the work is in sight.

Dr. Murray, the director of the fund deals at some length in the report with the disputed question whether or not cancer is a salutary invader of the body —that is to say, whether or not two cells are brought to begin together and co-exist as do, for example, warts in the human body. But the evidence he has obtained justifies him in accepting the "solitary" view. This is a matter of some importance because if it be true that a second cancer can not easily grow in a body in which a cancer is already established, the presumptive evidence exists that the body does make an attempt to rid itself of cancer, and hope is engendered of being able some day to make use of this natural healing power.

MRS. CARTHEW IS SPONSOR OF RACES

London, Eng.—Mrs. Sylvia Carthew, owner of Medal, which dead-heated with Nimatile in the Cambridgeshire, presided at the annual ladies' dinner and ball of the National Sporting Club on Monday. "I am so nervous," said Mrs. Carthew, "that it is doubtful if I should get to the starting gate at all. Thanks to your kindness and the one with which my glass has been filled I will do my gallop as well as I can. I often wonder if those who talk so glibly about unlimited money out of racing regardless of whether it can be afforded or not, realize how many millions look to racing as a little privation. One thing is certain—if racing people do not stick up for themselves, no one else will."

The gathering sent a message of condolence to the Earl of Derby upon the loss of his daughter, Lady Victoria Bullock.

BETTY TO TRY A NEW SERVICE

English Star, Miss Nuthall, Hopes To Beat Helen Wills

Wembledon, England—Miss Betty Nuthall, young English tennis rival of Helen Wills, will try out next month for the first time in tournament play a remodeled service with the aid of which she hopes eventually to dethrone the United States star.

The occasion will be the annual tourney at Cannes, France, in which Miss Nuthall is paired with Miss Elsen Bennett, a compatriot. Both players appeared in matches in the United States last summer.

Miss Nuthall's "Bounding Betty" has been experimenting with two modes of delivery in hop effort to substitute a more effective style for her antiquated underhand service. The smashing overhand stroke will exemplified by Miss Wills has not yet been perfected by the English girl, although she is practicing it patiently. In experimenting Miss Nuthall has revised her underhand service so that she stands nearer the baseline than before, enabling her to follow up her service more quickly.

Miss Nuthall has been spending less time on the tennis court than before the mirror and camer a since she returned to England early in the fall.

Under contract to appear in a five reel film, Miss Nuthall was a bit timid about her new undertaking at first, but was reassured by word from California of Miss Wills' success in amateur theatricals.

"Now that Helen has done so well on the stage, I am more than encouraged," said Miss Nuthall, who lost a dramatic match to Miss Wills at Forest Hills, N.Y., when touring the United States last summer. "I'm now sure I won't have stage fright."

PHOTOGRAPHER WAS BORN IN THIS CITY

Toronto, Jan. 4—Following an illness of only one day Charles Lemin Reserver, well-known photographer and prominent macon, died here last night at the age of 62 years. He was born in Belleville, coming to Toronto in 1885. He was a former president of the Ontario Society of Photographers.

The late Mr. Reserver conducted a photographic studio in Belleville for many years and was well known in this district. Mrs. Waller Thomas, Bloomfield, is a relative. He leaves one brother.

SAVED FRIEND'S FINANCIAL LIFE

Lent His Competitor Half a Million Dollars Without Interest

SILENT UNKNOWN

Mysterious Millionaire Takes Unlikely Chances But Usually Wins

New York, Jan. 5.—The friendship which developed over a long period of years between Edgar B. Davis, who has lost close to $1,000,000 in the last year in the production of "The Ladder" on Broadway, New York, and Frank A. Seiberling, former president of Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, culminated in a business deal between the two, which literally saved the financial life of Mr. Seiberling and which came to light when a loan by Mr. Davis to Mr. Seiberling of $500,000 without interest was repaid in Akron, Ohio, last Saturday.

Their friendship started when they were close competitors in the rubber industry, when Mr. Seiberlian was president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, a position he later lost in the company's re-organization after the period of deflation and at the time when Mr. Davis was an active vice president of the United States Rubber Company. In the intervening years, Mr. Davis resigned from the rubber company, engaged in the oil and various other industries, and is reported possessed of a fortune of about $12,000,000.

Advanced $500,000

When Mr. Seiberling encountered difficulties with the affairs of the Good Year Tire and Rubber Company bearing with his own holdings in 1921, when funds were scarce because of industrial difficulties which had cropped out, Mr. Davis went to his rescue, and together they formed the Prudential Securities Company to take over Mr. Seiberling's assets. Mr. Davis is said to have put $500,000 cash into this company, and backed it with a credit of $5,000,000 because of his friendship for Mr. Seiberling. After leaving the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, which was there after reorganized successfully, Mr. Seiberling, with the backing of Mr. Davis, organized his own corporation to engage in the same industry. It is known as the Seiberling Tire and Rubber Company, and has been very successful during the last three years. It has become so successful in fact that it is one of the independent companies which have been sought in a huge rubber merger which has been the subject of many financial conversations during the last month, and in which Mr. Davis is taking a big part. However, this merger has not caused the converstation stage.

No Interest Paid

When his backing was given to Mr. Seiberling by Mr. Davis, it was with the understanding that no interest would be paid on it, and that the funds could be retained so long as Mr. Seiberling needed them. Their corporation, the Prudential Securities Company, a large holder of both Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company shares and Seiberling Tire & Rubber Company shares, has been so prosperous in the "round lots" of the rubber industry that it was decided to repay the loan at the end of the year-and Mr. Seiberling's entire obligation was wiped out at that time with the full payment to Mr. Davis, of the funds he had advanced. Mr. Davis and Mr. Seiberling immediately formed a new corporation, in which they are the principal stockholders and directors, and which holds 10,000 shares of Goodyear common stock, valued at today's market price at $1,180,000.

Edgar B. Davis is literally the "mystery financier of New York." He is a tall, heavy set, pleasant-faced man of 53, unattainable to interviewers and who apparently has close personal friends in all parts of the country. He resides at the Belmont Hotel and maintains an office at 366 Madison avenue, where he seldom can be found. Mr. Davis' career has been one of financial romance and still remains one of the least known of New York Millionaires and probably had he not elected to back "The Ladder," to which the addendum has recently been free he would never have known any publicity prints. Incidently "The Ladder" is still running in New York and Mr. Davis has no idea of closing it down. It is a theatrical thing with refincarnation, a theory in which he heartily believes.

At the age of 20, Mr. Davis was advertising manager of the Walk Over Shoe Company at 25,000 a year.

He took a trip around the world and while in the Far East became interested in the possibilities of American particularities in the rubber growing industry. He was responsible for the participation of the United States Rubber Company in rubber industry in Sumatra, where it has large plantations. The bulk of his fortune, however, has been made in the oil and his fortune has been made in the oil and his friends at close to $12,000,000, most of it in cash. It is one of the theories of Mr. Davis that the demand for the industry that tremendous amounts of oil are to be found below the levels at which commercial production is now obtained, and in the sale of oil property he has made he has always been the price companies he has received protection from these unsavory deals. It is said to him by his friends that all of his life he has been unlike the rich men of most of his friends, in that all of his life he has been unlike the rich men of most of his friends, in that all of his life he has been unlike the rich men of most of his friends, in

RAISED PLATFORMS FOR PASSENGERS

Montreal, (By C.P.)—A roped-off zone, or a platform, placed on the street for pedestrians intending to board street cars, and over which passengers could alight from street cars, instead of the present system of requiring rehicular traffic to halt when a street car stops, is the suggestion of Alderman Theodore Morgan of this city, reported in the last issue of Civic Club of Canada. In a recent address here he told why he favored the system for patrons to street cars and allowing automobiles and other vehicles to continue running at the speed prescribed by the city regardless of the stoppage of the street cars.

Ald. Morgan said the present rule of prohibiting vehicles from passing a standing street car caused serious confusion in the street traffic. Then when the street car started again there was a mad rush of motor cars to get ahead before the next street car stop was reached.

The alderman said that a happy relationship between street car traffic and motor car traffic could not be obtained when the two were on the same street. He said it was never intended that the two should be on the same street. As conditions were, however, he believed his suggested arrangement for the relief of traffic congestion would work out satisfactorily.

"METROPOLIS" SEEN BY SAMUEL REA

Philadelphia—A sunny, smokeless city, with double and, perhaps, triple decked streets, with centralized fuel and power plants with the people turning more and more to the engineer for solution of problems; is the municipality of the coming "Engineer Age" which Samuel Rea, retired president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, envisages within a century.

At the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the Engineers' Club of Philadelphia, Mr. Rea, who has himself completed his fiftieth year in his profession, speculated on the forthcoming fifty years, but with the precaution of a dreamer trained in the lab oratory.

"While I realize the fascination which lies in any effort to predict the future," he said, "I also know it is a hazardous diversion which men of sound judgment seldom undertake and which only very wise men caution."

"The most notable achievement to be expected will have to do with the efficient utilization of the fuels and the recovery and utilization more completely of the by-products of distillation and combustion, he said.

(Mr. Rea predicted that by 1977 small and inefficient fuel plants will disappear and best and power obtained from central plants where production costs are at a minimum.

"The utilization of fuels is a special line of research of engineers," he said. "Fuels are destined to become so valuable to the human race that they will be distributed with the same care by who can to the greatest advantage control their conservation. Nothing is wasting is more archaic in our civilization, or more wasteful in the eyes of the economist, than any individual house-heating systems, in which all but a fraction of the potential heat of the fuel is dissipated and lost in the side atmosphere.

"The gas industries, as a public utility, will supply practically all heat distribution in urban localities. As capital cheapens, it will become possible to construct distribution systems furnishing cheaply produced and distributed heating purposes as well as cooking. Industries will be supplied with gas for fuel instead of coal and in individual furnaces under boilers. We may realize a smokeless city and adequate sunlight all greatly to the benefit health of urban dwellers.

Speaking of the economy of fuel, Mr. Rea said that we may expect to see, in highly developed form, vast power distributing plants situated near coal mines, effecting a tremendous saving in demands upon transportation resources. Electricity for house heating he said, would not develop except in a few localities where climatic circumstances made the production of power abnormally cheap. Where coal is directly used for domestic fuel, we may expect to see it applied chiefly in pulverized form, sprayed pneumatically into the fire box.

COAL NOW USED IN TALC POWDER FORM

Baltimore—Coal pulverized to the consistency of talcum powder has become a fuel for ocean liners, the steamship Mercer is one of the first vessels which will use the new fuel. It has been equipped with a $36,500 power plants designed for powdering coal and burning it.

Tests of the new fuel were made by the shipping board in trial runs from Baltimore to New York and in the New York harbor, according to the Marine Review for December.

No appreciable dust, dirt, noise or congestion was noted in the trials, while an even steam pressure of 250 pounds was kept with only two or three boilers in operation, said the article.

Coal is carried by gravity to three pulverizing machines, each capable of crushing 3,600 pounds per hour. The fuel, in its powdered form, is blown through pipes to the furnaces.

BELLE THEATRE

Using a popular ballad as the basis of a screen tale proved so successful in the case of "Sweet Rosie O'Grady," one of the outstanding productions presented by Columbia Pictures last season, that this company has taken the title of another well-known song for one of its features of the current season—"Sally in Our Alley"—which comes to the Belle Theatre today.

The words and music of "Sally in Our Alley" are known everywhere. The original "Sally," in the poem written by Henry Carey, a prominent English author, teacher, poet and musician, about 200 years ago, was a simple English maiden, the sweetheart of a shoemaker's apprentice. She lived in the same neighborhood as her lover and their simple courtship is featured in the song.

Columbia's adaptation of this ballad, "Sally" is a joyous little trial, made up from the Limehouse alley sweetheart is a young plumber lad. When Sally is left an orphan at her mother's death, she is adopted by three kindly foster-fathers, a Scotch merchant, a Jewish pawnbroker, and an Italian barber. Of wealthy sons becomes interested in Sally and she is taken away from her foster-parents to live in the rich man's luxurious home. How she discovers that wealth is not always most important factor in her happiness provides the material for the events that bring the ending of the picture parallel to that of the song.

Richard Arlen, who was loaned to Columbia by Paramount Famous Lasky Corp., to play juvenile lead in "The Blood Ship," and gave a highly commendable performance in the part, plays opposite Miss Mason as her plumber sweetheart.

Included in the supporting cast of "Sally in Our Alley" are such well known names as Alec B. Francis, Paul Panzer and William H. Strauss, as the trio of foster-fathers; Kathlyn Williams, as the wealthy aunt; Florence Turner, as Sally's mother; and Harry Crocker, as a wealthy suitor. Walter Lang directed.

CLOSE GAMES FEATURE OPENING NIGHT IN CITY HOCKEY LEAGUE

Intell Tie With Ciacos And Moose Trounced Tigers

FRIDAY EVENING

Fans Delighted With Brand Of Hockey In Senior Loop

Hockey fans were treated to some real fast playing last evening at the arena when the City League season opened. Two games were down on the card and both were keenly contested from the drop of the bat. In the curtain raiser the Intelligencer Black Hawks and the Ciacos of Corbyville fought it out to a tie game 3-3. The printers went into the last frame two goals down but they held their opponents scoreless while they tallied two. Henry Canning almost scored a win for the Black Hawks when within a minute of time he sailed through the whole Corbyville team to carry the puck to the goal-mouth only to have Vannorman make a clever stop.

In the second game of the evening the Moose Lodge team trounced Jimmy Hedger's Tigers by the close score of 4-3. As the scores indicate all four teams were matched evenly and some good games are in store in this league. The officers of the leagues were more than pleased with the turn-out last night and the attendance augurs well for the success of the league.

Friday's Games

Another double-header will be staged tomorrow evening when it is expected that two of the best games of the season will be played as all four teams taking part are regarded as the strong est in the league. The Quinte Electri cians have gathered a lefty aggregation composed of seasoned veterans most of whom have seen service in the O.H.A. Paul Hibbert, Bill and Johnny Canning, Punch Derry, Ted Whalen and others appear to be an impossible array but Manager Art Young of the Alemite has practically the same team as last year and will make things interesting before the season is over. In the other game the Imperial Oil will clash with the T's Men's Club who have such players as Weir, Armstrong, Cook and Hamilton in the line-up. The latter were city champions last year and are out to retain the laurels. Don't miss tomorrow night's games. The Imperial Oil have Jeffery brothers, Ritchie Arnott and several other well-known players.

Intell 3—Ciacos 3

Scott, Hopping and Brown tallied for the Intelligencer against the Ciacos and all of the goals were well-earned. Murray accounted for a brace of Corbyville's counters while McDonald was responsible for the other. Murray, McDonald and Williams were the best of the Ciacos while Canning, Hopping and Doyle were the pick of the Black Hawks.

By Periods—1-1, 3-1 and 3-3.

Intelligencer—Goal, Curry; defence, Hopping and O'Brien; centre, Canning; wings, Goodyear and Scott; subs, Doyle, Hopping and Brown.

The Tigers gave the Moose a great argument in the night-cap affair and were pushed all the way to the finish. "Punk" Wardhaugh, Hedger and Matthews did the scoring for the Tigers while Yding Baker was also hung up the Moose goals. Baker tallying twice. Hedger, Wardhaugh and Matthews were the pick of the Tigers while Young, St. Dennis, A. Matthews and Townsley starred for the Moose.

Score by periods—2-1 Moose, 3-2 and 4-3.

Tigers—Goal, Donovan; defence, Hedger and Knott; centre, Wardhaugh; wings, M. Matthews and G. Matthews; subs, McMahon, Rushlow and Maracle.

Kenneth Colling referred both games and gave entire satisfaction.

RECREATION BOWLING

In the C.N.R. League, Team No. 6 took three points from Team No. 2. High bowlers were Austin and Taylor.

Team No. 1 and Team No. 4 broke even with two points each. High bowlers were Yeoman and Baldree.

BOWLING

One game was played last night in the elimination series when Mrs. Bloomfield and T. Austin defeated Mrs. Salsbury and J. Kerr by 111 pins. In the first game the latter were leading by 45 pins but in the second game the former won by 67 pins and also the last game by 99 pins and the total by 111 pins. This brings the series down to three teams and the following will play tonight at 8 p.m., Miss H. Bland and R. Miles vs Mrs. Bloom field and T. Austin. The winner of this to meet Miss Ford and P. Cole in the final on Monday night at 8 p.m.

Mrs. Bloomfield 779, Mr. Austin 678, total 1058, vs Mrs. Salisbury 435, Mr. Kerr 522, total 947.

The ex-champ of the boxing ring enters the racing game with a horse named after himself. He is seen here with the other "Jack" and its trainer.

Several supporters will accompany the Belleville Juniors to Trenton tonight for the opening game in Mayor "Billie" Fraser's town. The Trenton kids administered a trimming to the Pictoh kids the other evening and as winners of the group title last year they are out to retain the laurels. Eddie Thomas is confident that the youngsters will bring home the bacon and they are hoping to get away on the right foot tonight. The Canning brothers are the chief goal-getters of the local outfit. Trenton will trot out almost the same line-up and the Belleville squad will be forced to the limit to even hope even with a team under their belts. Ross Burns of Picton, will officiate.

Belleville Intermediates have recovered from the fierce encounter with the Brockville team and all of the boys reported for practice last night. The Junior and Intermediate teams worked out together last night and some fast combination resulted. The ice was in perfect shape after the cold spell and the boys were at it with a will. The dressing rooms play the next game with King into Prunderville at the Jock Harty rink on Monday evening.

Rooney and Goyer will likely team up on the defence together with Haggman and Whalen on the wings and Jarvis and Hibbard taking care of the centre position. Green is set in the heve-of shape and may be used in the relief role.

Senior city hockey league got away to a flying start last night and some great hockey was enjoyed. The rivalry is of the keenest variety and the large-size thrills were had while on the ice. A fair turn-out of rail-birds greeted the city leaguers last night. One man remarked that more fight is shown in the city league than in any other hockey circuit. A number of fans make it a point to take in these games throughout the winter months.

T's Men's Club held a practice on Monday morning and are ready to try the lid off their hockey season on morrow evening at the arena. Vern Weir, Armstrong and company claim they have an equally strong club as represented the Campbell Street Congregation last year when The Intelligencer Black Hawks they won the laurels.

Vern Valley Hockey league opens this week, and fans to the north country are looking forward to the fast-contests which featured this loop last winter.

will play an exhibition game with the Port Arthur team on Friday evening. The Cement-Mixers are preparing for the city league games which start next week.

From all accounts "Toots" Holway is enjoying a great season in the Can-Pro league with Stratford. The former Belleville boy has improved by rapid strides since casting his lot with the professionals.

"Billie" Goyer is also turning in some nice games for the Philadelphia team of the American League. Goyer has all of the requirement that go to make up a good hockey player and if he sticks to his knitting he should advance by leaps and bounds.

STATES UNLIKELY TO HAVE TEAM

Small Possibility of Yankees Being Represented At Olympics

Pittsburgh, January 4. — The United States, in all probability, will not be represented by a hockey team in the Olympic competition this year.

William S. Haddock, of Pittsburgh, chairman of the A.A.U. hockey committee, said last night that he had about abandoned hope of getting a team together to represent this country in the puck-chasing Olympic games.

Haddock said he had but one hope—Eveleth, Minnesota. He added that he had wired hockey enthusiasts at Eveleth, asking if they could get a team together and to date had received no reply.

Haddock met many setbacks in his efforts to get a club. He scoured the country for eligible players, and some teams after accepting, later recalled the acceptance, saying it would not be possible for the players to make the trip. He negotiated with clubs in Boston, New York and some western cities without success and he said that the reply from Eveleth would decide whether the United States would be represented in the Olympic hockey competition.

ENGLISH TO RAISE STATUE TO LINCOLN

London, Eng.—A proposal to erect in Lincoln a memorial to Abraham Lincoln, whose family originally came from Norfolk, was approved by Norwich City Council recently. A committee was appointed to consider details.

The proposal emanated from Mrs. Zella K. Hoffman, of Hickling Hall, who is prospective Liberal candidate for North Norfolk. In a letter to the City Council Mrs. Hoffman said the newly formed Norfolk Pilgrim Society were proposing to the American members the erection in Norwich of a Lincoln memorial similar to the great Scottish memorial recently erected in Dunfermline to the ancestors of Scottish descent. Many Americans whose forefathers came from Norfolk were proud of their East Anglican descent she said, and would like to see their great fellow-countryman raised in the historic city of Norwich.

The funds, it was stated, would be raised in the United States.

HYDRO WORK IS PROGRESSING

New York—Construction work is progressing so rapidly on the Pergola Range, hydro-electric development of Gatineau Power Company that it is announced that the first generator will be in operation and delivering electric energy by the early summer of 1929, the International Paper Co. reports. The plant is on the Gatineau River, thirty-three miles north of the City of Ottawa and will be one of the largest hydro-electric plants on the North American Continent. It is designed for 272,000 horsepower in eight generators of 34,000 horsepower each, of which six will be installed initially.

The concrete dam across the river has been completed. One unit, the transwork of the powerhouse is up, and the penstocks are now being installed. The dam has involved excavating 350,000 cubic yards of earth and rock, the placing of 200,000 cubic yards of concrete in the dams and powerhouse and the laying of 650,000 bricks.

The plant is one of three which Citizineau Power Company, a subsidiary of International Paper Company, has on the Gatineau River, the other two now in operation being at Chelsea and Farmers, seven miles north of Ottawa.

GREAT CRICKETER HAS NOW RETIRED

London, Eng.—Herbert Strudwick, the famous Surrey wicket-keeper, probably known as "Struddy"—has definitely retired from first-class cricket, and has accepted the post of coach to the Surrey County Club. He will take up his duties next season.

One of the greatest wicket-keepers the game has known, Strudwick, who was born at Mitcham, on Jan. 26, 1880, and is thus in his 48th year, has kept wicket regularly for Surrey since taking the place of Stedman in 1903.

In that season, by securing 91 wick ets (71 caught and 20 stumped) he set up a record for wicket-keeping, which was not beaten until 1921, when Fred Huish, the Kent player, helped in the dismissal of a hundred batsmen. Altogether Strudwick, in first-class cricket, has caught 1,235 and stumped 258 opponents.

His chances of distinction outside county cricket were delayed owing to the claims of "Dick" Lilley, the famous Warwickshire wicket-keeper, to whom he acted as understudy when accompanying the M. C. C. team which toured Australia in 1903-4.

Strudwick did not play in a Test match until visiting that country again in 1911-1912, but afterwards won an unchallenged place in the England side, going to Australia in 1920-21 and 1924-25, appearing in 5 Test matches over here in 1921 and in all five games in which the Australians were met in 1926.

He has also participated in two tours in South Africa—in 1909-10 and 1913-14.

NO INSURANCE FOR CONVICTED FIRE BUG

Montreal, Jan. 4.—When Joseph Delorme, butcher, set fire to his house in Marieville and later pleaded guilty to arson in the Court of the King's Bench he was sentenced to five years in penitentiary. Yesterday he learned that that he took against the British Colonial Fire Insurance Co., and the Eastern Underwriters Association.

Honey was used as a preservative in ancient times, and the code of Alexander the Great was preserved in honey.

TORONTO GRADS SAIL JAN. 22ND

Toronto, Ont., January 4.—The University of Toronto Graduates' hockey club sails from Quebec for England, on January 22 to represent Canada in the hockey division of the Olympic Games. Organized only at the beginning of last season the Grads won the Allan Cup, emblematic of the Amateur Hockey Championship of Canada, by a brilliant series of victories. Last year's champions of the East, they met Fort William, Western winners in the final playoff at Winnipeg, and won a two-game, total goal decision. The Forts fought through five games before the collegians got the edge.

The Grads' first appearance was in the International Hockey League series in the fall of 1926. They were tossed out of winning this event by Manchester, another Toronto club. Then, with the opening of the Ontario Hockey Association season, they again began to make itself felt and to attract attention by a consistent run through the schedule. Defeating Hamilton, Peterboro, Brantford, Toronto Canoe Club and North Toronto, they won the group title, and then defeated the group playoffs. The Petes, who had already suffered an 11-1 defeat at the hands of the Grads, surprised the fans by holding the ex-collegians to a score of 1-1. In the second played game, however, the Grads came through, winning 2-0.

The team then entered the finals of the O.H.A. senior series, and met Toronto Varsity. This team proved handily in two games and the Grads emerged senior champions of the O.H.A. by a score of 8-3 on the round.

NOW PLANNING AERIAL CRUISE

London, Eng.—The world's first aerial pleasure cruise is planned by the Imperial Airways to start January 31.

In an eight-engined three-engined aeroplane, 13 travelers are to make a tour of southern France, Spain, Morocco, Africa and Italy. It will take about five months. The tour includes visits to Paris, Marseilles, Biarritz, Barcelona, Seville, Tangiers, Casablanca, Fez, Oran, Algiers, Tunis, Naples, Rome, Venice, Pisa and Marseilles.

Meals will be served in the machine which is to carry a steward in addition to pilot and mechanic. Each passenger will be allowed 44 pounds of baggage, and the charge for the trip, during which 5,500 miles will be covered, is to be £195. This includes hotel accommodation and side trips in automobiles.

AMERICAN SKYSCRAPERS

New York—American skyscrapers, if allowed to stand more than 40 years will certainly tumble down, says Sir Edwin Lutyens, British architect. He says the methods employed in structural steel construction of giving the steel only a "coating of paint or one of mud and water," is where the danger chiefly lies as it gives little protection from atmospheric penetration.

FIVE DISEASES ARE RESPONSIBLE

Montreal, Que., (By C. P. A.)—In less than five years the League for Physical Education and Improvement of Public Health will deal with the prevention of five diseases. Five diseases responsible for practically all deafness.

Spinal meningitis and scarlet fever were among the common infectious diseases in that category. The former was responsible for many of the cases now in institutions. The latter malady had been difficult to control until two years ago, when a serum had been discovered which had given wonderful results. Nevertheless, isolation immediately in a hospital should be undertaken when a case of scarlet fever declares itself. He thought that everyone must submit to be isolated in having the serum available.

Other diseases of the ear, affections of the middle ear, and of the pathway to the nerve were dealt with, then Dr. Hutchinson turned to the need for seeing that children's tonsils are attended to, and that adenoids receive treatment.

The doctor emphasized the importance of parents paying proper attention to adenoids and tonsils in children. He laid in the interests of the children this message should be driven home to all parents.

VALUABLE DOGS SAVED BY BOYS

London, Eng.—A remarkable rescue from drowning of two valuable dogs by Frederick Russell and Ben Husted, of Eton, was watched by a large crowd at Windsor recently.

Frederick Russell is the chief officer of the Eton Fire Brigade, and someone who saw the dogs being swept under Windsor Bridge towards the dam told him. Mr. Husted called his brother and, getting a punt, they paddled after the dogs.

The river is in flood and with the sluices gates open the brothers raked their lives by taking the punt down the stream towards the dam.

They rescued the first dog, a collie, 18 yards from the dam. Realizing they could not catch the other dog, an Alsatian, before it was carried over the dam, Ben Husted jumped on the bank and, walking along the dam climbed along the structure caught it as it was about to be swept over.

DEATH OF ALBERT J. RALSTON

He was a Mason and a member of the Ontario Club and the Albany and National Clubs.

He is survived by his wife, one son, Mr. Gordon Ralston; two daughters, Mrs. Irvine McCall of Calgary, and Mrs. Eugene Hawke, of this city.

$2,000,000 Estate in Society

New York, December, 27.—Fifty-four years ago an institution in San Francisco opened its doors to a boy of ten and cared for him. Now Santa Claus is bringing most of a $2,000,000 estate to the Pacific Hebrew Orphan Asylum and Home Society. It is a bequest from Rube Herbert Frank, a maniac fortune dealing in imitation jewels.

Ross Robinson of Toronto, who will represent Canada in the speed skating events at the Olympic sports. Robinson competed in the international meet at Newburg along with Roy Rundell, Leila Brooks, Art Flack and others.

HUSBANDS WANT MEALS AT HOME

In Vancouver — Poorest Place For Restaurants On Continent

VANCOUVER—Vancouver men still prefer to eat at home in the morning. "Go down to Seattle or any American city and you will find the married men eating their breakfast of ham and eggs in the restaurants, and their lunches also. Their wives remain in bed until they wish to rise," said a restaurant proprietor before the minimum wage board.

"What is the case here? Perhaps if we are the cheapest on the continent it is because we are the cheapest people. We drag our wives out of bed at six o'clock in the morning to cook breakfast for us. And many of us also make them prepare our noonday lunches. I ask you: "How can a restaurant keeper make money in such a city?"

Good meals are served cheaper in Vancouver than anywhere else on the continent, declared many speakers, and less profit was obtained from capital investment in the restaurants of this city than on any other in America.

J. H. McVety, superintendent of the government employment offices for British Columbia, when called upon by the chairman, said that at no time in the past six or seven years had there been a shortage of cooks, waiters and kitchen help; in fact, he said, there had always been a surplus.

All employers who spoke stated emphatically they would prefer to hire white help if a dependable supply could be obtained. H. Aubeneau suggested that the real remedy for the situation was the removal of the Oriental from the catering industry, as it was the man from the Orient who compelled ruinous competition and necessitated the low scale of wages about which complaint was made. He could be removed, he said, by reducing the number of licenses issued annually as was done in the fishing industry.

FILMS MADE OF YORK'S TRAVELS

London, Eng.—The Duke of York, at the request of E. J. Anderson, a young railway porter at Hitchin, Hertfordshire, recently had a film of seven reels made of the tour of himself and the Duchess of York through Australia and New Zealand last May.

Knowing that General and Earl of Cavan, a Hertfordshire man, accompanied the Duke on his tour, Mr. Anderson wrote and asked him if a film had been made. He learned that there was no official film, but that film records had been taken at various places during the tour and had been presented to the Duke of York.

"Lord Cavan approached the Duke of York for me," said Mr. Anderson, to a Daily News reporter, "and when the Duke heard that I wanted to show the film on behalf of Earl Haig's Fund, he immediately asked that the series of films and photographs which he had collected in Australia and New Zealand, be made up in one complete film. This was done on H.M.S. Renown, where the films were being kept.

The film has had its first exhibition at Hitchin.

Mr. Anderson last year organized a display at Hitchin of a film of the Prince of Wales' South African tour.

X-RAY SERIOUS IF USED TOO OFTEN

London, Eng.—The repeated use of X-rays in "cavity treatments" creates a serious risk of cancer, Dr. W. B. Knobel, declared in opposition to an application for a license to conduct a beauty parlor in London for the removal of superfluous hair from the face by an X-ray apparatus.

Admitting that a single application might be harmless, Dr. Knobel, who is one of the London County Council's medical officers, said the council's medical staff has records of a large number of cases in which cancer developed slowly from continued treatment. In one London hospital, he declared, there was a whole ward of such cases.

The applicants for the license pleaded in vain that their apparatus had been used successfully and without complaint in North America. The controlling committee then refused their application.

MONTREAL HANG UP NEW RECORD

For Handling Grain—Exceed Last Year's High Mark

As another season draws to a close Montreal proudly claims a record accomplishment in the handling of grain, having exceeded last year's high mark by more than 32,000,000 bushels. Montreal is the greatest grain port in the world and during the season just ended no less than 388,700,00 bushels of grain were handled at the port. The port has been open for 241 days; the government ice-breaker Lady Grey having arrived on April 10 to declare the channel clear from Montreal to Quebec. The steamship Lakefield, which was forced to winter in port due to the rapid freeze-up last year, took her departure on April 12. As a point of interest, the sage steamship was the last ship to clear for sea from Montreal this season. The Kielhaven, Osmarsum, Blachbeah and Hans Gude, all grain-laden, sailed on April 19 for transatlantic ports, and the first ocean arrival, the Laval County, docked here on April 17. The commissioners were able to proceed with their plans for increasing the storage capacity of the elevators with the passage by the Federal government of the program for harbor development and a loan of $12,000,000 sanctioned by Parliament. Work has started, therefore, on a 3,000,000 bushel annex to elevator No. 2, which should be ready to commence operations at the beginning of next season. This will increase the storage capacity of the elevator to 5,000,000 bushels. Plans have also been prepared for the construction of three more 3,000,000 bushel additions, when the volume of business justifies this extension.

YUKON'S TOURIST ATTRACTIONS

Yukon has been known in the past almost entirely as a mining country but the tourist traffic is assuming a prominent place among the commercial assets of the Territory. The unique natural attractions, magnificent scenery, bracing atmosphere, continuous daylight during the summer season, and improved facilities for the tourists are the reasons for the rapid growth in the number of visitors.

SIGHT-SEEING FOR THE FARMER

Arranged For Canadians Going To England Next Month.

London, Eng.—A unique sight-seeing tour has been arranged for the 125 Canadian farmers who are coming to England in January with the Canadian National Railways' Farmers Marketing Party. In addition to seeing London as the average man sees it—obtaining a worm's eye view from the underground and a normal eye from the top of a "bus—the visitors will see London as the birds see it, from the cabin of one of the most up-to-date air liners of the Imperial Airways Limited.

As many of the Canadian farmers set desire to do so will be taken for a 20 minute "joy-ride" over London and down the Thames. Should a sufficient number signify their intention of taking to the air, two or even three of the latest "Silver Wing" passenger planes "de luxe" will be brought into service to cruise over London together. These air liners are the last word in aeroplane construction, carry 18 passengers and are equipped with buffet and easy chairs with a steward in attendance.

The flight will be made from Croydon Aerdrome, today known as Britain's premier air-port, where passenger aeroplanes take off daily for Paris, Amsterdam and other points on the Continent. Here the visitors will be conducted through the hangars by competent guides who will explain in them the various types of machine used in modern air travel.

The "Silver Wing" type of machine in which the Canadian farmers will travel is powered with three Napier "Lion" engines, each of which develops 450 horsepower. With three such engines forced landings are practically eliminated, for should one or the other fail the other two are powerful enough to maintain a safe cruising speed. "The Silver Wing" has a cruising speed of 90 miles per hour and makes the trip daily from London to Paris in two hours and a half.

The pilots, mechanics and inspectors who look after the aeroplanes are licensed by the Air Ministry. The pilots themselves have brilliant records and long flying experience. They are given their licenses only after they have passed a rigid medical, flying and technical test which is carried out officially by the Air Ministry. They are re-examined at least once every six months.

MIRROR VALUABLE ARTICLE OF HISTORY

Montreal — A valuable historical article in the famous old St. Lawrence Hall, which has closed its doors, is a large wall mirror, bearing the Royal coat-of-arms, which was presented to the hall by the Prince of Wales, later King Edward VII., during his stay at the hotel on the occasion of the official opening of the Victoria Bridge, 61 years ago. This old mirror, seven feet high and five feet wide, is 4 ozs under the hammer.

"King Edward VII. presented that mirror to the Hall 61 years ago," stated A. J. Higgins, the manager, "during his stay at this hotel. The day on which it arrived here His Majesty first inspected that mirror. He stepped up to it, looked at himself, stroked his beard, and expressed satisfaction with the work."

The mirror frame is of solid golden oak and has stood in the Hall ever since its presentation.

"I hear Myself Sing!"

Above—four short, simple words! What a wealth of meaning they hold! For a great artist does hear himself sing on the new Orthophonic Victrola. He hears himself as you may hear him,—his highest notes pure and clear; his lowest intonations full and deep in their rich resonance.

The voice is perfect as in life, the instrumental music which accompanies, is like the background in a beautiful relief, exactly in its proper relation. So it is in hearing all music on the new Orthophonic Victrola with its Victor-controlled principle of "Matched Impedance" or "smooth flow of sound".

Classic—yet beautifully modern in design—and convenient are these instruments. Electrically operated (no winding) at slight additional cost. Instrument stops when the record stops.* Models from $1400 to as low as $115 on convenient terms from all His Master's Voice Dealers.

Telephone Girls Show True Christmas Spirit

Telephone girls in scores of Bell Telephone offices in Ontario and Quebec, are mindful of the fact that Santa Claus on his annual visit often has only meagre offerings for many poor families. So they club together and make sure that, as far as they can make it possible, none of the humble households will experience sorrow at the hour of the Christmas Season. The picture shows typical Christmas scenes in two of Toronto's seventeen exchanges, with basketfuls of good things all ready for the actual distribution to some of the City's poorer families.

U. S. COURT COMES TO ITS DECISION

Boston, Mass.—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals has ruled, in effect, that an officer or seaman aboard a vessel of foreign registry can not become a naturalized citizen of the United States, even thought his legal residence and that of his family be in this country.

The court denied naturalization to Daniel Michael MacDonald, a steamship captain in the service of the United Fruit Company, who in recent years had commanded vessels of British registry plying between Boston and the tropics. The opinion, written by Judge Charles F. Johnson, was concurred in by Judge George H. Bingham, but Judge George W. Anderson dissented.

MacDonald, born in Nova Scotia, Boston since 1921. His application for has maintained a residence in Greater naturalization was denied by the United States District Court and an appeal taken to the appellate tribunal.

In his decision Judge Johnson held that a master of vessels sailing under foreign flags is to some extent acting under the laws of and subject to the officials of a foreign country. The decision continued:

"Hence the five years' residence necessary for naturalization cannot be computed from sea service on foreign vessels, even if the applicant's wife and children reside in this country."

AGED MOTHER AND DAUGHTER FOUGHT

Troyes, France.—A bent, white-haired old woman answered the call "yes" ower to the bar" to face a charge of "beating her mother." Officials, lawyers and spectators thought there must be some mistake.

The prisoner proved to be a widow, Louise Bernard, aged 61, [illegible]

"Did you beat your mother?" the Judge asked. "Yes, and I am here to prove it; look at my black eye," showed some one in the rear of the courtroom.

"I saw her do it," shouted another woman, evidently well past 40 years of age. "I am the granddaughter of the plaintiff."

The judge dismissed the case. "Go home and make up children," was the court's advice.

Women's News and Views

OTHERS MAY BE WORSE OFF THAN YOURSELF

By LOUIS E. BISCH

There is a saying, and a true one, about the rosiest apples always being on the other side of the wall.

And is it not also true that we have a strong tendency to believe that other people are better off than we are? We all get "fed up" with things as they are at some time or other.

Getting caught in a rut, with no immediate prospect of escape, may occur not once, but often in the course of a lifetime. This may happen when'er you are rich or poor, young or old, even if you credit yourself as being successful and as having gained most of the values you set your heart on.

No matter what you are, no matter what your past may have been, I feel certain that the thought has more than once occurred to you that to continue was an impossibility—that, in effect, you had borne all you possibly could stand.

Life presents so many thwartings, so many disappointments, so much unhappiness, so much grinding routine, so many ideals gone smash, that no individual can can entirely escape boredom and at least a degree of desperation.

It is just when we feel so down and beaten that we are likely to think that the other fellow is happier than we are and that nobody can possibly ever have suffered as we are suffering.

When we feel discouraged everybody else seems lucky by contrast. When we have suffered a few bad breaks we can't imagine that others have had as bad or worse.

But let yourself into the confidences of these other folks whose happy lot you are inclined to envy; let them tell you their own trials, pitfalls and failures, and you will be astonished to find that you, by comparison, get off rather easily, after all.

The trouble is that people are often reticent about telling the truth about themselves. They are reluctant to "unload" completely. And so, putting up a good front as they do, you are quite misled as to how the wind really blows with them.

To be sure, when all is said and done what does it matter anyway whether life has treated 'thers better than you? Life is complicated. One man may be more fortunate than another in business but less fortunate in health, affairs of the heart, or what-not.

The sensible thing to do is to make the best of what you have. Rest content with the idea that it might be worse—for most certainly it might.

Don't waste time speculating about the possible good fortune of your neighbors. Instead, use that time and energy in developing yourself.

Being obsessed with the thought that others are faring better than you will not help your own individual case a particle. Try to understand your own life—from every angle and point of view.

Try to improve your own life in similar fashion.

Then, having mastered envy, jetly jealousy, the "blues," and all other factors that crowd attention upon others instead of upon yourself, then, and then only, will you be able to take the bull in your own mouth and race ahead.

Thinking and speculating about your friends and the people you see, and read about only hampers your progress.

Remember that you only see one side of the other fellow. How do you know the rest of him.

Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

A savoury and economical luncheon dish can be made of small pieces of left-over chicken, turkey, veal or pork packed in a pan with stuffing, baked, and served hot with gravy.

To put parafin over jellies, jams, &c., insert a piece of twine in the centre of the wax. Put on a thin coating of parafin and when this is hard lay a double piece of twine on this with the loop end extended over the edge of the glass, then pour on the rest of the parafin.

It takes a hundred cents to make a dollar, but it takes more than a dollar's worth of sense to make a man.

A Dainty 'Adaptation of the Elders' Mode

Grow grown up and yet quite adorably youthful, this party dress for a girl twelve to sixteen years old has combined all the older lines and ideas in a fresh and fragile way. The bell gown, the bow at the waist and the balancing bow at the opposite shoulder, the wrap-around skirt and its flare are all stylish and all adapted to a youngster's needs. If she makes her first appearance at the Thanksgiving dance at the country club in this modish manner the fortunate young miss will carry back to school memories of gay times had and the promise of more to come. The bows, girdle and bodice top may be made of satin, silk crepe or crepe de chine to match a light weight velvet skirt and together the entire dress would be lovely in satin crepe, soft satin, silk crepe or crepe de chine. DRAGGING-DOWN PAINS RELIEVED

Woman Suffered Nearly a Year. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Brought Her Health

Moose Jaw, Sask.—"I am going to try to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I suffered very badly with dragging-down pains and inflammation, also pains in my right side over my hip and down my whole side and my leg. It had it nearly a year when I went to a doctor and he said I would have to have an operation. But my mother said to me, 'Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as it saved her life years before. I took two bottles and I found I was better, so I kept on taking it and also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I have had two more children since then and am perfectly well. I used to have to be down two or three times a day, and now I do all my housework without trouble. I always keep the Vegetable Compound in the house as I find a dose now and then helps me. I am willing for you to use this letter any way you see fit and I will answerletters. If I can help any other women I'd be only too glad to try."—Mrs. ESTHER HOUGHTON, 614 Moose Square, Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan.

Advice to Girls
By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am in love with a man eight years my senior.

I never saw him with another girl since we met. I was called away and was out of town for three months. He took my older sister to different places and dinners. When I came back home he paid little attention to my sister and We are both very jealous. Do you think he loves me?

BEATRICE.

BEATRICE: My dear, if you are not engaged to this man, I do not think it wise of you to wish to restrict his friendships in any way. It was most courteous and kind of him to take your sister out while you were away and I do not see why you should question this in any way. I would advise you both to try to overcome your jealousy as it can bring you only unnecessary unhappiness and may affect your friendship in an unpleasant way.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

We are two girls in our teens. We are both in love with a fellow a few years our senior. I have met him out a few times and he seems very interesting. He also goes around with my girl friend and takes her to parties, but he tells me that he loves me best. "I learned that he was going with another girl. How can we tell which of us he really likes best?

RUTH.

RUTH: My dear, you are both too young to be at all concerned about love, and I would advise you to be content with the friendship of this boy and cease trying to decide which one of you he likes best. Also I must caution you again about being unnecessarily unhappy and may affect your friendship in an unpleasant way.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young man in my twenties. Several years ago I made the acquaintance of a young lady (on sincerely younger than myself. We have known each other for three years, but are not molecularly better acquainted than at our first meeting.

I have never been introduced to her family although I believe they know me. . .

Would you oolige me by giving me advice on this matter?

C.

C.: If your friendship has not progressed during these years, I am afraid you must be fickle. You must remember that it is up to you to take the initiative in the matter and if you do not show the proper amount of interest and attention the girl may assume that you are not particularly interested in her and there the matter will rest until you do something about it. Suppose a date and this girl will invite you to her home where you will meet her parents. I am surprised that they have not arranged to meet you before; most parents insist upon knowing the friends their daughter goes with. If you wish to further this friendship, it rests with you to take the steps that will assure its success, and I would advise you to take some action before the girl loses interest.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my teens and have just started to go out with fellows. How can I prevent myself from being self-conscious and bashful in their presence? I never seem to know what to talk about.

Do you think it is wrong for a girl to allow a fellow to kiss her good-night? Also, can she be popular without being termed "fast"?

TROUBLED.

TROUBLED: You can easily overcome your self-consciousness, my dear. If you will make a sincere effort to do so. First take stock of yourself and correct whatever faults you are conscious of. Read a lot and make your personality vivid and attractive. Cultivate a manner of charm and ease which will in time become part of you when you gain more self assurance. If you are well informed and have social companion, you will be sought after and will soon have no trouble in engaging in conversation. Just talk yourself out of your present attitude and if you assure yourself that you are not timid or self-conscious when in the presence of boys, in time you will become free and easy-mannered and find yourself actually at ease. I must caution you against yielding to this habit of indulging in casual good night kisses. Indeed, if you wish to be popular in the true and desirable sense of the word, you will not, even consider making a practice of this sort of thing. If you uphold your ideals you will not countenance such actions and I assure you, you will be the more respected for your refusal to be casual about what is a matter of importance. If you reveal yourself as a sweet, clean minded girl with high ideals and worthy principles you are bound to be attractive and need not be at all concerned about your popularity.

COUGHS AND COLDS DREADED BY MOTHERS

What a weight of responsibility rests on the mother of the family during the cold weather season. In every cough and cold she seems to hear the warning of serious developments. She dreads croup, bronchitis, pneumonia and consumption and realizes that these are the natural results of neglected colds.

But Dr. Chase has provided a prompt relief for coughs and colds and a preventive of more serious ailments of throat and lungs, in his Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. This medicine is so well-known that only a reminder is necessary to most people to recall its effectiveness in relieving croup, bronchitis, asthma and all forms of throat and bronchial troubles.

WHAT'S NEW
(From a Woman's Standpoint)

The Angora wool knitted suit is to be smart this spring.

A new purple navy is called independence and is featured among the new blues.

The Queen of Spain is sponsoring the new white blue, having ordered it for evening in georgette with all over embroidery of same.

Tuilistania is Rodier's latest novelty, a soft, light-weight material which is a mixture of silk and wool that resembles shantung or pongee.

Both black moire and quilted taffeta are to be used for afternoon coats next spring, and stiff, black satin with pink satin and black lyre collar and cuffs on big puff sleeves will be used for evening.

FABULOUS SUM FOR BIG ESTATE

Earl Of Derby Disposes Of Estates In Old Country

London, Eng.—The Earl of Derby has disposed of the greater part of his estates in Liverpool and the adjoining town of Bootle for a sum approximating one, and three quarter millions sterling. Two years ago his lordship sold his landed interest in Bury, and also sold his Colne estate to the local co-operative society.

"I am bound to accept any proposal which my trustees may think is in the interest, not of myself only, but of my successors," writes Lord Derby to the Mayor of Bootle. "I cannot help real izing that on my death it would be necessary for my son to sell much of it to pay the very heavy death duties."

Lord Derby has publicly stated that the imposition of heavy taxation might render it necessary for him to relinquish Knowsley Hall, his seat near Liverpool, where he and his predecessors in the title have entertained royalty and many other, distinguished people on many occasions. His Lordship will still possess many urban sites around Preston and large agricultural area in the Fylde district of Lancashire.

The sale of these estates is long owned by the House of Stanley is another instance of how the heads of ancient houses now find it expedient to convert their holdings of land into other sources of wealth. The Duke of Devonshire and the Duke of Westminister have both sold large areas in the London district, and have thereby relieved their successors from probate and estate duties which fall heavily upon this class of property.

SHOOK HANDS AS MUCH AS PRINCE

London, (By O.P.)—Rt. Hon. Sir Herbert Samuel, former Secretary of State for Home Affairs, Chairman of the Royal Commission of the Coal Industry in 1925, and one of the leading Liberals of Great Britain, and Lady Samuel must have broken all records in hand-shaking—except possibly that of the Prince of Wales—at an at home held by Lady Samuel at their home here one afternoon recently when nearly 2,000 guests were present. The at home was in aid of the Women's National Liberal Federation.

At 2.30 Sir Herbert and Lady Samuel greeted the first arrival, Mrs. Margaret Wintringham, former Liberal M. P., and with only a brief interval for tea they continued receiving their guests until after six o'clock.

It was with great difficulty that one was able to get into the Winter Garden, where Lady Acland and Miss A. Huntington were in charge of enormous quantities of game and all kinds of country produce. Almost every prominent Liberal with an estate in the county had contributed goods for sale.

Lord George sent many fat Church Lord Wimborne gave pounds of butter, Lady Pentland sent apple jelly made from her own recipe. Pheasants, hares, partridges and rabbits were given by Lord Grey, Lord Lincolnshire, Lady Violet Bonham Carter and others.

A SUITOR TOO MANY

By MILDRED BARBOUR

To her infinite relief, he went, after unsuccessful word or two more. Farquahar resumed his chair. His look was dark, his hardened mouth grim.

"Who is that man who asks you to lunch alone with him and to go on a cruise?"

"A—a relative," stammered Lila.

Farquahar's brows lifted.

"What relative?"

"My uncle," said Lila promptly, having once used an uncle successfully to help herself out of a difficult situation.

Farquahar relaxed, but only for a moment.

"Who is Herbert?" he demanded, with suspicion.

"My father!" gasped Lila wildly. She must keep this affair in the family, at all costs.

"Indeed?" Farquahar laughed short ly. "Then why did you tell your uncle that your father was quite well, when he is, according to you, at death's door?"

That was a facer, Lila, however, managed to say:

"He—my father won't doesn't like to have people say he is ill. He—he" "Lila", said Farquahar deliberately, "how do you accounts for the fact that your father's Christian name is Leonard, not Herbert? I know, because I consulted the telephone-directory when I sent you those flowers."

It seemed to Lila, that dark, cold waters were closing over her head. She made one last desperate effort.

"Herbert Leonard," she said bravely. "My uncle always calls him Herbert."

Farquahar sat for a while in silence "Shall we go?" Lila suggested timidly He made a gesture of assent, summoned the waiter, and paid the check. He looked uncomprehendingly stern. Lila was scared to death.

They were passing in silence through the lobby, when a hand descended on Farquahar's shoulder and an amazed voice cried;

"It's never — but it is — By Heaven, it's Jack Farquahar!"

THE ESCAPE

For th third time in her life, where Gilroy Holmes was concerned, Lila did a quick bolt.

The Ritz lobby was crowded, and while Farquahar and Holmes were shaking hands enthusiastically, Lila put all the space possible between them and herself.

She dived into the nearest dressing-room and powdered her nose. Her hands shook so that twice she dropped the puff. The maid looked at her curiously.

After a while, she opened the door a little hesitantly and peeped out. She had an unobstructed view of the lobby. Farquahar and Holmes were deep in conversation. Had she but known it, Jack was saying:

"What luck to run across you like this —and at this particular time! Lila is with me," he turned around and registered astonishment. "Where the deuce did she go to? She was here a moment ago."

"I'll be jolly glad to see Lila again," said Holmes. "Funny I never run across her, but then New York's a regular jungle. Once I thought I saw her in a shop and started to speak, but it was the wrong girl. Darned awkward!"

"She'll be along in a minute," said Farquahar. "Let's wait here. We've a lot to talk about, old chap."

They seated themselves, and Lila watched them from her doorway. The minutes passed. She was becoming desperate. Somehow, she had to get away without coming face to face with Holmes. If he saw her, he would know that she was the girl who had deliberately run away from him in Vanderpool's shop. And there was the dangerous possibility that, sooner or later, he would learn that she was Mrs. Herbert Wan. What would happen then? She closed her eyes and fathomed to con template the situation. But no use precipitating matter. Much better to avoid all meetings, in either character, whether as Jack Farquahar's betrothed, or, thy wife of Holmes' employer,

After awhile, when the two men showed no sigma of leaving, she slipped out of the dressing-room and, hastening down a garridor in the opposite direction, made her way to the street through a side entrance.

An sound in moments of stress, she hastened to Dorothy and poured out her story.

"What on earth can I tell him that will sound lucid?"

"Nothing," considered, pressing the tip of an exciting pen into her pink cheek.

"I don't believe there is any explanation that would hold water," she said at last. "You can hardly claim to have been taken ill, because your escort is the person you would have asked to see you home."

Lila groaned.

"Oh, I dare say, I should have stayed and fared it. Running away was fatal but I'm so used to running away from Gilroy Holmes that it's become instinctive."

"Why not take the offensive?" suggested Dorothy.

"What do you mean?"

Dorothy motioned to her desk.

"Find a sheet of note-paper—not my monogrammed stuff—and be a pen. Write that I dictate."

Lila obeyed, wonderingly.

"My dear Jack:" dictated Dorothy, "I trust that you have some adequate explanation for your unconscious behavior this afternoon. I am not accustomed to being abandoned without a word of apology in a public lobby by a man who has appointed himself my escort and host. Nor would I consider lingering while you gossip with some one you prefer not to present to me. Under the circumstances, I think the least you could have done was to place me in a cab, where I could have awaited your explanation in comfort.

"If it is possible to explain your conduct, do so by letter at the usual address. I shall not accept an apology in person.

There was a moment of silence. Then:

"That provides against his ringing your father's house," explained Dorothy.

Lila stared at her admiringly.

"Dot, you're the cleverest thing. Absolutely brilliant."

"I'm not sure that I don't make matters worse—a good deal of the time. Jack's not something has to be done, there's nothing like tying."

She went to the telephone and called a messenger.

"You'd better catch the one around to Captain Farquahar right away, before he has a chance to ac of his own accord."

Lila kissed her gratefully and went home, where she waited demurely for Herbert and declined him by flinging herself into his arms the moment he was inside the front door.

She dined alone and went to the theater, and Herbert was very happy. He forgot all about her mysterious engagements, he suspicious episode of the ring, and the $1000 donation to charity. And Lila was happy, too; she forgot that such a person as Jack Farquahar existed. When, during the drive home, she slipped her hand into his and sighed: "Darling, there was never any one in the world like you," she meant it with her whole heart.

DOZEN CLUBS IN FLYING CIRCLES

Represented On Council—More Needed To Cope With Work

London, Eng.—There are so many flying clubs in the country now that the arrangement of the various air race meetings, if they are to be on a route scale, is likely to become a difficult problem, and recently a meeting of the Royal Aero Club Associated Clubs' General Council was held to consider the best arrangement in the interest of sporting aviation.

There are now over a dozen Clubs represented on the council, and this year the help of the Royal Air Force was enlisted to give display events at some of the larger meetings. It is de sired, however, in 1928, to fix in advance the extent of the assistance of the Royal Air Force.

Flying clubs exist primarily to train members to fly and afford facilities for flying when trained, and every club race meeting makes a big drain of flying equipment of other clubs, for instructors and machines are diverted to racing purposes at the week-end when the greatest demand for flying facilities comes from the non-racing members. It is proposed, therefore, to meet these two requirements, and generally assist financially the flying club movement by limiting the really elaborate flying club pageants, for which Royal Air Force assistance will be enlisted, to four or five meetings a year. These would be allocated geographically, to the North, South, East and West of England, with, possibly, another meeting in the Midlands and a presentation bid be fixed to coincide with the usual Bank Holiday week-ends.

It is suggested that the home-club entrusted with the organization should have a first pre-emptive bill on the profits after all expenses have been met, and then the other clubs which have supported the meeting should have a percentage of the profits according to the number of aircraft they have raced, while the residue should go to a general pool for the assistance of the flying clubs generally.

EDUCATION A FAILURE

New York—Nowhere in the world is education so pointless, aimless, blind and indifferent as in the United States President W. H. P. Faunce, of Brown University told the Association of Life Insurance Presidents.

"Education of American youth is a failure," he declared, "insofar as it is what an expression of faults rather than creation of virtues. Colleges that can give the student some dream of the future and a definite capacity to make the dream come true would be worth more than all the business courses in America."

Almost every daily newspaper in Ontario was represented at Oshawa on Friday when General Motors of Canada held "open house" to introduce the New Chevrolet to the press. An interested visitor there at the time was Hon. W. D. Euler, Canada's Minister of National Revenue, who accompanied the newspapermen during part of their tour of the immense General Motors factories. The upper picture shows a group of journalists inspecting one of the new Chevrolets, which were greeted with enthusiasm. Below are Hon. Mr. Euler (left) and R. S. McLaughlin, President of General Motors of Canada (right), with another of the models.

Next morning, she rang up Dorothy, across somebody I know who'll spill the beans."

"Was there a reply to my note?"

"Yes. It came by messenger late last night.

"Please open it; Dot, and read it to me. I haven't time to run up-town. I've promised to lunch with Dad."

"I thought Herbert insisted that you lunch with him every day this week," Dorothy reminded her.

"He did, but he's letting me off for Dad. He's getting quite to be home himself," she added ruefully. "Read me what Jack says."

"My darling Lila: I've acted like a brute and a boor. I didn't realize it at the time, because the man I ran across was our good old friend, Gilroy Holmes. Of course, you didn't see him in the crowd, so you couldn't know. I was very angry when I found you gone. I thought it was you who had deserted me, and I'm afraid Gil was rather hurt. However, immediately I received your note, I got in touch with him and he understands that the whole affair was the result of my negligence. To even things up, I've arranged for him to have dinner with us next Wednesday night. Surely, for one evening, you can shake off that bounder who claims to be engaged to you'."

"Oh, Dot, how awful. And after all my pains to avoid Gil."

"There's more," said Dorothy quietly. "He writes: 'I shall expect you for tea today at the same hour and the same place. All my love, little wife-to—'."

"Well," sighed Lila, "I suppose I'll have to go. But I can't keep this sort of thing up long. I'm sure to run in

ITCHY ECZEMA IS HEALED BY THIS SULPHUR

Any breaking out of the skin, every fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, say a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth.

It seldom fails to relieve the torment and disfigurement. Sufferers from skin trouble should get a little jar of Rowles' Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist.

WALL STREET MONEY

American interests which are undertaking the development of the Flin Flon copper deposits in Northern Ontario are putting $20,000,000 of American capital into the enterprise.

According to Mr. W. H. Cluff and others, the profits will "go to Wall Street."

Some of them will.

The present estimate is that there are at least $200,000,000 worth of copper in sight. Will Wall Street get $100,000,000?

Wall Street will get a very small share of that amount. Canada will get the big share. As the Winnipeg Free Press remarks, the $20,000,000 out by which the Whitney interests and their associates will make in the beginning will be the smaller part of the money that they will put into the enterprise. The expense of operation during the period of production will amount to a great deal more. The wage bill for several thousand men employed at the mine and the smelter, together with cost of supplies, freight charges on shipment of product, and income, corporation and property taxes may conceivably run up to $5,000,000 a year. In twenty years of operation that would amount to $100,000,000 added to the original investment. Of course, after operation is well started, the annual expense will be paid from sale of the products, but the operation will take a large part of the proceeds from such sale; and the products that are thus disposed of represent assets that are being used up.

Meanwhile this country's business will be benefitting by the larger part of the product of the mine. Wall Street will get good interest on its money, let us hope; but whether it does or not, Canada will be getting a great value from that money which otherwise Canada would be without—for many years yet at least, probably.

Let's keep on getting all we can out of Wall Street.

MOTOR INDUSTRY

A significant fact is brought out in the review of the automobile industry for the past year published by Mr. R. S. McLaughlin, president of General Motors of Canada, Ltd. Since the revision of the tariff in the early part of 1926, he says, the number of imported cars has been steadily increasing. The increase during the year amounted to about 30 per cent., and the number of Canadian-made cars sold in Canada decreased by a number which bears a close resemblance to the number of imported cars marketed in the Dominion." It looks, therefore, as if the severity of the pressure of foreign competition has been considerably intensified. Taking the year's business as a whole, however, this authority regards the situation in Canada as much more satisfactory than in the United States, where sales of passenger cars dropped off to an extent twice as great as the decrease in this country. There were more higher-priced cars sold in Canada, and it is thought that when figures for the entire year are available, the actual investment in automobiles for 1927 will not be less, but more than the sum for the previous year. There is a car for every ten persons in Canada to-day, representing an initial investment of approximately one billion dollars, and it is predicted that the number of cars in proportion to the population may yet be doubled. As to the future, there is no doubt that a very interesting time is ahead. With the new Ford on the market and the uncertainty in that respect ended, and with leading makers coming forward with their announcements of improved models and reduced prices, it is reasonable to suppose that an added impetus will be given to the buying movement. That elusive period when the "saturation point" would be reached seems to be continually pushed off farther and farther into the future, if, indeed, it will ever come. With the splendid conditions throughout the continent, the alluring inducements offered prospective buyers, together with the general prosperity which is confidently—anticipated, manufacturers may view the future with optimism. It must be said for them that they are ably doing their part by continually improving the efficiency and beauty of their products.

CONQUERING RUST

Tell a layman that a paper on heliotherium in rust fungi was hailed as announcing the most striking mycelium discovery of the century, and he will probably be left gasping for breath.

And that the paper was read before the Canadian division of the American Phytopathological Society, and he will be somewhat better off in the dark than ever.

Tell him that the discovery is the most great victory in the effort to discover means of combatting rust on wheat plants, and he can at least appreciate that it is of the highest importance to mankind. It does not mean that means of preventing rust have been found. It does mean that almost certainly, with patient research and experiment, these means will be found.

Even the layman, therefore, can understand that Mr. J. H. Craigie, of the Dominion rust laboratory, has done a great things. Rust was one of the earliest and is now one of the greatest enemies of successful agriculture. It is a plague, a scourge, that takes many millions of dollars off the value of Canadian wheat production every year. It reduces the crop far more than hail or weeds, or frost, or other enemies the farmer has to face. It is done over a growing menace, constantly spreading into new crop areas and cutting the yield a third, a half, even two thirds.

Science has been mobilized for many years to fight rust, but unsuccessfully. New varieties of wheat that would resist rust were first sought. Each apparent success in this direction was followed in a very few years by the discovery that new forms of rust develop to attack them.

Mr. Craigie's work has brought about an advance in the knowledge of what rust actually is and how it originates. It is regarded as a discovery of vital importance by the scientists. From it, in due time, will come further discoveries, and eventually—the prediction is now reasonably safe—rust will be conquered.

FROM "ECHOES."

On the way to Kew,
By the river rail and grey,
Where in the Long Ago
We laughed and loitered so,
I met a ghost to-day,
A ghost that told of you—
A ghost of low replies
And sweet inscrutable eyes
Coming up from Richmond
As you used to do.

By the river old and gray,
The enchanted Long Ago
Murmured and smiled anew
On the way to Kew;
March had the laug of May,
The bare boughs looked aglow,
And old immortal words
Sang by heavenly like birds,
Coming up from Richmond
As I used with you.

EXPECT REPORT WILL FAVOR ST. LAWRENCE SCHEME

Critics Attack U. S. Government Over Nicaragua Trouble --- Prisoners Break From Burwash

PROSPECTS GOOD FOR GOING AHEAD

National Committee Attitude Is Understood To Be Favorable

NO REPORT YET

Recommendations —Likely To Modify Original Plans Somewhat

Ottawa, Jan. 6.—"Feasible and, advisable" are terms in which the Advisory Committee describe the St. Lawrence River Navigation and power project, according to a rumor current today, although no authoritative statement has been forthcoming.

If this rumor is correct the national Advisory Committee concurs with the joint engineering board of Canada and United States. In its first report, the engineers found the scheme to be practical. Secretary of State Kellogg in his note of last April to the Government of Canada pointed out that in the report "it clearly appears that the improvement of the waterway for navigation and power purposes is both feasible and advisable."

It is understood, too, that the National Committee has also recommended a twenty year period for the work of the St. Lawrence undertaking.

Strict Secrecy Essential

Ottawa, Jan. 6.—Strict secrecy is surrounding the proceedings of the National Advisory Committee on the St. Lawrence Waterway and rumors of decisions made remain unconfirmed. Any recommendation made to the Government by the committee will not likely be announced until after the cabinet has had ample time to consider it and probably not until Parliament meets.

Secrecy at the present time is pointed out, is essential in view of great industrial projects which would be affected by the final decision. The committee is meeting again today in the offices of the Privy Council and this session will likely continue throughout the afternoon and possibly evening. Before finally adjourning it will again meet with a sub-committee of the cabinet, presided over by the Prime Minister.

Prospects Hopeful

Ottawa, Jan. 6.—Prospects for the improvement of the St. Lawrence waterway and development of water power in federal hands are considered hopeful. The National Advisory Committee discussed the problems all morning, afternoon and evening sittings yesterday and is said to have made excellent progress. The deliberations will continue today and perhaps on Saturday, and the recommendations of the Advisory Body will be ready for the Government before Parliament meets on Jan. 30.

No official statement was issued, but it was learned that the committee seem ed to be favorably disposed toward the scheme, though in a modest form. In other words it appeared likely that the committee would not recommend a scheme costing $589,200,000, but a modified project which would hold the cost down to less than $400,000,000.

$400,000 H.P. Ultimately

An eventual hydro-electric development of 5,000,000 horsepower can be made, but as there is no market for that amount of power at present and will not be for probably fifteen or twenty years, it is likely that an initial scheme involving the development of something more than a million horsepower will be recommended. The United States engineers had a plan for a single-stage development in the international rapids section of the river which would produce 1,265,000 horse power at a total cout of $250,100,000, while the Canadian engineers favored a two-stage development involving a similar amount of power at a cost of $385,000,000. This would entail less flooding of the low-lying lands around Morrisburg.

TAKING HIS BR IDE WITH HIM

NICARAGUAN ADVENTURE BRINGS ON A WARM FIGHT IN CONGRESS

Administration Pleads Object Is To Secure a Fair Election

Washington, Jan. 6.—Additional reinforcements have reached the United States marines holding Quilli, Nicaragua, and they apparently now are ready to resume their conflict with the small army of Augustino Sandino, former Liberal general.

While the marines held their fire awaiting contact with Sandino, verbal skirmishing on the Congressional front of the Nicaragua campaign progressed. Pot shots and volleys continue to resound at the genitest drop of the figurative hat and more or it is brought into prospect with the introduction on the floor of the Wheeler resolution for a Senate inquiry.

Exact intelligence of any new battle in the neighborhood of Quilli was not disclosed in last night's message to the marine headquarters of the 31st Lieut. Hunt had led a second relief column into the former stronghold of Sandino. The message did not give the number of men in Hunt's detachment or give any details of the expedition except that "good country" except that none of Sandino's men were encountered enroute.

RELIEF SENT TO PARTY IN HILLS

Sunday School Outing Trapped In Cascades By Snowfall

Enumclaw, Washington, Jan. 6.—Fourteen persons, including ten men and a Sunday School outing party apparently were snowbound among the Cascade Mountains. Upon receipt of reports that supplies of the marooned persons might be running low, state and county officials ordered a relief party to leave here at daybreak with food. Skis and snowshoes were supplied the relief expedition for its thirty mile journey over the mountains.

The Sunday School party went to Silver Springs Lodge at Christmas to spend a week. A fall of several feet of snow since that time has made the trip to the latter practically impassable. A Tacoma couple and their two children also were reported snow bound in the same region.

ST. JOHN RIER STILL OPEN

Florenceville, N.B., January 6.—Mrs. St. John River is still open here, the latest it has been open for many years. In 1877 it was open on Christmas Day. Florenceville is about 100 miles from the mouth of the river.

CANADIAN VETERAN FOUND UNCONSCIOUS

New York, January 6.—Frederick McCormack, Dorchester, Mass., today was found unconscious from poisoning on a Brooklyn subway platform. He was taken to the hospital in a serious condition. An unsealed letter in his pocket asked that his aunt, Mrs. Wm. Burke, st. Dorchester, be notified. It read, "I am a veteran of the Great War. I served with the Canadian Army, I am without a job, hungry, have no money and am lonely and blue."

ALWAYS ON SUNDAY

Bishop Sweeney of Toronto Would Have the Day Fixed

Toronto, January 6.—The suggestion that Christmas be fixed on a Sunday was forwarded to the League of Nations Society in Canada by Bishop Sweeny, of Toronto The proposal is supported by the Commercial ravellers' Association. Bishop Sweeny pointed out that the adoption of such a proposal would ensure a day for essentially religious observance, and the Non Day after would be devoted to festive celebration.

Ask Investigation

Washington, Jan. 6.—The monumentary tranquility on the battlefront in Nicaragua was without counterpart yesterday in Congress where there were repeated strikeres upon and defences of the Administration courts.

The verbal warfare was set off by Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, with the introduction of a resolution calling for a senate investigation of the whole Nicaraguan situation by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Under Fire

Senator Heflin, Democrat, Alabama, renewing his demand for a withdrawal of the marines, declared there was an "unholy alliance" between "the money changers of Wall Street" and the Roman Catholic hierarchy" in Nicaragua by which United States forces were being held in the Republic.

Finally Senator Bingham, Republican, Connecticut, rose to the defense of the Administration, calling attention to the fact that the United States had entered into an agreement with most of the factions of Nicaragua whereby it guaranteed a fair (presidential) election. He contended that the United States was keeping that agreement.

Destroys Touch Rebels

Washington, Jan. 6.—Two deserters from the United States marines, captured by the rebel General Sandino as they sought to escape from the Nicaraguan war zone are believed by some marine officers in Nicaragua to have turned their military information account by helping in the instruction of the rebel troops.

Official report relayed from the front to the marine corps headquarters here, say that a band of more than two men agreed to teach Sandino's soldiers how to shoot under a threat that their throatives would go before a firing squad if they refused.

FEWER EGGS LAST YEAR

Guelph, Ont., Jan. 6.—According to figures issued today by officials in charge of the local egg grading station 94,564 dozen eggs were handled by the station during 1927. This is a decrease of about 19,000 dozen as compared with 1926.

RUNNER DIED TRYING TO STAKE A DIAMOND CLAIM

Granfontein, South Africa, Jan. 6.—One runner dropped dead in the diamond rush to the new gold on Crusher Tair Farm in which four thousand runners participated, although it was announced that only one hundred valuable claims were available. All night along the rough veldt roads, dude buggies by heavy gasoline, the runners assembled at starting points arriving in all sorts of conveyances. Thirteen clerks worked frantically and issued claim certificates at the rate of four hundred an hour.

This was probably the last big diamond rush in South Africa for at least a year, as the government announced last December that prospecting on Crown and private lands would be prohibited for a year or so as it was fearthe output from the alluvial diggings would exceed that of organized companies and consequently disrupt the industry.

FOUR MEN BREAK FROM BURWASH

Missed a Fine Concert But Made Good Their Escape

DROPPED 18 FEET

Roderick, The Leader, Was Prisoner With Long Criminal Record

Sudbury, Ont., January 6.—While a concert was in progress in the auditorium of Burwash Industrial Jail Farm last night, four prisoners made good their escape. They left the other inmates to enjoy the entertainment and removing a window from the dormitory dropped eighteen feet to the ground. The escaped men are William Craig and Raymond Carr, Toronto; Harold Crandell and James Roderick of Brockville.

Roderick is believed to have engineered the escape. He served a nine years term in Portsmouth Penitentiary and his criminal record included jail breaking. Following the railway tracks to Wanup, it is believed the four set all of the jail breakers removed a hand car but abandoned it a mile from there.

DO NOT WANT ROADS OPEN DURING WINTER

Toronto, January 6.—Hon. George S. Henry, Ontario Minister of Highways, is in a quandary. With a justifiable glow at the progress recorded on a more energetic policy of keeping all rural roads and highways well ploughed this winter, traffic arteries must be kept open, he announced. Now he is overcome with consternation to discover that a number of citizens of the wide open spaces of the province do not want the roads kept open. It exposes the surface of the highways and prevents the use of sleighs and old fashioned cutters, they object.

FALLING PLASTER CAUSED INJURIES

New York, Jan. 6—Twenty-two persons were injured, none seriously when a piece of plaster about seven feet square fell from the ceiling of a Brooklyn moving picture house last night, Catholic hierarchy" in Nicaragua by which United States forces were being held in the Republic.

"A REBEL, A BANDIT AND A MURDERER"

General Augusto C. Sandino leader of the Nicaraguan rebel forces, who is directing the efforts of the insurgent Nicaraguans in their pitched battle with the United States marines at Quilali. According to Major-General John A. Lejeune, marine corps commander, Sandino is a "bandit and murderer." Efforts are being made to eliminate him before the presidential elections. Sandino is part Indian and calls his men "the wild beasts of the mountains." Their flag is a skull and cross bones.

Movies Are "Shot" In And Around The Town On The Trent

"Little Hollywood" may someday be the new name of Trenton, for great strides are being made in the moving picture industry there. In fact, Trentonians now take it all as a matter of course and when speaking to their Belleville brethren say in rather a superior tone, "You know when I was dancing with Miss X. the other night, Miss X, the famous film star of our city, or, ah," and so on for into the night, or "You know Bruce and I are getting to be great friends, almost"

But seriously, the Canadian International Films Limited, with head offices at 200 Bay street, Toronto, and their studios at Trenton, are making wonderful and great strides in the production of the all-Canadian picture "Carry On Sergeant," by Captain Bairnsfather. Scenes are still being "shot" in the great open spaces, despite the commonly accepted fact that Canada's winters are the most severe in the world and that the country is blanketed with snow eight or nine months out of the year. Balmy, spring like weather has favored the production this winter.

Studio Closed

The studios were closed in Trenton from noon on December 23rd to noon on Tuesday, thus enabling the whole staff to enjoy the Christmas festivities and those who wished to return to their homes in various places were able to do so. A pleasing feature of the Christmas tide resulted in the remaining stars and directors each taking care of the Christmas dinner of a needy family.

A happy reunion took place on the grey Trenton battle-fields the other day when a soldier, struggling through mud and slush, rounded a traverse and ran into an old friend of his whom to-had not seen since the days of "pres, when one had saved the life of he other.

Belleville Chosen For Dairymen's Convention In 1929

Kingston, Jan. 6.—Belleville was chosen as the meeting place of the 1929 Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association Convention at a meeting of the directors here following the close of the final session. The officers of the association were re-elected for another term with no important changes.

The directors unanimously approved the decided cessation of the Ontario Federal Dairy Association and organization which will unite the several Dairy Associations in the province.

FINED $100 FOR HAVING LIQUOR

Sequel To Joy Ride On Which Young Girl Was Killed

Toronto, Jan. 6.—A fine of $100.00 and costs was imposed on Claude Wright in court at Mimico today on charges of having liquor illegally in his possession. He was arrested following the inquest on the death of Miss Edith Robinson, killed in a motor car accident on the Lake Shore highway.

It was shown that there was a bottle of alcohol in the automobile in which Wright, Miss arbour and several other young people had been driving.

WILL SAIL FROM NEW YORK

Toronto, January 6.—Lord Beverbrook, Canadian-born newspaper peer of Britain, left Toronto for New York in his private car today, after a visit to this city of five days. He will return to England from New-York.

PRINCE GIVES A DINNER FOR 800 FARMER FRIENDS

Leichester, Eng., Jan. 6.—Six farm laborers each of whom has worked at least fifty years for his present employer, each owning at least one cow, he Prince of Wales tonight at a dinner the Prince is giving to eight hundred farmers over whose land he hunts foxes.

The laborer with the longest service is James Adkins, who, at ten was a farm boy earning four pence a day. At 71 he walks two miles a day to his work. Adkins has owned five cows and brought up a family of seven children.

The Prince will give his guests the Old English fare of roast beef, Yorkshire pudding and beer.

ONE MORE HOPE GOES FOR RUTH

Argument On Motion Postponed Until After Her Death Date

MAKES HER WILL

Leaves Husband's Insurance To Daughter—Company Fights Claim

New York, Jan. 6.—Hope of Mrs. Ruth Snyder for a postponement of the date of her execution on January 12th was apparently dashed again today when it was announced that argument on the motion for a jury trial in the suit brought against her by the Prudential Life Insurance Company was adjourned until January 13.

Edgar Haselton, Mrs. Snyder's counsel, made application for a jury trial and it was considered possible that the date of Mrs. Snyder's execution might be postponed in the event that Supreme Court Justice Levy ruled that she would be needed as a witness.

Queens Man Dies

Brockville, Ont., Jan. 6.—When and if Mrs. Ruth Snyder goes to the electric chair in Sing Sing prison next week for the murder of her husband it will probably devolve upon a young Brockville physician, Dr. G. Kenneth McCracken, who is attached to the staff of that prison as surgeon, to pronounce her dead. The part of Dr. McCracken is to certify to the death of those convicted of the crime who are sentenced to execution. He is a recent graduate of Queen's University, Kingston.

Makes Her Will

Ossining, N.Y., Jan. 6.—Mrs. Ruth Snyder, awaiting execution in the Sing Sing death house, has made her will, leaving her property to her nineteen-year-old daughter and her mother, it was learned today. She left the bulk to her daughter.

The will disposed of the $97,000 insurance on her murdered husband, although payment has been contested in the courts, and property consisting of an automobile, clothing and jewelry.

ACTUAL SIGNING EXPECTED SOON

No Real Difficulty In Way Of Franco-American Pact

Paris, France, Jan. 6.—French circles believe that the Franco-American arbitration treaty with denunciation of agreement to its premature end can be signed very shortly. There is full accord on the principles of the treaty between the two countries and it remains only to polish the text of the treaty in which French views of the Nations obligations and the United States Monroe Doctrine can be properly reconciled.

These points are being discussed in an exchange of cabled notes and no difficulty in arriving at them are foreseen.

Favorable Reply

Washington, Jan 6.—Favorable reply to Secretary Kellogg's note to France of January 3rd, suggesting an international covenant deploring war as a means of settling international disputes, was received today at the French Embassy. The note will be delivered to the State Department later in the day.

W. C. LEYBOURNE DONATES TROPHY

Local Optometrist Takes Interest In City Hockey League

Mr. W. C. Leybourne well known Front Street Optometrist has donated a beautiful silver trophy for competition in the Senior City League Hockey League. The cup which is of the latest style and pattern will be placed on exhibition in one of the Front Street stores as soon as the engraving is completed. The Belleville City Hockey League from present indications promises to be one of the best of it's kind ever operated. Nine teams compose the loop and the competition is keen This will no doubt be strengthened following the donation of a cup.

The trophy may be retained by the team winning three years consecutively A space at the bottom of the cup is left for the placing of a shield which will bear the players' names, Mr. Leybourne although practically new to the business fraternity in Belleville is keen for amateur sport as evidenced by his act in donating the cup. He recently came to this city from Toronto where he was one of the head optimians with The T. Eaton Company. Sportsmen will find a real supporter in Mr. Leybourne.

Two games will be played in the City League tonight with four of the leading teams taking the ice. The Imperial Oil a new entry will face the Y's Men's Club while the Quinte Electricians will stack up against the Alemite Club.

On Monday January 9 another double header is down on the card. At 8 p.m. the Point Anne Club will try to take a fall out of the fast Moose aggregation and at 9 p.m. The Intelligencer and the Quinte Electricians will stack up against each other.

Newsy Neighborhood Notes

IN HEALTHY CONDITION

Oshawa, Jan. 6.—Oshawa is beginning the new year in a much healthier condition than it commenced 1927, according to Sanitary Inspector D. A. Hubbell. One year ago the city was suffering from an epidemic of German measles. At the present time there is hardly a case of this disease. In reply to January of last year, Mr. Hubbell says that he was kept busy all month painting up quarantine placards A few cases of mumps, one or two of chickenpox, and a like number of scarlet fever, comprise the greater part of the communicable disease in the city at the present time. The one case of smallpox which broke out several weeks ago, is almost completely recovered.

CHINESE ARRESED

Port Hope, Jan6.—Alec Lee, Chinese of Waverly Inn., a well-known roadhouse located on the provincial highway, between Dowmanville and Oshawa, is appearing in County Police Court at Bowmanville this afternoon charged with two offences under the Liquor Control Act of Ontario. Lee is charged with having liquor in an illegal place and also with having liquor for sale. The charges were laid by Provincial Constable Harry Storey, who is conducting a district wide campaign against L. C. A. violators.

AUTO THIEVES

Cobourg, Jan. 6.—Auto thieves appear to be busy again in Cobourg. A seven-passenger sedan belonging to Percy Macklin, local taxi owner, was stolen from in front of the New Royal Cafe early Sunday morning. The driver, Bruce Davey, who was awaiting some passengers, had stepped in the cafe for a moment; on coming out he discovered the car had disappeared. Meanwhile Ole thieves, speeding down Third street, in making the turn at the market, had crashed into a car driven by Frank Parsons, vaulting on Second street. Both cars were damaged but the drivers unhurt. In the general excitement created by the collision the thieves made their departure unchallenged. Had the people on the street been aware of the circumstances surrounding the affair the thieves could easily have been captured. No arrest have been made yet.

NEW CONSUL ARRIVES

Kingston, Jan. 6.—A despatch from Washington contains the information that Harry Campbell, United States Consul at Iquique, Chile, has been temporarily transferred to Kingston and that he is later slated for a post at Birmingham, England. Mr Crisp left has arrived in the city and has taken up his duties at the United States Consulate.

ENGLISH SALE NOW THING OF THE PAST

Victoria, B.C.—(By The Canadian Press).—The English sole, once a table delicacy in the restaurants of the world, no longer swims the seas. The last shipment to reach this continent was sold in New York fifteen years ago at three dollars a pound, according to Vancouver Island fishing operators.

But while the old-fashioned English sole is extinct, in a commercial sense anyway, there are millions of other fish off the west coast of Vancouver Island so similar to the English sole that the difference is hardly noticeable, the fishermen claim.

Several miles off the coast there is a vast shelf or series of banks similar to the Labrador and North Sea banks and the fisheries there are rated among the most important in the world, these fishermen state. In the past they have not been exploited for the larger species of fish except halibut.

British Columbia interests, however, intend to develop these fishing banks on a large scale and a fleet of trawlers will soon operate out of Victoria, bringing their catch to a large fish packing plant now under construction.

Reason is a man's guide, but principle is his safeguard.

NEW CHEVROLETS ON DISPLAY NOW

Interested Motorists Examine Features Of Smart New Models

The much heralded "Bigger and Better" Chevrolet in its various models, is arriving in Belleville today, at the showroom of J. T. Warren, Front street. The models of the 1928 Chevrolet have arrived already, one an Imperial Landau and the other a Coach Others are expected later in the day, completing the varied line of body styles embraced in the new car.

The scores of new features which make Chevrolet—at lower prices than ever before—unprecedented motor car values, are being closely examined by hundreds of motor enthusiasts at Warren's showrooms today, and the new Chevrolet appears to mark a new era in automobile value. An improved motor of the tested and proven Chevrolet valve in head type, comprises the power unit; a larger, stronger frame, larger balloon tires and four wheel brakes, to mention but a few of the features—are things which help Chevrolet set a new standard-value for cars.

The local dealers are issuing a special invitation to the public to visit their showrooms; see and drive this great new car—and learn how Chevrolet has once more revolutionized the motor car industry at astonishingly low prices.

POULTRY REGISTRATION

The policy of the record of performance of poultry—the official certification of private records of laying hens by a system of periodic inspection by the Dominion Department of Agriculture—is finding enthusiastic advocates in other countries. In urging the adoption of the Canadian system in England, Mr. C. A. Hoare, a prominent authority in Great Britain and editor of "The Poultry World," says "All doubt as to the success of the Record of Performance has been swept to one side. It has brought upheard-of success to the poultry industry. It has established some wonderful strains of birds and given them magnificent records

CHEFS ONCE EARNED SAME AS BANKERS

Victoria, B.C., Dec. 30.—(CP)- Time was when the first class restaurant and hotel chef earned a salary on a par with bank managers, but bank managers have far out-distanced them as money-makers, a delegation of caterers informed the Minimum Wage Board here. The caterers said they desired a return to the old conditions where chefs were awarded according to the value of the service rendered.

Competition of Oriental cooks is blamed for the present status of the white chef in British Columbia. Orientals have so reduced the level of wages that it is impossible for a white man to earn a good living in the manly art of making pies and other kitchen dainties, the caterers claim.

The caterers also reported a decline what they used to be," they lamented, in the picture of tipping. "Tips aren't "in the old days a dollar wasn't considered more than enough, but today dimes and quarters are about the average, and the number of customers who leave nothing for the waiter but dirty table cloths is gradually growing."

NEW AGREEMENT TAXATION STAND

Temporary Settlement Of Trouble Reached By U.S. and France

Paris.—Though a temporary settlement has been made of Franco-American tariff troubles, the situation apparently is still delicate and exposed to irritating disturbances. The most recent case has arisen out of an interview given in Washington to a New York newspaper in which it was suggested that, as American officials who controlled production costs in France have been removed under the new agreement, the system of taxation on imports might be changed and French goods taxed on value in America instead of on production cost in France. At once the French customs authorities took alarm. If the value in America was to be the standard of taxation it would mean a large increase in duty on all French products and a consequent further disadvantage to French trade.

In retaliation French customs authorities decided that it was within their right and legally possible for them to apply the same ruling in France. They decided to select the automobile industry for a trial and importers of American automobiles were informed in the future the French tariff would be based on the value of imports in France and not on production costs.

That would mean that an automobile imported from America and produced on a cheap mass production basis would be valued not according to production costs in America, but according to what it would cost to build in France and could be taxed at the higher rate. A hint of this intended measure was dropped in time to let automobile importers file a hasty protest, and today when the new ruling was about to be applied it was recalled, and instructions given to continue to apply the old tariff on the basis of production costs in the country of origin. It was perhaps never intended that a higher form of valuation should be applied, but the misdelivery for doing so was set in motion so as to indicate quite clearly, experts,

COLLECTOR HARRIES INCOME TAX PAYER

London.—Within the last few days the income tax-payer has been expending his anger upon the collector of income tax for his cold-blooded heartlessness in delivering his demand note for the taxes due, nominally, on January 1. A year or two ago, when the tax collector had been grasping enough to cause the delivery of his demand note on Christmas Day, the matter was brought to the attention of Parliament where some sort of half-hearted excuse was made, with a equal-promise that this should not occur again.

Whether the good of sending these things out during the Christmas season when the collector knows all the time that he will not get his money before March?" This is the kind of expostulation one often hears from the harried tax-payer.

The property tax, which has hitherto been paid in two half-yearly instalments, is this year being demanded in one sum at the beginning of the New Year An undertaking has been given that prompt payers will receive a rebate of 3 1-3 per cent. There is a "catch in it," though, and property owners who imagined they would receive a present of elegance in the pound on the amount of their tax are being promptly disillusioned. The 3 1-3 per cent. is on a per annum basis, so that owners of the smaller style of residence who are prepared to pay sensibly find that they thereby entitle themselves to a rebate of the merest fraction.

AVIATION FOREST-PROTECTION

The growing importance of the part being played by aviation in forest protection against fire in Canada is shown by the large part of the total flying time devoted to forest patrols. In 1926 the total flying time of Royal Canadian Air Force craft devoted to civil operations was 2,778 hours of which 1,- 132 hours were required for the work of the Forest Service, Department of the Interior.

NO CHRISTMAS HOLIDAYS.
"The pupils do not go home at Christmas," stated Dr. C. B. Coughlin, Principal of the Ontario School for the Deaf to The Intelligencer this afternoon when asked if school has reopened after the holidays. Dr. Coughlin said that only Christmas and « New Year's Day were holidays there.

DANCE HOSTESS
Miss Mary Lee was a hostess at a delightful dance last evening at her home « Pine Street. Some forty guests were in attendance including several from out of town. Music for dancing was furnished by Mr. Jack Denning's about midnight a tempting supper was served and festivities continued until the wee hours when the guests departed in the strains of "the King" declared the party at an end.

SLIGHT BLAZE.
The Fire Department was called to the old Canning Factory last evening at 8.15 o'clock to extinguish a blaze that had originated in a pile of refuse. Some carries dumped five coals which immediately ignited the stack of empty boxes. The prompt action of a gasoline containing five cars lent an added danger to the blaze and the fire fiends dies were called out. The reels from Number 1 station responded and succeeded in placing the fire under control.

FACES ANOTHER CHARGE.
L. Lenard, a merchant of Campbellford, is facing a charge for a breach of the Liquor Control Act, before Magistrate Floyd at Campbellford today. KINGSTON COMING HERE.
Kingston Curnton Badminton Club will play against the local club at the armouries tomorrow evening. Belleville has already won two games and are hopeful to capture the British Colonist Trophy which was put up for competition in this district. The local team play in Brockville on January 20th.

SNAPPY GAME
John St. girls found the task of stopping the St. Thomas sharpshooters at rather a big order, in the church league basketball fixture at the Armoury last night. Bernice Davison, the tall forward on the St. Thomas lineup had a "big night" scoring no less than 26 of her teams fifty three points. The winners combined some what better than the John St. Girls who were playing their first game and as a result, showed lack of team play. With more experience they will develop into a strong team and prove a stumbling block to any and all. JOHN ST.—Forwards, S. Ross, H. Cooper, J. Ramsay, Centre, R. Sievert. Guards, Gerard C. MOSSMAN—LAWRENCE
Monday night the Lawrenceville Home was the scene of a very smart Miss Vera's wedding when Helen Evelena, fourth daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Lawrence, Canniston, became the bride of William Henry Mossman, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. David Mossman, Belleville.

The bride, who was given away by her father, was charmingly frocked in a gown of rose taffeta and net. Her sister, Miss Thelma Lawrence, as bridesmaid, was very pretty in a frock of peach taffeta. The groom was assisted by his brother, Mr. Roy Mossman.

Rev. E. Farnsworth of Canniston United Church officiated.

After the ceremony, a dainty wedding supper was served in the dining room which was prettily decorated with rose and grey with white carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Mossman left later for Toronto, the bride travelling in a brown ensemble with a muskrat coat, the gift of the groom. Upon their return they will take up their residence in Belleville.

DISCREDIT ANY FOUL PLAY IDEA

Police And Mother Believe Costello Girl's Death Accidental

Toronto, Jan. 6.—Not only the mother but the girls another discredit rumorations that foul play entered into the death of Florence Costello, the school girl whose body was found in a small creek here after she had been missing for two weeks.

"I had been told that Florence's skull was fractured, but the thought never ne me, she had been overcome by ne of her fainting spells and in falling had struck her head on something," Mrs. Costello said today. "I can see no motive for foul play."

DOCKRILL INQUEST IS POSTPONED AGAIN

Kingston, Ont., Jan. 6.—The inquest which was to have been resumed at Dockrill on January 9 has been further postponed until February 6 because of the fact that Examiner Bradford would not be able to attend on Monday. The inquest was called to inquire into the deaths of the six people who lost their lives when the C. P. R. freight and C. P. R. express train met in a head-on collision at Dockrill siding on November 27.

POSED AS FLAPPER TO GET THE CASH

Berlin, January 6.—While most women have their hair bobbed in order to appear younger, Berlin Jordan, clever Berlin swindler, arrested today, used the opposite method of rejuvenation. Wearing a long Grecian braid, the 24 year-old flapper who is the mother of two children, succeeded in many cases in obtaining her end of a 15-year-old flapper and obtaining positions as office girl.

Roaring scandals are always disappeared as soon as any considerable amount of money was entrusted to her. One time she got away with twenty-four hundred marks. While the police have hunted her for two months the search is only successful now.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE FOR NEWLY-WEDDED

New York, Jan. 6.—A course in domestic science for newly-weds has been opened to the public schools of Brooklyn to ring good cooking, economy and comfort to the household. The course is being inaugurated by the Kendall Cooking Foundation. Advice will be given in twenty lessons how to prepare attractive meals and husbands how to economize in house.

TEST NEW SANITY LAW OF CALIFORNIA

Los Angeles, Jan. 6.—A complete try out of California's new laws governing insanity as a defense in criminal cases apparently will be involved in the trial of William Hickman on two murder indictments which he faces here. Hickman, a few days ago, pleaded "not Guilty by reason of insanity," to charges of kidnapping and slaying Marian Parker. Yesterday he entered an alternative plea under the new law "Not Guilty and not guilty by reason

TODAYS MARKETS

Market Comes Back
New York, Jan. 6.—An impressive demonstration of strength took place in today's stock market following the sweeping reaction of yesterday. All classes of stocks pointed higher with violent advances of six to nearly 12 points taking place in a few volatile specialties. The rally was accompanied by a marked reduction in the volume of trading.

Fears of higher money rates, which developed as result of the unusually large increase in brokers loans, apparently had been allayed by the lowering of the call money renewal rates to four per cent. Operators for the advance marked up their favorites on the theory that a substantial portion of January dividends and interest disbursements would find their way back into the securities markets.

Christie Brown, Coty, Midland Steel Parodels preferred and American Bilg Equipment were conspicuous advancers of 2 3-4 to 11-4 points.

Wheat Stiffens

Liverpool reported but little pressure of wheat offerings from Canada or Argentina. Wheat started at 1-8c decline to 1-4c advance, sagged somewhat and later scored slight general gains. Corn, oats and provisions developed strength, corn opening unchanged to 1-4c off and easier trifle more but then rising all around.

CHICAGO GRAIN
Chicago, Ill., Jan. 6 — Wheat. 19 3-4. Mar., May. 131. Corn Mar, 96 1-2 May 90. Oats Mar. 33 3-4, May 34 7-8.

Winnipeg Grain
Winnipeg, Jan. 6.—Wheat May 1-8 higher to 1-8 lower at 136 5-8 to 3-8. July unchanged at 135 7-8. Oct. 1-4 to 1-8 higher at 128 to 127 7-8. Oats May unchanged at 63 3-4. Oct. unchanged at 56 1-2.

Morley Smith, Truck Driver Is Exonerated By Jury

Oshawa, Jan. 6.—At an inquest held last night into the circumstances connected with the death of Walter H. Comme, Ritenia Vista avenue, Oshawa, who was killed by being struck by a motor truck on King street west, while proceeding to his work at about 7 o'clock in the morning, on December 20th, the jury returned the following verdict: "We, the jury, empanelled to enquire into the cause of death of one Walter H. Comme, are of the opinion that the said Walter H. Comme came to his death by coming into contact with some part of a truck while riding a bicycle on King street west, Oshawa, on Thursday, December 20, 1927, about 6.50 a.m. We come to the conclusion that the death was accidental, and that from the evidence submitted we are unable to attach blame to the driver of the truck, and we would recommend that the proper authorities see to it that the by-law with regard to vehicles travelling upon the public highways carrying rear lights or reflectors be strictly enforced."

Morley Smith, Bellerville, driver of the truck who is at present out on bail of $10,000 on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the accident, gave evidence and was informed before doing so that nothing that he would say would be used against him. He stated that he had been a truck driver for seven years, and that this accident was the first that he had had in his experience. On the morning of the accident he was driving from Toronto, and when ascending a hill on King street west, Oshawa, travelled at the rate of about 15 miles an hour. He first saw Comme riding his bicycle. Comme would be about 18 to 20 feet ahead of him. When he sighted him he blew his horn, and pulled out to the left to pass him. Comme seemed to be about two and a half or three feet clear of the truck.

POLICE COURT

A Matter of Brakes

Thomas Fuller, of Point Anne, was charged in court with having poor brakes in his car, which resulted in an accident on Pinnacle Street last week. The case was argued out to the bitter end by Charles Payne, counsel for the accused who finally got an acquittal for his client's. Despite the statement of H. T. O. Prink that the brakes, both emergency and foot, were absolutely no good, the man was acquitted.

CAPITOL THEATRE

The well-known screen favorite, Francis X. Bushman, who for many years has been one of the screen's outstanding stars, is back again at the Capitol Theatre for the week-end, this time with Anna Q. Nilsson in a drama of tense interest, gripping mystery, and romance. Bushman's superb acting ability was never shown to better advantage than in "The 13th Juror." Bushman this time plays the part of a brilliant lawyer called upon to defend his best friend in a murder case in which he himself has played a principal part. The film is well up to Capitol standard and is thoroughly good entertainment.

On the stage the Chandler Duo in good comedy, dancing, club swinging, etc., made an excellent impression on last night's audience and their offering has real merit. It rounds out a good week-end offering at the Capitol.

MILLION ACRES ARE TAKEN UP IN WEST

Winnipeg, January 5.— During the eleven months of last year to the end of November, homesteads and soldier grants taken up in the four western provinces—Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia—represent approximately 1,037,360 acres, according to officials of the Canadian Nation al Railways Colonization Department. This compares with 970,230 acres taken up in the corresponding period of 1926. The number of homesteads filed in the eleven months last year was 3,959 and soldier grants 462, as against 3,587 and 470, respectively, in the 1926 period.

Of homesteads last year, 672 were taken up in Manitoba; 2,598 in Saskatchewan; 2,581 in Alberta, and 107 in British Columbia. Of the soldier grants, 41 were taken up in Manitoba; 218 in Saskatchewan; 181 in Alberta and 22 in British Columbia. Homesteading continued active throughout November, 698 entries having been recorded during the month. The record for November, 1926, shows 585 entries.

TELLS OF OLDEN WAGON PERIOD

Interesting Book Describes Cumbersome Covered Wagon

Toronto. — Writing of life in the sticks W. H. Smith author of "Pioneer Days in Old Onlario") gives interesting reminiscences. Of the "Lumber Wagon" he says:

"These cumbersome vehicles were the only kind of conveyance seen on Sunday in the local church shed until I was well along in my 'teens. I can still see, as clearly as I saw them, the young men and their brides driving ahead of some of the rest of us on their way home from Church. The four were seated on chairs placed on the floor of the wagon box. The journey noon was not yet over and two pairs of heads—one pair in front and the other at the rear—were as close together as they could be without danger of collision at each jolt of the wagon, and we boys were greatly amused in watching the intermittent bobbing of the heads as the wagon bumped over the ruts in the road."

On the high mortality of these days Mr. Smith writes:

"Typhoid, smallpox and tuberculos is all took their toll, but the greatest tragedy of all was in the year of cholera-infantile cholera. In that summer there were nine deaths among child ren within a mile. From one home the bodies of three young boys were carried to the grave. Did I say the greatest tragedy? Possibly it was, but it was not far short of being equalled by the untimely deaths among the more mature. Perhaps youthful eyes see things in a different light, but men and women of 50 seemed old er to me then than do people of 70 and more today. I was reminded of all this last summer when wandering through an old cemetery near Myrtle. Few had passed the 60 mark. Cene teries of which the one near Myrtle is a type are eloquent reminders of the price in toil, privation, loneliness and sorrow that was paid for the heritage enjoyed by the generation of to-day."

CANADIAN FLIERS ORGANIZING

ADVOCATES USE OF BEAUTIFUL CEDARS

Toronto, Jan. 6.—Spruce and balsam trees seem to be the most popular as Christmas trees, but a local horticulturis advocates the substitution of cedar for spruce and balsam. He says cedar may be found in every swamp and he thinks it more beautiful than either of the other kinds of tree, besides it does not lose its leaves so quickly after cutting. Florists make considerable use of cedar in preparing wreaths, but as yet it has not become popular as a Christmas tree. Cedars should be cut before the frost touches them, as after that they lose a certain amount of color.

Never before in the history of Toronto were so many Christmas trees offered for sale as in December, 1927. Considerable quantities however were left on the hands of the dealers with consequent loss .

THOMAS FULLER IS THE NEW ARCHITECT

Ottawa, Ont. — Thomas W. Fuller, who was appointed last week as Chief Architect of the Public Works Department, in succession of the late R. C. Wright, has been 41 years in the departmental service. At the time of the Yukon development he spent four years in Dawson City and constructed the Government House and all the Dominion public buildings there. Afterwards, on returning to Ottawa, he was put in charge of plans for all drill halls and military buildings, and some years ago was made assistant chief architect He is a son of the late Thomas Fuller, also chief architect of the Public Works Department.

McGILL WANTS THEM FROM SOUTH AMERICA

Montreal.—Desiring to attract young men likely to carry some weight in their own countries McGill University is circularizing South American countries through prominent individuals as to the facilities McGill offers in university training. It is realized that a number of students from South America come to Canada for research work and that these men become valuable to trade and commerce, and McGill wishes in do its part in improving the relations between the Dominion and South America, commercial and cultural.

McGill University does not expect to attract a large number of South American students, it is stated, and as a matter of fact does not wish to do so, but hopes to secure a few who will give a good account of themselves and contribute to the friendly relations now existing between Canada and South America.

MUSEUM ADDED TWO SPECIMENS

Two Axe Heads Of Ancient Vintage Procured By R.O.W.

Toronto, Ont.—(By C.P.)—The Royal Ontario Museum here has just added two axe heads to its extensive collection of axes and other tools used by men in ancient days. The axe heads are regarded by the curator of the museum, Prof. E. T. Currelly, as furnishing evidence that the Egyptians and natives of ancient Peru were the only peoples in the distant past who had a well defined way of favricating tools, although it is believed that there was no intercourse between the two races.

The two specimens are flat pieces of polished stone, curved and sharp at one end, and with two short horns protruding from each side of the two-fold. This top end was laid against the helve and rawhide used to lash together in criss-cross fashion the two parts of the tool, the two horns making the lashing firm.

The evolution of the axe was a long and involved process which has furnish ed archaeologists with fascinating study but all the relics' discovered have shown no peoples other than the Egyptians and the Peruvians who used the cross lashing method. Other ancient tribes bored holes in the haft and stuck the head in in various crude manners or resorted to other make-shifts, and it was many centuries before a practicable method of fabricating axes began to be evolved.

There is no foundation for any theory, based on the Peruvian axe heads, that there was intercourse between Egypt and South America in the dim, distant past, according to Prof. E. T. Currey. In his opinion the axes date back to an era when there could not have been travel between the two countries, he believes.

LONGEST CHRISTMAS MAIL FOR 46 YEARS

Toronto, Ont. — The largest Christmas mail handled in the Toronto Post Office in 46 years in which Postmaster William J. Gage has held this servis ce was there was the Christmas mail of 1927 which was 10 per cent. greater than in the previous yuletide. Indeed the mail was not entirely cleared away for two or three days after Christmas, even with 300 extra men at the work. Citizens generally followed the advice of the postmaster to mail their parcels letters and cards early, and as a result the congestion of mail was less than might have been expected with so large an increase in the quantity.

Toronto is known by the sequaint ances he cuts long from.

BELLEVILLE JUNIORS DROP HARD FOUGHT GAME TO TRENTON KIDS

Parnell Scored Winning Goal Minute Before Time

POOR REFEREEING

Locals Lead Diminished Before Attack Of Home Team

When Parnell of the Trenton Juniors barged home a rebound half a minute before time last evening the Belleville Juniors sat one of the toughest losses for some time. Lighting fast from start to finish the crowd were in a frefny as the Trenton youngsters staging an uphill fight came on to stage a garrison finish, and hang up their second consecutive victory of the season. Leading at one period by a 4-1 score it appeared as though the local kids had the game sailed away but the home team came down the stretch with a burst of speed and tallied four straight goals to win by a bone.

Make no mistake about it, the Belleville Juniors will be heard from again this season and Eddie Thomas has one of the sweetest-looking tribes of youngsters to represent the city in some years. They should have won handily last night with the substantial lead but the Trenton youngsters kept plugging away and finally by dint of hard work evened the score and literally smothered victory in the dying minutes of the game.

Perfect Ice

Played on a perfect sheet of ice the kids went at it hammer and tongs and in all truth it was one of the sweetest argumenta the writer has been privileged to witness in either class for some time. It is no wonder that Junior hockey draws such enormous gatherings in Toronto and any fan who took in last night's game will inform you that it was a tidy battle. Chasing all to the four winds the lads waded in and treated the cash customers to one hour of real-honest-to-goodness sport. Twenty five penalties were handed out by referee Croft but only a dozen of these these were deserved. Croft to quote words suitable to the occasion was rank. His system is an antiquated one and while there are many incompetent officials in these parts this bird who minds the jail over Picton way takes the proverbial cake. He sent several of the lads to the house-gow and they wondered why they were delegated. While it is not the customs of Belleville teams to lay the blame at the feet of the referee still there was justifiable reasons for their "kick" last evening. To make matters still worse he would not allow Belleville two legitimate goals which the game swept out with his hand while in another instance the fourth goal scored by Trenton was so far off-side that it could have been distinguished by a blind man with spotted glasses. Appointing such officials is not helping the cause of the O. H. A. one iota and their past records as referees might be learned before they are appointed."

Trenton presented a smart team and they will take some beating but the Belleville youngsters have all the confidence in the world that they can defeat them in the return game here.

Nobody Starred

Every one of the youngsters on the Belleville team worked like trojans and no one player collected the limit honors of the credit lies with Jeffrey who minded the nets goes the majority of the honors.

This youngster turned them aside from all angles and when the team was playing short-handed he swept Upon aside with the case of a veteran. He bears all the ear-marks of becoming a nice goaler.

Galway and Risher teamed up well on the defence and will learn rapidly. The latter has already had some experience and he is not the back-checkward about closing up the attacking division with a stiff bodycheck which had its effect.

The two Canning brothers worked well and were the shining lights up on the forward line. Simpson showed to a swell performance while "Ab" Young the sixteen year-old boy was a most capable substitute. Henn the other sub was not used frequently. Young is a new-comer but he showed up nicely last night. Simpson is better than last year while the Canning brothers have learned a few new tricks and along with Simpson shared the scoring honors. John Canning's one effort was the prettiest of the affair when he ambled through the whole Trenton team to flip the puck over for a goal. The boys must learn to play hockey but penalties were costly as most all the goals were tallied while at least one of them was in the penalty box. They incline to hunch in centre ice, but this fault can easily be corrected. "Horse" Johnston was probably the pick of the home team. This youngster is shifty and tricky and on more than one occasion he eluded the Belleville forwards to sweep down the ice alone. He will make a sweet hockey player with proper coaching. BADMINTON CUP FOR COMPETITION

British Consols Cup Given By W. C. McDonald Incorporated

The St. Lawrence Badminton Association have recently been presented with a beautiful trophy for competitive play by W. C. McDonald, Incorporated, Montreal. The trophy is for provincial play and will go to the winner of the district this year. Belleville players have already distinguished themselves on the court and there is a strong possibility that the cup will come to Belleville this year. The St. Lawrence Badminton Association was organized last Spring and entries were received from Belleville, Queen's, Kingston Garrison Prince of Wales' own Regiment, and Belleville. Each match plays so far has been keenly contested and the competition for the British Consols trophy has been marked this year. The schedule runs well into the Spring months.

Badminton has popularized itself throughout Ontario and Quebec and many new clubs have been organized this year. Dozens of Belleville's citizens are learning to play the game which is considered one of the fastest games known.

The local team disposed of the P. W. O. R. the other evening and are regarded as the most serious contenders for this trophy.

The struggles of the W. C. McDonald Company is appreciated by badminton players in the Eastern Ontario district.

DOUBLE HEADER IN CITY LEAGUE

Four Fast Teams Will Take Ice At Arnott's Arena Tonight

There will be fire-works in the City League to-night with the Imperial Oil an all-star aggregation gathered by Don Roe facing the Y's Men Club at eight o'clock and the Quinte Electricians tackling the Alemite in the nightcap affair at nine.

These four are reputed to be the fast est of the City League teams and a treat is in store for the fans. It is all ready certain that the supporters who turned out on Wednesday night will be back again to-night as the class of hockey was match as to warrant a large attendance. Both games were keen competitions and the scores were close. It is assured that to-night's games will be even better than those on opening night. The Imperial Oil will test out such well-known players as "Bill" Cook, Ritchie Arnott, "Chuck" Jeffery, Tom Corbey, the Junior goaler, and several, other fast boys.

Opposed to them will be "Vern" Wetherall, "Ammunition" Grob, Symons, Harry Drew and others. Manager Roy Clarke of the Y's Men had his boys out on Monday and they are shaping up nicely. The Campbell Street Club claim they have secured a strange pair keeper to take the place of Stan Nurse

Quinte Electricians boast of such players as Paul Hibbard, his partner brother Johnny with the Junior O.H.A. team, Russell Derry, Paul Hibbard, and "Ted" Whalen. This galaxy of stars will make any of them step to the wire. Manager Young of the Alemite has secured Simpson of the Juniors and along with Rigby, Darragh, Pete, and Flasher will give an excellent account of themselves. The lubricators are out after the Inspirator Cup and mean to step in to-night and get off on the right side of the ledger. The aluminium prize is a swell one and fans will be more than delighted with the games offered.

As has been the case in other past seasons tie games were not played off and Wednesday night's game between the Intelligencer and the Ciaco went down on the score-card a point-each for the two teams. This seems the only logical thing to do and both man agers were satisfied that this should be satisfactory all around as did Frederick Kennedy Collins. Two points will be given for a win and one point for a tie game.

KINGSTON TIED WITH BELLEVILLE

Kingston Sports Writer Reviews Standing Of Local Group

Here is how the Kingston Whig-Standard sums up the situation in Group 1.

With the hockey season just nicely started, so far as this group in the O.H.A. series is concerned, opinion is already being formed as to the respective merits of the four out of six intermediate teams that have already played and the prospects of the two teams which have yet to play in a league series this season, namely: Royal Military College and Queen's.

So far as the games played are concerned, as yet it is quite impossible to pick a possible winner. Belleville and Kingston with two victories apiece loom up as the most dangerous pair to date. Belleville having won both its home engagements, one against Cornwall and the other against Brockville while Kingston has won a home game and one away.

In the first game that Belleville won, it appeared as though the Quinte team would have been in a bad fix on a fast sheet of ice rather than on the water-covered slush on which the game was played. Cornwall gave such a surprisingly splendid showing against Belleville in the latter's rink last Friday night, that it appeared as though it would take a great deal to stop them on hard ice.

This dope was then shot to pieces when Kingston walked in and slammed the Easterners for a 7-3 defeat. Kingston had all they could do to defeat Brockville here by 6-4. Kingston had been on ice for a month or more while Brockville had yet to set sabre upon ice this season. It was conceded then, that the locals would have plenty of opposition in Cornwall but they evidently didn't get it. That they got seven goals past Wagoner, shows that something was certainly very much out of the ordinary.

Brockville not only made a great showing here against Kingston on the Monday night they went into Belleville and for the first period played rings around the Belleville team. Then they were considered at his best when over here one Kingstonians put up a great battle.

It's many a moon since the locals took a fall out of the Limestoners in their own ballywick but they have all the intentions of turning the trick on Monday night. Belleville players take kindly to the large ice surface and are just as much at home as they are on their own ice.

"Soup" Goyer and "Bill" Green opened wide the golden portals and Brockville were able to slip daintily in to their three lively goals. Inability to retain the lead and put the finishing touch in overtime gave Brockville the game but they showed that they could step just about as fast as Belleville, and that away from home

There are two unknown quantities yet to be reckoned with, R.M.C. and Queen's. These two leaded out their season on Saturday night playing against each other. From all reports Queen's should be strong and even though they have not yet played a game this season, might now they are group favorites because of the rumors that have been afloat. However, it will remain to be seen just which team will stalk out in front.

The race to the finish is a long one and as the present rate of going, the final standing is anything but a foregone conclusion. Anything is apt to happen and even though a team now is faced with two losses in as many starts as Brockville and Cornwall are, and even though Belleville and, Kingston are sitting on top with two wins apiece, it doesn't mean a thing much after all to bank on when everything is considered. Within the next two weeks the teams should be travelling at their mid-season form and one will then be able to size up the standing which will come through under the wire in front.

Women's News and Views

OTHERS MAY BE WORSE OFF THAN YOURSELF.

By LOUIS E. BISCH

Boys and girls may succeed in many ways and yet be failures as sons and daughters. Success for them means more than getting a good education, a good position, or making a wise choice in marriage.

The truly successful son or daughter must also be successful in his or her relationship to the parents. And all this entails the difficult problem of growing up.

Often one sees men and women completely at odds with their fathers and mothers. The children don't understand their parents any more than the parents understand the grown children.

Frequently married men and women, living away from their parents, visit them only because of a sense of duty—not because they want to or because they enjoy it. And the parents, in return, are critical and faultfinding because they believe they are being neglected, are no longer loved, and are considered more or less of a bother by the very individuals whom they nurtured and reared.

Mothers often accuse their daughters-in-law of stealing the love of their sons. Much more friction and unhappiness exists in these family relationships than should be. And it can all be summed up by saying that the children have failed as sons and daughters.

Men and women should realize that as they reach adult years, their parents may then already be classed as belonging to an older generation. They should realize that because of it their parents cannot possibly think and feel the way they, themselves, do. They should, therefore, be more understanding more forgiving.

It is scarcely fair to demand always that the parents try to get their own point of view. Why should not they also try to appreciate the parents' way of looking at life?

The parents in turn should remember that there was a time when they had the confidence of their children and that, perhaps they are somewhat to blame if they have lost it.

Many an adult man would like to discuss his personal problems with his elders but he is afraid—afraid that he will not meet with a sympathetic welcome.

As a father or mother, therefore, never let go of your sons and daughters completely. Do not block the way to your heart. Let them feel always that its avenue to old-time understanding is open.

And you, as a son or daughter, never divorce yourself completely from the parent stem. You want to be, and should be, an independent thinker and doer, but the simple confiding influence of the parents can be exceedingly stimulating and helpful.

Don't be too much afraid where your parents are concerned. In a progressive family you are likely to be better educated and certainly more progressive than your parents.

But don't forget that it was they who started you off in life, who prepared the way for your success.

Never sidetrack your parents!

WHAT'S NEW

(From a Woman's Standpoint)

Kasha ensembles with natural color coats and a bright tone on the dress are being seen in New York.

New York reports a vogue for bright blue coats with natural lynx, and Persian lamb is also a modish new trimming.

hat there is a surprise in store until day after the coats of the newest black ensemble costumes, for black skirts are topped by pastel-colored coats in the form of sewed-on blouses ornamented with embroidery, brilliants or in sorts of contrasting colors.

New York reports that the nose veil which is being seen more and more of ten, is always black, of fine mesh with one chenille dot placed under the eye, and sometimes the veil is part of the hat and sometimes it is worn lightly or else is circular in cut so that it is posed loosely.

According to a fabric importer, turquoise blue will be an important simmer color in all its variations, while other style authorities returning from abroad describe the popular colors as "faded," the paler staining a good deal of attention from buyers and designers.

A SUITOR TOO MANY

By MILDRED BARBOUR

Her mood was thoughtful and distrait when Herbert duly delivered her at her father's house. She went at once to her father's study.

They were not very close, she and her father. He had always left her more or less to her own devices; she'd grown up with governesses and later a companion-chaperon, with whom she had dispensed at the beginning of the war. She knew her father only as a taciturn, immaculately groomed man who was engrossed in business and his clubs, who had given her handsome surroundings and too much freedom for her own good. It would never have occurred to him to question her friendship, nor to her to volunteer information or ask counsel. He had never known that she was engaged to Jack Farquahar during all that time, she told her father simply: "Dad, I'm going to marry Herbert Ware."

Her father was sitting at his desk when she came in. He rose and said curtly: "Ah, Lila. So time, I see."

Dar, during lunch, had started the ball. "Who's that young chap with whom you were having tea yesterday?"

Lila's eyes lowered.

"A Captain Farquahar. I knew him in France."

"Well, what right does that give him to shadow this house?" demanded Mr. Latham irritably. "I saw him last night and again this morning. I hope you haven't been flirting with him. He's a root-looking lad, but he has the air of a chap who'd stop at nothing."

CHAPTER II

A DISASTROUS IMPRESSION

Lila fairly flew to the Ritz that afternoon to keep her appointment with Farquahar. She was thoroughly angry. How dared he try to shadow her! First at Dorothy's studio, and then at her father's house! —

Sooner or later, she knew he'd be sure to find out something, if this attempted surveillance kept on.

"I think it's too disgraceful of you, Jack," she reproached him over the tea. "I want to be shared about like this. It makes me feel like a criminal, and besides, you're no right."

"I have the right. A man whose fiancee refuses openly to acknowledge the engagement. And don't forget that this is more than the conventional engagement; we made a marriage pledge to each other in the presence of witnesses. In my mind, at least, it was almost as binding as a marriage ceremony."

Lila was nearly in tears.

"It's humiliating, what you're doing. Think of the gossip it causes."

"You saw me in front of your father's house?" he asked quietly.

"Everybody saw you."

"Then why didn't you ask me to come in?"

Lila made an exasperated gesture.

"Haven't I told you that I dare not? My fiancee—"

Farquahar interrupted her: "I am your fiancee. Will you understand that? Lila, I can't stand this waiting any longer. Marry me now. Marry me secretly, if you like, and break the news to your father and that infernal Shylock when you please. But marry me today."

"Oh, Jack!" she was beginning —

And then May Varney descended upon them, with a smile, malice sparkling in her eyes.

"Tra for two? How sweet! Lila, you're looking simply ravishing." Her bright eyes looked Farquahar up and down and found him good.

Lila made the presentation stiffly, and, as May continued to linger, she was forced to say:

"Won't you join us?"

"Oh, may I? You're sure I shan't be de trop?" May seated herself with alacrity. "Just until my party arrives if you're positive I shan't disturb you." Her look and tone spoke volumes.

Lila could have shaken her. She was uneasy, too. May was unusually probing, which meant that there were claws beneath the velvet. Lila recalled that May once had been pleased at Lila's trouble with her husband on the strength of that foreign romance yarn.

"Where is Mr. Holmes these days?" May startled her by asking.

"Mr. Holmes is dead!" Lila blankly.

"I really don't know what you're talking about," said Lila coldly.

May laughed.

"I dare say you're found out, Captain Farquahar, that Lila is the soul of reticence, a perfect sphinx. You never know what she's up to."

"May, you're simply babbling. I don't know any Mr. Holmes." Lila was uncomfortably aware that Farquahar was looking at her fixedly.

"Really?" said May sweetly. "But I thought you said you knew him in France—that night at my dinner party—" she stopped, with a ludicrous expression.

Lila had pinched her arm.

"You must have mistaken the name, May," she said coolly. "Captain Farquahar and I knew a Captain Holmes in Paris, but I haven't met him since I returned to America, so the incident you refer to has no possible connection."

It was rather incoherent, that explanation, and didn't help matters except that it flipped May off to the fact that she was treading on very dangerous ground.

At that moment a page came to inform Farquahar that a telephone call for him in the room reception office had been answered, and he went away with a murmured excuse.

Lila turned furiously to May Varney.

"Why on earth did you have to babble about Gilroy Holmes in front of Farquahar? They were brother officers."

"But you just said—" began May bewilderedly, and then: "Oh, I have put my foot in it! Lila, I'm sorry, honestly. I only wanted to rag you a bit, because you got me into an awful mess with my husband over that foreign romance story. Jack hasn't forgiven me yet, and he's as suspicious as can be. How could I guess that there was any connection between this Farquahar man and Holmes?"

"You couldn't. But I wish you'd suppressed your sense of humor—or your sense of spite, whichever it was."

Mrs. Varney flushed resentfully.

"If I were you and were carrying on a flirtation with a man in my own office, I wouldn't be so high-hat."

Lila stared.

May tossed her head defiantly.

"Well, I don't see any other reason for your pretending to be ill when you saw him at my dinner-party. And, don't forget, you confessed to me that you didn't want to meet him, because you'd had a 'past' in France!"

A half hour well spent

THERE'S no satisfaction equal to that of a personal achievement which is at once useful and artistic. For this reason, a half hour spent in making a batch of one-egg muffins is decidedly a half hour well spent. To see the glorious glow of gratification spreading like sunshine over the faces around the table when you bring on the muffins—hot and crinkly and brown—m'm'm! Well—your joyful pride is fully justified.

ONE-EGG MUFFINS

1¾ cups flour
¾ cup milk
3 teaspoons Magic Baking Powder
½ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons sugar
1 small egg
1½ tablespoons melted butter

Sift flour, baking powder and salt, add sugar. Beat egg thoroughly, add it gradually with milk. Beat all ingredients and beat hard. At the last to dry ingredients add melted butter. Drop the batter into hot buttered iron gem pans and bake in a hot oven 25 minutes.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am 20 years of age and in love with a man four years my senior. Af times he seems to love me, but mostly he does not. How can I win his love?

LOVE-LORN.

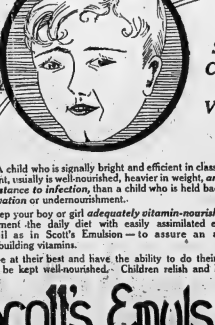

LOVE-LORN: I would advise you not to take the initiative in this matter, for you are young and should be assured if you are interesting and congenial this man will be more attractive to you. I would advise you to try merely to develop this friendship and let it progress naturally. If you endeavor to force this man into an attitude you may spoil the entire relationship. Also, if you reveal your fondness for him, you may "scare him off!" It is quite true that men like saw him at my dinner-party. And, to win you you're sure to usurp this privilege.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my early teens, and am in love with a boy one year older than I. He says he loves me and if I go out with another boy he has something to say to me when he sees me again. He goes out with other girls but I do not say a thing. Please tell me what to do. LONELY.

LONELY: I would advise you to have a talk with your friend and explain to him that his attitude is nonsensical. Since you are not engaged it is hardly his privilege to control you. Be sure and be seen out with others; in fact I would urge you to take advantage of your freedom and go out with as many people as you can. You are young and should have a good time and most decidedly should have a large circle of friends.

When a girl becomes engaged to mother always says that if is hard to give her up—but she may think otherwise.

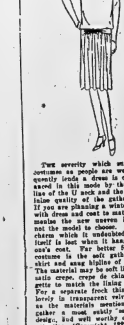

School Children Need Vitamins

A child who is signally bright and efficient in class-room achievement, usually is well-nourished, heavier in weight, and has greater resistance to infection, than a child who is held back by vitamin-starvation or undernourishment.

Keep your boy or girl adequately vitamin-nourished at all times. Supplement the daily diet with easily assimilated emulsified cod liver oil as in Scott's Emulsion — to assure an abundance of health-building vitamins.

To be at their best and have the ability to do their best, children should be kept well-nourished. Children relish and like

Scott's Emulsion

The severity which such simple costumes as people are wearing frequently lends a decidedly feminine appearance in this mode by the gracious lines of the U neck and the lithe feminine quality of the gathered skirt. If you are planning a winter costume with dress and coat to match or harmonize the new severe hemline is not the model to choose. All of the charm which it undoubtedly has of itself is lost when it hangs beneath one's coat. For better for such a costume is the soft gathered front shirt and semi bigdice of this frock. The material may be soft light weight satin crepe, crepe de chine or georgette to match the lining of a coat. Try a separate smock this would be lovely in transparent velvet as well as the materials mentioned. Altogether a most subtly sophisticated design, and well worthy of anyone's attention. SAVES DOCTORS' BILLS

ECZEMA ENDED

Madame A. Lariviere of Fall River, Mass., suffered with eczema for three years, and had treatment from several doctors, all of whom gave up the case. "Finally," she says, "I went to a specialist, which cost me another $20, but I was no better.

"A friend advised me to try Zam-Buk, which I did, and for which I have ever since been thankful. I very soon felt some relief, and perseverance with Zam-Buk completely rid me of the clothes."

SEVERE CUT HEALED

Mr. C. Oakley of Saskatoon, who sustained a terrible cut on his leg, says: "Had I known of Zam-Buk when the accident occurred, I could have saved myself a $40 doctor's bill! A doctor saved up the cut and attended me for five weeks, but the wound did not heal, and he advised me to go into a hospital.

"I objected, however, and used Zam-Buk instead, and in two weeks' time was back at work."

SAVED OPERATION

"Father developed a painful sore on his face," writes Miss E. V. Lewis of Silver Lake, Oregon. "Numerous remedies and treatment from several doctors failed to heal it, and the doctor advised an operation. Someone advised him to first try Zam-Buk. A few applications brought relief, and continued use of Zam-Buk entirely healed the sore, saving father from an operation."

Zam-Buk is best for eczema, ringworm, salt rheum, boils, pimples, scalds, cuts, bruises, ulcers, varicose sores, sore eyes, chapped hands, chilblains, and piles.

SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH

It is doubtful if any money spent by the national government yields such good results as the comparatively small sum spent on scientific research. The amount is pitifully small when compared with the expenditure in other industrial countries. The National Research Council, which has been functioning for about ten years, costs little or nothing, for the eminent scientists constituting it give their services free of charge. It has been sadly hand icapped by lack of funds. Yet it has accomplished much. One of its aims has been to stimulate original research by the establishment of post-graduate scholarships to brilliant students in science and to encourage them to take their post-graduate courses in Canada and pursue their original investigations in this country so that their services will not be lost to Canada. The coun cil has awarded in the past ten years 244 post-graduate scholarships to 189 persons, 185 of whom have completed their training under these awards. These young trained scientists are now at work in our industries or universities, and in the technical services of the federal and provincial governments by grants to existing laboratories and trained research workers engaged in independent investigation the coun cil has done something to stimulate research throughout the Dominion. It has instituted 120 researches at a total expenditure of $411,000 in the last ten years. These researches have been carried on in thy laboratories of the Canadian universities and eleven indus strial or government laboratories, and they covered 23 departments of science

In a paper contributed to the Financial Times, S. F. Eaglesor affirms that one investigation alone has made it possible for the lobster packing industry to save more money annually than the council has expended in the ten years of its existence. Another investigation, one the problems of rock crushing, was considered by the mining industry to be of such value that the Hollinger Mining company gave a fellowship of $1200 to assist in developing this work, and the Nipissing Mining company donated $20,000 for founding a permanent fellowship at Toronto university for research work in mining.

What is most needed is the maintenance of large and well equipped laboratories for special research work. Most of the annual government grant goes for this purpose. But, as we have said the annual grant is pitifully inadequate For the last ten years it has been about $150,000, last year it was $170,000. That represents most of what is spent in Canada on original scientific research, for very few of our great industrial corporations spend anything for that purpose. They depend upon their foreign competitors for information about the latest processes and discoveries. It would pay them to be more independent. As it is, they cannot expect to lead in industrial progress —they must be content to follow and suffer the disadvantages of those who imitate and never originate.

from $1,000,000 to $10,000,000 each in research work. It is estimated that $300,000,000 is being spent annually in the United States on applied science research, and $10,000,000 more on pure science research. The U. S. government alone spends twenty times as much as the Canadian government spends for this purpose, although the American policy is to leave such matters to private enterprise.

Germany led the way in scientific research and, thus was enabled to wrest from Britain her supremacy in many lines of industry. The great war revealed to British manufacturers how far behind their German competitors they had lagged. Then the war opportunities efforts have been made in Britain to catch up, the British government assisting. Australia and New Zealand are far ahead of Canada in this work. But the Canadian government seems at last to be alive to the importance of the subject. In the House of Commons at the last session the Hon. James Malcolm, minister of trade and commerce, said he considered the work of the National Research Council one of the most important coming under his jurisdiction, and he declared it to be the policy of the government "to prepare plans for the coming year and bring down at the next session a considerable vote to enlarge the work to an extent which heretofore has not been contemplated." So there is cause for hope that soon Canadian industry will not be so sadly handicapped as it has been by the want of facilities for original scientific research work.

RAILWAY RATES

The president of the Canadian Pacific Railway rises to remark, in effect, that we can't have our railway cake and eat it too. There can't be railway profits and losing freight rates. Seeing that half the railways of Canada are national property, this means that if we compel lower railway rates we compel higher taxation. Also we compel poorer railway service. This is something for the country at large to think over when any particular section of the country, east or west, demands lowering of railway rates.

RUTH

She stood breast-high amid the corn,
Clasped by the golden light of morn,
Like the sweetheart of the sun,
Who many a glowing kiss had won.
On her cheek an Autumn flush
Deeply ripened; such a blush
In the midst of brown was born,
Like red poppies grown with corn.

Round her eyes her tresses fell—
Which were blackest none could tell—
But long lashes veiled a light
That had else been all too bright.

And her hat, with shady brim,
Made her tressy forehead dim;
Thus she stood amongs the stooks
Praising God with sweetest looks.

Sure, I said, Heaven did not mean,
Where I reap thou shouldst but glean;
Lay thy sheaf adown and come,
Share my harvest and my home.

Tom Hood.

THE PASSING YEARS

(From The Intelligencer of this day 30 years ago)

The body of James Corbett, night operator of the telephone company here, was found horribly mangled along the G. T. R. track about two miles west of Belleville this morning. Corbett was 30 years of age and unmarried. Few men in the city were better known than Jim Corbett, who was a genial, whole-souled fellow well liked by all who came in contact with him.

An irritable old sportsman was aroused from his bed at three o'clock in the morning by the insistent ringing of his door-bell. On answering it he was confronted by a man struggling hard to maintain his equilibrium.

"What do you mean by waking me up at this hour?" demanded the sportsman.

"Ish you Mr. Smithers?" asked the other.

"Yes; what of it?"

"Ish you the great, what advertised for a partner to go lion huntin' in Africa?"

"Yes, I'm the man. What do you want to know about it?"

"Nothing," replied the inebriated one "cept'n I just wanted to tell you that on no condishuns whatsoever will I go with you."

OTHER MEN'S THOUGHTS

The only thing a nickel is good for nowadays is to get the wrong number on the telephone.—Judge.

The story of ten years since the Armistice is the story of British effort to get rid of armaments, to pay war debts, to foster good will between peoples, and to reconstruct Europe on a basis of peace and security. The great pity is that the one other great world power which could do much to fortify Britain in the work has so consistently held aloof. And not the least act in that aloofness, is that almost indifference, was the failure of the United States representatives to make allowances for Britain's position at the Geneva conference.—Ottawa Journal.

THE SYDNEY COAL-FIELD

Submarine mining is the outstanding feature of the Sydney coal-field. Nova Scotia, and workings have been carried seaward to distances varying from one to two and a half miles. While the seaward extent of the seams is unknown, there are no indications of flattening or rising tendencies, and it is probable that the limits of mining will be determined by economic factors rather than by exhaustion.

SAVING THE ANTELOPE

The history of Nemiskam national park, Alberta, Canada, is an interesting chapter in the story of wild life conservation. Overcoming what appeared to be insurmountable difficulties, forty-two antelope were enclosed in a fenced-in area in southeastern Alberta in 1915, and, in contrast to previous experiments, continued to thrive in captivity. Their welfare and propagation, which at first was a matter of speculation, now seem to be definitely assured, as officials of the Department of the Interior report that the herd now totals 500. This indicates a natural increase of 468 since the original herd was enclosed in the present park in 1915.

Why Not Investigate Our Own Mineral Wealth

Col. W. N. Ponton, always interested in Hastings County development, has written the letter appearing below to Mr. J. C. Herity, chairman of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce and sent a copy to the Press for publication.

This letter deals with a matter of great importance to this County and in fact to all Eastern Ontario. It is almost certain that our northern townships contain extremely valuable mineral deposits which will some day bring great wealth to this part of the Province. The letter follows:

Belleville,
December 21, 1927.

J. C. Herity, Esq.,
Secretary Manager Chamber of Commerce,
Belleville.

Dear Sir,—

It is interesting to note as confirming my former letters and the resolution of the Belleville Board and also the address of H. B. Proctor in introducing the Minister of Mines, that the official organ of the Royal Colonial Institute "United Empire" in the December issue, sums up the meeting of the Empire Mining Congress held in Canada this year. The article says that the principal subject of discussion—apart from technical papers—was the resolution brought forward by Sir Thomas Holland and the Institution of Mining and Metallurgy with the support of the Advisory Council reported as follows:—

The effect of the proposal, which was adopted unanimously, is that the Empire Council of Mining and Metallurgical Institutions will be authorized to bring into existence in each Dominion and larger Colony, Committees of specialists charged with an exhaustive investigation of its potential production of metals or of the principal non-metallic minerals essential to the Empire in times of crisis, together with an examination of the complementary smelting and refining capacities. Existing official statistics of production, export and import, are held to be misleading, as they cannot in the nature of things give any indication as to possibilities of abandoned or undeveloped properties the operations of which are governed by questions of world price, transportation, labour shortage, fiscal buffeting, mining laws, leasehold systems, power difficulties, &c. The War showed conclusively how unreliable such statistics of production may be to those seeking a source of supply of minerals not already marketed on an economic basis."

The article then adds:—

"Probably the main result in Canada will be the stimulation of public demand for information along the lines followed by the Geological Survey and Mines Branch of the Dominion Department of Mines, with such improvements as experience may suggest."

and concludes with a reference to the insatiable appetite of the world for metals and minerals of every kind and the increased interest in mining and metallurgical operations throughout the Empire.

If we could only get a grant for Eastern Ontario of one-tenth of the amount spent so freely by the Government in Northern Ontario for the same purpose it would mean an era of prosperity and a revelation of our riches under the surface such as has never been conceived. Every combined effort should be made to so impress the Government that this may be brought about.

I am sure that the Hon. Charles McCrea will lend a willing ear and an understanding mind to our suggestions and requests on behalf of this and adjoining Counties which embrace both Eastern and Northern Ontario.

Yours very truly,
(Sgd.) W. N. PONTON.

MARCH OF MODERN TRANSPORTATION IN THE EAST INDIES

The Gajo-Locos district in Northern Sumatra, in the Dutch East Indies, is entirely cut off from the outside world by mountainous ranges and almost impassable jungles. In spite of these drawbacks, however, this district now boasts its first automobile. But it was not until after a particularly difficult four hundred mile trip had been made partly under the car's own power with the last ninety miles by jungle carriers, that the car was greeted by officials and natives of that remote district.

After travelling through mountainous country where the trail was little better than a path for three hundred miles the motor car had to be dismantled and carried the remaining ninety miles by jungle carriers. Two mechanics from the Ford distributor at Medan accompanied the car and attended to the dismantling and assembling. They were escorted by a brigade of mounted police.

The jungle carriers arrived with the dismantled car early in the morning and created considerable interest in the garrison. Villagers from throughout the district congregated to witness this important event and watched the mechanics assemble the car with the greatest of interest. About the middle of the afternoon the engine was started, much to the consternation of the natives, but to the delight of the jungle carriers and the mounted police.

The First of Alpha, the Rev. Fr. Huybrechts, is shown toasting the car with champagne, seconded by the various officers and officials. Music was furnished in honor of the occasion and the jungle and its representatives in the form of a small elephant. After a complete tour of the Gajo-Locos, the car then started on its first trip up the territory.

ONTARIO WILL NEVER RETURN TO PROHIBITION ERA SAYS FERGUSON

Premier Explains To United States Policy Of Liquor Control

PEOPLE TEMPERATE

Liberal Attacks Have Purely Political Motive—Public Satisfied

Atlantic City, N.J., Jan. 7.—Howard Ferguson, Premier of Ontario, at the Marlborough Blenheim, with his wife, for a brief rest, said last night that after seven months' trial of the rule of liquor under Government control, the province would not return to prohibition.

Premier Ferguson said that attacks on the liquor situation might be expected from the Liberals, but in his opinion the move would be purely political in motive, and would not stand against the opinion of 2,000,000 citizens of the province.

"War-time prohibition was an outcome of the period," he said. "Our young men were all at the front, and everyone at home was sacrificing something and the movement for prohibition was in line with the sentiment of the period. A year after the war ended, when most of our boys had returned, the sentiment for prohibition was still strong. The emotional period had not yet passed. A plebiscite on the question resulted in a vote of 600,000 majority for prohibition.

Normal Conditions Resume

"But as time passed, and normal conditions were resumed, it was found that prohibition was not profiting. Bootlegging became more and more active. There was a spirit of lawlessness developing, crimes of a serious character being directly traceable to the situation. After a full decade, the Government of which I was Prime Minister, began to inquire as to the feeling of the people for Government control of liquor sales, the election proving there was a demand for it. Our policy is not to push the use of liquor. On the contrary, we endeavor to restrain it in the form of control.

"Our people for the most part are temperate. Those who abuse the privilege of obtaining liquors under Government permits are deprived of it and those who indulge in drunkenness are punished. There is now a state law against drunkenness, whereas the offence was formerly punished by local police courts, as against a municipal ordinance.

Against Old Bar"

"We are against the return of the old saloon. Some hotel men have the insolence to use the privilege of opening bars in their places, but the Government has firmly opposed this. It is our policy that where a man stops, as in a hotel, it becomes his domicile, and he is entitled to carry to it whatever he wishes to drink. That makes a bar unnecessary.

"All law is experimental. It merely reflects the opinion and spirit of the times. Therefore the new law may be changed. It may become more stringent in its provisions, or more liberal. But one thing I believe, that the people of Ontario would not return to the conditions prevailing before the change was made."

Mr. Ferguson declared that certain professional prohibitionists, on payrolls of organizations in the States came to Ontario a few months ago to study the situation. In his opinion they did not get a fair slant on the conditions, obtaining their information largely from prohibitionists. The late Wayne B. Wheeler, leader of the Anti-Saloon League, was one of the party.

MOTOR SKIDDED ON MURNEY HILL

Car Completely Wrecked But Occupants Escaped Serious Injury

For the second time within a month, Murney Hill has been the scene of a disaster. Fortunately the previous accident a fatality resulted but the occupants of a car driven by Mr. C. L. Goudy of Toronto last evening escaped with a few minor bruises and scratches. The car was a complete wreck having struck the south curb and a telegraph pole full force shattering the glass in the car and smashing the top, fenders radiator and body to such an extent that it will be useless to attempt to repair it.

At 11.40 last evening Constable Storrs, who was on duty, was informed by Mr. Goudy that while driving the car in an easterly direction he had struck a pole on Murney Ridge Street. Investigation revealed that the occupants had crawled out after some difficulty while the car was still in the same position after it had come in contact with the curb.

Mr. Goudy was driving at a moderate rate of speed. Reaching the top of the hill he became aware of the sharp incline and applied the brakes with the result that the car skidded. Mr. Goudy's mother and brother were in the car and both were bruised and cut but escaped the glass.

Murney Hill is reported to be in a dangerous condition following the recent storm. Precautions must be taken to prevent further accidents at this point.

BROKE NEWS OF LAST HOPE GONE

Ruth Snyder's Mother Told Her To Prepare For Her Death

New York, Jan. 7.—Speculation arose as to whether the latest court move by counsel for Mrs. Ruth Snyder would result in a stay of her execution in the Sing Sing prison death house tomorrow morning. Edgar Hazelton, of Mrs. Snyder's counsel consented to argue the request for a jury trial of the suit over $97,000 insurance on Mrs. Snyder's murdered husband next Friday, the day before scheduled execution. This request for a jury trial stressed the importance of Mrs. Snyder's presence at the trial. The suit would have no bearing on Henry Judd Gray, sentenced to die with her.

Mrs. Snyder in her death cell at Sing Sing prison was told by her mother, Mrs. Josephine Brown, that all hope of reprieve is gone and to prepare herself for death.

Mrs. Brown, on leaving the prison said "I had to tell her that all hope is gone. I wanted to do it. I told her that it was useless to cling to hope any longer. I told her to prepare herself. She has been a brave girl but she knows she must die now."

Warden Lawes of Sing-Sing prison was proceeding today with preparations for the double execution. It will be devoid of remotion as he can make it he said. No telephone or telegraph lines for the use of the press will be installed in the prison. They will be in the village. Two hundred seats have been selected. These will include twenty newspapermen and four phys icians.

SKULL FRACTURE CAUSED BY BLOW

Geo. Monteal Brought To Hospital By Ambulance From Huff's Island

George Monteal, address unknown, is lying in the Bellleville General Hospital with a fractured skull and is in a critical condition following a peculiar accident in Mosquito Bay yesterday afternoon about four o'clock.

Monteal, an employe of the Quinte Fish Company, of which Mr. E. Wallbridge of Prince Edward County, is the head, was engaged in assisting in reeling in a fish net when he was struck on the back of the head with the heavy wooden pole. Monteal was rendered unconscious and officials of the Fish Company called for the police ambulance at Belleville, chief Alex Kidd answering the call.

Monteal was rushed to the hospital where medical attention was given by Dr. J. J. Robertson, about five o'clock. The victim of the accident is reported to be resting much easier at the hospital today. It is reported that he will recover. The accident occurred near Huff's Island where the company have been conducting extensive fishing operations.

FARMER FINED $1 CHOOSES PRISON

Chatham, Jan. 7.—William Simpson, prosperous Chatham township farmer, chose three days in jail rather than pay a fine of $1 and costs in county police court when convicted of cruelty to animals. Dr. Moffat, veterinary surgeon, testified he had shot a horse that had been laid up for weeks with a broken leg on Simpson's farm. Simpson said the animal belonged to his son and owing to the latter's absence he had not destroyed it. He gave it every care possible, he claimed.

LAST JANUARY A COLD MONTH

Mr. E. T. Austin, manager of the city water works department, has compiled some interesting figures dealing with the rain and snow-fall during 1927. The total rainfall for 1927 was 36 1-2 inches and the snow fall 83 inches. On fourteen days during the year the mercury dropped below the zero mark. The lowest temperature was recorded January 31st when the thermometer registered 16 degrees below zero. The highest temperature was recorded June 30th when the residents of the city sweltered under 92 degrees. There fell on 107 days of the year while snow fell on 12 different days.

January, 1927, was one of the coldest months on record when on twelve different days the temperature registered below zero.

HUNT EVIDENCE TO PROVE CASE

Lawyers Work Frantically To Gather Insanity Data On Hickman

Los Angeles, Jan. 7. — Search through the middle west for evidence to aid in determining the sanity of Edward Hickman was started today as attorneys hurried eastward armed with court stipulations permitting them to gather testimony regarding the boyhood and school life of the confessed slayer and kidnapper.

Attorney Jerome Walsh, accompanied by deputy district attorney James Costello, left here last night for Kansas City... Costello will attempt to gather evidence for the prosecution which will offset any found by Walsh for the defence. Boyhood friendly school dr. acquaintances and other persons who knew Hickman in his youth, Walsh declared would provide depositions that Hickman's defence, "Not Guilty by reason of insanity" was dependent upon.

THAMES, BACKED UP BY ABNORMAL TIDES, FLOODS PARTS OF LONDON

DANGER REMAINS

Authorities Issue Warning That Flood May Occur Again

London, Jan. 7.—Part of London authorities issued a warning this afternoon that a repetition of the day's devastating Thames flood is possible during the next few days. Tides will be at increasing height until Tuesday and as storms are forecast, and flood conditions from the Christmas week prevail in the Thames valley, the danger for London continues.

Danger was past for today when ebb tide began at 1.55 p.m. The river was a foot lower and was not rushing down with the usual morrow morning.

Twenty Known Drowned During Night Of Terror And Suffering

FEAR MANY MORE

Trapped In Basements, Women And Children Died Helplessly

London, Jan. 7.—Flood deaths in the London district caused by the backing up of the Thames early today after an abnormal tide had reached twenty at noon. Deaths were distributed as follows, fifteen in Westminster area, two in Tecumseh, two in Delawaresmith and one in Jurlingham. Crowds gathered along Victoria Embankment at noon to see whether abnormal high tide would occur.

London, Eng., Jan. 7.—London was aghast today at the most devastating catastrophe which the River Thames has wrought in modern times. At least nineteen persons were drowned by the sudden rise of the river when the waters caused by rains melted the Christmas snow, swept down on London and met an abnormal tide. The river receded to normal today with ebb tide.

Fearing a recurrence of the disaster at the week end, residents of the lowered frantically building temporary barricades where the walls along the embankment collapsed early today. Extensive search of the poorer districts, it was feared, might show more victims.

Homes Were Flooded

The river swept over the banks for sixty miles from the sea and a night of alarms and tense excitement such as has been unknown for years reigned. Brief reports which came from the outlying districts last night below the business section of city told of the struggle of the inhabitants of people to escape from the sudden rush of water into their homes. Numbers of houses were flooded in Limehouse, Rotherhithe, Poplar and Canning Town, in the neighborhood of docks.

Many public buildings were thrown open to shelter the sufferers. Police and others assisted in removing the stricken and supplying them with food.

Abnormal Tide After Gale

The abnormal tide which caused the disaster followed a gale of hurricane force which swept the coast. As the waters from the sea met the waters from the hills disaster resulted. Firemen were busy today pumping out flooded cellars.

The granite wall along Victoria Embankment bulged under the terrific volume of water, preventing a more serious catastrophe in the centre of the city. Water rose to the top of this wall which is four feet wide and which stands for a mile and a half along the city proper to Westminster street. At some points the water overflowed, but the wall itself held against the rush of waters.

On the opposite side of the river

DEATH TOLL IS STILL AT THIRTY

Quebec, Jan. 7.—With all the children accounted for, the list of known lives taken in the St. Charles Hospice Catastrophe of December 14th has remained at thirty, mostly children between the ages of five and six years. The last of twelve children regarding whose whereabouts the Sisters of the Hospice were without information was located yesterday by municipal detectives, according to a report issued today. The last dozen of missing children were discovered in homes of their parents or living with uncles and aunts or people who had given them shelter on the night of the fire.

CHINESE URGES EVANGELIZING OF CHINESE LIVING IN CANADA

St. Catharines, Ont., Jan. 7.—Believing that the presence of Chinese in Canada is a God-given opportunity for Canadians to help in the evangelization of China, Rev. Dr. Archibald Mackenzie ,of Honan, China, urged Canadians to get acquainted with the Chinese in their midst, in a stirring address before the World Missions Conference which opened here yesterday. Missionaries are present from various mission fields and representing various denominations.

Rev. Dr. Armstrong, Foreign Mission Secretary of the United Church, was another speaker at the Conference this meeting. Conference is continuing tonight with a men's Missionary banquet at which Canon Scott and Rev. George Warburton, both of Toronto, will speak.

INVENTION TO MAKE HUGE AIR LINERS PRACTICABLE

New York, Jan. 7.—Elmer A. Sperry, inventor of the Gyroscope compass, announces that he has perfected an aeroplane engine on the Diesel principle. He said that within a year he expects to have a motor of a thousand horse power weighing two pounds per horse power and consuming one-half pint of fuel per horse power hour. This would make possible higher power development per gallon of fuel than the fuel cost.

Adoption of the Diesel principle to aircraft, considered one of the surest steps to huge airliners, has been the problem of aeronautical engineering throughout the world. The Diesel motor differs from the ordinary gasoline engine in that there is no spark plug and could be used in place of gasoline, thus eliminating the fire hazard.

TO-DAY'S THOUGHT

What delightful hosts are they—
Life and Love!
Lingeringly I turn away,
This late hour, yet glad enough
They have not withheld from me
Their high hospitality.
So, with face lit with delight
And all gratitude, I stay
Yet to press their hand and say,
"Thanks — So fine a time! Good night."

GOOD-WILL

Addressing a luncheon association in Chicago last week, Dr. George Locke, librarian of Toronto, made an allusion to the anti-British campaign directed by Mayor Thompson of that city. Dr. Locke intimated that the campaign is likely to work injury to Chicago in a business way. A prominent Canadian business man, he said, had told him that he had either curtailed or suspended his business with Chicago firms and transferred orders to other American cities, declaring that so long as Chicago officially manifested unfriendliness to Britain and the British he would place his orders elsewhere.

This is a hopeful so far as that Californian business man can give effect to it. Should the spirit of the boycott against Chicago grow in this country, the effects of it would be felt by the Chicago business community. As yet there is little sign of it; but a Canadian resentment against the Illinois metropolis is wide-spread, and it would not be surprising if it were to crystallize into a general boycott.

It might be objected that it would be unfair to punish a whole city for the malicious folly of its official head, But it should be considered that Mayor Thompson was elected mainly on the anti-British issue, and it is therefore fair to assume that in originating and conducting his campaign he is backed by the sympathy and support of a majority of Chicago citizens.

But it is not alone the mayor's anti-British campaign which has given Chicago a bad name in this country. Before Canadians ever heard of Big Bill, Chicago had earned the resentment of Canadians by reason of its cynical indifference to the rights and interests of this country in connection with the city's wholesale diversion of lake water.

"A good name is better than riches." Chicago has forfeited its good name. And in doing so it has lost the goodwill of millions. Not improbably Chicago people will be compelled to realize to their sorrow that good-will is an asset worth preserving.

NOTHING DOING

From London, masculine style centre of the world, comes the alarming news, that whiskers and mustaches are returning in vogue. The board, say London barbers, stands out more than ever as the true badge of masculinity, and the vogue of the clean shaven male is on the decline.

The prediction has all the ear-marks of propaganda, for emancipated masculinity hardly will go back of its own accord to the old days pictured in the advertising of a contemporary shaving soap manufacturer. Whiskers are a bother, unsanitary, abhorrent to the ladies and uncomfortable, and even should the Prince of Wales himself hide his presentable features behind a shrubbery fringe, the rest of mankind would be loath to follow.

Aside from the sanitary aspects, however, the average man, despite his grumbling, looks forward to the morning shave. There is something ritual istic about the process, something pleasing to the eye in a keen-edged razor and the white lather or cream. Shaving constitutes an escape from the commonplace and an opportunity to persist in the hopeless task of trying to improve the face that nature made. A shave is always soothing and refreshing but only those whose customary debeathering has been postponed forty-eight hours or longer fully appreciate the benevolence of a good shave. The annoyance of shaving is a small price to pay for the pleasant sensations that follow.

A REMARKABLE COW

A breeder near Peterboro has a pure-bred Holstein cow that has been named the champion milk producer. In a test that extended over 305 days this cow gave an average of 62 pounds of milk per day that tested well up in butter fat.

That is a remarkable record, and one that shows what progress is being made in the development of milk-producing herds.

The generally accepted basis is that a quart of milk is 2.2 1-2 pounds; that may not be the exact figure drawn out to a decimal, but milk is often bought and sold on that basis. That means that the Peterboro cow gave on an average of a little over 25 quarts per day over the period of the test. The average cow that will give 40 pounds a day, or 18 quarts, is considered to be paying her way fairly well, and there are a number that will not come up to figure. So this champion cow seems to be just about 44 per cent. above a good many milkers in the country.

That Peterboro record would be a good thing to paste up in the cow stable. It would be a reminder to the men who are doing the work and paying the bills what can be accomplished by careful breeding and proper attention to details.

A caddie who had been caught attempting to steal a ball on the course was reported to the caddie master, the official who had a soft heart, took the culprit to task.

"You must have known it was dishonest to steal," he said, "and, in any case, didn't your conscience tell you that the man was looking?"

Doctor: "As I said, you've just regained consciousness after the crash. I'm Dr. Peter, and—"

Victim: "Oh! for a second you gave me a shock. I thought you said you were St. Peter."

Auntie did not know that Lonny had just received a spanking—so when she found him crying behind the house, she said kindly:

"My dear, what is the matter? Is there anything I can do for you?"

"No," was the tearful response, "it's all been done."

THE PASSING YEARS

(From The Intelligencer of this day 30 years ago)

There will be a partial eclipse of the moon to-night. The moon will rise partially eclipsed at 7.35 p.m.

On Wednesday morning a fire occurred in the residence of Mrs. A. T. Warrington,of this city, and on the afternoon previous a fire took place in the residence of Mrs. Warrington, Peterborough.

Mrs. R. B. Bell, after passing through a dangerous illness is convalescing steadily.

Miss Ethel Corman, Charles St. entertained a number of young friends last evening.

Mr. Gilbert Parker and his wife left England to-day for Marseilles and thence they will make a three months' tour of the continent.

A letter mailed from Grand Canyon, Arizona, on the south rim of the Grand canyon, and addressed to Bridge Angel Point, on the north rim, less than 11 miles away by airplane, has to travel 1,427 miles by train and auto to reach its destination.

Newsy Neighborhood Notes

CONDITION IMPROVED

Port Hope, Jan. 7.—The condition of John Burgess, sixteen year old Port Hope boy who on Thursday was accidentally shot in the lung by his five-year old brother was greatly improved and the doctors in attendance have decided it will not be necessary to perform an operation. The bullet will remain in the boy's body unless infection develops which would necessitate its removal. The boy will be able to leave the hospital in a week or so, it is expected.

FACTORY SOLD

Stirling, Jan. 7.—The Stirling Cheese and Butter Company factory has been sold, the deal being put through last Saturday. The new owners are Munro Bros., of Bannockburn and Bancroft, and the price paid was $20,000. Mr. J. S. Marshall, the former proprietor, has returned a half interest in the business and will continue to reside in Stirling for a year at least.

FILMS SHOWN

Peterboro, Jan. 7.—Through the courtesy of the management of the local office of the Quinte Oats Company, a moving picture of the World's Poultry Congress, which took place in Ottawa last July, will be shown, free of charge, to all those attending the Poultry Show. The Quinte Oats Company will also run off three or four reels, showing the manufacturing process of their Ful-O-Pep feeds.

This picture should prove very interesting as all those will be present, as it will show them clearly, how to feed and house their poultry properly in order to insure the very best results.

COMBINES BUSINESS WITH SANTA CLAUS

Toronto, Ont.—One Toronto man with keen business acumen has realized the possibilities of being a proxy for old St. Nicholas and has become a commercial Santa Claus with the inception of gaining satisfied customers. Aligned in the conventional outfit, he visits the homes where he has been requested to call and plays the part of the mystic visitor so dear to the heart of every boy and girl. He starts his calls shortly after midnight on Christmas morning, and is busy most of the day. He visits rich people and people not so rich, and he slips into the children's rooms, where he fills their stockings. And sometimes they are awakened by his step. In their amazement they do not utter a sound, and in the morning they declare they saw him with their own eyes.

The man who becomes St. Nicholas for a day believes he is hired because people want to make the Saint as real as possible to their children. He has been in the business for five years, and has made it financially successful. He charges a definite fee for his calls, but of course the presents are provided by the customers. His business has grown so that he now has three assistants, col lege students, who also travel about in motor cars, dressed up as Saint Claus to spread happiness in many a Toronto home.

STIRLING'S SEXTETTE OPENS WITH A WIN

Stirling, Jan. 7.— Stirling's hockey team opened the season with a win over the Frankford team here by a score of 5-1.

It was a shriller from the first gong, Frankford players, after defeating Orland on Monday night in their own rink, by the prowess of Tweed's sextette, came to Stirling with one thought only—a sure win. However the Red and Whites were no snap and played the best combination game witnessed here for some time. Lack of combination was the chief cause of the visitors' defeat. It must not be concluded though, that Frankford has a weak team, for such is not the case. The players are husky and fast but lack proper seasoning and no doubt ere the season has passed into oblivion will have notched a few victories.

Children in Bradford, England, have been prohibited from sitting close to the screen in moving picture theatres, because of the belief that this is a cause of eye strain and nearsightedness.

Both Games Closely Contested—Veterans Turn Out

ICE SOFT

Large Attendance Features Double-Header In City Loop

Hockey fans were more than delighted with the two games in the City League last night and a fine crowd turned out for the double-header in which the Y's Men last year's champions smothered the smart Imperial Oil team by a score of 3-0 while in the night-cap affair Paul Hibbard's Quinte Electricians took the measure of the fast traveling Alemite aggregation on a 3-2 count. Both games were thrillers and like the fact that the ice was soft would have been much faster.

The boys are out hot-foot after the beautiful silver trophy donated by W. C. Leybourne for the winners of the city league, a collection of ex-intermediate stars mingled with the younger stars and while the old boys had the experience the condition of the youthful players had a great deal to do with the ultimate result. The ice was soft and the going was hard and had it's telling effect on the boys, some of whom were having their first whirl on the blades. Contrary to the usual games on soft ice last night's tilts were cleanly-played and "Nap" Guyer had the boys well in hand a tall stages. He allowed some things to go unnoticed but to check up too closely would have slowed the games up considerably.

Veterans Again

The crowds present on both evenings have been more than delighted with the head of hockey coming up and they will be given another taste of the real article when the Belleville veterans of the Point Anne team will make their initial bow in the tilt with the Moose. The Point Anne team are regarded to be a fast outfit with Alex Weir, "Josh" Maracle, Bill Strachan, Glenn Green and other packsters who have played with the cement-mixers in past seasons In the second game the Intelligencer will stack up against the Quinte Electricians who have won their first start and will make a big endeavour to take the wind out of their sails at the arena on Monday night.

Y's Men 2: Imperial Oil 0.

The Y's Men last year's champions have a strong squad again this year and will create a big stir in Group B. They have lost Stan Horne in goal but the defence has been bolstered by the addition of Bill Pinkie, old intermediate Gold Medal star who formerly guarded the nets for Peterboro Normal School although only a midget type. Old Time Blind Hawks will endeavour to take the wind out of their sails at the arena on Monday night.

HOPE IN HATE, BUT NOT INDIFFERENCE

By LOUIS E. BISCH

The recognition of opposites is spoken of in psychology as "ambivalence." We could not conceive of a valley if we did not also understand what a mountain means; or could we appreciate the meaning of mountain unless we also appreciated the meaning of valley.

We find the same relationship between opposites existing in many other mental processes. Thick suggests thin, high suggests low; beautiful suggests ugly; long suggests short; happy, sad; white, black, etc., etc.

This principle of ambivalence may not impress you as very interesting nor practical. Ambivalence does, nevertheless, explain some very curious emotional states and a knowledge of how they work can be used for self-help. Have you ever observed how the most intimate friends will quarrel most bitterly?

Have you noticed when you love a person and then, for some reason or other, have a falling out with that person, that your former love tends to turn to positive hate?

By the same token—ambivalence—if you actually dislike a person intensely, there is every possibility that you might in the end become extremely fond of him.

Women will often tell you that the men they afterwards fell in love with first filled them with intense dislike in the beginning. Indeed, a suitor should never be discouraged if the object of his adoring affection loses her temper and shows him the door.

The very fact that the young lady gets angry shows that the young man possesses the power to arouse her. And the power to annoy her carries with it the ambivalent probability that the power may make her love him.

If a woman really does not care a snap about a man he will be unable to arouse her interest.

But if he makes her angry or otherwise annoys her, then interest is present, and that interest may switch from dislike to its ambivalent like.

Hate makes always suspect people, therefore, when they tell you how much they hate somebody else and never be surprised, either, if the one they say they hate so much is afterwards talked about as if he were the most wonderful thing in the world.

It is believed that opposite thoughts and emotions are somehow situated close together in the brain. Nobody, of course, has ever seen a thought or emotion; Scientists have not yet been able to pin either of a glass slide for microscopic study.

This business of ambivalence still presents puzzling features. But of one fact you may be certain, and that is the strong tendency on the part of everyone to completely reverse oneself so far as feeling toward others is concerned.

Ambivalence also explains, in a way why it is that with the best intentions, we often think sordid and shaming thoughts when we are trying to be hard to think of beautiful and uplifting ones.

The sordid and the beautiful probably lie close together in the mind and the attention may as easily be directed to one as the other.

People sometimes worry because of such thoughts. It makes them feel ashamed, abased. They don't realize that all people are subject to similar experiences.

Ambivalence is a most enlightening principle. Think about it. Its understanding will help you in more ways than one.

CHAPTER 26.

ANOTHER LIVELY GHOST

It was nearing dusk of a spring afternoon when a rather shabby, middle-aged man, with a bald head and a cheerful red nose of bulbous contour, climbed the impressive steps of the Latham house and pressed the electric bell.

The butler opened the door and, after a brief survey of the caller, said sergenly:

"The tradesmen's entrance is in the rear."

"I came to see Mr. Latham," said the little man meekly. "I'm a—er—agent of relative. Brother of his late wife."

The butler looked decidedly doubtful, but he stepped aside.

Two minutes later, Lila's father rose from a comfortable chair in his study and, still, with a noticeable reservation in his heartiness:

"Well, well, so you're back again, Dan?"

"Like the bad penny, Len," nodded the visitor. "But don't you go and get alarmed. I'm not staying. Leaving tonight with some pals on my way west."

Latham motioned him to a chair.

"Why deprive the attention of the joy of your presence, Dan?"

His guest made a wry face.

"You always could say mean things in the nicest way, Len," he remarked. "Well, the truth pf it is that for the good of my health, or maybe of my neck, the Argentine will have to do without me until certain—er—things blow over and are forgotten."

"In trouble again?" Latham made a grimace. "It must be something pretty raw, if you've had to come all this distance to escape the consequences."

"I never bout," said his caller modestly, looking into the contents of his glass. "Well, I just dropped in to say 'hello' and ask for the news."

"No news, except that Faith is gone —you knew that?"

"I know. I heard." The visitor's face sobered momentarily. "There was a child, wasn't there?"

"Lila," nodded Latham. "She's grown up and married."

"You dont say! That makes me feel old. Who'd she marry?"

"A very estimable young man—Her best Ware. Rich, too, I'm told—very right. Probably you knew his father in your day, when you were both members of the Hunt Club."

His caller nodded.

"Steve Ware. He's dead."

"I'd like to see Lila," said Dan suddenly.

Latham frowned; then, after a moment:

"Are you think it wise—for her sake?"

"I worshipped her mother," insisted the other stubbornly. "Faith used to by me when I got into—er—trouble."

"Lila knows nothing of your trouble," said Latham quickly. "She thinks you went to South America to make your fortune. We've always talked of you as if—as if everything was all right."

"Father thinks I have stood to meet my pals. I've a chance for a good thing, Len—real, in Oregon. All I need is a little capital." He paused hopefully.

"Glad to have seen you, Dan," said his brother-in-law suavely. "Drop in again some time when you're in this part of the country."

Dan sighed resignedly.

"I rather thought you wouldn't," he said. "Anyway there was no harm trying. So long, Len."

The butler showed him out.

Half an hour later, the hall porter at the Hunt Club sent a page to Ware, who was playing a last rubber of bridge in the card-room before starting for home and Lila.

"There is a person asking to see you, sir. He claims that he was a personal friend of your late father, but, as there would seem to be some doubt—"

"I'll come.' Herebert was very punctilious about all obligations of the past, as well as the present.

He found a red-nosed, bald-headed man sitting placidly in a reception-room, surveying his surroundings with cheerful interest.

"Not changed a mite," he was murmuring. "Might have been only yesterday that I was a member here."

At the sight of Herbert's attended ed face, he got up and held out a stub by hand.

"You're Steve Ware's son and Lila's husband. I'm her Uncle Dan from South America."

WHAT'S NEW

(From a Woman's Standpoint)

The use of wool jersey for the coat combined with silk frock in ensemble styling is promoted by the early spring styles presented by a leading New York shop.

The spring is to bring wool shantung silk shantung and wool crepe in the soft delicate chinas, silk will come back into the spotlight, and their openings will take place at Palm Beach.

The new dresses do away with collars as much as possible, yet they find a way to retain the flattering touch of white or color which usually marks even the simplest dress by tucking crepe de chine or pique inside the neck line of the dress and making a girt of it.

Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

If you wish to keep cheese fresh for some time, cover it with a thin coating of paraffin. When ready to serve remove the paraffin.

When sheets become thin, cut them up and make pillow-cases. One sheet makes four pillow-cases.

Squaring the Circle of the Late Modes

The hypothenuse of aves and triangles no longer freaks Jane for they remind her of her new down which has geometric trimming bands. One of these triangles starts at the bodice and points to meet the other which is pointing down to make the V neck. A pair of matelassées wove so simple! And circular skirts are after all nothing more than aves. This little frock made in a light weight and would be very good for school with the trimming bands of a lighter or darker shade of the same color. For vacations and weekends either silk crepe or crepe de chine with bands of velvet or the same material in a lighter or darker shade makes a lovely combination. It is also well adapted to the use of reversible satin or silk crepe. (Copyright, 1927, by Associated Newspapers.)

Yesterday being the Feast of the Epiphany or Little Christmas, was kept as a holyday at St. Michael's Church and there were three masses in the morning, it was also a holiday for the pupils of St. Michael's Academy.

LOOK FOR STOLEN CAR

The local police were in receipt of a message from Oshawa stating that a new license number 54-993 had been stolen in the motor city. The Belleville authorities were instructed to watch the look-out for the Stolen car. The message stated that it was an Oakland sedan, maroon color with a tan top. Serial number 8046 and motor number 176-519.

FOUR MORE BODIES TAKEN FROM S.4

Provincetown, Mass., Jan. 7.—Three bodies of four more members of the crew o the submarine S-4 were taken from the engine-roo mcompartment of the sunken vessel this morning, it was announced this afternoon.

Two of the bodies were found huddled beneath a tarpaulin close to where one of the three bodies removed Wednesday was discovered. The other two found today, were near-by, and the divers expressed the opinion that the four men were lying together in this floor before the heavy canvas in an effort to keep warm when death overtook them.

MRS. DEROCHE IS HEAD OF W.M.S

Bridge Street United Church Ladies, Elect Officers For New Year

The annual meeting o fthe Bridge St. W. M. S. was held at three o'clock on Friday afternoon in the church parlors with Mrs. Deroche presiding.

After the devotional exercises the monthly reports of the secretary and treasurer were read and adopted. A New Year's message, written by Mrs. Mercy E. McClelland, was read by Mrs. Malott. This message was a peron of thanksgiving for the blessings of the year ended, a call to fidelity, hope, pray er and faith for the year that lies before us "white as a great window covered with its spotless beauty of newly-fallen snow."

A discussion on the best plan of work for the ensuing year, indicated an enthusiastic interest in the work of the society and revealed latent possibilities that were encouraging.

Mrs. C. W. Bishop, Mrs. Harry Walker and Mrs. S. Ketcheson were appointed as delegates to the Presbyterial meeting which is to be held on the last of January. The recording-secretary, corresponding secretary, secretary of supplies of the various departments of work gave their annual reports. Mrs. Flynn followed with an earnest prayer.

The report of the nominating committee was read by Mrs. Baker which resulted in the election of the following officers for the ensuing year:—

Hon. President—Mrs. M. Day.
President—Mrs. Geo. Deroche.
First Vice-Pres.—Mrs. C. W. Bishop.
Second Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Geo. Stevens.
Third Vice-Pres.—Mrs. H. Ackerman.

CLOSING QUOTATIONS

STANDARD MINING EXCHANGE

Furnished by Dwyer & Gibson & Company, per Jamieson Bone, Local Manager.

The market today was an exceedingly quiet one except in a few specialties and these monopolized the board. Bidgood was heavily traded in as usual around $1.29. Howey was strong and up 10c from yesterday's close. Jackson was moderately active around 80c. International Nickel sold up to 33½. This is phenominal when you think of it selling at 35¾ last May and 40¾ last March. However, this performance is likely to be duplicated by some of the newcomers that are starting out in a big way. Mining Corporation was up 20c to $4.50 and quite active. Wright Hargreaves continues to be picked up in quantities around $6.85. Nothing definite yet announced on the Flin Flon financing, the market awaiting developments.

BY-LAW NO.

A BY-LAW TO CHANGE THE NAME OF "WHARF STREET" IN THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE.

Passed the .... day of ..... A.D. 192.

WHEREAS, the residents of Foster Ward have presented a Petition to the Municipal Council, requesting a change in the name of Wharf Street in the City of Belleville to St. Paul Street, AND WHEREAS, it is deemed expedient for various reasons to change the name of Wharf Street in the City of Belleville.

THEREFORE the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville ENACTS as follows:—

1. THAT the name of "Wharf Street" which Street extends Easterly from Front Street to the intersection of South Foster Avenue in the said City, is hereby changed to St. Paul Street, by which latter name it will for the future be known, the reason for the change being that the present name "Wharf Street" is a misnomer by reason of not leading to the wharf and also to St. Paul is the name of a very old Church located on said Street and also so the change is desired by the property owners and the inhabitants who reside along the said street and also desired by the citizens generally.

2. THAT this By-law shall come into force and take effect from the date of the registration of the Certificate of the County Judge of the County of Hastings approving of the same and not before.

Mayor.

.....
Clerk.

Read a first time in open Council, January 3rd, A.D., 1928.

J. Wilfred Holmes,
City Clerk.

IN THE MATTER OF the change of the name of Wharf Street in the City of Belleville to St. Paul Street.

Before His Honour J. F. Wills Judge of the County of Hastings.

APPOINTMENT.

UPON THE APPLICATION of the Municipality of the City of Belleville and upon reading the foregoing By-law, pursuant to the Statutes in that behalf.

I appoint Tuesday the 7th day of February 1928, at the hour of 11 o'clock in the forenoon at my Chambers at the Court House, Belleville, for considering the said By-Law and for hearing the advocates of the change and also those who may deem themselves aggrieved thereby and may desire to be heard.

Dated at my Chambers at the Court House in the City of Belleville this 4th day of January A.D. 1928.

J. F. Wills,
Judge.

News Of Movies

BELLE THEATRE

Glamorous — ironical — elemental! Such are the qualities of Lestrice Joy's current starring picture, "Vanity," according to Douglas Z. Doty, who wrote the screen story for Lestrice Joy's new picture. Mr. Doty is a recognized authority of fiction values. Having been under contract with the DeMille-Metropolitan studios for two years he is a past master of screen technique, and Joy's opinion carries weight.

"It has the biggest situation with which I have ever dealt in motion picture work," he says, "and under the able direction of Donald Crisp it has been masterfully brought to the screen."

In "Vanity," which comes to the Belle Theatre on Monday, the same trio which was responsible for the success of "Nobody's Widow" again was in operation. Lestrice Joy plays the starring role, Donald Crisp directed and Douglas Z. Doty wrote the story. Charles Ray and Alan Hale play highly important and featured parts in this absorbing new Cecil B. DeMille production.

REGENT THEATRE

Romance, thrills, laughter and pathos commingle in "Simple Sis" Warner Bros." delightfully humbn story of the love quest of a laundry girl. Louise Fazenda and Clyde Cook are the principals and it goes without saying that these peerless mirthmakers extract the maximum of fun from each droll situation.

The part of "Simple Sis," is perfectly suited to Miss Fazenda's unique genius: It is the first feature picture she has had for many moons, but the love interest she has for a mammoth jacket the pace of the rollicking comedy. The piece has many real thrills, too, one of the high lights being the rescue at the tenement fire in which Sis heroically rescues little Buddy, a foundling she has been mothering.

"ALIDDAN" COMING — ENGLISH PANTOMIME

This is the first real English pantomime ever to be brought across the Atlantic to Canada. Its coming is due to the enterprise of All-Canada Tours, Ltd., which brought Matheson Lang and Sir John Martin-Harvey here last year.

Complete in two acts and eleven scenes, the production boasts an exceptionally elaborate scenic equipment, there being more than forty drops in use. A pony ballet of Tiller graduates will ensure that the dancing numbers, always a strong feature in pantomime, are of the highest quality. Costumes and lighting have been careful and elaborate, complete the inventiture.

The famous legend of the miraculous lamp will be presented on a lavish scale, with a cast that includes a number of London and provincial pantomime favorites. Prominent among these will be Dave Lee, one of the best known of pantomime comedians, fresh from his triumphs in Australia and South Africa. He will play the Widow Twanke.

Bertha Russell, one of the best known and most popular of pantomime "boys" has the title-role, Lilian Davies, also principal "boy" in many London and provincial pantomimes will play Peker. Molly Molloy, of the "Hullo, Canada," revue and Sir John Martin-Harvey's company, will be seen as the Genie of the Lamp.

With music by E. Graham Dunstan's Mus. Bac. Oxon., and Noel Vincent, and book by Arthur W. Field, "Aladdin" should prove one of the most entertaining and successful theatrical attractions of the season.

SINICAL SADIE SEES

Did you get what you wanted for Christmas?

If you think women better qualified than men to pick the best candidates, look at what they marry.

Its a very odd thing
As odd as can be,
That whatever Miss T. eats
Turns into Miss T.

A physician who was having some electrical work done, came in just as the electrician's bright apprentice was winding a lot of insulating tape about a connection.

"Well," said the eminent M. D., "I bet that tape serves to cover up a lot of your mistakes."

A certain road in the states was described as "in good condition as a whole."

Sinical Sadie says perhaps William Street is all right as a number of streets.

Here's a health to you and yours;
Likewise to us and ours;
And if ever you and yours
Need help that's in our powers,
We'll do as much for you and yours
As you have done for us and ours.

A noted radio authority says that we should make our loud-speakers more decorative.

Sinical Sadie says most husbands think they spend too much on their wives as it is!

LEE'S SISTER

I disliked Lee's sister and she disliked me.
But I promised Lee gladly, for worthy was he;
"I shall marry my lover, not her, not his mother."
I boasted, "nor other relation . . .but Lee."

The years glided swiftly, for happy were we;
God save us three children, the first of the three Resembles Lee's sister . . . .So like her.
O Misery!
Did I marry Lee's sister when I married Lee?

Two Women One Health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

St. Adolphe, Manitoba.—"I was very weak and had great pains during my periods so that I could not sweep the floor. The pains were in the right side and extended to the left and then down-ward. It seemed as if the body was very heavy to bear down. It is for these troubles I took the Vegetable Compound. I saw about it in a paper and one woman praised so on to me to take it. It has helped me in every way, the pains are less, and I have more appetite. It is a pleasure to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to other women."—Mrs. J. L. Couchman, St. Adolphe, Manitoba.

WINE FOR ST. PAUL'S PREACHERS

Every year the City of London authorities present to St. Paul's Cathedral 32 small bottle of sherry—one for each Sunday morning's sermon—and if the appointed bishop or clergyman declines it other appropriate it. The custom is so old that no one seems to know the actual date of its origin. It is believed, however, that the gift was endowed by some wealthy City elder in the Middle Ages who was convinced

THE PRINCE AS A RIDER

One of the favourite quips of the Sandringham circle concerns the Prince of Wales' horsemanship. An American observer in the fox-hunting field, however, discussing the subject for once in serious vein, writes in the "American Review of Reviews":

"The Prince is, as a matter of fact, one of the boldest and pluckiest of riders in the hunting field, and always goes 'on top of the hunt,' and ready to take anything that looks jumpable standing between him and the hounds. I have seen the huntsman—of keeping with the bounds while they are sweeping on with their line.

"While the hunt galloping away, he is all for boldness and enthusiasm, and it is generally one of the half-dozen or so who lead the way out of the great crowd striving for a forward place. He is shrewd, however, simply by virtue of his nerve and dashing riding; he takes his place as one of the several hundred five-barriers, and takes his chances with the rest of them.

"The Prince rides in the style affected by most Englishmen, sitting much more upright and taking a stronger hold of his horse's mouth than do good American riders, who use the forward seat and drop their hands before the horse takes off at a jump. Accepting the English style as the technique of the country, as one must, the Prince undoubtedly accomplishes as a first-class rider, who has no more than his share of mishaps, considering the many during chances he takes. He goes strong and fast and straight, and does not care to ride any horse that does not feel the same way about it. He even insists on horses that take hard pulling to hold, then on his way to keep with them if horseflesh can possibly make the grade."

SCOTLAND STOPPED TAKING OVER ROADS

London Jan. 6.— (Canadian Press Cable)—J. S. Shortly after he, in turn, invited the millionaire to dinner, together with a distinguished company. After the last course a servant brought him a pair of boots, which he solemnly put on before the millionaire. 'Now let me after dinner to play to you.' he demanded. 'Now I ask you to mend my boots. Let Me Tell You

Use a nafety-pin instead of a bodkin when running a tape through the hem of a thin curtain.

Put a teaspoonful of bethylated spirit in to the rinsing water for white woollens and silk articles, as it imparts an attractive gloss.

Belts of lemon will remove fresh ink stains. Leave in the solution for a few minutes, then rinse in cold water.

When making Mustard—If mustard is made with milk instead of water it will prevent the spoon from turning black. Of course, mustard made in this way will not keep very long.

To Freshen-up Velvet—Velvet garments in constant use are greatly improved by general steaming from time to time, followed by smoothing with a velvet-covered book or what not. Unless this simple and inexpensive but practical means of doing this is to hang the garment up in the bathroom when this is very full of steam. The improvement, both in color and texture, is very marked, and the garment takes on a new lease of life.

To Polish Nickel—The rule for cleaning nickel is simple. While the nickel surface is still bright, go over it with a cloth, using very fine tooth soap. After that the nickel must be wiped to absolutely perfect dryness, or the result will be streaked and unsightly. If a nickel surface has become cloudy go over it with a dilute solution. A solution of one teaspoonful of ammon in a soap powder to two pints of hot water and again wipe thoroughly dry.

Bran Baths—Bran baths are excellent for the skin. Make a cheesecloth bag about five inches square and fill it three-quarters full of ordinary bran and then cloth is filled with water, drop in the bag. Move it about and squeeze it well. Take out the bag, and keep for use another day. Be careful not to have the bath water too hot. By using warm, not hot water, you will produced a milky fluid which is soothing and restful, and also has a whitening effect on the skin. Put a handful of bran with sweet-scented substances and powdered orris root, or sachet powder, a truly luxurious bath is obtained. Another beauty bath is provided by the use of a cheesecloth bag filled with almond meal and the shavings of castile soap.

When cooking by gas, utilise all the space when the oven is in use and you may be partly. If not entirely, cook:d for the next day.

CARE OF SPONGES

Sponges become hard and shrink if put into very hot water, whereas if they should be soaked for some days in rain water, and squeezed frequently to rid them of any grit, they become cleaning solution is made with an ounce of carbonate of lime added to a pint of warm soft hot water. The sponge is felt to soak in this for a day, then thoroughly rinsed in cold clear water.

WINTER PRECAUTIONS FOR MIDDLE-AGED

As the winter closes in there is a general lowering of vitality which reacts on young and old alike, and it's correction is a real need which has to be met. The winter months especially are full of danger to middle-aged men and women—dangers which can be avoided and averted if only folk will be more careful and foresight.

The trouble is that so many people try to set aside the knowledge they are not getting any younger; they think that all they can cure life on much the same line as at twenty-and-twenty-in many cases their diets greatly responsible for their ill health. It is true that they are old as they are, and if they are to use the latter fact to their unexplored—especially when the year's pendulum swings back towards winter.

Medical statisticians say that middle-aged men and women are far more susceptible to winter ailments than are younger people; they suffer more from the change of a season, and the chilly weather has a far more disastrous effect upon them; and many of them "go under" a greater or far it or not!

Poems Old And New

A WINTER SONG

Up in the morning's no' for me,
Up in the morning early;
When a' the hills are cover'd wi' snaw
I'm sure it's winter fairly.

Could blaws the wind frae east to west,
The drift is driving sairly;
Sae loud and shrill's I hear the blast,
I'm sure it's winter fairly.

The birds sit chittering in the thorn,
A' day they fare but sparely;
And lang's the night frae e'en to morn;
I'm sure it's winter fairly.

—Burns.

THE BEST THINGS

The world is old, but the heart is young
And its sweetest songs are yet unsung;
Earth's richest treasures are yet unmined;
Best battles are yet unfought.

Down deep in earth in the blackened soil—
Shut out from the light does the miner toil;
But, see, at the sound of each rising blow,
How factories hum and the hearth-fires glow.

A black-browed man in an humble room
Sits patiently tending an ancient loom;
But, see, from his hand what hues arise,
O tapestry rich in Eastern dyes!

The farmer awakes with the earliest light,
And toils in his fields from morn till night
No king could a worthier service yield,

"For even the king is served from the field."

Then, work and win! for the world is wide,
And its doors will open on every side;
Look out on the path with vain regret,
For "the best things haven't happened yet."

BEGGAR'S TASTE

By E. Leslie Spaulding

One day as I was walking
Down the old Kent Road,
I met a little beggar man
Who bore a heavy load.

He had a hump upon his back,
He dragged a withered leg,
One eye was out, one hand was gone,
What could he do but beg?

I felt so sorry for him
That I gave him half a crown,
I said, "Where are you going, mate?
Said he, "To London Town."

"And when you get to London,
What are you going to do?"
Says he, "Why, I'll get a shilling
With dorrellers like you."

"Oh, when I get to London,
I'll find a vacant seat
In front o' Princes Theatre
At top o' Endel street.

"And when the day is over,
And my 'at is full o' pence,
Rain o' the city's pity
In 'er benevolence.

Why then I'll go to Kemble's 'End
And down a glass o' gin,
The landlord 'e'll say, 'Cheerio,
There, Arry, where you bin?'

"Its little pleasure such as me
Get out o' life . . . . . I cling
'Cause liquor tastes as good to me
As it does to the King!"

CREW READY TO MAN DESTROYER

Will Be Brought To Canada On The Shortest Notice

Ottawa.—Seventy-three naval ratings, the personnel of H.M.C.S. Patriot, are in readiness at the Halifax naval barracks in call for England at shortest notice in order to take over one of the torpedo-boat destroyers, either the Torbay or be Torrador, being loaned to the Canadian Government as a replacement pending the construction of the two new naval boats contemplated by this county. It had been expected, that the crew would call over the week-end on the Red Star Liner Pennland, but the Department of National Defence here has not yet received word from the Imperial naval outhorities regarding the quartering of the men at Portsmouth. Should the Patriot's crew not travel on that liner, it is probable that they will sail on January 8 on the Lapland.

It has not been decided yet which of the two replacement ships will come to Canada first, everything depending on which one is ready when the Canadian seamen arrive in England. At all events the destroyer will immediately go into commission on the Halifax station. It was inducted at departmental headquarters here, today, that there is no immediate hurry with regard to the Patrician, now at Esquimalt, since the destroyer on the Pacific station is in better condition than the Patriot.

The Torbay and Torrador were in reserve at Portsmouth and were exam ined last summer by Commodore Walter Hose, director of Canadian naval services. Flight vessels of the home class are on the China station, Australia has five, and one is in the Mediterranean. They are slightly larger than the Patriot and their ship's company total over 90, all ranks and ratings.

Have You taken your Nerve Food today?

CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

ACIDS MAKE KIDNEYS HURT

Drink Water Freely and Often, and if Bladder Bothers Take Salts

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because we often eat too much rich food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys attempt to filter out; they become tired from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief day or three times during the night: If you suffer with skin headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or if you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, begin drinking lots of good soft water and get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

NEW ELEVATOR FOR ST. JOHN

2,000,000 Bushels Capacity Says Harbour Commission President

St. John, N.B.—Further considération of plans for increased facilities in St. John Harbor during the coming year was given at a meeting of the St. John Harbor Commission held this afternoon, announces Chairman, Hon. Walter E. Foster, chairman, following the session.

This included the site for the proposed new 2,000,000 bushel grain elevator for West St. John.

The plans for this large new plant, Hon. Dr. Foster said, were now in process of preparation, and would go forward to Ottawa soon after the first of the year. The proposed elevator he said, would be much larger than those now in operation at this port.

Considering the possibilities of developing an import trade in Argentina corn, demonstrated by the heavy business in this line during last summer it was considered probable that a "marine arm" would be added, said Hon. Foster.

The question of providing adequate accommodation for the importers of fertiliser was also before hte commission, Hon. Dr. Foster stated. It was decided to turn over the cattle shed at West St. John for the storage of fertiliser. This business had increased considerably of late years, Hon. Dr. Foster said, and it was expected that some 100,000 bushels of fertiliser would be brought to St. John, mostly from the United States, during this season.

REBUKES WOMEN FOR NOT ATTENDING

Toronto, Ont.—A mother writing to a women's page editor says: "In our school section women never attend the annual school meeting. There are only get laughed at and talked about, should you attend," said friend husband. Yet we are more interested in our children's welfare than any other section in this matter? Can any one suggest a remedy?

The editor says, in reply: "Looking after the children at home is not enough, nowadays. The really conscientious mothers must devote them into their outside activities and see that their needs are catered to under rigid and wholesome conditions. They may say, 'Oh, their fathers will look after that.' But do they really believe that fathers, as a whole, will be as observant and as exacting as the mothers where the children's welfare is concerned?"

23 SPECIES OF BIRD NEAR OUR CAPITAL

Ottawa, Ont. — The Ottawa Field Naturalists' club in their annual bird census recently found 2,201 birds, of 23 different kinds in the vicinity of the capital, although wintry conditions pre vailed. The weather was severe, however, and this enabled the naturalists to make a census of such a large num ber of birds.

The members of the club were particularly pleased at observing some birds not usually seen in the vicinity of Ottawa. Among these were white-winged crossbills, an Arctic three-toed woodpecker, and a hudsonia chickadee. After dark an observer saw a large owl flying about in the starlight.

On the open stretches of water on the Ottawa River and the Rideau River 54 ducks, 50 of them being whistlers, were seen. There were hundreds of crows and starlings south of the city, besides the usual number of blue-jays, chickadees, snow buntings and other birds more or less common.

54 NOVELS BY AGE OF SEVENTY-FOUR

Chicago—At 74 Opie Read has published his fiftieth novel and has started to write his fifty-first.

"The Cold Cauze Veil" is a "golden anniversary" novel for Read, who is setting a pace for productivity among modern authors. His first novel as was published 40 years ago.

Cold, the sport Read says best, furn ishes the background for "The Cold Cauze Veil." Read shoots in the eighties and hardly a day passes that he does not play 36 holes. There are many colorful tales about the writer, who has lived here for 30 years, but none as interesting as the story of the "$50,000 Poker Game."

Years ago Read was playing cards in the old Chicago Press Club. He went broke and asked a book publisher who was watching the play, for a loan of $700. The latter agreed on condition that Read obligate himself to write a novel for him. The loan as full payment for it.

Read did. The novel earned the publisher $250,000 and would have netted the author more than $50,000 royalties in the regular way.

LONDON SUFFERED NIGHT AT DAYTIME

London, Eng.—London's "dark night" on the morning of Nov. 29 was due to a somewhat unusual phase of the notorious fog that frequently settles down on the great metropolis in Nov ember. The fog on this particular day is thus described by the Daily News:

"Night fell suddenly over London at 10 o'clock in the morning. Lamps were hurriedly lighted in shops and streets and in the places where men were taking what had happened. There was intense ground fog in the city, but up above daylight was blotted out. Throughout the early morning there had been traces of fog in nearly all the outlying districts, especially in North London, where conditions were bad.

PILOT CHART AS AVIATORS' GUIDE

U. S. Hydrographic Office Issues Survey Of Upper Air

Washington.—Transatlantic birdmen, who, in a mad rush to be the first to fly over the ocean wastes in 1928, might select January as their starting time, will have to follow an inverted Lindbergh course if they hope to avoid ice, cold winds, fog, snow, sleet and the other anti-Arctic elements.

In its first pilot chart of the upper air of the north Atlantic, prepared as a guide for aviators, the United States Hydrographic Office said today that the northernmost route which appeared practicable for a transatlantic flight in January was from New York to Bermuda, from there to the Azores and thence to Portland Bill, England.

The hydrographic experts will appear every month as an outgrowth of the interest aroused in aviation by 1927 flights. After the next few months come around, studies will be made to determine the earliest time when a flight from New York to Europe over the greater circle or other routes is practicable.

The central and longest leg of the inverted great circle course is between Bermuda and the Azores, where a flier would have almost even air temperatures of sixty degrees all the way. From New York to Bermuda the temperature range would be between 32 and 60, and the worst conditions would be found close to the American coast, affecting flight "but a few hours on an average

"Stormy Petrel" Creates Discussion In Great Britain

Toronto, Ont.—An article entitled "Mr. Churchill as Bookman" has been contributed to the 'Mail and Empire by "C.M.S." in part as follows:

If a vote were taken to determine the most talked of person in British political life today, I am sure that, if not leading, then, among the first five, would be the name of that "stormy petrel" of British politics, the present Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Winston S. Churchill. "L'Enfant terrible" has long blasoned from his banner, and how deliberately and with what an extraordinary devotion he has lived up to it. Almost every office in the Cabinet has been his, except that of Prime Minister, and his designs upon it may be readily imagined. He has served his own party and fought with the Spaniards in Cuba, and held a commission in the South African light Horse. He has seen fire on four continents and smelled powder in three; has seen more wars than any one of his age, and written several books.

During part of the South African war he was a special war correspondent for a famous London daily, he was captured by the Boers, escaped from prison, and through an account of this escapade in a book which he wrote, he made his first appearance before the rabled back to his London paper—be became a celebrity of the first order, and was one of the youngest members elected in the famous Khaki election of 1900 to the British House of Commons.

All of which leads up to considération of the many-sided Mr. Churchill from a new angle—namely, his great love for books. It is said that the library of his home near Westerham contains one of the most varied as well as valuable collections of books in the possession of any book-lover, Modern fiction, French, English, the Greek and Latin classics, pandering looking books on philosophy, memoirs, histories, rounds editions of the poets and dramatists, in fact all and every branch of the author's art is here with a faithful representation. Furthermore, it is said, that he has read them all. Not possibly as you and I read a newspaper, but he has confided to a friend the astounding fact that he can comfortably digest the contents of an average book in the limited space of one hour.

BAYER ASPIRIN

The whole world knows Aspirin as an effective antidote for pain. But it is important to know that there is only one genuine Aspirin. The name Bayer is on every tablet, and on the box. If the name Bayer appears, it's genuine; and if it doesn't it is not! Headaches are dispelled by Aspirin. So are colds, and the pain that goes with them; even neuralgia, neuritis, and rheumatism promptly relieved. Get Aspirin—at any druggist—with proven directions

Physicians prescribe Aspirin; it does NOT affect the heart

Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada) indicating that the manufacture is under the control established by the Bayer Company, Limited, Manufacturers of Salicylicacid. Aspirin is the Bayer manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid. Aspirin is stamped with the Bayer Cross Trademark.

Cook's Regulating Compound

It is recommended when a dry-headed cough is driving the sufferer nearly frantic, and protects the lungs, bringing on the relieving cough, by replacing the dry, irritating cough with a loose, healthy one. PRICES RISE IN HOCKEY CIRCLES

Yankies Pay Fabulous Sums For Canadian Ice Stars

Chicago—On the heels of the mounting popularity of professional hockey in the United States, "every hunting" in Canada for capable skaters and stick wielders is likely to become a somewhat overcrowded business in the next few years.

Yank clubowners or their scouts have already made many an excursion into what they term "the newth" in quest of wingers, defense men and goal guardians, either embryonic or fully developed. Their methods are patterned along the lines of those used by major league baseball clubs.

Canada is positively the sole source of supply of hockey players at the present time, although a few are developed in Minnesota. The demand for the higher class performers, contingent upon the inclusion of Detroit, Boston, Pittsburgh, New York and Chicago in the National Hockey League, has diminished the supply to such an extent that prices this year are virtually double those of last season. The magnates now pay from $3,000 for likely youngsters to $40,000 for a star.

Chicago Black Hawks, for example sold George Hay and "Pusc" Traub to Detroit at the close of the 1926-27 season for $15,000, and would be glad to pay $20,000 to get Hay back now. Howie Morenz of Les Canadiens is rated to be worth $50,000. Burch of the Americans, $35,000; Dick Irwin of the Hawks, $30,000; Frederickson of the Boston Bruins, $40,000, and so forth.

Player values is another story, but it does not require any large amount of perspicacity to realize that the Canadian clubowners who exercise a little forethought in the matter of signing up promising young men, will make a lot of money by retailing them to American hockey operators in the next few years. Plenty of this "retailing" has occurred already and there are numerous cases of the American buyers being "gold bricked."

If Canadian hockey men think, how ever, that the magnates on this side of the border are not alive to the necessity of ensuring a future player supply, they are mistaken. Most of the American clubowners have a file of Canadian minor league players, from Vancouver to Halifax. They are keeping in touch with games in Regina, Sask., Winnipeg, Man., Cobalt, Hamilton and other Ontario points as well as minor leaguers in Quebec.

The French-Canadian player, who usually display the dash and flair for the spectacular, is at a premium in the American hockey market. Ask any American fan who he'd rather see play than any of the stars and the prompt reply will be "Aurel Joliat." They pack the rinks on this side when Joliat performs.

It must be borne in mind that a large proportion of the players on National Hockey League teams are in the old-timer class, have passed their prime and must be replaced in the next few seasons. This is the opportunity for Canada's ambitious exponents of the winter sport to attain fame and wealth abroad.

WOMEN POLICE DESIRE RIGHTS

Want To Be On Equal Status With Male Cops

London, Eng.—Commandant Mary Allen, head of the unofficial police known as the Women's Auxiliary Corps, is emphatic that the Corps should receive the same status as the regular police. She resents the tendency which she alleges is revealed by the Metropolitan Police Authority to make her Corps into a body of mere social rescue workers, which is the last thing they want.

"I could tell you," says Miss Allen, "how during the war I was called upon to settle a street fight. From the physical point we have nothing to fear, either from men or women. During the war period I personally arrested so many men that I never thought any thing about it at all."

Nowadays there is only a very small section of women police attached to the Metropolitan Force. Chief Constables in other parts of the country have for the most part revealed a distinct inclination to enroll women police, believing that they are unable to perform services which cannot equally be done by men.

The Metropolitan Police Commissioner has published a warning to pension ed ex-members in respect to articles appearing in the press, written by pensioners, describing in more or less sen sational style details of notorious crimes in which pensioners have had a hand in investigating. The Commissioner says he will not hesitate in such cases to recommend the application of certain powers under the Police Pension Act. This means that a pensioner who writes with regard to cases upon matters which came under his notice during his service may have his pension withdrawn. The Commissioner intimates that he does not desire to interfere with pensioners carrying on business as private detectives.

DOG RACING NOT IN GOOD FAVOR

City Councils Refuse Permission To Promoters—May Be Banned

London, January 6. — Whatever course the Government may pursue with regard to greyhound racing and the betting thereon, local authorities throughout the United Kingdom are already taking decisive measures to put an end to the craze.

The Corporation of London has instituted legal action to restrain the trustees of Crystal Palace from utilising the grounds for greyhound racing, and the trustees of Alexandra Palace have flatly refused a tempting offer from semi-private promoters for the use of the Palace property for racing purposes.

The Corporation of Swansea, Wales, has refused permission for the use of the race track there, and the Wimbledon Corporation has taken similar action.

Sheffield City Council has petitioned the Government to act promptly in stopping the evil of gambling on dog racing and has declared that even children are being entangled therein and that shop-keepers are feeling the disastrous effect of the division of money from the regular channels of trade to the race tracks. Dog racing is already established in Sheffield.

Recently a deputation of parliamentarians, headed by J. H. Thomas, M.P., general secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, and representatives of all the parties in the House of Commons, waited on the Home Secretary, Sir William Joynson-Hicks, and urged curtailment of the growing evil of the gambling on greyhound racing. The Home Secretary assured the deputation that the Government, had an eye on the dog racing craze and would investigate it with a view to a full statement being made with regard to the matter on the reassembling of Parliament in February.

TORONTO GIRL IS NEW YORK PRINCIPAL

Toronto, Ont. — A Toronto girl is principal of the biggest of New York's big schools, one with 51 rooms. She is Miss Clara Sherwin, who is visiting her old home here. The "marble palace" is the New Yorker's abbreviated term for the $3,000,000 public school at 98 Manhattan avenue. The school is equipped for all branches of education technical and academic. It has three gymnasiums, classrooms for vocational courses, for medical and dental supervision and large lunchrooms.

The magnificent building in Harlem seems to endeavor to give to the east side children all they lack in beauty in the home. The corridors of the great school are marble and all the equipment is of the latest type.

There are 87 teachers under Miss Kleiser's direction and they carry on musical instruction, handicraft, commercial and academic work.

Be loving and you will never want for love.

CHANDLER MOTOR COMPANY IS IN STRONG POSITION

Directors In Annual Meeting Anticipate Big Year In '28

The Directors of the Chandler Cleveland Motors Corporation at a recent meeting decided to pass the usual quarterly dividend. With the approach of what promises to be the biggest year in automobile history, and fully realizing the tremendous possibilities in Chandler's progressive plans for 1928, the Directors felt it would be consistent with good judgment to conserve this money to supplement this aggressive campaign.

There has never been a time in the history of Chandler when its financial position has been stronger, the directors revealed. There is no bonded indebtedness, no bank loans, no liens or mortgages of any kind, and no obligations except current bills which are discounted every month.

The Chandler to-day is the best which has ever been built, and the Chandler dealer organization has grown more than double that of a year ago; with this splendid condition existing; it is but natural for the company to look forward to its greatest year, and the future of every Chandler dealer is pretty with its distributor and dealer organization.

Chandler Motor Sales; W. J. Green, Manager, local Chandler Dealer have enjoyed a most prosperous business since assuming the Chandler Agency in 1927, and share in the optimism of the Chandler organization regarding business prospects for 1928. Mr. Green is looking forward confidently to a great year, with Chandler offering a line of fine motor cars which represents even greater dollar for dollar value than ever before.

GOLOSHES WELL REPAIRED REAL AID TO HEALTH

Just about this time o. year those old goloshes of yours that saw service last season and which you're trying to make do through the present winter may be acquiring a few holes in the soles.

A few years ago when such was the case the overshoes were promptly replaced by a new pair. But not so nowadays. Today all one needs to do is put them in the hands of a good shoe repair man and he will re-sole them for you and make them practically good as new.

In Belleville, B. W. Brown on Campbell Street has acquired a reputation for expert neatness and rather neat repairing of all kinds. He can fix them up for you in short order for he has the equipment to do a thorough job and do it quickly for you.

Keeping the feet warm and dry is a whole lot more important at that than most people realize, and a precaution against ill health that is well worth taking; and goloshes kept in good repair will do just that for you.

So take them around to B. W. Brown on Campbell Street and have him resole them for you at a small cost.

Pointing out the comparatively small number of errors in printed matter, a printer says that it is possible to make 2,750,625 errors by transpositions alone in the sentence "To be or not to be."

FURNITURE MAY BE RE-DUCOED SAME AS YOUR CAR

Did you know that it was possible to have your furniture re-duced right here in Belleville by the same expert Duco finishers who turn out the Duco jobs on motor cars.

It is a fact and Isaac Stephenson, in the Greenleaf Bldg., on Station street, is the one who can do it for you. You know the features of this extraordinary finish—Duco, and it may be applied to your furniture as to your car—in any shade desired—making the piece of fur niture good as new.

A phone call to Isaac Stephenson in the Greenleaf Building, 1527 will bring you prompt service along this line.

REO MOTOR CAR SERVICE WORKER FACTORY TAUGHT

Complete Practical Course Given Beginners By Factory Experts

In order to carry Reo standards of efficiency and thoroughness into the service organizations of its dealer body, the Reo Motor Car Company furnishes special factory supervised training for shop men employed by Reo distributors and dealers.

Believing that dealers' shop men need broad experience in every kind of shop work, rather than specialized training in one or two phases of it, the apprentice course is planned to help mechanics fit themselves to handle many different kinds of shop problems.

Each apprentice spends at least one half day each week in the apprentice class room. Lectures are given by men selected from the various departments of the Reo factory, covering special fields. Representatives of various machine builders also give valuable assistance with lectures.

A machine shop of forty machines enables the student to learn by actual experience, under competent instructors. This shop also enables the apprentice to get experience on tool work such as is not ordinarily found on the production floors or in many service shops.

Class work consists of elementary drafting, blue print reading, and lectures on parts and assemblies of Reo vehicles. Shop work is included in such generous measure that the apprentices have every opportunity to gain proficiency in the application of class room principles.

Applicants for training are selected from names supplied by any authorized Reo distributor, and prospective students must have had at least one year of experience in sales or service work. Apprentices may complete the course in four years by serving six months every year, and are required to agree to return to the organization which sponsored their application.

Training men especially for service work on Reo vehicles was undertaken as the result of the company's desire to hold and strengthen the remarkable public confidence in Reo. In a long run, it was perceived, service relatives between owner and dealer now indicate the superiority of Reo cars, that fair-sighted dealers now consider their service investment as an investment in future business.

The apprentice training for service men therefore concerns Reo dealers and distributors fully as much as it does the apprentices who make up the classes, it was felt. Dealers are given an opportunity to put time-tried and accurate methods into use. Operations are made more valuable both to themselves and to their employers.

WELDING WIELDS BIG INFLUENCE ON BLACKSMITHS

Elevates Blacksmith To Realm Of Real Welding Engineer

Oxy-Acetylene Welding has had a greater influence on the trade of the Blacksmith than probably any other. It has broadened his scope very largely by enabling him to undertake work quite impossible by forge methods, and elevated him to another class entirely, viz., that of a Welding Engineer. For many cases blacksmithing is merely subsidiary to autogenous welding, and therefore the title of Blacksmith is something of a misnomer.

These facts are particularly noticeable in smaller towns remote from larger cities, where there are manufacturing plants, lumber mills and other industries, including farming, which use machinery to a large extent. A breakdown of a machine is then a serious problem, as it either means the production of new parts, very frequently a practical impossibility without a long delay and great expense, or obtaining the services of a local Blacksmith.

The Blacksmith, or to give him his more appropriate title, The Welding Engineer, becomes a distinct asset to his community, being, perhaps, the only man available in the district having the ability to get the broken machine operating again. As soon as he hears of the trouble he can load his Welding Outfit on to a small truck if necessary and do the repair right in the plant, at a saving to the owners impossible to estimate in monetary terms.

Messrs. Wilkinson & Son, of Unity, are nominally Blacksmiths, have sent us photographs of some of the work they undertake, which illustrate very clearly the truth of the above assertion and to whom we are indebted for the particulars which follow.

The method of repairing the Cylinder Head of a Ten Tractor was to prepare the casting first and weld with Cast Iron. The cracks extended into the valve seats which necessitated cutting new ones.

A tool holder was therefore made with one end to fit into a drill chuck with the other end the same size as the valve stem hole. A piece of square stock was used in the centre having a 3-8" x 1" slot cut to hold the tool and secured by a screw threaded into the square section of the tool holder. By making a suitable cutting tool it was a simple matter to cut a new valve seat by means of the drill. Particular attention was given welding by leaving the Cast Iron in soft condition, without blowholes or hard spots so that the perfect seats could be made, and therefore no difficulty was encountered in these respects. After resetting the valves with an ordinary valve reseater the Casting was ready for service again other jobs that have come into Messrs. Wilkinson's shops for repair, were blown, including a Cylinder block with a piece broken out of the side which was repaired by inserting a steel plate and welding in position, preheating being done to overcome expansion and construction difficulties.

Howard Bros. Pinnacle Street expert Welders are in a position to handle every welding job perfectly.

Apprentice trainin for dealers' and distributors' service men differs from the well-known Reo factory course only in the details applying especially to dealers' shop conditions.

Asellatine's & Sons, Meira St., are local dealers.

TIPS ABOUT THE PROPER CARE OF YOUR EYESIGHT
Very Important To Have Your Eyes Examined Regularly

The man who uses good judgment and common sense, never permits his eyes to wear him out, make him look old, and interfere with the efficient handing of his work.

Each day we demand from our eyes from 14 to 18 hours' continuous work. Is it any wonder that they sometimes rebel? Efficiency slips away more easily through faulty vision than from any other cause, for sometimes we only do things as they see them.

If you are a craftsman, your work will become more difficult and less reliable as your sight becomes impaired. If you are a factory worker your tasks also will become burdensome by reason of eyestrain.

The eyes can be eased up considerably by using "work glasses" that shoulder any strain while using them. Working glasses hold eyestrain at a distance and make close work less tiresome.

If you are now wearing glasses remember that there is a slow but continual change in the human eye, just as there is in other organs of the body. This makes it vitally important that you have at least once in every two to "watch your eyes" and have them years.

The eye has the greatest nerve supply of any organ in the human body, and next to the heart it is worked the hardest. When it uses more of the nerve energy allotted to it by nature the drain upon the central nervous system is furnished at the expense of some other portion of the body.

The eye is no more completely developed at the age of seven or eight years than is the rest of the body, and the strain put upon the immature, undeveloped eye of the child often manifests itself in some such form as cross eyes, headaches, irritability, etc.

We do not mean by this that all children need glasses. We do mean, however, that the majority of children require a careful examination of their eyes and the needed attention to prevent trouble later on in life.

Frequently, acting as an aid during the period of strain, glasses will assist nature in bringing about a normal state of affairs and then glasses can be discarded. Remember, eyestrain with fairly good vision is one of the most common and dangerous forms.

THAMES GRADUALLY RECEDES AFTER REIGN OF TERROR

Local Men Receive Injuries As Automobile Plunges In Ditch---Police On Trail Of Trenton Robber

BARBER SHOP IS LOOTED BY THIEF

Cigarettes And Tobacco To Value Of $300 Secured By Robber

TONSORIAL TOOLS

Trenton Police Have Suspect In Custody—In Isolated Spot

Trenton, of late suffering from an epidemic of robberies, experienced another break-in early Saturday morning when the combination tobacco store and barber shop of Clifford Stapley, situated on West Street, near the Canadian Pacific Railway station, was entered by a thief or thieves and goods of over $300 in value were stolen.

The robbers removed a pane of glass in the front door and as the store is situated some distance from the nearest business district, their entrance was not noticed. Mr. Heaslip himself lives only a short distance from his shop and there is a house right next door to it, but the thieves were able to get away with their booty unnoticed.

The Trenton police have a suspect in mind, but to date no arrests have been made in connection with the daring robbery. New developments are expected daily.

The Loot

The thieves helped themselves to everything indiscriminately. They took four pairs of hand clippers and one electric "Wahl" clipper, valued at $65; besides this they made away with a shaving brush and three pairs of shears. The marauders made a good haul of tobacco, taking 500 large packages of Turrets, 500 small packages of the same brand, 400 packages of Winchester cigarettes, two large packages of Rex cigarettes, three large packages of Millbank cigarettes, 500 packages of Buckingham and 300 large packages of British Consols. This makes a total of 39,100 cigarettes.

Two cases of pipes, three pipes to the case were taken. The pipes were Meerschaum, with amber stems, and half a dozen "Old Pal" pipes were taken also. Matches, four boxes of "Bolts" and Pike" chocolates, some "Bens" and "Ogden's" tobacco, cigarette holders, one bullet lighter and some "Wildroot" hair-lotion completed the thieves' haul.

MAY RENOUNCE FORMER MOTIVE

William Hickman, Held On Murder Charge, In Dilemma

Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 9.—Officials of the county jail where William Hickman is confined to-day expressed the belief that the youth desires to repudiate those parts of the confessions made by him which relate to his motive in the slaying of little Marian Parker, his belief was strengthened by the statement of Hickman's Los Angeles attorney, Richard Cantillon.

Cantillon who interviewed his young client at length yesterday, said at least part of this questioning related to Hickman's motive in the slaying.

"I begged him to tell me why he did this senseless thing," Cantillon said. "He told me he did not know, that he had searched his brain and could find no reason or motive."

TRENTON COUNCIL INAUGURAL MEETING

The last meeting of the City Council of Trenton was held this morning and about an hour later the new Council held its inaugural meeting. All members of last year's council but one, and he went to Toronto, were returned by acclamation, as was the mayor. The new head of City Fathers is composed of Chester Leit, the new candidate, who naturally headed the poll, H. D. Graham, George Sherritt, Hermon Mewhru, Dr. McQuade and J. J. McGuire. The result is the same old "Billy" Fraser, beloved of Trentonians and Bellevillians.

SOUVENIRS OF ADVENTURES

Air-Mail Envelop es Highly Valued

Not merely as specimens, but as souvenirs of the adventure and heroism of the pioneer air mail carriers, the collection of the envelopes in which letters have been carried on first flights and on unusual flights has become a recognized fad. The TOP specimen records Wilkins' first flight to Alaska. It has written lower left: "2,000 miles over Arctic ice by airplane. Lat. 77.45, long. 173.100 miles ten foot to shore." This is in Wilkins' handwriting, and is endorsed across its face his signature. A value of $25 is placed on this specimen. LOWER is the envelope carried by Clarence D. Chamberlin on his flight from the U.S.S. Levitaw to New York in the first attempt to speed up overseas mail delivery by the use of the airplane. It is valued at $30.

BELLEVILLE MEN ESCAPE SERIOUS INJURIES IN HIGHWAY ACCIDENT

Messrs. Chas. Walters And Chas. Moore Occupants Of Wrecked Car

Swerving his car to avoid striking a pedestrian on the highway last evening, at nine o'clock, Mr. Charles Walters, Front Street tailor and his companion Charles Moore miraculously escaped with minor injuries when the car turned turtle near Herchimer avenue Mr. Walters was returning from Kingston and as he slowed up at the bend near Rollins Brickyard he noticed a man walking on the road a few yards in front of the car. The driver suddenly turned out to the left and in the excitement of the moment stepped on the accelrator instead of the foot brake and the motor accelerated at the right side of the highway, striking a culvert and crashed into the ditch, turning over on its side.

Mr. Walters, driver of the car, suffered injuries to his back and legs while Mr. Moore received bruises to his arm. However, both men were able to leave their homes, today. The automobile, a heavy sedan, was damaged on the right side and it was towed to the city for repairs. Mr. Walters was travelling at a moderate rate of speed previous to the accident, but the speed of the quickened when Mr. Walters mis took the accelator for the brake, a common occurrence in moments of excitement.

According to the occupants of the car the stranger who was strolling on the highway was walking directly in the path of traffic. he man, who has not been identified, was not struck by the Walters car.

SOUTHERN ONTARIO UNDER APRIL SKIES

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 9.—Remarkably mild weather for this season is being received with mixed feelings in Toronto district. Today the mercury was hovering around forty degrees in Toronto, Ottawa and Kingston, while it was generally mild throughout Eastern Canada. In Northern Ontario and in the Lake Superior district, however the weather is somewhat colder. A number of Toronto golfers yesterday got in some practice rounds on the soggy links but devotees of winter sports in this vicinity are fretting at the unseasonable weather.

STRESEMANN IS INDISPOSED

Berlin, Jan. 9.—Foreign Minister Stresemann is suffering from an obstinate attack of bronchial catarrh and it is expected that he will be confined in his home for the next ten days. Attending physicians said that there was no cause for anxiety.

DECREASE SHOWN IN PUBLIC DEBT

Ottawa, Jan. 9.—A statement of the public debt, revenue and expenditure shows a decrease in the debt during the first nine months of the current fiscal year of sixty - six million dollars. During the preceding fiscal year the debt was reduced by forty-six million dollars in nine months' period. The revenue from all sources, including post office, customs duties and taxes are all higher during the nine months ended December 31 than they were in the same period in 1926. Expenditures in most government departments have increased also though in the month of December, 1927, departments spent slightly less than in December 1926.

UNDISTURBED IN SLUMBER AS BOULDER WRECKS HOME

Tonawanda, Wales, Jan. 9.—Three sound sleepers live in this little Glanford township and by a hour that has been thought to govern. They are the family of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bowen. When a ten ton boulder speeding down a 150 foot hill crashed into the house it and bounded through the bathroom and kitchen, the three children continued to sleep. They were undisturbed until their parents, and seven other children, left for work, returning to find them dead. The house was completely wrecked. No one was hurt.

TRENTON MAN IS VICTIM HOLD-UP

Daniel Donaldson Relies On Own Resources In Midnight Fracas

ESCAPED IN DARK

Sturdy Scotsman Emulates Feat Of Beeton Farmer

He didn't report being held-up to the police because "way back north" where he comes from it is customary to fight your own battles.

Daniel Donaldson, from Barrie's Bay, only came to Trenton a short time ago and is now an employee of the Hinde and Dauch Paper Mills. When he was walking home late at night, in North Trenton, a couple of evenings ago, a man stepped out of the shadows and held up his hand, ordering Donaldson to "hand over his cash." A muttered curse was all the reply the bandit got and Donaldson closed with the would-be robber. A sharp tussle ensued, only lasting for a few minutes when a car came down the road. Donaldson managed to pull away and smashed the hold-up man a terrific blow in the face and the bandit faded out of the picture.

It was quite by accident the Trenton police found out about the hold-up for Donaldson did not consider it him questioned by the officers the victim of the attempted robbery stated. He did not know whether the stick-up artist had a gun or not, and he didn't care. He told that the man had a handkerchief over the lower portion of his face and was of a husky build.

Donaldson himself is no weakling, being six feet in height forty-five years of age and well-built. He believes in fighting his own battles without bothering to bring the police into the matter at all.

SMILE AS DEATH TRAP IS SPRUNG

Pair Executed At Vancouver Today After Conviction Of Murders

Vancouver, B.C., Jan. 9.—A double execution at Oakalla Prison, Burnaby, of Bailey and Yuichi Yaoki took place at Oakalla Jail here to-day. Bailey was hanged for the murder of Charles Jury at Trail, B.C., in June and Yaoki for the murder of Mrs. Ethel Lee at Vancouver last fall.

The men mounted the scaffold at 6.50 a.m., and at 6.53 the hangman sprung the trap. Both men were pronounced dead nine minutes later. They condemned men met death bravely. Bailey, first to reach the scaffold laughed cynically at some remark made by the guard and as the black cap was pulled over his head called out "So long Yaoki. So long boys." Yaoki was accompanied by the Japanese Consul here and was heard in Japanese Bailey was not accompanied by a clergyman.

Before the executioner was preparing Yaoki, Bailey became impatient and called out "Let 'em get it." Then there was sprung just as he called out the second time. Bailey was convicted of and also killing Charles Jury, at Trail, B.C., on June 24.

GOLF IN JANUARY

Local Devotees Enjoy a Round On Golden Links Of Belleville Club

Yesterday's mild weather saw a little band of golfers come out of winter hibernation for a round at the links of the Belleville Club. Golf in the month of January is somewhat unusual but devotees of the ancient Scotch game could not desist from the opportunity of enjoying a game on the golden links. Who can bitter this record? Followers of the wilder sports of hunting and curling are becoming irate as the weather man refuses to close down the lid on the present mild spell. Weather prophets state that the unseasonable temperature may be expected for the next two months.

HON. F. LAMBERT ADDRESSES CLUB

Famous Survey Expert Speaks Before Canadian Club

Interest both in speaker and subject is shown by a crowd when the Women's Canadian Club announces that they have secured a famous man for a Belleville audience, and by securing the Honorable Fred Lambert, who will deliver a lecture on "Surveys" in the Armories on Tuesday evening, they have fully maintained these high standards.

The Honorable Fred Lambert, besides being a speaker of outstanding ability, has a life of colorful adventure upon which to draw. Mr. Lambert is at present connected with the Canadian Government Ocodetic Survey and for five years he has been engaged on the Yukon—Alaskan boundary survey.

About two years ago, Mr. Lambert performed a task extraordinary, for, when with his party, he was the first man to climb Mount Logan, one of the highest peaks of the Rockies. Situated in the northern part of British Columbia, this mount rears its head 19,500 feet above the level of the sea. Under the auspices of the Canadian Mt. Logan Expedition Club this express purpose in view and his efforts were crowned with success beyond the fondest expectations of this difficult task was given wide prominence throughout America, and the Geographical Society of one of Junipices of the Alpine Club Mr. Lambert Lambert's feat.

Born in Montreal, Mr. Lambert nevertheless carries an hereditary English title, being the grandson of a peer. This visit to Belleville is of especial interest in view of the fact that the Honorable Mr. Lambert's wife is a former Miss Wallbridge of this City.

In order to give everyone a chance to hear this splendid lecture which is highly illustrated with colorful slides, the Women's Canadian Club declared this open meeting all non-members being admitted for the small sum of 25c, and a large number of men as well as women are cordially invited.

LONDON FLOOD DANGER SUBSIDES AS TIDES WREAK NO DESTRUCTION

Thames Still Swollen And Protective Measures Taken

Paintings In Tate Art Gallery Damaged By Angry Waters

London, Jan. 9.—Another Thames flood passed this afternoon without damage. Crowds again thronged the embankment and bridges to watch the river. The water rose to within two feet of the top of the sandbag barricade in Grosvenor Road district.

London, Jan. 9. — As the tides ebbed and flowed without the recurrence of a disaster, London today dared to hope the anger of the Thames had subsided. The army of workmen, who fought to stem the rush of the waters after the reign of terror, destruction and death of Saturday, continued on the alert, however. Precaution will be continued until after the high tides of tomorrow.

The air ministry warned of a probable renewal of the gale which brought abnormal tide and flood of last week. The upper Thames has fallen somewhat but is still swollen and therefore no protective measure will be neglected.

At three o'clock this morning the tide was at its lowest point. Destruction, Thousands of those who dwell by the banks prepared to bed them, their vigil against the rush of waters ended for another twelve hours.

There was no sleep, however, for those who labored to prevent fresh catastrophe. All night long they worked strengthening the rampart of sandbags and clay along Grosvenor Road and in front of Tate Gallery.

Others who regarded the flooding of London as a spectacle were present in their thousands. In groups of people in evening dress, who had come from theatres and dances, they viewed the embankment. The river however, did not rise to dangerous heights. The dark waters lapped the banks smooth ly, harmlessly and unruffled.

At the Age of Re-Employed

London, Jan. 9.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—Saturday's flood in London brought vivid memories of war experiences to many men holding responsible positions in connection with public buildings. For example, Charles Aitken director of Tate Gallery, was roused in the night at his suburban home and warned that the art building of which he is the custodian was being endangered by the flood. Just as he and others were roused when hostile aircraft appeared over London in the war.

Earlier estimates of damage done at Tate Gallery seems to have been exaggerated. The works of J. Turner (1775-1851) most affected by water are mostly in water colors. Scores of landscape paintings in the Tate Gallery have been badly damaged by the flood but work many more than the years younger than he. In politics he had been a life-long Conservative and an ardent follower of Sir John A. MacDonald's principles.

Mr. West's mother died only three years ago at the advanced age of 95 years and last year he was bereaved of his only child. The Octogenarian was twice married.

YOUNG TRIO FIND POLICE CELLS POOR PLACE TO PLOT

There are two proverbs or adaptations of proverbs that may apply to this short tale. They are, even the very words have come to mind, in the case among thieves—nit. On Saturday evening three young men, two Bestonians and an Englishman, decided on a local jail for a night's lodging. Their request was granted and the cells "hoes" were put in the large cell in the station.

Here they had another "king of the road" and late at night, when not even a mouse stirred, supposedly, the trio of young men started talking and the plot of this naughty planning was the theft of a car to help them on their journey. Everything was proceeding with all possible ease and breathing a sigh of relief the trio were released about 7.30.

But after they had departed, the other inmate of the cell did the "like's squeal" to the police and told the blue coated officers of the law what the desperate three had in mind. The police car promptly started out to look for the would-be car thieves and found one of them, the Englishman, who was not as good a walker as the other two, had been left in the city at early hours. A nice closed car to borrow while his confreres "hit" the highway, to be picked up by the blind member of the gang.

The one lad was brought back to the station and the police car caught the other two by the pumphouse. All three vehemently denied having ever planned such a naughty deed and they were set free admonished by the police and allowed to proceed on their way, with strict instructions to leave all cars alone on their weary journey.

DENY GUILT IN FACE OF DEATH

Bellefonte, Pa., Jan. 9.—Raymond Winer of Lock Haven and Harry Williams Meyers, Philadelphia, paid the death penalty for murder to-day at Rockview Penitentiary.

Winter preceded Meyers to the chair Both carried pictures of their relatives in the death cell and held them until strapped in the electric chair. Both seemed brave in the face of death and Winters protested his innocence until the last.

Winter was executed for the slaying of Helen and Alex Salso, two children who were found in the city's park by the creek. The killing of William Stock, Philadelphia policeman sent Meyers to the chair.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

After forming a friendship you must render implicit faith; before that period you may use your judgment.
SENECA.

SOCIAL WEAKLINGS

It is very encouraging to note that newspapers all over this country are beginning to consider seriously and discuss openly the degraded position in which a young man voluntarily places himself when he enters a life of crime. The romantic side of a criminal's career is being properly relegated to the background, and editors are holding up the mirror of public opinion to show youthful offenders the true light in which they are regarded by respectable and law-abiding people.

Recently there appeared in the London Advertiser a thoughtful and force full editorial which showed that crim inals, instead of being bold and daring are in reality mere weaklings, with no initiative and no courage, and coward ly enough to take advantage of peace ful citizens which is only possible through high-powered cars and revolv ers. No special brain power is required of a criminal these days. "Occasionally", says the Advertiser, "one man has the wit to originate a new plan of plunder, but he is likely to be followed by a host of imitators. A psychological examination of the criminals would probably reveal the presence of a considerable number of weaklings, who merely follow fashions in crime, or are the tools of some leader of real, though perverted ability."

This comment was occasioned by the revelation that the men who were foiled in their attempt to rob the bank of Commerce in Hamilton were under the influence of intoxicants and drugs Nerve was needed to carry through the plan they had devised, or copied, and the poor simpletons had to bolster up their courage with drugs and liquor, even though they had all the cards stacked in their favor. This lays bare the false "heroism" so often attributed to the perpetrators of such "reckless" hold-ups.

The Advertiser goes on to further lay emphasis upon the sad lack of judgment in the young man who enters a life of crime. There is no glory, very little adventure, and absolutely no satisfaction of mind to the boy or young man who thoughtlessly makes the first mis-step. The common experience of criminals, the London newspaper says, is sordid and dreary. They never live at good hotels, and the only pleasures they get are absorbed in some questionable night club, or in the slums or the meanest quarters of the bigger cities. On top of this, very few of them escape punishment and imprisonment.

The unfortunate part of it is that careers of crime are chosen by young men at the time when their judgment is undeveloped; and when they once start, it is difficult for them to get back into the straight and narrow path. This draws attention to the value of home training. Early in their lives boys should be impressed with the fact that crime is not only immoral—it doesn't pay, and it leads to personal discontent, unhappiness and everlasting regret.

COMMON SENSE

There is a little girl living out on a modest farm in Kingman County, Kansas, who is demonstrating to many a man and woman much older than herself, how modesty, poise and good common sense can be preserved in spite of fame.

Her name is Marie Antrim and a short time ago she went to Chicago where she was crowned health queen of the United States. After the contest she returned to the farm and resumed her daily round as her mother's helper.

But fame is seeking her out. Health food manufacturers are soliciting her testimony regarding their particular brand of foodstuffs. Tooth paste vendors are endeavoring to discover that she used their product. Prominent men and officials are sending their congratulations, and there is no doubt this fifteen-year-pld girl, should she desire to capitalize her success, could pile up a little fortune in a short time.

But there is nothing of the fake about her, and apparently her parents also are not of the grasping type. Little Marie is still attending High School and hasn't signed a movie or a vaude ville contract. Instead she is still washing the dishes after each meal, and preserving her health, which is her greatest asset, and maintaining an indifference to fake promoters which would do credit to many an older per son. A girl who can resist the temptation to "lose her head" over popular attention, is bound to make a success of life.

A WISE LEADER

Peter Veregin, junior, who succeeded to the leadership of the Doukhobors in Canada a year or two ago, on the death of his father is setting a praiseworthy example to all immigrants of foreign origin in calling upon his followers to conform to the ways of their adopted country. It is not so long ago under the former regime, that serious trouble was caused in British Columbia by the refusal of the Doukhobors to allow their children to be educated in the schools of that province. Now they are told by their leader to take every advantage of their educational opportunities, and to cooperate willing ly with the authorities. They are like wise to mix with other races and do everything they can to promote the welfare of Canada. Peter Vereg in came out here direct from Russia to assume his administrative responsibilities, and his action is the more commendable for that fact. He is wise, and the wisdom of his policy will soon be apparent-in the increased prosperity of the colony over which he presides. Those who come to Canada to receive the benefits derived from residence here must be prepared to live as Can adians, or take their departure.

IROQUOIS LULLABY

Little brown-baby girl, lapped in your nest,
Wrapped in your nest,
Strapped in your nest,
Your straight little cradle-board rocks you to rest;
Its hands are your nest,
Its hands are your nest.
It swings from the down-bending branch of the oak;
You watch the camp flame and the curling grey smoke,
But oh, for your pretty black eyes sleep is best—
Little brown baby of mine go to rest.

Little brown baby-bird swinging to sleep,
Winging to sleep,
Singing to sleep,
Your wonder-black eyes that so wide open keep,
Shielding their sleep,
Unyielding to sleep,
The heron is homing, the plover is still,
The night-owl calls from his haunt on the hill,
Afar the fox barks, afar the start peep—
Little brown baby of mine go to sleep.

OTHER MEN'S THOUGHTS

Confessing astonishment that Canadians laughed at him when he predicted the time would come when Canada would walk southward and annex the United States, Morley Roberts, English traveller and author, holds fast to his view in his book "On the Old Trail." His thesis is that a hardy northern nation will some day grow so strong in the regions south of Hudson Bay that economic pressure will force it to expand southward.

As a variation upon an old theme, Mr. Roberts' prophecy is amusing and refreshing. Heretofore most of the annexationists talk has run in the other direction, where it has done unnecessary harm. What Mr. Roberts says on the subject is about as sensible as what any other prophet of annexation has ever said. After all, the proposal that Canada should annex the United States is about as reasonable as the proposal that the United States should annex Canada; the one has about as much chance of taking place as the other.

If our Canadian friends laughed at the Englishman's suggestion, we of the States can afford to smile with them. The realm of international politics has too little humor as it is and such a priceless opportunity for merriment ought not to be lost. Annexation is a scarecrow which has sometimes been taken too seriously; it is good to have it dragged out and revived for the ridiculous thing it is.—New York Sun.

THE PASSING YEARS

(From The Intelligencer of this day 30 years ago)

Yesterday afternoon Geo. Ritchie & Co.'s delivery horse ran away on Front street. The van was upset and the horse became detached from the shafts but was caught before any serious dam age was done. One lady was knocked down but happily not seriously injured

Mrs. W. D. Robb, Toronto, is at the Quinte Hotel.

Mr. Chas. Hudson's friends are glad to greet him once more.

Mrs. U. E. Thompson gave a charming "At Home" to her friends yesterday from 4 to 7 o'clock. The ladies report it as being one of the most pleasant "At Homes" given this season.

A daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cahill broke her leg while coasting down a hill last night.

The first hockey league game of the season for the Corby Cup was played at Picton last evening between Belleville and Picton, the home team losing by 3 to 0. The Bellevilles, owing to the illness of several of their best players, had to use a scrub team.

HAVE YOU HEARD THESE?

Bright Youth—"Old man I want to tell you how much I appreciated your lecture last night."

Lecturer (dubiously)—"Thanks. But I thought you were over at your girl's house."

"I was; her parents went to hear you."

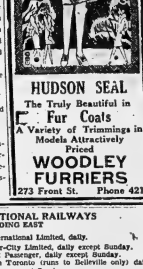

Don't you think it would have been advisable to introduce this young man to your parents before becoming engaged to him?

Oh, that won't matter much, Dad. Willie says that however much he may dislike my people he won't allow it to interfere with our engagement.

Office Boy—Please, Miss, the editor presents his compliments and is extremely obliged to you for letting him see the pictures, but unfortunately his space is so limited that he will be unable to take advantage of your kind offer.

Artist—Did he really say all that?

Office Boy—Oh, no, Miss. What he said was: "Take this stuff away, Pimple, it makes me sick!"

PICKPOCKET USED BRAND NEW METHOD

Montreal, Que.—Pickpockets operated extensively in this city during the pre-Christmas rush of shoppers and they developed something new in their operations. This was in connection with Christmas trees falling from an overloaded truck at the corner of Ontario and Sleury Streets.

One of the trees fell on the sidewalk. A number of citizens in a hurry to reach street cars at this busy intersection jumped over the prostrate tree before the truck men had restored it to its place on the truck. A pickpocket quickly saw an advantage in the situation and manipulated the fallen tree so that it threw people to the ground, not knowing how it had happened. The pickpocket assisted them to their feet and while doing so abstracted what money he could from the victims' pockets. The harvest, however, was brief. One citizen reported to the police that $50 had been stolen thus from him.

At one time people could get only bulk tea—tea exposed to air—flat flavour—Then came "SALADA"—sealed in metal—full-flavoured—fresh—delicious—dust-free—now people use "SALADA". Four grades—75c to $1.05 per lb.

BE PREPARED
Sudden emergencies often call for ready cash. If you have it you do not need to worry. Prepare for such occasions by building up an interest-bearing savings account in the BANK OF MONTREAL, which protects the savings of many thousands of Canadians from one end of the Dominion to the other
BANK OF MONTREAL
Total Assets in excess of $730,000,000.
Established 1817

Nowadays... you press a button
OR PERHAPS a switch, or some little gadjet, and a lot of things happen around a home that lighten labor and banish trouble.
A whirling fan brings a cooling breeze, and a little copper, dish-like affair throws out a sizzling blast that warms the room in no time.
Another button boils coffee, toasts bread and cooks waffles. Another does a better job than a broom, another makes a happy laundress out of dismal washwoman. Another one cools the icebox. Another—but why go on?
Labor and time saving devices have come and are to-day within the reach of the humblest home.
And one of the chief reasons why they have come and why they are within the reach of the humblest home is the power of advertising.
Advertising has carried the news of these better ways of doing things to every home. It has created a desire to possess them, and countless thousands have purchased them, and live better because of them.
Reading advertising not only tells you about new, helpful mechanical devices for the home, but it is an unfailing guide to reliable products.
Read advertising regularly. It points the way to better living

DR. M'TAVISH ON GREAT EMISSARY

Paper Read At This Morning's Meeting Of Ministerial Association

At a meeting of the Ministerial Association held in the Y. M. C. A. this morning, a very excellent paper on the Great Missionary of the Presbyterian Church, Dr. George L. McKay, of Formosa, commonly known as the "Black Bearded Highland Bear" was read by Rev. Dr. W. S. MacTavish. This paper did ample justice to this heroic and distinguished Missionary and Soldier of the Cross.

Born in 1844, in Oxford County, of Highland parentage, Dr. MacTavish pointed out that from the same district known as the District of Zorn, very many distinguished men had been contributed to world affairs. Dr. McKay was the first missionary of any denomination to go among the fierce headhunters of North Formosa. Dr. MacTavish attributed his great success to his physical endurance, power of adaptability, incurable optimism, courage, foresight, piety and eloquence and all of these attributes were coupled with his deep love for the Chinese people.

Dr. McKay died in 1901, after having established 10 churches, several hospitals, a girls' school and leaving behind him 2000 converts. He established Oxford College in China.

The attendance at the meeting this morning was not large but those present spoke enthusiastically of the excellent paper and expressed the wish that its contents be made known to every congregation in the city.

Women's News and Views

SOME DEEPER POINTS ON WOMEN'S STYLES

By LOUIS E. BISCH

It is a curious thing that woman, who, since the beginning of time, has been an inspirer of others and has led men to achieve great deeds because of herself, is at one and the same time so easily inspired and so readily led by the ever-changing fashions of the day.

One would really not expect woman to be so impressionable. It would be logical to conclude that woman would figure out for herself what is most becoming or attractive about her wardrobe and stick to it.

But no! Women will wear the most unbecoming dresses and hats if Paris decrees that such shall be the style. Somehow no woman can bear to feel that she is not in the swim, that she is not wearing the very latest no matter what that may be.

There must however, be consistency—somewhere. Why is it that women are so independent and often stubborn in some opinions and actions and yet so dependent and pliant in the matter of clothes?

The answer must be sought in the very nature of feminine emotion. When it comes to questions of love, hate, revenge, jealousy, sensitive, instinctive reactions—woman never has to. She is always sure of herself. What people say or think does not bother her.

In such cases she is guided by her intuition. And her intuition never fails her. But when the question concerns fashions her intuition does fail her. Fashions really do not rouse her deepest emotions.' She thinks a lot about them. Some women would seem almost to devote their lives to them.

Woman can accept or reject at a whim to an even personal attractiveness. She reasons that the more variety she affords the more chances she has of being considered attractive.

She does not want to be loved for her clothes. She wants to be loved for herself. She believes she has something deeper and more lasting to offer than looking well in a new gown and bonnet.

Woman, you see, is forever afraid that she may be left behind. That to her, is an unbearable thought.

Dependent as she is on love to complete her instinctive urges she is often compelled to compete in the race on any terms. When once she has won, however, her interest in fashions at once declines. She begins to shift her interests and to devote herself to homebuilding, motherhood and child rearing.

Clothes have had their day, as it were. She still wants to appear attractive in the eyes of the mankind loves, to be sure. But unless he inter ests himself as before in what she wears, there follows an unmistakable lowering of clothes standards.

Sometimes husbands are still interested in the personal appearance of their wives, but do not say anything about it. They do notice the change however, and it disturbs them.

Many a woman's married life has been threatened because of her carelessness regarding fashions. Many a woman also has wondered the fact in time and has again made herself irresistibly attractive by paying the necessary attention to what she wears.

It may also be noted that women's very morals may be affected by changing styles. Women with sentiment have been made callous and hard when the styles demanded boldness and exposure."

Contrariwise, the quiet, simplicity of Colonial clothes has much to do with keeping women less cynical and materialistic than they are today.

It is said that the women of Louis XVI's court, who spent their days trying to outdo each other in flirtation and all sorts of silly frivolity, changed about quite completely when they were exiled and had to wear less alluring and licentious clothing.

It is a safe reply that women are to easily influenced by styles. Variety is desirable and it helps to give color to life. But personality and virtue are lost when the variety goes to extremes. Women are by nature conservative. Why don't they employ that ability more than they do in independence and ersistity of dressing?

WHAT'S NEW

(From a Woman's Standpoint)

Bands of brown Alaska seal outlined collars, cuffs, fronts, sleeves and tight tunic hem of a smart blonde pony coat seen recently on Fifth Ave.

Natural Lynx and beaver are favorites for the new fall hats, and the latter is frequently fashioned into a "choker collar" standing away from the throat.

Nearly all the Paris winter coats are being designed on long straight lines, and extra fullness is given at the hemline by means of cleverly arranged pleats but the silhouette remains straight.

In the new vogue for blue in New York one hears most of flag blue, and of delphinium blue, monaco blue, royal blue, cloud blue, crama, king, or aqua marine and all of these tones and shades of blue are shown in evening gowns and wraps and in materials of every sort, from the most luxurious velvets and brocades to the sheerest chiffons, gauzes and tulles.

Paris reports that a new relation of fabrics, which is defined in the simplest showing, is Kashalic, and seems a little finger to the touch than Kasha and is also available in two-tone effects while there is a mixture of wool and cotton called Asperkin which suggests somewhat a heavy Crepella, and which is another indication of how strongly cotton fabrics are tending toward every effects.

Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

A number of mirrors will add size to the small room.

First-aid supplies should be in the medicine closet of every home.

When making peanut brittle add a pinch of salt and a little vanilla to improve the flavor.

A small vegetable brush is splendid for scrubbing the dirt from soiled collars and cuffs and the seats of sonny's rompers.

Orange flavoring is delicious for pudding and custards. Save the peel of oranges, preferably of tangerines dry in the oven and then store in tins for use.

Oyster shells burned in a kitchen or parlor stove will remove clinkers from the grate.

Piles Go Quick

Piles are caused by congestion of blood in the lower bowel. Only an internal remedy can remove the cause. That's why salves and cutting fail. Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid a harmless tablet succeeds, because it relieves this congestion and strengthens the affected parts. Hem-Roid has given quick, safe and lasting relief to thousands of Piles sufferers. It will do the same for you or money back. A. S. Dickinson and druggists everywhere sell it with this guarantee.

SULPHUR SAFE TO HEAL SKIN

Broken Out Skin and Itching Eczema Relieved at Once

For unsightly skin eruptions, rash or blotches on face, neck, arms or body, you do not have to wait for relief from torture or embarrassment, declares a noted skin specialists. Apply a little Mentho-Sulphur and improvement shows next day.

Because of its germ destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation. The moment you apply it healing begins. Only those who have had unsightly skin troubles can know the delight this Mentho-Sulphur brings. Even fiery, itching eczema is dried right up.

Get a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist.

CHAPTER 37

A Good Yarn Wasted

One of the qualities on which Herbert prided himself was his perfect composure under the most trying circumstances. He was convinced that he knew how to carry off any situation.

So, on this occasion, he regarded the strange man who proclaimed himself to be Lila's uncle from South America with an air of polite interest and concealed his natural amazement. This was not at all the sort of person whom he would have selected as a relative of his wife; nor could he reconcile the appearance of his caller with the negligent gesture that has given ten thousand dollars to charity.

"I am very happy to meet you, sir," he said, as he extended his hand cordially. "Will you come up to the smoking-room for a nice and a glass of something that need not necessarily be ginger ale?"

"I don't want to put you in wrong, son. I'm persona no grata around this place!"

"You've been here before?"

"Once too often," his caller nodded ruefully. "I didn't think the board of governors meant what they said until I hit the sidewalk."

"I'm afraid I don't understand you," in plain words, then, I was kicked out."

Herbert's horrified expression made him smile grimly.

"But I'd like to talk to you—some, where else."

Herbert fetched his hat and coat, made the hall porter summon a taxi, and handed his caller into it with as much speed as was consistent with dignity. His head was in a whirl. He was resentful, too. Why hadn't Lila even mentioned this blot on her scutcheon?

Arriving at his home, Herbert drove to be polite host. He ushered his relative into the library and piled him with cigars.

"Lila will be home presently," his caller sighed contentedly.

"Meanwhile, you and I can have a chat. My, my, it seems only yesterday I left this town, and it's—well, Lila wasn't born then, and now she's married. Fancy her out in society!"

"You like South America?" asked Herbert, politely, anxious to be very successful there, I understand."

The little man chuckled.

"Not so you'd notice it. About all you can say is that I've kept my head above water."

Herbert was puzzled. To make conversation, he said:

"Your wife is with you, Mr. er—Conlon, isn't it?"

His caller looked up from his drink in surprise.

"I have no wife."

"Pardon me," murmured Herbert quickly, "I had not heard of her—er—death."

"But I never had a wife. True, I nearly married a nice girl, here in New York, twenty-five years ago—a friend of Lila's mother. But then the trouble came along, and I had to skip."

Herbert was staring at him.

"You didn't have a son who was killed in the war?"

His caller set down his glass.

"No. Certainly not."

Herbert had risen and was pacing the floor agitatedly.

"Then, why, Mr. Condon—pardon all these personal questions, but they have a bearing on a matter of vital importance to me. Why did you send my wife ten thousand dollars to give to a charity for disabled soldiers' memory of your son?"

His caller regarded Herbert curiously.

"Say, what do you mean? Did I understand you to say I gave ten thousand dollars to something?"

"You did."

The little man chuckled.

"If I ever had ten thousand cents all at once, I'd put it in an old sock and retire for life."

It seemed to Herbert that the room was swimming round him. He sank into a chair and regarded his kinsman.

"There's some mistake somewhere," he muttered feebly. His intelligence was telling him where the mistake was, but he fought against believing it.

"I'll say there's a big mistake," his caller nodded. "I've been in charities. I'm the finest object for charity you ever laid your peepers on. Listen, son. I've been living from hand to mouth nearly twenty years. I had a lot of money once, after my father died, but, like a fool, I ran through it, got into trouble, and had to skip. My sister, Lila's mother, was a brick. She stood by me and, little by little sent me all she'd inherited. I understand there wasn't a penny left for her when she died. I've been living here the financial record of a rake in a nutshell!"

Herbert got steadily to his feet.

"I'm afraid I'll have to ask you to excuse me. I . . . not well . . . something . . ."

The door opened suddenly. Lila stood on the threshold.

HE WISHED HE HAD NOT APPEALED NOW

London, Eng.—William George Webb had an unpleasant surprise when he appealed against a sentence of three years' penal servitude for burglary and five years' preventive detention as an habitual criminal passed on him at Merthyr Tydfil Borough Sessions.

The Court of Criminal Appeal, consisting of the Lord Chief Justice, and Justices Avory and Branson, held that the conviction as an habitual criminal could not stand because certain recidivistics were not observed during the trial and it was quashed, but as the prisoner had a bad record and committed the burglary with another convicted thief, the Court raised the sentence of penal servitude for the burglary to five years.

Even if you pain but an inch you haven't put your best foot forward it vain.

JEWELLERS

Over Half a Century of Jewelry Satisfaction

Your fingers, young Miss Now-a-days, are probably more accustomed to holding a tennis racquet, a golf club, or a hand at bridge, than a needle. Sewing has one of the longest courses in finishing schools any longer. But some time or other you're tried perhaps to "make a dress"—and perhaps you gave up because it didn't seem to come right. That might have been because the pattern you tried was too difficult to begin on. Here's one that is simple—and so chic—that it can't go wrong. The pony front and back will inserted pleats at each side of the skirt, a pocket or two and a belt make a dress that you will be proud of and that will recognize no power in. For sports the year round this model has no rival. In light weight wools, like crepe, crepe de chine, silk and cotton velvets, linen, making or wash silks it is delightful. All crafts will contract the material if it be plain and wash material if checked or striped. (Copyright, 1927, by Butterick)

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

Can you help me? There is a certain girl who I like very much. Her disposition is a pleasing one. I do not know her only by sight and I have not spoken to her and I am afraid if I did she would feel unconcerned or perhaps she would think I was bold. Your help will be appreciated.

HAPPY.

HAPPY: Well you are rather young as it aren't you Happy. But you know the old saying "Love will find a way." Is there any some one of your friends who knows the charming lady in question and could furnish the necessary introduction. If she is all you claim for her I am sure she is worthy of some effort to meet her, and the rest is entirely in your hands.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I have been keeping steady company with a young man of 22 for almost a year. Recently I broke off with me, saying that we could not get along together as well as we should. I feel that I have, perhaps, been a little disagreeable and to a man. I see my mistake and wish to be friends with him again. should I call him up and tell him, or shall I just let him go?

LONELY LULU.

LONELY LULU: If this boy is really concerned about you, he will not be content to forfeit your friendship over a matter which could be easily adjusted. I would not advise you to call him or write to him, but when you next meet him you might seek the opportunity to tell him that yes realize you were in fault but that you are trying to overcome your unfortunate habit of being stubborn and that you are sorry that a friendship which has lasted so long should be terminated when the situation could be adjusted. I am sure if he need not caution you against repeating your mistakes as you have seen for yourself that unpleasantness is reached word may cause. If this boy is sincere in the wish to resume just such an expression of interest should follow.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I'm a young high school girl of fifteen. There is a boy in my school of which I am very fond. Can you tell me any way to win him? My folks won't let me invite him to my home. Please advise me.

CUTIE.

CUTIE: My dear, you are much too young to be permitted the company of boys and I advise you to be content to your parents advice. They are concerned for your welfare and I am sure will permit you all the privileges you wish when you are old enough to accept these friendships. I would advise you to put aside these thoughts about your schoolmates and spend your time on your studies and school activities.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am sixteen years old. About a week ago I was introduced to a girl by a friend of mine. I told time we meet we stop to talk.

She has asked me up to her home to meet her parents. I told her I would come. But do you think I am too young to be going out with girls?

BILL.

BILL: You are indeed too young to be considering going out with girls However, if your own parents have no objection to your doing so, there is no harm in accepting this girl's invitations to go up to her home and meet her parents. You should have many friends of both sexes and since it is probable that the parents of this girl wish to meet and know the people with whom their daughter is associating you might accept this invitation. If you wish to further your friendship with this girl. When I say you are too young to be concerned about girls I mean that you should not attempt to take any of them seriously, but that you should enjoy the friendship of many of them.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am in my early teens and am very interested in a young man a few years my senior. I do not know him but I would like very much to gain his friendship.

What should I do?

JACKIE.

JACKIE: Unless you can find some mutual friend who can arrange an introduction for you, I am afraid I can suggest no other way of your meeting this boy. It would be more advisable for you to let him seek you out and it might be wise to wait a while and see if he does not attempt to do so. I must, caution you against taking any steps to gain his interest until you have been formerly introduced.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I know a boy whom I like very well. He says that he likes me, but I have been told that he talks about me.

Shall I ask him if this is true or pretend to know nothing of it?

BROWN EYES.

BROWN EYES: If you have actual cause to believe that these rumors are true, I would certainly advise you to ask your friend about this matter. Have a frank talk with him and determine for yourself whether or not he is sincere. Once you have settled the problem, do not be too ready to believe idle gossip, but learn rather to trust your friends so that you can unquestionably defend them.

GET HANDICRAFT OF ENGLISH DUCHESS

London, Eng.—A number of people this year received Christmas presents made from the Duchess of York, who held a stall at the Royal School of Needlework Sale of Christmas Presents . . . Throwing off her coat, and working hard in her pretty pale grey georgette frock, she cleared the stall in little more than an hour of most of its small artistic gifts in antique silver, glass and embroidery and was still surrounded by a crowd of people anxious to buy.

In a quick tour of the stalls the Duchess herself bought a dainty baby dressing jacket, two warm wool baby coats, a pretty toy or two, and a blue cot cover. Wonderful embroidery, lingerie, jackets, and all sorts of antique needlework were among the goods offered.

The Queen had benefit beforehand an old-fashioned embroidered cotton bed, a nightdress, and a tiny pink dressing gown, with cats' heads embroidered on the pockets.

Cull citrus fruit, which once cost California growers $1.50 a box to throw away, now is being used. Orange juice, oil and dairy feed are obtained from cull oranges, and lemons which yield lemon oil, citric acid, citrate of

WHEN HE GOT FREE HE WANTED BACK

London, Eng.— Wrapping round a piece of brick a notice bunding a letter to keep the peace, which he had received previously when he was charged with larceny, James Chesson, of no settled abode, threw the brick through the window of a nearby house. On the bottom of the notice he wrote, "I broke this window. . . . James Chesson." When arrested Chesson said he was "fed up." He told the police magistrate that he had no money and had nothing to eat all day, and was sent to prison for two months with hard labor.

Sage Tea Turns Gray Hair Dark

By SHIRLEY BLAKE

That beautiful, even shade of dark glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother in preparing the mixture You can get this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, for only 75 cents, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.

TRUCKS OVER 8 TONS UNDER BAN

Highway Department Makes Important Announcement Of Policy

Toronto, Jan. 7.—Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Highways, yesterday emphasized the Department's policy with regard to the operation of heavy trucks on Ontario Highways. With two exceptions no permits will be issued this year for vehicles having a gross weight of more than eight tons he Minister's statement follows:

"It has come to the notice of my Department that motor truck dealers and owners are apparently not familiar with the provision of the Highway Traffic Act relative to the operation of heavy trucks. As there seems to be doubt in the minds of many as to the maximum gross weight allowed, attention is directed to part six of the Act as amended in 1925 and 1926 to come into effect on the first of January this year.

"Motor trucks registered prior to January 1st, 1923, as having a gross weight (combined weight of vehicle and carrying capacity) in excess of ten tons (20,000 lbs.) will be granted special permits to operate until December 31st, 1928.

"Motor trucks registered prior to January 1st, 1926, as having a gross weight in excess of eight tons (16,000 lbs.) and not exceeding 10 tons, will be granted special permits to operate until December 31st, 1928; with the exception of the two classes mentioned no permits will be issued for vehicles having a gross weight in excess of 8 tons (16,000 lbs.)

Ample notice was given by the legislature of these changes by the amendments of 1925 and 1924, and it should be noted by all concerned that no consideration will be given to the granting of permits for vehicles exceeding a gross weight of 8 tons were not registered prior to 1924.

"No change in the tire requirements for these vehicles has been made."

SPEED OF NEW FORD NOT FOR LAW VIOLATION

Car's Driving Ease And Comfort Depend On Speed Capability

Ford, Ont.—Speed has been built into the new car as a factor making for safety and comfort, not with a view to placing in the hands of the public an instrument for violation of existing speed laws," said W. R. Campbell, vice-president and treasurer of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, in discussing performance of the new car. "A car's capability for speed largely determines its easy and comfortable operation at safe driving ranges and is also a controlling factor in respect of pick-up or acceleration. Safety in modern traffic requires a car that can start away swiftly and gather speed quickly, for many accidents ensue from a driver's inability to remove his car from the path of danger. We are emphasizing to our dealers the importance of impressing upon new car purchasers the fact that speed has not been built into the car to encourage violation in speed regulations."

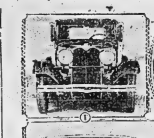

There is at present a considerable diversity in speed regulation. Mr. Campbell said. In some districts speed laws have been abolished and motorists are amenable only for careless or reckless driving. In other districts there is no speed limit on straightway but cars must conform to a limit on hills, turns and other hazardous places. The tendency to raise the speed limit is a natural outcome of better roads and speedier, safer cars with better brakes. Wherever the material may be he should remember that the regulations governing speed are expressive of the wishes of the people in that district. Where regulations are considered to be onerous there are constitutional methods to provide for their revision.

As men grow older they are apt to talk less and say more.

SEED GROWERS ELECT OFFICERS

Col. Roscoe Vanderwater Again Chosen President Of Society

A meeting of the Quinte District Seed Growers Society was held in the City Hall, Belleville, Saturday, Jan. 7th. At this meeting it was unanimously decided to hold a Seed Fair this year in the Armouries at Cobourg, March 15, 16 and 17th. The general tone of the meeting was that the fair held in Belleville last year had far-reaching effects in results and crop improvement throughout this whole area and with the very bright prospects for the fair in Cobourg this year, an area where there has been even so much time spent as in Hastings and Prince Edward Counties, will be of much greater value.

Committees for the year were elected as follows:

Col. R. Vanderwater, Foxboro, was re-elected President.

Mr. G. E. Taylor, Bloomfield—Vice President.

Mr. Morris Hoff, Bloomfield—2nd Vice President.

County directors were elected as follows:

WOOD PULP MAKERS TO CONTROL OUTPUT

Helsingfors, Finland, Jan. 7.—Finnish, Swedish and Norwegian wood pulp manufacturers have agreed to reduce their output for 1928 by 500,000 tons of wet pulp, which is equivalent to 250,000 tons of dry pulp in view of the unfavorable conditions of the world market, and clothing.

BACHELORS ARE WELL ORGANIZED

Form Association For Protection Against Perils Of Leap Year

Emporia, Kas., Jan. 7.—A conflict has developed here, 100 bachelors organizing to protect themselves from the perils of leap year. Judge Willard Riegle of the Probate Court caused to be published his plight in an Emporia newspaper a list of men whom he asserted were eligible bachelors with qualifications to make good husband and the average woman happy. He recommended each man on the list.

The publication of the list caused a bonfire. Last night and today the phones were ringing—first the bachelors were fairly swamped with calls from women, most of them anonymous inquiring about qualifications, the kind of cars they drove and their financial rating. As a result of the phone calls, a group of single men who had been named by Judge Riegle, called meeting in a cafe last night and organized a protective alliance.

"Millions for defence, but not one cent for matrimony," was the slogan adopted. Henry B. Jones, clothing merchant, a seasoned bachelor who has withstood the perils of Summer school beauties at the Emporia Teachers' College for nearly 40 summers, was elected president.

SPEEDY TRADE WITH OLD LAND

Canadian Pacific Railway Opens New System With Fast Boats

Saint John, N.B., Jan. 7.—Completion of her maiden voyage across the Atlantic by the new Canadian Pacific fast cargo liner "Beaverburn," marking an epoch in the transportation of cargo between Canada and the United Kingdom, was fêted here today when W. R. McInnes, Vice President in charge of traffic; W. A. Wainwright, Assistant to the Chairman, Canadian Pacific Steamships Limited, with other officials of the railway, and together with the bashor authorities of this port, inspected the vessel here today. The "Beaverburn," it was pointed out in addresses of welcome and acknowledgement, is the first of a fleet of fast cargo vessels built by the Canadian Pacific with the particular object of developing Canadian trade with the port of London which is the United Kingdom port to which a very large share of the perishable commodities shipped from Canada, is forwarded. Speedy transit is also of prime importance in the case of automobiles and similar high-class manufactured goods.

The fleet of five fast cargo vessels which Canadian Pacific are providing for this service will give a weekly departure from Canada each Friday with arrival in London the Monday week following. This will provide a service the necessity for speed and that absolute regularity in deliveries which under present day conditions is of such great importance to shippers.

It's well to remember that it is a mistake to forget a favor.

CELEBRATED 104TH YEAR OF COLLEGE

London, Eng.—(CP)—The 140th anniversary of the foundation of the Birkbeck College was celebrated recently by a large gathering of students and their friends at the College. Lord Haldane, president of the College, being in the chair.

Dr. George Senter, the principal, presented the report, showing the steady progress of the College, which now forms part of the University of London. The number of students was in advance of any previous year. The total entry for the session was 1,242 (733 men and 509 women) as compared with 1,177 for the previous year The Foundation oration, "Landmarks in Education," was delivered by Sir Henry Hadow, Vice Chancellor of the University of Sheffield. He said that in the Middle Ages classical and scientific education began to run side by side, together with a "courtly education." Women's education was too a thing of yesterday; there was a great deal of education for women in the Middle Ages. The next landmark was the educational system developed and encouraged by what was called the Renaissance. Another landmark was the attempt in the 16th century to conduct all education in the schools and colleges in the Latin language. Education had sunk to its lowest level in the 18th century.

Education, had, however, progressed by Henry said, and it was now recognized that there was a difference between the different types of mind. To any such differences must then these differences into account and fit its scheme to them. The last landmark was the work of Dr. George Birkbeck, which was of revolutionary importance and formed the whole history of education round. The process of education had formerly been unnecessarily gross in spite of ebbs and flows, and it had by no means reached its end or terminus yet. It was certain that education would continue to progress more and more in the future.

Here and There

Work on the erection of the Minas Basin Pulp and Paper Company's plant at Hantsport is being pushed together with work on the railway siding connecting the plant with the main line of the Dominion Atlantic Railway.

The value of the Western Canada grain yield this year is figured at $1,600,000,000 by Frederick Peters, making a survey of conditions at Winnipeg. Wheat is put at $800,000,000; oats at $166,428,282; barley at $67,500,000; rye at $16,000,000; flax, 261, and flax at $1,253,115. Hay and other grains are included in the grand total.

The Eastern International Dog Sled Derby will be held this year at Quebec City, February 20, 21 and 22, according to Frank Foster, passenger traffic manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. Winning recently, "Canadians are now capitalizing their traditional winters," he said. "It used to be our custom to decry them, but we have since learned their appeal to the stranger and as well as ourselves and are profiting by it.

Quebec City is preparing for a record winter sports season according to Jack Strathbee, newly appointed winter sports manager of the Chateau Frontenac. Mr. Strathbee comes to his new field of activity with a wealth of experience, having promoted outdoor sports in West Canada Lakes region and more recently at the Fresh Air Camps of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Saskatchewan heads the provinces of Canada in growth of revenue from tourist traffic, according to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, dealing with the calendar year 1926. The gain over the previous year is 30, over 100 per cent., while Manitoba was the only province with a revenue increase of more than 25 per cent. The total for Canada for the whole of Canada has risen from $65,735,750 in 1920 to $193,845,450 last year. It is thought to contribute $100,000,000 to Canada's favorable balance of trade.

Of Canada's four great sources of wealth the forest is the largest stream — the forest has steadily pushed forward until it now holds second place, particularly in the exports from the Dominion. For the 12 months ended September 30th last, grand total gross products exported were valued at $146,000,000; metals $162,000,000; agricultural $122,650,000, to which should be added, to show the enormous annual wealth of the forests, manufactured and unmanufactured wood valued at $160,000,000, making the forest aggregate $280,000,000.

GREAT HAUL FOR ENGLISH CROOK

If They Could Have Stolen Jewels—But They Didn't

London, Eng. (By The Canadian Press).—Jewel thieves on the lookout for a rich haul would have been splendidly rewarded if they could have succeeded in carrying away some of the £1,000,000 ($5,000,000) worth of precious gems exhibited at the May Fair Hotel by the National Jewellers' Association of Great Britain recently. As the show was intended to demonstrate how modern jewelry can be most effectively worn a series of mannequins appeared wearing frocks from Paul Caret, who had chosen and assembled appropriate jewelry for each dress.

The jewels, plainly set for the most part, were very large, very brilliant, and said to be immensely valuable. There were triple ropes of wonderfully matched pearls and necklaces of carved emeralds, sometimes hanging in a shower of diamonds. These huge emeralds and diamonds were so numerous that they quite cast into the shade the simpler beauty of some necklaces of plain round opals. The broochwork were rather heavy in design, resembling very closely the modern artificial—jewelry which gains its effects by large masses of color and light.

Although so many diamonds dimmed one's eyes and, one's senses of value, so that a ring "introduced as "this ring contains only $5,000" seemed a small, ineffective thing, it was difficult to forget the beauty of a mannequin with one perfect rope of pearls, pearls lying against her lime-green frock, or the barbaric loveliness of three jewel emeralds between the wearer's black hair and her gleaming white satin throat. For the most part Paul Caret wisely chose white and black and a soft pale pink to show up the splendor of the jewels.

TUBE RAILWAY OPENED A WEEK

First Practical Use It Ever Had—Closed Again Now

London.—(By C.P.) — The Mount Pleasant to Liverpool Street Tube of the London Tube Railway was opened for a week before Christmas to help with the congested mail traffic and was closed on Christmas Day, to remain closed until about the middle of January. This was the first practical use to which the new tube had been put, the line having been in 1912, was held up the war, and the tunnels were used for storing British Museum treasures.

The length of the line is 12,200,000. It is six and one half miles long from the Eastern District Office at Mount Pleasant to Paddington Station. It touches Liverpool Street, G.P.O., Mount Pleasant, Chancery Lane, Post Office, and Western District Office.

Later, it is proposed to extend it from Mount Pleasant to the Northern District Office by way of Kings Cross Station and Euston Station, and from the West Central Office to the Bedford Western District Office, then by Waterloo Station to the parcel office in the South Eastern District, linking up Charing Cross and London Bridge Stations with the Central Post Office.

The railway is not the property of the Central London Railway. The tunnels are 9 feet in diameter, and the cars 5 feet 6 inches high, feet long, giving a carrying capacity of 45 tons of mails an hour each direction. Drivers, who are necessary, the system being worked by operators at each station.

The mails will be handled by elevators and automatically loaded by the use of chutes. The trains will arrive at the Post Office more than $200,000 a year, and give increased speed.

It is estimated that on the four days before Christmas more than 26,000 sacks of mail from London in the country passed through Liverpool street. Other mails which came through London to the country swelled the total.

REGENT THEATRE

Louise Fazenda did not call on War Lord Bros. wardrobe department for her togs for "Simple Sis," the love-story of a laundress, in which she comes to the Regent Theatre today for a run of three days. Instead she went to the basement of one of the large Los Angeles department stores, and bought ready-made, clean garments of a rather flashy order, indulging in the last a meager little for neckpiece and a $1.95 hand bag. Her characterization of poor little, ludicous, heart-hungry Sis is one of the best in screen history, included in the cast are Phelo Cook, who is co-starred with Fazenda, Myrna Loy, William Demarest, Billy Kent Schaeffer and Cuinleen Calhoun, Herman Raymaker directed.

BELLE THEATRE

Following numerous appearances in light comedy, Lestrier Joy returns in strong drama, in her latest star picture "Vanity," which comes to the Belle Theatre tonight. The popular star lends herself once more in the type of role in which she made her first big success in "Manslaughter," "The Ten Commandments," "Saturday Night," and "Triumph," famous Cecil B. DeMille productions. Her versatility enables the dark-haired little star to portray the stellar role of "Vanity" with the finest, result. Alan Hale and Charles Ray play the featured supporting roles.

SUCCESSES ACHIEVED BY FAMOUS HOCKEY TEAM NEVER EQUALLED

Belleville's "Silver Seven" Built Up Record To Shoot At

ONE STILL HERE

Quinte City Victim In Committee Rooms Of O.H.A.

(By Sports Editor, The Intelligencer)

Where are the stars of yesteryear! Where are the Marks, the Kennedys the Browns, the Wallaces of former days? Where are the hockey teams which made Belleville famous? Gone to every corner of the universe, some engaged in business, few in business of hockey, some deceased, others residing afar, coming back to renew old acquaintances here at intervals. What have made their mark in the world in different spheres of the realm, in amateur trades and professions. Does it not send a little thrill up the spine as these famous names are mentioned?

Those engaged in sport in the present day remember them, faint recollections, perhaps, as little fellows hanging around the rink doors to get a peep at their favorite heroes.

Probably many are not aware that at one time Belleville boasted of one of the fastest hockey teams in the Dominion of Canada. In the days when the games were bitterly fought, the days of the seven-man style, when no substitutes were allowed and the heavy players were on the ice for sixty minutes at a stretch, with only one resting period between. In the days when Peterboro, Port Hope and Belleville were the very bitterest of rivals, when, on more than one occasion, the game wound up in a regular donnybrook with the players, spectators and referee all engaged in brook with the players.

the fracas. In the days when whole teams were imported with the sole thought of wresting the honors away for Old-timers will recall the many stirring struggles when the old Bridge street rink was jammed to the rafters two hours before game-time. In the old days it was not an unusual sight to see half the town turn out to the train for Peterboro on the eve of one of the important struggles. Oftentimes Belleville was the mecca for all of Eastern Ontario when Front street was a happy, crowded thoroughfare of betthoned people.

Do you remember on one memorable occasion in 1901 when Upper Canada College Juniors came to Belleville for a final game when the Toronto boys were kingpins of the Junior series? That evening the special car was shifted down Pinnacle street opposite the present armouries where the rink was then situated. Every window in the car was broken by a gang of hoodlums and Belleville received a black eye which to this day has not been lived down.

Famous 1903 Seven

In 1903 the Quinte City team trounced everything in this part of the country and were toasted out when O. Mc. H. declared that Marks, star wing man, had played professional baseball previously. The protest was entered by Marboros of Toronto, after the latter had been beaten by the famous Belleville team. The governing body ordered the final game be played off in Peterboro with Belleville playing under a four-goal deficit. This they refused to do and the Marboros went on into the finals.

Belleville was a name to be reckoned with and never before or since has a local hockey team brought such publicity to the city with the possible exception of 1916 in the series with the Barrie team which has been the subject of word comment ever since. The latter series left a bad taste in the mouths of Belleville fans, and it is still talked over when fans congregate.

In 1903 the late Harry Burrell was manager of the local team and it was not an uncommon sight to see the boys out doing their road work as the dawn was breaking over the Eastern hills.

The team was made up as follows:

Goal—"Winnie" Winchester (since deceased). Winchester after leaving Belleville, played with the Edmonton professional team.

Point—Jack Marks, now residing in Toronto. Marks afterwards played with the old Quebec Wanderers, World's Champions. A few years ago he came back to the city to coach the local Intermediates.

Harry Kennedy, wing, resides in Winnipeg. He played with the Winnipeg Rowing Club, champions of the world.

Harry "Erskie" Wallace, defence, now a business man in San Francisco, Cal. Wallace goes down and watches the professionals now and again in his adopted city but he did not play hockey after leaving Belleville.

"Ted" McMillan, wing, in business in Cornwall. McMillan still manages a team in the Eastern town and is a regular visitor at the local team's training room when ever they play in he eastern towns

Peter McGuire, General Secretary of the Y.M.C.A. at Hamilton. Harry played centre and was one of the most colorful players on the team

Sandford "Sandy" Burrows, rover. Mr. Burrows is the, one member of the famous "great seven" who still makes Belleville his home. He was one of the fastest players on the team.

Won the Group

Belleville went through the season of 1903 undefeated. In the first game Port Hope was beaten 3-2 in a close game on the rink on Bridge street January 17th was a memorable date when Peterboro with such stars as Ward Preston, Mitchell Hitherall and others was trimmed 5-2.

In the return game at the Lift Lock city the Belleville players escaped with their lives amid a shower of ice and snow balls. Peterboro were again handed a defeat to the tune of 4-2.

Bonsey and his Port Hope all-stars came to Belleville on February 7th and in one of the hardest fought games on local ice triumphed 4-1. Win Shelter started in this game.

After winning the group the unbeaten boys were pitted against the Kingston Ramblers who with "Senator" Powell, George Van Horne and others of the line-up was a formidable aggregation. In one of the games with the Limestonians, Powell and Brown were both rendered unconscious by blows from clubs wielded in the hands of spectators.

A gray pall was spread over the city when the team lost to the Marboros at he old Mutual Street ring in Toronto by a 9-4 score. Toronto fans invaded the city on February 22nd with money o burn and in a game that was featured by fistic encounters, the Belleville seven won the game 8-2 and captured the round by one goal. Rumblings of a protest were then heard and Belleville was asked to send representatives to the O.H.A. Executive meeting. After two lengthy sessions at Toronto marks was declared ineligible. Protest Allowed Messrs. Harry Corby and Harry Burrell represented Belleville. The game was ordered to be replayed at Peterboro. Local followers were highly indignant over the action of the Association and refused to play.

In 1904 Jack Trudeich, who is at present a member of Belleville's Police Force, took charge of the local team and succeeded in winning the group by large scores.

In this year the Marboros again were opponents of the Belleville team and, still smarting under the high-handed action of the previous year, the locals decisively defeated the Toronto team by a score of 14-3.

SARNIA HERE SATURDAY

Saturday, January 14th will see the next Intermediate basket-ball game here with the Napanee team coming to town. Coach Scott sent the team through a brisk work-out on the "Y" floor on Saturday night and a scrimmage drill will be held tonight. The locals lost the only game played to the R.M.C. team.

Midland was next pitted against the local seven and in the first game the northerners won 10-7. However before the second game was played Midland protested on the ground that McMillan had not complied with the residence rule. After several weeks of adjourned meetings while evidence was being dug up, the season became so far advanced that it was too late to finish and the O.H.A. series was not completed.

In the following year most of the members of the team turned professional and so ended the chapter of one of the most famous teams to ever grace the O.H.A.

The Intelligencer files now any of the professional team but it was impossible to join a league and after one season the team disbanded.

The foregoing facts were taken from he Intelligencer files and any of the old players who visit the city are a perfect liberty to read the accounts as furnished by Mr. Ford, veteran newspaperman, at present on the staff of the Toronto Evening Telegram. Mr. Ford was for many years Editor of the Daily Intelligencer.

When in doubt it is a good plan to tell the truth.

These two should wear the Maple left, Joe Wright, Jr., sterling single-leaf. Joe Wright, Jr., sterling single sculler, whose achievements on the water last season were outstanding. The stalwart Argonaut youngster proved himself to be a worthy son of a gallant sire by his aquatic performances at Philadelphia, Royal Henley and Canadian Henley, and there is little doubt that he will add to his laurels the coming year, not only on this continent, but in the old country. At right is shown a close-up of Cyril Coaffee, formerly of Winnipeg, but now of the Toronto A.C., Chicago, who won the Canadian Championships at 100 and 220 yards at Varsity, and who won the invitation hundred yard race, one of the big feature events at the C.N.E. games Coaffee was given 8 4-5 seconds for the hundred on both occasions and he faced a head wind both times. At Varsity two watches caught him in 9-2-5 seconds. The feature of his race at the C.N.E. games was the ease with which he defeated De Hart Hubbard of Cincinnati, and Chester Bowman of Newark, Hubbard was on the last United States Olympic team and Bowman is the hope of the United States in the sprints for the next Olympic. Coaffee came from behind at 100 and beat them both, three yards going away.

A late notice states that "Vern" Weir will line up with the Belleville Intermediates tonight in Kingston. Weir was at one time one of the valued members of the local Maroons and it is expected that he will be able to hold the clever Joe Smith in t.x his evening. Weir may not score a great many goals himself, but as long as he keeps Smith off the score sheet he will have his hands full.

Manager Thomas may take along Bentley of the Napanee team who is a sweet hockeyist. Welch, who resides at Picton, and who was a member of the famous Regina Juniors at the time they disposed of Kingston in 1925, may also go along. Welch is said to be a nice player and is not taking an active part in hockey owing to the fact that Picton has no intermediate team in the O.H.A. this year.

Since Coyer announced that he is through and will Green and Hibbard are laid on the sick list. Manager Thomas has been losing no time in getting a team ready to stack up against the Prontenacs. Bowen will be in the nets with Hagerman and Jack Rooney on the defence, and Weir and "Daw" Whalen are starters on the forward line. It has not been definitely decided who will fill the other positions.

Kirby, who played with the King ston Frontenacs some years ago, was one of the suggested names but Kirby accidentally lost, an eye some weeks ago and his hockey days are over. He resides in Napanee.

On looking over the line-up of the Frankford team in the Trent Valley league, we chanced to notice the name of Chas. Lloyd. Further inquiries revealed it was no other than our old friend "Toot" Lloyd who formerly guarded the nets for the Belleville Juniors. Frankford lost to Tweed 1-0, to Stirling 3-1 and in their latest match dropped a game to Madoc by a 2-1 count. Advices, however, state that Lloyd is playing a smart game between the posts for the paper makers. Fitzsimmons late of the Trenton team is also one of the Frankford main stays.

Stirling team appear to be the pick of the entrants in the northern circuit. Manager Bill Whitty is out to win the silverware captured by Tweed last year.

Belleville High School team will name out for their initial week-end of the season at the Arena this afternoon weather permitting. The Collegiate team should capture this end of the group without any trouble. Manager Bill Whitty's year's players are still eligible. Coling will guard the nets with "Bud" Caraway and "Pig" Ross in front of him. Al Young and St. Dennis are almost assured of berths on the for when the Marvelshes step out onward line while there is some untried material who will turn out. "Cy" Williams, late of the Glebe Collegiate, Ottawa, is said to be a smart boy on the blades. The locals are grouped with Trenton and Picton, the winners to play off with the Napanee or Deseronto team. Mr. Howard will be in charge of the locals.

Manager Don Roe, of the Imperial Oil, promises some surprises the ice for the next game. The oil men gave the Y's Men's Club a tidy argument the other evening and when some of the boys get into shape they will make things interesting. Selby Nelson, the local agent, has purchased jerseys for the Imperials and they will step out with blazing new uniforms. Y's Men's Club have also purchased sateen new sweaters and these are expected to arrive in time for their next appearance.

The present mild spell may put a crimp in the city league and tonight's games may have to be postponed. The Belleville Juniors while attending Albert College in the city. Delahay is one of the first substitutes. He has not only have witnessed his playing, state that he has improved wonderfully in the last few months.

Preston Seniors with the famous "Gunner" Arnott, of Belleville, as the chief goal-getter, will play in the Arena on Friday night. Arnott's week and several local sportsmen may attend the game to cheer the Riversides in action. They are being touted for the Senior championship this year. Dr. Griffin's clever and brilliant win over the Kitchener Green Shirts, the other evening, Gunner scored a hat-trick on the occasion and defeated Kitchener almost single-handed.

JUNIORS MUST WIN THURSDAY

Picton Youngsters Coming Here With Strong Line-up

Belleville Juniors must win the one game scheduled this week or almost certainly their chances for the finals. Picton youngsters will be here on Thursday night instead of Friday as originally scheduled and the locals have taken a fall out of them if they hope to win the group. The Belleville lads turned in a real smart game against the Trenton boys on Thursday and in justice to themselves should have won the game. Leading at one time by a 4-1 score Bill appeared as though they would come out on top but the homesters fought back beautifully and the locals were forced to drop the opener.

It was a heart-breaker when the Trenton team bagged the final goal half a minute before time and the locals had little time in which to tie up the game. The Juniors have played one of the finest seen in these parts for some years and a great crowd should greet the Juniors here on Thursday night.

Eddie Thomas has some right smart boys with him who promise to develop into good hockeyists. The two Canadian players are the pick of the lot but Simpson, Young, Galway, Hickey and Jeffery all stood up under fire well and are worthy of the patronage of the sporting public. At least the kids fight their hearts out and are the pride of the Trenton people the worth of their money. Young Jeffery fills the gap in the goal left vacant by the untimely death of the late "Pete" Latchford and stands up well against Hamilton.

Trenton defeated Picton 7-4 and thus along with Thursday night's victory have a strangle-hold on the group. With two wins already stowed away they are well on the road although Picton may spring a surprise and defeat them on their own ice. This Picton team are not to be underestimated and are coming to town with all intentions of handing Belleville a set-back.

POSTPONEMENT IN CITY I.C. GAMES

Mild Weather Interferes With Schedule—May Play Friday

At the time of writing it appears as though the City League games scheduled for tonight at the Arena may be postponed owing to the soft ice. Friday's games were played on ice that was more suitable for water polo than hockey and with the present mild spell, continuing the teams were not in favor of going through the ordeal again. With the Junior game scheduled for Friday night being played on Thursday leaving Friday an open date at the rink tonight's games may be shifted to that date.

Point Anne are scheduled to tackle the Moose in the first game with the Intelligencer Black Hawks starting up against the Quinte Electricans in the second fixture. The Point Anne team have not been seen in action although they disposed of Corbyville on Friday night as the cement plant rink in a close and exciting tilt.

Every team in the city circuit is well balanced and the fans who have turned out for the double-headers already played are strong for the city league. It is early to make any predictions and with the different clubs as well matched it is well-nigh impossible to pick the group winners. Imperial Oil, Y's Men, Moose, Quinte Electricians, and Alemite look the best of the teams who have played to date.

However some of these weaker teams are not to be overlooked and may upset the dope before the season is far advanced. Two points will be awarded for games won while one point goes for tie games. Teams are unable to play off tie games and it was decided that this was the best system of handling same.

CRUCIAL GAMES ON WEEK'S CARD

Intermediates Play In Kingston Tonight; Here On Wednesday

TEAM WEAKENED

Maroons Hope To Take Fall Out Of Frontenacs At Jock Harty

Belleville Intermediates have two games this week and both have an important bearing on the championship of the group. If the Maroons can capture tonight's game with the Frontenacs at the Jock Harty Arena, and come back and defeat the Royal Military College here on Wednesday they will be sitting pretty with four straight wins. However, with Green on the shelf with a bad leg, Hibbard under the weather and unable to play tonight and "Soup" Coyer having decided to call the game after a notable career Ed. Thomas and his laddies will have their hands full with Jim Sutherland's boys in the Limestone City.

Coyer after being identified with hockey for the past twelve years has announced his retirement which is a heavy loss to the locals, especially at this time when they can ill afford to get ting in to the group play-offs. Coyer has been one of the kingpins defence men in this district for ence time and has been prominent in hockey circles in the district with success. He is not the colorful type of hockeyist but his sturdy, well-built frame has been the means of preventing many a score.

Hibbard is ill and will not likely go tonight. Manager Griffin is also laid up, which means that Manager Thomas will have to take along somewhat of a make-shift line-up.

Jimmy Hunter and "Hoot" Gibson may go along and can help to fill the gaps but it must be admitted that they are not of the calibre of the regulars. A couple of dark horses may step in tonight and there is a possibility that the Maroons may come back on the long end of the score. The game left by bus late this afternoon for the Limestone City and Steve Weir, of Toronto, will handle the bell.

The Royal Military College are some what of an unknown quantity having played their first game against the Queen's team on Saturday night but their performance was such as to denote that they will create a stir before the season is over. Fans will still remember the great come-back in the Brockville game and will no doubt turn out in force in larger numbers than either of the previous encounters. The fans have not given the team the support that is due them and it is hoped that every available seat will be snapped up for the mid-week fixture.

Other games this week.

Tonight—Cornwall at Brockville.

Wednesday—Queen's at Kingston.

Friday—Queen's at Cornwall.

Friday—Brockville at S. M. C.

Hockey Situation

Many of the hockey fans are wondering what is the future of the game in Napanee, particularly this winter. There are quite a number of speedy players left from the Town League as well as from the defunct Bay of Quinte League, but nothing has been done yet to get the game going. If a outside league can be formed a league in Napanee should be an easy proposition. There are road players in the schools, stores and factories and the fans are anxiously looking forward to a game.

JOHN BUNYAN IS TO BE HONORED

Toronto—(CP)—World Alliance Baptists meeting here in Congress during the last week of June, 23-29, will honor the memory of John Bunyan with a plaque in the programme. A Bunyan window is also to be presented to McMaster Baptist University as a permanent memorial.

It is just 300 years since the birth of John Bunyan, "The Tinker of Bedford," the author of "Pilgrim's Progress," described by some as the greatest prose allegory in the English language, and possibly in any language. Next to the Bible, Pilgrim's Progress is said to have had the greatest sale of any book ever written. It passed through 100 editions during the author's lifetime, and has since been translated into 100 languages. As Milton was the great poet of the Puritan period, Bunyan was the great prose writer, and to some respects he is said to be the father of the modern novel.

A fine statue of Bunyan stands in his native town, Bedford, England, not far from the jail where he spent 12 years for daring to preach contrary to the law against Non-conformists. His worth has since been recognized by the established Church of England and an elaborate window now adorns Westminster Abbey in his memory. He belongs to Christendom at large, but like his great contemporary, Milton, he was a member of the Baptist denomination, an insignificant body in his day, but one of the great denominations of the world today.

At the Baptist Congress here next summer a whole session will be devoted to the celebration of the Tercentenary. A treatise on Bunyan is being written by Rev. W. E. Fullerton, D. D., of London, at the request of the Alliance ,and will be published shortly.

New York, Jan. 9.—Lauretta Taylor's daughter, Marguerite, is to make her debut on the New York stage soon. Like her mother, she has been getting experience in stock.

STIRLING

Kingston, Jan. 9.—The courses in public speaking which are to be conducted under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association were successfully opened on Tuesday night at the Y.M.C.A. and the work to be undertaken was thoroughly outlined and plans for the holding of classes in junior and senior divisions were made.

M. Milan Meiklejohn was in the chair and outlined the programme pointing out that there was a great need for such a course and that there was no intention to duplicate any work that was being undertaken elsewhere. Mr. Meiklejohn impressed the members of the two classes gathered together last night with the great asset of public speaking and the advantage of being able to express oneself on a platform to a proper manner.

LADIES REFUSE TO HIDE BEAUTY

Montreal, Que.—A writer ("R.B.R.") in the Gazette, under the heading "Funny Ladies", says:—

"There are no female Falstaffs. The best of them are only prominent comedies. What is the reason for this? Why is it that in the domain of buffoonery the women have been so badly outdistanced? Surely in the other branches of acting they more than hold their own against the men. Perhaps one of the American stage today three competent actresses for every one competent actor. And this numerical superiority holds good in all the forms of acting from tragedy all the way down to farce and not so polite comedy—except, of course, in the one inevitable occupation of dressing.

"The underlying cause for this, it seems to this writer, is that women, like men, cannot get themselves to play the sap for sap's sake.

"There does not exist a leading comedienne today who would accept a part which compelled her to walk through a picture in a grotesque make-up which did not come off some time before the picture ended. What actress, at any time a woman as Chaplin is a man would get herself into a permanent make-up the way Charlie does and never once reveal that she is a bewitching specimen of beauty? There does not seem to exist in a woman the same savage pleasure that a man gets out of making a laughing spectacle of himself. Ridicule and romance do not go so well together, and woman casts her vote for romance."

Newsy Neighborhood Notes

THROWN FROM CART

Kingston, Jan. 9—A driver for the Sowards Coal Company, named H. Curson, had a close call from serious, if not fatal injuries, about 6 o'clock Wednesday night. He was driving down Princess street, with a load of coal, when near Victoria Street, an auto driven by a man claimed to be under the influence of liquor, ran into the cart. He was thrown out on the road and escaped with a bad shaking up.

NARROW ESCAPE

Port Hope, Jan. 9.—Three people had a narrow escape from death or injury and perhaps death when a car driven by Charles Cole crashed into one of Johnson's taxis, driven by Lorne Paton, at the corner of Emma and Albert streets, last evening, and both cars overturned. Despite the fact that the taxis in both cars was smashed to fragments, all three people, Cole, Paton and Mrs. Arnold, a passenger in Paton's taxi, suffered but minor injuries, none of them being seriously cut by the glass or otherwise badly injured. Mrs. Arnold, a Toronto lady visiting in Oshawa, sustained a sprained left arm and a bruised right arm and side. Paton was completely stunned by the force of the collision and his injuries were confined to bruises, while Cole escaped with a slight cut on the left temple. Dr. Dickson, Oshawa, an auto driver who happened along, dressed the wounds of Mrs. Arnold and Paton was removed to his home at 178 Centre Street, where he was given medical attention by Dr. F. J. Rundle.

SILVER WEDDING

Cobourg, Jan. 9.—Relatives and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Pierce, Hamilton street, Cobourg, Friday night, to celebrate the occasion of their silver wedding anniversary. Married twenty-five years ago the happy couple have spent their entire married life in Cobourg and their wide circle of friends testifies most eloquently to the popularity achieved in that time. Beautiful and costly gifts of silverware, gifts from their many friends betokened the high place occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Pierce.

Among the relatives present were Mrs. W. Cliddon, Mrs. J. Bolton, Miss Gertrude Thompson, of Toronto. Dancing and cards made the event a very pleasant one.

APPEALS JUDGMENT

Bowmanville, Jan. 9.—Appealing the conviction immediately after being sentenced to two months in jail by Magistrate W. H. Floyd in County Police Court at Bowmanville, Alec Lee, proprietor of Waverly Inn, a well known roadhouse between Bowmanville and Oshawa, was released on bail. Lee, who is a Chinaman, was convicted of having liquor in an illegal place, a count and charge of having for sale, also under the Liquor Control Act, being allowed to stand. Provincial Constable Harry Storey, who laid the charges, was the chief witness for the prosecution.

STONE COMMEMORATES 1300TH ANNIVERSARY

London, — Just before midnight on new Year's Eve the "Te Deum" was sung in York Minster, and the Archbishop of York laid in the floor a stone of remembrance to commemorate the observance of the 1300th anniversary of the Minster. The congregation then left the church and waited in silence for the dawn of the ew Year, which was announced by the tolling of the Minster's 11-ton bell. "Big Peter." The west door was then opened, bugles sounded reveille, and from a platform the Archbishop blessed the multitude assembled outside.

CANADA TO HAVE OWN MINISTER AT PARIS IN THE NEAR FUTURE

Increasing Importance Of Business Transacted Is Reason Given

NO CHOICE YET

French Government Agrees To Proposed Change—— Not Tokio Yet

Paris, Jan. 10.—France and Canada have definitly decided to change the present status of international representation to the establishment of legations in the respective capitals. French cabinet today approved the plan to appoint a minister to Ottawa.

It is quite likely that Baron De Vitrolles, present Consul-General to Canada will be the first minister to Ottawa Baron De Vitrolles has been in Canada several years with headquarters in Montreal. The office of Consul-General probably will be continued in that city. No announcement has been made as to any appointments yet.

It is supposed in Paris that Hon. Philippe Roy, Canada's High Commissioner in Paris for many years, will become minister plenipotentiary for Canada here.

Governments Agree

Ottawa, Jan. 10.—In the course of an interview to-day, Premier King said: "Advisability of providing for an exchange of ministers between Canada and France has been receiving consideration by the two governments for some time. The question has recently been discussed formally. Hon. Raoul Dandurand, representing the Canadian Government after the official presentation by Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs and the British ambassador in Paris to the Minister of Foreign Affairs of France, reviewed the situation with M. Briand.

"It was found that the two governments were in entire agreement as to the opportunities of an exchange of ministers. The Canadian government considers that in view of historic traditions which bind the two countries and of the increasing importance of political as well as trade interests of Canada in France and the continent of Europe generally, it is desirable to extend the scope of the work hitherto carried on by a commission-general of Canada in Paris by establishing legation.

The Canadian Government will be asked to make provision for the establishment of a Canadian legation at an early date. Recommendation will be appointment of a Canadian minister will be made subsequently."

Not to Tokio Yet

Ottawa, Jan. 10.—Department of External Affairs to-day denied a report that Canada contemplated establishing a legation at Tokio.

BOARD RE-ELECT THOMAS POWER

At the regular meeting of the Parks' Board held last evening, the business for the year 1927 was wound up and the election of officers for 1928 followed.

Mr. T. P. J. Power was re-elected Chairman and Mr. Harry Greenlees was again returned as Secretary Treasurer for the ensuing year. These two public spirited men have done much for the city during their terms of office and during the coming year will again devote their time to the interests of Belleville.

Mr. Power made some fitting remarks to the Board on this occasion. Starting off in 1927 with a considerable handicap to overcome the Parks' Board have accomplished much during the past year so that they start 1928 with practically a clean sheet and much may be expected of them this year.

MRS. J. ELLIOTT DIED SUDDENLY

Well-Known Banker's Wife Was Prominent Worker In Church

Sincere sympathy was expressed in all circles this morning when it was learned that Mrs. John Elliott, beloved wife of Mr. John Elliott, manager of the local Standard Bank, had died at the family residence, 38 Highland Avenue. It was only yesterday that it became known that she was seriously ill and her consequent death came as a great shock to her many friends as well as the immediate relatives.

The late Mrs. Elliott was born at Markham, Ontario, in the year 1858 and was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William B. Speight. For the past twenty-one years the deceased lady had resided in Belleville and during that time was a devout member of Christ Church.

Surviving, besides the sorrowing husband, are three daughters, Mrs. H. W. Wright, Hamilton; Mrs. W. H. Brewis, Belleville, and Miss Nora Elliott at home, three sons, Reginald J. and Edward J. of Hamilton, and Douglas, Belleville, also two brothers and two sisters residing in Toronto.

KELLOGG PLANNING VISIT TO OTTAWA

Washington, January 10.—Secretary Kellogg said he will make an official visit to Ottawa in return for the recent visit to Washington of W. L. MacKenzie King, the Canadian Premier. Mr. Kellogg will go to Canada soon after his return from the Pan-American Conference at Havana. Details of the visit will be announced later. It will probably be late this month or early in February.

MASONS HONORED LATE BROTHER

William McKeown Initiated Into Belleville Lodge In 47 Years Ago

A large and impressive Masonic funeral was held to-day when the last mortal remains of Very Worshipful Brother William McKeown were laid to rest in the Belleville Cemetery. The bearers, three from the Moira Chapter and three from the Belleville Lodge, were Colonel W. N. Ponton, Colonel David Barrager, H. J. Clarke, E. C. Cherry, Arthur McGie and C. B Stanbridge. All were personal friends of the deceased.

William McKeown was initiated into the Belleville Lodge No. 2 in 1871, was secretary of the Lodge from 1873 to 1881, thirteen years. He became Worshipful Master in 1891 and was later an officer in the Grand Lodge.

The deceased joined the Moira Chapter on March 30th, 1880 and with his companions and friend George Teal was exalted on April 6th, 1880. Very excellent companion McKeown was First Principal of Moira Chapter during the years 1897 and 1898 and secretary from 1900 to 1931 (no further) years he was secretary of the chapter and the same number of years in the Blue. He served in all as secretary twenty-six years. He was a most able and painstaking officer and may well be termed a prince among his people.

Mr. McKeown was an active member of Bellevile Freemasonry. In everything and in every good way he was a builder. He helped build more than he knew, for his work do follow him. His life and his work in Belleville Lodge, Moira Chapter and King Baldwin Preceptory still live and will do so for many years to come.

INVITATION ON GOLD TO ATTEND DINNER

Washington, January, 10.—President Coolidge has been asked to do many things. Today he received a unique invitation to participate in an unusual dinner. He was invited to attend the fifth annual Red Apple dinner of the Colorado Mining Association, to be held in Denver on January 20. The invitation was engraved on a plate of Colorado gold weighing five pounds and was signed by committeemen headed by Jesse E. MacDonald, president.

DERBY WINNER DEAD

Will Be Buried In Cemetery With Other Famous Horses

Epsom, Eng., Jan. 10.—Signorinetta, winner of the Derby at a hundred to one and the Oaks in 1908, died today at the age of 23. She was the last filly to win both Epsom classics. Signorinetta, will be buried in Durdans Estate cemetery where Lord Rosebery, her owner, has buried three other derby winners, Cicero, Ladas and Sir Visto, as well as others of his famous race horses.

RATS SWARMING THROUGH LONDON FOLLOWING FLOOD

London, Jan. 10.—A plague of rats was sweeping London today in the wake of the flood that last Saturday driven from sharred, warehouses and basements in the low lying parts of the city, small fats, lean rats, tawny rats and brawny rats, in families by tens and dozens, scurried about in search of new homes.

Never before has London been so rat ridden, and William Dalton, official rat catcher, beetle destroyer and vermin exterminator, who with a staff of expert "Ratters" is directing day and night to drive the invaders from the city.

Repairing Damage

London, Jan. 10.—Fury of the Thames has spent itself and London today turned to measures of relief and to repairing damage wrought by flood waters on Saturday. Tide today reached its height at 3.46 a.m. and subsided without damage. It was below Saturday's high level and experts believe that all danger is past. Precautions against further deaths and destruction are being maintained and barriers against any new rises of water were strengthened continually.

BIG SHOW OPENS DOORS THIS A.M.

Jack Miner's Wild Geese a Feature of Local Poultry Exhibition

RECORD ENTRY

Demonstrations Given of Correct Method of Dressing For Market

With the crowing of many cocks and the clucking of even more hens the 16th annual Poultry Show opened in Belleville this morning in the City Hall. Small birds, fine birds, fancy birds, plain birds, pheasants, wild ducks and wild geese, rabbits and pigeons, all are featured in this great show that opens today. In fact every class poultry shows have been one of the greatest features of the year and for 1928 those in charge intend this one to be the best poultry exhibit ever shown in Belleville.

A special feature of this exhibition, which lasts for three days, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday is a number of wild ducks and wild geese, entered by Jack Miner, of Kingsville, that great lover of wild birds. Other features include semi-fine pigeons, entered by Mr. George Graham, some pheasants, the entry of Mr. Walter Moore, superintendent of the show and rabbits, entered by various owners.

In charge of the Exhibition this year are Mr. Walter Moore, superintendent, assisted ably by George Koblin and Charles Saunders. Any credit for success in this undertaking may well be handed to Secretary Jack Trudrich, president of the local fowl association, who has worked so hard in years past and this year especially to insure the success of this exhibition. Words of praise are also due Mr. Walter Moore, M. L. P. Perkins, Mr. Robbins and Mr. Bowerman, as well as many others. All work hard to make the poultry exhibition one of the best in the province and they succeed!

Tobacco Growers Of Western Ontario Not Satisfied With Scheme

Ottawa, January 10.—Owing to the absence of the compulsory feature from their scheme, the tobacco growers of western Ontario declare that their co-operative organization has not produced the desired results and have appealed to the Federal Government for some assistance.

This appeal was responsible for the visit to Washington last week of Dr. J. H. Grisdale, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, who conferred with officials of the United States Government and others interested with the co-operative selling in that country. A meeting has been arranged for next Thursday in Ottawa when Dr. Grisdale will address a gathering of tobacco growers on the question of co-operative buying and other questions relative to the industry in that part of Ontario.

Friending Guests Find Hostess And Children Dead From Gas

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 10.—Neighbors who burst into the cottage of Anton Dworzyck last night for a surprise party and found Mrs. Josef Jeannie, the twenty-three year old wife and her two small children dead from coal gas. Dworzyck, a young war veteran, was still alive but doctors said he could not live.

KIWANIANS LOOK FOR BUSY YEAR

Baseball Committee Says Senior Ball Assured—— Dance Feb. 20th

With President Elect Harry Greeniaus occupying the chair, the work of Belleville Kiwanis for 1928 began at noon today. Three members from the newly formed Picton Club, Bert Fully, Lee Phillips and Percy Carter were among the guests and submitted encouraging reports regarding the progress of the new club; plans were already underway in Picton for some real service work, including the financial maintenance of a school nurse or Y. O. M. Nurse there.

Secretary Gordon Griffin submitted his report of the first meeting of the 1928 Board of Directors held last week. The Directors met on Feb. 20th as the date of the Third Annual Kiwanis Ball; a tentative programme was also arranged for an entertainment to be given before members of the House of Refuge by the Club.

Kiwanian Frank Rayfield, of the Baseball Committee reported that Senior baseball was practically an assured thing for this city during the coming season, with teams from Oshawa, Peterboro and Kingston represented, it looks like a great year for baseball here.

Kiwanian Jack Waddell, Lieutenant Governor for Western Ontario, gave an interesting talk on Kiwanis activities in the past and pointed out something of what might be expected of it in the future. He recalled that the present month marks the thirteenth Anniversary of Kiwanis, it having been formed first in Detroit in 1915. As an indication of the remarkable strides the organization has made, Kiwanis boasts today some sixteen hundred and fifty clubs and one hundred thousand members, compared with a membership of but five thousand, in fifty-three clubs in 1917.

LIQUOR BILL IS $1,000,000 WEEK

Canadian Imports From The Old Country Show Increases

Ottawa, January 10.—Canada seems to be spending a million dollars a week on foreign beverages. The latest private production of whiskey, gin, beer and other strong drink amount to $40,000,000 per annum, while wines imported during the last twelve months totalled $14,000,000 worth, and exported to the United States and other countries $20,000,000 worth. This leaves $54,000,000 worth of liquor to quench the Canadian thirst, plus the home brew and the moonshine, which is a strong competitor of the Government shops.

Canadian imports of alcoholic beverages increased at a rate exceeding a million dollars a month this year as compared with last year. In the month of November alone there were brought into the country $3,478,208 worth of brandy, gin, whiskey and wines. In the last twelve months the imports exceeded $40,000,000, as against less than $28,000,000 during the preceding year. Every month this year showed larger purchases of liquor from abroad, mostly from the United Kingdom.

BLAME NEGLECT FOR THE CRASH

Jury Finds Engineer's Judgment At Fault In Enterprise Accident

Enterprise, Ont., Jan. 10.—Engineer Bradford, injured in the recent C.P.R. train wreck at Dockrill, was still too ill to appear when the inquest was resumed yesterday, and Dr. Cowan, coroner, acting upon instructions, declared the inquiry closed, after the jury had agreed to a verdict finding the accident due to non-observance of the rules, and suggesting the advisability of a period longer than five minutes for revision of passenger trains. The C.P.R. was not represented yesterday.

The verdict of the jury is as follows: "The jury empanelled to enquire into the death of William Barnett find his death was caused by a collision which occurred, on the C.P.R. near Dockrill siding, at 7.13 p.m., on November 27, 1927, when first No. 19, fast express, traveling west, collied with the caboose of second No. 19 freight traveling east. We are of the opinion that had the rules laid down by the C.P.R. for the guidance of men in charge of trains been carried out the accident would not have occurred. We are of the opinion that the accident was caused by the misjudgment of Engineer J. L. Bradford of the freight train; firstly by releasing his brakes too soon and over-running the switch and secondly, by not sending out his flagman to protect his train, as provided by the rules. We are of the opinion that the five minutes' as mentioned in Rule 83 is not sufficient time for clearance of passenger trains."

DISAPPEARED SUNDAY

Discovered Within Hundred Yards Of Farmhouse Today

Canajoharie, N.Y., Jan. 10.—Wreckage of an aeroplane which has been missing since Sunday and the bodies of its three passengers were found in a field near here today. Indications were that the plane crashed in the fog that had enshrouded the countryside. Victims of the accident were Lieut. George Benedict, Curtis field flyer, Ramond Benrick, Buffalo, pilot, and Capt. Edward Pauley, Albany, aviator.

The fog was so thick throughout Sunday and yesterday that, although the aircraft crashed to earth within a hundred yards of a farmhouse, no one in the vicinity knew of the disaster until searchers located the bodies and wreckage when the mists were dispelled today. Bodies of two of the men were buried under the wreckage while that of the third occupant of the plane was found about forty feet away.

Two Badly Injured

Grafton, Ont., Jan. 10.—George Knowlton, of West Upton and Capt. Stickney, of Hartford, Conn., employed as pilot by a New England aircraft company were seriously injured today when the plane which was being used by Capt. Stickney to teach Knowlton to drive, crashed into a stone wall near Whitehall Farm. The cause of the accident was unknown, but according to employees working near the hangar, something apparently went wrong before it crashed to the ground.

The pilot seemed to lose and then regain control, onlookers said. The machine was flying low when it crashed to the ground.

May Be a Clue

St. John, N.B., Jan. 10.—A buoy which was picked up at Pistolet Bay recently and which it was thought might furnish some clue as to the manner in which one of last year's air tragedies occurred, arrived here today aboard the steamer "Prospero." It is a black spherical inflated float about two feet in diameter and made of canvas.

A cleat, containing a hole for the use of a rope, is nailed across the top which is made of cork. The object is evidently a float used for the purpose of making a sea anchor.

STUDENTS WERE GUESTS OF Y.P.S.

Bridge Street United Church Society Provides Entertainment

Students of Ontario Business College and the faculty of the Ontario School for the Deaf spent an enjoyable evening in Bridge street last night, the guests of the Young People's Society of Bridge Street United Church. The evening started at eight o'clock and did not break up until after eleven, games, refreshments and supper enlivening the proceeding.

The main feature of these entertainments which are given yearly, is the promenades. To the smart music of the gramophone the guests marched around th vroom arm in arm. Various games were played during the evening, both amusing and instructive.

At ten thirty supper was served to the people, consisting of cake, coffee and sandwiches afterwards more promenades and more games being played. An enjoyable part of the evening programme was songs and recitations by local young people. Shortly after 11 o'clock the party broke up everybody going home convinced that this was a very social function they had attended in years.

FINE IS $3.50 MORE THAN THE COST OF HIS MOTOR

Nathan Trapper, an employee at Gerbracks, wanted a car to ride in. In fact Nathan wanted a car so badly he went and paid fifteen hard-earned dollars to a local dealer for an automobile calculated to suit him.

Trapper took his car home with him. He lives on one of the concessions near Belleville and the car did run that far but his cup of joy turned to gall when Officer Fink arrested him for not having the proper transfer papers to show that the new car was his own.

This morning he appeared before Magistrate Mikel with a doleful countenance and pleaded guilty to not having his car registered. His Worship was exceedingly sorry but the lowest fine that could be imposed upon Nathan was $10.00.

It did not matter that Nathan had been running his automobile for a year and had failed to register it and must suffer and by the time $2.50 costs had been added to the original $10 fine, the whole proceedings costing him more by $3.50 than the original cost of the automobile.

Trapper was allowed to go back to work until Saturday when he could raise the necessary wherewithall to pay his fine.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

So live, seizing each opportunity,
No chances lost, no single duty spurned.
A fit inscription o'er your tomb may be
"This is the only scene he left unturned."

QUICK JUSTICE

Not often does punishment follow so quickly on the heels of crime as in the case of young Harold Clough, of St. Catharines. Harold, only 19 years old, appears to have suddenly developed an ambition to be a real bandit. He got a revolver and, with a scarf to serve as a mask, he started on his career of crime. Entering the office of a coal dealer, and with his face so swathed in the scarf as to conceal his features, he shoved his "gun" against the ribs of his intended victim and demanded money. His intended victim, so far from responding to the demand, picked up a chair and was preparing to make a fight of it when Harold lost courage and made his escape. A few hours later he was captured by the local police and made a full confession. In the afternoon he was brought before the police magistrate, pleaded guilty to the charge of attempted robbery, and was sentenced to a term of five years in the penitentiary. Within seven hours of his appearance in the role of bandit he received his sentence.

It is well for the lad that his career of crime was so quickly and suddenly cut off. If he had succeeded in his first hold-up and got away with a considerable sum of money, he would have been encouraged to embrace banditry as his permanent profession, and might soon have found himself condemned to imprisonment for the great or part of his life, or on the way to the gallows. As it is, he has a chance to reform and become a useful member of society while still a young man.

STEPPING ALONG

The mineral production of Ontario is approaching one hundred million dollars a year. Last year's total was $91,000,000. When the present century opened, the production was small, and children in Ontario schools were being taught that Ontario was not a mineral-bearing province to any extent. Now the prospect is that in addition to other great mineral wealth, Ontario will soon be the greatest gold-producing district in the world.

When the present century opened, too, little thought was being given to water power; little expectation existed that within a generation a tremendous gain would be made in industry, in commerce, in household economy and advantage, by development of water power.

When the present century opened, motoring was but beginning, good roads were non-existent, the prophecy that motor tourists would bring a great wealth into the province would have been ridiculed.

So, within a generation, there new sources of wealth have been tapped for Ontario—and similar gains through out all Canada—and within a generation the production of the western grain fields has quadrupled.

Yet our people have not increased very greatly in numbers. If taxation in this country, national, provincial and municipal is heavy, there is a more than corresponding wealth to meet it.

LIFE INSURANCE

There could be no more acceptable form of thrift than life insurance. It not only shows a praiseworthy disposition on the part of the assured to make provision for the future, but it is proof of an unselfish concern for the welfare of others. The fact, therefore, that nearly a billion dollars' worth of new life insurance was written in this Dominion last year is one which is greatly to the credit of the Canadian people. The wage-earner even the small wage-earner, is being educated to the wisdom and advantage of insuring his life, according to his means and the various companies must be given the credit for awakening this sense of responsibility. The growth of business within the last decade has been most remarkable. The greater the prosperity of the insurance companies, the greater the advantage derived by their clients. It is as much to the interest of the company as the insured that life should be prolonged as much as possible, and for this reason, as a rule, valuable health services—free periodical physical examinations, with skilled advice, etc.—go with the policies. Regarded as a saving scheme alone, insurance is becoming increasingly popular, not only with individuals but with institutions, who, through endowment policies, make special provision, on advantageous terms, for their future requirements.

There is one phase of insurance which continues to cause some disappointment to the companies, and that is the problem of the lapsed policy. This is, of course, no new development; in fact, a slight improvement is reported in this respect. But there are still too many people who, after the payment of a premium or two, allow their policies to lapse. Both the Dominion and the provincial governments' insurance departments are co-operating with the insurance companies to minimize this trouble. There are doubtless cases in which the insured find it impossible to keep up the payment of their premiums; but in many instances it is due to sheer neglect and improvidence that the effort is discontinued. The benefits of insurance are, fortunately, generally recognized, but those benefits are to be enjoyed only if the terms of the contract are fulfilled. It is the more to be deplored that those who are prone to lapse their policies are the very people who are most in need of protection.

OTHER MEN'S THOUGHTS

We can't imagine what other nations mean by speaking of "lawless Americans." Haven't we got more laws than all of them combined? — Cincinnati Times-Star.

Great Britain without committing herself to any further guaranties such as those involved in the neutbond protocol proposals, is now in a position to take diplomatic action with very considerable effect if at any point the European situation should again become acute. Not for a long time has British prestige abroad stood as high as it is today. That is an asset which the present Government has carefully built up and which it has taken great care not to dissipate by any form of extravagance. There has been no departure from the policy of patient effort on the basis of real achievement. —London Times.

The Scripture lesson was in full swing.

"Can any boy or girl tell why Adam was made a man?" asked the teacher.

After a few moments' silence a little voice piped out:

"Please, milh, if he'd been made a baby there wouldn't have been nobody to nurse him."

"I suppose," he remarked to a native onlooker, "that even in these isolated parts the bare necessities of life have risen tremendously in price."

"Yer right, stranger," replied the native, gloomily, "an' it ain't worth drinkin' when yo get it."

THE PASSING YEARS
(From The Intelligencer of this day 30 years ago)

Five cars of cheese and four cars of apples were shipped from here today.

Mr. W. C. Mikel had the misfortune to slip on the icy sidewalk in front of his office about ten o'clock this morning and badly sprained his ankle. He was assisted to the office of Drs. Gibson and MacColl where his foot was dressed.

The meeting in the Y.M.C.A. yesterday afternoon was conducted by Mr. W. W. Chown and General Secretary Herdman. A number of those present took part in the meeting. Next Sunday's meeting will be led by Mr. N. D. McArthur who will leave the city shortly.

Miss McIninch who has been visiting at her home in Cananoque, returned to the city yesterday.

Rev. S. Daw, now of Hamilton met with a very severe accident last Friday night. While on his way to choir practice he slipped and fell breaking his arm and cutting his face badly.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Bishop returned Saturday from a two weeks' visit to the former's relatives in Owen Sound.

THE MOTHER'S HYMN

Lord, who ordainest for mankind
Benignant toils and tender cares!
We thank thee for the ties that bind
The mother to the child she bears.

We thank thee for the hopes that rise
Within her heart, as, day by day,
The dawning soul from those dear eyes
Looks, with a clearer, steadier ray.

And grateful for the blessing given
With that dear infant on her knee,
She trains the eye to look to heaven,
The voice to lisp a prayer to thee.

Such thanks the blessed Mary gave
When from her lap the Holy Child
Sent from on high to seek and save
The lost of earth, looked up and smiled.

All-Gracious! grant, to those who bear
A mother's charge, the strength and light
To lead the steps that own their care
In ways of Love, and Truth, and Right.

—William Cullen Bryant.

THRESHING AT CARDSTON

Lethbridge, Alta., January 10.—Threshing was resumed in the Cardston district yesterday, a Chinook wind having cleared off the snow. It is estimated that more than thirty per cent. of the Southern Alberta wheat crop remains to be threshed.

THE NEW YEAR

Over the bills breaks the dawn of the New Year
And we perceive look back on the year that has gone
Gone and for ages with its joys and its sorrows,
Its hopes and its fears forever has flown.

Old faces and friends now swiftly come stealing
Into our heart as in days long, gone by,
Their mirth and their gladness as often have cheered us,
In their youth and their beauty they passed and we sigh.

For the friends whom we lost long ago in the journey,
The many long years though it seems like a day
Since we leaned and we mourned over hill, dale and river,
Life was then a sweet song, with notes glad and gay.

Still they come, old faces, young faces all dear ones,
Come crowding around and with joy we look back,
On the hours we spent in the light of their presence,
They have never known change; they're the same to us yet.

There are others that come but we banish forever
The thought of the friends who were but for a day,
Their love and their friendship was like the Traffic
That bloomed and was borne on the light and away.

There's something that tells us that all is not fruitless,
That bids us hope on though clouds gather round,
And the New Year that's coming may bring us a blessing,
And peace, yes and peace, when all love shall abound.

We shall meet by and by in the life that's immortal,
In that clime where no clouds or darkness shall come
To all love and all hope will come the fruition,
Then we gather at last in that land we call Home.

No more shall despair claim our best and our bravest;
No more shall the tyrant usurp and oppress,
One Ruler will claim and His banner spread o'er us,
Will be peace and good-will and at last will find rest.

MATILDA ARTHUR.
Ann St., Belleville.

"AUTUMN"

It's autumn. The birds are all leaving the north-land.
Flying down South to their new winter home.
It's autumn. The trees are bereft of their foliage
Where but a month back 'neath their shade one could roam.

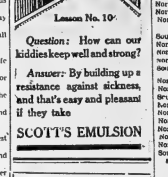

The wind is a-sweeping the bright-colored forest.
The leaves, past their glory are fallen and dead.
The squirrels gather acorns from oak tree and hickory.
It's hard to believe how quick summer has sped.

The people are banking the sides of their houses,
With leaves from the forest once bright and so gay.
In city, on farm, they're preparing for winter.
The farmers now have all their barns full of hay.

It's autumn. The flowers are dead by the roadside.
The grass once so green is now brown and sere,
But don't you be worrying. Before you notice it,
These things will be back in just a short year.

IT PERHAPS a switch, or some little gadjet, and a lot of things happen around a home that lighten labor and banish trouble. A whirling fan brings a cooling breeze, and a little copper, dish-like affair throws out a sizzling blast that warms the room in no time.

Another button boils coffee, toasts bread and cooks waffles. Another does a better job than a broom, another makes a happy laundress out of dismal washwoman. Another one cools the icebox. Another—but why go on?

Labor and time saving devices have come and are to-day within the reach of the humblest home.

And one of the chief reasons why they have come and why they are within the reach of the humblest home is the power of advertising.

Advertising has carried the news of these better ways of doing things to every home. It has created a desire to possess them, and countless thousands have purchased them, and live better because of them.

Reading advertising not only tells you about new, helpful mechanical devices for the home, but it is an unfailing guide to reliable products.

Mr. George Ringsley, Proprietor of the Crystal Hotel, today stated to The Intelligencer that some unreliable people are circulating rumors which leads him with such to say that he did not want the patronage of any of the people from Madoc and the northern section of the County.

"That is not true," said Mr. Kingsley. "What I do say is that I do not want people using the conveniences of my hotel and then getting their meals at restaurants and other places."

This well-known hotelman says that he has money to break a hotel and keep its conveniences in repair and he does not think he is unreasonable when he requests that reliable people who avail themselves of these privileges should patronize his dining-room instead of cafeterias.

ANGLO-CATHOLIC PLAN IS BARRED

Pope Pius Says No Re-Union Except By Return To Rome

Rome, Jan. 10.—Pope Pius today issued an encyclical which is taken here to remove all hopes concerning the possibility of re-uniting of the former Anglican conversations," of recent years which sought to find a means of re-uniting Anglicanism with Rome. The late Cardinal Mercier, Archbishop of Malines, Lord Halifax of England and other prelates and laymen took part in these conversations.

The Pontiff in his encyclical, said that the union of Christians can only be effected by return of dissenters to the original church of Rome. In the document which is the first encyclical of the new year, the Pontiff restated the church's age long stand upon this question, emphasizing that while it is sad to cultivate charity among Christians, it should not be done to the detriment of the faith upon which that very charity is founded.

Priests are registering atrocity in New York, with special emphasis on stories with all round Atlantic City predictions for the very full skirt, and wide lapels—pants are a preferred result in the sports field, while in instances where they are adopted in soft clothes frocks, narrow side pleats are the order.

Paris notes the newest afternoon frocks are sleeveless—and they have high necks and sometimes the high neck is finished with a straight collar and sometimes a narrow band of velvet ribbon is tied loosely at one side.

New stockings will last longer if they are washed before they are worn. Wash them in warm water to which a few drops of ammonia has been added. Rinse well in clear water.

ODDFELLOWS' NEW OFFICERS

Visitors From Surrounding Lodges Present For Open Ceremony

Open installation of the subordinate and encampment was held last evening in the Oddfellows' Temple, Front Street, when visitors were present from district lodges including Trenton, Picton, Frankford and Stirling. The ceremonies were conducted by D.D.G.M. Brother A. B. Shurie of Trenton, assisted by D.D.G.P. James Duckworth of Belleville. After the installation ceremonies the guests adjourned to the banquet hall where a spread had been prepared by the Ladies of the Rebekah Lodge.

The Grand Lodge was the first toast proposed by Bro. J. O. Heritz and responded to by D.D.G.M. Shurie of Trenton and Grand Secretary H. B. Ranson of Belleville.

"The Grand Encampment" was proposed by P.D.D.G.P. C. O. Way and responded to by D.D.G.P. James Duckworth and Grand Sentinel W. Ralls.

"Rebekah Lodge" was proposed by Bro. W. F. Ponton and responded to by Mrs. Cornish and Mrs. Rutherford.

"Visiting Brothers" was proposed by Bro. B. O. Gilbert and responded to by Bro. Blake Ketcheson and others.

Bro. R. H. Ketcheson presided as chairman of the evening.

The officers are: Belleville Lodge No. 81—S. W. Burns—N.G.; Herbert V. O. F. Louker, Recording Secretary; C. P. Pratt, Financial Secretary; A. Cook, Treasurer.

THAMES ON FIRE TO TEST DANGER

Ten Tons Of Petrol Ignited On Surface Of The River

London, January 10.—Setting the Thames on fire is often used to denote an unusual accomplishment, but the river was literally set ablaze yesterday when ten tons of petrol were ignited on a creek off the Thames.

The petrol formed an experiment made in connection with the Ministry of Transport's inquiry into a proposal of the Port of London Authority to allow petroleum in bulk to be brought up the Thames beyond the point at present allowed, the idea being to ascertain the duration of the risk attending floating oil.

The oil was added in load for three hours after high water, and the creek took so little made-up-ness to be deeply is had settled. At the end of that time the petrol was found to have had not evaporated but drifted into a space about 11 miles long and 200 yards wide, and behind the flame moved quickly. Within a few seconds a huge pillar of fire was leaping hundreds of yards into the air.

For nine minutes the mighty flames roared, sending up gigantic clouds of smoke and causing some nearby sheds to catch fire, but otherwise there was little damage done. For such time after the flames had subsided an enormous cloud of smoke was carried down-river in the direction of the North Sea. The extinction of nearly half a mile of fire drove the results of yesterday's tests.

QUEBEC ASSEMBLY OPENED SESSION

Quebec, Jan. 10.—First session of the seventeenth Legislature of Quebec was opened here today with ceremony customary on such occasions by Lieutenant-Governor Hon. Narcisse Perodeau. Galleries in the Legislative Assembly chamber were crowded a new comer to the ceremony being Hon. SIX MONTHS FOR A LITTLE DRINK

Quarrelsome Quartette Fall Into Police Hands—Third Offense

Four young men last night, arguing fiercely in a back alley, were reported to the police by a passing pedestrian. Police Officer Arthur Booth investigated and finding all under the influence of liquor, took them down to the police station.

This morning in court two of them appeared before Magistrate Mikel, one having been discharged as not being drunk (Thomas Mathews and one failing to appear (Fred Elliott.) The latter's half hand was forfeited and a war rant sworn out for his arrest.

The other two of the quartette did not fare so easily. Harry Mattice, only 23 years of age, but a hardened offender, came up for the third time before Magistrate Mikel. This is three times under the Liquor Control Act that Mattice has been convicted of drunkenness, and this time he will serve six months in jail.

"Harry Mattice," stated the Magistrate, "I would like to send you to the insane asylum. Unable to do this, however, I sentence you to six months in the common jail for the County of Hastings."

The fourth member of the quarrelsome quartette, Harry MacDonald, was given a fine of $15.00 and $7.00 costs by His Worship. This was MacDonald's first offense.

MURRELL WILL BE EXTRADITED SOON

Toronto, Jan. 10.—General Victor Murrell, commissioner of Provincial Police stated today that so far no arrangements have been made for the extradition of Gerald Edward Wm. Murrell, who has been arrested at Los Angeles, and who is charged in connection with the murder of Russell Campbell at Melbourne, Ontario, seven years ago.

It is considered probable that the usual formal extradition proceedings will be instituted through Washington, in which case at least six weeks will elapse before Murrell can be brought back.

A reward of three thousand dollars is standing for Murrell's arrest, one thousand being offered by the Ontario Government, and the remainder by London, Ont., the nearest city to Melbourne.

25 DEATHS FROM AGUARDIENTE

Madrid, January 10.—There have been no any-line deaths from bootleg liquor in El Arbich, Morocco, the Spanish Government newspaper tells, of the effect of the drinking of aguardiente.

NUNS AT PRAYER ESCAPED DANGER

Nairobi, East Africa, Jan. 10—Renewed earthquakes have occurred throughout Kenya, and another heavy shock at Naivasha was felt early today. A great fissure which was torn in the side of the mountain near Lake Barrings yesterday is unusually large. It is about nine miles long and nearly ten feet wide.

Nuns in a Catholic Mission at Fort Hall narrowly escaped death as the heavy stone wall of their dormitory collapsed, falling stones smashed the beds, but fortunately all the nuns were in prayer at the time in the chapple.

BIG SHOW OPENS

Many Entries

There are over 700 entries in the show this year, all fine birds. The judges are to be Judge Warrington, of Cotnwall, and Messrs. Aikens and Thomas.

Prominent among the entries are the Orpingtons, the Brahmas and the Wyandottes. Especially in the Wyandotte class are there many beautiful birds and the judges will have their hands full when it comes to the judging of the final. On Wednesday afternoon, from 4 o'clock until 6 o'clock the school children of the city will have a chance to see all the birds.

The Ontario government will have an exhibition of eggs at the show this year. A man is to be sent down, also by the government, to demonstrate the best way of killing and plucking the birds. This should be of great interest to farmer, and breeders of fowl in this district. All those will willingly give any information to fanciers of fowl of any kind to the best of their ability.

Fees at the Show

Already placed in cages this morning, some beautiful pheasants, entered by Mr. Moore presented a fine appearance as did Jack Minett's wild geese and wild ducks. Of especial interest to children were the rabbits and little "bunnies" on exhibition. In the Pigeon class were two beautiful angora "bunnies", just young rabbits, but with a fine, silky coat of hair.

Among the pigeons were a pair with one baby pigeon, as naked as the day it was born, and eyes yet unopened. The mother would not feed its infant while the curious spectators were look ing on.

Further up the line are some Pantail pigeons, numerous white ones, and one or two pairs of coloured birds. In the bottom cages, beneath the pigeons were some rabbits, mostly of the bluish-grey coated variety.

In this year's exhibition there have been entries from outside points which should give local competitors a keen run. Birds that have been shown at the Ottawa Winter Fair and last summers Canadian National Exhibition are included in some of the entries.

The peach bowl has been the direct cause of many an unfriendly punch.

TODAYS MARKETS

U. S. Steel Slumps

New York, Jan. 10.—A promising rally in the stock market today following the announcement of an unexpect ed large increase of half a million tons in unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation was nipped in the bud by a load of selling orders shortly after mid-day. United States steel which had led in the recovery with an advance of nearly two points to 150 1-2 subsequently plunged to 146 1-2 as large amounts of the stock were offered.

The sudden slump in steel common dismayed operators for an advance working with other prominent stocks and lusty unloading was soon in progress in many quarters of the list. General Motors toppled from the day's high of 134 to 130 1-8 and Radio Corporation, which had touched 104 1-4 retreated to 99.

GRAIN PRICES SAG

Chicago, Jan. 10.—Preparations for the government crop report due this afternoon occupied much of the grain traders' time and prices early tended to sag. Considerable notice was taken of forecast of large clearances of Argentine wheat this month. Opening at a shade lower to 1-4c advance, Chicago wheat underwent a moderate general set-back. Corn and oats were also easy. Corn started unchanged to 1-4c lower after opening estimates all around. Provisions held firm.

CHILDREN CLASSIFIED BY BRAIN CAPACITY

By LOUIS E. BISCH

No test has ever created quite so much stir and comment as the Binet-Simon Measuring Scale for Intelligence, otherwise known simply as the Binet Test.

Binet and Simon were two French physicians who made a study of the intellectual capacity of Paris school children and as a result of this extensive research they devised a scale by which children may be examined in order to determine their normality or subnormality.

The scale consists of a series of questions, five usually being grouped under each year, and they cover the years three to twelve inclusive.

An average, normal child, for instance, should be able to answer correctly all questions listed under its own age and all questions under all young er years.

A four-year-old should be able to know whether he is a boy or girl. He should be able to recognize a key, a knife and a penny. He should be able to repeat a number of three figures such as 728. He should also be able to tell what the two lines of almost equal length in the zolger.

Again, an eight-year-od child should know the difference between a fly and a butterfly, between wood and glass, and between paper and cloth. He should be able to count backwards from 20 to 1. He should be able to give the days of the week. He must count three one-cent and three two-cent stamps together. He should be able to repeat a number of five figures such as 47,285.

Similar questions are listed for the other years. If a child's "mental age", according to the test, is three or more years below the child's actual chronological age, the child is suspected of being mentally defective.

If the child measures one year below or possibly two, mental retardation is considered as present.

Often a perfectly normal child does not answer correctly all the questions listed under his appropriate year. He may, however, answer some questions in the next year ahead or the next two years ahead, and so make up for his errors, and still measure according to his age.

Because a six-year old child answers only three of the questions listed under six but answers the seven under and one under eight. That child will still be considered a normal six-year-old child.

The psychologists would say that he measures "six, plus." The Benit test looks easy enough to give to a child but such is not the case.

A person who is experienced both in the giving of the test and in interpreting the test is required.

There is also a tendency in testing a child to make undue allowances, thinking the child has misunderstood what is required of him. Binet himself has set forth certain rules that every tester must strictly adhere to.

If these rules are not followed to the letter the test is valueless. The Binet test as well as all other mental tests are very valuable in estimating a child's intelligence.

But untrained persons should not be relied upon as testers.

Many a mother and father have been worried half sick because some unqualified examiner, without the proper psychological and scientific background asserted that their child was mentally enfeebled.

It would be well if every child were examined by the Binet test, or by the more recent Stanford Revision of the same test, by some other standard and recognized testing procedure.

A child's schooling and training can then be directed most intelligently.

Many schools and hospitals employ Binet testers as part of their regular staffs.

WHAT'S NEW
(From a Woman's Standpoint)

The tunic theme is emphasized in the advance season collections appearing in the actual tunic, or suggested across the front only, depicted up in front and down at the sides, the back of the dress remaining a flat line through two box pleats on either side from shoulder to hem, while in another instance the tunic is slashed in front to allow for a centre drape pooled over a skirt lavishly trimmed with metallic stitching.

New York states that brown fur coats with mink and beaver leading, are an almost unanimous choice of women returning recently from Europe and these are made simply and trimmed only with the pelt itself.

Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

When your fingers become stained with fruit apply strong tea with a nail brush and rinse in tepid water.

When washing lace curtains, if no curtain stretcher is available, hang them while wet on curtain rods, pin them to the sheet under the window sill and in the cracks on the sides of the window and they will dry perfectly.

If house plants droop from no apparent cause and refuse to thrive, try watering them solely by pouring warm water into the saucers every day. Plants love bottom heat, and it will sometimes give them a new lease of life.

Wives
of Railway Men should have them flash the red light against pneumonia, bronchitis, La Grippe or croup.

CHAPTER 38
THE RATHER BROKEN REED

Lila's questioning gaze went from her husband to the retund, shabby man who sat peacefully in a comfortable chair.

"Lila," said Herbert stonily, "this is your Uncle Dan from South America."

With that, white-faced, blazing of eye, he dashed from the room, as if he dared not trust himself further.

Lila's heart almost stopped beating. She went as pale as Herbert. Words refused to come.

"Hello, little niece," said the caller affably. "You don't know me, of course. I was a bit before your time. But, I dare say, you won't mind giving a mild man a little kiss of greeting."

Mechanically, Lila approached him. He took her by both shoulders, pressed his lips to her forehead, then held her off, and scrutinized her.

"Faith—is the life!" he murmured. "My dear, you're the image—and the only person in this world that I ever worshipped."

Lila said dazedly: "Uncle Dan, how do you happen to be here?"

"Just dropped in for the evening," he told her. "I went to call on your father, but he didn't seem overjoyed at the sight of me. I'm leaving for the west tonight, but I couldn't go away without seeing Faith's little girl."

"Herbert—" Lila clutched his sleeve with cold fingers. "Did you talk much to Herbert?"

"Quite a bit. Quite a bit," he assured her. "Nice young chap. A little formal, but very polite to an old man."

"Listen, Uncle Dan," said Lila, as she seated herself beside him, "what did you and Herbert talk about? Did he ask you anything about a—a legacy?"

"Legacy? Whose legacy?"

"Yours," she said breathlessly. "Well, not exactly a legacy, but a—a gift of ten thousand dollars to me that was to be turned over to a fund for disabled soldiers."

Her uncle eyed her shrewdly. "So that's it? That's what your husband was driving at?"

Lila made a despairing gesture. "Then he did drink about it?"

"Sure he did. And I thought that he was crazy—or that I was."

Lila sprang to her feet, wringing her hands frenziedly.

"Oh, whatever shall I do? Uncle Dan, you've got to help me." She came back to him. "Listen, I—I had ten thousand dollars. It was a—a gift from a source I preferred not to reveal to Herbert. So I gave it to a charity, and, when Herbert found out about it, I—I told him the money came from you; that—that you sent it in memory of a son who'd been killed in the war."

Her uncle looked at her admiringly. "You're good, Lila. You're good. Would ever have thought of such an ingenious explanation?"

"But don't you see," she cried, "that you've probably deeded the money thing—"

"Sure I have," he chuckled. "I told him I'd never been married, too."

'A Dress that Sings
'Bring Me a Rose"

HONEST, no she stands holding a flower in her hand does not realize, unless she is a very self-conscious little girl—and she looks far too well loved to be that—just how much she resembles a flower herself. The little frock, based on a foliage motif, is full of rose-like, with its bright leafage at waist and cuffs. It comes quite the lovely for the head and would be in crepe de chine or a silk with crepe finish. Its charming lines would not be altered by the necessity of making it so simple and charming as this one! Made in light weight jersey with contrasting bands of crepe it would relieve or suit to match, or in the bright shades of wool with a touch of darker shade of the same material it would be delightful. Ribbon and bead snake tasks more pleasing. Red and blue bead plaits across the front are very smart. (Copyright, 1927, by Bell Syndicate.

Lila hid her face in her hands. Her shoulders shook.

He patted her shoulder reassuringly. "Of course, you will. Trust your Uncle Dan. I've got you out. Only, Lila, tell me this—was there anything crooked about that ten thousand dollars you got?"

She lifted wondering eyes.

"I don't know what you mean?"

"Neither do I—quite. But—there wasn't a man mixed up in it, was there?"

Lila lowered her gaze.

"No, Uncle Dan," she said, in a low voice.

"That's the girl!" He patted her shoulder again. "Heaven knows I've no right to preach, but I'd rather swim in brimstone than see Faith's daughter farmed. It doesn't pay to go crooked, Lila. I found that out."

"Yes, I know that I——" Lila laughed hysterically.

"I don't think a single thing," he assured her. "Only—there, there, days. I understand it's pretty easy for a girl to get into all sorts of trouble. Well, we won't talk about it. I'll fix it so your story stands with your husband. At least, I'll try to. It'll be kind of hard to acquire a son who was killed in the war, though."

Lila kissed him.

"I'll love you forever, if you'll only help me. You don't know how jealous and exacting Herbert is. I adore him, and that makes it worse."

"I'll do the best I can, Lila," he promised.

Lila tried to feel reassured, but she was cold with fear.

CHAPTER 39.
BROKEN FRIENDSHIP

Jack Fairquhar was the goodly uptown in a taxi. His lean dark face was stern; his gray eyes boded ill for some one; his handsome mouth was set in a grim line.

"There's a gentleman waiting to see you in your room, Captain Farquahar," the hotel clerk told him, as he passed through the lobby. "He's been waiting some time."

Farquahar nodded, ascended in the elevator, and opened his door.

Gilroy Holmes was lounging comfortably in that room—smoking a cigarette.

"You're a cool one," he laughed. "You gave me an appointment for five o'clock this afternoon, and it's now a quarter past six. And I passed up tea with a darned attractive girl, too."

Farquahar closed the door and leaned against it. His mouth was unsmiling.

"You'd have lost out anyway," he said quietly. "I've other fish with me."

Holmes stared at him in astonishment.

"You know Miss Mason?"

Farquahar spoke his head; an ironical gleam had come into his eyes.

"No. Lila knew the girl with whom you were undoubtedly planning to have tea. She happens to be my fiance."

"Are you crazy?" demanded Holmes.

"No. Only pretty mad—and pretty disgusted."

"I don't know what you're talking about."

"It's no use pretending, Holmes. She admitted it herself."

"See here," Holmes got to his feet and advanced toward his friend, "do I understand that you're telling that some girl has engaged to you, claims she was having tea with me? Why, man, you said yesterday that you are still engaged to Lila Latham."

"Exactly," said Farquahar dryly.

"Then how—" Holmes became bewildered.

Farquahar took a step toward him. His face was not pleasant to see.

"I trusted you, Holmes. You knew that Lila and I were pledged to each other. Wasn't it playing it rather low down on a pal to take advantage of his being supposedly bumped off in the line of duty, and to make love to his girl, as soon as he was safely out of the way?"

"That's a lie!" flared Holmes. "Whoever told you such stuff——"

"Lila!" was the calm reply.

Holmes was staggered.

"Lila? Are you crazy? I haven't set eyes on Lila Latham since the night we had that row—quarrel—about you and you and I moved up the line."

Farquahar quited contemptuously. He walked over to the table, selected a cigarette from a box, and lit it. Then he asked himself on the edge of the table and regarded Holmes with cold eyes.

"I'd expect you to deny it," he said quietly.

Homes was red and angry.

"See here, Jack, there's been some mistake. Lila can't have told you any such rot. Use your common sense, man. If there had been such an affair she'd be she last one to confess it."

"It wasn't exactly Lila who confessed it," said Farquahar carefully. "It was a friend of hers who reminded her of what she'd confessed—and I happened, by accident, to overhear it."

Holmes uttered a relieved exclamation; "Oh, if that's all!"

"All!" echoed Farquahar wrathfully.

"Well, don't you see," argued Holmes, "if you only overheard something, perhaps, then what was actual by said? How do you know what the two girls were referring to, or whether they were in earnest ? Did you ask Lila about what you heard?"

"Naturally."

"And what did she say?"

"She denied it—naturally."

"Had she any explanation?"

Farquahar pulled grimly.

"None that was logical or convincing."

"Well, that's a prerogative of women."

Farquahar swung himself off the table. He came close to Holmes. His eyes were like tiny pin-points of brilliance.

"You were my friend, Holmes. I think I'd have given my life for you. But that's neither here nor there, now I've got this to say: You keep away from Lila. I'll overlook the past, as far as she's concerned, but as for you he walked to the door and flung it open.

"Get out!"

With a shrug, Holmes picked up his hat and went.

Farquahar flung himself into a chair and stared moodily at the wall. A friend lost. A friend whom he loved! And the girl whom he loved—what of her?

Advice to Girls
By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my teens and have been corresponding with a boy for about four months. About two months ago I wrote to him but did not get any reply. I thought possible he did not get my letter, so I wrote him a note. He answered stating that he had not received my letter and asked me to continue our correspondence. I answered but did not get any reply again. Now do you think I should drop him another note?

BOB.

BOB: I doubt if letters go astray twice in succession, my dear, and am inclined to think that this boy is not sincerely desirous of corresponding with you. I would advise you not to write to him again or make any further efforts to renew your correspondence until you hear from him. If your letter really went astray and he is interested in hearing from you, he will surely write to ask the reason for your silence. Then you may write and explain but not before.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am in love with a girl seventeen who will graduate from high school this year. I am thirty-five I know she loves me. She is a very quiet girl and this makes her seem older than she really is. We have planned to get married after she finishes school. Do you think there is too much difference in our ages?

BACHELOR.

BACHELOR: I am afraid the difference in your ages is too great for you to consider marrying this girl. Remember that though she may seem older on account of her quiet ways she is not so old and not immature and undeveloped mentally for a man of your experience. What do her parents say about this matter? I personally think that this girl needs a chance to develop and enjoy her youth; she is young and will tire down by the responsibilities of marriage.

They Tell How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Stood Between Them and the Hospital

MRS. SUSAN DAYMON
R. R. No. 2, Colborne, Ont.

Colborne, Ontario.—"When I was first married I was very thin and weak. I suffered all the time and doctored and took medicine. Life became a burden, and doctors said an operation could relieve, but my husband was opposed to that. I had seen Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine advertised, so I told my husband that I thought I would try it, that I might get some relief. I had not taken much bottle when I could feel it helping me. I took five bottles and had better health. Now I have three girls and a boy, and do all my work. I am now at the Change of Life and know my good health is due to E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Susan Daymon, R. R. No. 2, Colborne, Ontario

Another Bad Case Remedied

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I am writing to let you know what the Vegetable Compound has done for me. My last trouble was a displacement and a female weakness, and I was in a great deal of pain. I had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before I was married, and when I was married I wrote to you for some advice, and followed it. I soon felt like a new woman. I have used the Compound since then, and I took the Vegetable Compound and used the Sanative Wash. After taking the Sanative Wash and the Vegetable Compound I felt fine, and when I was taking the Compound I did was on the road to recovery. I had my pains and discouragement and weakness and nervousness, and have never healthy boys and girls. I have done praising your medicine."—Mrs. Anne Prantzalos, 2311 Bears Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

RECOVER BODIES OF 21 VICTIMS

Gas--Explosion And After-Damp Responsible for Miners' Deaths

Westfrankfort, Ill., Jan. 10.—Gas, the invisible menace of the coal miner has added twenty-one lives to its lengthening list as a result of a terrific gas explosion in the passage of the Peabody Industrial Mine number 18, six hundred feet under ground and more than a mile from the surface opening. Most of the miners were killed outright while others died of afterdamp, that followed the explosion.

Three miner crews fought their way through gas and crumbled walls of coal and timber to bring others to the surface. Two of the dead men were found within a few feet of fresh air and safety. Another had made his way nearly to a trap door where he could have escaped. A task called by David McPhail to save his brother Robert was related. David upon hearing the blast rushed into the pit passage and after three dashes into the deadly gas found his brother, but was forced to drop him within fifteen feet of fresh air.

State and county investigations today sought to fix the explosion's cause. A. D. Lewis, state director of miners, who put on "pit" clothing and made a personal inspection was conducting the State's investigation while coroner Jon Hill of Franklin county impanelled a jury to investigate the disaster for the county.

JAMES MILES BOOTH SCORES A SUCCESS IN BOSTON RECITAL

Former Belleville Soloist Commended By Music Critics

Many Bellevillians will be interested in the following eloquent tribute from a Boston newspaper. They are extracts taken from a report of a recital recently given by James Miles Booth a Belleville boy.

Boston, Jan. 10.— A number of things combined to make a pleasant evening of music at Jordan Hall yesterday. Mr. James Miles Booth, of unmistakably attractive voice, was the singer, and Mrs. Margaret Kent Hubbard, his able accompanist. A small but friendly audience heard them. Mr. Booth's program was excellent from beginning to end. It began with older music and came down the centuries to the present time. Two of the composers whose songs he sang—Miss Gladys Pitcher and Mrs. M. H. Gulliam—were present and they received the salutations of singers and audience alike.

Mr. Booth's program merits further comment. His first numbers were three old English, tunes and an old Highland song from the eighteenth and seventeenth centuries, proving that not all lovely melodies of the period come from Mediterranean regions. Of Brahms he sang four songs, including "Es Hing Der Reif" and "Verrat," and of Grieg he sang four more, likewise eloquent—"Ein Traum Hethe," "Einlos," "Mit Einem Primula Veris," and "Eros." There was also a melody from Mozart. Lastly, the American group were all worthy, among them Chadwick's, "Ballad of Trees and the Master," Mrs. Pitcher's lilting "Atswood Song," Grant-Schaefer's precious piece, "The Sea," and Mrs. Gulliam's "The Two Cats," a witty and skilfully characterized whimsy.

As a singer, Mr. Booth is announced as a baritone, a fact which were it not for the usual classifications of singers are often of little descriptive publication. Indeed, in the advertisement Ranges Mr. Booth's voice has a sweetness of quality which many a tenor would envy, and what might pass for his "baritone" voice is such as few baritone singers possess. His "head" voice is what it should be, smooth and firm, lacking that hollow hookiness of unmusical fraternity, though it may want a little in power. Generally, therefore, he has a voice of wide range which moves fluently from one register to another without noticeable break or variance of quality. The tones themselves are round and expansive if need be, or soft as befits the mood in the ballad voice, whenever his technique and present skill are sufficient to hold steady the stream of breath. With such a vocal instrument as a foundation, Mr. Booth should be heard in opera and in many places to increasing advantage.

As an interpreter, Mr. Booth is able rather than dramatic. He sings with restraint, direct rather than overbold, at all times mindful of enforcing the declamations of the dramatic song or and the effusions of the erratic in preference for the meditative, leaving style which consummation ever was the province of the best singing of a lesser day. His manner, however, was a little too leisurely, and it invited attention to what was a shortcoming rather than in order of the progress or in his style of singing. One could have wished a little more virility, music last evening, especially at the beginning. Perhaps the number from Grieg would have changed place with those of Brahms and the latter would have had more daring and their rhythms been accentuated their sweets polished.

In the matter of pronunciation, Mr. Booth revealed much pleasure by reason of his charmers, though once again a virtue out did itself in that elusive consonants sometimes were lost practitioner than was needful. With more his discrimination, however, did the singer fit phrase and thought, and in the use means he may be reared as highly skilled as well. In sum his was a commendable art that as subtly enhanced the pathaplastic lament of "Verrat," and kindling the ire with the ball-rolic humorous of "Ein Traum Hethe." The encores of "Mit Einem Primulus Veris" and the passion of "Eros." M.M.J.

Boston, Jan. 10.—So far at the Jordan Hall recitals we encountered in the new year has been unsatisfactory. At that exhibition last evening James Miles Booth, a young Canadian bass-baritone was heard in a most admirable programme made doubly delightful by the singer's rich voice, his sympathetic and tasteful singing. Booth is the type basso-baritone applied to the Canadian singer of all that is implied by that term. He has a voice of unusual range and beautiful quality of tone and the fluidity of the other. Of a quite exceptional range is this voice and throughout its wide compass its quality is of almost uniform excellence.

For the first part of his programme Mr. Booth chose broadly 19th century English songs. A Stern folk-song and a song by Mallinson in the older style, "L'Addio," an unfamiliar and beautiful song by Mozart, came next, to be followed by four songs each from Brahms and Grieg and four contemporary songs in English.

In his opening group Mr. Booth was forcibly fortunate. Of one or another of the songs of Haydn Mallinson more might be made, but with music of these days one cannot live long. Their slender hopes for mercy centred on Governor Alfred E. Smith, who indicated he had little sympathy with the pleas oft heir counsel. Ruth Snyder 31 and her paramour, Henry Judd Gray 43, who on Thursday night will be executed in the death chair, sit in Sing Sing prison for the murder of Mrs. Snyder's husband, Albert Snyder, in their home in Queen's Village, New York City. Together they fell a time with picture view, elaborate and a window weight, after telling their stories of a party. All in view of the point and machines preen on the banks of the Hudson.

UNIFORM WOOD CARVING VOGUE

Uniformity Of Technique Noticed At Recent Engraving Exhibition

London, Eng.—By C. P.:—Perhaps the most remarkable thing about the English Wood-Engraving Society's recent exhibition at the Goupil Gallery, Grosvenor Street, Hanover-Square was the uniformity in technique of most of the work shown. Even the Times says: "Strictly all the exhibitors are accomplished in their craft, and in most cases a solid domain is well within their purview; the result is one unusual elaborate piece-working. But this point over the reader has one may suspect, taken out as part of the line of the artist, and the chief individual variations of opinion but rather in the selected and in the way of different kinds. By means, however, was a little too leisurely, and it invited attention to what was a shortcoming rather than in order of the progress or in his style of singing. One could have wished a little more virility, music last evening, especially at the beginning. Perhaps the number from Grieg would have changed place with those of Brahms and the latter would have had more daring and their rhythms been accentuated their sweets polished.

While the artist is at work he is not likely to turn his attention to any subject but personal problems of one or another, so that if his technique rather than his sensibility is what causes the public, this will not prevent him from expressing his poetical ideas. It is next simpler for individual sensibility as an artist. Perhaps in the way of poetry the most interesting work has been one John Smith's series of poems, plants, which hold truly sentimental thoughts. Indeed, the woodcut would seem to be a good medium for painting the emotions by terror, since there is the same quietness quality in Miss Cynthia Kerr's "Diver" and in Miss Gertrude Herman's sombres of plants.

"Blair Hughes-Stanton does succeed to certain a good individual design through perhaps that part of his work which is not so much a matter of intellect as of more sensibility is rather hampered by his medium. David Jones, in his illustration to the Deposition" has allowed himself a certain freedom from the restraints of the medium, and the design accordingly gains."

Outlook is a poor excuse for making the best of things.

Mr. Booth is now at his home in Belleville. For the present it is enough to say that he has a most delightful quality for their musical and poetic qualities.

In Mastered Kent Hubbard, Mr. Booth had the excellent support. His playing was accompanist, his sympathy, although not large, was appreciative.

MISSION BAND MET AT SHANNONVILLE

The Mission Band of Shannonville United Church met at the home of the two youngest members, Louis and Donald Leverton, twenty-five children were present and five ladies.

After the opening hymn and prayer Garnet Wilder read the scripture lesson from 34th Chapter of St. John. The program consisted of a reading by Bertha Houston, a recitation by Jean Kent, sont by Victor Pawlence and Garnet Wilder and a reading by Jean Reid. Mrs. W. S. Dies told the children the story of Samuel and asked questions which were promptly and correctly answered by the children showing how attentively they had listened to this favorite Bible story. Collection at this meeting 75c and membership fee 21.20. Mrs. Albert Seymour closed with prayer and sandwiches, cake and coffee were served.

The meeting of the S. W. M. S. was held at the home of Mrs. Fred Milburn, January 5th, 1928. After the singing of the opening hymn Miss Ina Liddle read the scripture lesson from the 34th Psalm followed by prayer by Mrs. Seymour Dies. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary and voted correct. It was decided to renew the subscriptions for magazine programs also that the Auxiliary buy the new study book. A quilting was arranged to be held at the home of Mrs. N. Gillies on the afternoon of January 17th, to be followed by a social evening. Each member to contribute two blocks, a plain one and a pieced one, toward the quilts, also to bring needles and cookies. Two dozen darts and a cake towards lunch.

A letter from Miss Mabel Blazie, of Pulteau was read by Mrs. H. Murphy thanking the Auxiliary for making her work the object of special prayer. A quotation from the letter followed: "When we realize what it means for women to have one day of the year all their lives it is hard to understand why every woman is a Christian have is not in the W. M. S. to lend the hand to their sisters in these heathen lands. Of course it is because they do not know conditions here or do not realize what the gospel has done for them."

Our district, Mrs. Irvin Doctor gave a splendid report of the Sectional meeting held at Foxboro on October. Roll was called, members repeating a verse of Scripture beginning with the initial of their first names. Readings were given by Mrs. Dies and Mrs. Murphy and Mrs. Seymour Dies closed the meeting with prayer. Collection amounted to $2.25. Lunch was served by the hostess and a half hour enjoyed by the ladies. Next meeting to be at the home of Mrs. Robert Kittle, Millbrook, February 2nd. All ladies are welcome.

"ALADDIN" AT CAPITOL FRIDAY

Capitol Theatre will present on Friday, January 13th, for one night only, "Aladdin," the first Old Country pantomime ever brought to Canada. The entire production, with scenic effects, dancers, principals and ensemble complete, will be presented here on precisely the same scale as in London, England. All Canada Tours, have brought this company over here. They had access gave the impression an opportunity of hearing the D'Oyly Carte Opera Company and Matheson Lang's production, and are also featuring Sir John Martin-Harvey, Seymour Hicks and other famous English theatrical stars here for tours of the Dominion this season.

Numerous enquiries received from those who have never witnessed Old Country pantomimes, indicate that there is a widespread misapprehension as to the real nature of pantomime entertainment, many people apparently being under the impression that it is devoid of spoken lines or of songs This, of course, is quite wrong. The English pantomime of today is remarkable for the number and tuneliness of its songs and the diverting nature of its dialogue, as well as for the charm of gorgeously changing scenes and costumes, while dancing is and always has been one of the leading features. The Capitol production by the company of fifty (including the famous Dancing English Beauties) shown.

The pantomime, presents the well known story of Aladdin and his wonderful lamp, familiar to children of every country. There are, of course, numerous variations, and in one of the essential principles of pantomime that topical allusions and up-to-date hits be plentiful and appropriate. The songs in this particular production include several entirely new lyrics. The music is of a high grade, and the comedy will be found sufficiently rewarding to tickle the palate of the most blase theatre-goer.

JUSTICE CURRAN DIES

She Gained Weight With McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets

You remember of course—not so long ago, she was a regular scarecrow—skinny is a mild word for the way she looked.

Just look at her now—if ever a woman had a perfect figure she has it—she is the envy of half the girls in town.

It's nothing to get excited about—all she did was to take on weight—filled out the hollows in face, neck and chest —any skinny, weak, run down woman can do the same and gain a clean, clear complexion at the same time.

McCoy takes all the risk—Read this ironclad guarantee. If after taking 4 forty cent boxes of McCoy's Cold Liver Extract Tablets or 2 one dollar boxes any thin, underweight man or woman doesn't gain at least 5 pounds and feel completely satisfied with the marked improvement in health—your druggist is authorized to return the purchase price.

CAPITOL THEATRE

"Heaven on Earth" the feature film offering at the Capitol for the first half of the week opened last evening before a good sized audience. Conrad Nagel is the popular leading man and Dorothy Mackaill the charming heroine of the big picture which "Rocky" will have with him time and with a good supporting cast. Suffice to make an interesting story of "Heaven on Earth". This picture is somewhat different from the ordinary run and combines the substance of an element of wealthy young man who breaks away from his mother and the better side of human nature is brought to the fore. He meets and falls in love with a girl in reduced circumstances and after adventures in her company an interest in a mine. It is another Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture and a good one also.

On the stage, music, singing and comedy. Fl Lafleur and Co. are offering for the first three days this week.

BELLE THEATRE

The most effective comic for the dynamic ability of a motion picture star is the character of Jeff in "Nanky" after two years in the director's chair. He defines that complex work with the completeness of a master. Comedy is a thing by itself, and my belief is that Mack is the easiest to direct of any characters, color he ever has worked with. Mr. Hale's return to the screen is quite necessary, for his collaboration with Cecil B. DeMille calls for him to direct several productions during the end, the year. Charles Ray is featured as leading man.

REGENT THEATRE

"Simple Sis" is an opportunely funny story and a perfectly plausible one. A heart-hungry laundry girl meets a kind-hearted policeman who protects her from a pickpocket, courts her, loses her, and finally wins her. During when she has rescued the waif she is mothering from a fire, marries her, so that she may have legal claim and keep the child.

Farenda was never funnier and she has never before had so great a chance to show the deeper springs of her genius. Her "Simple Sis" is a truly great characterization. Clyde Cook, her co-star is of all comedians the most casual and ingratiating and amusing. Everybody in the family should see "Simple Sis."—At Regent today.

MUD, STICKY MUD CONVICT'S UNDOING

London.—Dyke, a petty thief, forgetting petty criminal Pitman, a convict, Francis Eric Deacon, of Birmingham, dashed towards the fleeing Medina closely followed by warders. Coming to a mill pond fed by the river, he jumped in, apparently intending to swim across both, but stuck fast in the mud and was unable to move.

The warders got a boat, pulled out to him, and recaptured him without difficulty.

WEALTHY RESTAURATEUR

New York, Jan. 10.—John Donnlon for many years proprietor of "Jack's," an all-night restaurant in the theatrical district, left an estate estimated at between $2,000,000 and $4,000,000, it was revealed with the filing of his will today. The entire estate passes to members of the family.

BROKE THROUGH SKYLIGHT

Winnipeg, January 10.—Reaching the roof of the building by climbing a telegraph pole, burglars effected an entry into Robinson's clothing store on Portage Avenue during the night by breaking through a skylight and smashing the lock of an adjoining office. The robbers forced open a safe and decamped with $300.

PATCHED LINE OF BELLEVILLE NO MATCH FOR HUSKY FRONTENACS

Kingston Win From Marconis And Now Lead Group

BOWEN STARRED

Home Team Displayed Nice Hockey In Final Period

(By S. R. C.)

Kingston is sitting pretty on top of Group No. 1 of the O.H.A. following their decisive win over the Belleville Maroons at the Jock Harty arena last evening by a score of 8-3. Playing against a team that had been practicing since November 30th, the locals met with a well-conditioned outfit and one which had perfected a pretty system of combination. To give the Belleville team the credit due them it must be said that they turned in some excellent performances against hopeless odds. For two periods the Thomascoached crew gave a sterling exhibition and the fans were well satisfied with the brand of hockey handed out for their approval. At the end of the second spasm the Frontenacs were leading by a 6-1 count but, the fact soons fight back as they might, were unable to cope with the attack of the homesters in the final chukker.

Belleville's chances were well nigh wrecked at the last minute when Goyer announced that he was through. Green stated that he would be unable to make the trip owing to an injured leg and then came Hibbard's illness. All of these fellows have been playing regularly and it threw a wrench into the works when they were out of the line-up. Rooney and Hagerman were shifted back to the defence where they were entirely out of position. Both boys made good jobs of the assignment but they are not the experienced in that position and could not be expected to as they usually play on the wings of the forward line. Thomas brought Weir back after a year's absence and Vern played one of the nicest games of his whole career. He was a tower of strength on the forward line with his hornet-like tactics, and Joe Smith, although he scored three goals, was pestered all the ground all evening. Weir is still a mighty useful man to have around.

"Dew" Holway played a smart game on the wing and was going just as fast as ever. Bunner, Jarvis and Gordon threw everything they had into the fray, but none of the three were quite equal to the occasion although the last-named gave some valuable assistance around mid-ice.

Rooney was going along fairly well and turned in a real nice game. He was not afraid to use his aweirdgoods and stepped into all and sundry. Rooney accounted for one goal and narrowly missed a couple of others. Hagerman made some pretty thrusts into enemy territory and managed to drive one goal home. He engaged in a bumping bee with Bouncer Holway and the boners were about evenly-divided.

Bowen a Wizard

"Bennie" Bowen had a great night in the nets. Nine shots beat him but he had ninety-nine to stop and they were of the most difficult variety. Scores of times the Frontenacs broke through with only Bowen to beat but he went to the line to make some of the most hair-raising kind of saves. At least a dozen times Joe Smith and the other Kingston forwards had Bowen at their mercy but the little net-minder made the most out of slops. He was given a great hand by the Kingston fans who declared him to be the sweetest goalminder to play at the Jock Harty rink for some time. Had Bowen not been in great form the score would undoubtedly have been much higher.

Joe Smith, despite the fact that he has been playing for many a season, was probably the best man on the ice. Smith is still the same uncanny type of hockeyist, ever ready to take a pass and give one and he can still skate with the best of them. "Chummy" Lawlor was another boy who stood out in the ranks of the Kingston crowd. Lawlor scored four goals and was mixed in every play. He is a sweet centre man and few will dispute that fact. Along with Smith who scored three, Lawlor shared the scoring honors.

"Bouncer" Holway has popularized and give one and he can still skate and be is cheered to the echo every time he commences one of his long rushes. He can still shoot the puck hard and variably takes the gypsum into the corner. Holway was paying more attention to the man than he was to the puck and he was given a couple of nice pickle dishes for attempting to dump the chunky Hagerman.

Steve Kilburn handled a nice game but it appeared as though at least four of the Kingston goals were indirectly responsible for the enemy ice to be scored from off-sides. Steve allowed a go off-side goal most of these resulting in goals. He gave the spectators the only real laugh of the game when he did a tumble in the centre ice.

R. H. C. Game Off

It is entirely likely that tomorrow night's game with Royal Military College at Arnott's arena will be postponed owing to lack of ice. The cadets will probably play here at a later date.

Kingston fans are anxiously awaiting the Queen's-Frontenac clash tomorrow evening. There is little love lost between these two and the rivalry this year seems to be more bitter than ever. Queen's supporters were offering two to one that the tri-color would triumph in the annual grudge battle.

Stan McQuade, manager of the Frontenacs has gathered a sweet aggregation and it would not be surprising to see them figure in the group play-offs. Every position is well balanced from goal to centre and the boys after the past two months on the blades are travelling at midseason form now. Holway and Hunter were the only pair to be given penalties during the game which was exceptionally clean.

Scoring:—

1st Period

Watts, Kingston, 9 mins.
Smith, Kingston, 13.
Lawlor, Kingston, 15.
Hagerman, Belleville, 16.

2nd Period

BASEBALL CLUB MEETING JAN. 17

Public Invited To Attend Open Meeting In Local City Hall

Tuesday, January 17th, 1928 will be a red-letter day in Belleville baseball circles when a general meeting of the fans will be held at the City Hall to elect permanent officers for the coming year and discuss matters pertinent to Belleville's baseball future.

A manager for the club for the year will be appointed as well as other Advisory Boards.

Great strides have been made during the past month to provide the Belleville fans with real baseball during the coming summer and considerable success has attended the efforts of those who have been working toward this end. Mr. W. E. Dewsnap of the Alemite plant was chosen as temporary chairman and he has worked unitirely with the committee. Mr. Dewsnap has been given some able assistance by the various chairmen.

The name of Walter Cerow has been prominently mentioned as manager of the team for the coming season and no better choice could be made to handle the reins. During his tenure of office as Manager of the Central Ontario League team several championships were brought to the Quinte City.

It is hoped that fans will keep in mind this general meeting on Tuesday, January 17th. Should a bumper house greet the efforts they will be assured that Belleville is due for a revival of the great summer pastime.

BASKET-BALLERS PLAY NAPANEE WEDNESDAY

Between the hours of nine and ten o'clock the Association Gymnasium was the scene of much activity. The reason for this was to give the basketball team a final workout for their game with Napanee on Wednesday evening. The Napanee boys were not good enough in hand a defeat to the Kingston's aggregation when the latter team played there previous to the holi days and the locals will go down to Napanee quite prepared for a real game. Captain Weir will lead the following players into action: Armstrong, Kelkin, Brown, Every, Cole, Watts, Alexander, and Buchanan. The teams will proceed to the Eastern Town in cars leaving the Association building at six-thirty tomorrow evening. Although the members of the team are not suffering from an attack of over confidence they are very hopeful of chalking up a win at the expense of theNapanee Quintette.

A week from next Wednesday, the locals will engage Queens University at the Campbell St. Gym. This has always proved the best exhibition of the season in previous years and basketball fans Belleville may look forward to a real exhibition of the indoor pastime on the occasion of this game, January 18th.

GRADS' RECORD IS ENVIABLE ONE

Won Allen Cup Last Year—Championship Of Canada

Toronto, Ont., —The University of Toronto Grads Hockey team will sail for St. Moritz, Switzerland, on January 19 to represent Canada in the Hockey division of the Olympic Games. Contained only as the beginning of last season the Grads won the Allan Cup, emblematic of the Amateur Hockey Championship of Canada, by a brilliant series of victories. Not until as champions of the East they met Port William, Western winners in the final playoff at Vancouver did they recapture a single defeat. The Ports fought through five games before the collegians got the edge.

Then with a record appearance was in the Sportsmen's Patriotic Association game in the fall of 1926. They were voted out of winning this event by Marlboros, another Toronto club. Next the Grads entered the Ontario Hockey Association series the team began to make itself felt and to attract attention by a consistent run of victories. By defeating Marlboros, Peterboro Senior champions of Ontario Club and North Toronto they won the right to meet Kenora for the Allan Cup.

The Petes who had already suffered a 10-1 defeat at the hands of the Grads, consented to play a best of five games series, and lost 3-0.

The team then entered the finals of the O.H.A. playoff series, and met Chatham. This team was beaten hand ily in two games and the Grads became the junior champions of the O.H.A., by a score of 8-3 on the round.

The Grads then met the interested late O.H.A. Champions, the Twelfth Battery of London, for the right to represent the association in the Allan Cup Series. The military lads put up the toughest opposition the Grads had yet encountered, but were beaten largely owing to the brilliant play of Lou Hudson, Grad right winger.

St. Francois Nationals of Montreal, the Province champs, gave the Grads a tie score of one all, at their first meeting. The second game played in Toronto ended in a scoreless draw, even to one victory over the French-Canadians. The third game was a thrilling, dashing defence player, and Joe Sullivan, the goalie, were the outstanding players.

After beating the New Edinburgh team of Ottawa by scores of 10 to nothing and seven to one the Grads were entitled to meet Port William in the Allan Cup finals at Vancouver. The second game, in which Bert Plaxton starred, was scarcely over before the Grads were aboard a west-bound train after an enthusiastic send-off from Grads adherents.

The four games played at Vancouver against the Port William team proved one of the hardest fought series in the annals of Canadian Hockey. The brand of hockey displayed by both teams was in the estimation of many up-to-date hockey enthusiasts the games the finest ever shown on Canadian ice.

The first game was a tie, two all. he brilliant individual efforts of Dave Trottier, who scored both goals, gave the Grads an extra Port William team for one of them to save the Toronto team from defeat.

In the second fixture the Grads met the first defeat, the Ports winning by the score of three to two. The third game, featured by the smart play of Trottier, Hudson and Taylor, went to the Grads by a score of four to one, tying the series.

The fourth game the ex-collegians won by the narrow margin of two to one. Ross Tayor had the distinction of scoring the winning goal on a pass from Delahey.

The following players compose the team:—

Joe Sullivan, goalie, spent his entire hockey career on University of Toronto and University of Toronto Schools teams. He was a member of the U. T. S. junior team which won the Memorial Cup in 1918. In 1920 he played for Varsity junior. He played Allan Cup finalists in 1925 and 1926.

Lou Hudson, right wing, broke into hockey with Aura Lee juniors and has since played for Grenfell, Argonauts and University of Toronto. He played on the Aura Lee team which won the Junior O.H.A. Championship, and the past five years has played for Varsity. Hudson is a wonderful back checker and has developed a powerful shot, which makes him more effective on either right or left wing.

Red Porter, the dashing defence man is perhaps the most sensational player on the team. Porter is a very fast skater and his end-to-end rushes net many goals. Red is also a product of University of Toronto Schools, and has played all his hockey with Varsity and U.T.S. teams.

Dave Taylor, who plays defence with Porter, played for Varsity juniors in 1920 and 1921. He then played intermediate and senior hockey on the Varsity Allan Cup finalists. He played two Ontario Senior seasons in 1926. Like Porter, Taylor is effective on the offensive as well as on the defence. He and Porter have on several occasions pulled the Grads out of a tight hole.

Frank Sullivan, sub, is now playing for the second time on an Olympic team and for the third time on an Allan Cup winning team. He was with the University of Toronto Allan Cup winners in 1921 and in 1923 he played for varsity when the Allan Cup and the right to represent Canada at the Olympics of 1924. Sullivan didn't go overseas with the team Sullivan also played for the Aura Lee Junior O.H.A. championship, and for Argonauts. He is also a football star, having played with Varsity Dominion and Intercollegiate Championship team in 1920, and on the Argonaut football squad.

Hugh Plaxton, centre, is another excellently Varsity and U.T.S product. He played for U.T.S. and Varsity juniors, and for the University of Toronto Allan Cup finalists in 1925 and 1926.

Art Delahey, sub, played for U.T.S. juniors, then Varsity intermediates and last year caught a place on the Grads.

Arthur Gagne, sensational right wing player with the Canadiens, fastest scorer in the N.H.L., Canadian section.

WEED OUT RANKS OF CHALLENGERS

New York, Jan. 9.—A chase for an opponent to box Gene Tunney in a heavyweight championship bout goes on this week with Jack Sharkey, Boston Lithuanian, lifting against Tom Heeney of New Zealand at Madison Square Garden on Friday night in search of the challenger.

Promoter Tex Rickard, who held Tunney's contract to select a rival, made known to-day that he hopes to reach a decision immediately after the fight. For the present, Rickard is going ahead with plans to stage a big spectacle at the Yankee Stadium in September. Rickard has taken the attitude that if Tunney wants to fight twice this year he will put on two bouts. The winner of the Sharkey-Heeney struggle may be the September opponent without the formality of facing Dempsey, who would be held over for the fall title match.

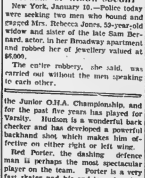

OLD GREY MARE TRACED BEER

Belleville police have been looking for an old grey mare that led to the recovery of a barrel of stolen beer here yesterday morning. The beer disappeared from the back of a main street resident. Detectives said they have seen a grey mare move away in the dark with a barrel in the cutter. Chief Wat Sexton, from the country for a grey mare and finally visited a family where the beer was located.

ROBBERS OF WIDOW SOUGHT

New York, January 10.—Police today were seeking two men who bound and gagged Mrs. Rebecca Shapiro, 70-year-old widow and sister of the late Sam Bernard, actor, in her Broadway apartment and robbed her of jewellery valued at $6,000.

The entire robbery, she said, was carried out without the men speaking to each other.

BOWLING

In the semi-final game in the doubles prize series at the Y alleys last night Mrs. Bloomfield and T. Austin came from behind to win out when Austin rolled 207 for a single. In the final game Miss H. Bland and R. Miles set the pace and won this by 61 pins, but the second game saw Mrs. Bloomfield and Mr. Austin up 23 pins. In the last game Mrs. Bloomfield and Mr. Austin both rolled nice games and won this by 233 pins and the total by 18 pins. The Bowlers now only the Ladies to be played between the winners, and Mrs. Ford and Mr. R. Cole.

RECREATION BOWLING

The bowling leagues run under way at the Recreation Alleys last night on their similar system as formerly the Ladies' League and the Men's Auxiliary League.

In the Ladies' League the champion Crescents took on the runner-up, the Beavers, for all four points, the scores rolling up a nice tidy total of 2666, the Beavers having one bowler who had all the bad luck and who no doubt cost them a point or two. Miss Lynch was the best bowler for the Crescents and for the Beavers, Miss Whalen led the way.

The Star Motors got off on the right foot by managing to break even with the fast bowling Belleville Motors, the Belleville Motors taking the first point by 202 pins which gave them an even break on the total as the Star Motors won the second and third games. Brey, Bampfield with high man with 670 and V. Brennan next in line with 589.

Ladies' League

Crescents—V. Wheeler 442; D. Belleveau 546; M. Tilley 404; M. Lynch 573; W. Ross 498. Total 2464.

Junior League

SHYSTERS TO BE UP AGAINST IT

If New Bill Re Disrobed Lawyers Becomes Law

London, — What becomes of solicitors who, through ignorance, daily practice are "struck off the rolls?" A proportion of them, it is to be feared, join the unenrolled more or less regularly. Hitherto, however, it has been fairly easy for such a one to make a living by becoming employed with firms of solicitors. This latter practice, though, will be gravely interfered with if the solicitors' bill, now before Parliament, becomes law.

The Bill, which is backed by all the three parties, provides that without the written permission of the Law Society no Solicitor shall employ or remunerate any person, who, to the knowledge of such solicitor, is struck off the roll of solicitors or is suspended from practice as a solicitor. Power is given the Society to deal with any breach of this provision, which once can apply to a firm as well as to an individual.

Penalties are provided for any struck off person who acts or represents employment with a solicitor with out disclosing the fact that he has been struck off or suspended.

All that you could want in a motor car—that sums up the features of the New Model Ford. Here Belleville Motors demonstrate it for you to-day; it is advisable to place your order right now for Spring delivery.

EXECUTIVE MERCY REFUSED GRAY AND RUTH SNYDER

Request For Increased Grants to Hospitals Not Likely to be Granted by Provincial Government

DENY CLEMENCY TO RUTH SNYDER

Governor Smith Refuses Appeal, But Expresses Distress At Necessity

TO DIE THURSDAY

Final Effort May Be Made To Save The Woman's Life

Ossining, N.Y. Jan. 11.—Breakfasts ordered to-day by Mrs. Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray, next to the last breakfast they will ever eat, unless the court stays their execution, were cited by prison attendants as an indication of the different ways in which the two prisoners are facing imminent death.

Gray, calm and apparently resigned, ate toast and coffee and a large bowl of cooked cereal but Mrs. Snyder, who had remained unreconciled to the end merely sipped a small glass of orange juice, refusing all solid food.

Warden Lawes said that neither of the prisoners had read the morning papers and so at mid-morning had not yet learned that Governor Smith had denied their plea for a stay of execution. However, the Warden added, both sensed the fact that the Governor would not interfere to save them.

Denied Clemency

New York, January 11.—Governor Smith yesterday afternoon denied the pleas of Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray for executive clemency. Both are scheduled to die in the electric chair Thursday night for the murder of the woman's husband.

"The execution of this judgment on a woman is so distressing that I had hoped that an appeal would disclose some fact which would justify my interference with the process of law," the Governor said, in announcing his decision. "I have searched in vain for any basis which my conscience, in the light of my oath of office, will approve on which I might temper the law with mercy," he continued. "Up to this writing, there is no extenuation shown for what the several judges of the Court of Appeals, in agreement with the twelve jurors and the trial justice, have found to be a deliberate and premeditated murder committed by these defendants."

One Appeal Possible

With the Governor's decision, it seem ed almost certain that the condemned pair would die in the electric chair Thursday. While Mrs. Snyder's attorneys were in disagreement as to whether they should appeal to the federal courts for a writ of habeas corpus, there was no indication that any further effort would be made to save Gray.

The governor said the case had received his anxious consideration, not merely since the hearing upon the application for executive clemency, but since their conviction was unanimously affirmed by the Court of Appeals, November 22.

Visited by Wife and Mother

Ossining, N.Y., January 11.—Henry Judd Gray, awaiting execution Thursday night for the murder, Ruth Snyder, was visited yesterday by his wife, Mrs. Isabelle Gray, and by his mother, Mrs. Margaret Gray. The visit from his wife was believed by prison officials to be her last.

1928 MARKERS ARE READY NOW

A consignment of eight hundred sets of automobile license plates arrived at the office of the local distributor, Mr. H. F. Ketcheson, East Bridge Street this morning. The shipment came by express but it is expected that a large consignment will be sent by freight and these will be ready for sale early next week.

The plates are of yellow background with black letters almost the same as last year with the background slightly brighter. The police car was adorned with the first set of plates to be operated. Thousands of sets of plates are issued each year by the local representative. A new system which will speed up the business of accommodating the public will be in vogue this year. The same prices as last year will prevail.

Barre Of Commerce Cup Won By O.S.D.—Demonstration Given

Kiddies of the four Belleville Public Schools were guests of the officers and directors of the 15th Annual Poultry Show which is being held in the City Hall this week. The show which is a record-breaking one in the matter of entries will be concluded tomorrow evening. Additional shipments of prize poultry, rabbits and pigeons were on display today and nearly 1,000 birds are now housed in the pens. Youngsters were more than delighted with the privilege of viewing the best fowls of special exhibits. The judges spent a busy time today going over the entries and choosing the winners.

The pen from the Ontario School for the Deaf won the cup given by the Canadian Bank of Commerce for the best pen bred to lay in the open class. A demonstration of killing and plucking will be given by Mr. L. Fraser of the Experimental Farm at Kemptville This demonstration will be given on a platform in the city hall this evening and tomorrow.

There is an especially large entry list of game fowl and bantams this year. One of the interesting pens is the "Spanb breeders" variety died this morning.

SENATE VACANCIES FILLED IN ONTARIO

Ottawa, January 11.—It was officially announced last evening that Thomas Ahearn of Ottawa chairman of the Federal District Commission, head of the Ottawa Electric interests and a director of the Bank of Montreal, has been appointed a Privy Councillor with the right to sit in a cabinet meeting when requested and to carry the title of Honorable.

Senator Ontario, senatorial appointments were also announced: E. S. Little, of London, Ont.; James Spence, K.C., of Toronto, and Dr. Gustave Lasse, of "Teumseh," Kent County. The last appointment meets the request of Premier Taschereau in Ontario for representation in the Upper Chamber.

One senatorial vacancy remains to be filled, in the province of Quebec, to succeed the late Hon. Gustave Boyer, of Rigaud.

WHY BUILD SHIPS SO LONG AS ONE CAN BORROW THEM?

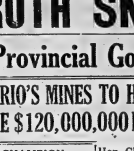

London, Jan. 11.—(Canadian Press Cable)—Returning to its discussion on the Canadian Government's proposal o replace its two present destroyers, Acasta and Vancouver, by two ships, Weekly Truth today reprints the statement which it describes as officially inspired from Ottawa." The statement says that the first of the new ships will be laid down immediately the Canadian parliament approves the necessary estimate. It says that the "Patrician" is still serviceable, so the second new destroyer will be ordered for later delivery, thus spreading the total outlay over two years.

"This message does not definitely contradict what was said in "Truth" the weekly says: "The first destroyer we are told, will be laid down as soon as Parliament votes the money but nothing is said as to when she will be completed. As for the Patricia still being serviceable all her sister ships in the British Navy were scrapped in 1927."

"Another point to which the message makes no reference is that the Canadian Department of Defence has asked the British Government to loan two destroyers to replace the old ones while the proposed vessels are under construction. I confess that if I were the Canadian I would ask, 'Why build warships at all, so long as you can borrow them?'"

When he went into the prize ring he adopted the ring name.

Hon. Charles McCrea Looks For a Long Period Of Success

CAUTION ADVISED

Toronto, Jan. 11.—A review of development of mineral wealth in Northern Ontario, a picture of the mining activities during 1927 and a forecast of the production of mining wealth in the next hundred years was given by Hon. Charles McCrea, Minister of Mines, speaking yesterday at a luncheon following of the Yonge and Bloor Business Men's Association.

In 1928, the Minister noted, the mining wealth produced in the Province had been valued at $85,000,000. In 1927 the mining wealth of the Province was estimat, ninety-one to ninety-two millions. The would be a substantial increase in 1928 be declared, and by 1931, with increases in the nickel, copper and other fields, there would be a total output of one hundred and twenty to one hundred and twenty-five millions.

May Be Even Greater

"Perhaps," he continued, "it will even exceed this figure, but at the rate we are developing claims today one can look forward to an indefinite but substantial, long period of successful mine production in Ontario."

He emphasized the progress made in 1927. Dividends to be paid for that year as the result of mining operations would be, according to the fields, as follows: Cold, $11,604,000; nickel, $8,500,000; silver, $1,500,000. Up to the end of 1926 dividends amounted to $243,000,000, and the past year accounted for $18,000,000 more.

Mr. McCrea sensed that his audience wanted some words on the mining market. In fact before the luncheon he had been asked jocularly if he had any "tips" on the market.

Cautious Investment

"Anybody," he told the gathering, "who has money to invest in the mining game should do so with caution, because mining at the best is a hazardous game. If the mining industry is to maintain its success prospectors must go out and find new mines. Men pay up money because if they get those mines they pay handsomely. But every dollar put into a mine is risked. Mining is hazardous, but when those connected with the enterprise carry on in good faith, men like myself, who likely get a run for their money and a square deal."

With cheers and colors flying, the air hero's competitors turned out en masse to-day, bestowing upon him that same eager affection which prevailed in many Central American capitals which Lindy has visited on his good will tour.

INDUSTRIAL ACCIDENTS

The annual report of the workmen's compensation board of Ontario for the year 1927 shows an appalling wastage of industrial production through —accidents to workmen. In spite of the constant campaigns for safety methods in industry, and the multiplication of safety devices and guards, there were, in 1927, 7,000 more accidents dealt with by the board than in the previous year, the grand total being 71,979 accidents of a nature sufficiently serious as to occasion claims for compensation. The amount of money paid out for compensation, $6,096,738, was an increase of $200,000 over the 1926 payments. Going further, the report says that the number of accidents in 1927 constitutes a record representing an increase of twenty per cent. in two years.

This record of accidents means a double loss to the province of Ontario in the first place, there is the productive loss to industry because of men being disabled and unable to work on account of accidents. This, in itself, is a tremendous factor, for with 71,979 accidents, with at least one week's disability in each, the number of productive hours lost to industry runs into the millions. On the other hand there is the payment of over six million dollars in compensation because of these accidents, money to fund which has to be built up by the contributions of manufacturers and others assessable under compensation laws, and which must be added to the overhead expense of doing business, and, therefore, to the cost of goods to the ultimate consumers.

If accident prevention were only a matter of education, then there should be fewer, instead of more accidents, for strong efforts have been made for years to educate the workers along safety lines. As in motor accidents, the human factor is the one which fails in most cases, for it is invariably the case that industrial mishaps result from carelessness on the part either of the person injured or some one else. If human nature could be trained to think safety at all times, the great majority of accidents could be prevented, but unfortunately, that state of perfection has not yet been attained.

JUST WORDS!

The last word has been written in the Oxford English Dictionary—and the word is "zyxt." It should rejoice the hearts of those who construct cross-word puzzles, xyst and its companions wife, whittler, woop, wush and zonid.

The Oxford Dictionary has been in process of compilation for 70 years. It is held to be the final authority on the meaning and derivation of English words. Now the pages of the last volume are in the printer's hands. Sir James Murray began the work; Dr. Henry Bradley carried it on until he too died. It has been brought to completion under the editorship of Dr. W. A. Craigie, who used to be professor of English at the University of Chicago, and C. T. Onions, although it is said 1,200 persons in one time or an other have been engaged on the enterprise.

"Zyxt" may be unfamiliar to some readers, and one may explain it to be a very old Kentish word meanings "thou seest." "Wuh" means to make a soft, rushing sound; "wife" is to wave or swing; "whutter" is the sound of flapping wings; "woop" is convulsive sobbing and "zonid" is something resembling an animal but not one.

If all the volumes are equally rich in curious and ancient words the art of cross-word puzzle should take on new life.

TO TIP OR NOT!

The question of tipping is raised by proposals now before the British Hotels and Restaurants Association, for the addition to every account of a charge for service.

The London Times says on the question: "The small amount of good that can be found in the custom of tipping is as nothing against the evils to which it gives rise. . . . The richer or the shrewder is able to buy for himself attention which should be equally distributed. The less rich or the more retiring is scamped of his record."

Past experience has shown that a re form of this nature is not easily introduced. It draws too heavily upon the sense of fair play of a certain type of person. The new rich are said to have been the worst offenders against any anti-tipping regulations that have been tried. But perhaps human nature has improved in recent years.

THE OLD TRAIL

Here we are taking the same old trail
By the frozen lake and the silent stream,
Where in the moonlight fair and pale
The delicate birch and poplar dream.

Shadows straggle across the hill,
The intricate tracery of the trees;
And the drowsy wood is deserted and still
Save for the song of our flashing skis.

We thread the forest and climb the steep
Till it seems we can touch the stars with ease
As they drift along through the depthless deep
And echo their visual melodies.

And the same old melodies lure us on. . . .
As we sweep to the gloom of the shadowed vale
It's hard to believe that a year has gone!

An unknown actor was summoned to appear as a witness in a law case. On entering the witness box he took the oath if the usual way and stated his occupation.

"What sort of actor are you?" he was asked.

"Well," hesitated the actor, "if you insist, I am the best actor in the world."

His evidence concluded, he was leaving the court when he met an old acquaintance who had listened to the case.

"Hello!" cried his friend. "What on earth made you say that you were the best actor in the world?"

The actor paused dramatically.

"Well, you see, old boy, I had to, to get through smoothly. Remember, I was on oath."

THE PASSING YEARS

(From The Intelligencer of this day 30 years ago)

Mr. H. Mowers, Napanee, has purchased the trotting horse, Islander, from Mr. Hugh Millins. The horse has a mark of 2.18 1-2 min.

School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking pepsi, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when pepsi should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or pain or griping."

Not Like Medicine

Pepsi is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Ask the druggist. Preferred by the famous Chemical Products Division of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. Look for the Pepsi bottle with the label on the back that you can read right through the bottle.

THE CASE OF DENIS

By C. B. Pyper

Or take the case of Denis. Denis is a nice-looking boy. He's one of those smooth-faced fellows looks almost like a girl, and might pass for a girl if he had on girls' cloths. He's girlish in his ways, too—pre-eve girlish, that is —doesn't smoke, or drink or swear. He has never been known to tell a story that he couldn't tell before his mother, or in fact in many ways he's a model boy, and almost unique in this generation.

But he doesn't work. He has never been known to work. Even in these days when most girls go to the office he stays at home and does nothing. His hands are soft and white; he wouldn't even put a shovel of coal in the furnace for his mother. And he is his mother's darling. She thinks as much of him as if he were the sole support of the household.

He is a great boy with the girls too. You never see him but he is surrounded by girls. The other day he was at an afternoon tea—imagine a man at an afternoon tea—and all the girls there were idolizing him—imagine being at an afternoon tea and having all the girls idolize you. Many a man would have been embarrassed, but not Denis. He just took it all as the most natural thing in the world. That is the way he gets on—he takes these things as the most natural thing in the world.

Denis is not what you would call selfish, either; but he has a way of getting his own way that would make many an ordinary man disliked. And he doesn't trouble to do anything for himself, he just lets other people wait on him. Some people can do that and get away with it. It's a gift.

The funny part of it is that even the men like Denis. Ordinarily men hate a boy like that, say he should be sent out into the world and have the nonsense knocked out of him, but there's something about Denis that wins the men in spite of themselves.

Perhaps it's because he's not a sissy. When he likes he can use his fists. The other afternoon there was a fellow in the room who thought himself enough of a man to test embarrassing before a bunch of girls. He said or did something that Denis didn't like, and Denis just drew out, as they say, and landed him one is his eye, as they say, and all the girls laughed. He's strong as a horse, too; doesn't know his own strength.

And again he gets away with it. He can get away with anything. Why he has the girls kissing him, imagine that, having girls kissing you. There's another thing that would ordinarily make other men wild, that would turn them sick, that would make them want to wreck the tea things, but with Denis they don't mind. They may want to be in his place, but they don't bear ill-will because they are not. They know that his time of happiness is limited, that when his eight months have lengthened to 18 years he will have to do his own kissing, or do without kissing.

In the meanwhile it is not forbidden to envy Denis.

LANDLORDS NOW HAVE SOME HOPE

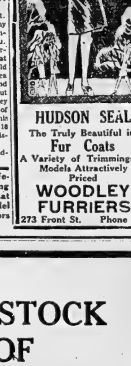

Chicago, Ills.—Several landlords have conferred with their attorneys since the ruling of the courts that violation of the Volstead Act by a tenant is legal ground for the landlord to break the lease. There are many tenants now holding leases, said to total millions of dollars, the breaking of which would be a decided advantage in the owners of the buildings.

It was pointed out that a conviction for a prohibition violation at the Chicago Athletic Association clubhouse might cost members $176,000a year for 62 years, or a total of $10,912,000. The 99-year lease to the club was practically a gift from Marshall Field, Sr. The rental is only $9,000 annually and the lease has 63 years to run. The property could be rented today for $185,000, a real estate broker estimated.

That tenants holding valuable leases are not unaware of the situation is evidenced by the note of sincerity in their declarations that there shall be no violations of the Volstead law in their places.

One restaurant owner, holder of a valuable lease, said: "Our rental is comparatively low and the lease has 99 years to run. Naturally the landlord would like to put us out. He is watching his chance and is ready to call on the dry agents for help. All drinking is taboo here."

A tradesman recently asked a divorce on the sole ground of "abnormal obesity." All his savings were used to buy food for his wife, he declared. The verdict was no cause for action.

High Speed
Another step forward!
A GOOD proportion of long distance telephone connections are now established while you remain at the telephone.
This new high speed long distance service is almost as simple and speedy as local service.
Of course, it always makes for speed when you can give the long distance operator the number you wish to reach. In most cases she can then establish the connection at once, usually while you remain at the telephone.
If you do not know the distant number the operator will look it up for you. She invariably asks you to make a note of it for future calls. It is worth acting on her suggestion — it will insure quick connection the next time you call.
High speed Long Distance service is assured when you can give the distant number to the operator. We will be glad to make up for you a special directory of out-of-town numbers you frequently call.

POLICE COURT

"Red Auld Acquaintance"

An old, old friend of the local police came into the city yesterday in the person of Ross C. McLeod, vacant-returned army and cricket thief. McLeod, or rather Ross, as he is known was put in the act of looking for a home in one of the outbound Canadian National Railway freight trains, but he was spared by the rest of the C.N.R. police officers. McLeod's forty-five years of age and looks sixty. That old and crisp form from putting up a nice little field with the officers, but he finally subsided.

This morning he appeared in police court before Magistrate Mikel and was fined $10 and costs or sentence by Chief Cousin Attorney and His Worship. McLeod pleaded guilty cheerfully to charges of larceny and vagrancy, and the fact that he had completed the former was given as the suggestion to inspect. A guy in the penitentiary would mean that Ernest would be put out, in the cold world to shift for just under the to His Worship decided that fifteen months would be the correct time to hold the prisoner.

McLeod is an old offender. He has been in the penitentiary three times, and according to himself has been in different courts eight times, although the police think it's more than that. Ernest was sentenced to two years for chicken theft in Belleville some time ago and has appeared in this city before on charges of vagrancy.

CONQUEST OF MT. LOGAN MAKES A GRIPPING STORY

Hon. Frederick Lambert Vividly Portrays Difficulties Of Dangerous Feat

Seldom has a Belleville audience been privileged to hear such a vividly interesting address as was delivered last evening by the Honorable Frederick Lambert under the auspices of the Women's Canadian Club. The lecture room of the armouries was packed for the occasion and those present left with a wider knowledge and deeper appreciation of the work being accomplished by their fellow Canadians in the exploration of the unknown parts of this country.

Mr. Lambert who is at present connected with the Geodetic Survey of Canada, some two years ago performed a most remarkable feat when he climbed to the summit of Mt. Logan, the highest peak in the vast Canadian Rockies and this, highly illustrated by actual pictures taken during the expedition, was the subject of his address.

Discovered in 1891

Mount Logan, the speaker pointed out, was unknown till 1891 when it was first located by Mr. Russel of the Geological Survey who named it Mount Logan after the then director of that Society. An Italian Count had already been successful in climbing Mount Elias, some 2000 feet less than Mount Logan and in 1923 the plan for climbing the latter peak was sponsored by the Alpine Club. This club is a cosmopolitan one and many Americans added in the ranks. Two parties climbed there before the actual work began. In 1924 a party under Mr. Russel made a hasty reconnaissance of the whole area. In 1925 two parties set out, the first to make earlier and the second later and the second the actual climbing party which included Mr. Lambert, the leader, the guide, (The Hon. F. Lambert) and some five or six others. They went by railway to the end of the British Columbia which, Mr. Lambert said, was a marvelous trip in itself. They then crossed part of Alaska and reached the Yukon in the southwest corner of which Mount Logan is situated.

The many slides graphically illustrated the nature of the mountainous Yukon district, the sheer magnificence of which, the speaker said, beggared description. The mountains are covered by huge glaciers, the largest of which presents a shelvaging front half a mile in the form of a huge journey towards the peak" the party formed camps at various points where their heavy supplies and tents for the return journey. From the pictures presented one could appreciate the ever changing nature of the geographic and climatic conditions as the altitude increased higher and higher. From a heavily wooded country with gigantic trees the party found itself, and even the lowest form of insect life was sustained, the party traveled, first by the light draft steamers on which they had to contend was the rarified air which greatly retarded progress. At one point they had travelled in an almost subconscious state, nothing but sheer will-power kept them going.

Cold Camp 18,500 Feet Up

The final climbing started some 18,500 feet above the sea, the highest point at which any camp had been made on the North American continent. During the latter part of the trip the party had encountered severe cold in the absence of the crevasses in the rock which were often covered with heavy fog and snowstorms of a perenal manner. The glare of the sun on the snow, in spite of all precautions, was intense. The ascent was made by the theft of a diamond ring. The Toronto theft was committed some time ago.

Rose was arrested here by the local authorities. Both the diamond ring and the money were found.

CANADIAN APPLES FOR BRITAIN

Halifax, N.S., Jan. 11.—Despite the week ending January 7th, 47,313 barrels of apples were shipped to Britain from Canada, during that period a total of 202,811 barrels shipped to date this season, as compared with 332,295 barrels for the same period last year.

Frederick Lambert the guest of honor. Mr. H. F. Ketchesen on behalf of the members of the Club spoke a few words of welcome to the guests and Mrs. Lambert, Mrs. Lambert spoke for a few moments extemporaneously. Mrs. Lambert expressed pleasure in the meeting. She mentioned the fact that Mr. Roy Tuite, a former Belleville boy and present mayor the guests had been associated with him on the survey of the Yukon-Alaskan boundary.

During the evening delightful refreshments were served by the members of the Women's Canadian Club with Mrs. A. I. Bird and Mrs. Clinton pouring coffee, after which the chairman introduced Mr. Lambert as the guests for the remainder of the evening.

NEW HOPE FOR THE HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE

New York, Jan. 11.—Possibility of a fight with Gene Tunney for the heavyweight championship in London, just as his name was touched today before the crazy combination of Tom Heeney, lucky hope of the British Empire in Hyde Park, was made public for the material.

Tex Rickard, the ex- Pitt billposting body "down under" in New Zealand to fetch his way into a match with Tunney, would like nothing better than the best new drifting about in the back of the promoters' mind. First, of course, he must dispose of the loquacious gob from Boston in a 12-round bout in Madison Square Garden Friday night. Betting odds are eight to five that he won't, but none have been made within Tom's hearing.

BEAVERS GUESTS AT FINE ENTERTAINMENT

Members of the Beaver baseball club and their friends were entertained last evening by Miss L. Warham, an officer of the club when over sixty invited guests spent a delightful evening. Interesting features of the program and several novelties were introduced during the course of the evening. An orchestra composed of Miss Lillian Mavin and Messrs F. Howard and J. Lloyd furnished the music. A feature of the entertainment was the prize contest where Messrs. Fred Mac Christie, Cruji and Mrs. Fred Saunders.

The Beavers are getting ready for the summer campaign and Mr. Allan Meagher who has managed the team for the past few years is enthusiastic over the prospects for 1928. A dance to raise finances may be arranged with in the few weeks.

Rose was arrested here by the local authorities. Both the diamond ring and the money were found.

Belleville, Ont., Jan. 11.—Under the week ending January 7th, 47,313 barrels of apples were shipped to Britain from Canada, during that period a total of 202,811 barrels shipped to date this season, as compared with 332,295 barrels for the same period last year.

TODAYS MARKETS

Prices Up Again

New York, Jan. 11.—The stock market resumed its upward march today after an early period of irregularity. Operators for the moment are acting on the theory that the recent reaction has effectively removed the undesirable technical problem of the market and that there was no immediate danger of a rise in money rates. Advances ranged from 4 to 10 points, with much more moderate recovery in the standard industrials and rails.

Call money was in plentiful supply at the renewal figure of 4 1-2 per cent. Transactions of more than 3 million bbl sold from Canada also had a favorable effect on the speculative list. Bullish sentiment likewise was created by the Interstate Commerce Commission's announcement that the consolidation plan and by the reported increase in the steel corporations and finance commodity price tendency.

CORN PRICES DOWN

Chicago, Jan. 11.—Corn prices underwent a decided early setback today on account of heavy construction during the week-end and the prospect government crop report. Wheat showed relative firmness owing somewhat to official confirmation of heavy shortage of yield in Australia. Starting at 1-8c to 1 1-4c decline, corn displayed but little power to rally. Wheat opened unchanged to 1-8c off and kept there for the initial range. Oats were easy. Provisions also tended to ease.

Toronto Live Stock

FAMOUS MUSICAL CONDUCTOR LED

Programme Of Modern Music For Philharmonic Society At London

London, Eng., Jan. 11.—Henry Joseph Wood, famous conductor at international reputation, conducted a programme of modern works for the Royal Philharmonic Society at Queen's Hall recently. Brahms Haydn Variations, written in 1874, was the oldest, and a new symphony of Sibelius, written in 1925, was the most recent music in a programme which also included Debussy's Tone-Waiter, written in 1899 as a tribute to Johann Strauss, and Dvorak's Slavonic Dances.

"Sibelius' symphony, No. 7, in C major, opus 105, although it was played last night for the first time in England before," says the Daily News. "The symptom consists of one movement in which there are three main divisions as usual, but it proceeds not by contrast, but by a process of organic formation. The peculiar beauty then made is evidenced by Sibelius' method of orchestration, which uses the wind instruments not for development of themes, but as a means to work in the whole stock put to through these were called bonds binding closely already strong and massive weight for the strings. Slow music is for example, repeated Prodo- ed, and the opening of this symphony sounds almost like organ music. It is solemn and majestic. No themes, though in themselves quite large, are dealt Rose and their relation to each other is absence of color for its own sake. Yet a clear ear can watch as the music becomes more organized, more characteristic. It is spontaneous beauty of the first page, select 2/6, Good ear! lambs 14 to 16.50.

WILL NOT TURN 'EM DOWN OFTEN

London,—(By Mail)— Leap year, 1928, the bachelor's terror, is here! But this time, instead of raising the usual fears and alarm in the gullable young man's heart, it gives rise to a problem.

Leap year has always been looked on as the year in which women have the privilege of making proposals of marriage. If the house were declined or ruled bad if that the "refuser" boosts the prospect a silk dress.

Bachelors however, have changed so much in the past few years that surely it is time that men were allow ed an occasional year in which to have the prerogative of proposing.

Many enquiries of a few tragedies have resulted since the leap year system was established in Scotland in 1288.

It was then enacted that "for the years wherein Leap Years, the maydan lady of bothe highe and lowe estate shall hae liberte to bespeke ye gentle lad they like, and he refuses to ask her to be his lawful wyfe, he shall be mulcted in ye sum nae pundis or less, as his estait may be; except and unis gif he can make it appeare that he is betrothit ye liter woman he shall then be free".

TAKING A CHANCE WITH LOW-BROW ENTERTAINMENT

By LOUIS E. BISCH

To hear students and lovers of music talk, you would think that only classical music should be allowed to survive.

To hear some ardent devotees of the drama you might be led to believe that musical comedies, vaudeville, melodrama, farce, and all forms of dramatic entertainment below the standard of the Greeks, Hauptman, etc., should be swept off the boards.

Again, to hear some painters talk you might be led to despise what they would call " work"—that is, painting, sketches, etc. designed for newspapers, magazines and posters, and intended for passing interest only.

Not all the enthusiastic creative artists and idealistic worshippers of art fade and idealistic worshippers of art talk that way, but most of them do, at least they believe we should strive only for the very highest of standards. We should, they think, only admire works that have an enduring quality.

What such persons forget, however, is that there are many and varied kinds and conditions of mankind, all of whom have a right to be entertained.

People are not all the same. People differ as to intelligence, emotion al make-up, education and culture.

A person who might enjoy a refined farce might be left absolutely unmoved by the majesty of a tragedy such as Sophocles' Oedipus Rex.

Contrariwise, a person who might enjoy Ibsen, O'Neill, Shaw or Galsworthy, might be bored to the point of extinction by the ordinary mystery melodrama.

Let us by all means promote the finest and the best. Let us stimulate, strengthen, and foster the arts for their very highest possibilities.

But let us not forget that thousands say millions, are benefited and made happy by less pronounced forms of entertainment.

Motion pictures are a concrete example. We may not always like what the movies have to offer, but there is no gainsaying the fact that through them entertainment in abundant variety has been offered the public and that they have brought joy and sunshine into places where there was practically none before.

I have known creative artists of the very first rank who were not ashamed to admit deriving pleasure and relaxation from "slap-stick" comedy. There really is no reason why one can not get a kick out of the best and yet enjoy the simpler, more obvious things All of us possess, to a degree at least, what might be termed the "low-brow" instinct. We need not try to hide it. It is no disgrace to confess its presence.

When we let go, when this low-brow tendency of ours comes to the fore, we delight in the primitive. The fundamental emotions of love, jealously, hate, ambition, stir us to the quick.

No strain is put upon our thinking and feeling. Our attention is readily held. We are like children. We laugh and cry and take sides or if it be by music, we are soothed or stirred, and all the while we are stirred we are getting emotional exercise that is good for us.

We also need different forms of entertainment for different moods. You may have a grand-opera taste and still feel like seeing a hilarious show sometimes.

Choose the forms of entertainment that you think will relax and refresh you and do you the most good.

Plays and music and pictures are for your pleasure.

Never make a labor of it.

WHAT'S NEW

(From a Woman's Standpoint)

New York reports that the use of taffeta in the formal evening frock is quoted as the newest material presented for the present season in dance types. It is thought also, to be an excellent fabric for Southern resort wear.

Ivory satin tulle and taffeta lead in New York.

New and smart, particularly for sports wear, are the stockings of white silk with openwork or embroidered clocks, which come in two-toned mixtures.

The demand for large bunches of violets and for gardenias is now subsiding and these favorites are expected to be carried over into the spring, when large bunches of small flowers in pastel tones of plush or linen are to be smart.

Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

If you break glass on the floor don't brush it up. Wet a woollen cloth and pat gently. In this way you gather up the smallest slivers without any trouble.

When kerosene is spilled, the stain may be quickly removed by the application of limewater.

Chair cushions, mats, hot bowls will remove paint from windows, even when it has been on a long time. Apply with a reddish brush.

One housewife keeps her rugs bright by rubbing them with a cloth dipped in potato water which she makes by scraping two large potatoes into one quart of warm water and allowing it to stand for ten minutes then straining them.

A SUITOR TOO MANY

By MILDRED BARBOUR

At that instant he almost hated Lila for taking from him friendship he had prized long before the war, when he and Gil Holmes ran faced death together in the trenches. He fell to pondering on this new Lila. She had changed. She had told him so, but he had not believed her. She was not the same frank, fearless young thing whose staunch courage had won his admiration as well as his love. It seemed as though luxury and ease and peace had softened her; she had taken on the pretty, futile artificialities that he hated.

Well, he reflected, marriage would soon rid her of that. He had rather old-fashioned views on marriage; he demanded a partnership, not a one-sided arrangement, whereby a man slaved all day while his wife flitted about like a gay butterfly from one social affair to the next.

For one thing, he couldn't afford much of the social stuff. He had to earn his money. If Lila loved him, and, if she was the girl he'd wooed in France, she'd risk it with Herbert.

But suppose she wouldn't? Suppose she didn't really want to try? Suppose, after this sight of a former engagement to save her father from ruin was a lie? Suppose she had merely been sure and had lost the heart to tell him so?

Curiously, he felt more lonely and forlorn than he had felt in the German prison-camp. He had lost a friend, and something told him that to him that he was losing his fiancee.

"But I won't give her up," he said through clenched teeth. "I won't. Never, if I die for it!"

CHAPTER 4S

THE DARING, SCHEME

Dorothy was breakfasting before the sunny south window in the dainty breakfast that adjoined her studio. She took eat anything but the eatable young rye bread, in a cool high stone mug, set for hours each day at her drawing-board.

She wore a loose, flowing wrap of apricot satin banded with fluffy brown fox that was entirely too lovely to be wasted in solitude. While she was spurring her coffee from a copper percolator that bubbled cheerfully beside her, Lila burst in.

Dorothy regarded her in astonishment.

"You can't mean you're up and dressed—at this hour?"

"I've scarcely slept," said Lila hollow by, sinking into a chair.

"Coffee?" asked the practical Dorothy, reaching for a cup.

"I don't care," sighed Lila. "I dare say I should have something."

Dorothy's pretty brows lifted.

"May I ask why your not presiding at the family breakfast-table this morning?"

"Because there isn't any," answered Lila, with a short laugh. "Herbert preferred to breakfast alone; I was supposed to have a tray in my room—on the very thought of food choked me. I have been there since Herbert company," she added bitterly.

"Uncle Dan? Who on earth is he?" Lila made a weary gesture.

"Don't you remember? I used him as an alibi for the ten thousand dollars Herbert gave me. He's not my luck that, after twenty-five years of absence, he should come this particular time to turn up!"

Dorothy's brows went up.

"Can't you like him at all? Odds he look like a good sport?"

Lila laughed bitterly.

"He looks like the good a sport. Dot, he's broke, practically down and out. He couldn't conveniently die and leave me to a blind beggar. And the worst of it is that he told his story to Herbert before I saw him."

"Poor Lila!" murmured Dorothy. "This is serious."

"Its the end!" said Lila despairingly. "I can't go on. There's no getting out of this. Herbert said I had a fearful scene. He accused me of all sorts of things. Now he won't speak to me."

"And Uncle Dan—what of him?" Lila shrugged.

"Oh, he says he'll try to get me out of it in some way. But how can he? Three isn't any way, unless he pretends to Herbert that he was lying. Any way, he's staying on the ship—going to leave last night, but Herbert, with very stiff dignity, invited him to remain, and he accepted. I can't fancy what he's up to, and, honestly, I think it's all a bluff—his promise to help me out. The poor old soul thought he could be a welcome a few free meals."

"As bad as that?" murmured Dorothy "And what about Captain Farquahar?"

Lila made a wry face and groaned aloud.

"Worse and worse. Dot, yesterday we met May Vernon at the Ritz, and she cut almost bare me away."

She went on to tell Dorothy what had happened at tea the day before.

"May actually thinks that I've had, behind her having an affair with Gil Holmes. And she's furious, t because we inadvertently got her into trouble with her husband."

"How did you explain the matter to Captain Farquahar?"

Lila shrugged.

"Denied the whole thing till I was black in the face. But that's all the good it did. He went away with fire in his eye. And, of course, Gil will deny it, and then there'll be a fine mess than ever." She sighed despair ingly. "I think I'll go jump in the Fast River. Only it's so cold. Do you know how long it takes people to drown, Dot?"

Dorothy poured another cup of coffee "Drink that and don't talk nonsense. We must think."

Lila lifted the cup to her lips and smiled mechanically across its rim.

"And another thing!. What am I going to do about Jack? I daren't risk appearing with him on a public place again. First we met Dad, and then May. Perhaps it'll be Herbert."

Dorothy said suddenly:

"Why don't you receive him at home?"

"At Dad's?" questioned Lila in astonishment.

"At your own house," said Dorothy calmly.

Lila set down her coffe-cup.

"Have you taken leave of your senses?"

"Did you ever read a story called 'The Purloined Letter?" countered Dot "It's the best quite applicable to this situation, but the principle is similar. The idea is that people searching for something usually fail to look for it in obvious places. In other words, the thing which isn't hidden at all is fairly certain to escape the apply to your meetings with Captain Farquarfairly certain to escape the apply to your meetings with Captain Farquar-

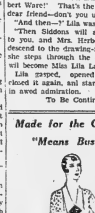

"I haven't the slightest idea what you're driving at."

"I said that Captain Farquahar that youre tired of meeting his always in public restaurants and that you have a very fine friend—a wide-open friend, who invites him to dine with you, and Mrs. Herbert Ware will deserved to be dining-room. But, as she steps through the doorway, she will become Miss Lila Latham, Voila!"

Lila gasped, opened her mouth, closed it again, and stared at Dorothy in awed admiration.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my teens and I go with a boy a few years older. He went with another girl for six years and she is almost always the the subject of our quarrels. He tells me he loves me, but I know he loves the other girl more than he does me. I do almost everything he tells me to, and I don't go out with other boys. I wish you would tell me what I should do.

LADDIE.

LADDIE: My dear, if you are not engaged to this boy, I must caution you against giving up your other friends. I would advise you not to let yourself become so deeply concerned while there is any doubt in your mind of this boy's attitude toward you. I do not see that you have any reason to suspect that he is still in love with this other girl if he is attentive and apparently concerned about you. I think you would be wise to make your attitude less obvious; make him uncertain of you and don't be so willing to do whatever he wishes you to. Continue to go with your other friends and put aside thoughts of love until you are both more sure of yourselves.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl of nineteen. I had a boy friend whom I loved and who loved me. A year ago we had a quarrel and I wrote him not to come back but now I am lonely and want him back. I go out with other boys but none are like him. Please tell me what to do.

N.C.

N.C.: Surely in a years time you have made enough amends to compensate for the loss of this one! I am inclined to think that you are revelling in reviving your memories of the past and exaggerating their perfection! If this boy had been sincerely interested in you I doubt very much if he would have accepted your curt dismissal of him after a petty quarrel I would advise you to continue your other social and outside interests, keeping them all in this boy whose friendship you have lost. Widen your circle of acquaintances and develop new interests. I would not advise you to take any step toward renewing this friendship; if he is still interested in you, let him seek you out.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young girl still in my teens. I have been going with a young man two years older than myself for over a year. Some of my girl friends have told me he has a very bad reputation. What do I believe them and stop going with him or shall I continue to see him?

MARTY.

MARTY: If your friend has ever given you any cause to believe the rumors that you have heard I do not think you should see him. Since you have gone with him for over a year, surely you know him well enough to judge for yourself whether or not this people is true. If you have no reason to believe it, I should think your loyalty to your friend would make you decay any element of truth in the unkind talk and I cannot see why you should be thinking of severing a friend ship that has lasted for over a year.

DRUGS EXCITE THE KIDNEYS, DRINK WATER

If Back Hurts or Bladder is Troubling You, Take a Little Salts

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. To do this they must have from 15 to 30 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water each morning before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer cause a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year

Copernicus, the great Polish astronomer, whose theory that the earth moves around the sun, revolutionized a very long-held astronomy, was also a physician and a financial expert.

If you have no reason to believe it. I should think your loyalty to your friend would make you decay any element of truth in the unkind talk and I cannot see why you should be thinking of severing a friend ship that has lasted for over a year.

When you use gasoline for cleaning articles pour the refuse down the sink and pour boiling water down right after it. This will cut and carry off the grease that has gathered in the pipes.

INSTRUMENT FOR FINGER HEARING

Being Perfected By Professor Gault Of Smith College

Northampton, Mass.—The deaf may soon be able to "hear" through their fingers much more easily than they do at present by employing the various mechanical "ears" that are in use according to Professor Robert H. Gault, of Smith College.

Professor Gault is doing research work as the college psychologist in the laboratory which he says he hopes will make it possible for those who have lost their hearings to understand ordinary conversation through vibrations of the voice detected by the finger tips.

He explained "that the skin can detect 2000 vibrations per second which include all the vibrations that are essential to the understanding of human speech." For the last five years he has been working with the deaf developing an instrument through which these people may feel these vibrations.

The instrument is made for Professor Gault by the Bell Telephone Company. It crudely resembles an ear, but when used by a person who is deaf it is held between the thumb and fingertips instead of being placed at the side of the head as is customary. The person using this instrument has learned the different vibrations and up by speech and through their interpretation may easily carry on a conversation and "hear" a person even does not raise his voice.

The instrument, Dr. Gault pointed out, has another use also. A deaf person using it learns to control and modulate his own voice. This is taught by letting the pupil first feel the vibrations of the instructor's voice, and then teaching him to cause the same vibrations when he speaks. Combined with lip reading, Dr. Gault said, this instrument enables a deaf person to understand speech almost perfectly and without nervous strain. Normally it takes from 50 to 80 hours of instruction to teach a deaf person to understand conversation.

Dr. Gault's work began at Northwestern University in 1922. In his first experiment a tube was run through a wall between two sound-proof rooms. Dr. Gault spoke into the tube and a subject placed his hand over the end of it to feel the vibrations. The subject noted differences in the vibrations of different sounds in the doctor's speech and in 10 months, with 25 minutes' practice each day, the subject has learned to "feel" 38 words.

DEATHS & FUNERALS

HENRIETTA L. DENYES

On Jan. 6th, 1928, at Jasper Park, Duluth, three passed to her rest, Henrietta Loucks, beloved wife of J. P. Denyes, of Duluth. Deceased was a daughter of the late Sanford Loucks, of Thurlow, and was well known in these parts previous to her residing in Duluth.

The late Mrs. Denyes had been in good health and her very cheerful spirit made her passing so unexpected that it came as a great shock to all.

Besides her sorrowing husband, she leaves to mourn their loss, one son, in Duluth, two sisters, Mrs. Carter, of Smith Falls, and Mrs. Vandervoort, of Havelock; also one brother, Mr. A. Loucks, of Carrollton.

The body was brought to Carrollton where the funeral service was held by Rev. E. Farnsworth, and laid to rest in the family plot in Pretoro Cemetery.

A beautiful solo, "In the land where the roses never fade," was rendered by Mrs. J. R. Bush.

MRS. DANIEL MASON

Mrs. Daniel Mason died yesterday afternoon at the Belleville General Hospital following a short illness.

The late Mrs. Mason was born in Hungerford township 53 years ago and was a member of the United Church.

Surviving, besides the sorrowing husband are two sons, Fred., Carrollton; Claude, Oshawa; one daughter, Mrs. William Davidson, Moira; five sisters, Mrs. F. Thompson, Morden, Man.; Mrs. Alex. Harrison, Cressy; Mrs. F. Palmer, Oshawa; Mrs. A. Bell, Frankford; and Mrs. A. Cranston, Holloway.

The interment will be made at Elmwood Cemetery.

JONATHAN TOWNSEND

The funeral of the late Jonathan Townsend was held yesterday afternoon from his late residence, Second Concession of Ameliasburg, to Centre Church where the Rev. B. F. Dixon conducted an impressive service. The interment being made at Burr's Cemetery.

The bearers were Messrs. M. Giles, W. McFaul, W. Coulter, E. Spencer, D. W. Redner and M. Moy.

MRS. MARY H. CLARKE

All that was mortal of the late Mrs. Mary H. Clarke was laid to rest in the family plot, Belleville Cemetery yesterday afternoon following an impressive funeral service at her late home, 83 Victoria Avenue, conducted by Rev. A. Graham and Rev. C. E. Clarke. There were a large number of sorrowing relatives and friends in attendance at the

"QUINTE"

There's a story I will tell you,
Though perhaps it is not true,
Its regarded as a legend
Maybe it will interest you.

It is said that Captain Quinte
A Frenchman brave and bold
Came here to settle a pioneer town
In the brave days of old.

He came up Lake Ontario
Where travelled, too, Champlain
Then sailed in our bay, Quinte
Then, of course, it had no name.

He tried to found a colony
Near Massasaugs Park
But soon found he needed a fort instead
Or the Indians would lay them stark

So when they built a fort there
They buried at their gold
And treasure they had stolen from Ships in those days of old.

And then the Massasaugus came,
Swept down upon their fort
And killed those gallant Frenchmen all
And took their scalps to sport.

One evening about sundown
Just thirty years ago
A man discovered the ruined fort
That's how I came to know.

He found out there was treasure
From a document he found
They left it in the block house
Beneath the floor on the ground.

It gave him some directions
As to how to get that gold
But also stated something
Which made his blood run cold.

It said if anyone else attempt
To get the treasure hire,
Other than our descendants
He will be cured for ever.

The man went home much frightened
The story soon leaked out
And other people tried to find
The treasure but went without.

A man returning from there
Went mad in his despair
And told the wildest stories
That folks ever heard around there.

He said he saw Captain Quinte
Being rowed into the shore
Assisted by his sailors (eight)
And to this fact he swore.

Another man the trees bow down
When he began to dig
And the hole he made with water filled
And he heard steps dance a jig.

And if this story could be true
As I'm inclined to doubt
Its nice to have an explanation
How this name came about.

It stretches out before
So beautiful and broad.
No matter what you call it;
Its a noble work of God.

CHANGES IN LAWS IN FORCE IN '28

New British Acts of Importance to British Classes

London, Eng.—Far-reaching legal one public, have been made during the the public, have been made during the year, affecting many classes of parliamentary session which began in February. These changes come into operation in the New Year.

The year's record has been remarkable for the fulfilment of so large a proportion of the Government programme, as well as for the measures introduced by individual M.P.'s.

Outstanding new Acts are of importance to cyclists, motorists, trade unionists, civil servants, local authorities, moneylenders and borrowers, the aged and infirm, dairy farmers, auction dealers, landlords and tenants and un employed dairymen and many others.

Perhaps the chief Act passed during the year is that dealing with trade disputes, which arose out of the general strike. It gives legal expression to five principles:

1. All general strikes and lockouts are illegal, and no man shall be penalized for refusing to take part in one.'

2. Intimidation is illegal, and no man should be compelled by threats to do some work against his will.

3. No person shall be compelled to subscribe to the funds of a political party unless he so desires.

4. Any person entering the establishment of Civil Service must give individual allegiance to the State.

5. Local authorities must not make membership or non-membership of a trade union a condition of employment.

The provisions regarding political funds, civil servants, and local authorities take effect on January 1, and the others on July 9.

Among other classes affected by the new legislation are:

Unemployed—The whole system of unemployment insurance is revised. A married man receives a shilling more and a single man a shilling less, while the dependent allowance for adults is increased by two shillings. Rates on a lower scale than that for adults will be paid to young people between 18 and 21 years.

Operates from April 1 except in regard to certain provinces.

Landlords and Tenants—Tenants of business premises will have compensation for improvements and goodwill, unless the landlord is prepared to grant a new lease on terms held by a tribunal to be reasonable. Premises occupied by professional men are included. (In operation on March 26.)

Road-users—All two-track vehicles except farm vehicles, which have one white lamp to the off-side, showing a red light to the rear, must carry at night two white lamps in front and one red rear lamp.

Motorists—Swivelling lamps are illegal, but dipping head lamps, with a slight movement to the left may be used. Spotlights may be fixed to shine on the off-side. Head lamps that move with the steering may be permitted by the Transport Minister. A special inquiry will be held regarding dazzle lights. If motorcar parks are adequately lighted the lights of all cars need not be kept on.

Motorcycles—Must have a rear red lamp; not a reflector. Two white lamps one on the side-car and one on the cycle, must be used with sidecar combinations.

"Push" Cyclists—A red rear lamp or red reflector must be used.

(These lighting regulations, when operate from April 22, affect 2,000,000 motorcar owners and drivers, 600,000 motorcyclists, and 6,000,000 cyclists).

Film Producers and Exhibitors—The new Act is designed to abolish, by gradual extinction, the cinema trade practices known as "blind booking" and "blind booking" and also to ensure for British films a guarantee of exhibition in the form of a "quota." The quota begins in the case of exhibitors at five per cent. of the programmes shown, and rises over a period of 12 years to 20 percent, when the Act ceases to operate.

Details

of Interest to all Motordom

THE new Hudson and Essex Super-Sixes come to the Automobile Show in completely new and arresting design, strikingly in advance, and at once brilliantly original and authoritative.

The full unity of their beauty is a swift impression, impossible to dissect; and yet a detailed study of the advancements is of interest not only to Hudson-Essex owners, but to all motordom.

Newness begins at the very front, in higher radiators on both Hudson and Essex—an effect that is further heightened by vertical radiator shutters.

Lamps are of Colonial design, and are of the parabeam type controlled from the wheel. Saddle lamps of the same type are mounted on the cowl by means of a crossing nickeled band. Fenders are of new design, full-crowned and beaded along the edge.

All Essex models are larger and roomier than ever before.

The instrument board is finished in a polished ebony. Set into this background is the grouping of instruments, including the ammeter, oil and gasoline gauges, speedometer, and mileometer, all indirectly lighted.

The handsome new steering wheel has a steel core surrounded by ebony-black hard rubber and carries light control, hand throttle and horn button.

Hudson custom-built bodies are the Victoria, the Landau Sedan and the 7-passenger Sedan.

Body construction is of aluminum panels over a frame of selected hardwood. Lines are original and striking. Mouldings and color panels are employed to bring about distinctive effects. The rear quarters of the Sedan and 5-passenger Coupe are finished in long grain landau leather, colored to match the upper body.

Four-wheel brakes are of course, standard in both Hudson and Essex.

WOMEN USURPING HOUSE GALLERY

Taking Unusual Interest in Proceedings of Commons

London, Eng.—Women are slowly driving men out of the galleries of the House of Commons.

The "Gallery Flapper" has become the usurper of the one place in the Commons which men once considered their own. The young women appear to have taken an unusually keen interest in the conduct of the House since Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin has announced that he will propose equal votes for women at 21. Arriving early at the House, they calmly take the front seats in the Strangers' Gallery. The men who usually arrive just before the Speaker enters, are forced to take back seats where little can be heard and nothing seen.

OLDEST CLERGYMAN DIES AFTER HIS FALL

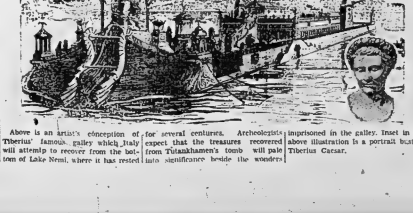

Pontypool.—The Rev. Christopher Cook, who was believed to be the oldest clergyman in the world, died at the rectory, Mamhilad, near Pontypool.

Mr. Cook, who was 103 years old, attended church services regularly, and was able to go out for country walks.

He fell down two days ago, breaking his thigh, which was the indirect cause of his death. He had been rector of Mamhilad for more than 70 years.

Mr. Cook was born at Clybach, Glam organ, in 1824; his father, a naval surgeon, served in the battle of Trafalgar.

In putting diamonds, about 60 per cent. of the weight of the rough stone is lost.

Above is an artist's conception of Tiberius' famous galley which Italy will attempt to recover from the bottom of Lake Nemi, where it has rested for several centuries. Archeologists expect that the treasures recovered from Tutankhamen's tomb will pale into significance beside the wonders imprisoned in the galley. Inset in the above illustration is a portrait bust of Tiberius Caesar.

IS GRADUALLY DRIFTING NORTH

Ottawa—The map of Canada is gradually being unrolled northwards, and bit by bit the secrets that have hitherto lain hidden in that vast empire to the north of the 60th parallel are yielding themselves up to investigation and research. It is only within the last few years that Canadians have definitely turned towards the great possibilities for expansion of the northland and have satisfied themselves that the popular belief that the northern areas of their country are barren and uninhabitable is, like most popular beliefs, utterly erroneous. With a quiet determination they have tackled the problems of exploring and exploiting the territories beyond the 60th degree of latitude, and have within the past year committed themselves to spending many millions of dollars to development work in that part of the continent.

The establishment of post offices, police posts and customs houses in the northern islands left the Canadian mainland has been steadily pursued; the most northerly administrative post in the world is that of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police at Bache Bay on Ellesmere Island, 700 miles south of the North Pole. There is no end to the surveys that are being carried out among the islands themselves and to the investigations conducted into every feature, geographical and biological, that these islands contain.

Coming nearer to civilization Canadians are seen grading for themselves new transportation routes and new outlets to the ocean. At the moment an "expeditionary force" of flying men are operating in the Hudson Straits, that spacious channel which connects the inland ocean, Hudson Bay, with the Atlantic. This force has for its duty the making of observations in daily flights over vast expanses of water in order to note the tidal conditions, currents, prevailing winds, ice and all other elements that enter into navigation. There air stations are located in the straits, one at Port Burwell at the extreme point of the Labrador Peninsula, the second at Kakeham Bay on the south shore and midway up the straits, and the third at Nottingham Island in Hudson Bay itself at its western entrance. Day after day flights are made and reports transmitted by wireless to the Canadian government. The whole idea behind this is that the government should have all information as to how navigation can be lengthened, for although the Hudson Straits have been navigated for three hundred years and at one time were the main highway to the Canadian west in the days of the old fur-trading companies the development of the southern have of traffic left that route far behind.

Linked up with these investigations is the definite effort now being carried out to finish the Hudson Bay Railway—a line which will, when completed, run from a point in Saskatchewan, near the Manitoba border, to Port Churchill on Hudson Bay. As originally planned the road was to end at Port Nelson, but an exhaustive investigation into the merits of the two terminals resulted in Fort Churchill being decided on. It will lengthen the railway by nearly a hundred miles but the respect of engineers who made a study of the situation indicates that Churchill has many natural advantages not enjoyed by Nelson and that despite the 100 more miles of railway building, the expenditures in the end will be smaller.

BOWEN FEATURED KINGSTON WIN

Whig-Standard Says Local Goalie Prevented a Wash-Out

Speaking of Monday night's game the Kingston Whig-Standard says:—

Putting a scoring punch into their play, Kingston romped to a 9-3 victory over Belleville in the intermediate O.H.A. game at the Harty Arena Monday night, and retained their place at the top of the group standing with three straight wins and no defeats. It was a striking display by the locals, who, before the biggest crowd of the season, equalled the count made by Queen's on Saturday and made Wednesday's big battle between Queen's and Kingston more of a tossup than ever before.

Belleville had a rather weakened team in that their defence of Cogry and Green was missing, but they put up a mighty stubborn fight, and even at that would have been badly swamped but for the spectacular work of their goaler, Bowen, who turned in a masterful performance and turned back a myriad of shots. Without Bowen, Belleville would have been a double-figured score against them.

Kingston played well together, mainly after the first period, and were greatly strengthened by the return to the game of "Chummy" Lavior and Travers Rooney. The former seemed somewhat at sea in the first period, because of his long lay-off and the fact that he was wearing a new pair of skates, but in the last period he went in old-time style when he had his old skates on again. Rooney paired up well with Halway and was continually breaking up Belleville attacks, while Holway was never better. The big boy tore through at great speed, and invariably shot over the pass to the wing. Smith and Bellringer were the same fleshers workers on the wings. Smith's stick-handling was as crafty as ever, and his shooting much improved, while Bellringer, though suffering from a heavy cold, handled himself well in looking after the veteran. "Daw" Whelan. Eddie Waits and Tommy Boyd's back-checking was effective, but the latter was also nursing injuries and was unable to show his true form. In the nets Brooks had less work to do than Bowen had, but he handled himself well throughout.

Belleville might have been weak in their defence, but they certainly displayed the real goods in the nets. Bowen turned in a finished performance, plucking shots out of the air from all angles, and standing up remarkably well under a veritable bombardment. Up on the line a familiar figure was seen in Vern Weir, who was dragged out of retirement and was by no means the weakest man on the ice. Weir clung to his mark throughout and was consistently whistling drives that gave Brooks work to do. Whalen was the best of the forwards. Gibson, Hunter and Jarvis failing to measure up to intermediate calibre, while Hagerman and Rooney were not at effective. Green and Green and Goyer would have been. Hagerman seemed lost most of the time, and as the locals was unable to do the puck carrying he is noted for, while Rooney made a fair job of an unfamiliar position.

Belleville Motors are in a position now to demonstrate One of the new Model Fords to you. A short ride in the New Car will convince you that here is the car you want. Then order right away for Spring delivery.

TEX AND GENE SETTLE DISPUTE

New York, Jan. 11.—Tex Rickard and Champion Gene Tunney have settled their differences.

"Everything between Gene Tunney and myself is now O. K.", the boxing promoter declared today.

The flaunting of the olive branch as the result of Rickard's consent to the heavyweight title holder's demands that he fight twice this year.

Tunney's manager, Jack Sharkey of Boston as Tunney's first opponent, and Jack Dempsey as the next and big rest rival. The Dempsey-Tunney tussle will be held in the Yankee Stadium, last September, according to Rickard's present plans.

Just where the first heavyweight championship will be staged remains indefinite although Rickard regards Chicago favorably as the site.

Sharkey, who fights Tom Heeny here Friday night, is not considered as a worthy opponent by Tunney, according to reports from the champion's intimates. However, Tunney probably will be guided by the outcome of the Heeny go.

By "The Observer"

The mild spell has put the crimp in Intermediate, Junior, City League, Church League and High School games. The schedules have been disrupted and should the thermometer take a drop a busy time will be spent catching up for the period lost.

The Royal Military College-Belleville game has been laid over until a later date while the Brockville-Cornwall tilt on Monday evening was postponed owing to lack of ice.

Kingston teams are all to the mustard with the artificial ice surface and a lively contest is promised in Kingston tonight when the Queen's and Frontenacs team line up. The student's always put forward the best foot when against the Kingston city team and with the two evenly-matched tonight's game will be a home-digger.

Queen's demonstrated by their decisive victory over the Military Cadets that they are to be reckoned with. The trickier have Art Quinn, a goalie of no mean calibre while others out with the Presbyterians are Lindsay, Bowie, "Babe" Britton, "Cib" McKelvey and Boland. They have lost Bellamy one of the king-pins of the circuit since last year.

"Senator" Powell, Coach of the Queen's team has high hopes that his lads will come through with a win. Senator is coaching the Inter-Intermediate team as well as the Intermediate O. H. A. Club.

Joe Smith, veteran of district hockey is going as brilliantly as ever and his playing on Monday evening was a revelation. Joe is the clean-living type of athlete who is always in the pink of shape. Each season finds the old boy ready to step with the younger bloods.

"Bouncer" Holway is a popular performer around these parts and drew applause from the crowd every time he starts on one on his excursions which usually put him in the corner.

The Jock Harty is a rink to feel proud of. Up-to-date in every respect it is a model of perfection. An official of the ice says that he has the ice is in use every day from ten in the morning until near midnight.

"Bennie" Bowen certainly demonstrated that he is the pick of goalers in these parts on Monday night. He was subjected to a veritable battering but turned back shot after shot with ease. The Kingston players wagged their heads despairingly as Bowen's marvellous work kept the score from mounting into the twenties.

Players on the Belleville team are praising "Duke" Smith's commodious bus in which they travelled to Kingston. It is certainly a comfort while conveyances, for the long distance travel by the same route throughout the winter except when the snowdrifts interfere.

Belleville Intermediate basketball team will play in Napanee tonight and they have hopes of defeating the homesters on their own floor. Armstrong, Welr and Company have been travelling at a fast pace in practice and should come home with a win tonight.

Trenton Juniors will be here tomorrow evening for a return game with the local kids. Last night's game was exciting tilt a packed house should greet the youngsters here. Trenton have a nice Junior team, with Norman Johnson, centre man leader of the pack. Canning Simpson and Company will be out there to arrange the defeat tomorrow night.

Baseball fans will please keep next Tuesday night open for the general meeting of the fans in the city hall. Some important announcements will be made to the fans at this get-together.

Harry Batstone, red-headed versatile athlete, will likely play ball with the Toronto Leaders in the Viaduct league this summer. Batstone played with Kingston C. C. I. team for several seasons.

There ought to be a terrific jam at the Harty Arena tonight when Queen's and Kingston meet, and the fur ought to fly. Its hard to say just which team should win, for there seems little to choose between them. The Tri-color will probably use Steve Whitton along with "Bud" Macpherson as subs, while the rest of their team will be the same as in the R.M.C. game. Kingston will have their hands full, but the same can be said about Queen's, so it will be a case of pay your money and take your choice.—Whig-Standard.

Vern Weir deserves a lot of credit, for his fine playing. Out of the game almost two years he offered his services when "Soup" Coyer quit the team, and worked like a trojan throughout. There are few cleaner players than Weir anywhere in the country.—Whig-Standard.

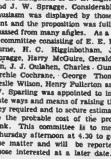

Hunter, Jarvis and Gibson are promising players but they are hardly in intermediate class as yet. Gibson was the best of the bunch. He was out of condition and needed to be subbed continually throughout the game.—Whig-Standard.

PLAN SKATING RINK IN COBOURG

Lake Shore Enthusiasts Prepare Plans For Model Arena

Cobourg, Jan. 10.—Should plans sent out by Cobourg's well attended meeting at the Cobourg Club Monday afternoon, materialize, a skating and hockey rink costing about $15,000 may be erected in the town of Cobourg. The most obstacle facing the project is that of finances but a committee of public spirit, local businessmen are at work on the scheme and it is expected that some definite plan for raising the required amount will be advanced in the near future.

The fact that Cobourg is not represented in the Ontario Hockey Association this season, either in the Intermediate or Junior series, chiefly because local rink accommodation was thought unsuitable, stirred a number of local hockey fans into existence and agitation for a new rink. As a result, thirteen business men met in the Cobourg Club at the instigation of Dr. Ross Robinson and J. W. Spragge. Considerable enthusiasm was displayed by those present and the proposition was fully discussed from many angles. As a result a committee consisting of R. E. Lightburne, H. C. Higginbotham, J. W. Spragge, Harry McGuire, Gerald Virtue, J. J. Oulahel, Charles Gummow, Archie Cochrane, George Thompson, Leslie Wilson, Henry Fulkerson and M. W. Sparling was appointed to investigate ways and means of raising the necessary required and to secure estimates as to the probable cost of the proposed rink. This committee is to meet on Thursday afternoon at 4.30 to go into the matter and will be reported to those interested at a later date.

Ross Robinson, Toronto speed skater, holder of the Canadian championship and winner of the five-mile national championship a record time at Saranac Lake last winter, who will represent the Maple Leaf in the Olympic meet at St. Moritz next month. Robinson also wo the Silver Skate Derby at Chicago last year from an immense field, beating among others, Murphy of Chicago, one of the members of the U. S. Olympic team. The youngster is a brother of Gladys Robinson, foremost feminine skater some years ago.

RECREATION BOWLING

At the Recreation Alleys last night three league games were played.

In the Ladies' League the Deuce took four points from the Ones. For the Deuce, Mrs. Domenico was high bowler and for the Alemite Miss Flagler was high.

In the Junior League the Moose took four points from the Alemite. High bowlers were Young and Belnap.

The Chic Chic took four from the Baby Shoe. For the Chico, Barrigge was high and for the Baby Shoe, Deshane was high.

MANY TO ATTEND KINGSTON GAME

R. M. C.-Belleville Tilt Is Postponed—No Ice Available Here

The Belleville-Royal Military College argument scheduled for the local arena tonight has been called off owing to lack of ice. This announcement was made by Manager Thomas late last evening when it was determined that the temperature was not dropping. The local pilot was in telephone conversation with Secretary Hewitt of the O. H. A. last evening and it is probable that the game will be played at a later date.

With the home game off several of the local players and hockey fans may take in the game at Kingston where Queen's will back horns with Kingston Frontenacs in a game which is sure to produce plenty of action. The tricolor are confident that they can defeat the city team while Stan McQuade states that his boys came out of the Belleville game in ship-shape ode. The same condition arises each year when these two teams meet. Jock Harty arena will no doubt be jammed to the doors for this interesting tilt.

Kingston team demonstrated by their victory over the Belleville team that they will be very much in the hunt for the laurels. Queen's did not enter the Intermediate series but insisted confined their efforts to the O. H. A. and as a result "Senator" Powell has rounded out a smart aggregation. The Presbyterians defeated the R.M. team on Saturday evening by a score of 9-0. With the roads in excellent condition it is expected that Belleville will be well-represented at this game.

MAY ERECT CURLING AND SKATING RINK

Norwood curlers visited Hastings on Friday afternoon for a friendly game and lost out by one point. The rinks were as follows:

Hastings—Hugh McDonald, N. Malcove, C. Dwight, W. Learmouth, skip —10.

Norwood—W. Walker, J. Roxborough, A. Findley, J. R. McKelvie, skip —9.

The roaring game is taking a strong hold in Hastings this year and the Secretary has added many new names to his list.

Some of the boys from the country are trying their hands and before the season is over will make the town boys step to win.

The President and Secretary are working hard to secure new members as they intend to start early in the spring to make plans for the erection of a covered skating and curling rink situated in the centre of the town.

HUNDRED THOUSAND PLAY SOCCER IN U. S.

New York.—Close to 100,000 persons play soccer football in the United States—amateurs and professional. From the boy in grammar school, the youth in high or prep, school, the young man in college to the man of more mature years is this great total estimated and those who respect the sport have seen their dreams realized beyond even their greatest and fondest hopes.

Since the formation of the United States Football Association in 1913, which is the governing body in this country, the game has shown a steady increase until it is growing so fast that the parent body cannot keep step with its progress.

The game needs no further introduction; its features as an outdoor sport are sufficient to warrant the success it has attained. As with any growing sport, the demand for the best there is has boosted the professional ranks of the game. At present there are approximately 2,000 professional players registered with the United States Football Association, with something like 250 of them on the payrolls of the owners of American League clubs.

The only way to judge the New Model Ford is to ride in and drive it. You'll be amazed at its extraordinary features, all combining to make a greater Ford Value than ever before. Have Belleville Motors demonstrate the new car to you.

MANY STARS OUT OF THIS HAMLET

Johnson And Other Hockey Artists Originally From Eveleth

Eveleth, Minn.—Hockey, sweeping the country, has had its unparalleled growth at considerable expense to this little iron-mining city of 7,500 population.

Once the home of Ching Johnson, brilliant defense man of the New York Rangers and other blade stars of renown, this city was the hockey capital of the Northwest a few years back when the game was on a more or less amateur basis.

Eveleth held a berth in the old American Amateur Hockey League, along with Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Duluth and St. Paul and a spacious hippodrome built by popular subscription seldom lacked capacity crowds.

But professional hockey came and with its attractive salaries and expensive organizations finally set a pace beyond the reach of even this ambitious place. The great Ching left, but Eveleth still struggled for its place in the hockey sun. It joined with Hibbing, 30 miles away, in the interCity entry in the league. But that, too, failed.

Besides Johnson, other stars who once played here include Jim Deahon, Vic Des Jardine and Denny Breen. St. Paul, Billy Hill of Minneapolis, and Ade Johnson, Ching's brother, of Duluth, all now of the American Hockey Association, and Percy Galbraith and Nobby Clark, with eastern clubs.

News and Views of the Quinte District

CENTRE

School meeting was well attended and Mr. W. J. McFaul was returned as secretary-treasurer for another term. We think Mr. McFaul holds a record, having served as trustee continuously for twenty-six years.

A fine contribution of fruit, honey etc., was collected by the W. I. of this place and sent to the Old Folks' Home at Picton.

The W.M.S. held their January meeting on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Roy Giles. An attendance of over twenty despite the blustry afternoon felt well repaid by the excellent papers and talks given. Mrs. J. Dehaney, Mrs. Harold Young and Mrs. Mac Giles helped the hostess serve a dainty luncheon at the close of the meeting.

Mr. B. L. Redner bought four fine cows lately. There is much movement in the live stock line at present here.

Mr. Ralph Redner is driving a Ford Coupe these days.

Mrs. Arthur Stewart and little daughter of Belleville, spent a part of the week at Mr. Willoughby Foxe's.

Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Redner entertained on Tuesday night. Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Brickman and Audra, Mrs. Louisa Vandervoort, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Fox and family were among those present.

EX-PASTOR'S TRIAL LIKELY TO CONTINUE TO-MORROW

Miss Gardiner Resigns From Albert College --- U.S. Planning to Spend Enormous Sum on Navy

SHANNON FREED ON 8TH ATTEMPT

Magistrate Mikel Rules That He May Have Got Drunk Later

CASE NOT PROVEN

Crown Attorney Donnan Asked For Stated Case For Review

Appearing after seven remands John Shannon, Front Street storekeeper, was acquitted by Magistrate Mikel in police court yesterday afternoon of a charge of driving a car while in an intoxicated condition. Crown Attorney Donnan promptly asked for a stated case and the affair will be aired in a higher court.

In his decision Magistrate Mikel held that although Shannon was undoubted ly drunk at the time the police officers apprehended him following the accident in which he crashed into Frank Selith's car, at the time of the accident itself the accused, according to witnesses, may not have been intoxicated. In brief, Shannon had twenty minutes in which to get drunk following the accident, and knowing that the police would soon be on the scene this is what he is supposed to have done.

This was Shannon's second alleged offense of driving a car while drunk, the first time appearing last year when he was sentenced to a week in jail. At that time he was severely censured by the Crown Attorney for selling too much lemon extract.

Magistrate's Decision

The evidence in this case has been directed to three distinct periods, or occasions, int. when accused was in the store on the evening of Nov. 16th 1927; 2nd, when the collision between the car of accused and the car of Frank Smith of Rawdon occurred on North Front St. Belleville, about twenty minutes after the first occasion; 3rd, about twenty minutes after the 2nd occasion when accused was arrested and brought to the Police Station.

It is quite clear from the evidence of several credible witnesses that accused was sober on the first occasion, and

UNITED STATES NAVY PLANS CALL FOR SPENDING OF $3,000,000,000

Present Proposals Are Only Preliminary Says Secretary Wilbur

Washington, Jan. 12.—Curtis D. Wilbur, secretary of the Navy disclosed today before the House Naval Committee that the Navy Department had prepared a comprehensive building programme of which the $725,000,000 programme already announced is only a brief.

The Secretary said under questioning that the larger preparation provided for replacement of all battle ships as soon as ability is possible under the Washington Arms Treaty. The annual expenditure would be about $162,000,000 or a total cost of approximately three thousand millions.

"We need cruisers," he said in answer to a question whether the navy could be considered a fit, if this ability force. "That is an absolute need" He said to make it a first class navy it would be necessary to have the 71 ships proposed in the $725,000,000 programme building out that was designed to cover the needs for several years.

LOCAL BAPTISTS HOLD A BANQUET

Church Membership And Finances Reported In Excellent Shape

Business was combined with pleasure last evening when local Baptists held their annual banquet and business meeting. Between 150 and 200 were present and much enthusiasm was shown throughout the evening.

The banquet commenced at 6.30, immediately after, the guests rose and Martin stood over 23 persons as a memorial tribute to the late Dr. Farmer, of McMaster University who died recently.

Before the business of the evening a very pleasing programme took place by eluding piano solos by Mr. Les Rose and vocal solos by Mrs. Russ. Mrs. Bert Mitchell and Miss Helen Lowesbe all being greatly appreciated

The business meeting opened at 8 o'clock. Reports read showed the local church to be in a very prosperous condition financially. About 12,500 being taken in during the past year. Thirty-one new members were admitted to the church in the year 1927 and altogether the outlook for the future was very bright.

NOTED TEACHER TO SOON RETIRE

Miss Ella Gardiner Served Forty-Three Years At Albert College

TO QUIT IN JUNE

Alumni Plan To Fittingly Signalize Her Retirement At Term End

At a meeting of the executive of the College Board at Albert College, held on Tuesday January 10th, it was announced that Miss Ella Gardiner, who was for so many years Lady Principal in the old Albert College, and who has continued as teacher in the new College had given notice of resignation as Lady Principal, and intimated her desire to retire at the end of the present College year. The Executive Committee, recognizing the force of the reasons that had led Miss Gardiner to take this step felt that they should express to the organization and take steps to arrange for a suitable retirement, and it was

With the retirement of Miss Gardiner one of the longest and most distinguished teaching careers in the Province of Ontario will be brought to a close. Miss Gardiner has been employed forty-three years as a teacher, and all of them connected with the one institution. Her work has, through the years, become almost synonymous with that of Albert College, so no other personality has so identified with it in so long. Thousands of graduates, especially of ladies' classes, are scattered over the continent, look back to her as the one who meant most to them in their college days. The announcement of her retirement will be of interest to the great number of the graduates of Old Albert who are scattered over Canada and in other countries as well.

Alumni Plan Fitting Tribute

Miss Gardiner has the unique distinction of being one of the first women to graduate from the University of Toronto. This fact is an evidence of her interest in higher education, and at that stage women were not encouraged to attend college, in fact, at first the authorities of the University refused to grant them degrees. It was no doubt this early ambition for higher education that led to her becoming distinguished as one of the most successful women educationalists in the province.

It was intimated by the Executive Committee that a gathering of Alumni would be held next June to signalize Miss Gardiner's retirement and do her honor in some fitting way, of service. A strong committee of Board members and officers of the Alumni Association was appointed to plan for the occasion.

Rev. Dr. Brown, principal of Albert College with the staff committee of the Board are taking up the question of appointing a successor to Miss Gardiner.

CHILDREN DEAD, PARENTS BURNED

No Hope Of Saving Father's Life—Little Home Destroyed

Brantford, Jan. 12.—Grace, three and Vernon, two, children of Mr. and Mrs. W. Jackson, were burned to death while the father is so terribly burned that he is held out little hope for his life. The mother is in critical condition as a result of the fire which wiped out their home early today. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Mrs. H. Bennett, a neighbor, discovered the blaze and wakening her husband brought out Mr. and Mrs. Jackson but by the time he reached the children's room most of the furniture was taken out before that home was destroyed.

Fire Chief Slee was called on the request and a representative of the Fire Marshall is investigating.

FEARS STEAMER IS IN TROUBLE

Faint Signals Come From "Guffo" Asking For Help

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 12.—Fears are growing that disaster had overtaken the steamer "Griffo" reported in distress presumably about Cape Sundrey miles off the Washington Coast area, today, in a dozen radio stations attempted to break through the wall of silence which seemingly had enveloped the Honolulu-bound craft. Before day break, the cutter "Haida" of the United States coast guards put out of Seattle to search for the distressed steamer.

Radio Has Help

Seattle, Wash., Jan 12.—With a storm reported off the coast of Washington, radio stations today were also attempting to pick up the freighter "Griffo", which sent "S O S" calls last last night. The first call was received by Seattle harbor radio. No details were given. It was believed the ship was about three hundred miles out bound for Honolulu. The second "S O S" was heard by the Oriental Dock Radio at Everett, Wash., at 11.35 p.m. The signal was faint but gave the name of the vessel with the word "help". In addition to Capt. Herbert Martin there were 22 persons aboard the steamer when she left here Monday.

RECOVERED BODY OF CANADIAN MATE

Washington, Jan. 12.—The body of Rudolph Jaunes Rose of Alberta, Canada, electrician's mate on the submarine S-4, was among the fifteen recovered from the hull of the sunken ship yesterday, according to an announcement given out by the navy department today. The body of William Dempsey machinist's mate, whose next to him in Mrs. Marchand, sister, of Waterford, Ont., is among the eight still in the sub marine.

HOMES RUINED

Dwellings of Flood Victims Are Soaked With Creosote

London, Jan. 12.—The Daily Mail after making an investigation of the disaster caused by the Thames last Saturday, today estimated that at least eighteen hundred men, women and children were in deplorable circumstances. These were people of the poorer districts below the business section of the city. They have been trying to clean out their dwellings and to rescrepy them but have found it impossible as the houses are not only soaked with water but also saturated with creosote, many thousands of gallons of which were washed by the flood from local factories.

ONE DAY'S EXTRA LIFE FOR RUTH

Supreme Court Grants Stay To Let Her Testify In Suit

Albany, N.Y.—Attorney General Albert Ottinger today announced he had ruled that the stay of execution issued in behalf of Mrs. Ruth Brown Snyder, convicted by the Supreme Court Justice Levy in her case not binding. The order he said does not act as a stay of execution.

New York, Jan. 12.—Supreme Court Justice Levy today told why he granted a stay of execution for Mrs. Ruth Snyder, convicted slayer of Lorraine Snyder, Mrs. Snyder's ten-year-old daughter, ward of the court. Justice Levy said in his decision he calls upon the inherent power of the court," he said.

"It may well be after oral argument that there is a lack of merit in the application but no one may gainsay that at least this infant is entitled to an opportunity to be heard. This must necessarily occur in a very short term, and obviously neither state nor any person can be aggrieved by the delay of a possible day."

Lorraine Snyder would become beneficiary of insurance totalling $50,000 in the event of her mother's death and should the policies be declared legal.

One Day Stay Granted

New York, Jan. 12.—Supreme Court Justice Aaron J. Levy granted a stay of execution last night to Ruth Brown Snyder until Friday at 10 a.m., on the plea of her lawyers, that her presence is needed as a witness in the litigation over the insurance of $95,000 on her husband, Albert Snyder, whom she was convicted of murdering. Application will be made in the Federal Court today for a stay in behalf of Henry Judd Gray, also under death, his constitutional rights were violated. The stay of the execution may fail of its purpose. When told that such a move had been panned, Warden Lawes said he would probably disregard such an order, unless he received directions to the contrary from his superiors. Warden Lawes also regraded two Supreme Court orders issued today directing him to allow visitors to see Mrs. Snyder. He held that those court orders were invalid.

THIRD WIFE CAUSES NO REJOICING AT INDORE

Colombo, Ceylon, Jan. 12.—Trouble of the former Maharajah of Indore and Miss Nancy Ann Miller of Seattle, Wash., in arranging their marriage have been somewhat staved off at least one member of the Maharajah's staff is beginning to wonder if the wedding will take place.

"I am not in a position to say anything about the proposed wedding which may or may not come off," this member of Indore's staff said today.

Meanwhile friends of the former Maharajah think that the wedding may occur in India and that the couple will spend their honeymoon travelling to United States. It is believed that passport difficulties will be raised if they attempt to proceed to India where news that the former ruler of Indore was to take a third wife has not met with any enthusiasm.

CHURCH SERVICE WELL ATTENDED

Bishop Seager Spoke Of Fine Qualities Of Late Mrs. Elliott

With numerous representatives from very walk of life in Belleville and surrounding districts and friends and relatives from many neighboring cities in attendance the funeral of the late Mrs. John Elliott, whose death occurred at the Elliott home, Richland Ave., on Tuesday morning of this week was held this afternoon to Christ Church, after a private service had been held in the home for the members of the immediate family.

The public service at Christ Church, of which this estimable lady had been a faithful member was most impressive when all the solemn funeral ritual of the Anglican Church was employed by the Lord Bishop of Ontario, Bishop Seager of Kingston, the Minister of Christ Church, Rev. C. E. Clarke; the Vicar of St. Thomas Church, Rev. J. Lyons and Rev. A. L. Geen.

Bishop Seager Spoke

Departure from the customary funeral service of the Anglican Church was a short address by Bishop Seager who spoke of the many outstanding qualities of the kindly, brilliant woman who today was being borne to her final resting place. The bishop also offered words to the sorrowing husband and family in their great bereavement.

The many in attendance at the services testified with the considerable wealth of flowers silently bore testimony of sorrow and sympathy from all parts of the province. The interment was made in the Elliott plot, Belleville cemetery.

The bearers were Col. W. N. Ponton, Col. E. D. O'Flynn, Messrs. Geo. K. Graham, Jamieson Bone, F. B. Deacon and A. McGie.

Ottawa, Jan. 12.—Earle Nelson, internationally known as the "Dark Stranger," who pay the death penalty at Winnipeg on Friday morning next for the murder of Mrs. Emily Patterson, Mr. Cabinet, having reviewed his case, has decided that there will be no reprieve, it was announced here last evening.

YOUNG GIRL TELLS STORY OF HER RUIN TO A CROWDED COURT ROOM

Not Sixteen At The Time Of Her Downfall With Pastor

A TRAGIC TALE

Gradually Gained Her Confidence Claiming They Were "Chums"

With a crowded court-room of nearly the entire population of Joseph J. Mellor, deposed pastor of Picton United Church appeared before Judge Evan McLaren to answer charges of having committed serious offences against Bertha Houck, a former young their girl while she was under the age of sixteen years.

Miss Houck, a pretty little flaxen-haired damsel was the picture of remorse as she timidly peeked over the witness rail while Special Crown Prosecutor Kiellor McKay of Windsor plied his questions and drew from her the story of the intimate relationship between her and the pastor. It was a tale of a girl and the wiles of a devious man bent on wrecking her character by means of loving and endearing words and letters which fairly seethed with phrases expressing his love for the girl.

Miss Houck has been in Ottawa for some months a patient at a Maternity Hospital where she bore a child, the father of which she claims is the former pastor of the Picton Church. Dressed in a neat fitting suit trimmed with fur and a fawn coat of the latest model, Miss Houck presented a striking appearance and despite the fact that she has been confined to a hospital she answered question in a straight-forward manner with little hesitation, although at times she was visibly affected as she recounted the story of her relations with the pastor.

Mellor Pleads Guilty

Mr. Mellor, after his long confinement in Picton jail sat through the trial in silence and appeared under a heavy strain.

Miss Houck was first witness called. She stated that she had lived in Picton since she was two years of age, was born in Winnipeg and both her parents were dead. She lived with an aunt, Mrs. Philip Haight in Picton.

Col. McKay: "Do you remember when Mellor came to Picton?"

"In the Spring of 1926."

Miss Houck said there were four organizations in the Picton Church, the C.G.I.T., Y.P.P., Trail Rangers and Tuxis Boys. She said that Mellor started the C.G.I.T.

"When did you associate yourself with the Church?"

"After Mr. Mellor came."

"When did you become acquainted with Mellor?" asked the crown.

"Not until the Fall of 1926."

Witness said that she was fourteen years of age then and that Mellor had treated her the same as the other girls until 1923.

Kissed Her After Concert

"What were the relationships after 1927?"

"In June of 1923 I was going to a concert with a girl friend and after the concert Mellor invited me and I thought it was very nice."

"Afterwards what were your relations?"

"I went to a Girl Guide camp next day and when I came home from the

MINIMUM WAGE BOARD MAN HERE

Mr. Henry O. Festar, a member of the Minimum Wage Board for Ontario, was in the city yesterday on a regular tour of inspection. Mr. Festar reports that the Board has had no rulings of the Board are being well lived up to and there have been few complaints. There were two or three small matters requiring re-adjustment in this city but the requests of the Board were promptly met by the employers without difficulty.

So far the activities of the Minimum Wage Board have been confined to looking after the interests of female employees but it is quite possible that in the coming session of the Legislature a bill will be introduced to extend their activities to cover boys and young men.

HARDY, POET AND NOVELIST, DEAD

World Of English Letters Loses Its Most Distinguished Figure

AGED EIGHTY-SEVEN

Last Of Great Victorians—Architect Before Starting To Write

Dorchester, England, January 12.—Thomas Hardy, aged dean of English literature, died last night at his home here after a month's illness.

The famous 87-year-old novelist had a chill December 12, and thereafter his condition was alternately hopeful and critical, but his age imposed heavy odds against recovery. Death came at 9 p.m. after optimistic reports during the day.

With Hardy's death one of the greatest of the Victorians, scenes of whose novels of English life were laid in his beloved Wessex, where he lived most of his 87 years, passed from the literary world.

Hardy died in surroundings in which he no doubt would have chosen for his end. The historic countryside of his home was to him the most loved of spots. More than forty years ago the novelist planned and built a fine red brick and stone country house which has been his home and sanctum ever since. It was in this home that he produced some of the greatest literature of modern times.

His estate is in a beautiful undulating countryside about one mile from the ancient English town of Dorchester. When he selected the site it was part of the Duchy of Cornwall and belonged to the then Prince of Wales, later Edward VII., but through the intervention of the Prince himself Hardy was allowed to purchase two acres.

On these two acres the writer built his home, surrounding it with a grove of trees, laid out lawns, and started vines which since have clambered up about the dwelling to mark the passing of the years. Hardy never deserted the home which he loved so well. His declining years were spent largely in penning poetry in his study, from the windows of which he could see his trees and the birds he had encouraged to build in them.

Whether any of Hardy's recent poetry will ever be given to the public is problematical. Hardly is said to have written it most for himself and his friends, rather that he had completed his life's work.

In his later years Mrs. Hardy, his second wife, nursed and tended him herself, was the novelist's secretary and encouraged him in the poetic work. She herself is a writer, but abandoned most of her own work in order to remain loyally and constantly at her husband's side.

LOCAL Y'S EASY WIN AT NAPANEE

Intermediate Basket Ball Team Piled Up Score Of 65 To 27

The "Y" Intermediates found no great difficulty in solving the defensive tactics of the Napanee basketball players at the latter place last night and as a result, left the Eastern Town with a 65-27 win in their credit.

As the score would indicate the game was a free evening affair. The local champ - rhooters got under way early in the fixture and were not long in running up a substantial lead which they maintained without difficulty and in this they tended to touch the mark on occasions instead of opening up and advancing the ball. The local playing together smoothly turned in their best effort to date and it they continue to improve as they have of late there is every reason to believe they will make things extremely interesting for the fast travelling Queen's manager Hon. when they meet the latter here on Wednesday the 18th.

this is not contradicted by the prosecution.

Drunk At Station

It is quite clear that on the 3rd occasion, ninety minutes after the first occasion when accused was arrested and seen at the Police Station by the policemen, he was intoxicated.

Accused was not in charge of an automobile on either occasion. On the first or third occasions, so that the offence could not have been committed by him on either of these occasions. The Police arrived on the scene about twenty minutes after the collision and immediately on the arrival of the Police, they took charge of accused's automobile and he could not therefore from the time he reported an accident of it, and whatever his condition was from the time of the arrival of the police and their taking possession of the automobile, that condition could not constitute the offence charged, although it might constitute some other offence.

The prosecution relies on the condition of accused on the 2nd period of occasions, as constituting the offence charged. It becomes necessary therefore to consider the evidence in reference to the second occasion, namely at the time of the collision, and up to the street. The only person present besides the accused during that time were the witnesses, Smith the owner of the other car in the collision and Wear er who was riding with Smith. The evidence is not a determinant factor because it was an unusually bad night for driving—dark and drizzling rain and sleet obscured the vision through the windshield which would render a collision likely between sober drivers. The witness Wicker, offering to accused, says, Q. 20 "He was a total stranger to me and I don't know whether he was intoxicated or sober; he was not, as far as he was concerned, but he was anxious to get his car away and we did not want him to get away from us all together. It was night and dark." .

Drunk at Intersection

Frank Smith the owner of the other car who was with accused from the time of the collision till the police took charge of the accused's car says, Q. 22. "Now is there any marked difference in his condition on that night from the other occasions on which you have seen him?" A. "No." Q. 23. "And he was perfectly sober as far as I know."

"These two men were with accused for about twenty minutes before the police arrived.

The fair inference from the whole evidence is that accused was not intoxicated up to the time his automobile passed out of his control and into the control of the police. At all events there would be a reasonable doubt about it.

NOTED SPEAKER COMING SUNDAY

Joseph R. Hanley, a Rotary Ex-Governor To Speak On The Club's Work

On Sunday evening, Jan. 15th, citizens of Belleville will have an opportunity to hear an address at the Belle Theatre by Congressman Joseph R. Hanley, America's foremost humorous lecturer.

Mr. Hanley was formerly on the Chautauqua circuits and last year was District Governor of Rotary for the 24th District which includes a large part of Ontario, New York and Pennsylvania. He was also a delegate to the State Congress by a tremendous majority.

Mr. Hanley is no stranger to Belleville, having been here several times before in connection with his work as governor.

He will on Sunday evening speak in behalf of the fine humanitarian work that is being carried on here by the Belleville Rotary Club in giving treatment and relief to crippled children.

Numbers of poor and unfortunate children have suffered in many instances, have received free surgical and medical attention and been provided with hospital accommodation without cost to themselves or their families because of the kindness of the Rotary Club. Many of the children have become fully restored to their normal faculties and have been enabled to take their places in life.

Although much of the work done by physicians and others has been performed without charge, there have been heavy outlays to pay railway fares, hospital bills and other essential items of expenditure. All past accounts, however, are paid in full. There still is great need for liberal donations to continue the work and bring relief to many other little sufferers who have an equally strong claim for assistance.

It is for this reason that an urgent appeal is made to the general public to support with the utmost generosity the appeal that will be made for financial aid.

There is no more noble work and none that will afford more lasting satisfaction to those who participate in it than to become active in this direct and practical effort to bring relief, restoration and comfort to those who by physical disabilities are prevented from filling their proper mission in life.

IN MEMORIUM

In ever loving memory of our dear daughter and sister Audrey Grant, (nee) Audrey Holden who passed away Jan. 12, 1927.

Days of sadness still come o'er us,
Years in silence often flow,
For memory keeps her ever near us,
Though she left one year ago.
Friends may think that we forget her
Those at times they see us smile;
But they little know the sorrow
That the smile does hide all the while.

Sadly missed by Mother, Father, Sisters and Brothers.

MAN BREAKS THROUGH ICE

Winnipeg, January 12. — Slipping through the icy hole after he had attempted to rescue a friend who had broken through the ice, John Smith, 60, was drowned in the Red River yesterday. His body has not been recovered. His companion, George Ritchie, managed to gain the shore after a strenuous struggle.

One of the smart new dance places in New York has painted on its walls the curious deep sea fish discovered on the Arcturus Expedition.

Newsy Neighborhood Notes

NARROW ESCAPE

Oshwa, Jan. 12.—An almost miraculous escape from death was experienced yesterday by eight year old Albert Cox, son of Albert Cox, 79 Ritson road, north, Oshawa, when he stepped in the path of a heavy truck and was knocked down, sustaining a severely bruised left arm and right leg. The accident happened in front of the King Street Public School at noon, when the pupils were being released. The Cox boy, who was leaving the school with the other children, stepped onto the pavement, apparently unaware of the truck, which was almost upon him. Fortunately the truck was travelling very slowly or the accident would undoubtedly have been fatal.

CONDITION IMPROVED

Kingston, Jan. 12—Considerable apprehension was felt for the condition of the eleven-year-old boy, Kenneth Parkin, who was injured in an accident on Saturday night, when a dynamite cartridge he was holding exploded in his hand. At the hospital today, however, it was reported that his condition is very much better and that he is resing a great deal easier. On Monday afternoon the bandages over the boy's eyes were removed and Dr. H. C. Connell states that the young boy's sight will not be impaired. His hand is also showing improvement.

LIFE STILL IN DANGER

Port Hope, Jan. 12—With a bullet lodged in his body, 15-year-old John Burgess, Caldwell street, Port Hope, lies in his home in a serious condition. He was the victim of a shooting accident which occurred a week ago yesterday, when his brother, who was playing with a gun, accidentally shot him. The latter penetrated his head and he was immediately removed to the Port Hope Hospital. His condition has improved gradually, and he was removed to his home a few days ago. Doctors state that the crisis will not be passed until 10 days have elapsed from the time the accident occurred, so it is necessary to wait this long to determine whether or not infection has set in.

FIRE PROBE

Oshawa, Jan. 12—The open probe into the Alger block fire being conducted in the Council Chambers, Oshawa, by E. P. Heaton, Ontario Fire Marshal, has failed so far to shed any additional light on the cause of the recent blaze, the estimated damage of which was $100,000. Nine witnesses were examined yesterday by Crown Attorney McGibbon and cross-examined by Fire Marshal Heaton. The Alger Building Press Commission was represented by G. D. Conant and Sr. Manban, barrister, Oshawa, held a watching brief for Sid P. Kenny, former Chinese manager of the Hillmont Cafe, who some time ago was acquitted on a charge of arson in connection with the conflagration, here being no sufficient evidence to justify the Crown proceeding with the case. Prior to commencing with the inquiry, Fire Marshal Heaton made it clear that the probe was being conducted for the purpose of trying to ascertain the true cause of the fire and also to clear any stigma that might rest on Sid Kenny.

Permanent Exhibit of His Master's Voice Instruments in National Museum

Collection Installed in Washington, D.C. Complete from 1887 to 1904

Prepared and presented by Mr. Emile Berliner Inventor of Disc Talking Machine

Copyright Underwood & Underwood
Mr. Emile Berliner (left), famous inventor of the disc talking machine, here is seen as he collected showing the development of the gramophone, during the opening of the National Museum at Washington, D.C., which was donated to the museum by Mr. Berliner.

Washington D. C.—THE NATIONAL MUSEUM in this city has devoted an entire section to an historical exhibit of His Master's Voice gramophones invented, designed and presented by Mr. Emile Berliner, inventor of the first disc gramophone.

In addition to the exhibit of instruments there is a complete exhibit of records.

Each instrument and each record shown represents a distinct step forward in the talking machine art, and each item is the first unit of its particular kind made.

The exhibit contains first records and first instruments complete from 1887 to 1901, and is said to be the most comprehensive exhibit of gramophones in various stages of development ever gathered together in any museum.

The exhibit represents the work and collection of Mr. Berliner on the part of the famous inventor, work which existed as far reaching interest upon the talking machine industry in Canada.

Conspicuous among the items is the model of the first gramophone, similar to the one pictured or the trademark "His Master's Voice" showing the dog listening in front of the horn.

Though many improvements have been made in the reproductive art, ever since its practical application by Mr. Berliner in 1887, culminating in the introduction of the Gramophone in 1925, the modern and extensive companies which grew out of the distinguished inventor's early effort, still retain the early picture as their registered trademark of quality. Touch carried on the books of the Icer Companies throughout the world at a nominal value, this trademar is estimated as being of valuable, tat many millions could handle purchase the good will contained in it. Ite poster of the famous picture, Mr Francis Barraud died recently in Par.

FIELD CROWDED FOR WOMEN TAXI DRIVERS

New York.—With a drab chauffeur's cap pulled down over brown curls she sat in the driver's seat of a taxicab. She put away a cigarette and brightly acknowledged the customer's directions. She started the cab and skillfully piloted it through dense traffic. She stopped in front of the address she had been given, opened the door for the fare, and with a mat ter-of-fact "Thank you" accepted the proffered tip.

Since the first woman driver applied for her license in 1914, the field has become crowded.

"We treat them just like men," explained a policeman. "They have to take exactly the same tests that the men do, post the same bond, and suffer just the same punishment if they violate any of the license rules."

Among the new bags for evening are some of black suede with jewelled tops or mountings.

TODAYS MARKETS

MARKET UNEASY TODAY

New York, N.Y., Jan. 12.—Backing and filling movements characterized trading in today's stock market. Upward price tendencies appeared to predominate, but the uneasiness regarding credit conditions and the immediate trend on securities prices was reflected in the market falling off in the volume of sales. Pools stared sharp advances in few issues and prevented new peak spots erupted out.

Motors suffered strength on predictions by President Sloan of General Motors that first quarter car sales and profits would break all records. Copperes moved upward under the leadership on given rumanew which sold at 143 as against low of 142 on Tuesday of this week. Nickel crowed 93 for new high.

Today's mining market was in extremely dull attair from start to finish. Forced selling was evident in the weak ness displayed by almost every base metal issue, international Nickel, in demand in New York made a slight gain in this market, but outside of this particular movement, gains were most conspicuous by their extre absence. Technical adjustments must take place in all markets an this mining market of ours is no exception, and even though the Bruin sequence has only has the upper hand at present and Mr. Bull content to remain in observation, the grim reaper is always optimistic tha tthe cellar has been reached by the market leaders. If this is true and this is the "cellar" let us now be discover the necessary stimulti to stake things up again. News free the north continues exceptionally god, and judging from the small turnver on the downward grind, only those who find it absolutely necessary to liquidate their holdings are doing so. ad now purchasers are taking these offerings up on each and every concession.

SEARCH LAND AND SEA FOR AVIATORS

Wellington, New Zealand, Jan. 1.—More than fifty hours over due Capt. Hood and Lieut. Monteriefel, two New Zealand aviators setting on a flight from Sidney to New Zealand, today were sought, by land and sea. Parties have been sent to the Tararua mountains on the slim chance that the men may have been forced to descend in the mountainous region.

At the same time a cruiser was despatched to the spot in the sea it is estimated the plane was when her wire less signals ceased. While the search is going on actively, observers feel that there is little hope for the safety of the men.

TRY AGAIN TO BREAK ENDURANCE RECORD

Roosevelt Field, N.Y., Jan. 12.—Clarence Chamberlain, trans-Atlantic flier, accompanied by Roger Williams took off at 10.12 a.m. today in an attempt to break the World's endurance flight record. An attempt was thwarn ed yesterday after four hours by failure of the fuel pumps.

YOUNG GIRL

camp we had a C.G.I.T. camp and Mr. Mellor was there." Continuing she said, "While we were there we had a talk and we decided to be church. I remained at camp a week, then I came home."

"After this did the accused's conduct remain the same?" asked Mr. McKay.

"Yes, he went away for his holidays then."

"For the remainder of 1923 what was his conduct toward you? Did you have confidence in him? Did you like him?"

"I did."

"Where were you in the Spring of 1924?"

"I was at home."

Mr. McKay: "During the spring and winter of 1924 what were your relations?"

"We had talks. In the winter and spring of 1924 we became more intimate. Mellor made advances to me."

"Where did these things take place?"

"In the vestry, which we called the private room."

"How often did these relationships occur?"

"Whenever an opportunity occurred sometimes once a week, sometimes twice."

"Up to May, 1924, what were your relationships?" asked the Crown.

Answer: "Just as familiar as ever."

"What happened at the end of May?"

"My aunt went to the country on a visit and as we were going to have a talk in the vestry, I said we might as well talk at the house."

Mr. McKay "How long did you remain at your home?"

"About an hour."

"How did were you at that time?"

Answer. "Sixteen."

"Did these relationships continue?" "Yes, he acted with me the same as happened at my house."

Miss Houck said this continued until he went away in the summer.

"Where did these acts take place?" In the vestry of the church."

Shortly after this the plaintiff was allowed to leave the courtroom for a time.

Wrote Mellor of Trouble

On her return Miss Houck stated that when she and Mellor were at a girls' camp in the summer of 1924 the latter had asked her to go to his tent but she did not go. She said it was just last summer that she found she was in trouble.

"After you found you were in that condition did you communicate with Mr. Mellor?"

Answer, "Yes, by letter."

Witness said that during the summer time she and Mellor were exams.

At this point Counsel for Mellor McKay special Crown Prosecutor produced twenty-six letters written by Mellor to Miss Houck. The majority of them began "My Dear Chum" and were signed or "Kim."

These letters were quite affectionate in nature and contained in parts a code understood by the two such as I. L. Y. meaning "I love you," and I. L. M. C. meaning "I love my chum."

Court was then adjourned for lunch At two o'clock this afternoon court resumed. Every available inch of standing room was filled. Miss Bertha

Another Remand

The case against the five men charged with operating slot machines was laid over again today. The Crown is awaiting the outcome of the similar charges which have been laid against tobacco merchants and others in the city of Toronto.

Veteran of the Road

George Graham, a veteran of the road was fined up by Inspector Lougheed of the Provincial Police yesterday and lodged in the local cells. Graham who was originally from England has travelled the byways and high ways of Canada for many years and although he claims sixty-four summers is still hale and hearty and would not forsake his profession as "Knight of the Road". Graham ha'l been a frequent visitor at the local police station and has been given shelter here on numerous occasions. He chooses to travel alone rather than with a companion and is a familiar figure as he wends his way along the roads.

ASK LIGHTS FOR A HARBOR RINK

Wharf Street Debating Club Members Will Shovel The Snow

City Council will be asked tonight to deal with the question of providing civic lights for a rink on the harbor. Ben Sandford was busy to-day, making a more two hundred feet by one hundred in the centre of the harbor. The ice at this point is ten inches thick and perfectly safe for skaters.

This scheme was worked out some years ago and many joined in the healthy outdor skating each evening. Ben Sandford recently rented the land and will present the proposition of providing at least a couple of large electric lights over the area of the rink for the convenience of skaters. No admission will be charged and everyone may enjoy a skate in the open air without any cost to themselves while a warm place will be provided to change from street costume to skating togs. The members of the Wharf Street Debating Club will assist in keeping the rink free of snow.

Houck was placed back in the stand by Col. McKay.

During the time of these improper relations with Mellor did he inquire as to the state of your health?"

Answer "I always anxious to know if I was alright."

"He told me it was the last thing he would do."

Mr. Fred Ward Counsel for the defence then rose and started to put the girl thro,gh a stiff cross examination. He succeeded in tripping Miss Houck up on several questions which he had asked her in the preliminary hearing sometime ago, to which questions she now gave different answers.

Checked and plaid taffetas are both the smart this spring.

STATES SOCIETY IS THREATENED

Bernard Mallett Attributes Wave to Lack of Propagation

London—(By Mail)—Modern Society may share the same fate as the ancient civilizations of Greece and Rome and perish from the same causes according to an article by Sir Bernard Mallett, Registrar-General of England from 1909 to 1920 published here.

Sir Bernard attributed the possible wane of modern society to the elimination of the small elite which, he declares, in every age keeps alight and hands down the torch of civilization.

"Official statistics show that, broadly speaking, the higher the social grade is, the lower is the fertility, and that the middle and upper class, professional and business, scholastic and so on, is not maintaining its contribution to the next generation in proportion to that of the whole population, and partly, clearly in that class of unskilled labor," Sir Bernard declared.

"This means that the latter class is becoming disproportionately to the former."

After reviewing various recent statistics, Sir Bernard declared, "It appears that the middle and upper classes are dying out, and that their place is being taken by the descendants of social classes below them.

"What is true in Western Civilization is that they are failing, as did their predecessors in many ancient civilizations, in performing their highest obligation to society—namely, parenthood.

"The mechanism of inheritance is too obscure to enable us to account for the appearance of a man of genius, or explain the production of a Julius Caesar or a Shakespeare from two opposing tanks of society. All the evidence, as far as it goes, tends to prove that child ren of a better order of intelligence are produced by parents of superior class, by which is meant parents belonging to the classes now threatened with extinction.

"The great fact which distinguishes modern society from that which preced ed it is the prevalence of artificial methods of birth control. So far, the practice has been almost entirely harm ful in this country, since it has been adopted in the main by those classes whose multiplication is desirable, and have been left unrestrained and untouched by the poorest and most improvident classes in the community.

BELLE THEATRE

The percent day flapper will be given the opportunity of witnessing a new bundle of tricks today when Bebe Daniels, Paramount star, comes to the Belle Theatre in her latest screen comedy "She's a Sheik."

What the dashing comedienne does to men who deign to give her the cold shoulder is the foundation for one of the best photoplays Miss Daniels has ever made.

The setting of "She's a Sheik" is in Algeria,home of the Foreign Legion and intrigue, and the popular star squeezes every possible bit of romance and color out of these picturesque surroundings by taking the offensive in the game of love.

Richard Arlen, now making such a success in a principal role in "Wings" is the object of this offensive and is perfectly cast as the handsome captain of the Foreign Legion who finally succumbs to Miss Daniels' tactics and charm.

PLAINFIELD W. I. AT SOCIAL EVENING

Thursday evening was the occasion of the annual social meeting of the Plainfield Women's Institute, when Mrs. Wallace Simmons, of Carmel, very ably acted as hostess.

The business meeting was conducted by the President, Mrs. Earl Denyes, followed by an entertaining programme of readings, recitations and singing. Music on varied instruments was also given and much enjoyed by all.

The majority of the guests then took part in two contests, namely: "A Garden Romance" and a "Singing" contest which created a lot of fun. The remainder amused themselves playing cards.

The main feature of the evening was a cream, pumpkin and berry pie contest and all present were interested. The prize winners were Mrs. Earl Denyes, Mrs. Jack Lattone and Mrs. John Rollins.

The number of guests present were about sixty, due to the strong attraction the pie had for the men. After lunch was served a hearty vote of thanks was moved by Mrs. Beatty and seconded by Mrs. Thompson to Mrs. Simmons and Grace for their kind hospitality. A little later all left for home after spending a very enjoyable evening.

SIDNEY COUNCIL HOLDS MEETING

Inaugural Gathering For 1928—No New Faces On Council

The inaugural meeting of Sidney Township Council for 1928 was held in the Town Hall, Wallbridge on the 9th inst.

The 1927 Council being returned by acclamation there were no new faces around the Council table. A fair attendance of visitors was in evidence and considerable interest was manifested in the appointment of officials for the year 1928, there being seven applicants for the office of assessor.

The manner of choice was by ballot and those chosen were P. J. Wood for senior and P. Utman for junior assessor. The choice of auditors was determined by the same method and J. M. Carl and J. W. Bailey were appointed to audit the Township accounts of 1927. There were no other changes in the officials of the Township.

The usual grant of $5.00 was made to the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto.

The Good Roads Association member ship fee $5.00 was passed by the Council and the Road Supt. was appointed a delegate to the Good Roads Convention.

A communication re the organization of an Eastern Ontario Good Roads Association was received and lyied as was also the request of the Ontario School Trustees and Ratepayers Association.

The following accounts— Municipal World $25.00, News Argus $16.40, B. Kitchener $11.25, Sick Children's Hospital $5.30 and Good Roads membership fee $5.00 were ordered to be paid.

The Clerk was instructed to call for tenders for the Township printing, inf- Cutler Auditor's Report, Voters Lists, Tax Notice and Financial Statement for 1928 from the Belleville, Trenton and Stirling printers.

Mr. Edward J. Pyear was re-appointed a member of the local Board of Health for 1928.

The Clerk was instructed to call for tenders from four reading machinery companies for a grader scarifier tractor hitch and 7 foot blade, said tenders to be in the hands of the Clerk by March 15th and dealt with at the next meeting of the Council.

The necessary bylaws appointing assessors, auditors, a member of the local Board of Health, and to provide for expenditure on Township roads were passed by the Council and numbered 834, 835, 836 and 837 respectively.

The Council was then adjourned to meet Monday, March 19th at 10 o'clock a.m.

Sage Tea Dandy to Darken Hair

By DOROTHY LANG

You can turn grey, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost overnight if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. It costs only 75 cents. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

Japanese kimonos fold over from left to right, except those used for the dead, which fold from right to left.

"I Could Cry Over My Skin"

No Need to Say that Now.

If you have tried "everything" for your pimples, blackheads or eczema and want to know what it is to get something that really works—then let your skin know the magic touch of sulphur combined with mentholatum, a little more amazing than how sulphur clears the skin,—and as sulphur cream, menthol heals. As combined in Rowles Mentho Sulphur, the two make an astonishing skin corrector and builder. Pimples dry up overnight. Blackheads and coarse pores vanish in a few days. And as for eczema—even the most burning or itching case soon yields. Relief from the burning or itching follows immediately upon application.

Rowles Mentho Sulphur is inexpensive and all druggists supply it in jars ready to use. Be sure it's Rowles.

THEY MARRY TO ENLARGE MONEY

Poor Law Relief Works Two Ways For Penniless

London.—(By C.P.)—That a considerable number of young men in the United Kingdom who are receiving relief from the Poor Law Guardians marry and thus add to the amount of money they receive in Poor Law relief is pointed out in the annual report of the Ministry of Health for 1926-27. The report states:

"It is commonly supposed, that Poor Law relief is available only to meet the existing necessities of persons who have become destitute, and it is not generally realized that during the past six years numbers of young men without employment and maintained on Poor Law relief have married, securing thereby an increase in their income from relief, and have had families, each additional bringing its addition to the family income. In this report it may be doubted whether the present position can be paralleled since 1834."

The report gives a number of cases selected from a larger list identified in one Union. One was: Laborer, born 1905; relief begun, 1922; married, 1924; children, two.

The total cost of poor-relief in England and Wales during the year under review was, according to the returns furnished by the clerks to the guardians, £23,578,220, as compared with £15,226,742 for the year 1925-26, £12,-973,262 in 1924-25, and £14,601,601 in 1923-24. The great increase is attributed largely to the effects of the industrial dispute, which culminated in heavy expenditure on Poor Law relief during the year under review—as much as £8,500,000, as compared with a total expenditure of £ 10,083,479 in 1925-26.

The dominant feature of the year under review was the increase of loup prism resulting from the coal mining stoppage and in the general strike. During the whole year the weekly number of persons in receipt of relief averaged 1,920,841, equivalent to 498 per 10,000 of the population of the country, as compared with 1,201,332, or 311 per 10,000 of the population in 1925-26, and 1,-113,015, or 287 per 10,000 of the population in 1924-25. The actual number of persons in receipt of relief at the end of March, 1926, was 1,240,000, or 320 per 10,0003 of the population, and at the end of March, 1927, 1,249,356, or 319 per 10,000 of the population. Up to the beginning of the general strike on May 4, 1926, there was some reduction of the number of persons in receipt of relief. By May 8 the total number of persons in receipt of relief had risen to 1,358,-783, an increase of 136,772 over the number in the previous week. On May 15 the total number had increased by a further 750,545 to 2,109,228, and on May 22 the total was 2,645,627. This amount exactly doubt the total on May 1.

From August to the summers steadily fell below 2,600,000 for the first time since May 4, and afterwards the numbers continued to decrease each week to March 26, 1927, when the figure was 1,249,356, a net decrease of only 400 compared with-the numbers on the corresponding date in 1925-26.

ALL MAY NOW WEAR "CIVIES" OFF DUTY

London, (By The Canadian Press).—As already briefly announced, the Army authorities have ordered that the privilege of wearing plain clothes when off duty, which has hitherto been enjoyed only by those above the rank of sergeant, has now been extended to all ranks, at the discretion of the Commanding Officer.

No doubt the privilege will be largely appreciated by men of the lower ranks. It is not altogether certain, though, that the new order will be entirely approved by those old-time martial warriors of the "Damme, sir, when I was in the Service" school, who nowadays pass their time mostly in the clubs around Pall Mall. They may take the change as a certain reflection on the reputation of the King's uniform. Actually, however, the new regulation does no more than reflect the altered conditions of modern Army life. The 60 per cent.-fall in the number of Court Martial sentences during the past five years and the coming abandonment of Coopers detention barracks are concrete signs of the new Army spirit which the Army Council will not have failed to take in making their decision.

The Tommy who avails himself of this privilege when going on leave will not be allowed to emerge from barracks in any sort of civilian get-up. He must parade before his company officer, and mufflers instead of collars will be strictly prohibited.

FAKE PRINCESS WAS ARRESTED

Only a Daughter Of a Chauffeur—Tried — Larceny

London, Eng.—(By C.P.)— A woman, said to be the daughter of a chauffeur, who posed as a princess, appeared with her husband at a police court in London recently. They pleaded guilty to obtaining by false pretences, with intent to defraud, a fur coat worth £260 from a well known tailor's.

According to a member of the firm, the couple came to the shop last June, and one of them produced a card, on the back of which was written "Princess Strodkoff." A mink fur coat was ordered for the princess. It was not paid for, neither was it returned.

Mr. Knight, for the Commissioner of Police, said this was not an isolated case against the two, who had been mas querading as people of means.

Magistrate Cancellor—"Has she any right to the style of Princess Strodkoff?"

The officer said that her mother knew nothing about her being Princess Strodkoff. The woman was the daughter of a chauffeur. In June she suddenly blossomed out as the Princess Strodkoff. She demanded, great attention as herself, when she went into the various shops and hotels, and said she was a great friend of the Prince of Wales, and ordered the restaurant manager of the Berkeley Hotel to give her his undivided attention and speak to her as "Her Royal Highness."

Walter Frampton, defending the accused, said he was instructed that before her marriage to Prior the woman said she went through a form of marriage with Prince Strodkoff in Russia, and that later he told her it was a farce, and was no marriage at all.

Magistrate Cancellor said he considered that association caused the woman to give herself an air which was a certain amount of attention. He sentenced the man to four months while the woman was bound over.

SUGGESTS BAN OF MILK ON DOORSTEP

Montreal—Prohibition of doorstep delivery of milk is advocated by Major W. T. Rodden of this city, who says that milk that is left on a doorstep for hours is open to contamination and its pasteurization may not be worth anything because of the change in atmosphere to which it is subjected. Major Rodden who devoted considerable time to the propaganda that prepared the way for the bylaw that forced pasteurization, says milk should be delivered direct from the driver to the customer. Almost every house, he says, has an ice box or one of the new refrigerating machines, and the milk can go right into a cool atmosphere and remain in good condition before being used. People who have no cooling facilities in their homes, he suggests, should get their milk at a grocery store where the milk is kept on ice and is away from contamination.

Major Rodden says it is not the fault of the milk companies that the early morning delivery is in vogue. "It is the custom to which people have become wedded," he says, "and apparently by many of them think that it is necessary so that they can get the morning's milk a few hours after milking. Such is not the case. But no milk delivered in Montreal should be more than 2 hours old, and if the deliveries were made during the day, as I suggest, the production and delivery could be systematized so that none of the milk consumed here would be more than a day old."

No More Piles

Pile sufferers can only get quick, safe and lasting relief by removing the cause—bad blood circulation in the lower bowel. Cutting and salves can't do this—no internal remedy can be found. Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Rold, a harmless tablet, succeeds because it relieves this blood congestion and strengthens the affected parts. Hem-Rold has a wonderful record for quick, safe and lasting relief to Pile sufferers. It will do the same for you or money back. A. S. McKeown and druggists anywhere sell Hem-Rold with this guarantee.

In the days of the old kingdom in Egypt, titles of nobility were not inherited.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

That life is long which answers life's great end.

YOUNG.

A SMOKE SCREEN

There has been an entertaining controversy in New York, Chicago, Boston and other points south over Miss A. Maude Royden, an English evangelist and preacher who is a sister of Sir Thomas Royden, Chairman of the Cunard line. Miss Royden was bound for the United States on a lecture tour when it was announced her engagements in Chicago and Boston with the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church had been cancelled — because there were rumors that occasionally she smoked cigarettes and she approved of "companionate" marriage! Miss Royden arrived in New York to confirm the report as to cigarettes and to assert that "so-called companionate marriage is terrible," but the cancellations stand.

With proper dignity Miss Royden declined to say whether she would smoke during her stay in the United States. "Smoking is such a little thing," she said. "The Church has so many more important problems facing it." Perhaps she neglected the opportunity to defend her habit, which the late Charles H. Spurgeon, the famous pastor of the London Tabernacle, embraced when another clergyman, Rev. Dr. Pentecost, a visitor from America, speaking in Spurgeon's pulpit, said that no Christian could smoke without doing violence to his profession. The congregation was aware that Dr. Spurgeon enjoyed a good cigar, and it was prepared for what happened when he arose after Dr. Pentecost had finished and said that Christianity was something bigger and more vital than smoking or refraining from smoking and concluding with a statement that he smoked for the glory of God and was willing that people should refrain from smoking for the same reason if they felt that way.

It is a pleasure to record that Miss Royden has not lacked support in her stand. The Church Club of Boston promptly invited her to speak there under its auspices. Y.W.C.A. secretaries and executives in New York expressed surprise that anyone questioned the right of girls to smoke if they so desired, and the minister of a Newark church where she is to speak declared he had "not even the slightest objection" to a smoking evangelist

All of which has been excellent publicity for Miss Royden, and the result is likely to be a rebuke for the intolerance and cowardice represented by the cancellation of two dates on her itinerary. Especially would it seem that the good women of Chicago might find matters more urgent to engage their attention. Something comes to mind having to do with a beam and a mote.

THE FRESH START

The newspapers a few days ago reported the disappearance of a Brantford boy—he soon turned up again—who ran away because his school reports weren't as good as he would have liked them to be. He declared his intention of "starting life afresh," but his absence naturally caused quite a lot of anxiety and trouble. Now there are features about this story which will repay consideration. We do not suppose any of our young readers would be so foolish as to imitate this boy's action, though we are quite sure that there will be not a few of them who have at times experienced the same feelings of discouragement which led up to it. It is not altogether a bad thing for youth to be dissatisfied with itself; the usual trouble is that boys and girls are, as a rule, apt to feel just the opposite—over-confident and conceited. It is certainly better to recognize one's short-comings and resolve to "start afresh" than to be puffed up with false pride, seeing no necessity for improvement. The Brantford youth was right in his determination to do better; but he was entirely wrong in his method of reform. There does not seem very much, either, to have inspired his flight. He came out 37th out of a class of 41, and it was only in two subjects that he fell down badly. Obviously, the course to have adopted in such circumstances was to stay where he was and strive to do better. It never helps to run away from difficulties and change of location does not mean a change in abilities.

This incident brings up the question of discouragement in general. When things go wrong, what is the proper latter. By holding on trying one's best alternatives—to run away or to stick it out. It is always better to do the latter. By holding on, tying one's best difficulties will be overcome and the mastery gained. This young fellow's mistake was in giving way to a sort of despair, which never helps anybody We all have different abilities, and it is no disgrace to fail in an undertaking if we have done our best. If we have not done our best, the obvious thing to do is to lose no time in exerting ourselves to the utmost to make up for past laxity. The place to make a fresh start is right where we are. If that is where our duty lies.

HOLIDAY SANITY

It is satisfying to find that General V. A. S. Williams, commissioner of the provincial police, gives the people of Ontario a good certificate for their behavior during the Christmas and New Year holiday season. Fears were openly expressed, that with the government liquor stores open and doing business in supplying liquor to the citizens who desired it, there would be an orgy of intemperance and drunkenness. Yet the contrary was the case. In Toronto, the number of drunks arrested was exactly the same as in the previous year, when the O. T.A. was in effect. In Windsor, there were only six or seven arrests, a vast improvement over the number at the same season a year ago. In no case says a report issued by the Hon. Mr. Price, were the conditions flagrant or scandalous.

This condition of affairs is a tribute to the attitude of the people of Ontario towards liquor as an adjunct to celebration. Although supplies were easily available to all who wished to drink, there seemed to be no general condition of over-drinking, and the holiday season, so far as intoxication was concerned, might well be said to have been a very sane and moderate one. It was very gratifying to have his province's first New Year's holiday under the government control system pass off so satisfactorily.

QUEEN'S WON IN OVERTIME GAME

Kingston Frontenacs Played Hard But Students Got Breaks

For excitement, thrills and spills with a few side attractions thrown in, those fans who passed up the game between Kingston Frontenacs and Queen's University at the Jock Harty arena missed one of the sweetest arguments of the year.

For three regular periods and two periods of overtime the spectators sat in a frenzy as the two teams battled and fought, with first one citadel in imminent danger the nthe other. "Bud" McPherson, Queen's substitute, picked off the count. He net a minute before the close of the second overtime and in the short space of time left the Frontenacs could not retaliate. Two teams so evenly-matched could not be picked anywhere in this district. At the end of the regular sixty minutes the score was 2-2 but McPherson broke the deadlock in the second overtime. Leg-weary and tired the players left the ice and spectators went home feeling that the management did not owe them a cent.

MISS FORD, RUS COLE WIN ELIMINATION

In the final of the elimination series at the Y alleys last night between Mrs. Bloomfield and T. Austin vs Miss Ford and R. Cole the latter won out. In the first game Ford and Cole were up 107 pins and added another 66 to this in the second game and also in the last game were up 119 plus for a total of 292. This is the finish of the Elimination series Ford, and Cole taking first place and Mrs. Bloomfield and T. Austin second.

S. Ford 570, R. Cole 678, total 1248. vs. Mrs. Bloomfield 364, T. Austin 340, total 356.

Kingston should have won. Anyone who attended the game will tell you the same thing. "Baldy" Quinn duplicated Bowen's feat on Monday night when he coolly turned aside the proverbial million. The Frontenacs had a beautiful chance to go into the lead in the opening chukk-y but Quinn was more than equal to the occasion and time and again the puck went zipping over a wide-open net. The breaks were undoubtedly against the city team. Throughout the course of the battle Quinn displayed the same smart work. At least on four occasions the Frontenacs had the goalie at their mercy but he was the big stumbling block. Queen's plugged away and their efforts were certainly well-rewarded. Belleville fans will see one sweet team in action when the students tie into Eddie Thomas laddies at the local rink on Monday evening.

"Bouncer" Holway turned in one of the best gazhes of his career and gave Brooks wonderful protection. He spent three sessions in the penalty box but he was certainly "bouncing" them off last night. Ewart Lindsay, "Bubs" Britton and other rrobior players felt the effect of Holway's jaS. "Chumsy" Lawlor was in even better form than against the Belleville team and outwitted the students time after time.

Unable to agree on a referee the team agreed to bring Stan Burgoyne, former Belleville player in to officiate. He handled the bell, to the king's taste and nothing got by his eagle-eye.

Quinn was a casualty when he was struck on the point of the paw by one of Lawlor's sinkers. Travers Rooney, Ewart Lindsay, and Reid were casualties.

Kingston did not get the breaks of the game and with a little luck would have come out on top. Joe Smith turn ed in another lovely game. Jim McKelvey who does not appear to be at all popular with Kingston fans was going nicely and missed two fine chances to score. He is afraid of none of them.

Grege, a compromise between grey and beige, is to be a smart spring shade

POSTPONEMENT IN JUNIOR BATTLE

The Belleville-Picton Junior O.H.A. game scheduled for to-night at the local Arena has been postponed owing to leak of ice. The game will be played at a later date if possible. The Picton manager was notified last night that the till would have to be postponed. This is the second O.H.A. game which has been called off owing to the lack of ice. No practices have been held this week and from present prospects none will be held. The next game will be held on Monday night when Queen's come here.

THURSDAY THE UNLUCKY TIME

Chicago.—Almost twice as many persons committed suicide on Thursday as on Sunday in Chicago, it has been shown by statistics compiled by Coroner Oscar Hoiberg. "Blue Monday" came second on his list, but according to Frank C. Ingalton, director of safety for the Board of Education, the majority of automobile accidents fall on Monday, particularly between 5 and 6 p.m.

"Police records show that 193 of the 437 accidents to pedestrians in November occurred on Mondays," he said.

The coroner's figures for the year showed 87 suicides on Thursday; 78 on Monday; 72 Wednesday; 63 Friday; 60 Saturday; 52 Tuesday and 49 Sunday.

In an analysis of the report Dr. James Whitney Hall, alienist, said that love was the greatest cause for accidents. "My observations have revealed that lovers' quarrels following Wednesday 'date night' have the effect of temporarily deranging some young persons sufficiently to cause them to commit suicide," he said.

Older persons, he said, were more likely to take their lives on Monday because of disgust and depression following misconduct over weekends.

By "The Observer"

The second home O.H.A. game of the season was postponed today when it was announced that the Juniors would be unable to play on the ice at the Arena which is in bad shape after the misbehavior of the weather since last Friday. Picton youngsterswere slated to do battle with the locals in the opening Junior game here but with two inches of water on the surface it was impossible to play the game. The present mild spell is playing havoc with teams all over the Province and if Jack Frost decides to assist the irate managers, there will be sohn tall scurrying to get caught up in the schedules. Belleville, Brockville and Cornwall are, of course, the hardest hit in this group as the Kingston teams have little to worry about since they have an artificial rink.

Manager John McGraw's deal in sending his star second-baseman Rogers Hornsby to the Boston team is a move hard to understand. Hornsby was being groomed for the Managership of the Giants and it was a distinct surprise for him to learn that he was traded.

Many from Belleville attended the Queen's-Kingston game at the Jock Harty last night. It was a battle from the drop of the bat.

Belleville basket-ballers distinguished themselves at Napanee last night and by their playing indicated that they are serious contenders for the group title. Queen's will undoubtedly prove the big stumbling block.

Johnny Hibbard has recovered from his recent ilpsea and will likely be found in the line-up when the Maroons appear again. Bill Green, veteran defense man, will also be ready for duty.

Queen's will be here on Monday night for the next home game and the Presbyterians will bring a strong team along. Manager Thompsa. it is believed, will send a strengthened team into the fray.

BRAIN A MACHINE THAT NEEDS CARE.

A person who is absolutely adjusted in every way is indeed a rare individual. Everybody needs more or less tuning up, like the adjustments made on automobiles so that they may run at their maximum efficiency.

Our minds change from day to day. It is a mistake to believe that our mental processes are static. They are markedly dynamic.

Circumstances, our work the environment in which we happen to find our selves, all change us. This constant change—subtle though it may be, often unrecognized—creates the necessity for mental reactions that harmonize if the individual would be content and happy.

When we want to get speed out of a car, the mixture of gasoline and air in the carburetor must be just right and it must be fed to the engine in just the right way.

When we want to get the highest efficiency out of ourselves we, too, must dovetail our thoughts and actions to the facts of life in a way that will not waste energy and will place the least possible strain upon us.

The brain we need exercise, recreation, play, reading, travel, music, many mental exercises are stimuli in order to keep a right balance in the mind. Doing things over and over again in the same way chokes and clogs mind output.

It is often as bad to work too hard and fast as it is to work too slowly. On the other hand, working at topmost speed may be exactly what is required for best results at the moment.

Then again, constant sticking to a problem does not necessarily mean that it will be solved quickly. Often a rest period is needed. Returning with a fresh spind, what seemed so baffling before becomes as simple as two plus two.

Sleep is an absolute requisite to high eat efficiency yet too much sleep is as pernicious as too little.

The person who brags that he or she always does so-and-so in the same identical manner believes that "practice makes perfect" and is proud that he has discovered the fact.

Well and good- Practice does make perfect but too much practice can also make "imperfect." Too much practice leads to an automatic, mechanical type of reaction that defeats its own end.

Practice with tuning up is what is needed. The practice—the usual way of doing something, should every now and again be modified to suit the changing conditions of the work as well as of the mind itself.

If a housewife always starts cleaning a room by goving all the furniture out into the hall, let her start sometimes by moving it into another corner.

This will give variety to a routine labor, it will give variety to her thinking, it will enliven her interest and make her work more effective. Unfortunately no rules and regulations can be laid down that will keep everybody tuned up all the time.

Each and every individual is a problem peculiar unto himself.

We must all learn by experience. Profit by your mistakes in the past. Review your successes and failures and discover when it was you slowed down because you did not think to tune up.

Try to consider and you will soon be able to discover just much tuning you need, when you need it, and the kind.

Advice to Girls
By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl of sixteen. My mother and father are dead and I stay with my brothers and sisters. They will not permit me to go out with boys. Do you think I am too young?

LONELY.

LONELY: I agree, my dear, you are really too young to be concerned with the attentions of boys or "dates." Be patient and I am sure that at the proper time you will be allowed the privilege of having boy friends. Now I should think you would be too busy with your studies and school activities to be at all lonesome. Spend your spare time in making of yourself a well-informed and interesting person so that by the time you do go out you will have a compelling personality and will attract many friends.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my late teens and I am in love with a young man two years my senior. I met him at a dance and he gave me his name and address. I have not seen him since and I would like to invite him to my house. Would you please give me advice as to whether or not I should invite him? My parents do not object.

WONDERING.

WONDERING: Since your parents are willing for you to write to this boy and ask him to visit you, I would suggest that the easiest way to do this and one that precludes any possible embarrassment is to arrange to have a small informal party and include this boy among your guests. This will indicate your interest and if he reciprocates, he will himself suggest future dates.

WHAT'S NEW
(From a Woman's Standpoint)

The Queen has revived the wearing of veils and fine transparent veils in all shades will be worn with the season's small hats, and Queen Mary, wears slightly patterned veils worked on fine net, and her silver-grey hair looks most becoming through them.

One of the newest frocks from Red fern, made of rust crepe de chine, is completed with beige georgette collar and cuffs, the collar fashioned in high Eton style, and the cuffs of the usual turnback width, trimmed with tiny pleated ruffles in green and red stripes.

A new note in the way of the sports boctionniere is the gold effect that is expected to be essential because of the popularity of gold jewelry, buttons and belts for sports, and some of these are developed in clusters of berries and others are composed of small grasses, buds and so forth.

Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

It is surprising that so few housewives demand the bone and trimmings of the meat they buy, as these can be used for soups and stews, while the fat can be rendered and used for cooking purposes, it is a worth-while thrift item.

You will not mind taking cod-liver-ing medicine if you chew a piece of orange peel beforehand.

A SUITOR TOO MANY
By MILDRED BARBOUR

"Is there no limit to your cleverness?" she asked, when she had finally regained her voice.

Dorothy laughed and rose from the table.

"I'm afraid I don't put it to very good use. Honestly, Lil, I don't fancy this role you and I are playing. It has its moments of excitement, but I pre fer the truth."

"If I ever get out of this jam," said Lila solemnly, "I don't even tell a little white social fib again, as long as I live."

Dorothy laughed and shook her head.

"We always promise to be good when we're in the midst of trouble of our own making. Now you'd better ring Captain Farquahar and ask him to your house this afternoon."

CHAPTER 41.
PLAYING WITH FIRE

That afternoon Farquahar came to the Ware home and was admitted by Siddons, who announced him to Lila. She was waiting tremulously upstairs and descended at once to the small drawing-room adjoining the larger salon.

Jack had no idea that the "Mrs. Herbert Ware" for whom he asked so punctiliously was the girl who came to live with him.

Lila played her role well. She had arranged that the tea-service should be placed in the room, ready for a quiet under the pink-lamp; she waited until Siddons was well out of sight, and then, somewhere between her own room and the downstairs hall, she adjusted a smart little hat and clasped a silver fox scarf around her shoulders in her plain little street frock. She wanted to give the appearance of being a visitor in the house.

"Your friend, Ms. Ware, is a brick to let us have this time together," declared Jack as he took her hands in his and drew her to the sofa behind the tea-table.

In his delight at this evidence of Lila's desire to see him alone, he forgot his grievance of the previous day, as far as she was concerned. He couldn't forgive Holmes, however, and Lila was infinitely relieved when he said that the proposed dinner-party for Wednesday night was off.

"I don't trust Holmes," he said grimly. "He'd try to take you from me, even now. You know I'm abominably jealous, sweetheart."

Lila nodded: "Yes, I know," she sighed.

When he tried to take her in his arms, she said:

"No, Jack. This isn't a rendezvous for lovers. My friend has asked me to you here, because she appreciates the ghtastly situation we are in. But she knows I am—engaged to another man, and she would feel that I had out raged her hospitality, if I permitted you to kiss me while I am still—still bound to him."

Farquahar was inclined to protest—violently.

"Very well," said Lila calmly. "Then the arrangement is off. We will not meet here again."

In the end he had to yield, or forego the pleasure of a tete-a-tete with Lila in pleasant surroundings.

"If there is I can, at least, kiss your hand without damaging the proprieties," he muttered sulkily.

"My hand—yes," agreed Lila, tendering her scented finger-tips.

She smiled inwardly at his term "old dragon."

"What is she like—this Mrs. Ware?" he asked, after his third visit.

"Would you like to see her?" queried Lila mischievously.

"Good Heavens, no!" he declared has tily.

Lila went on delightedly:

"You—you—you think we really ought to ask her to have tea with us sometime? She'd like so much to see you."

"Well, I didn't want to see her," said Farquhar decidedly. "You're all I want in the world, and I have a terrible time trying to snatch a few minutes alone with you, as it is, without having some antique dowager horning in.

"How do you know she's old?" Lila asked, quite enjoying herself.

He shrugged.

"I don't know. Something about the atmosphere of this house, I guess. It has such a sedate air. It looks as if Mrs. Ware had been put here accordingly to some pattern—as if the slightest cause a spiritual earthquake. You find it a little difficult to be convincing only in old people."

Herbert, by a way, he had stretched Herbert a little life together. And yet, in her loving eyes, Herbert represented perfection. It made her thoughtful.

Farquahar continues to come almost every afternoon at the same hour. What Siddons thought, Lila couldn't imagine, but somehow she felt uneasy. Once she thought she saw him lurking in the shadows of the hall when, she paused before the mirror to adjust the stage properties—the hat and wrap that gave her the air of a casual visit or to the house.

Her first fear that Uncle Dan, who still lingered on as a guest and gave no sign of the scheme by which he was to help Lila out of the mess into which he had precipitated her, proved groundless. Uncle Dan discreetly disappeared every afternoon, directly after luncheon, and did not return until dinner. He said something about playing pool somewhere.

And Herbert never came home during the afternoon. Since the night he had pricked the bubble of Lila's subterfuge concerning the charity donation, he never even telephoned during the day. The breach had never been healed. He treated Lila with cool, aloof courtesy and avoided being alone with her. It nearly broke Lila's heart. What with Lila and the strain of playing up Jack Farquahar, she believed she was well on the way to losing her mind. There was only Dorothy to sustain her. Dorothy, cool, sweet, resourceful.

"Tell me what to do, Dot. What is like?" Farquahar startled me by asking one day, "Is there any chance that she would intercede for us with your father, or your—s—st man;"

"Oh no, no!" declared Lila hastily. "She—if—she's like a fat sister. She's a sweet old dear who wants to make people happy, but she wouldn't for the world mix into anybody's affairs."

"I think I would like to meet her after all," he insisted doggedly.

Lila berated herself for that moment of mischief when she had even mentioned such a thing.

"She—she rarely comes down-stairs," said Lila hastily. "She's a—a—sort of invalid."

"Well, she must see people occasionally," Farquahar argued. "Don't you think, as a special favor, she might be let us go up to see her. I'd like awfully to know her."

"Some day, perhaps," said Lila feverishly, and was devoutly thankful that Farquahar let the subject rest there.

"How is your father?" he remanded suddenly.

"Oh, very well, thank you," answered Lila mechanically, her thoughts on the problem of how to keep Jack from seeing Mrs. Ware. "I—I—he's now in Montana."

Her exclamation of astonishment brought her to her senses. "

same," she stammered

"I—I mean—he's just about th

Farquahar's dark brows were drawn into a straight black line.

"Lila, are you lying to me? Is your father really ill?"

She drew herself up haughtily.

"I am not accustomed to being spoken to like this. How dare you? Please go now."

Very haughtily, she turned him out, not realizing what consequences would follow.

CHAPTER 42.
THE GOOD OLD TRUMP!

It was after dinner that same evening, when the Wares and Uncle Dan were having coffee in the library, that the latter remarked:

"Well, it's two weeks today since I descended on you young people. Guess it's time I was pulling out and taking the trail."

Lila's heart sank. He was going, without making an effort to help her. Not that she really expected it, to have any more home with us as long as you wish."

"That's mighty good of you. Herbert, but little Lila surely picked a man of the right sort. Her mother'd be glad to know it. Leonard Lathrop wasn't that kind."

Lila spoke up quickly: "Dad always kind, only—he's so preoccupied."

"Yes, I guess so," agreed Uncle Dan unprejudiced he hasn't much time for other folks' troubles."

There was silence then.

RUN-DOWN AFTER BIRTH OF BABY

Ottawa Woman Made Strong by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ottawa, Ontario.—"I was terribly run-down after the birth of my third baby. I had a very-down-pain and was afraid I had nervous trouble. I was tired all the time and had no appetite. My mother-in-law is taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and says it has done all the time now. Any one who needs a thorough tonic can use it. I have recommended it to a number of women from me what to take."—Mrs. Ernest Pagette, 262 Cumberland Street, Ottawa, Ontario.

Terrible Backache

Hamilton, Ont.—"After my baby was born I had terrible backaches and headaches. I could not do my work and felt tired from the first minute I got up. Before I got all were the pains in my back and I never could sit, stand or lie down for a while after words. I was told to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as she said it would help me up. I was relieved before I had taken the two we bought and have not had any trouble like it since."—Mrs. T. Mantle, 69 Burton Street, Hamilton, Ontario.

Two Fabrics Blend In A Dashing Harmony

Winter holidays with their programme of theatre parties, teas, and other festivity, demand something very special in the way of new frocks for the sub-debutante. She must look as merry and exuberant as she feels so that the light heart is never somber. By combining materials in a frock that flaunts a double tiered skirt, that may or may not continue around the back, a striking effect is produced that it will be difficult to live up to. For a skirt of soft light weight velvet the top part of the frock may be crepe Roma, silk crepe, crepe de chine, or satin to match or harmonize or a metallic fabric. Two shades of silk or satin crepe, crepe Roma or crepe de chine would be lovely, or any of these materials used with allover lace for the top part. In each case the shoulder flower, buttons on the sleeves and bindings are of the skirt material.

MELLOR FOUND GUILTY: IS GIVEN THIRTEEN MONTHS

Point Anne Youngster Drowned In Pond Near Home---Tweed Man Arrested On Charge Of Theft

GO TO DEATH IN ELECTRIC CHAIR

Ruth Snyder And Her Partner In Crime Pay The Penalty

BRAINS ARE NORMAL

Letters To Go To Gray's Child On Her Birthday For 12 Years

Ossining, N.Y., Jan. 13—Autopsies on the bodies of Mrs. Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray, disclosed that the brains of both were normal, prison officials announced today. The autopsies were performed by Dr. James Kearney, assistant prison surgeon, and were witnessed by four visiting physicians.

Jane Gray, nine year-old daughter of Henry Judd Gray, will receive a letter from her father on her birthday each year, until she is twenty-one years old. Just prior to the execution last night, Gray turned over a packet of letters to his attorney, with instructions that one be delivered to his daughter each year. These letters were written by Gray in prison.

Mrs. Ruth Snyder also left a letter to be mailed to her nine-year-old daughter Lorraine and one for her mother, Mrs. Josephine Brown.

Ruth Snyder First

Sing Sing Prison, Jan. 13—Mrs. Ruth Snyder died in the electric chair at 11.09 o'clock last night, murmuring biblical quotations, and Henry Judd Gray followed her to death at 11.16, his lips moving in prayer, but making no audible sound.

Mrs. Snyder was led to the death chamber by two matrons, who stayed with her until the end.

The current was turned on at 11.05 o'clock, and turned off two minutes later, and after an examination lasting another two minutes she was pronounced dead.

As soon as Mrs. Snyder's body had been taken from the room, Gray, entrenched with her for the murder of her husband, was led in. A Catholic priest had murmured a ritual as Mrs. Snyder died and Gray was accompanied by a Protestant minister.

Gray Prayed at End

As the minister read in a solemn voice, Gray's lips were seen to move in responsive prayer. The current was turned on for him at 11.12 o'clock, cut at 11.14 o'clock, and he was pronounced dead at 11.16 o'clock.

Mrs. Snyder was given three shocks of 2,200 volts and Gray two.

Mrs. Snyder's appearance was a surprise to persons in the death house who had not seen her since her trial last spring. She seemed to have aged many years, her face was haggard, and her once blonde hair, turning literally to her face in streaky brown wisps.

Gray, on the other hand, seemed not to have changed one whit during the months of his confinement. He carried himself erect and walked with a firm step, not needing assistance even in arranging himself in the chair.

WILD RIDE DOWN THE MISSISSIPPI

Cape Girardeau, Mo., Jan. 13.—A perilous seventy-mile all-night ride down the ice-clogged Mississippi River on a runaway barge ended here shortly before dawn today for John Lamb and Cecil Hawke of St. Louis, who were carried away on the barge near Chester, Illinois. Manning the flimsy motor boat which he piloted among the ice floes with difficulty, F. G. Bryant, an employee of a Bridge Construction Company, carried a line to the runaway barge and after a two hour battle with the ice, succeeded in bringing it to safety in a cove near here.

STEALS DIAMOND STICK-PIN AND MONEY WHILE VICTIM SLUMBERS

Smart Work By Officer McCoy Results In Arrest

Five hours after Alex Geraldi, prominent Tweed hockey player is alleged to have stolen a valuable diamond stick pin and $150 in currency from James Dempsey, contractor of Renfrew Ontario he was taken off the train at Smith's Falls, placed under arrest and was to-day brought back to Belleville by officers from the Ottawa Valley. He will be taken to Tweed to face the charges of theft before Magistrate Caleman, of Madoc.

Geraldi recently returned from Texas where he expected to play hockey and has lately been employed as lineman on the Canadian Pacific Railway. Mr. Dempsey a contractor was engaged at the village of Tweed and occupied a room jointly with Geraldi. He awoke yesterday morning to find his pockets rifled of a roll of bills while a diamond tie pin was also missing from the top of the bureau.

Dempsey informed Officer Percy McCoy of Madoc and the latter lost no time in informing the authorities at Smith's Falls as it was ascertained that Geraldi had left on an early train pre viously to go to Montreal

Word was sent back that Geraldi had been placed under arrest late yesterday afternoon. It was due to smart work on the part of Officer McCoy that the suspect was apprehended.

Dempsey had known young Geraldi all his life and had befriended him on more than one occasion and it is difficult to understand why he should rob a man who has helped him. Dempsey lost a small sum of money early this week but he made no complaint although he suspected Geraldi of the act

JAPANESE GIRL PUNISHES SELF FOR UNKNOWN SIN

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 13.—To punish herself for some sin, Mrs. Emy Tsuji, 25, Japanese maid, cut about an inch off her tongue last night. In the hospital today doctors and nurses pressed doubt whether she ever would be able to speak again. What offense the woman believed she had committed was not known, but the Japanese here said their countrymen frequently punish themselves in a similar manner.

CHILD DROWNED PLAYING ON ICE

Kenneth Juby Of Point Anne, Five Years Old, Victim Of Accident

NO ADULTS NEAR

Slightly Older Brother With Him Was Powerless To Give Aid

Five-year-old Kenneth Juby, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Juby of Point Anne, was drowned yesterday afternoon in the fish-pond behind the Point Anne Cement Plant, while he and his seven-year-old brother were playing on the ice about the o'clock. No one actually saw the boy go through the ice. According to the mother the children had not been away from the house more than half an hour, and the older boy, Reginald Juby, is too much overcome by shock to tell how the accident happened.

The tragedy was discovered by a neighbor on his way to the village well for a pail of water. He noticed a child crouched on the edge of the pond and on his return about ten minutes later, found that the child was still there and was crying. Questioning the boy he was startled to get the answer, "My little brother is in the pond."

Body Quickly Recovered

Quickly the alarm was given and in a few minutes a crowd gathered. After about five minutes' searching John Huddleston of Point Anne succeeded in locating the body and was able to bring it to the surface with a rake but attempts at resuscitation by the local doctor were futile. The child was dead.

At the point where the accident occurred the intake and outlet pipes for the Canada Cement Company are located, which prevented the ice forming as quickly there as at other points in the pond and the mild weather of the last few days has rotted the ice. The water just here is about ten feet deep. A rescue committee was formed during the past summer young Kenneth Juby narrowly escaped drowning while bathing in the bay near the Canada Cement Plant.

Deseronto Family

The Juby family came from Deseronto to Point Anne about eight years ago and are held in high esteem by their neighbors. Mr. Juby is employed by the Cement Company. While definite arrangements for the funeral have not yet been completed it is thought that the interment will be made at Deseronto. The Juby family are members of Point Anne United Church and the six children attended Sunday School on Sunday last.

Surviving besides the parents are five brothers and sisters, Laura, Barbara, Reginald, Jessie and Ross. Mrs. Juby and Ross, who was with his brother at the time of the accident, are suffering from shock and at present are under the care of a doctor.

LASH ADDED TO LONG JAIL TERM

Judge Said He Would Like To Give The Death Sentence

Windsor, Ont., Jan. 13. — James McKeegan, 26-year-old Leamington man, was returned to 20 years in the penitentiary and 20 lashes by Mr. Justice Lenox in Sandwich court yesterday afternoon as the ringleader in a criminal attack on a young Leamington girl last summer.

The judge said he would have sent McKeegan to the gallows had it not been for an Appellate Division decision on a similar case at Chatham some time ago.

Nelson Quick, 18, also of Leamington, McKeegan's accomplice in the attack, was given 18 months and 20 lashes.

Nathan Girardin, 17, also implicated had been permitted to plead guilty of indecent assault, and was given two years less one day in Guelph reformatories.

Circumstances of the case, as unfolded behind closed doors by the young victim of the attack Tuesday were indescribably revolting. After her evidence had been given the accused pleaded guilty without entering any defense.

Judgment Likely Delivered Late Today In Picton Case

GIRL IS ABSENT

Mellor's Fate Rests In Balance As Case Is Closed

At two o'clock this afternoon the adjourned trial of J. J. Mellor was reopened before Judge McLean at Picton, Court House. The Court Room was crowded as it was expected that Judge McLean would deliver judgment this afternoon.

Fred, L. Ward, Mellor's Counsel spoke for three quarters of an hour on his plea for the defense which wound around three points, 1st the common law principle as to whether a man can be tried twice for the same offence, 2nd. No corroboration of the girl's evidence; 3rd, It is possible to reduce the charge to indecent assault.

Judge McLean ruled out the first and third points of the plea and said it was impossible to find the accused guilty on any other charge. Mr. Ward pointed out that the letters did not show there had been any improper relations between the two.

Colonel Kleiser McKay, Special Crown Prosecutor was commencing his arguments at the time of going to press. It was not expected that Judge McLean would give his decision before five o'clock. Miss Houck was not in the courtroom today.

CHAMBERLIN IS GOING STRONG

Bad Coffee And Gas Leaks Bother Intrepid Pair

Roosevelt Field, N.Y., Jan. 13.—Gasoline and oil leaks, trouble with flying instructions and sickness from bad food were reported in a note dropped to the ground today by Clarence Chamberlin Trans Atlantic flyer, who yesterday began an endurance flight. Chamberlin however said nothing about abandoning the flight, but asked about the weather reports, indicating that he planned to keep flying. Referring to their plight as "Our tale of woe", Chamberlin wrote that he and Williams had a "lot of fun last night when we had our first gas leak in the cockpit." He had discovered a "big leak in the left wind tank" at three a.m. he said. Whether the leak was repaired was not stated.

The plotters they had carried along with them in their thermos bottles "was the most terrible of ever tasted" Chamberlin wrote, and it had made both fliers sick. Most of their sandwiches had gotten soaked with ethyl gasoline which is poisonous, they had plenty of water left. Despite the sad end of gasoline leaks, which, as far as observers on the ground could state, were continuing Chamberlin indicated his determination to continue the flight for the world endurance record.

"See you in 30 or 35 hours" he wrote "Unless delayed by detours or we get too hungry".

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 13.—Snatched back from death after 46 hours' effort by city firemen who used nearly three thousand dollars' worth of oxygen, baby George Smith, thirteen days old, was so nearly normal in condition today that he was able to cry vigorously. Dr. Abt, noted specialist, declared that the application of oxygen and stimulants be discontinued.

FRIDAY, THE THIRTEENTH'S DAY OF ILL OMEN, BEWARE!

Friday the thirteenth! To the superstitious a day of ill omen and a day on which to be more than careful, for Friday is unlucky anyway, and when it falls on the thirteenth of the month, be ware.

We don't know whether coming events cast their shadows before them or not but Ruth Snyder and Judd Gray went to the chair just about half an hour before Friday the thirteenth, and if you should happen to read in the press tomorrow of somebody falling out of bed or their necks overnight, lay it on to the day!

CHAMBERLIN COMPLETE WORK OF ORGANIZATION

Women's Missionary Soc. of Tabernacle Elect Balance of Officers

The remaining officers for 1928 were elected at the regular meeting of the Tabernacle Women's Missionary Society held in the parsonage yesterday afternoon. After the opening exercises the report of last year was read by the secretary. The treasurer's report was read, showing that the allotment for the year had been reached. Following this the election of officers was completed by the appointment of Mrs. J. V. Kelly, 2nd Vice-president, Mrs. A. Martin, 4th Vice-president, Finance Committe, Mrs. Sanford, Mrs. McCutcheon, Mrs. C. P. Sharpe, Mrs. Cleverdon, Mrs Stevens, A. H. Pope and Mrs. Horton.

The supply committee will consist of Mrs. Farley, Mrs. Emmond. The Press secretary is Mrs. J. G. Kelly and Literature secretary Mrs. P. Mason. Miss Bessie Barlow favoured with a piano solo and Mrs. M. P. Duff, rendered a delightful song.

Following this Miss Gardiner of Albert College gave a fine talk on the new study book. Refreshments were served and a social half hour was enjoyed.

GIVING PLEDGES OF U. S. AMITY

Washington, Jan. 13.—Centre of interest in United States politics shifts today to Cuba where on Monday President Coolidge and a score of the most prominent men in the United States will convey to the other republics of this continent assurances of the friendship and fraternity of United States.

The occasion is the sixth meeting of the Pan-American Union, founded more than a quarter of a century ago to promote amity between the republics of this continent and to increase friendly intercourse.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

"Worry is rust upon the blade."
—Henry Ward Beecher.

HOW JUSTICE SLIPS

New York City is by no means the wickedest city in the United States. In fact, it has one of the finest and best trained police forces in America, but a recent table published in "Current History" affords insight into the number of felons who cheat the law even in New York. It is termed "mortality" in criminal cases. That is, the police may get their man, but in the process of administration of justice there is a falling down.

This table speaks for itself and is taken from 1925 statistics:

Number of arrests	19,463
Per cent.	100
Disposed by police	1.97
Eliminated in preliminary hearing	56.91
Eliminated by Grand Jury .	12.24
Eliminated in trial court	8.31
Eliminated after sentence by suspension of sentence or appeal	5.15
Imprisoned or fined	15.42

In other words, out of 19,463 arrests by the police in New York City in 1925, there were 3,001 convictions. More than sixteen thousand arrested persons escaped punishment, if they deserved it.

As the St. Catharines Standard remarks, in connection with these statistics, there are a dozen great cities in U. S. where conditions are much worse. It is regarded by publicists as one of the most severe problems which the country faces. The professional bondsman, the political criminal lawyer, the elective judiciary and venal police departments in some cities are outstanding factors in the system of abuse which has been created in recent years. Money talks everywhere, until an average citizen wonders really if there is any soul at all in the country.

There is, of course. The United States is a very vast mass, in population as in other things, and tremendous agencies for good exist as well as agencies for evil. The marvel is that the decent people, who are in the majority, allow the legal and judicial civic misery to continue.

TRUTH IS BEST

Once again discontented immigrants have given Canada a black eye. On this occasion it is two boys who tried to get back to England as stowaways. In being sentenced to a jail term by a London magistrate, one of them wanted to know why "they should tell us a lot of lies about Canada." For six months, he went on to explain, Canada is in the grip of winter when there is no pay forthcoming for the farm help invegled out to the Dominion.

If there is any misinformation given out about our climate or the conditions which the newcomers will meet with, it should most certainly be corrected. These boys apparently expected to be steadily employed on the land all the year round, without entering into a contract guaranteeing such employment. If there are agencies representing Canada as a country which is open for agricultural labor all the year around, they should be promptly called to time. We want immigrants to know the truth about Canada and not to have to wait till they get over here to find out the facts.

In contrast to the complaints of these stowaways, there is the testimony of thousands of immigrants, young and old, who have gone onto the farms and made good. There was a reunion in Woodstock the other day of about 60 boys who had come out to Canada within the last two years as farm laborers, under the Salvation Army auspices. They were most enthusiastic about their experiences and prospects, and many of them had remained on the same farm since their arrival. Here is a method which makes for contentment and precludes the possibility of injustice.

There are other promising schemes for training boys in England for farm life in Canada, and it is safe to say that, when properly carried out, they are bound to result in the welfare of the emigrants. The authorities should see to it that young farm helpers who come out here are not allowed to become stranded in the way complained of by these English boys. Such failures are tragic for the immigrants affected and a very poor advertisement for the Dominion.

HAVE YOU HEARD THESE?

The lady—Has nobody ever offered to give you work?

The tramp—Only once, lidy. Apart from that I've met wiv nothink but kindness.

Between two stations the express train came to a sudden stop.

Immediately after a worried-looking little man let down his window and called to the guard:

"What's wrong ?"he demanded.

"Somebody's pulled the alarm signal," was the reply, "and now we've lost our steam and we'll be held up for an hour."

"But I'm to be married before noon" Instantly the guard turned on him. "Look here," he ejaculated. "You aren't the person who pulled the cord are you?"

THE PASSING YEARS

(From The Intelligencer of this day 30 years ago)

Mr. Harry O'Flynn, Madoc, is in the city.

Owing to the street drains being choked by ice and snow, some sidewalks were flooded, cellars flooded and streets overflowed by last night's deluge. Chairman Harris had men at work promptly this morning opening the drains.

On Friday evening an interesting debate between Albert College and the City will take place on the following subject: Resolved "That men have done more for fame than for liberty." Affirmative, F. E. O'Flynn and David Barragar; negative, S. J. Geen and W. Arnott.

Mrs. W. B. Robinson gave an "At-Home" to her friends yesterday afternoon.

Miss Eva Dickens, Ann street, enter tained her friends to a pleasant At-Home last night.

Mr. P. M. McKeown returned home from Sidney and Campbellford yesterday.

SUNRISE AND SUNSET

Why flush so red the skies at dawn?
Is their the sweet surprise
Of gods that wake to gaze upon
The world with loving eyes?

Why blush so red the skies at eve?
Is theirs the conscious flame
Of disillusioned gods that grieve
For human sin and shame?

—William Douglas in Chamber's Journal.

BOY TAKEN ILL

Austin Welsh, who is attending one of the High School classes that are being held in the Y.M.C.A. building, was taken seriously ill with a bilious attack around four o'clock on Wednesday afternoon and for a short time was unable to see. A physician was called for and after medical treatment had been given, the boy was removed to his home where he is recovering from the seizure.

WELL KNOWN MAN BOXING

"Clint" Howard, captain of Queen's Rugby Team and well known in this city where he was associated with Dr. J. J. Robertson during the past year, now will take part in the Dominion Boxing Championship of Canada on Monday evening next. Howard will have a large following of Queen's rooters with him in Toronto during the bout.

BELLEVILLE CLUB GIVING DANCE

It is rumored that the directors of the Belleville Club have decided to give another of their popular dances on St. Valentine's Day, February 14th. An out-of-town orchestra will likely be engaged for this function. This dance is being given by the Belleville Club at the request of many Belleville citizens because of the popularity of the New Year's At Home.

W. M. S. ENTERTAINED

A pleasant event took place in connection with John St. W. M. S. Thursday afternoon, Jan. 12th when Mrs. Gordonsmith the secretary of the birthday league and her sister Miss Speight entertained the members at their home on McDonald Ave

A very pleasant social hour was spent after which delicious refreshments were served. The members tendered a hearty vote of thanks to their genial hostesses.

APPOINTED MASTER

His Honor Judge J. P. Wills, of this city, has been appointed Master for the Counties of Durham and Northumberland pro tem.

TEMPERATURES

The readings at Belleville's official thermometer for yesterday and to-day were: Thursday, maximum 37; minimum 27; Friday, maximum 41, minimum 36.

SNAKES PREVALENT

Mr. Samuel Jones of Thrasher's Corners yesterday killed a large garter snake near that place, where he informed the Intelligencer they are numerous. This is an indication of the mild type of winter which so far has been felt around here.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER

A delightful miscellaneous shower was held in honour of Miss Vera Boland, a bride-to-be, last evening. Friends gathered at her home, 28 Wharf Street, each bearing a gift and the result was a collection of lovely presents. After the gifts were presented, euchre was indulged in. The prize winners were 1st Mrs. Wm. Grant, 2nd Mrs. Luscombe, 3rd Mrs. Van Norman, consolation Mrs. Bates. After cards a delightful lunch was served and festivities continued till a late hour.

Social and Personals

Mr. M. J. Boyd who underwent an operation at the Belleville General Hospital is improving.

Miss Hazel Horton was taken suddenly ill with pneumonia yesterday.

Mr. Jule Bentley, Dundas Street, is able to be out again after a recent illness.

Mrs. James McIntosh, Coleman Street left this morning for Kingston, where she will visit friends.

The many friends of Miss Pearl Boarman who has been ill at the Belleville General Hospital for some time, will regret to learn that so far her condition shows little improvement.

Mr. J. S. Loudon, late Assistant General Manager, and Mr. H. C. Stephens, present Assistant General Manager of the Standard Bank of Canada, were in Belleville yesterday attending the funeral of the late Mr. John Elliott.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Mitchell Wellington Street, returned to their plantation, Daisy Row, on Monday, after spending two or three months at their Belleville home. They were accompanied to Forta Rico by Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Richardson, William Street, who will spend two months with them at Ponce Southern Home.

FELL DEAD AT STATION

Kitchener, Ont., January 13.—John Hancock dropped dead in the C.N.R. station here today. Hancock, who according to years of age, had intended going to Bayfield to visit relatives, but suddenly decided before he had purchased a his ticket.

WOOD PRESIDENT MAN. FARMERS'

Charges Of Political Domination Are Made At Convention

Portage la Prairie, Man., Jan. 13.—Thomas Wood of Elm Creek, Manitoba, re-elected for the next two years was elected President of the United Farmers of Manitoba last evening. He succeeds A. J. M. Poole, who declined to stand for re-election owing to pressure of his duties as member of the Provincial Legislature. Twenty candidates were nominated for the office, but all retired but three, C. Compton of Moosimin and F. Dowmier, of Reliberg, were the other candidates.

Charges that political domination of the United Farmers of Manitoba by one party was undermining the organization and keeping down its membership were made at yesterday's session of the convention by H. McLeod of Shoal Lake, Man.

Mr. McLeod alleged that there was absolutely no glare in the movement for a farmer with Liberal or Conservative leanings. As an agriculturist who did not subscribe to the Progressive policy and principles, he claimed he have been compelled to "fight his way into the organization."

President A. J. M. Poole characterized statements as "absolutely ridiculous."

BELLEVILLE GIRL TO SING OVER RADIO

Miss Irene Baker, of Toronto, daughter of Mr. and Mr. C. Baker, Catherine Street, will sing over the radio from station CKCL, Toronto between nine and nine o'clock tonight.

Miss Baker is a former pupil of Mrs. H. Stobo, of this city, and for the past two and a half years has been studying under Miss Hope Morgan, one of Canada's leading vocal instructors.

Since going to Toronto this well known Belleville girl has received many flattering compliments on the progress she is making with the trainer of her gifted voice. Miss Baker has also been showered with many tempting offers as soloists in various Toronto churches.

PHYSICIAN FACES SERIOUS CHARGES

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Jan. 13—Dr. W. H. Dudley was arraigned in police court today on a charge of using liquor in connection with the death on January 6th of Mrs. Mary Dominici, death resulted, according to the evidence at the inquest, a few minutes following an operation. Dr. Dudley was remanded a week on bail of ten thousand dollars.

CARBURETOR EXPLODED

Hamburg, Germany, January 13.—The carburetor of a motor bicycle used to rapidly with dockworks, exploded in Hamburg, before this evening. The motor bicycle skidded, overturning and killing the driver and three men who were passing.

STEAMER REPORTS THAT ALL IS WELL

San Francisco, Calif., Jan. 13.—Mexico Eastern Telegraph Company here intercepted a message from the Steamer "Griffon" somewhere off the Washington coast indicating that all was well aboard the vessel, which started sending "SOS" calls Wednesday night.

The message was signed by Capt. Morris of the Griffon and addressed to the Inter-Coast Steamship Company of Honolulu, owners of the ship. It reported the ship to be rocked in the storm but outpost and indicated all was well aboard. She carried a crew of 24 and a mail shipment.

TODAYS MARKETS

New York, Jan. 12.—Rails superseded the industrials as leaders of the upward price movements in today's stock market. Operators for the rise succeeded in marking up a number of issues to new high levels, in the early trading, but they made little headway among the standard issues, where upon speculative attention was diverted to the rails which moved forward in impressive fashion. Trading which had been rather dull during the morning picked up measurably in the early afternoon. Sales totalled about $5,000,000 in loans but there was plenty of support and prices receded at renewal figure of 5 per cent. Further increase in brokers loans reported by New York Federal Reserve Bank for the week ending Wednesday, and West Virginia, N. Y. Central, Delaware and Hudson, Prices Common Wealth and Southern, Pacific and a few more points. Others advanced a point or two.

CHICAGO GRAINS

Chicago, Jan. 12. Wheat, Mar. 129 1-8. Corn, Mar. 89 5-8. May. 92 3-8. Oats, Mar. 54 1-2. May 55 1-2.

WINNIPEG WHEAT

Winnipeg, Man. Jan. 13. Wheat May 1-4c to 1-2c higher at 126 1-8 to 3-8c. July 1-4c higher at 125 3-4. Oct. 1-2c higher at 122 7-8. Oats May 1-8c high er at 61 3-8.

CHICAGO WHEAT

Chicago, Jan. 12. Helped by optimistic foreign cables and an increase of good export business from north American ports, the Chicago wheat market covered a sharp advance today. The advance was in the face of an increased estimate of Argentine exportable wheat surplus. Opening at 1-4 to 2-8c gain, Chicago wheat continued to mount. Corn, oats, and provisions also displayed strength, corn starting 1-8 to 1-2c higher and then reacting little but afterward rising higher than before.

mation by Mr. Fred Ward, counsel for the defence. The greater part of Mr. Wards examination was taken up with the reading of questions asked Miss Hooker at the preliminary police court hearing, and asking Miss Hooker the same questions all over again. Several times was she stopped in her testimony by her astute questioner. On several occasions Miss Hooker gave directly different answers to those she had given in the preliminary investigation before Magistrate Levi Williams of Picton.

Five Other Witnesses

Five other witnesses were called by the Crown before Court was adjourned They included Chief Biddell of Picton, Magistrate Levi Williams, of Picton; Mr. W. Staunton, of Tweedsmuir, a handwriting expert; W. H. Hembling, secretary of the United Church of Picton, and Mr. Harry Millman, janitor of the church of which Mellor was pastor.

Magistrate Williams merely testified to a signature of Mellor's, and the handwriting expert stated that three pages of Mellor's signed to different documents, coincided.

Mr. Hembling testified as to receiving Mellor's resignation.

Mr. Millman, the janitor, did not give much light upon the subject either. He stated that he had been janitor of the church as long as Mellor had been there and that he had seen the explosive and Bertha Hook, also in answer to several questions, he said that sometimes Bessie when he had locked the church door, that Miss Hook had later and found them open, and that Mellor and the plaintiff used to play tennis in the church. Witness could not say that he had ever seen Mellor and Miss Hook alone in the vestry of the church.

Chief Biddell told of the arrest of Mellor and nothing much else.

The defense did not call any witnesses. Mr. Mellor himself was not on the witness stand, but was examined, and at 5.30 the court adjourned.

Much time was taken up throughout the day by the reading of letters written by Mellor to his young choir girl friend, in which the Rev. Mellor referred like a haunted man throughout the entire proceedings and Miss Hooker gave her evidence in a similar forward manner, if in an extremely low voice.

In the afternoon nearly the hundred spectators filled every available inch of room in the court-room, all eager to listen to the views of the opinion of a young girl who had been jilted by a minister of the gospel, Mellor, who, even clergyman thinks of the court.

Heard At The Mellor Trial

"A soft in sheep's clothing" was the latest remark heard about the eavesdropping Joseph J. Mellor at the conclusion of yesterday's hearing before Judge McLean in Picton. Numerous decidedly uncomplimentary remarks were grumbled among the men as they pass ed out, but curiously enough almost all the women that attended the trial, and there were a good number there, blamed the girl entirely.

Mellor, guilty or not guilty presented the appearance of a haunted man in court yesterday. Dark circles were under his eyes and he was a shadow of his former self. Nervously twisting and unstuffing his fingers, the ex-pastor fidgeted and fussed as question after question was hurled at the young girl and her damning answers were given in a low voice.

A Toronto visitor to Picton yesterday exclaimed, "My, there must be a lot of unemployment in this town." And any stranger attending the trial would gather the same impression. The court-room will accomodate comfortably about two hundred people, and every one hundred spectators were crowded in all day long. Out-of-works society women, prominent business men, high school boys, even clergymen, all strained to listen to the girl's low answers.

If convicted minimum sentence the Don-Juanish ex-clergyman can get is five years in the penitentiary according to lawyers at the trial yesterday.

Mellor, although a decidedly learned man and well educated in all matters, might have elaborated a more intricate code to use in his love letters to the girl, if the code was of his invention. "I L Y M T A" for instance is translated into "I love you more than all the world," but the term seemed such extracts had been read from the various letters yesterday in the courtroom was translating the code under their breath and arriving at the right conclusion every time.

TESTING YOUR MENTAL MATURITY

The job of growing up is a hard one and the job of determining just when you are grown up is still harder. Actual age seems to have very little to do with the matter.

Some youngsters seem to be grown up at eighteen while men and women of forty and fifty often impress one as childish and immature.

The question is not one of physique or age. The determining factor is mind. How developed is the mind? Does it react intelligently?

Can the mind be depended upon? Is it unstable and easily upset? How much does emotion overwhelm it?

How far is reason developed? How strong are the inhibitory factors? Does the mind show playfulness and coherence?

The answers to these questions are more important in determining whether an adult estate has actually been reached than questions as to the place and date of birth.

An adult might be defined as a human being who has developed and adopted as his own a set of concepts which he cannot very readily be persuaded to give up and which, often he tries to persuade others are right.

The fully matured adult, in other words, knows what he thinks, believes in what he thinks, and often he tries and to make others think as he does.

An adult must be sure of himself. Emotional stability is essential. He must possess good judgment. He must know how to profit by experience.

If he makes mistakes and is not willing to change then he cannot be considered absolutely full grown.

But how many people fall short of the ideal adulthood I have outlined? How many there are who still have considerable puppy wool in evidence. How babyish we often are. How much we crave sympathy, cajoling and petting. How thoughtless of others we are.

Do we not show selfishness and pettishness to a degree that scarcely harmonizes with common-sense maturity?

Are we not more suggestible than we should be? Don't we ape and imitate others too much? Is not self-pity a very frequent fault?

Many of adult years possess such childish faults. Sometimes they do not actually outgrow it.

Often we do not get the proper perspective upon ourselves because no one has ever called our attention to it. The way to develop adult qualities of mind is to the utmost is to observe the men and women who are happy and adjusted. Perhaps not all of their mental attributes are worth emulating either. Study the best, however. Make them standard. Then try to fashion your own life according to these standards.

To Banish COUGHS COLDS and BRONCHIAL TROUBLES Take Peps

PEPS tablets give off agreeable and highly germicidal fumes that bathe the throat and breathing passages and allay inflammation and ward off dangerous colds and chills.

By treating the throat and bronchials direct, Peps are ahead of druggy mixtures. Their pleasant balsamic nature and freedom from opiates make Peps safe and ideal even for children and weak-chested old folk.

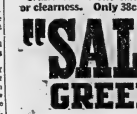

When shopping a Peps in the mouth soothes the throat and relieves that annoying and persistent cough.

A SUITOR TOO MANY

By MILDRED BARBOUR

"You've stood the test, son," said Uncle Dan softly.

"You've come off with flying colors."

Herbert looked bewildered. "So did Lila.—"

"I'm afraid, I don't understand, sir," Uncle Dan chuckled. He removed the cigar from his mouth and regarded it quizzically.

"You remember the night I came here? I told you a romantic story of being on my uppers. I said I hadn't succeeded in the Argentine, and that if I ever had ten thousand cents all at one time, I'd put 'em in an old sock and retire for life." He chuckled again. "Well, that was bunk, boy, pure bunk. I've got one of the neatest little bank-accounts south of the Amazon. If I felt like giving away public libraries and orphan asylums, I could do it every day in the week and never miss the loose change."

A stunned silence greeted his announcement.

"You—you mean you're a rich man?" stammered Herbert.

"Sure am. There aren't many richer in my part of the world. But I don't go around boasting about it. 'Tain't safe down my way."

"Then why—" Herbert's glance went to the shabby suit.

"This?" Uncle Dan smoothed his well-pressed, but shiny, sleeve. "Oh, I wore this for effect. You see, Herbert, it was like this: twenty-five years ago I got kicked out of this town. Lila's father could have helped me out of a scrape, but he wouldn't and, though my sister did everything in her power, I had to go. I had a pretty rotten time of it, without money. Nobody had any use for me. But I got onto a good thing and I prospered. With money, I got friends. I got consideration. I got boot-lickings. It was just the way it had been when I was a youngster, here in New York, and had a rich father who gave me plenty of spending money. Only, this time, I'd learned a exam. I'd found out that all everybody in the world is after is another fellow's money and what it'll buy. Living by myself the way I did, I got pretty cynical. I said to myself: 'Nobody's going to get anything from me, after this, unless they're worthy of it and prove it to me.' I made up my mind, then and there, that I'd find out how much old Dan Condon meant to people as a human being, not as a mint. Well, I found out!"

Herbert was staring bewilderedly at the little man. Lila was dazed and trembling.

He was doing this for her, the old dear! He was lying like a gentleman to back up her own falsehood.

"How did you find out, sir?" questioned Herbert incredulously.

Condon chuckled.

"By coming back as a failure. By coming back in these clothes and trying to touch my brother-in-law for a loan. By coming back and telling the story of my failure to you. And what happened? Lila and Latham turned me down and was in a hurry to get rid of me, because I didn't look so pretty, and that might make people talk. But you—you took me in. You treated me like a gentleman. And you thought I hadn't a penny! Yes sir, you took me in.

It took Herbert a long time to digest the significance of Condon's story.

"Then you are rich? Then you did send Lila that money to test the way her husband would act in a crisis?"

"Sure I did!" beamed Uncle Dan.

"But," doubt clouded Herbert's eyes again, "Lila said the donation was in memory of a son who'd been killed in the war, and you told me you'd never married."

"Oh, well, I just said it was in memory of a son, because—well, I don't know. I just said it."

Herbert turned to Lila and said hastily:

"Lila, I ask your pardon. I've done you a great injustice. I hope you will forgive me for all the harsh things I said, but, under the circumstances, what else could I think? I had your uncle's own words—"

"It's all my fault, Herbert," Uncle Dan interrupted. "It was just plain unfortunate that I hit on my little scheme of testing human nature, without taking into consideration what Lila already knew about me."

He went to his room shortly afterward, announcing his intention of departing on the morrow. Lila and Herbert spent an ecstatic two hours of

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my early teens and in love with a man three years my senior. We are thinking of getting engaged shortly.

A short time ago he moved to a distant town and since he has been away a girl friend of mine from the same town tells me he is going out with other girls. Is this proper for him to do?

CONFIDENT.

CONFIDENT: If you are not yet engaged, my dear, it is quite proper for your friend to go out with other girls. You also would be wise to exercise your privilege of going out with others until you are formally engaged.

Kisses and reconciliation.

"We must never let other people's affairs come between us again, Lila," said Herbert solemnly. "We must trust each other impicitly."

"Oh, if you only would, darling!" murmured Lila against his shoulder.

Before she went to bed, she tiptoed to Uncle Dan's room. He opened the door to her knock and she slipped in and put her arms around his neck.

"You were wonderful! I can't thank you enough, Uncle Dan. But, oh, I'm so ashamed that you had to lie like that for me!"

"Bless your heart, that wasn't all a lie!" he astounded her by answering. "I'm not quite as rich as I made out to Herbert. But I could give away ten thousand dollars, without going broke. And it was the truth that I wanted to find out what you folks back here would think of poor old Dan, if he didn't appear to have a cent."

Lila hugged him affectionately.

"You're a darling! Whatever can I do to repay you?"

He chuckled and patted her shoulder.

"All that engineers have learned, and all that millions of owners have experienced have made possible the new Ford, now on display at Bellevills Motors. Have them demonstrate this great car to you, then order for Spring delivery.

Second-hand beauty

THE world is full of women who are beginning to lose the fresh bloom of health. Eagerly, hopefully, they haunt the beauty shops. Trying this. Trying that. Buying beauty by the hour. . . . At best what an empty achievement they attain! Second-hand beauty.

Life could tell a different story if more women knew the part constipation plays in wrecking youth and beauty. If more men had realized how this terrible scourge undermines strength and health. Constipation is at the bottom of many a trouble. The cause of literally dozens of diseases.

And more's the shame when it can be so easily and quickly relieved. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to bring prompt relief—lasting, safe protection.

Why "all-bran" is so effective

It is "bulk" that combats constipation. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is rich in bulk because it is 100% bran. It distributes moisture throughout the intestines—gently exercising them.

Sweeping out poisonous wastes. Part-bran products seldom contain sufficient bulk to do this effectively. That is why doctors recommend Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Because it is 100% bran.

Better than drugs

Unlike habit-forming pills and laxatives—the quantity of ALL-BRAN you require need never vary. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN works as nature works—naturally. A pleasant, healthful cereal. Isn't that much better than pills or drugs?

Eat with milk or cream—or with fruits or honey added. Use it in cooking too. Sprinkle it into soups. Mix it with other cereals. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal.

Be sure, though, you get genuine Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Don't risk part-bran substitutes. ALL-BRAN is sold by grocers everywhere. Served at hotels and restaurants. On dining-cars. Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

Guaranteed! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold under this guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

HARDY TO REST IN WESTMINSTER

Great English Poet And Author Will Be Honored In Death

London, Jan. 13.—The highest honor in the gift of the British nation to a departed citizen—interment in Westminster Abbey—has been accorded Thomas Hardy, England's noted writer who died, at his home in Dorchester, Wednesday night. It was announced last evening that burial in the Abbey would take place Monday afternoon.

Acceptance of the honor coincides with the universal feeling of reverence for the dead poet and novelist. It is known, however, that Thomas Hardy himself would have desired simple burial in the little Dorset village of Stinsford, where lie the remains of his parents in the quiet village churchyard Stinsford, about 1 1-3 miles from Dorchester, is the "Melstock" of his Wessex novels.

World Pays Tribute

Throughout the day tributes were arriving at Max Gate, the Hardy home. The King, from Sandringham, sent to the widow an expression of grief and sympathy in behalf of himself and the Queen, in a loss, which the Sovereign said, "will be shared by all his countrymen, in whose literature his name will live permanently."

Other messages came from the Prince of Wales and most of the great leaders in literature and art.

The author's funeral will take place at 2 o'clock Monday at the Abbey, his widow and last night is considering her acceptance of the offer of a tomb in Westminster.

Although no announcement has been made, it is assumed that Mr. Hardy's body will be cremated and the ashes buried, as in the most recent interments at Westminster.

LIABILITY INSURANCE POLICIES GRANTED

The Public Liability and Property Damage Insurance will be placed on the two motor hose wagons and one hook and ladder wagon. Mr. H. E. Burrows and Mr. G. H. Holton were granted the policies at the respective quotations, at the regular meeting of the Civic Committees last night. TWO YEARS FOR OSHAWA ROBBER

Harold Gerrard Caught Red-Handed By Motor - City Police

Peterboro, Jan. 13.—Two years in Portsmouth Penitentiary, with hard labor, was the sentence meted out by Magistrate Hind in Oshawa Police Court yesterday morning to Harold Gerrard, aged 22, of Oshawa, when he formally pleaded guilty to entering the store of Mrs. R. Lack and stealing 11 dozen and a blanket. Attorney Mr. Gibbon, in making for sentence, referred to the previous record, which consisted three 6 four convictions for burglary and similar offences. Mr. Gibbon also pointed to the abnormal extent to which burglary prevailed in Oshawa at the present time. "This is can first burglar we have caught redhanded," he said, "and the only way to put a stop to these burglaries is to put the offenders where they cannot commit them. I ask that a substantial sentence be meted out in this instance, to those who are preying upon other property. We must protect the merchants and the people of this city." Magistrate Hind in passing sentence, said that he was inclined to agree with the for past offences, in the hope that he would benefit by them and be encouraged to lead an honest career. He urged Gerrard to do his best to improve himself while in the penitentiary, with a view to making himself a useful citizen when he was released. "I hope this is the last time you will have to be sentenced. It is certainly the last time I will give you a minimum sentence," His Worship said.

WAR CLAIMS TO BE SOON DECIDED

Cabinet Sub-Committee To Report Early In The Session

Ottawa, January 13.—A decision is expected soon from the sub-committee of the Cabinet, consisting of Hon. Peter A. Todd, Minister of Finance; Hon. Fernand Rinfret, Secretary of State, and Hon. Lucien Cannon, Minister of Public Works, as to the policy to be followed on the reparations question.

Early in the current session the Secretary of State will table the report of the Royal Commissioner, James Duncan Hyndman Kerwick, who under the oath of Hon. William Pugsley has been investigating the many claims for Canadian war disbursements in connection with damage done by rival armies during wartime.

During the past few years in which the inquiry has been conducted a tremendous amount of data has been dealt with, but it is understood that the commissioner has not finished even about $50,000. The saving that will have been effected through sifting the claims, it is hoped, will be the best reward.

When Parliament opens, it is understood, there will be about $11,000,000 in the Federal Treasury derived from the payments of Canada under the Dawes plan. How that sum is to be utilized, and what claims are to be met, remains to be determined by the Government.

"There possible courses, it is understood, are open to the Government. One is to pay all the claims at an early date, under the bill $11,000,000 and ask Parliament to vote whatever additional sum may be required. Another is to ignore the claims that still remain and apply what is paid now, and that a per centage of the current Dawes payments be set aside to meet the remaining claims. A third plan would be to pay before any claims, and this method would have the effect of compelling the claimants to negotiate settlements with some degree of promptness.

GAS NOT OF MUCH USE AGAINST BIRDS

Washington, D.C. — Experiments of the Army Chemical Warfare Service in co-operation with the Bureau of Biological Survey of the Department of Agriculture indicate that hot gases may be applicable to elimination from the United States of starlings. Farmers who have suffered loss to their cherished grains were suicidal in three of birds have been told that there thus a remarkable degree of resistance to poison gases. Such cannot be made effective to over-whelming losses.

"Proving the air it was noted that the birds usually turned in their roosts entirely when liberated in a gas cloud," this announcement said. "This was despite a quantity until it was realized that the poisons escaped by rising quickly above the gas. Tests show that crows fly out of gas clouds in the same way as soon as its irritating effects are felt."

TRENT SYSTEM EXHIBIT AT N.Y.

Outline Pleasure Paradise Of Ontario At Motor Boat Show

Peterboro, Jan. 13.—Plans are now well advanced in connection with the annual Trent Waterways Exhibit at the National Motor Boat Show, which will open in New York City on January 26, and will continue until January 28.

A visit to the offices of the Trent Waterway Development Association today disclosed numerous packing cases, trunks, etc., in fact, the entire paraphernalia required for an exhibit of this nature. The packing cases contained thousands of maps, booklets, supplies of flags, and hunting and sash paraphernalia and useful articles as huge mounted fish specimens in addition to many attractive framed pictures. There are also many novel framed invitations to the prospective tourist to come there he may enjoy Motor holiday boating, sailing, golfing, tennis, motoring and other summer recreations.

The Trent Waterway motion picture, "Bobby's Cruise," taking during the summer of 1926 by the Provincial Motion Picture Bureau, in co-operation with the Department of Railways and Canals, and under the direction of the Trent Waterways Development of this New York exhibit again this year.

This scenic picture which is extremely well received when first shown at the Exhibit Hall, show has evidently not been since been circulating through motion picture theatres in the United States. The Motion Picture Bureau has supplied two prints of the picture at the present exhibit.

The secretary-treasurer of the Trent Association, in charge of the exhibit left for Montreal on his way to New York last night. Mr. Burbidge Fields of Hastings, Ont., by G. K. Fraser, general passenger agent of Burbidge Falls and Hamilton, and by R. K. Wash, General manager of the Ontario Tourist and Steamship Company, Limited, of Midland.

ANXIOUS TO MEET LINDBERGH

Guynemer, Brooklyn, January 13.—Anxious to meet Col. Charles A. Lindbergh before he leaves Panama, Dieudonne Coates and Joseph Le Brix, French fliers, today hastened preparations for departure. They intend to take off from here as soon as possible for Panama on the next leg of their flight to New York.

TWO BANK BURGLARS SHOT

San Angelo, Texas, January 13.—Two men, who attempted to enter the First State Bank at Eldorado near here this morning, were killed in a pistol fight with officers.

Sheriff J. C. Barfield said that he had been warned an effort would be made to rob the bank and that he and two deputies were guarding it. The Texas Bankers' Association recently offered $5,000 each for "dead bank bandits."

Don't expect others to accept you at your own valuation.

CHINESE EXONERATED

Oshawa, Jan 13.—Sid. P. Kenney, Chinese, former manager of the Billmore Cafe, Oshawa, was exonerated from all blame in connection with the Alger block fire. This was announced yesterday at Fire Marshal E. P. Heaton, Toronto, who conducted a two days' probe into all the circumstances in connection with the conflagration. About twenty witnesses were examined by Crown Attorney McGibbon, Fire Marshal Heaton, at the close of the examination of witnesses stated that much conflicting evidence had been given, but the weight of it showed that the fire started in the stockroom of the Alger Press. Fire Marshal Heaton also emphatically declared that there was no evidence to warrant the arrest of Sid Kenney. The evidence all pointed to the fact that the origin of the fire was purely accidental.

PUNCH BOARDS AGAIN

Port Hope, Jan. 13.—A flood of punch-boards, "gaming devices," as they were also said to be sweeping the entire province, is to be sternly checked by Police Magistrate, who are cracking numerous pool rooms, tobacconists and candy stores in connection with boards and are prosecuting the operators.

At Millbrook, Wednesday afternoon, Thomas Wilson, proprietor of a "billiard hall in that village, was fined $100 by Magistrate W. E. Floyd in County Police Court, charged with operating a punch board and, pleading guilty, was fined $20 and costs. Magistrate Floyd pointed out that persons using punch boards are liable to a fine of $20.

DEPUTATION TO TORONTO

A deputation of about forty members of the directorate of the Exhibition Board is in Toronto today, interviewing Hon. J. . Martin, Minister of Agriculture, at three o'clock yesterday afternoon. This meeting was arranged by W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., and the Exhibition Board, headed by the president, Major Denne, to ask for a special grant towards the local Exhibition Board, to encourage and improve agricultural conditions in this district. The deputation includes W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., G. A. Gillespie, ex-M.P.P., Mayor Denne, and J. J. Duffus.

STRUCK BY CAR

Petersboro, Jan. 13.—Struck by a motor car at the corner of Charlotte Street and Maitland Avenue, last evening, George E. Chandler was later removed to his home, Doliver Street, suffering from cuts about the head and a bad shaking up, necessitating medical attention.

Mr. Chandler is connected with the sign painting department of J. J. Turner and Sons Co., and through his membership of All Saints' Choir, is well known about the city.

BELLE THEATRE

For fast moving, concise, interesting and humorous entertainment you'll have to pay tribute to Bebe Daniels, who came to the Belle Theatre last night in her latest Paramount comedy "She's a Sheik."

Never has the athletically inclined star been seen to better advantage and judging from the reaction of the first night audience, the photoplay is in for a successful run.

The picture starts out with a bang thanks to the efforts of William Powell, as the heavy, and before long it is picked up by the star and carried through at a merry pace. The story revolves around the activities of the granddaughter of the Sheik who, after an education received in the United States, returns to her Algerian home with some distinct and novel ideas upon how to capture a male.

Richard Arlen, of whom so much has been written concerning his performance in "Wings" does well as handsome Captain Colton and William Powell is likewise does excellent work as the desert Indaman.

NELSON HANGED AT 8 A.M. TODAY

Protested Innocence To The Last And Forgave All His Enemies

Winnipeg Man., Jan. 13.—Staunchly protesting his innocence and preserving an unruffled calm, Earle Nelson, murderer of Mrs. Emily Paterson, Winnipeg, and alleged slayer of nineteen other women in Canada and United States, went to his death on the gallows today.

As he stood on the trap he made a brief statement denying all guilt of the crimes with which he was charged. In a firm, clear voice he said, "I declare my innocence before God and Man. I forgive those who have injured me and I ask pardon from those I have injured. May the Lord have mercy on my soul."

Occupied Fifteen Minutes

Winnipeg, Jan. 13.—Shortly before eight o'clock, sextural standard time, this morning, Earle Nelson, the thirty-year-old "Dark strangler" was hanged in the court yard of the provincial jail here.

Nelson, charged with being the slayer of a score of women and children in the United States and Canada, was executed for the murder of Mrs. Emily Paterson, 27 year old choir singer, killed in her suburban home June 16th last. He was also charged with strangling Lois Cowan, aged fourteen, here but was never brought to trial. The trap was sprung at 7.41 a.m.

Nelson protested his innocence to the last and said he forgave all those who had testified against him. At 7.56 o'clock a.m. that fifteen minutes after the trap was sprung, Nelson was pronounced dead.

PETERBORO-PRESTON GAME IS POSTPONED

Peterboro Jan. 13.—Owing to the continued mildness with little cold weather in sight anywhere, the senior game scheduled for to-morrow night between Preston and the Petes, has been postponed indefinitely. It is not yet known when this fixture will be played, certain by not next week anyway, as there are three games scheduled for Brock street rink then. Oshawa Juniors here on Monday, Varsity seniors Wednesday, and Lindsay on Thursday, while the Petes journey to Kitchener on Friday.

hangman, Arthur Ellis had released the lever, which dropped the trap, the body was cut down and Nelson was pronounced dead.

Winnipeg, Man., Jan. 13—In an interview last night, Nelson declared his innocence to a reporter in the most solemn terms and declared that "God in his own good time would disclose the guilty parties to the eyes of the world." He asked his interviewer to proclaim to the people of Canada and the United States that he was a victim of circumstances and at no time in his life had he committed murder.

"Before God and man, I am entirely innocent. I am ready to meet my God, whom I am sure will have pity on me for all I have suffered," he declared. "Please don't charge a word I have told you," he pleaded. "I ask this as a favor, so that people who are bitter against me may know I have done them no injury."

"Why should I wish to tell a lie. To-morrow morning I am going to hang. There is absolutely no hope of saving me now, I am sure, will have pity on me for all I have suffered," he declared. "Please don't charge a word I have told you," he pleaded. "I ask this as a favor, so that people who are bitter against me may know I have done them no injury."

"Why should I wish to tell a lie. To-morrow morning I am going to hang. There is absolutely no hope of saving me now, I am sure, will have pity on me for all I have suffered," he declared. "Why should I wish to tell a lie. To-morrow morning I am going to hang. There is absolutely no hope of saving me now, I am sure, but I am certainly not going to do anything to blot my soul. I forgive and declare that I am telling the truth and that I never committed murder."

GRAIN MARKET'S EXPECTED RISE

Washington, D.C.—Resting on a fairly even keel for seven years, cooperative marketing of grain is expected to take an upward swing in 1928. One of the largest individual gains likely will be made in South Dakota, where unofficial estimates place the wheat volume at approximately 3,000,000 bushels compared to a few hundred thousand bushels marketed co-operatively last season.

While it does not identify itself with predictions of increased business for co-operatives, the department of agriculture is informed of renewed activity in a number of the winter wheat states. Much of this is due, officials say, to annual meetings of farmers' elevator associations and to the fact that several of the state pools have completed their period of operation under original contracts and are engaged in signing their members for a second period. There is a noticeable tendency among the associations to adopt contracts embodying optional pools.

Dr. J. F. Booth, agricultural economist with the division of co-operative marketing, has returned from a tour of the west with information that certain of the state pools will handle larger volumes during the 1927-28 period. The increased business handed by the wheat pool in South Dakota is due largely to a better crop. Better volume is reported by wheat pools for the southwest.

Most of the pools are considering the possibility of acquiring elevator facilities, and a definite start has been made in North Dakota and in one or two other states.

While a somewhat general change in operation policies has added significantly to the power of the wheat pools, the organizations in California, Oregon, Washington and Idaho are not expected to increase this season. They came into being during 1921 but caught several years of declining prices and were not able to weather the storm.

The eight active pools are in North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Indiana, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Kansas, and Texas. They include farmers' elevator associations, numbering more than 2,900, have a total membership of about 250,000 farmers.

The farmers' elevator system has been developing for the last fifty years but has made greatest progress since about 1903. One elevator now active was started in 1886. Four others were started in 1887. The wheat pools, however, were formed less than ten years ago.

Opinion on the relative merits of the two systems is somewhat divided, but there is a noticeable tendency to iron out some of the differences and to applicate the good features of each system. Many grain farmers, including members of farmers' elevators, are interested in further expansion of cooperative marketing and the operation of terminal elevator facilities.

NEW BRIDGE IN OLD STRUCTURE

Science Goes To Snake To Discover New Idea

New York.—Science has gone to the snake for a lesson in bridge building. Just as the serpent grows a new skin and then sloughs off the old one, a new steel bridge is to be built inside of an old one and then the old one, or at least a good part of it, is to be cut off. The whole operation is to be performed without any interruption in traffic.

The bridge is located on C. Street, Bound Brook, N.J., and carries the roadway and the tracks of the Union Electric Interurban Line over six rail road tracks of the 25 foot spans. O. H. Haldeman and L. B. Woodruff, engineers of the Public Service Railways Company are in charge of the reconstruction work, which will start at once.

"The reconstruction of the bridge is extremely interesting to engineers," Gilbert D. Fish, consulting structural engineer of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, said today.

"To do this by any of the usual methods would require the construction of an entirely new bridge, but by employing the swing-bridge half of the existing structure can be retained The new members can be welded in place and the old ones removed without resort to shoring or falsework or stopping traffic over the bridge.

RECREATION BOWLING

One Junior and one Senior League game were played at the Recreation Alleys last night. In the Junior game the Carthage got away to a good start by taking the first point from the Farmers-Adamson Office, but in the next two games the S. A. Office came on like a cloud and counted three points. Walters and E. Ehlert both rolled 625 for the highest score for the Office and Atkins led the way for the Carthage.

The Rovers got away to a fine start in the Senior League by rolling one of their best scores for this season and stepping into the Ponies for three points, the Rovers taking the first game by 6 pins and the second by 136 pins, in the final game the Ponies pulled out a win by 45 pins. High bowlers were Dickens, 760, for the Rovers, who also rolled 326 for the highest single score, and Brennan for the Ponies with 685.

Junior League

S. A. Office—McIntosh 451; Walters 625; Ehlert 625; E. Ehlert 625; A. Ehlert 440. Total 2727.

Senior League

At a meeting held at the Recreation Alleys between representatives from Kingston, Trenton and Belleville bowling alleys, officers were elected and a schedule drawn up for the large Central Ontario Bowling League Cup of which the local bowlers have won for the past two years.

This league opens at the Recreation Alleys on Tuesday night at 8.30 when the locals will take on Kingston for the initial game, Mayor-Elect M. P. Duff opening the league by rolling the first bowl.

The following are the officers elected for 1928:

Hon. Pres.—M. P. Duff, Belleville; W. H. Craig, Kingston; W. Fraser, Trenton.

Pres.—A. E. Baine, Kingston.

Vice-Pres.—P. Dumoulin, Belleville.

Sec.-Treas.—E. E. Guay, Trenton.

PRESIDENT TO MAKE FIRST EXCURSION

Washington, D.C.—When President Coolidge leaves the United States to address the sixth international conference of American states in Havana Cuba, January 16, he will be making his first visit to the Caribbean region and his first trip to another country since he became chief executive of the nation.

Accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge, Secretary of State Kellogg and Secretary of the Navy, Wilbur, the president will carry a message from the United States to the representatives of 20 other American republics which make up the Pan-American Union.

Because congress will be in session and the White House social season at its height, Mrs. Coolidge will be unable to spend more than a day in Havana. But this short stay, it is believed, will go a long way toward clearing the atmosphere of a great deal of suspicion of the United States' foreign policy and attitude toward the component states of the Union.

BROKEN OUTCAST GETS A FAIRLY LIGHT SENTENCE

Thirteen Months Will Serve The Ends Of Justice Says Prosecutor

ALREADY PUNISHED

Mellor's Counsel Pleads For Mercy In View Of Tragic Sufferings

Haggard, worn and shaken, Joseph J. Mellor clutched the edge of the prisoner's box in Picton Court House yesterday afternoon, to hear Judge Merrill Lean pronounce him guilty and receive the sentence of 13 months in the Central Prison. The lightness of the sentence was somewhat of a surprise but was given in view of the fact that, the prisoner had already spent several months in jail. Mellor is a broken man and as his lawyer, Fred L. Ward, pleaded, he is now without means of livelihood and practically an outcast from society.

In his summing up Judge McLean did not spare Mellor's feelings. He characterized as dastardly the fact that the only man to whom the orphan girl could go for advice should have prostituted his holy calling to her undoing. The $1,000 which Mellor had paid, the judge said, might be of some assistance to her, but could not in any way compensate for the horrible wrong he had done her.

Held Girl Truthful

In opening his remarks the Judge said that this case hinged largely on the story of the girl, Bertha Houck, and that she had impressed him as being absolutely honest. Even the more or less slight discrepancies between the story which she told now and at the previous trial were more in dicative of truthfulness than otherwise, as it showed that she had not prepared a set story.

Under the law it was necessary that her story be corroborated and in this connection he held that the letters written by Mellor to the girl were perfectly good evidence. The Judge read extracts from some of these letters written before Miss Houck's 18th birth day to show that the feelings expressed therein were improper to address ed to a young girl and not to his wife

Curtain Strung Evidence

The certain vitals figured largely in the evidence the Judge held to be one of the strongest pieces of circumstantial evidence that was possible. It was quite evidently made by an amateur and the chemist's character denied all knowledge of it. It was obviously made by the pastor himself and showed that there was something guilty to hide.

Judge McLean expressed his keen re gret at having to make his decision, but in view of the evidence, must find the prisoner guilty as charged of the most serious offences against a girl under 18 years of age.

The prisoner's attorney, Mr. Ward, pleaded that his client had already undergone terrible suffering and had lost his home and livelihood. He asked that the court be as merciful as possible.

Calling on the prisoner to stand up Judge McLean then sentenced him to 13 months in the Central Prison.

Was Opera Defence Plea

When Court opened at 2 o'clock this afternoon, Mr. Ward immediately commenced his plea on behalf of the prisoner. He said that his arguments would be based on three points; first, the Common English Law that a man

PETER WILL HAVE NO USE FOR HIS PERMIT ANY MORE

Peter J. Regis, a full blooded Iroquois from the province of Quebec was picked up by the police on Front street about five o'clock this morning in an intox icated condition, so intoxicated in fact that his iron toes were hanging down be low his hips. Peter was trying the va lious dors of the Front street shops when apprehended and was rushed to the police station.

This morning at ten o'clock Peter was sober enough to come before Magistrate Mikel and put up a strong argu ment in favour of his being allowed to keep his liquor permit. Peter claimed that he had paid two good dollars for the aforementioned permit and that he has, although it says at Indian agent no buy liquor, does not stop him from having a permit.

In rebuttal Mr. Duncan claimed that Peter had no right to the permit what ever and pointed out that it be cancelled forthwith. After paying a fine of $15 and $7 costs Peter left the police station a sadder but wiser man.

HEART OF HARDY TO STAY IN HIS BELOVED WESSEX FOR ALL TIME

In The Early Grey Morning Light The Body of England's Great Writer Is Taken To Be Prepared For Burial In Westminster Abbey.

Dorchester, Eng., Jan. 14.—In the early morning moonlight on Dorset's windswept downs, the body of Thomas Hardy, except his heart which Wessex keeps forever, was taken away today for cremation, preparatory to burial in Westminster Abbey on Monday.

Only a small group of people were gathered on the road outside the main gate as the hearse rolled through the creepy Wessex villages. One can picture in imagination most of the gloomy figures, characters from his novel, that rose in bid farewell to the genius who created them.

A handful of narcissi sprinkled beneath the coffin and one beautiful wreath of arum lilies and lilies of the valley accompanied it with a wreath and a little card inscribed, "To my Darling from his wife."

COLD WAVE WILL END MILD SPELL

Toronto, Jan. 14.—With a severe cold wave spreading over the Western Provinces threatening to move it is predicted that the mild weather experienced here during the past week or so will prove to an abnormal termination within twenty-four hours.

Fresh northerly winds, with snowfur ries and a much lower temperature, are reported by the Toronto Meteorological Office to be on the way to the Lakes region, Northern Ontario, the Ottawa Valley and the Upper St. Lawrence.

SMUGGLED CAMERA TOOK RUTH'S PICTURE IN CHAIR

New York, Jan. 14.—Warden Lewis Lawes of Sing Sing Prison was on his way to Palm Beach to-day for a ten days' rest, his nerves shattered by the ordeal of the execution of Mrs. Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray on Thursday night. His friends said he was executed because some one in the execution chamber took a photograph of Mrs. Snyder as she was in the electric chair. This photograph was promptly displayed in New York Tabloid newspapers.

He was quoted as saying, "In future there will be only one man from the press in the death chamber during electrocutions, and he'll be a man I know. I resented the reporters that night, and one of them was unworthy of trust. Actually I did not search the men for cameras."

It was said a camera was slapped to the leg of one of the witnesses and the bulb was pressed from his coat pocket.

BALMY BREEZES CONSERVED COAL FOR PAST WEEK

Temperatures Away Higher Than Corresponding Week Last Year

BIG MONEY SAVING

Hard On The Fuel Dealers But Citizens Generally Are Happy—

Substantial savings of coal have been made this week with the continued mild weather. An interview with Mr. A. S. Large, Market Lessee denoted that this past week has been one of the lightest in years as far as the consumption of coal here is concerned.

January 13th to 12th, inclusive 1927 was one of the coldest periods on record with the mercury registering below zero practically every day. The same period this year has been one of the mildest. Residents have been greeted with April-like weather every day and although some apprehension was felt as to the continuance of this condition the thermometer hovered around the 32deg-the above zero mark—this means a saving of approximately three thousand dollars each year to the householders of Belleville.

	1927 Min.	1928 Min.
Jan. 7	2 below zero	35 above
Jan. 8	13 below zero	23 above
Jan. 9	14 below zero	33 above
Jan. 10	8 below zero	34 above
Jan. 10	6 below zero	34 above
Jan. 11	5 below zero	32 above
Jan. 12	4 below zero	32 above

These figures were furnished by Mr. E. T. Austin, Manager of the Watertown Reservoir, and are taken from the readings at the pump-house.

Mr. A. S. Large, market lease furnished the corresponding figures in regard to the coal situation and stated that one mild day cuts the draining down fifty per cent.

Number of tons drawn each day.

SHORTEN SESSION FOR FISHERMEN

Province Adopts Policy Despite Opposition Of Federal Govt.

Toronto, Jan. 14.—As a measure of conservation, the Ontario Government is issuing licenses for the present year to the Lake Erie fishermen which will be terminated July 1st next year. Beyond that time the fishermen cannot legally operate. Also they can fish one month from the season which they have enjoyed in the year just closed. The Government's policy has been made effective by an order-in-Council which has just been passed.

The danger of depletion in Lake Erie has been recognized by fishermen and government alike for some years. Even in several conferences representative fishermen have agreed with the Government upon a closed December in order to protect the fish when they were spawning, but unfortunately nothing succeeded in having the plan blocked by Ottawa.

CANADIAN GETS A FIVE YEAR SENTENCE

San Diego, Calif., Jan. 14.—L. Thompson, aged 28, described as a Canadian, is one of three men who have been sentenced in five years imprisonment in Tres Marias Island, Mexico's Penal Colony, for highway robbery committed last Friday near Santa Tomas, Lower California, according to reports from Ensenada.

CHICAGO OFFENDED

Objects To Being Called The Mad Crime-Ridden City

Chicago, Jan. 14.—"Malicious characterisation" of Chicago as the "most crime-ridden city in America" is without foundation in fact, Chicago's crime commission said today in its annual report. "During the last few months," said the report, prepared by Henry Chamberlain, operating director of the commission, "there has been more harmonious co-operation among officials charged with the administration of criminal justice than at any other time since the organization of the commission ten years ago."

CUTS IN EXCISE TAXES PROBABLE

Liquor And Cigarettes To Benefit—Penny Postage In Empire

Ottawa, Jan. 14.—Unusual activity in the offices of the Advisory Board on Tariff and Taxation and many conferences of the board between Hon. James A. Robb, Minister of Finance, and Wilfrid St. Maurice, Chairman of the board, indicate some being taken by the Government to submit tariff changes to Parliament, it was learned to-night.

While the closest secrecy prevails as to the final intentions of the Government, it is believed that the changes to be proposed will be important.

Excise revenue, which is believed, is being paid to various classes of the tariff as it affects the whole textile industry of Canada, and there is reasonable ground for expecting some reduction in the schedules relating to cotton, woollen and cotton manufactures. There is warrant, too, for anticipating some concessions to the coal and woollen growers of Canada, who are asking for a reduced interest rate, and to the United States products now during the tariff, as well as to manufacturers located in Canada, and that will be suspended with the foreign products do not compete with the Canadian.

Revise Cotton Duties

It would not be surprising if the Minister of Finance proposed a slight revision in the duties on cotton goods, and certain adjustments in the schedules on woollens which in some cases would meet the legitimate views of the manufacturers, and in other cases make concessions to the consumers. A downward revision in the duties on iron or steel wire and nickel and aluminum hollow-ware is also possible. In addition it is expected there will be proposed adjustments in some of the remaining items of the tariff before the board, some of them upward and some downward.

Penny Postage Rate

The big question of the duties on soft coal has yet to be dealt with by the board. It is believe the board has the original application of the British Empire Coal Producers' Council, Sir Percy M. Wolvin, and since then has developed a demand from British Columbia for the removal of all duties on soft coal. A date for a further hearing of this case will be set sometime this week.

Other Budget Proposals

Other proposals likely to be included in the Budget speech are: Re-establishment of penny postage within the Empire, continuance of the progressive reduction in the sales tax with another cut of 1 per cent., and a reduction probably of 2 cents in the excise tax on cigarettes and liquor.

BISHOPS RATIFY BOOK OF PRAYER

London, Jan. 14—The House of Bishops of the Church of England, which has been sitting for the past three days at Lambeth Palace considering Prayer Book revisions, issued an official communique last night ratifying and affirming its former decision to incorporate only such changes in the next Prayer Book revision proffer as will remove apprehension and make clearer and more explicit its intentions and limitations.

The communique added that the Bishops had given unanimous support upon in the hands of the members of the Church Assembly and the public.

RAYNOR CASE TO BE HELD AGAIN

Absence Of Material Witness Forces Counsel To Ask Adjournment

R. H. Raynor, slated to appear before Judge McLean at Picton on Tuesday next to face thirty-two charges of fraud and misappropriation will not likely be tried on that date, Mr. P. L. Ward, who is acting as Raynor's Counsel, said this morning that he would ask for a delay when the case was called next Tuesday morning as a material witness would not be available at that time. The adjournment asked will be for a period not exceeding a month.

Colonel Kiefer McKay of Windsor, special Crown Prosecutor in the Mellor case, will act in the same capacity at the Raynor trial. While Mr. McKay could not be reached by telephone it is understood that he will not oppose the adjournment. Raynor at present is at liberty under $75,000 bail.

ISSUE STATEMENT

Publishers Say Higher Wages Would Mean Increased Advertising Rates

London, Ont., Jan. 14—Despite a strike by printers at seven o'clock last evening both the London Advertiser and London Free Press published twenty four page issues, this morning and both will publish editions of similar size this afternoon. An emergency staff was employed and the papers were published jointly, although each bore its own title and contained its own editorials. There have been no new developments in the situation to-day.

No requests for conferences between employers and the men have been asked or granted, nor is there any indication of the strike being settled in the circle stereotypers and press room workers, who are still on duty.

Both papers issued a statement to their readers on the front page in the morning editions in which it was stated that if the increase demanded by the printers had gone into effect, it would have meant an increase in the rates to advertisers which was felt they could not be asked to pay at the present time. The statements also contain old payroll figures for 1927 of both the printing staffs.

The printers have issued an emergency sheet headed "Pair Play," setting forth their side of the situation.

LINDBERGH RESTS BETWEEN FLIGHTS

Panama City, Jan. 14.—Col. Lindbergh today deserted the spirit of St. Louis for the rod and gun, while Panama feted two other celebrated fliers, the French fliers, Diodonne Costes and Joseph Lebrix, who flew here from Guayaquell during the worst weather they have encountered in any of their flights from Buenos Aires, Argentine, a few days as will Lindbergh. Asked whether they would go with Lindy, Costes replied that they had not been asked, but would like to. A rest period of three or four days was ahead of Lindbergh before he continues his flight.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

Light is the task when many share the toil.

—Homer.

THREE OF A KIND

By a happy coincidence all three of the new Dominion senators for Ontario whose appointment is announced today are Liberals. No doubt it pleases Premier King and his cabinet colleagues to know that of all the available Ontario men available for elevation to the senate the three best and choicest happen to belong to the government party. The favored three are Hanna H. Spence, K.C., of Toronto, E. Sydney Little, of London, and Dr. Gustave Lacasse, of Essex County. The selection of these three men will cause general surprise and not a little disappointment—perhaps even some resentment. Their fitness for senatorial service is better known to those responsible for their appointment than to the people of Ontario. They may be shining lights, but hitherto their light has been hidden under a bushel. No doubt, however, all of them have done good service for the party in power. Dr. Lacasse probably owes his elevation to the demand of the dominant Quebec element in the cabinet that the French-speaking citizens of Ontario shall have representation in the senate. The doctor is wholly unknown to fame. For the fact that men of outstanding ability and well-earned reputation—men like W. G. Raymond, of Brantford, former M.P., and W. M. German, former M.P., for Welland, were passed over and Dr. Lacasse chosen, the doctor owes his good fortune in having been born of French-Canadian parents.

THOMAS HARDY

Full of years and the recipient of many honors, at the ripe age of eighty seven, Thomas Hardy, novelist and poet, has passed over to the great majority. By his decease the world of literature suffers a great loss. For nearly half a century he labored at the craft which slowly but surely brought him world-wide fame as a man of letters. During this period he produced some twenty novels nearly all of them devoted to the scenery, life and manners of the Wessex peasantry and which have impressed the public imagination like some masterpiece of painting. In his later life Mr. Hardy published seven volumes of poetry. "The Dynasts" being his major effort in this direction. Although by no means unsuccessful in versification it is generally recognized that this vehicle of expression does not represent the highest flight of his genius nor constitute his special talent. It will be as a prose writer rather than a lyrist that Thomas Hardy's name will stand out amongst the illustrious names of modern times. He was one of the ablest writers of the Victorian era, and, in the opinion of many critics whose verdict is entitled to respect, he was one of the greatest writers in the annals of English literature. Men like George Meredith and Lord Morley were amongst the first to recognize his genius and his work has commanded in no circles warmer appreciation and loftier tribute than have been paid by members of his own vocation. Rightly is Thomas Hardy acclaimed a master of English prose.

FRUITFUL SUFFERING

Count Herman Keyserling, the German philosopher, lectured the other day to the young ladies of Vassar college and, to illustrate a point, he took his audience into his confidence and told them a secret of his life. When a young man, he said, he fell in love but the girl jilted him. He suffered anguish for a while, but the experience proved a tonic and spur to his intellect, and he was surprised to find that in a few weeks he had completed three long chapters of a book on philosophy.

Far better, in his case, to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all, for his unsuccessful love affair probably made a philosopher of the count.

Shelley says of poets that "they learn in suffering what they teach in song." It is not always true, but it is the fact that many of the great masterpieces of literature hall their birth amid much travail. The genius suffered, and the world collects "the far off interest of tears."

But was Count Keyserling quite prudent in teaching this lesson to the Vassar girls? What if they should take it into their heads to flout all wooers for the young men's good? What if they were thrilled by the thought that they may have it in their power simply by turning down young fellows in love with them, to transform quite humdrum and ordinary young men into philosophers or poets or artists of some sort? That would be unfortunate, for it is a hundred to one that the hoped-for transformation would never take place, and both the boys and girls would be uselessly disappointed.

OTHER MEN'S THOUGHTS

HAVE YOU HEARD THESE?

What makes you think the ancient buildings are so much better constructed than the modern ones?

Well, for one thing, they've lasted so much longer.

I broke off my engagement with George because my feelings were no longer the same as when I accepted him.

HOME LIGHTS

The wistful stars that one by one
Set heaven's halls with light,
Are like the little lamps of love
That mothers set at night
On window-sills,
That those they love
May guide their steps aright!

So like—
A little lamp that shone
For me in days of yore—
So like a little lamp that shines,
On earth, for me—
No more!

And when at eventall, the stars,
Dark halls of heaven jet,
They are not stars to me, but lamps
That waiting mothers set
On window-sills
Of heaven—
That we may not forget!

Because my feelings towards the ring are unchanged.

In a railway carriage the passengers were holding a conversation about the weather. "Well, I must say," remarked one of the passengers, "I have never known a winter like this."

A cynical looking man in the corner replied: "I have."

"You have?" came the chorus of the surprised passengers. "When?"

"Last summer," replied the cynic.

THE PASSING YEARS
(From The Intelligencer of this day 30 years ago)

Colborne is shipping ten to fifteen cars of apples weekly to Liverpool.

About 45 young girls and boys invaded the home of Mr. J. Moore, Yonmans street last evening in honor of his daughter Miss Nettie. Dancing and pedro and other games were indulged in. The party broke up at an early hour all pleased with the evening's enjoyment.

Yesterday His Honor of the Police Court, Mr. J. J. B. Flint, went into Wilson's grocery store on Front street and upon leaving left his gloves. He soon missed them and returned but they were not to be found. Officer Hayes looked up the hand warmers and found them in Wardhaugh's Second-hand Store. They had been taken from the store by some passing man and sold for fifteen cents.

HIGH CLASS
CLEANING SAVES BUYING!
It is a fact, often demonstrated that garments kept fresh and spotless by frequent visits to a quality cleaner, actually last much longer than if allowed to become too soiled.
Many kinds of stains, perspiration, grease and gritty dust actually weaken fabric if not removed promptly, and cause your clothes to wear out sooner than they should.
Regular and constant cleaning by experts costs little in the long run and lengthens the life of your garments.
Modern service is high-class service, and one which will eventually save you money and save buying.

CLOSING QUOTATIONS

STANDARD MINING EXCHANGE
Quotations supplied by Hamilton Wilson and Co., Jamieson Bone, local manager.

Now that we are over Friday the 13th feenth, have had a good healthy reaction, and stocks are rising in the lower levels in twelve months, the public have apparently decided that it is time to buy stocks. The market generally was very active this morning, and plus signs were pinned on almost everything. Base metals led on any way strong yet, but nearly all up from yesterday. Quarterly stock brokers from yesterday at 39.75 and sold up to $10.25 to-day. McIntyre was up 50 points, Beaver Consolidated 5, and Wright Hargreaves made a nice recovery from 55.35 yesterday to a close at 56.15 to-day. Amulet and Howey were steady. Bidgood, Granada and Atlantic firmer. Reports say that Wright Hargreaves are now in the best looking ore they have yet had, and very high grade at that. The close at noon was as follows:

Alaska 3.25; Amulet 56; Argonaut 2-1-2; Amity 39; Amulet 4.80; Area 20; Bedford 40; Bidgood 1.80; Barry Hollinger 1.10; Capital Bruin 15 1-2; Central Manitoba 1.84; Dome 13.00; Preston East Dome 1.00; Granada 31 1-2 Good fish 66; Gold Hill 35; Goldale 43; Hollinger 18.00; Howey 1.72; International Nickel Kirkland Pr. Collegiate Dramatic Night Filled City Hall Stage Clever Play

So great was the attendance at the Belleville Collegiate "Dramatic Night" at the City Hall last evening, that it was necessary to close the doors long before the curtain went up. This entertainment was under the auspices of the Literary Society.

Two forms took part in the program The Pi'h playing Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," under the direction of Miss Merry, of the Collegiate staff. The picturesque costumes for this play were loaned by Hart House, Toronto.

The play given by the Fourth Form under the supervision of Miss Mildred Lloyd, was entitled "Minorities."

The directors as well as those taking part in these two plays each excelled themselves. The depicting of the different characters required great adaptness which was shown by the young actors.

The cast of characters for, "Twelfth Night" were:

Maria	Beatrice Welbanks
Olivia	Joan Ranney
Viola	Dorothy Hall
Sebastian	Fred Lazier
Marvolio	Hamilton Dolling
Sir Andrew	Leslie Pearsall
Sir Roger	Jack Redfern
Antonia	Raymond Beckett
Fabian	Perry White
Valentine	Earl Elmer
Duke	Murry Bonnycastle
The Priest	Alfred Ellis
Sea Captain	Ross Thomas

Those taking part in "The Travellers" which is one of Booth Tarkington's plays, were:

Mr. Roberts	Dan Dalrymple
Mrs. Roberts	Alice Redmond
Miss Roberts	Gladys Munnings
Mrs. Siddell	Jean Ramsay
Fred. Siddell	Gill Bonnycastle
Salvatore	Cedric Smith
Pallidman	Douglas Smith
La Sera	J. Nobel
Chauffeur	Arthur Liddle
Waldevonan	Hilda Mackenzie

Messrs. Clarke Kingear, Orliff Lloyd and Mitie Gillen were the stage managers.

BROKEN OUTCAST

could not be charged twice for the same offence; second, that the story of the girl, Beryl Mellor, lacked corroboration, and third, the evidence only warranted the finding of a improper guilty of indecent assault. The Judge ruled out the first, and third pleas, and the evidence of Beryl was on the matter of corroboration.

Mr. Ward endeavored to discount the evidence of Mr. Millam, janitor of the church for the past six years. Millam, he said had one grudge after another against Mellor and therefore could not be believed. Millam, he said was actuated by spite. Millam, however, denied any feeling of spite, saying that he had only been dismissed from his position by the church authorities, and they are educational.

Ward spoke for about three-quarters of an hour, citing numerous precedents, in an effort to have all evidence given by Beryl Mellor ruled out, and after the girl had reached her 16th birthday.

Letters Evidence Enough

Colonel Keller MacKay, special Crown Prosecutor, addressed the court for about 40 minutes. He held that the letters of Mellor were quite sufficient evidence, and that corroboration, all the corroboration that was necessary of the girl's story. He stressed the similarities between the accused and the young girl as seen by Millam and the fact that Mellor had admitted it necessary to put up a curtain in block out the view of any person who might be looking in the vestry.

MacKay was not sparing of Mellor's character, and severely criticized him for using his sacred calling as a mask for a studied sly attempt on the young girl's innocence.

As Col. MacKay sat down, Mr. Ward rose to object to the prosecuting attorney using the prisoner's previous conviction in an attempt to influence the court.

Child Will Suffer

One of the saddest features of the whole case is the fact that the child, assuming up, is the injury done to the young child born as the result of Mellor's improper actions. All its life this child will suffer from the stigma, and the conclusions that MacKay expressed satisfaction with the verdict which he said would be just, although that 12 months were long enough in view of the fact that the man had been convicted on similar charges.

Mr. Ward, the prisoner's counsel, said he "was fairly well satisfied," asked as to the possibility of an appeal, he had not yet thought the matter over and would not say anything until he had consulted Mrs. Mellor was not in the court room but came to Picton by the train leaving at the home of Mr. Thomas Hubbs, M. P.

Mellor will be held in Picton jail until the necessary papers are signed by the Sheriff, when he will be taken to Guelph to serve his sentence.

Easy prophets rained and pity held debts on contempt.

NOTABLE DETAILS of NEW MODELS

Wide, heavily crowned fenders.

New type Colonial headlamps and saddle lamps. The instrument boards are finished in a polished ebony. Liere are grouped ammeter, oil and gasoline gauges, speedometer and motometer, all indirectly lighted.

Electro-lock type of theft protection.

New type steering wheels are of black hard rubber with steel core, a type used in the most expensive cars. It carries light, throttle and horn controls.

The new upholstery is fine quality patterned velour in Essex and mohair in Hudson, gratifying and convincing eye and touch. The deep seats are wider, higher-backed for comfort, and form-fitting.

The new steering gear is of worm and tooth disc type, heretofore exclusive to costly car design.

Wider doors for easy entry and exit. Door openings are completely weatherstripped.

The new Hudson and Essex four-wheel brakes are of the Bendix type, used only on the finest of high-priced cars.

All hardware is of the new Colonial pattern with soft brushed finish.

The rubber floor mat in the driving compartment lies over a silenting pad of cowhide which further assists the quiet operation characteristic of Hudson and Essex.

Tire carriers are adjustable.

Again the stage belongs to HUDSON-ESSEX

In the most beautiful gathering of fine cars that the motor industry ever assembled at the New York Show, the new Hudson Super-Sixes stand vividly forth in the floodlight of popular interest and attention.

Again we hear: "It's a Hudson-Essex show." Again the press is thickest around the Hudson-Essex booth. Once more, when the industry's most notable achievements have been appraised, interest surges to these long time leaders in design, performance and value.

If you would know the outstanding attraction which has swept the New York Show, follow this alert and distinguished attendance.

As the Super-Sixes have achieved and led the mechanical possibilities of the day, so in these new models they achieve and lead a new mode in beauty and fine car appointment. They reflect tomorrow's vogue.

GEORGE COLE ADDRESSES MEETING OF LOCAL UNDERWRITERS' ASSOC.

Imperial Life Agent Shows Value Insurance As Investment

The monthly meeting of the Life Underwriters was held at the Queen's Hotel yesterday with President Burgess Hubbs in the chair. Mr. George Cole, of the Imperial Life, addressed the members, giving them a fine talk on Life Insurance as an investment as well as protection. These get-together meetings are of the greatest importance just mean that the public obtain better service from the insurance agents and that the agents and they are educational.

The following were present: George Cole, Burgess Hubbs, Holton, Wallet Ballsby, Eric Keeler, J. F. Hinchley and Guy Cole.

Mr. Cole's address was as follows:

Although we are accustomed to apply the word investment to those undertakings which we can physically appreciate, it is quite possible to make an investment in unseen and intangible values and Life Insurance affords one of the best ways of doing this. Apart from this type of investment are known by such names as mortgages, bonds of stock, unlimited liability, the sense of duty well done. The work of the Life Insurance Salesman has a greater confidence, greater self-respect and greater efficiency because men buy Life Insurance.

By a few strokes of the pen, in the twinkling of an eye, the material return made in something that cannot be measured in mathematical terms.

However, it is the material return from investment in Life Insurance with which we are to deal with specifically at this time.

When you buy Life Insurance, you not only buy protection, you make an investment in your future. Only a part of your premium Dollar goes to meet the cost of protection.

A part is invested by the Company for you. Interest upon it is compounded for it accumulates—fattens with interest, it equals the face of the policy.

You secure protection, and you make an investment at the same time with parts of the same Dollar. Through this method, the Company is able to give for the first year's premium nearly double its cash value. Even if it be years before the investment portion has accumulated a sum equal to the face of the policy.

Protection means covering the hazard of premature death, paying the face of the policy today, six months from today, or twenty years from now. Therefore, there must be a charge made for this service.

It is an investment in the same way that the dollars you put into Stocks, Bonds or Mortgages become invested dollars.

The Life Insurance Company simply acts as your investing agency, caring for the details of reinvestment, compounding the interest and adding to the money you put in, a proportionate share of the Company's earnings.

If a part of every Dollar you put into Life Insurance is an investment, you have the right to ask the question: "IS IT A GOOD INVESTMENT, AS GOOD AN INVESTMENT AS STOCKS AND BONDS, REAL ESTATE, MORTAGES AND PROPERTY?"

To equal the return upon the investment part of the premium, your money must earn 5.26% Compound Interest.

Cash Value

This computation is based upon the Cash Value in an Ordinary Life Policy taken at age 35 and carried to age 65. The interest rate was arrived at by accepting the figures of six representative Companies. Naturally, the figures of the Company are likely to vary in any appreciable way from these figures used in this particular analysis.

The computation is based upon the continuation of premium dividend scales. If lower interest rates should reduce dividend scales, they would also reduce the return on individual investments.

THE POLICYHOLDER PAYS HIS PREMIUM, HE HAS NO FURTHER WORRY. THE LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY DOES ALL HIS WORRYING FOR HIM.

The Insurance Company is a wall that protects a man and his beneficiaries from all investment worries. Life Insurance also offers the investor the utmost freedom—Its flexibility is without an equal.

If you must have large principal appreciation, then you must accept the risk of large principal depreciation.

IF—you can make your money earn 15% interest, tax free, not one year or two years, but for twenty, twenty-five or thirty years.

IF—you can compound your interest at 15% AND AT THE SAME TIME BE ATTAINING WITHOUT WORRY A FINANCIAL INDEPENDENCE AT AGE 65 OR 70 OR 75 AS YOU MAY DESIRE

IF—you can do this and have the assurance that your family will receive a definite sum of money in the event of your death, whether it occurs tomorrow or thirty years hence

IF—you can do this and have the assurance that you will receive a definite sum of money at the end of the period you have selected

FAILURE MAY OFTEN BRING ON SUCCESS

If possible failure did not lurk somewhere, ready at almost any time to worst us. He would soon become lonesome and unthrilling.

But possible failure is what spurs us on. Because of it we make greater effort. We prepare ourselves so that we will not fail. We study, we learn, we check up on ourselves, we compare ourselves with others.

And because of past failure we often finally excel in a measure far greater than if we had succeeded from the very beginning.

Many men and women would be greater now in their particular calling if they had failed when they started. But no, they succeeded. And that initial success was their undoing. They found they could get by with comparatively little effort. Ever since they have repeated their first performances. The result has been that their achievements have not been signal and unusual.

Have you ever noticed that you tend to belittle, even despise, what comes easy to you?

The boy who has a bright mind and learns quickly in school may take very little interest in schooling because of that fact. But his slow-witted, plodding neighbor, who is forever facing failure, respects schooling. The result? The first boy becomes a mediocrity in life, while the second, who works like a Trojan for everything he gets, excels.

If money comes easy to you, do you respect its value as much as when it comes hard? If you always seem to get the good breaks, is life's adventure as thrilling as when there is always the chance that you may not succeed?

Try to make yourself robust enough to assimilate failure. Learn to profit by failure.

Find out how to turn failure to your personal advantage. It is said that Henry Ward Beecher failed in an examination in grammar while at school. He stood sixty-fourth. The boy who did the best in the examination became a barber "Henry Ward Beecher became one of America's most famous orators.

The individual by nature tries to overcome obstacles and conquer. It is just normal to be down and let yourself be whipped. Few start with a clear vision of their final goal. They see a hill to climb and they climb it. On the new horizon which they then behold still higher hills present themselves.

Each hill that is surmounted gives added strength for the next. This is especialy true if they slip and slide and are compelled to tackle the ascent over and over again.

Failure matures us. Failure develops us in experience and perspective on life. It shows us how to travel.

Therefore do not be discouraged when you fail. Let it make you think.

Maybe you have made a false start. Perhaps you do not belong in this line. Maybe you have failed in it. Maybe you do belong in it but were simply overconfident and careless. Maybe you underestimated the task. Then learn.

Even to fail late in life should not needed thus far the likelihood is you be overwhelming. If you have success succeed again.

Failure is more apt to be a bugaboo than a devastating fact.

Face failure, take its measure, and laugh it out of court.

CHAPTER 43.

Lila breathed easily again. She and Herbert were happy once more. There was no ugly cloud hovering between them, Uncle Dan, who was now speeding westward, had fulfilled his role of deus ex machina with complete success.

Except for the menacing presence of Jack Farquahar, she would have been completely happy.

Jack had called the day following her haughty dismissal of him. She had instructed Siddons to say, to all callers that Mrs. Ware was not at home that afternoon. It had previously been arranged with Farquahar that, when he received that message, it meant that Lila was unable to keep her appointment with him.

So she instructed Siddons with some malicious satisfaction. It wouldn't hurt to punish Jack for his hasty and offending words, she thought. He was entirely too unmerited and exhilarating. Once those very qualities had thrilled her; in Herbert they thrilled her still, because she loved him. But in a man for whom she had no longer the slightest sentimental interest, they were distinctly wearisome and annoying.

She was meeting Dorothy at a picture-gallery for an exhibition opening, and, the day being fine and full of the promise of summer, she walked briskly along the Avenue. At Fifty-Seventh Street she was forced to wait at the curb for the change in the flow of traffic. A voice spoke her name.

"Miss Lathan—Lila! Aren't you going to speak to me?"

She turned to look up into the face of Gilroy Holmes. Her heart dropped to the toes of her smart pumps. The inevitable meeting had occurred.

"I'm very glad to see you," he said soberly, taking off his hat. "I was, indeed, on the point of calling at your house."

She gasped. "You—you know then——"

His look of surprise warned her. Of course, he meant her father's house.

She corrected herself hastily: "What I meant to say was: you know that Jack has some absurd idea about our——"

He nodded.

"He thinks I did the rotten trick of courting you, after he was reported missing in France. I can't convince him otherwise. He refuses to listen to me, or to see me, any more. It distresses me very much. He was my best friend—I'm awfully fond of him."

"I'm sorry," Lila answered sincerely. "I've tried, too, to make him see how fantastic it all is. He overheard a woman friend of mine teasing me about—about a 'past' I had in France which—nonsense, you understand. It's really too foolish to explain. Somehow the name of Holmes got mixed up in it, and Jack leaped to conclusions."

"I see," said Holmes, who didn't see at all. "Well, please do what you can to persuade him. You can do it, if anyone can. He's as devoted to you as ever." He smiled a trifle ruefully. "May I come to see you sometime, or do you think that might lend color to Jack's suspicion."

"I'm almost sure it would," she said hastily, thankful for the excuse to keep him from calling at her father's house. "Good-by. It's nice to see you. I'm sure we'll meet again soon."

In her heart, she was praying that they wouldn't. They parted, going in opposite directions. Neither of them was aware that an Avenue bus, that had passed as they stood on the sidewalk was Jack Farquahar, who had just been refused admittance at the home of Mrs. Herbert Ware.

Farquahar's face grew red, pickled them out of the crowd. His handsome lips had tightened, and a dull flush of anger had crept into his tired, dark face.

Set Lila was turning him down for Gilroy Holmes! Instead of punishing her fiance at the home of her friend, she was parading the Avenue with his one-time closest friend, the friend who had betrayed him. It never occurred to Farquahar that the meeting between Lila and Holmes was a chance encounter; he saw it only as an unprovoked rendezvous.

And this was the girl who had pledged herself to him in Paris! Even also the girl who had engaged herself to another man, excusing her conduct by telling a cock-and-bull story of saving her father from financial ruin!

Something, thought Farquahar, hands and teeth clenched, had to be done—and quickly.

He made up his mind. He would go, without Lila's knowledge, and call on Mrs. Herbert Ware herself and enlist her aid in making Lila see how reprehensible her conduct was.

CHAPTER 44.
TRAPPED!

On the following morning Lila awoke with a curious sense of being at peace with the world. Afterward, she always said that that particular feeling was one she dreaded, because it presaged some new and terrifying happening.

This was the morning her maid-of-honor and matron-of-honor, Tony arrived shortly after her breakfast-tray had been taken away, and she gave herself over to their ministrations.

While Pelix dried and water-waved her bright hair, and Harie polished and tinted her finger-nails, Lila's thoughts were busy with her plans for the day. She had a luncheon-party, followed by a matinee. There was a tea, but she would cut it and receive Jack Farquahar, instead. It wasn't safe to expect him to a second refusal to see him. Then there was a dinner, the theatre, and a night club. A busy day and evening, she thought contentedly. She loved gaiety.

Just as Pelix was finishing Lila's coiffure, Dorothy arrived, looking crisp and fresh in a suit of gabardine and a red tam and old blue.

"Nobody would ever think you could be a flapper, if you had to," comment ed Lila, eyeing her with effimination.

"Must I look like a frump because I'm not a pampered doll with a strong man working for me?" laughed Dorothy.

She perched on the end of Lila's chaise longue and watched Pelix's operations with interest.

Lila glanced at it, gasped, and went deadly pale.

"Tell him that Mrs. Ware is not at home," she whispered.

Siddons bowed.

"Unfortunately, Madam, I have said you were in. You had given me no instructions, and the gentleman has called so often—"

"Tell him I'm engaged!" said Lila wildly. "Tell him——"

The maid's look of surprise checked her. Even Pelix was staring at her.

"Tell him my hair dresses is with me," Lila managed to say. "Ask him to excuse me."

The man bowed and left the room. Lila turned a white face to Dorothy. Without a word, she handed her the card.

It bore Farquahar's name and these words: "Will you forgive the unceremonious hour and request. I beg to see you on a matter of utmost importance to Miss Lathan and myself."

Dorothy's brows rose.

Our Winter Weather
A Trying Time for People With Weak Watery Blood

Canadian winter weather is a trying time for debilitated, run-down people. The close air of ill-ventilated rooms, lack of out-of-door exercise, the restricted diet of the season, all have their effect on weakened systems. There is always in such cases the danger of severe colds, attacks of influenza, or the still more dreaded pneumonia. There is no time of year, when a thorough course of rich, red blood is so necessary; and the one way to keep the blood rich and pure and thus avoid winter trouble is through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. If, unfortunately, you have fallen a victim of influenza, or other winter troubles, this same medicine will restore your health and strength. Among those who have proved the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is Miss Margaret Pearson, R. R. 3, Chatham. Miss Pearson had passed through a severe attack of influenza and pneumonia; "It left me so weak and run-down, that I could scarcely walk. Anaemia set in and I almost seemed as if I would not pull through the winter, as I grew so weak that the least exertion would bring on distressing pain. I was under medical treatment, but it did not help me. Then one day in our local paper I read an advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and decided to try them. By the time I had used three boxes I felt much better, and continuing the use of the pills it was not long before I felt better than I had been for The influenza attacked me. My rapid recovery surprised my friends, and when asked, "What did you do?" I would proudly say, "Not my doing, but Dr. Williams' Pink Pills." To me at least, the pills have been worth their weight in gold."

As a precaution against winter ills take Dr. Williams Pink Pills now. Not by dealers or druggists, or sent by mail at 50c a box by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BY-LAW NO. ——

A BY-LAW TO CHANGE THE NAME OF "WHARF STREET" IN THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE.

Passed the ..... day of ..... A. D. 1928

WHEREAS, the residents of Foster Ward have presented a Petition to the Municipal Council, requesting a change in the name of Wharf Street in the City of Belleville to St. Paul Street.

AND WHEREAS, it is deemed expedient for various reasons to change the name of Wharf Street in the City of Belleville.

THEREFORE the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville ENACTS as follows:—

1. THAT the name of "Wharf Street" which Street extends Easterly from Front Street to the intersection of South Foster Avenue in the said City, is hereby changed to St. Paul Street, by which latter name it will for the future be known, the reason for the change being that the present name "Wharf Street" is a misnomer by reason of not leading to the wharf and also St. Paul is the name of a very old Church located on said Street and also the change is desired by the property owners and the inhabitants who reside along the said Street and also desired by the Corporation generally.

2. THAT this Bylaw shall come into force and take effect from the date of the registration of the Certificate of the County Judge of the County of Hastings approving of the same and not before.

Mayor.

Clerk.

Read a first time in open Council, January 3rd, A.D. 1928.

J. Wilfred Holmes,
City Clerk.

IN THE MATTER OF the change of the name of Wharf Street in the City of Belleville to St. Paul Street.

Before His Honour J. P. Wills Judge of the County of Hastings.

APPOINTMENT.

UPON THE APPLICATION of the Municipality of the City of Belleville and upon reading the Consolidated By-Law, pursuant to the Statutes in that behalf.

I appoint Tuesday the 7th day of February 1928, at the hour of 11 o'clock in the forenoon at my Chambers at the Court House, Belleville, for considering the said By-Law and for hearing the advocates of the Municipality and those who may deem themselves aggrieved thereby and may desire to be heard.

Dated at my Chambers at the Court House in the City of Belleville this 4th day of January A.D. 1928.

J. P. Wills,
Judge.

JUDICIAL SALE

In the Supreme Court of Ontario

Pursuant to a Judgment of the above Court in this cause, there will be sold for sale at the office of the Local Master, in the Court House, Belleville, on Wednesday the 8th day of February, A. D. 1928, at 2 p.m. the following lands and premises, viz:—Lot 40 in 2 acres more or less, about 30 acres si which are orchard, being parts of the South part of Lots 13 and 14, and the South part of the West half of Lot 13, in the Third Concession of the Township of Murray, in the County of Northumberland.

Upon the said premises there is a frame house and barn.

The purchaser will pay 10% of the purchase money to me at or about the time of sale, the residue of the purchase money to be paid at sixty days interest, within 15 days, from the date of sale. In all other respects the terms and conditions of sale will be the standing conditions of sale of the Supreme Court of Ontario.

For further particulars apply to Mikel Alford, Barrister, Trenton, and Belleville, or H. J. Smith Esq., Barrister, Trenton.

Dated at Belleville this 11th day of January, 1928.

J. P. WILLS,
Local Master, pro tem. for the United Counties of Northumberland & Durham.

ALADDIN SCORES GREAT SUCCESS

Belleville Enjoys First Good Road Show In a Long Time

Belleville was treated to its first good road show in a long time last night at the Capitol Theatre when practically a full house greeted the English Pantomime "Aladdin," a musical comedy crammed with good music, catchy songs, beautiful scenery, lots of comedy and clever dancing and all presented with a really refreshing vivacity that took well with the large audience.

Every number was well received and the entire performance was one of merit from start to finish. Like many other English productions, the chorus had excellent voices, and were real dancers as well.

Miss Bertha Russell, playing the part of the boy Aladdin, scored a distinct success with the local audience. Her remarkable personality, a charming voice and a pleasingly lithe and graceful manner were characteristics which helped make her performance thoroughly enjoyable. Lee Lee Wong Twanky, Aladdin's mother, was just about as funny a character as could be found, and kept the audience in constant laughter. Another excellent comedian is Fred Wedgett.

The music throughout the play is appealing, many old-time ditties having been set to new and catchy tunes, the chorus singing had a certain style about it which makes it distinctively English in the usual musical comedy. The performance of these "English Dancing Rosebuds made a big hit with the audience last night.

The part of the Princess, played by Florence Cameron, was another favorite; Miss Cameron showed in several numbers that she has a splendid voice.

Some of the song hits are: "Oh, Georgie, do it again"—a great favorite; "There is only one boy"—a Boy Scout number; by Miss Russell. Miss Russell also sings "In a street of Chinese Lanterns." "Why, Because I Love Her" and "Sweet September."

The story of Aladdin deals with the famous lamp of Aladdin which settles all Aladdin's troubles.

Performances such as Aladdin will be welcomed back to this city; the theatre is a real treat to Belleville theatregoers and the management of the Capitol is to be congratulated on its efforts in bringing such a performance to Belleville.

A castle made of dry ice, which evaporates instead of melting, was exhibited recently at an electrical exposition in New York.

BELLE THEATRE

Names know throughout the motion picture world are listed in the cast of "The Country Doctor," which comes to the Belle Theatre on Monday.

Rudolph Schildkraut plays the title role and brings to the screen a technique gained through forty years on Europe's stage experience. The idol of pre-war Vienna and Berlin who interpreted the High Priest of the Temple in "The King of Kings" becomes a loveable, kindly rural practitioner — the family confessor of his entire community whose pathos and humor move one from laughter to tears and back to laughter again.

The kid stowaway of "The Yankee Clipper" — Junior Coghlan—enacts a prominent child part in this fine picture, while the "heavy" role is portrayed by Sam De Grasse, who has long been noted for his work in such characterizations.

Another veteran of stage and screen Gladys Brockwell, depicts an exacting mother role in "The Country Doctor," while Virginia Bradford is cast as her daughter in the ingenue lead. Frank Marston is seen in a juvenile role.

Louis Nathaux whose work in "The King of Kings" and Ruggles of Red Gap productions has been highly commended by critics, also is featured. Other members of the supporting cast include Ethel Wales, prominent character screen actress and Jane Keckley.

REGENT THEATRE

Lya de Putti, the beautiful brilliant Hungarian actress who created such a furore in "Variety," is featured in "The Heart Thief," a Metropolitan story of Hungary which will be the feature at the Regent Theatre on Monday. Joseph Schildkraut is leading man. Robert Edeson is seen as a nobleman in the production. The picture is said to be dramatic and thrilling. Charles Gerrard and Eulalie Jensen head the supporting cast.

MOTHER SUPERIOR DEAD

Toronto, January 14—After an illness of six weeks, Mother Christina Wilson, Superior of the Loretta Abbey for Girls here, died yesterday. She had supervised the abbey for more than five years and had been in the order 41 years, living in the order's community at Guelph, Ont., before coming to Toronto. She was born in Fergus, Ont.

MOVIES BOTHER YOU AT ALL?

I often give relief to cases where moving pictures are bothersome by supplying lenses that prevent harmful rays of light from entering the eyes. These lenses contain the correction of the patients errors of vision, if any, and may be worn constantly if necessary. If you are bothered in this way, it's ought to be good news for you.

LUTHERAN PASTOR'S WIFE DEAD

Waterloo, Ont., January 14.—Mrs. Beatrice M. Roberts, wife of Rev. C. E. Roberts, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, the largest church in Waterloo, died today at one o'clock in the Kitchener-Waterloo Hospital, following an operation a week ago.

The late Mrs. Roberts is survived by her husband, two sons and one sister.

The man who is always serious or always merry is but half a man.

You'll look for quietness in the new Ford and find it. Vibration in the engine is practically negligent. New final drive is exceptionally quiet; and the possibility of body noises greatly minimized. Belleville Motors will gladly demonstrate the new car and will enter your order for Spring delivery.

RECREATION BOWLING

Two league games were played at the Recreation Alleys last night, one in the ladies league and one in the men's junior league. In the ladies league the Ponies won four points from the Class, Miss M. Kemp and Miss Carmichael rolling the highest scores.

In the men's league the Quinte B's got away to a good start by winning the first game from the Maple Leafs by 197 pins, but in the second and third games the Maple Leafs came back strong and not only won those two games but wiped out the lead that the Quinte's piled up in the first game. High bowlers were T. Barrett and Keegan.

IS THERE A BABY IN YOUR HOME?

Is there a baby or young children in your home? If there is you should not be without a box of Baby's Own Tablets. Childhood ailments come quickly and means should always be at hand to promptly fight them. Baby's Own Tablets are the ideal home remedy. They regulate the bowels; sweeten the stomach; banish constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fevers—in fact they relieve all the minor ills of little ones. Concerning them Mrs. Moise Cabotie, Makamik, Que., writes: "Baby's Own Tablets are the best remedy in the world for little ones. My baby suffered terribly from indigestion and vomiting, but the Tablets soon set her right and now she is in perfect health." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25c a box from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Cook's Regulating Compound

A safe, reliable remedy that has been used by thousands of women for over 30 years. It will relieve in 3 days. Price $3.00 per box. Sold by druggists everywhere, or sent direct in plain wrapper on receipt of price.

SINICAL SADIE SEES

Only 11 more shopping months before Christmas!

A writer says that girls today do not use cosmetics more freely than their mothers did, but certainly appearances are against him.

ALL WET

Most everything today is artificial. Synthetic gin and rubber are the rage. Pretty faces are mostly superficial. This might be called the substituting age!

The things we buy are either what we think
Or else they're something else which looks the same;
It's better to be careful what you drink
Or you may soar aloft in ruby flame!

The hockey season now has just begun
With struggles waged on artificial ice;
We're not concerned with how the thing is done,
We see the games and think they're very nice!

But if inventors want us not to cry,
If they would keep from giving us much pain,
Then don't let any scientist ever try
To manufacture artificial RAIN!

AN INFREQUENT EVENT

An Englishman and two Scotsmen were sitting in a smoking-room when another Scot entered. "Ah, ha," said the Englishman, "another Scotsman has arrived!" "Weel," said the newcomer, smiling, "I don't see what you've got to complain about. We always treat the English natives well." "What worries us," said the Englishman, "is that you don't treat us often enough."

SOO DOCTOR ARRAIGNED

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., January 14 —Dr. W. H. Dudley was arraigned in police court today on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death on January 6 of Mrs. Mary Dominick. Death resulted, according to the evidence at the inquest, from peritonitis following an operation.

Dr. Dudley was remanded a week on bail of $10,000.

The whole world knows Aspirin as an effective antidote for pain. But it's just as important to know that there is only one genuine Aspirin. The name Bayer is on every tablet, and on the box. If this name Bayer appears, it's genuine and it is good. It is not! Headaches are dispelled by Aspirin. So are colds, and the pain that goes with them; even neuralgia, neuritis, and rheumatism promptly relieved. Get Aspirin—at any drugstore—with proven directions.

Physicians prescribe Aspirin; it does NOT affect the heart

Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada) indicating Bayer manufacture. While it is well known that Aspirin means Bayer manufacture, to assure the public against imitations, the Tablets will be stamped with their "Bayer Cross" trademark.

BOOKS

Suppose there were no books!
No books to read in cozy nooks!
No books to fill the hungry mind
And teach the art of being kind.

No books to while an hour away.
To link today with yesterday;
No books to charm us for a while
To bring a tear or lure a smile.

But there are books, praise God above!
If we have books and we have love
We can dispense with other things—
'Tis books, not crowns, that make men kings.

CANADIAN FARM LANDS.

"It is amazing the number of farmers who are trekking northward across the border to take up farming lands in Canada," says a writer in the Montreal Herald. They have realized that our Dominion offers better prospects than the United States to the farmer, and numbers of them are taking their stock and farm implements with them on their move to a new country.

Most of these farmers come from the middle western States and are settling in Alberta. They are typical farmers of the growing interest in Canadian farming land, which is sweeping Canada. Listen to what Roger Babson, American economic statistician, told an audience across the line: "If I were a farmer," said Mr. Babson, "I would not raise wheat in this country, where land costs $40 an acre but rather in Canada, preferably near Calgary where good wheat land not fifteen miles from the City Hall may be bought for $8 an acre." Canada is coming into its own!

"It has been left to Yugo-Slavia to furnish a humorous war memorial. This is to the mothers who gave their sons during the War. In Canada Britain and elsewhere we have had memorials to Navy, Army, Air Force, Red Cross, even Y.M.C.A., but the mothers have been overlooked. This sculpture is the work of Yugo-Slavia's greatest woman sculptor Ivn Despic, who declares that the memorial is intended not merely for her country-women, but for the mothers of all lands.

Let Me Tell You

Pianos should never be kept in a very dry overheated room, or they will soon go out of tune.

Aardvarks are to be found to have a new flavour if served hot. They should be heated in their own oil, then served on toast.

Add a handful or two of salt to a bucket of whitewash, as it makes it stick better.

A little lemon juice on your tooth brush will make an excellent substitute for tooth paste.

Hot soapy water to which a little ammonia has been added will remove tobacco stains.

To Clean Cooking Utensils

A good way to remove the taste and smell from utensils that have been used for cooking onions or other strong-flavoured foods is to scrub them thoroughly with dry coarse salt.

Tempting Carrot Dish

Give the children plenty of carrots during the winter months. Sieved carrotos mixed with a little flour or oatmeal, and seasoned with a little salt, may be fashioned into "pats" and fried in Cttan Aluminum Saucepan

To clean an aluminium saucepan that has been badly burnt pour in a little water and boil an ounce of soda. The burnt matter will rise to the top, and leave the saucepan quite clean.

The Useful Hairpin

If you lose your bodkin, try threading your ribbon, etc., with a hairpin. In knitting a hairpin is most useful to take off the stitches. Slip these on to the pin, and just see that the ends of that they hold together.

To Clean Visible Fat

White fat can be cleaned at home by rubbing it with equal quantities of whiting and powdered lump ammonia well mixed together. Leave the powder in for a day and then shaking it out rub the fur with hot bran and shake again.

TO Save Gas When Cooking

When ting glowing sparks are noticeable on the burners after they are lit, clean the holes with a stiff brush; do not poke them with a skewer or match. Be careful to turn the gas out immediately it is not needed. Do not let the flame come up the sides of kettles and saucepans, as this causes an unpleasant smell, and does not make them boil any more quickly. Use utensils which are suitable in shape and thickness. Avoid smells by keeping the inside of the oven clean, always wash a utensil in hot soda water after a joint has been cooked. Use aluminium as much as possible. In one of the patent king, with several compartments, a whole dinner can be cooked over one burner.

WINTER SPORTS IN THE HIGHLANDS OF ONTARIO

Now is the time to enjoy a wonderful week-end, or longer holiday if possible, at the winter resorts in the Highlands of Ontario. There is ski-ing, Tobogganing, bobsledding, skating, ski-jorring, snowshoeing, and nowhere could you spend a more enjoyable and healthful holiday.

Canadian National Railways have issued a folder "Winter Sports in Ontario" telling you where to go and how to get there, with particulars as to rates, etc.; and any Agent will be glad to furnish copy on request. [14, 21

CONSERVE OF CRANBERRIES

This is excellent to serve with meat or with cream cheese and biscuits.

To every pint of cranberries allowed twelve ounces of sugar, half a pint of water, one orange, two ounces of walnuts and two ounces of raisins. Pick and wash the cranberries, and cook them gently in the water until quite soft, rub them through a sieve, then put the pulp into a pan, add the sugar the raisins seeded and chopped, and the walnuts finely chopped. Simmer gentle heat until boiling, then add the orange juice, cut, it into very thin slices and chop it, remove all pips. Simmer for twenty-five minutes, then turn into pots.

G. K. Chesterton recently told the Whitefriars' Club that poetry was "good prose that rose to song."

WOMAN COULD HARDLY WALK

Mrs. Horn Tells how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health

Hamilton Ont.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and would not be without it now. I had a female trouble so badly I could hardly walk and I was all run-down and could hardly get around to do my housework. I would be tired before I got up and for four days at a time. I was told by a friend to try your Vegetable Compound. I did, and by the time I took two bottles I was beginning to get around again. I took ten bottles in all, and now I am all right again and can do my own work. I have six grown-ups to work for, so I have plenty to do. I also tell Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash, and I think it is good. But I owe my health to the Vegetable Compound, and I think if more of it was used there would be better off. I would not be without it in the house." — Mrs. NELLIE J. HORN, 808 East Cannon Street, Hamilton, Ontario.

Do you feel broken down, run-down and weak sometimes? Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is excellent to take at such times. It always helps, and if taken regularly and persistently, will relieve the condition. 6

THE MOON

Somewhere out of sight
The moon has risen again,
Looking in to-night
Through the window pane.
Above the slumbering trees
The moon has risen now,
Looking down she sees
The sleeping earth below;
Large and round and white,
The moon has risen again,
Looking in to-night
Through the window pane.

Many a night before
I looked for her in vain,
And she shall come again
When I am here no more.
Oh! she shall rise and wane,
On other nights than these
Upon the darkened lane,
Above the slumbering trees—
But not for me—for me
Through the window pane
Other folk shall see
The moon look in again.

—Phyllis Howell.

TWO WAYS OF LOVE

He brought her his hopes, his name, his life
He gave her his soul to keep;
To her he entrusted his whole heart's strife
But she lulled his thoughts to sleep.

She took what he offered, and dreamed it the due

Of her beauty, serene as the day,
And she glanced at the gifts with a shrug and a laugh,
And, laughing, went out to play.

And she saw no shame in the laughing game,
As she frolicked with playmates new
While the gifts, neglected, grew dimmed with time,
When once they had glistened like dew.

And always she laughed; yet she meant no harm,
But she could not comprehend
The depth of the love and the loyalty
Held in trust for her by a friend.

And her friend, the lover, who wished her well,
Waited with trust undimmed.
For the time when his lady would tire of play,
And be true to the picture he'd limned.

And he does not know, and she does not care,
That her heart is a fairy thing,
Thistle-down light, and changeful and bright,
A butterfly e'er on the wing.

So for ever she'll play, and for ever he'll wait,
Hoping blindly for half
Of the love which he shares with so many, and she—
She will but laugh, wait on, and laugh.

SEARCH GOES ON FOR MURDERER

Fiendish Crime Thought to Be Work of an Escaped Lunatic

Flint, Mich., Jan. 13.—Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Schneider, grief stricken parents of five year old Dorothy Schneider, kidnapped, brutally slain and her body dissected yesterday, spent a sleepless night at their home on the outskirts of Mount Norris, anxiously awaiting word from searchers who kept up an all night hunt for the fiend slayer.

One clue being followed was the report to the police by a State Creek truck driver that he saw a sedan, answering the description of the car in which it is thought the child's slayer escaped, in a ditch near Williamston last night.

Mutilated Body Found

Flint, Mich., Jan. 13.—The mutilated body of Dorothy Schneider, 5 years old, kidnaped from her home in Mount Norris, near here, yesterday noon, was discovered in a creek three miles from the Schneider home last night. The body had been dissected with a sharp knife, apparently a razor, Dr. H. Rissle, Coroner, who examined the body, expressed the fact that the deed was accomplished by an escaped maniac from the State hospital for the Insane at Pontiac. An extensive search hunt was begun immediately.

Returning From Kindergarten

The child was abducted at noon yesterday, a block from her home, as she was returning from kindergarten. The mother, Mrs. Mabel Schneider, aged 24, who witnessed the abduction, told the police the kidnaper drove up to the curb alongside the child in a dilapidated automobile, grabbed her and drove rapidly away. The mother, who had been standing on her porch awaiting the return of her daughter, ran screaming to the nearest police station where the affair was reported.

The kidnaper was described as about fifty years of age, medium height, complexioned, and wearing a light suit, dark overcoat. His machine was of the sedan type.

Many Get Back Young Appetite

Quick lunches, usually cold, gulped down so the "dinner hour" will not be over before you can do a little playing is the best way to ruin your stomach, and you suffer from indigestion, heart burn, bloating, nervousness, headache and, worst of all, you get thin, pale, and weak.

If you must eat that way, always keep a package of Page's Diapepsin handy so you can chew your meals. It keeps the food sweet so your stomach can digest it.

Follow the experience of thousands who again have a young appetite. All druggists recommend and guarantee Page's Diapepsin to relieve indigestion and sweeten the stomach in 5 minutes.

1928 PONTIAC SIX ON DISPLAY TODAY LOCALLY

All Previous Models Surpassed in Beauty, Power, Performance

The second "birthday anniversary" of the Pontiac Six is being marked today by the first public display in dealers' showrooms of the New Series Pontiac Six which is said to surpass in beauty, power and performance all previous Pontiac models.

The new Pontiac Six chassis with four-wheel brakes, Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers, gasoline pump, an entirely new type of radiator which prevents evaporation, semi-concealed lock, improved carburetion, crankcase ventilation, new cylinder head, higher compression, new clutch and steering gear, heavier frame and other mechanical advances, appears to justify the statement of the manufacturer that it is "new from radiator to tail light." Briefly stated, the company is offering infinitely "more car" at the same base price.

Although the new series has the same number of cars that comprised the 1927 line, two of the new models carry new types or bodies representing the latest advances in Fisher design.

The two new body types are the Sport Landau Sedan, The Two-Door Sedan, the Coupe, the Sport Cabriolet and the Sport Roadster again are included among the six body choices, but all have been completely re-designed and the new models carry the latest Fisher body creations, new Duco colors, new fenders, headlamps and many other refinements.

But the beauty of the New Series Pontiac Six is not "skin deep." Under that sleek new hood is an engine which develops 43 horsepower at 2,600 r.p.m., a substantial increase over the power of the previous Pontiac.

This greater power gives even better acceleration, while the new equalized and mechanically operated four-wheel brakes provide correspondingly sure and rapid deceleration. The front brakes are internal and the rear are external, a separate internal parking brake is provided on the rear wheels.

One of the outstanding pioneering features of the new car is a radically changed principle of engine cooling as embodied in the unique "cross flow" radiator, from which it is practically impossible to lose either water or anti-freeze solution by evaporation.

Among other important changes on the engine are the adoption of the new M-R cylinder head and the replacement of the conventional vacuum tank with a gasoline pump, two late developments both of which are pioneered by General Motors engineers.

The new O-M-R cylinder head developed by General Motors Research engineers, eliminates spark knock and roughness. It gives an impulse to the car comparable only to the smoothness of the steam engine and has also enabled the Pontiac compression ratio to be raised to 4.9 to 1. This is chiefly responsible for the increase power while retaining the same 186.5 cubic-inch cylinder displacement. Which remains larger than the displacement of any six cylinder car under $1,500.

The gasoline pump, operated from the camshaft, assures a proper supply of filtered fuel at all speeds.

The new design clutch may be shifted with even greater ease than the clutch on the previous Pontiac fives, requiring only a light pressure on the foot pedal, a feature especially attractive to women drivers. A new steering gear design of higher ratio and with burnished bronze bearings together with a new 17-inch wheel carrying fine gear grips on the inside of the rim has immeasurably improved steering ease, another factor of importance to women drivers.

A new semi-coincidental lock has been incorporated in the transmission. It is operated from the ignition switch by the switch key.

Besides combining the convenient foot-operated tilt-ray feature in the improved headlamps, a combination stop and tail light has been added, the powerful stop light being so wired that the driver may turn it on for use as a backing light.

Although the New Series Pontiac Six retains its former wheel base of 110 inches for ease of handling and parking, the car has the appearance of being considerably larger and more sturdy than its predecessor. This effect is achieved principally through the larger deeper radiator, surmounted by it's lustre and raising of the body panels, all combine toward an impression of flowing comfort and safety.

The New Series Pontiac Six is now on display at the showrooms of the McLaughlin Motor Car Company, Limited, Bridge Street West.

When Food Sours

Sweeten the stomach—instantly

About two hours after eating many people suffer from sour stomachs. They call it indigestion. It means that the stomach nerves have been overstimulated. There is excess acid. The way to correct it is with an alkali, which neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

The right way is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia—just a tasteless dose in water. It is pleasant, efficient and harmless. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

It is the quick method. Results come almost instantly. It is the approved method. You will never use another when you know.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any druggists.

INSURANCE ACTION IS AGAIN DELAYED

New York, N. Y., Jan. 13.—Litigation over the insurance policies on the life of Albert Snyder, center of interest yesterday when it was threatened to delay the execution of Mrs. Ruth Snyder, today was adjourned to January 16th. It was on the basis of this action brought by the Prudential Life Insurance Company for cancellation of the policies totalling $27,000 that the brief stay of execution was obtained for Mrs. Snyder, only to have it withdrawn later.

LINDBERGH HALTS FLIGHT TEMPORARILY

Panama, Jan. 13.—Col. Chas. Lindbergh who will not take off before tomorrow on his nine hundred mile flight to Caracas, Venezuela, enroute to Havana, was standing by at Prince Field, Colon, to-day for news of the progress of Dieudonne Costes and Joseph Lebrix, French aviators, whose non-scheduled stop was at Panama. Col. Lindbergh probably will cease loitering to meet the French fliers, it was stated to-day.

TOM ASKED TO PAY DAUGHTER'S BILLS

Los Angeles, Jan. 13.—Tom Mix, motion picture star, was ordered to appear on January 20 to show reason why he should not pay $1,500 monthly toward the support and education of Ruth Mix, 16, daughter by his first marriage.

The petition was issued at the instance of Olive Mix, divorced wife of the motion picture actor. She said Mix paid only $50 a month to the daughter, although he had acquired an estate of $5,000,000 since 1917, when they divorced.

HAMILTON BANDITS COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

Hamilton, Ont., Jan. 13—Reginald Johnston and Fred Watson, Toronto and John Gordon, Hamilton were committed for trial to-day on three counts holding up by violence and stealing $23,000 from the local branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce on Dec. 27th, stealing a car, the property of L. Burns, Toronto and being in possession of a car valued at more than ten dollars, which they knew to be stolen.

Gordon and Watson pleaded not guilty and elected for trial in higher court, while Johnston reserved plea.

LOCAL FIRESTONE SHOP RECEIVES FINEST EQUIPMENT IN E. ONTARIO

Belleville Vulcanizing Will Instal Full Firestone Equipment

An announcement of interest to every motorist in the city of Belleville and District was made today by Mr. George Deline, proprietor of the Quinte Vulcanizing Company, local agent for Firestone Tires. It is to the effect that within a month Mr. Deline, through the cooperation of the Firestone Tire Company will install in his shop on Front street, next to Queen's Hotel, the complete Firestone method of Vulcanizing and Tire Re-Building equipment worth some thousands of dollars and which when installed, will collut the only equipment of its kind in use in Eastern Ontario.

The announcement was made following Mr. Deline's return from a trip to the Main Plant of the Firestone Tire Company at Akron, Ohio, four days was spent by Mr. Deline in Akron inspecting the plant etc., and the entire journey and stay in Akron was made entirely without expense to the local Firestone dealer, he being the guest of the Firestone Company throughout. While in Akron Mr. Deline completed arrangements with the company for the securing of this modern and complete tire re-building and vulcanizing equipment mentioned above. A tire expert from Akron will assist in setting up the equipment, and will remain with the Quinte Vulcanizing company throughout the coming summer, to instruct the members of the local firm in the details of the work which will be undertaken and to help with it.

That this equipment should be provided the local concern by the Firestone Company might at first glance seem strange; why you ask, should the Firestone Company so assist in making this plant the most up to date in Eastern Ontario? There's a reason enough at that, for it may surprise you to know that during 1927 George Deline of the Quinte Vulcanizing Company actually led all Firestone Dealers in the Province in point of volume of sales. This local dealer actually sold more Firestone Tires during the past year than any other dealer in all Ontario. Truly, an enviable record, so little wonder that Firestone should support the firm which pushes its product to this extent. And at that, Mr. Deline is looking forward to a record Firestone year during 1928.

Regarding the tire equipment of the new Pyod, Mr. Deline states that from information which has reached him, it would not surprise him to find the Firestone Tire as standard equipment on the new cars.

Belleville is fortunate to have such a progressive firm as Firestone, too, must be congratulated on having such a wide-awake dealer as Mr. Deline in Eastern Ontario.

MR. GEORGE DELINE
local Firestone Dealer, who in 1927, sold more Firestone Tires than any other Ontario dealer. He is now installing complete Firestone Tire Rebuilding equipment.

HOMEMADE LOAF BY TARLINGTON BIG FAVORITE

Makers Of Popular Cakes And Pastry Bake Good Bread

Have you tried Tarlington's Homemade Bread? After achieving an enviable reputation as bakers of all kinds of cakes, pies, doughnuts and fancy pastry, Tarlington's, a short time ago, decided to branch out into the bakery of a type of household bread that would be really "home-made" and which, they naturally expected, would find the same favor among discriminating women, as had their line of cakes, etc., in the past.

That was two or three months ago, and checking up results, this really modern bakery finds that it's new product has enjoyed an ever-increasing demand. And this for the same reason that their other lines are being used by so many because it is made of purest ingredients by expert bakers who know how to make bread with that old-time homemade flavor that mother used to make, and again, because it is sold in spick and span surroundings, with cleanliness and purity the constant aim of the management.

Little wonder then, that Tarlingtons' new homemade bread is finding the same favor as their pastry. And, by the way, during the winter months, when one might expect the average woman to spend a little more time in the kitchen doing her own pastry cooking, Tarlingtons cake and pastry business has shown no decrease, but has kept steadily increasing, an indication that even in wintertime people prefer to buy their pastry rather than go to the trouble of baking.

So next time you're down street, drop in to Tarlington's and get a loaf or two and let the family try it. They will like it, and you'll soon be back for more.

The largest number of articles deposited in one day was 1,229. Six hundred and ninety-six umbrellas, or gamps as they are known here, were found in one day. The articles deposited ranged from a baby's shoe to jewelry worth many hundreds of dollars.

REALLY SERIOUS ICE SHORTAGE THREATENS HERE

January half over and not much prospect of many ice dealers of the city being well supplied for summer's needs in 1928. Report says that the ice on the bay is just about six inches in thickness—hardly enough to make the local ice dealers enthuse, and at a time when ice cutting on the Bay of Quinte should be well under way.

Which makes one reflect on the advantages of an ice plant such as Graham's is to a city. Should the present mild weather continue, scarcely a probability, and yet possible, as old timers hereabout report some "winterless" winters in the past, and who know but that the present one shall turn out to be one of those. The frost is practically out of the ground, and golf enthusiasts are able to make complete rounds of some of the nearby golf courses this week, to mention nothing of our open highways and singing birdsong.

And if it continues, what will the ice situation be next summer? Looks as if Graham's will be the one place where we'll be able to get it. The other dealers who depend on ice formed by natural methods will have to import some, we presume, to take care of their customers and we imagine, too, that the price would thus be made prohibitive, for it looks as if it would have to be brought a considerable distance, with our balmy winter extending a few miles.

However—the ice shortage won't affect Graham's—not even a little bit—for they made their ice as they use it, and can make enough to supply the whole city if necessary. Their customers are not worrying, for they know that they can always get good hard ice at any time, at prices actually cheaper than other ice, so it looks as if Graham's will be called on to supply an even greater volume in their list of customers during 1928.

FREED - EISMANN RADIO POPULAR IN BELLEVILLE

Quinte Electricians Now Local Agents For This Receiver

Day after day we find retailers in this city adding new lines of receivers and the Quinte Electricians on Coleman street now selling the Freed-Eismann Radio a line embracing both battery and batteryless models.

Devotion to quality idea has gained for Freed-Eismann, the only Gold Medal ever awarded an American radio at a Paris International Radio World's aFir.

Beautiful cabinet designs in various models add to the extraordinary value of the Freed-Eismann receivers; any one of these Coleman Cabinets will add to the appearance of the home, and excuse, as well, a radio receiver of unsurpassed tone, quality, volume, selectivity and range.

Have Quinte Electrician, Electrical Contractors, of 274 Coleman street, give you a demonstration of this remarkable machine.

Star performance, incomparable reception, new Period Models and other startling innovations are features which mark the introduction of the Splitdorf Radio Receiver, sold locally by City Battery Service. Like most other lines at present the Splitdorf may be secured both in battery and batteryless models.

The Splitdorf is renowned for its wonderful sensitivity and selectivity which make it a star performer under all conditions; supreme tonal quality that marks a revolutionary advance in radio reception, and for its new conception of beauty, expressed in cabinets of authentic period furniture design.

Here mention of Splitdorf calls up a picture of a far flung organization with a back-ground of resources and marketable machine.

This firm is the manufacturing subsidiary of the Radio Corporation of America, the General Electric Company, the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company and the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. This alliance of powerful interests invests every Splitdorf owner with perpetual rights to all of the advantages of connection with five of the major organizations in the radio field.

In the final analysis this means that you can accept Splitdorf's latest innovations at their face value—that you need not look beyond the name to obtain full assurance that the Splitdorf

FOXBORO WIRING WORK DONE BY LOCAL CONCERN

The village of Foxboro has been the scene of a great deal of activity lately along the line of electrical wiring work Practically the whole town has been wired, or will have been wired, when the work has been completed, and all this within a period of a few months.

As a matter of fact a great percentage, nearly ninety per cent., of this electrical wiring work in Foxboro has been done by one local firm. And one no so long established in business either. This firm is W. H. Oliphant of Bridge Street East, which in the few short months since its establishment has achieved quite a reputation for the excellence of its wiring work.

The success of the firm to date is ample testimony of the kind of work being turned by by W. H. Oliphant, and augurs well for the future of this new business.

This firm executes electrical work of all kinds at reasonable prices.

Radio you buy today is among the most advanced equipment you can select.

DRUNKEN DRIVER PHONED POLICE

Liquor Bill was $130.00 for 2 Months — Given a Week

PETER FELL AGAIN

Indian's Permit Suspended Saturday But He Got Another

John Barleycorn held away in the local police court today. Five sad-looking men who had indulged too heavily over the week-end, one of them getting into an automobile accident while he was drunk, and two more being second offenders, lined up before Magistrate Mikel this morning.

Peter J. Regis, Iroquois Indian from the Province of Quebec, was fined $15 and 8 costs in police court on Saturday morning and his permit was suspended by the Magistrate with the recommendation that it be cancelled. Peter was distinctly "peeved" at having his only means of obtaining firewater taken away from him and left the police station vowing darkly that the police would hear from him shortly after he had taken the matter up with the proper authorities. The police did hear from him shortly—very shortly!

Peter had no sooner left the police station than he went to the local liquor store and took out another permit, under the name of E. E. Scott, and proceeded to get exceedingly drunk again. On Saturday afternoon he was picked up by the police and this morning was sentenced to two months in jail by the magistrate.

"Do-est you'll have to walk until you get out from jail to take that matter up with the Privy Council," His Worship stated in a sarcastic voice. But all thoughts of doing this have left Peter's mind by now, and he will not "let the police hear from him" after he has completed his little sojourn on the "Hill."

Drunk Driving

William Shepherd, 471 in a minor accident on Saturday evening and collected the police about it. When they arrived they found that Shepherd was in a distinctly intoxicated condition. This morning he appeared before Magistrate Mikel and pleaded guilty to a charge of drunk driving a car, and was sentenced to seven days jail. His counsel, Mr. Jack O'Flynn, pleaded for a suspended sentence, but His Worship did not see how he could possibly make an exception in this case. Shepherd, who runs a trucking business in the city, has bought approximately $120 worth of liquor in the past two months. Sentence was deferred until tomorrow so that the accused might have time to straighten up his business.

Old Offender

Robert Gibson, of Belleville, appeared before Magistrate Mikel this morning on notice from the police in charge of intoxication. This is Gibson's second offense under the Liquor Control Act of Ontario, and he received a sentence of five months in jail, with the distinct understanding that if he came back again he would "get the limit."

THOUSANDS PAY SILENT TRIBUTE AT GRAVESIDE OF GREAT WRITER

Royal Family Represented, Galaxy of Famous People Present

London, Jan. 16.—With modern ruthless simplicity, yet ancient pomp, the ashes of Thomas Hardy were laid away today, beside the grave of Charles Dickens in the poets corner of Westminster Abbey. The ceremony took place this afternoon and great men of the political kingdom and the kingdom of letters, gathered with a thousand others to pay their last tribute to the man who was a leader in the world of fiction.

A gathering of famous men such as has not been seen in many years beforehand the casket when the hearse bearing the ashes of the famous author into the opening beneath the floor. Across the doorway were the Prime Minister, Right Hon. Stanley Baldwin, former Labor Premier, Right Hon. Ramsay MacDonald, Sir Edward Elgar, Sir James Barrie, George Bernard Shaw, John Galsworthy, Sir Edmund Gosse, Lawrence Housman and the representatives of the King, the Prince of Wales and the Duke of York.

The words, loudly heard, sat in the poets' corner, low hall an hour before the service started, reflected upon the dignified calm the service placed over which was accompanied the ex act from the altar to the heart of the poet's corner. Great words valiant sin and the glory of God, were sung and hundreds of these devoted to the great, possibly something of the spirit of Hardy.

Hurt in Wrecks

Dorchester, Eng., Jan. 16.—While the great and famous assembled in Westminster Abbey to honor the memory of Thomas Hardy, his own countrymen of Wessex paid simply tribute at a memorial service here today and at Stinsford Village church. While the great men of Britain carried Hardy's ashes to their final resting place in the Abbey, the Vicar of the village carried his heart encased in a bronze casket to where it will repose in the grave of his first wife, under a great yew tree.

LADY BAILY IS CHOICE WITH COL. LINDBERGH

SAVE HAUNTED KIRK

Tam O'Shanter's Kirk Will Be Preserved for the Nation

London, Eng., Jan. 16—"Auld Hawden Kirke" of Alloway, Ayrshire, Scotland, famous as the scene of the adventures of Robert Burns', "Tam O'Shanter" has been saved from decay and possible collapse. Capt. Edward Croton, Unionist Wales resident of London, was shocked at seeing the state of ruin into which was the church had fallen and appealed to King George. The King has the building listed as an "ancient armament under a permanent state of protection" and thus ensures its safety.

POLICE NET FOR CHILD'S SLAYER

Suspects Picked Up At Various Points Are Later Released

Flint, Mich., January 16. — Army aeroplanes, Michigan State Police and authorities of the entire middle west today had joined in a systematic search for five men who kidnapped, slew and mutilated five year old Dorothy Schneider, near here last Thursday. Suspects arrested in Detroit, Buffalo, Grand Haven and other cities were released yesterday while state and city police and members of the race county police force continued to check scores of "tips" which have been sent to headquarters established here.

County officers early today picked up a man minutely answering the description of the slayer at Emmett, near Port Huron, Michigan, and are holding him for investigation.

RAISES GREATER ISSUE IN BRITAIN

London, Eng. Jan. 16.—Canadian Press Cable — The daily news, one of the chief organs of non-conformity in Great Britain, which showed a favorable attitude towards the new book of Common Prayer of the Church of England before its rejection by the House of Commons following its adoption by the House of Lords says it is steadily growing more evident that the vote of the House has raised an issue far wider than the domestic of the new book. "Failing in the country now numerous it may be possible of opposition to "Anglo-Catholicism in particular and Roman Catholicism in general," the News declares.

SLIPPERY ROADS CAUSED TROUBLE

Belleville Car Ditched Returning From Toronto. After Fight

ONLY MINOR HURTS

Crashed into Rear of Corbyville Truck When It Stopped

Messrs. Walter Exley and Oliver Whitten who are connected with the Quinte Breweries received minor bruises when the car in which they were driving from Toronto turned over on the highway near Whitby early Saturday morning. The latter gentleman who had attended the Larry Cotton-Humbeck fight at the Coliseum, Toronto, were returning home when on the slippery road the car heavy ice-covered to skid and plunged head-on into the ditch on the right side of the road.

The men narrowly escaped serious injuries from the flying glass from the windshield. The radiator and fender plate in the car was shattered. Whitten was riding in the rear seat still-ly as a chance. The radiator and fenders were damaged to some extent. The car, on which $1,000 of car is damaged. The driver was on his way to work at Corbyville.

Both Cars in Ditch

Mr. Simeon Fox, County Road Supt. of Belleville, his wife and daughter, Dorothy, and Miss Marabeth Smith, of Madoc, were all more or less shaken up and bruised when the car in which they were driving crossed into the ditch on the Trenton Highway, near the Canadian Cross-road, at six o'clock, Saturday evening.

Mr. Fox was proceeding north and another motorist whose name is unknown, met the Fox car head-on, the two front wheels locking and sending the automobiles into different directions. The other driver was coming south and stated that his vision was impaired through a reflection of the sun in the wind-shield. Mr. Fox crowded over to the right side of the road but the sudden appearance of the approaching car was him until it was too late to avoid a collision. Both cars were not been seen and were towed to the city for repairs. Mr. Fox's car had a front wheel on the left side of the road while the other motorist cut diagonally across in the opposite direction.

Hindu Prince has Heart Attack of a Different Nature

Nadras, India, Jan. 16—A member of the staff of the former Maharaja's of Indore intimated today that the marriage of the former ruler to Miss Nacy Ann Miller of Seattle, Washington might not take place. Arriving here enroute to Indore, he said the Hindu and the United States girl were still at Nuwara, Eliya, Ceylon and that the former Maharajah was suffering from a heart attack. It might take a fortnight to recover and then he would go to France where he owns considerable property.

ST. LAWRENCE IS A PUBLIC ASSET

Deputation Urges King Government to Preserve It For People

Ottawa, Jan. 16.—Problem of the St. Lawrence waterway was the biggest which the Government of Canada would have to face for some years and was a very necessity for giving it the closest consideration before any action was taken, was the keynote comment of the Prime Minister today when a delegation representing the Associated Boards of Trade of Ontario met the cabinet and presented a number of resolutions urging upon the party the urging the Government to "Proceed without unnecessary delay to make appropriate arrangements for the early construction of the waterways."

Another resolution "Hoped that the great navigation and water potential lies of the St. Lawrence would be preserved for the general people of the people. A later resolution declared it to be the opinion of representative business men in Ontario, that "Transference of any of the interests of the people of Ontario in the waterpower of the St. Lawrence to pass under the control of any private corporation interests or public interests other than the Province of Ontario on behalf of municipalities would be prejudicial to the best interests of this province."

Belleville Represented

G. C. Martin, of Hamilton, President of the Associated Boards of Trade of Ontario, led the delegation. In his introductory remarks, he congratulated the Government on the prosperity of the country due, he declared to the good government of Mr. Mackenzie King. A spirit of optimism ailed throughout Canada. The people were meeting their problems courageous sly and he continued to speak for future prosperity.

The delegation comprised, Mr. Martin, J. J. Duffuse, of Peterboro; Col. R. J. E. Graham; Belleville; Mr. Neil McNeil, Toronto; Lt.-Col. Kendall, General Mitchell, Mr. Burton, J. A. Bell, of Ottawa, and Secretary Marshall, of Toronto. Mr. Marshall is secretary of the Association.

BURNED TO CRISP BY MOLTEN METAL

Vocklitzen, Germany, Jan. 16 — A blast furnace in a Rhineland working exploded to-day catching a number of working men in a stream of hot metal. Six bodies early burned in a crisp were recovered and several men are missing. Sixteen men were seriously injured when the hot metal poured into the workshop.

600 MARINES TO JOIN FRONT LINE

Managua, Nicaragua, Jan. 16—Six hundred marines were moving forward today to reinforce their comrades shored there by the rebel general Augusino Candino, disembarked with aeroplane equipment and supply depots at Corinto, the reinforcements were taken directly from port to Managua by way of the railroad route. For military reasons, the destination of reinforcements and the number in various detachments into which they were divided were kept secret.

FALLS 35 FEET NOT MUCH HURT

Carpenter Topples off Roof Of Building While at Work

James Watson, of Toronto, a carpenter employed by the Foundation Construction Co., is in Belleville General Hospital suffering from internal injuries, received when he fell thirty-five feet from the roof of the fermentation building at Corbyville on Saturday afternoon at one-thirty.

Watson was employed by the Foundation Construction Company was engaged along with a number of other carpenters in putting on the roof of the new addition at the plant of the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company when he suddenly lost his balance and toppled from the roof to the ground below. Fellow-workers picked him up and rushed him inside as it was feared that his injuries were serious as he had landed on his back. The ambulance was called and Watson was brought to the hospital where a physician examined the man and pronounced no bones broken in the fall.

He was suffering from bruises and shock but it is expected that he will be able to leave the institution in the course of a few days. Other employees of the Foundation Company marvelled at Watson's narrow escape.

FIGHTING SHY OF BECOMING REEVE

Five Nominated But All Decline—Desoronto Council Not Complete

Desoronto, January 16. — Another nomination meeting has come and gone and still Desoronto is without a complete council. At the meeting on Thursday night five were nominated for the reeveship, fifteen for councillors, and three for school trustees. Up to the closing hour, 4 p.m. Friday no one had qualified for the position of reeve, and only four men qualified for councillors, where five men were necessary to complete the council. The school trustees go in by acclamation.

The councillors qualifying were: E. Roach, C. E. Argue, R. Geddes, C. E. Thompson. The mayor, L. G. Thurrien, and one councillor, Milton Hunt, were the only members of the board renomination meeting. The school trustees are W. Seals, W. Rowsom, E. Robinson.

And now the third nomination meeting will have to be held in order to elect a reeve and the one remaining councillor. It will take place in the course of the next two weeks but the date has not been fully decided upon.

TO-DAY'S THOUGHT

No evil propensity of the human heart is so powerful that it may not be subdued by discipline. —Seneca.

AN UPLIFTER

They do such things better in the Hedjas. Saoud, king of that country, being seized of a desire to improve the moral state of his subjects, forbids the use of alcoholic liquids, tobacco, perfume, silk garments, gold and silver ornaments, shaving the beard, usury, meetings of men and women, and gathering to bewail the dead.

It is an interesting list of prohibitions, but Saoud does not have to enforce his reforms by way of constitutional amendments or acts of parliament. It will occur to most people that they could do much better towards achieving their aims with the weapons in the hands of fanatic potentates for changing the habits of their fellow-men. Everyone has his or her—pet reforms, whether in the elimination of pest or toothpicks, public speeches or war but the number of these given authority over the beards of men and the perfumes of women is extremely limited. Probably it is just as well.

There would appear to be interesting fields for practical bootleggers in the Hedjas if King Saoud's subjects are sufficiently advanced in Occidental ways to resent uplift by decrees. A dealer in illicit rum who carried side lines of perfumes, safety razors and silk stockings should do well under the new dispensation.

A NEW PLAN

The interest which is being taken in British officialdom in the various schemes for the settlement of the surplus British population on Canadian farms must be encouraging to the immigration department of this country. The latest plan put forward from the British side is one which provides for the settlement in Canada of groups of ex-soldiers who have been unable to obtain employment in their own lines of occupation, but who have been trained in farm work, ready to be sent to this country to settle on the land.

This is apparently no haphazard scheme which is pre-doomed to failure. The reports of its details give hope that it will be beneficial both to the old country and to Canada. The fitness of the candidates is assured, for it is reported that out of two hundred applicants, only 37 were ableto attain the required physical standard. The successful applicants are being given an intensive course of training in modern methods of agriculture, so that they will not be coming as raw, inexperienced material to face a life of which they know nothing. They will have much to learn after they come here, of course, but the proposal to settle them in community groups of fifty has its advantages, in that they will not suffer keenly from separation from those of their own kind. Judging from the outline of the plan, it promises well, and if carried out as satisfactorily in practice as it promises in theory, then it will be a good thing for this country, in that it will bring a highly desirable type of settlers.

MORE AMBASSADORS

An exchange of ministers between Canada and France has been agreed upon, definitely, by the Canadian and French Governments, and Parliament is to be asked to provide for a Dominion Legation in Paris "at an early date." These, we take it, are more of the trappings of nationhood, tokens of that larger status which the Dominion now enjoys. Whether the step is a desirable one or not is something to be proved in the eating of the pudding. An exchange of ministers will not affect the existing relations between this country and the French Republic, those relations being of the friendliest, and if the gesture has no ulterior significance, no harm will be done elsewhere. The Canadian people may want to be informed, however, how far this new movement is to go, how many more ministers are to be sent abroad, and why. Close commercial contact with the United States was the reason given for establishing Mr. Massey at Washington. In the present instance, the Ottawa statement speaks of "the historic traditions which bind the two countries," and "the increasing importance of political as well as of trade interests of Canada in France and the continent of Europe as matters upon which more light should be shed, unless the reference it to this country's membership in the League of Nations. In any event the official statement needs consider able explanation in this particular As to the personal element present in the new development, there is no room for misgiving. It is intimated, unofficially, that the present Canadian Commissioner in Paris, Hon. Philippe Roy, will be the French consul in Montreal, the Baron R. de Viroelles, may be the two appointees. Both gentlemen have served their respective countries, as commissioner and consul respectively, for years, and with advantage to both countries. Each is familiar with his field, and has served in it with distinction and credit.

OTHER MEN'S THOUGHTS

The advice given by the Hon. John S. Martin, the Ontario Minister of Agriculture, that young farmers should pause ere they move to the cities, makes timely reproduction of the following paragraphs taken from an agricultural publication and entitled "The Urbanite": He fights for the privilege of being packed into subway, elevated and street cars like a lowly sardine. He battles with the best of them for six square inches in office building elevators. He jiggles his own tray of food in restaurants and eats it standing up. He walks up five flights of stairs to a miniature apartment. He is seen all over at night because of jostling crowds. He is manhandled trying to get into theatres and ball parks. He is bulldozed and robbed by taxi drivers. But—when he sees a picture of a farm, with endless stretches of rolling ground and a well-fed family in the foreground, pity welling up in his heart. "The poor hicks," he says. "What a life they must lead."—Brockville Recorder-Times.

A New York minister remarks that women are not so attractive today as they were in his youth. No, nor green apples or chocolate bon-bons either.—Ottawa Journal.

The English law may give a man the right to open his wife's letters. But it does not give him the courage. —The Passing Show.

INTO YOUR HEART

Wear no sadness, lovely lassie,
Let no tear be flowing
For that from your sunny hair
The gold is going.

He shall not wholly rob your eyes,
Old Time, nor steal your grace,
A loveliness of line and light
Endears your face.

And there is that within your soul
Beyond his miser reach.
We find it in the melody,
In the verse of your speech.

And mark the precious secret
About your gleaming hair;
The golden wealth is being poured
Into your heart, my dear.

THE PASSING YEARS

(From The Intelligencer of this day 30 years ago)

The sleighing got a new lease of existence this morning.

Shortly after 12 o'clock today Mr. C. F. Draycott, book-binder of this establishment had a narrow escape. While standing on a Front St. corner he was run into by a team and knocked down. Strange to say he was not at all hurt though picked out from behind the hind legs of the horses.

Mrs. O'Flynn, Bridge St., has returned from an extended visit to Madoc.

GUNMEN FIGHT AND THERE IS ONE LESS

Camden, N. J., Jan. 14.—Joseph Cannon, 31 described by the police as a Philadelphia gunman, was shot and killed in the club room Republican Club early to-day. Police arrested Joseph Devore, 28, and charged him with the slaying. According to police and several witnesses, the men became involved in an argument, Devor claims that Cannon struck him and that he shot in self defense.

JUST A JOKE

But Burglars Enjoyed The Real Laugh At The End

Camden, N.J., Jan. 14.—James McCormick's desire to play a joke on his wife cost him two hundred dollars' worth of jewelry. McCormick returned to his home last night and upon hearing the front door close thought it was Mrs. McCormick coming home and hid in a clothes closet. He waited until he grew impatient for his wife to discover his hiding place and started a search of the house for her. Several rooms had been ransacked, his watch and chain, two rings and a scarf-pin were gone.

Just Stories

King Edward VII was susceptible to amusing stories but was not himself a good raconteur, says Sir Sidney Lee in the new volume of his biography of the late king. But the late king told at least one excellent story. Shortly after the Boer War an English officer who had been shot through the head, was sent back to England to be trepanned by Sir Frederick Treves. Treves had to move the greater part of the officer's brains and did not conceal his fears that the patient would have difficulties in his profession, owing to the loss of nearly all his grey matter. "He's very kind of you, Sir Frederick, replied the officer, "to take so much interest in my welfare, but that God my brain is no longer wanted. I have just been transferred to the War Office."

—Samuae reports that wild geese on their southward migration have taken to stealing rides on freight trains. This shows intensity worthy of some of the domesticated animals that inhabit the famous town of Winsted, Conn.

The birds have been seen to alight in such numbers that the tops of the cars on the Herald tribune assume the "literally covered" with geese After resting themselves for a while they rise up and resume their swifter way by rail.

To the simple New York nature lover the question promptly arises: How do the wild geese know if the train is bound in the right direction?

—One Simon Machlouzo applied recently to the Swiss Banks, office of his accident insurance company for relief under the terms of his policy. He described his mishap as follows:

Q. What is the power capacity of this machine? A. One horse-power.

Q. Describe the nature of the injury. A. I was working at the rear end of said machine when it decided to extend the rear foot in a horizontal direction against me.

Throwing A Lot of Light on a Dark Continent

Africa as the "Dark Continent" No longer is the recent past. Remade pictures are no longer impossible in these days when international airmen are hobnobbing with the Poles and army flights and wireless telephones are linking up the Old World and the New.

Last year the first party of tourist adventurers to Africa left New York, and next winter six cruising ships will do as Africa includes in their itineraries will roll from that port. The Canadian Pacific Steamship "Empress of France," will leave this month for her scheduled South American-South African cruise, touching the West Indies on passant.

While Canadians were settling Canada, the South Africans were building blocks, and a visit to Rhode's grave in the Matopos Hills will recall his masterful daring in making peace with the Matabele in the very heart of their stronghold in these same hills.

Victoria Falls will also be visited and our adventurers will catch the spirit that abounds in "the smoke that thunders," of the native name for the Zambesi where the river, "at the end of the world," America's gold rush of '49 has its counterpart in the developments on The Rand, which the visitor to Africa will miss, but the diamond rush to the Kimberley mines in 1870 is unique. The first discovery was made by a trader, who picked up a bright-colored stone a child had been playing with. The story proved this a spectacular diamond and now at the mere mention of Kimberley the whole world visions "diamonds" in glittering beam. In barely forty years these mines have yielded $1,000,000,000 worth of the precious stone. Think of the joy of seeing rough diamonds come out of the earth and being able to buy them. This is a pleasure in store for next winter's adventurers to Africa.

Ostrich feather farms are one of the oddities of Africa described to thrill the heart of every feminine visitor and, wonderful to relate, Paris fashions are sent out by parcel post to Johannesburg and reach there before they come to Canada. However, there are still plenty of natives in their national garb, and tatting drums and fuzz war dances to be seen and heard. In fact, the war dancers are a feature day morning institution in the kraals, at the mines and are encouraged by the owners as an antidote to labor troubles.

Women's News and Views

SELF-SUFFICIENCY SEEMS IMPOSSIBLE

By LOUIS E. BISCH

Few women will admit that they do without the help of men. Woman's growing self-assertiveness carries with it the ideal of complete independence upon the opposite sex.

This is not a natural trait in woman, however, nor is it a wise one. Woman cannot so easily throw her dependence overboard. Centuries of cooperation with man, often subjugation to man, will not pass out of the picture because woman wills it so, or because recent laws placed on the statute books bring her closer and closer to an absolute equality of rights.

For the truth of the matter is that, woman is happiest when she is dependent. I have yet to find a woman whom I considered as flourishing best because of her independence.

Woman can do without man economically. But she cannot do without man physically, emotionally and socially. Women can earn their own livings. They can find good jobs, well-paying jobs. They can even find work that is to their liking, that they actually enjoy doing.

But what woman is happy if she works, stays by herself, shuts the society of men, never permits herself to become interested in men, never allows them to rouse her emotions?

One sometimes hears a woman boast of such existence. But the chances are a thousand to one that she is only pretending, that she is defending herself, that deep down she would like very much to be different.

All women are potential mothers and that is a fundamental and relentless urge they can never wholly get away from.

Men must of necessity be considered in the family relationship. Women may seem so far as to believe she hates men, the instinct of motherhood which makes them love them. Her must surely belie her convictions.

Then again, every woman has a father and every woman was dependent upon him. That was a relationship she could not possibly get away from as a child. The father supported her brothers and sisters likewise dependent upon the man of the house. She grew up, therefore, feeling that it is no disgrace to have a man look after a woman.

Her adult years may have brought about a change in her economic status. She may have been compelled to go to work either to support herself or to help support the family. Nevertheless, the emotional attitude toward man still remained. That is something that neither time, nor change, nor principle completely eradicates.

Furthermore, woman's characteristic indecision also makes her tend to depend upon men. A woman begins life respecting a man's opinion and welcoming his advice. Sometimes she loses that respect because she has met men whose counsel was bad.

But by far and large woman recognizes how intuitive her own judgments are how much she allows feeling to enter into them. She also realizes that her experience is limited as compared to a man's.

Woman is really happiest when her dependence and apparent helplessness attract man. She likes a man who is strong mentally and physically. She not only does not mind being guided by such a man; she actually glories in it.

To allow a man to take care of her, to provide for a family, to attend to necessary and annoying money matters takes a burden off her shoulders.

Woman has so many other distinctly feminine interests—clothes, love, play, dainties and fineries, domestic pursuits to which she would much rather devote her time.

It seems a pity that his desire to become somewhat less dependent upon man—a logical and praiseworthy desire too—should so often develop into a veritable obsession for absolute independence.

Why not accept a man's assistance? Is not man more independent upon woman than woman is upon man?

Advice to Girls

By Anne Laurie

DEAR ANNE LAURIE:

I have been going with a boy of my own age for almost ten months. He said he loved me but about three months ago he broke some dates with me and went with another girl. We are not engaged but we promised each other not to go with anyone else. I forgave him and he broke another date. We have been going together since but he seems different. He says he still cares for me, but he does not act it.

PEGGY.

PEGGY: Since you are not engaged I think it was most unwise of you to make such a promise. I would advise you to break off the affair with your friend and explain that you do not wish to hold him to this promise and that you are entitled to the same privilege of going out with others. It is possible that his changed attitude is due to the fact that he feels he is not being fair in going out with others. If you hold him to this promise and that you make it clear to him that you do not wish to bind or restrict him in any way it may have the desired effect and you can again be good friends. I would advise you to make new friends and renew your relationship with your other friends. Do not let depend entirely upon him alone for your good times.

DEAR ANNE LAURIE:

I have known a young lady for five years. During that time I have only taken her out three times. This young lady told me of my faults one day, and, summed up, they spell "lack of social intellect." I thanked her for telling me, and was happy in the thought that she took enough interest in me to see faults. A few days later I called her on the phone and her ears were surprised me. She told me not to call her again and hung up. I desire this girl's friendship and would appreciate any help you will give me.

FISHERMAN.

FISHERMAN: Obviously this girl is not interested in you as you are. Perhaps she is waiting or you to correct the faults that she called to your attention and if she was right in her opinions you might profit by her choice If you are interested in gaining her friendship you will surely have to change. her reaction to your call proves that. And the decision rests with you. I cannot advise you, as I do not know just what these changes involve. I should think you would yourself wish to improve your social ways, however, if you desire that you attempt it and then call this girl again when you feel that you have enough in common to warrant her interest.

DEAR ANNE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my late teens. Last year while attending school I became acquainted with a young man of my age. We kept company for a short time, then he abruptly stopped calling on me. Some time passed and he explained his absence and we were friends again until I left to visit in a nearby city. When I returned there was no letter from him and I have never since heard of him. What shall I do?

BROKEN HEARTED.

BROKEN HEARTED: I am afraid that this boy is not very much interested in you, my dear, and I would advise you to face that fact and change your attitude accordingly. It is possible, however, that he has been taken apart a many people do; or he may have had a change of heart. In any event, I would advise you to concentrate about the best of interest but cultivate new friendships and interests that exclude all thoughts of him.

IF BACK OR KIDNEYS ACHE DRINK WATER

Drink Freely and Often to Flush the Kidneys, Also Take Salts

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headaches, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids; to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's poisonous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acids of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

A SUITOR TOO MANY

By MILDRED BARBOUR

"What to do?" she murmured.

"I can't see him—that's all. I won't see him," cried Lila hysterically.

"But, Lila——" Dorothy began, but she glanced at Felix and stopped.

Lila clenched the hair-dresser.

"Thats sufficient, Felix. I'll finish it myself."

When the door had closed after the man, she looked at Dorothy.

"What were you going to say?"

"I was going to remind you that it was not—Lila Latham whom Captain Farquahar wants to see—it is Mrs. Ware! And he will continue to call until he sees her."

Lila stared at her.

"Oh, Heavens, she whispered "whatever shall I do?"

Dolores returned at that moment.

"The gentleman asks that Madam appoint a time, as he is most anxious to talk to her."

There was a dread silence, during which Siddons stood motionless, with the mien of a Chinese idol.

Finally Lila said quietly: "Tell" Dorothy looked at her.

"You'll have to see him for my," said Lila briefly.

"You mean—make your excuses," asked Dorothy.

Lila shook her head.

"Go down——no Mrs. Herbert Ware" Dorothy stared at her. Lila's words were desperate. Only Siddons maintained his poise.

Lila turned to him.

"Tell Captain Farquahar that Mrs. Ware will receive him in a few minutes," she directed.

When he had gone, she, reached out and clutched Dorothy so fiercely that the latter winced.

"Don't you see? There's got to be a Mrs. Herbert Ware. He'll get suspicious, if I keep putting him off. Go down and say you're Mrs. Ware. See what he wants, promise him anything only, for Heaven's sake, get rid of him."

Dorothy rose, with a shrug.

"All right. I'll do it for your sake. But, I'm not crazy about the role."

"Take off your hat," directed Lila desperately. "Look as if you were at home." Then, suddenly, "Use your own discretion."

Very reluctantly, with tugging feet, Dorothy went to the door.

"I didn't even mean to meet him, Lila, but, since it's the best way to save you, I suppose I've got to go through with it."

She went out slowly.

CHAPTER 45.

A DANGEROUS MEETING

Jack Farquahar paced the drawing-room restlessly while he waited for "Mrs. Ware" to put in an appearance. He realized only too keenly that he had come, behind her back, to discuss her with her friend. But he was desperate. He felt that he must do something, find the truth about this bewildering situation, or go mad.

But to call on an old-lady, a semi-invalid, according to Lila, at this hour of the morning moreover, a lady he had never met—was going to rather reckless lengths. And he had insisted on seeing her, even when she had first refused him! He paused at a window. The opening of the door brought him up short. He turned abruptly. "The room was rather dark, for the main street into which he had been staring. He caught, at first, only a vague glimpse of a woman's figure outlined against the door.

"I beg your pardon, I must ask your pardon for this outrageous intrusion," he was beginning—and stopped short.

He found himself addressing a slim pretty girl, a girl with candid, smiling eyes.

"I beg your pardon," he stammered. "I—I had asked to see Mrs. Ware."

"Yes," smiled the girl.

Her poise disconcerted him.

"Is it possible for her to grant me a few minutes?"

"Yes," said the girl again, and added: "What is it you wish to talk to me about, Captain Farquahar?"

Sheer astonishment robbed him of speech for a moment.

"You—you are Mrs. Ware?" he managed to say at last.

The girl laughed softly.

"You seem surprised, Captain Farquahar," she said.

"Lila—Miss Latham told me you were—are young and a—an invalid," he explained bewilderedly.

"Lila is fond of joking," said the girl gently. "Haven't you found that out?"

His mouth tightened.

"I seem to have discovered it only recently," he said. "I—I'm sorry! But while I've come to ask you, if you'll grant the request, to tell me——"

She motioned him to a chair and seated herself on a sofa near a window. The daylight revealed her youth and freshness, the fairness of her hair, the sweetness of her candid eyes.

"What do you wish to ask me, Captain Farquahar?" she said, in a voice that he found extraordinarily low and pleasant.

"You make me feel rather a cad, Mrs. Ware, when you put it that way. It's going to be harder than I thought to ask you questions about the girl I love, when she is not present. But the idea is this: must I wait until her father is recovered before I demand that she free herself from that forced engagement with a man she does not—I'm sure she can't care for? Is it really true that she is bound by this odious obligation? You are her friend, please tell me the truth."

"You haven't full confidence in Lila?" asked "Mrs. Ware."

Farquahar flushed uncomfortably.

"I try to trust Mrs. Ware, in my heart, I know I must have, or I couldn't love her. But, since my return, there have been so many strange incidents, such conflicting inciden ts, so much clandestine—I—I can't fit my pegs," Mrs. Ware. I don't lik- to be kept skulking in the background as if I were some one to be ashamed of. You must understand that. You have been kind enough to permit Lila and me to mess here in your house; I am grateful for your generosity, but—well, I'd prefer to tell her that myself. Lila and I are affianced. I want-to marry her, not next month, next week, to-morrow even.

"You with me to intercede for you, there's no need of secrecy."

"If you will." Surely you have influence with her, and I am sure that you can understand and appreciate my position. Won't you make her see that it's unfair to us both to prolong it?"

"You think I could succeed where you failed?" she asked, with a slight smile.

"I think you would succeed in anything you attempted," he answered absently, frankly.

He was thinking, subconsciously, that she gave him the impression of coolness and strength and dependability beneath her soft, pretty, fashionable exterior. He felt that here was one young woman who would never fail a friend or a sweetheart. Herbert Ware was certainly a lucky dog.

"After that flattery, I should hardly dare fail, Captain Farquahar," she laughed, rising. "I promise you to do what I can, but you must not be disappointed, if everything doesn't work out immediately as you wish."

"If only I have succeeded in enlisting your aid, Mrs. Ware, I am quite satisfied."

He took the hand she extended. It was small and cool and firm. He bowed over it, murmured his thanks for the interview she had accorded him, and was gone.

Dorothy stood in the middle of the floor, as he had left her. There was a curious expression in her pretty eyes.

CHAPTER 46.

A LITTLE TOUCH OF BLACKMAIL

Lila was waiting impatiently upstairs when Dorothy came back from her interview with Farquahar.

"Well?" she queried breathlessly. "How did it go? Do you think he suspected anything?"

Dorothy shook her head. She was looking strangely thoughtful.

"To be continued.

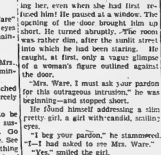

Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

A slice of bread in the doughnut box will keep your doughnuts soft and light.

A little soda or vinegar added to the water when meat is tough will soon make it tender.

In frying fish, roll in a little flour to which a pinch of salt is added to give the fish seasoning. The oil which may be heated to a higher degree than butter or fats without burning, and gives off less disagreeable fumes.

Tans frock has the solution, for it answers by being the one and looking like the other. The simulated bolero has become so popular this season as its original sister, and is so charming if not more so. Applied trimming bands in a scalloped outline suggest the bolero. Its two-piece circular skirt is attached to the bi-pedal repeating the scallops. With so many of our afternoon dresses this trimming is concentrated in the front. This is just the opposite. Here one can walk down the aisle of the theatre or dance the afternoon away knowing that one's costume is truly "different." For flower and ribbon bands look not either velvet to match the flower or darker shade of silk crepe, crepe de chine or crepe Elaine. If the dress is of silk, a satin crepe the reverse side of the material is used for the trimming bands. (Copyright, 1927, by Butterick.)

WHAT'S NEW

(From a Woman's Standpoint)

The return of cameos to fashion assures the revival of black, and there are beautiful new examples of old jewelry styles viewable in Paris shops.

In the Riviera resorts, the fore-runner of spring styles, many little felt hats, in straw and in sapphire blue from Horta Cap are seen, and "diamond" pins are practically the only trimming, but quite enough when used alone if you are seeking the essence of good taste.

Perhaps the revival of bemba colbrs has something to do with the new elaborate evening costumes. Jenny is taking the lead in showing dainty, bib-like collars of white georgette crepe on dark dresses, and they fall like formal fichus, with small jabot ends and make the perfect background for beautiful brooches.

Modern Music Makes Us A Healthier Nation

GUS ARNHEIM

Gus Arnheim Finds Effects of Dance Tunes Beneficial to Youth of Today

Los Angeles—Is dancing and our modern dance music making a healthy nation of us? Gus Arnheim, famous orchestra director thinks they are.

"With the growth of large cities, and the exchange on the part of millions of an urban for a rural life, dancing and golfing has completely taken the place of hazing and boxing," contends Arnheim.

That this is a change for the better Arnheim believes, is shown in the more equal muscular development of growing men and women of today. To the part general exercise dancing, golfing, they we make our pleasures, exercise. Modern household improvements have freed women from long hours of drudgery, and given them the time and energy to find exhilarating exercise in dancing and outdoor sports.

"The physical benefit is obvious," declares the orchestra leader. "Look at our younger generation of girls—you'll find few round shoulders, fewer scrawny backs. Glance at the young women in evening dress on the dance floor. Their backs are supple and the muscular fit on their bodies. This, I believe is due directly to the healthful exercise of dancing to the jazz of the day. Jazz develops the whole body harmoniously.

"Look, too, most of our music is joyous or humorous. Humorous lyrics always captivate dancers. I get requests every night for "Yes, We Have a Trick in Pekin' a Chick-Chick-Chicken," a new favorite. The music is great to dance by, and the lyrics have real humor. It brings laughter to the dancers and so far no dance floor has ever tired of it. The old, sad, sentimental songs made popular years ago, are dead. Dancers never really looked happy, only sickly sentimental. Modern music has put a new note in our lives and, I'm glad to say, a joyous note to health."

GENERAL MOTORS OPEN BIG PLANT

Closed for 4 Years, The Walkerville Factory will Resume Operations

TO MAKE TRUCKS

This part of Business Moved From Oshawa to Make Room

Windsor, Ont., Jan. 1—Industrial development in the Border Cities is expected to receive immediate impetus as the result of the announcement made Saturday that the large Walkerville plant of General Motors of Canada, Limited, which has been idle for four years will be re-opened at once.

Slightly more than half the plant is to be put into operation as soon as new machinery is installed, the major portion of the space to be used by the Truck and Coach Division of General Motors Products of Canada, Limited, who will manufacture there a complete line of General Motors trucks, bus bodies, and cabs. Other space will be devoted to offices and to the manufacture of front axles for Pontiac and Chevrolet cars.

H. A. Brown, vice-president and general manager of General Motors of Canada, Limited, authorized the announcement by long distance telephone from Oshawa. He stated that W. E. Davis, assistant general-manager in charge of operations, would arrive in Windsor to-day to supervise the installation of new machinery and equipment, with the intention of having the plant in production by February 1.

MAKE TRUCKS AT WINDSOR

"Mr. R. S. McLaughlin, President of General Motors of Canada, and myself have been anxious for a long time to get this plant open and provide needed employment for men in its vicinity. The entire manufacturing of General Motors Trucks is to be removed from Oshawa to Walkerville," said Mr. Brown, "which will provide more room here for expansion of other divisions."

The move was also being taken, he declared, owing to the rapid increase in sales of General Motors Trucks in Canada and the very large amount of space necessary for the manufacture of trucks.

The manufacture of truck and bus bodies, which has not been undertaken at Oshawa, will be carried on in the newly opened plant to the designs and specifications of Canadian engineers, it was learned, however, that H. H. Henchel, General Sales Manager of the Truck and Coach Division, with the sales and development staffs, will remain at Oshawa, in closer touch with General Motors officials.

Mr. Henchel's department has been making a study of the transportation problems of various types of truck users with a view of recommending to them the kind of transportation for their particular needs. The result is that General Motors trucks will be practically custom-built for each particular user.

TRIBUTES TO JUDGE

Cobourg, Jan. 16.—In the police court room Saturday under Judge E. G. S. Hooke, a final tribute was paid to the memory of the late Judge McGlade, whose death occurred here on December 25th.

Judge Hooke, in his eloquent and sympathetic manner, voiced the great loss the court had sustained in the death of his friend and colleague, Judge McGlade, a man whose gifted personality, courtesy and impersonal judgment would be greatly missed by all with whom he had come in contact. He extended to his bereaved wife and family the heartfelt sympathy of himself and his associates.

GIVEN JAIL TERM

Kingston, Jan. 16.—Found guilty by the Police Court on Friday morning of "keeping liquor for sale" in his home, Rose O. Brawley, of No. 6 Corrigan street, was sentenced by Magistrate Farrell to three months in jail.

The liquor permit of Brawley was produced and it showed that from Nov. 8th to Jan. 5th he had secured 234 bottles of beer and 21 bottles of whiskey.

WINS 2ND. PRIZE

Mrs. Fred Revell was informed that his home was in Verona, aware that he had visited Brawley's house about two weeks ago, and had been served with two or three drinks of whiskey and that he had paid for it at the rate of 30 cents per drink. Revell also swore that he had also been served with a quart of beer for which he paid 60 cents.

The charge was laid against Brawley by Provincial Officer Clubbe. C. R. Vicker conducted the prosecution and J. C. Reynolds was counsel for the accused.

INAUGURAL ADDRESS

Picton, Jan. 16.— In his inaugural address delivered before the town council on Friday evening, Mayor Fraser heartily congratulated the members of the council, particularly the old members, and lastened the new members. He also took the opportunity of leading to the election of the man who had thanks for electing him for major by acclamation for a consecutive years and assured them that his best efforts would be put forth in fulfilling his duties of the office. To those who had hitherto served he trusted they would realize their responsibility, find the work interesting, and that the town would receive much benefit from their service.

DEATHS & FUNERALS

SAMUEL MOON

Samuel Moon died at the home of his son, Wm. Williams, corner Victoria Avenue and Chatham Street, early yesterday morning in his 89th year.

Mr. Moon was born in Prince Edward County and came of old United Empire Loyalist Stock. The late Mr. Moon resided in Belleville for the past forty years and for the greater part of that time carried on successfully a grocery business here. He was a member of the United Church.

Surviving are one son, four daughters and one brother.

MRS. WILLIAM H. MOORMAN

All that was mortal of the late Mrs. William H. Moorman was laid to rest in the Belleville Cemetery on Monday. Vault on Saturday afternoon following an impressive service at the family home. Second Concession of Thurlow, conducted by Rev. L. M. Wight, of Holloway Street United Church, Belleville and assisted by Rev. Howard Sey mour, Shannonville.

The many beautiful floral tributes with the large attendance at the funeral acted as a silent evidence of the sorrow caused by the death of the deceased and the sympathy felt for the bereaved relatives.

The bearers were Messrs. J. Lynch, D. McDonnell, Alex. Milne, John James and William Donaldson.

KENNETH W. JURY

The funeral of the late Kenneth W. Jury who was drowned at Point Anne last week was held on Saturday from the home of his father in Point Anne, to the United Church of that place where an impressive funeral service was conducted by Rev. T. M. Eyamie. The interment was made at Deseronto with playmates of the deceased boy acting as bearers.

The many in attendance at the obsequies together with the wealth of flowers were mute testimony of sorrow and sympathy.

MRS. FRANK T. HILL

Many were in attendance at the funeral service held last evening in memory of the late Mrs. Frank T. Bell (Jessie Sarah Gerrard) at her home, 183 John Street, Saturday morning. Rev. Dr. F. E. Malott, Minister of Bridge Street United Church, and Rev. Mr. McCutcheon, of the Tabernacle United Church, officiated at the impressive service. There were also a wealth of beautiful floral tributes.

The services were conducted early this morning to Beaverton for interment.

MARRIES THIEF FOR ATMOSPHERE

Author Believes Wife Will Be Fund Of Information

New York, Jan. 9—Young Nelley Lucas made further confessions today in connection with his reported engagement to the 61-year-old kleptomaniac, once known as "Chicago May" Churchill, star of the underworld. Mr. Lucas now says his first "confessions" were false, that he is not the Raffles nor the beguiler of duchesses that he has painted himself; that he has never served terms in British reformatories; that he has not as much as been up for juvenile delinquency; and that he has written his five volumes of confessions (three in preparation) altogether out of a conscience void of offense.

"I don't know just how my public is going to take the acknowledgment that I have never actually done any of the things that I have confessed, but I could not stand the way they stared at me and snickered when I came down for breakfast at the Hotel Chelsea this morning," said the young confessing king at an interview which was arranged over the telephone with his secretary, who has a voice astonishingly like that of his employer. The flance of "Chicago May" barely looks like a hold-up man, and he claims to be 35 years old. Seems to be next in the order of recantation. He was arrested today in a downtown cafeteria on a charge of disorderly conduct and has received bothered demands.

Young Lucas said that he had written his encyclopedia of sensational reminiscences partly from experiences as police reporter on the London News, and partly by reading up on the subject, and that he intended to keep on confessing as long as he found new matters to confess to.

As to his marriage with the veteran blackmailer and kleptomaniac, the young man of letters said he was absolutely going through with it, although he knew that his fiance's police and jail record was a long and imposing one.

"I am going to marry the venerable crime wave, as you term her," said the author, menacingly his words, "She is very charming and I am fascinated by her. Further than that, she is a solid piece of crime stuff. It is purely a business proposition. My publishers practically insist on it. We have all sorts of fine offers. It's too good a thing to turn down. We are wonderfully matched in a way. She has plenty to confess, too, and if I do so, in myself, there are few who know how to confess any better than I do. It's a kind of partnership, but it has its sentimental side. She is really very charming and she must have been a wonder in her day."

Lucas said that he and his bride would probably live at once in Hollywood, where he thought they would

W. M. S. COMMITTEE HELD FULL MEETING

The Sub-Executive of the Bay of Quinte Conference Branch W. M. S. of the United Church, met in Bridge Street Church, Belleville, Friday, Jan. 13th.

The programme of the Conference Branch Annual Meeting to be held in Lindsay the second week in May, was discussed. It was decided to have one evening entirely in Young People's work.

The allocation for this Branch for 1928 is $100,000. The Finance Committee brought in two resolutions: (1) That when the allocation is sent out by the Presbyterial Secretary of Christian Stewardship and Finance to the various auxiliaries, the local Secretary will, at the first meeting of her Auxiliary afterwards, notify the members of the Auxiliary of the amount of their allocation for the coming year. (2) That all money received during the year for the general fund, must be turned over to the Presbyterial Treasurer at the end of the last quarter, even though it exceeds the allocation. The Circulating Library is now in the hands of the president, Mrs. J. T. Daley, Port Hope. It will be placed in charge of a Librarian, and may be had for the loss of the Auxiliaries on application of the Literature Secretary. Lantern slides will also be provided and it was suggested that each Presbyterial secure a lantern which can be used by the different Auxiliaries under the supervision of the Presbyterial Literature Secretary.

Mrs. J. T. Daley presided at the meeting.

TO RESUME INQUIRY JAN. 23

Ottawa, Jan. 16.—The Royal Commission investigating the grievances of maritime fishermen will resume their sessions at Canso, Nova Scotia, on January 23, it was learned here today, and will then complete its investigations of east coast fishing in the Atlantic provinces. It will probably resume its inquiry into business with a session in Ottawa. The report of the commission will be presented to the Government about the beginning of February.

made good without any trouble. In the meantime, he said that he would continue with his volumes of supplemental confessions while he was in the vein.

has 68 nieces and nephews and more than 12 grandnieces and grandnephews.

Paul has loaned a challenge to everybody in the United States and Canada to beat his record. And Paul is not the youngest of his father's 13 children for he has a sister, Antoinette, who is 19.

Three of Paul's sisters have a total of 52 children between them, 17 each; another sister has 11, a brother has three, another brother two and still another brother at the last accounting had one, making a grand total of 68.

Of course, Paul's record is bound to be topped in one way, but it is all in the family. He himself has one child so that his sister, Antoinette, has 69 nieces and nephews.

At present Paul has six sisters and four brothers living while another brother died at the age of three and another was killed in an accident in a sawmill. The oldest of the eleven surviving children is Mrs. Pierre Laplante, who is 45 and has 17 children living. She was married at the age of 15.

Paul's father and mother are now living quietly at Derwell, Wolf County Province of Quebec. The father is 71 and the mother 69. The family of which Couture, senior, was one, numbered 12 children while his wife came from a French family of 10 children. The first time Paul counted up his grandnieces and grandnephews he found that he had had 12 but since then he has lost count completely and believes they total at present about 17 or 18. The members of the family live in widely separated places from northern Quebec to southern Rhode Island.

SAME OLD CHRISTMAS YEAR AFTER YEAR

Quesnel, B.C.— For sixty years Christmas in Barkerville has been the same, except for the new faces to be seen about the festive board each year. Even the farm widow change for most of the inhabitants have been here since the earlier days of Barkerville's gold rush.

The little frontier town is always held dearest in recal at Christmas time and more isolated than even on that account from the rest of the world. Barkerville—before or now—is on the ground now and the old Cariboo road is paved here with drifts.

At present Paul has six sisters and four brothers living while another brother died at the age of three and another was killed in an accident in a sawmill. The oldest of the eleven surviving children is Mrs. Pierre Laplante, who is 45 and has 17 children

Farmers to Honor Memory of Empire's Soldier Dead

Honor to the memory of the Empire's soldier dead will be offered by the members of the Canadian Farmer's Marketing tour which is now proceeding across the continent under the auspices of the Canadian National Railways. A huge wreath, six feet in diameter, beautiful in design and bearing the crests of each province, interlaced with characteristic foliage, has been made in Montreal and will be deposited at the cenotaph in London this month during the party's visit there.

The picture shows the wreath being inspected by W. B. Preble, vice-president of the Canadian National Railways in charge of colonization and agriculture, before the departure of the party from Montreal.

ENGLISH LIQUOR LAW ASSAILED

Carlisle County Law Is Attacked By Many People

London, Eng. —The system of state liquor control, which has been in force in the Carlisle area for some years, is being threatened. Protests against its continuance have been received by the Home Secretary, Sir William Joynson-Hicks, from the Carlisle Industrial Association, which is seeking the support of similar associations in making this protest.

Briefly, the system is operation in Carlisle consists of the substitution of the "improved" type of inn for the old time "pub" The chief features are that good meals are reasonable prices are available as is mere liquor, and the licensee's interest in the sales effected is confined to the catables.

The local Conservative Association maintains that the continuance of the scheme is a form of nationalization which is contrary to Conservative principles, and a source of danger to the trading community throughout the whole country, since in the event of a Socialist Government being returned to power it is feared the scheme would be extended to the whole country and that such extension would entail the insauguration of liquor itself. "As it exists in the Carlisle area," the proprietest states, "it has already entered into unfair and unequal competition with private interests outside the liquor trade whom it undersells in price Particularly, it competes with manufacturers of temperance beverages, some of whom it has already forced out of business.

Every other section of the trading community has suffered serious loss through the profits arising from the undertaking having been transferred to the national exchequer, and thus taken out of circulation in the district. These profits to date are estimated at approximately £2,000,000.

There is no attempt to deny that the scheme is deemed by its supporters to have proved completely successful, but present Home Secretary is a convinced temperance reformer, so whether the protest above indicated will receive much of his personal sympathy is problematical

BACHELORS FIND IT HARD TO GET FAME

Columbus, Ohio.—Bachelors have little chance of getting into "Who's Who," according to Dr. Albert E. Wiggam, scientist and author who addressed the American Psychological Association meeting here.

"Married men are the ones who rise to fame and fortune," he said. "The likelihood of such an achievement rises with the number of children increasing Of until there are four in the family."

These conclusions have been arrived at through statistics, he indicated, more and more data is being gathered by eugenists to corroborate those findings, he said.

YOUNG GENIUS IS TO TOUR EUROPE

New York, N.Y.—Nicholas Vasich, a young violin maker, who was "discovered" a year ago in Seattle, Wash., by Nicola Elmas, has sailed for France to begin a six months' search among old cathedrals and churches of France and Germany for the finest violin wood money can buy. When he returns Vasich will convert this material into a concerto consisting of 176 violins, a viola and a cello, for Elmas.

Vasich said here that he expects to find most of the wood he wants in old organs. Wood for the violins is already at hand, and he has negotiated for heated several pieces suitable for the other instruments in an organ in Portland, Ore., which is to be demolished immediately after the 300 years ago.

Upon his return Mr. Vasich will set up a shop in New York to make the instruments. Though he has built up a reputation for his shop in Seattle, he has been advised by Mr. Elmas and other violinists to settle here permanently, and maye do so.

The violin maker is thirty-six years old. He was born in Bosnia-Herzegovina, of Serbian stock, and he began making violins at the age of nineteen. Two years later he left his native country for Vienna. Then he drifted to Switzerland, to Schumberg, to Czechoslovakia, and finally to Germany, where he made violins in Hamburg and Berlin.

EVIDENTLY SICK OF OLD TENNIS GAME

Nice, France.—When a Monte Carlo club offered Suzanne Lenglen the French championship for $2,000, it spent four times a week for three months on their courts her reply was "Bah."

The former queen of tennis is wrapped up in the collection of stamps, particularly the air-mail issues. An enthusiast, she shares with her former manager, Baldwin, Cal-fornian, Baldwin is said to have spelt $20,000 on air-mail stamps alone within the past three months. Suzanne acts as interpreter and bargainer for him on his buying expeditions.

Her father now has an stamp fever but is devoting himself to collecting British stamps.

REGENT THEATRE

Lovers of the screen cannot afford to miss seeing "The Heart Thief," a Metro picture starring Miss Joseph Schildkraut, Lya de Putti and Robert Ketcham are featured. The photoplay will be on view at the Regent theatre today. It is a story of life in Hungary, and is said to be highly dramatic and thrilling. Don't miss it.

BELLE THEATRE

Shakespeare said, "The play's the thing." And all actors have adopted this suggestion for the well-known line of theatre art. Nothing must interrupt your wish once the curtain has started to rise or the curtain once down.

It requires an experienced actor like Rudolph Schildkraut to carry this ideal to perfection, as he recently did at Dr. De Mille studio during the filming of the scenes in "The Country Doctor", a new Rupert Julian production which opens to-day at Belle theatre.

Schildkraut, who plays the title role has required to lavishly finger some delicate instruments, and as he was rhearsing the spring cover of the sterilizer, it snapped suddenly, missing a finger. Not a muscle quivered under the intense pain. Joyously he passed on to another tray, but when the camera stopped the nail was already turning black. Only by chance was the accident discovered.

TO-NIGHT'S GAME IS POSTPONED CITY LEAGUE TEAMS WILL PLAY

Belleville-Queen's Tilt Called Off At The Last Minute

DOUBLE-HEADER

Two Smart Games Promised In Local City League

Tonight's game between the Belleville Intermediates and the Queen's team has been postponed. It was expected that the game would be played but Manager Thomas made the announcement this morning. Royal Military College who were scheduled to play here on Wednesday night of last week be here on Wednesday night of this week. With the cold weather over the week-end it was expected that the game would go ahead but Queen's were notified this morning not to come. City league teams will hold every night the arena tonight and two keen games are promised the fans. Point Anne will clash with the Moose at eight o'clock while at nine o'clock the Intelligencer picksters will meet with the Quinte Electrical. With an excellent sheet of ice promised by Gar Arnott those who wish to see two real fast games should be on deck tonight. The Point Anne team will make their initial appearance of the season and it is reported that the Cement Mixers will trot out some smart boys. The Moose won their first start and will be out to duplicate the feat to-night and manager Cy Young has some good boys in his line-up.

The Intelligencer tied with Canoe in the opener and in stacking up against the Quinte Electricians managed by Paul Hibbard the newspaper boys will meet an aggregation which is well balanced. The latter have such prominent players as Bill Gunning, his brother Johnny, "Punch" Derry and Pat Boland. These games will get under way at eight o'clock sharp and will be well worth the small price of admission of 15 cents.

HUGGINS SATISFIED WITH PROSPECTS

New York, Jan. 16—Even if the New York Yankees fail to put through a deal during the winter for a pitcher good enough to take a regular turn the pitching staff will not be in desperate straits, according to Miller Huggins, manager of the champions.

Although Bob Shawkey, Dutch Reuther and Joe Giard have gone and Urban Shocker may get his passage paper Huggins believes he has a pitching staff in Hoyt, Pennock, Pipgras and Moore.

There are also Henry Johnson, who, if recently developed, is wanted in several places, Myles Thomas and old Stan Covleskie, who are to be given a trial in St. Petersburg. There also may be a flat among a lot of recruits.

Huggins never will lose his faith in star pitching but the impression is very general around here that it does not take a wonderful pitcher to get by with that gang of clouters behind him.

HOCKEY UPSET BY LEAF'S VICTORY

Beat N. Y. Rangers, First while Group Leaders, by 6-1 Score

Toronto, January 16—Displaying a remarkable attack in form over their previous starts before local fans, the Toronto Maple Leafs jumped into third position in the standing of the National Hockey League when they defeated Hockey League here on Saturday night by trouncing the New York Rangers, erst while group leaders, six goals to one, by the convincing score of 8 goals to 1.

The Broadway crowd that they have apparently chased the jinx which has followed them on home ice. Hitherto the locals have shown marked inferiority tiveness when in the vicinity of their opponents' net, but Saturday night they made few mistakes once they broke through the Ranger guard, Led by "Shorty" Day and Danny Cox, the Leafs exhibited some pretty combination attacks and all their counters except two were the results of clever team play.

The Rangers were outskated through out and their defence, weakened through the absence of Bourgeault, who is out on account of injuries, was hard-pressed at all stages to keep the determined Leafs from piling up a record score.

Coach Smythe elected to give his substitutes a thorough opportunity to make good before the home fans and they accomplished this with a vengeance. Cox, in particular, was one second-string player who shone consistently. He took-checked in such a vigorous manner that Bill Cook, Rangr right wing, was completely subdued. The Leaf player also found time to score one goal and to assist in three others. Worth Cox was not the only player by Jerry Lowrey, who also starred.

Dr. C. H. Best, co-discoverer of insulin said that approximately 60,000 persons were making use of this treatment for diabetes.

The past year has been an extremely successful one for the Pontiac six, and the fruits of this success are seen in the new series Pontiac, announced this week, which incorporates numerous improvements and refinements at no increase in price. The four models illustrated above indicate the graceful lines of the new car. At the upper left is the two-door sedan and at the upper right the rakish new sport roadster, with its convenient folding seat. A head-on view of the roadster, showing the deep, narrow radiator and two of the four-wheel brakes, appears in the centre panel. At the lower left is the beautiful cabriolet and to its right the new four-door sedan.

SportOgramS By "The Observer"

With Jack Frost soars on the rampage sport fans will look for a renewal of the activities of local teams

Nothing has been heard of a new rink for Belleville for 1928?

Fans are strongly urged to turn out for the baseball meeting at the City Hall to-morrow evening when the program will be discussed.

A prominent hockey fan mention ed the fact the other day that Potter Ward has turned out more hockey players than any other section of the City, and after looking the imposing list over we, were forced to agree with him.

Some of the names of the more prominent ones who played in the O.H.A. are: Frank and Lawrence Joyce, Stan. Burgoyne, "Gumey" and Jack Arnott. "Daw" and "Ted" Whalen, Jimmie Connolly, "Crow" Connolly, Harry Burgoyne, "Smiler" Sullivan, Heun, Elher and others. Heun and Elher are at present playing with the Juniors.

Walter Gerow is likely to be the manager of the baseball team for 1928. Walter gained considerable success during his tenure of office and most fans are backing him for the job again.

Mr. W. E. Rowsome, General Manager of the Alemite Company's plant in the City has been one of the chief boosters for baseball in the last three months and as Temporary Chairman has done wonders.

With Central League ball assured it is up to the fans to turn out and lend their moral support at to-morrow night's meeting in the City Hall.

Some announcements will be made by the baseball committee and these will be of interest to the fans. Come out and hear what they say.

If everyone said oh well; I'm not very much interested in baseball how far would he got toward the early organization. Peterboro, Kingston and Oshawa are laying rapid plans for 1928. Don't let's be behind the times in Belleville.

The Belleville basket-ball team made the Napanee team look sick on Wednesday night last, and Coach Scott is losing no time in preparing them for the Royal Military College which team comes here later on.

The week's sport program is an extensive one. Get out and watch the boys in action whenever possible. It will be well worth your while.

PLAN MONUMENT FOR DE LA SALLE

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Jan. 14.—Plans for erection of a $250,000 monument to the memory of Chevalier Robert De La Salle and other pioneer explorers of the Niagara District were indorsed at the initial meeting of the state-wide De La Salle Monument Commission held here last night.

JAPAN READY FOR WORLD PEACE PACT

Tokyo, Japan, Jan. 14.—Japanese authorities said unofficially today that Japan agreed in principle with the latest United States note to Franco on the proposal to renounce war and Japan was willing at any time to enter upon discussions looking toward a treaty for promotion of world peace.

VARSITY GRADS TO PLAY AT KINGSTON

Kingston, Jan. 16.—Final arrangements are being made for the Varsity Grads on Wednesday next of the Varsity Grads, Canadian Olympic team, who will play an all-star team at the Harty Arena in their second last game before sailing for Europe.

Tickets for the game will go on sale at the Athletic Board of Control office on Monday, and already there are indications of one of the biggest crowds of the season.

The team to oppose the Grads will be the strongest it is possible to get, either in Kingston, and one of the best games of the season is being looked for.

1928 EDITION OF TORONTO LEAFS

Manager Bill O'Hara Stresses Need Of Additional Infielders

Toronto, Jan. 16.—Manager Bill O'Hara, of the Leafs, does not think that there is any cause for worry regarding the prospects of the Toronto Club for next season. "We'll have as good a team if not better than any other in the league," he said today. "and if we don't win the championship we will be right in the neighborhood." O'Hara plans leaving for Detroit to talk over matters with ownor Navin of the Tigers in a few days and he has every hope of winning the release of a second right hand hitting outfielder in his pocket. He is also sanguine that he will get the pitcher that he wants from the boys of the Bengals.

That he has secured a prize package in Cote the shortstop, who was with Toledo last year, the local pilot is convinced. The player who was loaned from New York in the deal which took Baumgartner to the Yanks and the American association in fielding last season and in the little world series with Buffalo in which he played with Jack Quinn of Buffalo, who is being boosted for Hornsby's position with the Giants, for Cup the Leaseville club recently offered $10,000 in cold cash for the infielder, which is twice the amount that he was valued at in the trade with New York.

Good Prospects

There will be no dearth of young blood this season, besides a host of last Augusta ramp judging from the list of recruits under contract. Before, a Belleville player who played with Buck Weaver's team, will get a trial. Peterson, another smooth youngster who starred with the famous Paterson Silk Hose team, will also be on hand. So will Lavigne.

Whitehouse, the six footer, who filled acceptably in a couple of games last summer before being shipped away to the sticks, will be back for another try out. It is likely that he will be sent to Bridgeport of the Eastern League for further seasoning.

The local manager O'Hara is counting upon Alexander Burke, Cote and Billy Webb as regulars. Alexander Burke is retained or not largely depends upon circumstances. If he attends strictly to business he will be given every consideration but otherwise he will be passed up in a hurry. Most of the time last summer he was not in first class condition and his play suffered as a consequence.

QUEEN'S QUINT HERE WED. NIGHT

Local Basket - Ball Team Prepare For Tricolor Invasion

Saturday night the Y Intermediates worked out on the basketball court for over an hour and tonight at nine o'clock a final practice will be held in preparation for the game with Queens University team, here, Wednesday night. The local "boosters" look for a win at the expense of the team from the Eastern Knowledge Factory but at the same time they are not anticipating any easy time in accomplishing such a feat. On the occasion of the previous meeting the Queens players have since then not proved a stumbling block in the way of the championship aspirations of the local teams. The University have no dearth of players from which to pick a team. However the situation locally is also improved over former years, with sufficient material from which to choose several strong line-ups. All the players who accompanied the team to Napanee last week will be seen in action here Wednesday night. The team including the trip to the pivot position, will be composed of Weir, Armstrong, Kerr, Brown and Fox while Bailey, Alexander, Cole, Walters and Buchanana will endeavor to equal the effectiveness of the Queen's sharpshooters.

As a certain raiser to the Queen's-y" game a large delegation of Ex-Hnth School members will endeavor to take a full out of the opportunity Armstrong reached aggregation which will represent the Belleville Collegiate Institute in the Inter-County League. This is the second year that "Army" has taken the school team under his wing and the youngsters are playing a smart brand of ball. Opposed to them will be such experienced players as Al Hitchen, Matt Morrison, the Miles Brothers, Rod Palmer, Harry Redfern, Alex Weir, Harry Hunt and Bill Sharpe. The "Grads" will endeavor to work in as many combinations as possible in order to improve their team play and when these two teams get into action a fast exciting game is assured the fans. The opening game will commence at 8.15 sharp.

The draw for the Single Handicap Championship of the City will be made on the bulletin board in the main lobby. As each entry in the tournament plays seven consecutive games a twenty-one point games it is necessary that everyone entered play at least one and play off their games as promptly as possible, otherwise the tournament will have to drag out over a long period. The winner must be declared before the end of March and this means prompt action on the part of those participating. Following the playing of these tournaments games the players are requested to mark up their scores in their opponent's presence on the score sheets, as well as in their own.

BROCKVILLE LOSE TO BELLEVILLE

Two teams from Brockville invaded the local Recreation Alleys for a friendly game with the B. W. B. Shop teams on Saturday night and although the visitors won one game they lost out on the total pins by a small margin. The B team used four bowlers and at the end of the first game the Brockville team was at a deadlock with 694 each and in the second game the locals were up 44 pins on the third game the Brockville tenmbers hit there stride and won this game by 175 pins and the total by 161 pins. Following is the game and score:

LINDSTROM IS HORNSBY TARGET

Star Secondbasemah Blames Young Player For Dismissal

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 16.—Apparently recovered from the shock of having been traded to the Boston Braves, Rogers Hornsby still declined today to believe that Manager John McGraw had anything to do with the trade, or with Harry Heilmann having been unconditional manager of the Giants.

Referring to the statement, signed by McGraw and Charles A. Stoneham, president and principal owner of the Giants, Hornsby declared:

"I won't believe that McGraw said that or signed a statement to that effect until I see him with his own eyes. I don't believe that the cordial McGraw of last fall would have changed so in such a short time.

"McGraw made the statement himself that he would decide any day to hand over the manager's job to me. That was none of my business, and I took it merely as a compliment. Now, everybody knows McGraw can run that ball club as long as he wants, and anybody who thinks he can prevent discord on his ball club is crazy. That's what makes Stoneham's statement that the trade was made to prevent future management conflict ridiculous.

"As for the statement of Fred Lindstrom, Giant third baseman, that I was ed to trade him the next day to hand over the manager's job to me. That was none of my business, and I took it merely as a compliment. Now, everybody knows McGraw can run that ball club as long as he wants, and anybody who thinks he can prevent discord on his ball club is crazy. That's what makes Stoneham's statement that the trade was made to prevent future management conflict ridiculous.

"As for the statement of Fred Lindstrom, Giant thirdbaseman, that I was sore because I was asked to step aside, I caused discord, he's just a cry-baby. He's always had something wrong with him in a tight series. I did a few things to his ball club is crazy. That's what Jug McGraw thinks, but I was just trying to give the cry-baby some nerve."

Hornsby said from now on he would "worry about holding down second for the Braves" and with competition of the Braves' park to cut down the outfield he ought to hit a lot of home runs there this year.

CLAIM GAMBLERS SEEKING REVENGE

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 16—A reported plot to kill or cripple Rogers Hornsby baseball star, for alleged "welching" of betting debts, was investigated today by Hornsby to-day as "hokum and propaganda."

The deal whose submary trade from the New York Giants to the Boston Braves rocked sporting circles, created such impression he believed the report to be an attempt to whip up mild- wire interest in a summer game.

"It is nothing but hokum," he told the United Press.

The humanitarian plot, however, was published recently by the St. Louis Globe-Democrat in the form of a dispatch from New York quoting an article attributed to W. S. Prunsworth in the Evening Journal, "a jury" of $10,000 to $25,000 was said to have been offered to gangsters to "get" the star.

When Hornsby read the article, which intimated that "one of the biggest bookmakers in the country" sought his death in revenge for Horns by's alleged "welching" the star promptly communicated with his attorney, William Fahey, and ordered Fahey to prepare a formal statement "to tell the whole truth in box-car letters."

"So far as 'welching' is concerned," Hornsby said, "if the truth were known Frank F. Moore, who recently brought suit against me for $90,000, owes me plenty of money himself. I 'carried' him long enough.

Houston, Texas, was selected recently for the 1928 Democratic national convention.

Turn Hair Dark With Sage Tea
By JEAN MACON

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the musty mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product for only 75 cents, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre, and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

CONFESSED CHILD SLAYER GUARDED BY STATE TROOPS

U. S. Capital Ravaged by Strange Fires —— Campbellford Ghost Refuses to Meet Reporters

FIRE BUGS HELD CITY IN TERROR

Five Major Blazes Interspersed With Smaller Ones During Night

CALLS FOR HELP

Washington Suffers Heavy Losses Through Unexplained Fires

Washington, Jan. 17.—Half a dozen fires of suspected incendiary origin scattered throughout Washington early today, called out all of the city's fire fighting equipment and forced the officials to appeal to nearby Virginia and Maryland points for help. The unprecedented series of fires began shortly before midnight and continued until six this morning, five major conflagrations being interspersed with smaller ones and many false alarms. The final two fires found the capital's fire fighting force unable to cope with the situation and calls for assistance were sent to outside points for help. Ten companies also responded from Baltimore.

So far as officials know, there were no casualties during the night although a score of firemen were overcome by smoke. First estimates of damage ran into hundreds of thousands of dollars. Hurried investigations by fire marshalls and police led to the belief that one or more fire bugs started the major fires. They were not certain about the half dozen others, nor could they explain numerous false alarms that disorganized the fire fighting machine and kept the firemen on a constant procession during the night.

The fifth major fire broke out at six o'clock this morning in a lumber yard at Fourteenth and "W" streets. The alarms summoned the chief firemen who had been on the go all night. This fire tied up traffic in the northwest residential section and thousands of workers were forced to walk or take automobiles to their places of business.

Four More Fires

Inspection of the burned areas showed that fires had done several hundred thousand dollars damage. Four minor fires broke out after nine o'clock this morning, including one at the Hungerford Legion, where a blind was burned but none resulted in great loss.

ENTHUSIASM AT V.O.N. DINNER AUGURY OF SUCCESS IN FUTURE

E. D. Finke Elected President Of Committee For The Coming Year

Good fellowship, excellent cuisine and a most entertaining programme all combined to make the third annual Victorian Order of Nurses dinner held in the Quinte's Hotel last evening a splendid success. Though the number in attendance was not quite as large as anticipated due, no doubt, to the inclement weather, however what was lacking in number was more than thoroughly made up in enthusiasm and if last night's dinner was any criterion 1928 will indeed be a most successful year for V. O. N. in Belleville.

Mr. P. C. McClarium, President, very ably filled the position of chairman. A pleasant feature of the dinnerwas the community singing which was interspersed with the serving of the courses under the leadership of Mr. Roy Rickard. Before proceeding to the "official call" part of the programme delightful solos were rendered by Miss Florence Forbes and Mr. Roy Rickard with Mrs. A. Palmer and Mr. J. Denmark acting as accompanists. Following this Miss Hanna read the 3rd annual report of the V. O. N. In the absence of Mr. Bird the financial statement was read by Mr. G. Griffin, Paul President and the report for the well Baby Clinic was read by Miss A. Gallagher for Mrs. Fitzgerald.

Third Fragment Of Lost Airplane Found On P. E. I. Shore

Charlottetown, P.E.I., Jan. 17. — Apiece of aeroplane wreckage found upon the shore at Cavendish has arrived here. It is 54 inches by 45 inches and is painted an orange-like color. This piece of wreckage, the third to have been found at different places along the shore of Prince Edward Island within the past three weeks, is undeniably a part of an aeroplane wing.

GHOST WAS NOT HUNGRY AND FAILED TO APPEAR

Peterboro, Jan. 17.—No; a shell rapround of the so called ghost which has Carmel-Frank Keating and his family appeared to reward newspapermen who held a vigil throughout the night in the Keating house in Stanwix Township. Neither did the rollers of chewing beside or the pajamas of a small organ of the barrel shaped wraith, clothe them both, the necklaces and chains of which the ghost was alleged to wear. Instead, the ghost turned out to be a small, friendly, affectionate, unhungry cat born in the old house about a few days ago.

SWEEPER STILL DOWN BUT NOT FIRE

New Aldermen Have Some Pungent Criticisms To Offer

ASKING QUESTIONS

1928 Council Gets Down To Business At First Regular Meeting

The city street sweepr again came into prominence last evening at the first meeting of the new city council and Mayor M. P. Duff with City Engineer Charles Campbell were kept busy answering questions which some of the new Aldermen asked regarding the powers and conditions of payment for same.

The Aldermen present were Aldermen Woodley, Gallagher, Ellis, French, Hyde, Donahue, Rollins, Reid and Wooten.

A letter was read from E. T. Austin Manager of the City Waterworks Department advising the purchase by the city of the insulators from the Belleville Paper Mill for the sum of seven hundred and fifty dollars which was recommended to be accepted subject to inspection.

Col. W. A. Ponton wrote the council thanking them for reappointment to the Board of Education for the term of two years.

A communication was read by City Engineer Campbell from the solicitor to commence the work of erecting the fire escape on same for prevention requirements to the City Hall, advised by the Fire Marshall last fall at a cost of about one hundred dollars. He was authorized to proceed with this work.

Mayor Duff and the City Clerk were authorized to sign an agreement with Fred Smith for the repairing of the curtain at the City Hall, which he agreed to do free for the advertising space on same.

Home for the Sweeper

City Engineer Campbell advised the council that the shed for the Cleveland sweeper south of the market had been delivered to the City Solicitor. Mr. Campbell outlined the alterations necessary to build storage for the street sweeper on this property which would not exceed the sum of three dollars.

Moved by Ald. C. A. Payne that the matter stand to the Board of Public Hospital be increased from ten to twenty-five dollars. Mr. Payne spoke of the excellent work which the institution was doing and how it benefitted Belleville through children from this city who had been patients there.

A letter was read from S. L. Squire, Secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Good Roads Association stating that that body was holding its annual meeting in Convocation Hall, Toronto on January 22-23 and 24. The program would consist of the matter of township and county road problems in regard to construction and maintenance of roads.

City Clerk Holmes wrote that a letter was received from the Board of Health (a turn to Page Three.)

CHIEF BAIN WORKS ON STORE ROBBERY

The bodies were discovered by police whoheard the shots. Two of the children are in artificial condition at the Metropolitan Hospital while a third was wounded in the left arm.

TORONTO SKATED DOWN ON ICY ROADS THIS MORNING

Toronto, January 17.— Numerous mishaps have been caused in the past few hours in Toronto and district by a durable and dangerous coating of ice, laid on the streets and sidewalks by yesterday's alert storm and harden ed overnight. Some daring spirits started to work today, the roadways being quite suitable for this method of travel. Traffic has been considerably slowed down and civic workers are engaged in completing the task of strewing cinders on the various hills which motorists must use.

The worst accident in this city was the injury of three young women when a motor truck skidded and knocked them down last night. Violet Bowler suffered a broken neck and other injuries and is in a critical condition.

TROOPS CALLED OUT TO DISPERSE MOB ATTEMPTING TO RUSH JAIL

Police Spirit Confessed Slayer Out Of Flint To Safety

NO APPARENT MOTIVE

Adolph Hotelling Says He Brooded Over The Hick-man Case

Flint, Mich., Jan. 17.—Adolph Hotelling, 47 year old church deacon at Owosso, Mich., has confessed the kidnapping, slaying and dismembering the body of little Dorothy Schneider but says he did it is by his confession, as incomprehensible to him as to the authorities.

Officers, however, had little time to ponder over motives last night because Hotelling's arrest was followed by such an outburst of public indignity that all the ingenuity of the police was needed to save him from mob violence. Flint jail was found the safe place for him. The mob formed almost as soon as word of hisarrest spread. Hotelling was taken secretly from the jail, driven by motor car under bodyguard to the state capital, Lansing and finally, shortly after midnight, locked in a cell in the State Reformatory at Ionia.

Troops Called Out

Flint, Mich., Jan. 17.—A mob that stormed the county jail here last night in an effort to lynch Adolph Hotelling, confessed slayer of Dorothy Schneider, was dispersed by National Guardsmen.

The guardsmen were called out after jail officials had battled the crowd for several hours with tear gas bombs. A score of disturbers were arrested during the clash.

Prominent Church Worker

Flint, Mich., Jan. 16.—Adolph Hotelling, aged 47, an Owosso, Mich., church deacon, confessed here last night that he was the killer of 9-year old Dorothy Schneider, kidnaped even en route home from kindergarten.

The arrest and confession of Hotelling stunned residents of Owosso, where he had been a leading part in church activities, and infuriated a townspeople of this place, where his alleged Dr. Jekyll-Mr. Hyde activities resulted in one of the most horrible crimes that ever blotted the pages of Michigan history.

Father of Five

Hotelling, father of a family ofFive children himself, was arrested in Owosso when he remarked that he "knew the murder for its secrets" was positively identified by a farmer who unwittingly assisted him to escape after the crime by removing his car from a muck hole where it had become mired, and then confessed to the deed. The only motive set out in the confession was contained in a statement that the Hickman case had been working on his mind.

Police at Owosso, where he was arrested, however, declared he had also confessed to crimes against children there over a period of two years.

The confessed slayer was arrested at his home, and, according to witnesses, surrendered quietly when taken into custody.

Took Child to Car

"I don't know what came over me," he was quoted by police as stating. "I had been brooding about the matter. I got her in the car, thinking I would take her home. She cried. I drove to Snyder Road (the muddy road in which his car became mired,) and carried her part way across the field. The child cried to go home."

She slayer, according to police, said when they reached the creek bank, with Dorothy walking the last part of her death march across the field, she continued to cry, and said she would tell her father, so he pulled out his two-bladed clasp knife and stabbed her twice. The wounds were mortal. Then he proceeded with the task of mutilating the body. "I don't know what came over me," he kept repeating.

Hotelling was unable to commit the crime by brooding over the Hickman case, he declared in his confession according to police.

MACLAURIN HAS BEEN HONORED

Appointed General Chairman Of Education Committee For District

Today being the 13th anniversary of the establishment of Kiwanis, members of the local Service Club with President Harry Greenleaf in the Chair, listened to an interesting programme of addresses on Kiwanis, its ideals and objectives, delivered by men here at their noon-day Club Kiwanian MacLaurin dealt with "Kiwanis and its meaning," explaining just what such an organization meant to its members, providing them as it did with a broader and an unselfish outlook on life through the international nature of the organization, each member contributing towards the Club's output of good works.

Kiwanian Rickard, in a short talk on the "Objectives and Aims of Kiwanis," stressed the Club as a character builder for its members.

MacLaurin Honored

Members of the Club learned with satisfaction today of the Appointment of P. C. MacLaurin to the General Chairmanship of the Educational Committees of the entire Ontario-Quebec Kiwanis District. The announcement was made by District Trustee Wotten in the course of his report on the regular meeting held in Napanee last night. Kingston, attended by representatives of the 38 Clubs in the District, has been invited by the District Governor to address the Lind say Club on Thursday of this week.

President-Elect Ernie Finkle, of the V.O.N. Committee, announced that a request would be made to the city council by their committee to increase the annual city grant towards the upkeep of the V.O.N. here. In 1926 $300 was granted and an extra hundred dollars during the past year, but faced with a budget of $4,000 the Committee finds it necessary to again seek an increase in the city grant towards this worth while cause

TOSS CHILDREN FROM WINDOWS

Fire Started In Baby Carriage And Destroyed Apartment House

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 17.—Five children were tossed out of windows into the arms of firemen and a woman jumped from the second story window to the street when fire which started in a baby carriage in the apartment hallway today drove eighteen inmates from their homes. Two women were carried down ladders and firemen engaged in rescue work, were overcome by smoke. Mrs. P. Peterson, trapped by flames, jumped out a window to the sidewalk and was badly injured.

STRANGE FIRES MAY BE SIGNALS

Quebec, Jan. 17.—Mysterious fires which had been seen on Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings on Harriland by residents of St. Simon were not seen last night. Considerable curiosity exists in local marine circles regarding the origin of the fires. They are regarded as distress signals. An attempt by aeroplane to investigate was postponed because of rough weather.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

Never believe anything to be for your interest which obliges you to break your word.

AURELIUS.

KILLING FRIENDS

A Seaforth, Ont., man, while out hunting last week, killed a garter snake two feet long which he saw crawling on the snow. "But why kill it?" asks the Toronto Star. "The impulse to do so is well-nigh irresistible, but it is misguided. The French Government is paying real money to import garter snakes from this continent to combat field mice which are a menace to agriculture."

Nearly all snakes in this country are useful and desirable living things. They do harm to nobody. They do good to orchards and fields by destroying mice.

No snakes exist in Canada whose bite is fatal. There are rattlesnakes, but in our northern climate a rattlesnake is less poisonous than farther south and its bite does not mean death.

And rattlesnakes are found in few districts in Eastern Canada. As for other snakes, the great majority are desirable things.

AUTO INSURANCE

The question of compulsory insurance for motorists is frequently discussed, but the day when all drivers will be compelled by law to take out policies protecting the public from the results of accidents in which they are involved seems just as far off as ever. Only a comparatively small proportion of automobile owners carry insurance covering this kind of risk, and the consequence is that it is difficult to secure redress, in the case of an impecunious driver. Objections have been raised to the compulsory insurance plan, on the plea that it might make for greater carelessness in the operation of motor vehicles. The insured driver, fearing no pecuniary loss to himself, will be less likely to exercise caution than one who is individually responsible for damages. However, this consideration does not apply to the man who is without means, from whom no compensation can be obtained. Some form of compulsory insurance is the only remedy for meeting such cases. It is the careful driver who, as a rule, is found in the insured class. Even when there is insurance, the expense and delay attendant upon legal action to recover constitute a great hardship.

This problem is receiving the special consideration of the New York legislature, a novel plan of compulsory insurance having been suggested which looks as if it would provide a satisfactory solution. It is proposed to create a compensation fund, administered by the state, "to compensate persons injured in life, limb or property through automobile accidents." Governor Smith has asked for the appointment of a commission to study the matter, to make its report as soon as possible, with a view to introducing legislation within the present session. The suggestion arises from the action of prominent jurists of New York, who complained to the governor of the congestion in the courts caused by litigation growing out of automobile accidents. A special administration will be set up. In the event of the fund being established, so freeing the courts of such cases, The fund itself would be administered in a similar manner to the workmen's compensation fund, the person injured, or in the case of death the next of kin, being entitled to receive compensation up to a stated amount; the right of bringing suit in a court of law, if he so prefers, still being open to the aggrieved party. "In the great mass of cases, however," declare the jurists, "we are satisfied resort will be had to the insured compensation, for the benefits would be speedy, certain and free from a great burden of legal expenses." The fund is to be created from payments collected from motorists at the time they take out their licenses, to provide compensation for the disability or death of any person caused by an injury arising from the use of their cars, when they are proved to be in fault.

"My pedal!" he groaned. "I ain't even hit the ground yet!"

WHITE STREET

I like to walk out on our street a night
Like this and watch the first white fall of snow,
And scuff its down before me as I go,
And feel the cool caress of flakes alight
Upon my face. . . . Lamps make grotesque sight
In their fluffed wigs and dotted veils that blow
Before each blinking eye. Perhaps they know
Their droll indulgence gives us new delight.

Our street is still—as scenes in fairyland,
With ermine carpet spread out everywhere,
A glistening softness now drapes every tree,
And while I reach to catch within my hand
Some fragile spangles as they slip through air,
I think how calm a clattering street can be!

THE PASSING YEARS

(From The Intelligencer of this day 30 years ago)

Mr. C. J. Bowell lost his valuable Great Dane Dog "Lady Ethel", yesterday. The dog was presented to him by Senator Sanford of Hamilton, a year ago.

The Chicago Times-Herald gives portraits and biographical sketches of "four of the greatest living Canadians" whom it designates in the following order: Lord Strathcona, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir William Dawson and Sir Gilbert Parker. Of the last-named it speaks very highly, pointing him out as a great literateur who has achieved an international reputation for Canadian fiction.

Mr. Joseph Templeton of this city, received word last evening that his brother William, had just died at Van couver, B.C., of apoplexy and heart failure. The late Mr. Templeton was a native of Belleville. His many friends in this city will regret to hear of his demise.

WOMAN POSSESSES HALF AVERAGE MAN'S STRENGTH

London, (By Mail).—Interesting differences between men and women, physical and psychological have been revealed in a scientific investigation carried out by the Industrial Fatigue Research Board to discover the suitable load that women in industries should lift and carry, according to a report just published.

The average woman has little more than half the strength of the average man, states the report. When a woman is tested for her power of pull virtually pulling up a weight while standing erect she accomplishes only half what she is capable of and then stops. If encouraged she increases the pull 100 per cent. A man, on the other hand, gives one strong pull and then cannot do any more.

Girl college students were found to be taller, heavier, and stronger than women employed in industries. This is ascribed to several factors. Many of the college students were born and brought up in the country; they practiced gymnastics and played such as hockey, tennis and badminton.

The final conclusion of the committee is that for the average adult woman the suitable load for continuous carriage is 45 pounds but that 50 pounds would not strain the body.

Loudspeaker Fire Alarm For Use In Streets Is Adapted

Edinburgh (By Mail).—Loud speaker fire alarms have been installed in the streets of Edinburgh.

They are said to be quite easily worked by nervous people who cannot work a telephone, or even by children.

Another claim for the instruments is that they prevent maliciously inclined people from sending false alarms. The voice of the duty fireman at the fire station can be heard distinctly above the roar of traffic, and his questions about the existence of a fire can be heard and answered by passersby.

Anyone wishing to report a fire breaks a small glass window in the alarm. Simultaneously the door of the instrument box removes two apertures. One has painted above it the words: "Wait, Fireman will speak," and the other, "Reply here."

When the glass is broken a bell rings in the fire station duty room and, although the fireman replies through an ordinary telephone transmitter, his voice can be heard by all in the alarm.

Both apertures are really loud speakers, and when the person reporting the fire hears the voice from the fire station through one, he replies through the other.

Police and ambulance calls can also be sent through these alarms, the fire station transmitting them to the right quarter.

BRITISH COLUMBIA PIT PONY DERBIES

Nanaimo, B.C.—The cow country of the Rocky Mountain foothills and the Pacific Coast mountains interior hay have their roundups and rodeos, but in the coal mining districts of Vancouver Island and coast they have their pit pony derbies instead and the inhabitants get just as much of a thrill from these unique contests as the cattle folk get from watching the antics of the bronking cayuse fresh from the bucking chutes.

This is an annual event—the pit pony derby. The little animals spend most of their lives far underground in the coal mines and so unaccustomed are they to the bright sunshine that when they race their eyes are blindfolded. Children ride them but the races hold equal fascination for young and old, and miners' folk from all the adjacent collieries assemble at the race track to watch the little ponies scamper around the oval and lay their wagers.

DREAMS REVEAL YOUR REPRESSED LONGINGS

By LOUIS E. BISCH

Dreams are not silly and nonsensical as many people seem to think. Dreams actually reveal your character. They indicate what you really are. In short, dreams give you away.

It used to be thought that dreams foretold the future. A few hold to that notion still. Indeed, people have disparaged dreams or have been influenced by them to an absurd degree for centuries.

Dreams don't prognosticate what is going to happen but they do indicate what happened in the past. That is, the dream reveals your feelings and repressions and desires that have been important to you since cradle days. They show what you were—the experiences you passed through. They tell things about you that you never dared to tell to anybody.

You must have had the experience—many times, in fact—of waking up in the morning and realizing that you dreamt, but not being able to recall what it was about.

You think and think, you grope for that elusive film of thought that has escaped you. And the more you puzzle your head over it, the less success you seem to have.

Again, you must have awakened and remembered just a little something—a word or two, a scene, a vague and indefinite picture—but no more than that can you recall no matter how hard you try.

The reason you do not remember your dreams, or remember only detached and isolated fragments, is because your conscious mind does not want to remember.

The dream deals with repressed wishes and desires that at one time disturbed consciousness. Naturally, consciousness does not want to be disturbed that way all over again.

Nobody really gets what he wants in life.

You may be rich, you may have been successful in love, your happiness or professional achievements may be truly unusual, you may be happy with your family—most of the worth-while things of life may have come your way.

Still, despite all that, your life flaws something to be desired. No one is satisfied in every particular. And the part of you that still wishes, "Yearns and hungers is the emotional life.

Everyday life, the thousand-and-one things that are thwarted and subdued in childhood. The curiosity of childhood is never completely satisfied. The child wonders about, many things and in his child's way he longs for many things. Seldom are his questions about how he was born and where he came from satisfactorily answered. As he grows old-er he puzzles about sex.

One might summarize the thwarted strivings of the individual by saying that they deal with the animal self—the primitive, ruthless, selfish side of human nature.

Society does not let the individual express these traits. He is taught to hold them in check and to repress them. He is taught that such ideas are naughty or bad. The individual, therefore, grows up being ashamed of many of his deepest and most cherished longings and desires.

These primitive and checked impulses which everybody tries to forget and force out of the mind are the very ones that appear in dreams. They appear in disguised forms, to be sure.

Dreaming of a house may refer symbolically to the body; water may mean birth, going on a journey may refer to some hidden drain with that has been repressed and forced out of the mind years ago.

The disguises and symbols that are to be found in dreams are fascinating to study. A snake, like water stands for birth, may not mean the same thing for everybody.

Therefore, every dream must be interpreted on its own merits, as it were. A character analysis of the dreamer must be taken into account in every case.

Books on dream psychology—especially those written from the psycho-analytic point of view—are not specially easy reading, but they do help a person to get some idea of what his dreams are really about.

The dream reveals you as you really are. It shows up the real YOU, dreams express what you have been trying to hide.

A SUITOR TOO MANY

By MILDRED BARBOUR

"No, but he was a little surprised. Why did you describe Mrs. Ware as old and an invalid?"

Lila shrugged helplessly.

"I didn't acutely. He leaped to the conclusion that she was old—I don't quite understand why something about the atmosphere of the house. And I said she was delicate, to try to stall him on when he wanted to see her. What did you think of him?" she demanded abruptly.

To her surprise, Dorothy flushed to her forehead.

"Why—I hardly know . . . the interview was very brief. He's extraordinarily good-looking."

"But not as good-looking as Herbert, is" declared Lila jealously.

Dorothy smiled.

"He's not at all like Herbert," she said. "It's seems curious, Lila, that you could have loved men who are so different."

"I never loved Jack as I love Herbert," flared Lila. . . "But they have one characteristic in common, and that's jealously, or suspicion, or masterfulness, or whatever you want to call it."

"Like Captain Farquahar, I would call it masterfulness," observed Dorothy.

"By any other name, its quite as tire some," declared Lila. "How I love it in Herbert. It thrills me to know he cares so much."

Late that afternoon she dashed home from a matinee. Jack Farquahar was due in a few minutes for his appointment with Lila Latham at the house of Mrs. Herbert Ware.

Lila raced for Seldons: "If Captain Farquahar calls, you may announce him."

The butler's imperturbable mien showed no shadow of change, but he asked blandly:

"And who will receive him—Madam, or Miss Caine?"

Lila looked at him sharply.

"That will do, Siddons. You may go."

But the man showed no sign of going.

"May I remind Madam that a great deal depends on my discretion?"

"You are impertinent," said Lila haughtily. "I give you notice, here and now. You will, of course, receive the usual fortnight's notice."

Siddons smiled slowly.

"It was Mr. Ware who engaged me; therefore Mr. Ware must dismiss me." His suave glance caught and held Lila's. "I think Mr. Ware would be greatly interested to know Madam's reason for wanting to dismiss me."

"There was menace in that sleek voice. . . You will, of course, receive the usual fortnight's notice."

Siddons smiled slowly.

"It was Mr. Ware who engaged me; therefore Mr. Ware must dismiss me." His suave glance caught and held Lila's. "I think Mr. Ware would be greatly interested to know Madam's reason for wanting to dismiss me."

"There was menace in that sleek voice. . . You will, of course, receive the usual fortnight's notice."

"I fail to understand you, Siddons. Please go at once."

He took a step nearer her.

"Madam can, perhaps, appreciate her husband's interest in learning that a strange young gentleman calls on many afternoons; that Madam receives him in street costume; that she receives, earlier, her friend, Mis Caine, posed as Madam to the gentleman."

Lila was trembling with fright. She had always instinctively distrusted Sid dons, now her fears were realized.

"There have been other curious incidents, allow me to remind Madam."

Lila tried to summon her courage and dignity. But her reason told her that the insinuations must be placated. He was no common servant, that was evident. His master was also a different line, and she realized, with sinking heart, what this knowledge might mean.

But she managed to say coolly: ably was.

"I have listened to your impertinences long enough, Siddons. Again, I tell you to go."

The man bowed.

"I obey, Madam. I go immediately —to Mr. Ware."

He turned to leave the room.

"Stop!"

He paused and faced Lila.

"What is it you want, Siddons?" she asked desperately.

He smiled: There was an ironic gleam in his eyes.

"First, I wish to remain here, Madam."

"Yes. All right,' she promised quickly.

"And a substantial raise in salary, Madam. The present salary is quite inadequate."

Lila was ashast.

"But—I'm quite sure Mr. Ware will not consent to raising you. He says that you are overpaid already."

"Madam will discuss somehow," the man assured her. "It would be embarrassing—to her, if she did not."

He bowed with deference and left the room, but Lila fully understood the threat.

CHAPTER 47.
FRESH SUSPICION

Jack Farquahar was announced in behalf of Lila's perturbation over Siddon's infamous demand. It seemed incredible to her that the butler who presented Farquahar's card with the automaton-like demeanor of the perfect servant could be the same man who, fifteen minutes before, had practically blackmailed her.

She grew pale and tired when she descended to greet Farquahar. But she hadn't, even in her mental turmoil forgotten to don hat and gloves to give the impression of just having arrived in the house.

At the sight of her, Farquahar's heart smote him. He was instantly ashamed of his suspicions.

"Lila," he said, as he took her hands in his, "forgive me. I did a rotten thing this morning. I called on your friend, Mrs. Ware, to ask her to intercede with you for my sake."

Lila nodded wearily, and laid aside her hat and coat.

"I know. She told me. Jack, how could you distrust me so?"

He recalled Lila's attitude.

"Have you been quite square with me Lila. Why, for instance, did you tell me that Mrs. Ware was old and an invalid?"

"I was only joking. I didn't think it really mattered to you what she was like. She's really frightfully attractive, isn't she?"

"Very!" said Farquahar, with such emphasis that Lila looked at him curiously.

And she's as sweet and good as she is pretty," Lila went on, with the warm glow at her heart that she always felt when she thought of Dorothy.

"I can well believe it. What is Mr. Ware like?" he asked abruptly.

"A splendid man" declared Lila enthusiastically. "Truly remarkable. Clever and kind—and handsome and all that!"

Farquahar was eyeing her sharply.

"You seem unincreasarily fervent in your praise of him," he remarked jealously.

Lila checked herself hastily.

"Well, you see, I'm so fond of them both," she explained hurriedly.

"Have they been married long?"

"Not quite six months."

"Oh!" said Farquahar significantly. His brows had drawn together. "Was this Ware, at one time, an admirer of yours?"

WHAT'S NEW
(From a Woman's Standpoint)

At last, tuxedo and conservative prints will be prominent in spring fabrics, and Shantung in blues and grays is also important, while quilted taffeta wraps are being shown in several recent openings in New York. . . . White chins silk for morning wear is also stressed.

Checked taffeta is a great rivel of black satin at Southern France resorts, where that well dressed feeling is quickly fostered by a smart Worth model with the tiered skirt finely pleated, and the pattern is a fine black and white check, which is a great relief from the plain surfaces.

Besides the Angoras, which will stand are-high for spring, sweaters are being made of rabbit's hair, jersey and hand knitted wool, and ratine. Belt being a lighter angora adapted for warm climates, while their newest in New York is the conerback staged by the hand knitted sweater.

Advice to Girls
By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

We are two girls in our teens and have met two handsome young men. They have taken us out several times and we have enjoyed ourselves a great deal. The last couple of times they insisted on parking; on the way home. Please advise us. CHUMS.

CHUMS: I would advise you to have a frank talk with these boys, my dear, and explain that unless they discontinue this habit of parking on the way home, you will be forced to sever your friendship with them. If they are sincere concerned about you, they will not want to forfeit your friendship over a matter like that and I am sure they will assent to your wishes.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young girl in my teens. Last Winter I kept company with a young man eight years my senior. He told me that he cared very much for me. After having I stopped going with him and only had a date with him once in awhile. Now he seems to have lost interest in me and doesn't hardly ever ask me for a date. I can't understand what is wrong. BOBBY.

BOBBY: Probably you have just drifted apart, my dear, and I would advise you not to take it to to heart. If he could have had such a complete change of heart in but half a year, I suspect he is too fickle to merit your deep concern. I would advise you to seek other friends and continue to see this boy occasionally if you care to.

One aphorism hasn't changed since the days when our grandmothers' etiquette books told them how to step in and out of a carriage and not to wear diamonds if they were school girls. We don't need to know those things now but we do need to remember the old and universal rule: Simplicity is the charm of youth. Short dress expresses it. The smart little slip over dress shown has full length bat pleats front and back; patch pockets at the sides and a belt of the material. Made in light weight woolens or wash silks it makes summer wear would be well to have the collar and cuffs of white linen or crepe and detachable for ease in washing. In chambray, rayon, soft light weight linen, cottons or ponger the collar and cuffs contrast in color. For the printed fabrics such as challis, sateen or gingham a plain material to match or harmonize is used for the collar and cuffs. Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

Don't use soda for washing china with gilt on it. If you do, don't be surprised if the gilt gradually disappears.

Dainty sandwiches are never made of bread that is cut in thick and uneven slices. Buy bread with which sandwiches are to be made the day before it is to be used. Bread a day old is much easier to cut than fresh bread.

PLAN NEW INTER CITIES SERVICE

Express And Local Planes To Connect Chief Cities

Berlin, Jan. 16.—The German Lufthansa will inaugurate both express and local airplane service in its schedule the coming summer, it was announced today. Persons living in such towns as Leipsic, Hamburg, Halle and Dresden and wishing to commute to the metropolis, will have the advantage of special rates on the slower local planes travelling only about 100 miles an hour and making frequent landings to pick up passengers and proceeds. Other travelers will use the express planes, which will make an average of one stop a trip.

On account of the increasing passenger and freight air traffic this step is a natural development, following with larger passenger capacity and greater flying radius are now being tested for installation in the service when summer season begins on April 1. Berlin will then be only one day's flying time from practically every other European metropolis. The Moscow schedule is now operating with part of the journey made in night flights.

Non-stop flights will be made from Berlin to Zurich, Vienna and Copenhagen and flights with one intermediate landing between Berlin and London, Paris, Rome, Belgrade, Budapest and Bucharest. Madrid and Constantinople will be an air distance away of only thirty-one hours next summer, although the train schedule requires 120 hours.

The inter-urban planes will be more experimental than otherwise until their practicability has been demonstrated. For these cities the main fields near their centres, such as Berlin, a great saving in time can be effected by using the air route.

More than 100,000 passengers used the Lufthansa service last summer.

Arthur J. Black of Toronto was elected president of the International Association of Clothing Designers at the annual convention in Chicago.

dustrious workers connected with the V. O. N. Mr. Finkle then took the chair and introduced the first speaker of the evening, Miss Elizabeth N. Smellie, B. Sc., Chief Supn. of Victorian Order of Nurses.

Investment for Future

Belleville, said Miss Smellie, had the right idea of success, that is complete co-operation. The speaker congratulated the workers on the success this work was making in the city. Though primarily for the needy the term of nursing was available to all. The Well Baby Clinic was termed an investment in the future by educating mothers in the care of their babies and thus safeguarding the health of the future generation. All nurses and Miss Smellie worked in close harmony with the medical profession. The speaker commended Miss Laurain who is glowing terms of the work done by the V. O. In concluding Miss Smellie extended the thanks of the Association to the Rotarians Club for their help and co-operation during the three years of V. O. N. work in the city.

A vote of thanks moved by Mr. Mac Laurin and seconded by Mr. Griffin was conveyed to the speaker by Mr. Finkle.

Reports Received

Reports read during the evening were as follows:

Annual Report

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen:

I have much pleasure in submitting the 3rd annual report o fthe Victorian Order of Nurses for Canada for the year 1927.

"In comparing the report of 1927 with that of 1926, we find an increase in the work in all its branches.

In 1926 there were 661 patients cared for and 5,413 visits made, while in 1927 there were 697 patients listed and 5,828 visits made. In addition to these 193 were cleaned under Maternity service in some form. 99 were admitted as pupils-in-training and 73 were sent out. 5 were attended during confinement. 20 dismissed to other care and there are 11 still on the books at the end of the year.

There were eighteen emergency obstetrical cases which makes a total of 73 mothers and 73 babies, one still birth and 1 death under 1 year. 1,000 visits were made.

Maternal welfare visits were made to mothers and 305 visits were made principally to infants of obstetrical nursing cases.

163 medical cases were listed, 56 communicable, 66 surgical and 1 interrupt all pregnancies.

There were 2843 nursing visits an increase of 1918 visits over last year of which 421 were free and only a small fee received from many others.

The nursing visits were distributed 916 in Flouded Cliggs, Infant Welfare, 1,415 Public Welfare, 1,000 Social Service, Tuberculosis instruction and other instructive.

The total amount received in fees Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. $611.23, making a total of $1,454.23.

262 Insurance visits were made to insured persons of the Metropolitan Life policy holders of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.,

"Nurses were bedside nursing, we feel that the Well Baby Clinic work has won the confidence of the people and a branch carried on by local staff. A report of this work is being given separately.

We Wish to thank Mrs. Fitzgerald and Mrs. Bird for assistance in helping to make this work a success.

The Chest Clinic under the direction of Dr. Proctor has been continued and carried on throughout the year, 10 were in health total attendances 1,200.

The work of Cannilton school has been successfully carried on. During September and Well Baby Clinics were held every two weeks.

The Victorian Order Nurses Karnival a demonstration was given of Victorian Order preparation with posters, etc. It never before was the public given to explain the work and give advice to mothers who live at a distance from us.

During the week of Belleville Fair a clinic was held in Manufacturers Building. Dr. Proctor assisted by the nurses Dr. Cronk Cronk and Faulkner in attendance.

On December 9th a Christmas tree was held in G. W. V. A. Hall for Anic babies.

69 Social Service calls were made during the year. We appreciate the cooperation of the Police Department and are pleased at any time to assist in any way possible.

We wish to acknowledge the donations, which have been received from time to time.

After school opened we visited Dr. Hoag's dentistry 177 school children at City Hall.

Last year for the first time a nursing committee was formed on the recommendation of Miss Hall and the committee is very much to be congratulated.

We feel deeply indebted to its convener, Mrs. Walter Nation whose whole heart is in the organization and has proved a co-operator. Mrs. Nation has on several occasions opened her home for meetings of the committee and much credit of the success of the Clinic Christmas tree is due to her efforts.

Much regret was felt by the resignation of Mrs. Florence Fitzgerald which took effect during the early days in May. Short serving her connections with this order, which is keenly felt by the public as the work was so efficiently done under her supervision. Miss Slater is new Superintendent of district Lady Willingdon in the list Nations. We extend to her a hearty welcome every success in her new work.

In conclusion I wish to thank the Medical Profession for their support and the Board for their ready co-operation.

(Sgd.) Flossie Hanna.

Clinic Committee

As convener of the clinic committee, I take great pleasure in submitting the second annual report of clinic activities.

Last year has been particularly successful in the Well Baby Clinic work. There has been a decided increase at the Well Baby clinics which were held weekly.

In 1926 there were 28 held with an attendance of 400 while last year 49 were held with a total attendance of 1231, and 35 new cases were registered. Of these 89 were medically examined, the number referred to own physician 61; number instructional consultations conducted—62, (nurse)—190; home visits to clinic cases 78.

Local Men Report Optimism At Ontario Dealers' Convention

A story of the optimism that is felt for 1928 in automobile circles was brought back from this week by Mr. J. T. Warren, local Chevrolet dealer, and his salesman Mr. Albert Paradise, on their return from a convention of the Chevrolet organization from all over Ontario which was held at Toronto. More than a thousand delegates were present, according to Mr. Warren, who reports that all were enthusiastic over the new car.

In an address at the dinner which wound up the Toronto meeting, Ross Mackinnon, Chevrolet's general sales manager, reported that the sales of this General Motors product in Canada last year had increased sixty per cent., attaining a new high record of more than 40,000 cars and trucks. As a result of this tremendous production he reported a millions of dollars' worth of new contracts for parts and materials had been let in Canada.

Encouraging figures on the automobile industry in general were quoted at the meeting by J. E. Fisher, Chevrolet assistant sales manager, who remarked that the average life of a car was six or seven years but that the purchaser of a new car kept his purchase usually for only 2 1-4 years or so when he traded in again. Mr. Fisher touched on the growth of Chevrolet business, which he said had made possible a favorable prosperity for the dealer organization.

One thing which particularly impressed Mr. Warren was a performance put on at the Royal Alexandra Theatre by the "Chevrolet Players", which took the place of the old-fashioned vaudeville bill, and usually such a feature of conventions. From a sparkling revue, in seven scenes, plentifully interspersed with songs and dances, derived both entertainment and instruction. The new Chevrolet was featured on the stage, and the whole meeting is reported to have been permeated with the spirit of the most confidences of the Chevrolet car and the Chevrolet organization.

On Feb. 16 we held our last clinic in the Chamber of Commerce moving into the Y. M. C. A. building under the O.W.V.A., where we have held them since. Here we have a small room, where we keep our supplies locked up.

Starting the first of April a doctor was in attendance at each clinic and we are very grateful to Drs. Cronk, Faulkner, Bowerman, Hall and Morgan for services in this respect.

We had a booth at the Belleville Exhibits and a clinic held there was fairly well attended.

On Dec. 9th the nursing and clinic committees arranged a Christmas tree for the babies, each baby was invited to attend and each mother and older child ren bags of candy, nuts and oranges. Mrs. Fred Smythe was in charge. Over Four special prizes were given for the best attendance throughout the year. Three came in entitled to the mothers and were greatly appreciated Prizes for the most improved baby and the nursing committee at two tea and a shower and several donations.

Nine client clinics were held under the direction of Dr. A. D. Proctor with a total attendance of 57.

Respectfully submitted.

(Sgd.) Beatrice Fitzgerald.

Fifty-Ninth Annual Meeting of The Royal Bank of Canada

Sir Herbert Holt, President, in Annual Address, Points Out That Improved Situation Abroad, Taken Together With Well-Established Prosperity At Home, Constitutes a Propitious Combination of Conditions Favorable to Continued Progress.

C. E. Neill, General Manager, Reviews Statement, Which Shows Total assets at $894,663,903, the Greatest in the History of the Bank—Advises Financial Institutions and Firms to Endeavor to Curb Unwise Speculation.

The annual General Meeting of shareholders of The Royal Bank of Canada marked the close of the most successful year in the history of the bank.

Sir Herbert Holt in his address dealt more particularly with general conditions throughout the country, but touched on many developments of great importance, more especially from the standpoint of trade and industry.

Mr. Neill reviewed the growth of the Bank to the foremost position it now occupies and gave to the shareholders an interesting insight into the part the bank is playing in all centres in which it is now doing business.

Sir Herbert Holt, President, in addressing the shareholders, said in part:

"I regret having to announce the resignation of the Hon. R. B. Bennett, K.C., M.P., a director whose knowledge and broad experience both in the east and west, made his counsel at all times valuable to the Bank. Our loss is somewhat tempered by the realization that his great ability will now be devoted to the service of the country.

"Those who were most careful in their studies of world economic trends were forced to the conclusion that a return to world stability in commerce and finance would be accompanied by such a rising tide of demand for the products of Canada's fields, forests and mines as would assure a prolonged period of prosperity. Improved investment in agriculture, mining, manufacture and internal and external trade which has characterized the years 1926, 1926 and 1927, has done much to vindicate the good judgment of this leadership.

"It is only natural that this general prosperity should be reflected also in a pervading spirit of optimism. In every part of the country one finds an improved tone in business, a more aggressive attitude towards expansion and greater faith in the opportunities afforded by foreign trade. And yet, there are no indications of industrial and commercial inflation. Production is not expanding to a point where supplies are likely to exceed the demand. It is a noteworthy fact that this whole expansion has taken place during a period which has been characterized by a moderate decline in prices. On the whole, the fundamental situation in agriculture, industry and commerce is more stable than at the beginning of the period. However, it is well to be necessary to give a word of warning and caution against inflation in security and commodity speculation.

Constructive Policy of Finance Minister

"In a growing country there is strong tendency to expand government activities and to increase government expenditures. The Minister of Finance is to be greatly congratulated on reducing various taxes and on cutting down the net debt by $60,000,000 between October 31st, 1926 and October 31st, 1927. While the government should be given full credit for what it has accomplished, it is important that all capital expenditures should be kept down to a minimum. No action at present can do more towards maintaining stable prosperity than government economy and reduction of taxation, especially by this means can the country hope to throw off the enormous burden of debt incurred during the year.

"Increased business activity and the growth of our business have resulted in a higher profits, the best in the history of the Bank. Provision has been made for bad and doubtful debts and $1,800,821.81 is carried forward as profit and loss account.

Helping Foreign Trade

"An interesting item in our balance sheet is the substantial amount of Letters of Credit outstanding. Figures under this heading are usually not a great deal smaller than the combined figures of the other Canadian chartered banks. Our Canadian Letter of Credit business is quite important and in addition our number of branches in the West Indies and South America have occasion to issue many credits in connection with the financing of foreign trade. A good proportion of our transactions of this nature however, arises from our operations in the leading financial centres of the world, especially London and New York. Acceptances of this class is of a particularly desirable and self-liquidating character, so that its growth during the last few years gives cause for satisfaction.

NECESSITY OF CURBING UNWISE SPECULATION

In commenting on the annual statement Mr. Neill referred at length to the importance of call loans, which represent bank deposits, and exchange collateral, not only of the Royal Bank, but of all banks. He pointed out that this was indicative of three things:

"1. Increase in the number of securities available to investors.

"2. Increase in the market value of securities.

"3. Increase in speculation.

"In a growing country the development of its resources produces new securities. Pros perous times result in a enhancement in value of securities and for these reasons it is clear that the call loan has functioned causes for the increase in Call Loans are at least to some extent due to No. 1 and to the third, it is obvious that speculation has reached a dangerous stage. The best-informed financial and brokerage firms in the country are insisting on an unusually conservative basis by reason of increased margins, by declining to open new accounts and by restricting the liability of their customers to reasonable amounts. In times of excessive speculation the habit of easy profits cannot be denied but speculation can be curbed and held within reasonable bounds by the financial interests, particularly the banks and bond and brokerage houses.

"The increase in deposits is $100,775,803.61, but included in this figure are several large temporary amounts Apart from these special deposits the growth has been substantial and shows the steady progress we are making. It may be said that during the past year we have secured more valuable new accounts and connections than in any previous year.

"Perhaps the most striking item in the statement is the increase of $27,797,803.61 in commercial loans in Canada. In times of great business activity, increased loans calls for additional banking accommodation. As our business is largely commercial the substantial increase in loans is the inevitable result of prosperity through out the country.

"The liquid position of the Bank has been fully maintained. Our holdings of cash including bank balances equals 23.12% of liabilities to the public, while our total liquid assets as which Canada offers for new develop- 57.33% of liabilities to the public, as compared with 54.84% last year.

"Increased business activity and the growth of our business have resulted in a higher profits, the best in the history of the Bank. Provision has been made for bad and doubtful debts and $1,800,821.81 is carried forward as profit and loss account.

"Viewing reward to the opportunities ments, we may expect outside investors, particularly in Great Britain and the United States, to continue to find their money in this country. The unfortunate experience of some of the British investors who made ill-advised commitments in land boom period preceding the war, undoubtedly affected their attitude in financial circles in the Old Country.

"Everything possible should be done to guard against repetition of this situation. I strongly urge anyone in Great Britain who has investments in Canada under consideration, to seek the advice of a Canadian bank or a reputable investment house familiar with Canadian conditions. While, in the case of such speculative ventures as mining, neither a bank nor an investment house might be in a position to forecast the prospects of success, they could at least give an opinion on the standing and integrity of those connected with the enterprise."

SAP IN JANUARY

Kingston, Ont., Jan. 17.—Sap is flowing in the sugar maples in this district, and if the mild weather continues for a few days, farmers may establish a new record by gathering January made maple syrup. Syrup has been made here in February, old-timers say, but never in January.

Respectfully submitted.

Frank H. Bird,
Secretary.

FIRST SUBMARINE 200 YEARS AGO

Was Used During War Of Revolution For Yankee Independence

Bridgeport, Conn.—An old story, pop ular in this state after the War of the Revolution, was recalled recently when a piece of metal, said to have been a fragment of the first submarine used in this country as a weapon of warfare, was presented to the Metropolitan Museum of New York.

The story credits the operation of The first submarine used in America to a Connecticut arm sergeant, called a Yankee engineer by the British, and next led to posterity but the record of his deeds ti extend.

Near the end of June, 1776, the British fleet neared New York, after being delayed in Halifax awaiting reinforcements from England, and to construct its progress some marine opposition had been organized but it was insufficient.

In a yard at Saybrook, Connecticut, a queer kind of boat was being completed. It was unlike anything anyone had ever seen before. Davis Bushnell, A.M., of Saybrook, was the inventor and he had designed the craft for submarine warfare. And once he showed that it would perform as Bush nell said it would.

The sole occupant that could be accommodated was captain and crew. The power was a hand propeller that could provide by hand as he rowed horizontally under the water at "any desired depth, course, direction or will."

The armament of this freak of water craft consisted of one powder magazine which today would appear as and has the function of a mine. This magazine was so designed that it could be fastened to the bottom of a ship as the submersible passed beneath it.

It was provided with a driving screw which operated in such a way that the stroke which disengaged it from the submarine, fastened it into the enemy and would set in motion a clock-work time fuse to explode the charge at the proper time.

The night chosen for the "attack" on the "Eagle" the inventor ill and unable to make the hazardous trip. His brother was then instructed in the ways and means of operating the craft but, strange to say, he too became ill and could not go.

At this point the' army sergeant was asked to make the attempt and he gladly accepted. He set sale and up to the "Eagle" aboard which was Lord Howe, admiral of the British fleet.

In rising into position under the 64-gun warship, however, the screw hit an iron plate and could not penetrate the bottom. The delay thus caused found dawn on the near by ships and the attempt was abandoned, after the powder magazine was set loose.

The sergeant made shore and had just stepped out of his craft when a column of water, accompanied by a loud report, rose near the side of the "Eagle." The inventor thereafter found much amusement in the wonder of the people who tried to explain the explosion by calling it a meteor, a waterspout, the result of an earthquake, and various other things.

Circumstances arose which prevented another try on the part of the intrepid sergeant and the craft never set out on such a mission again.

SECRETARIES ARE ENJOYING JAUNTS

London (by Mail)—Some of His Majesty's Secretaries of State seem to be taking quite considerable advantage of being thought essential to the economic scheme of things.

It was at one time considered improper for any Secretary of State or other high officer to be out of the British Isles for anything more than a few days at the most, and this belief rested, no doubt, on the assumption that if the powers that be did not attend in person to the affairs of state those affairs would be neglected.

Latterly, however, we have had an interesting situation. Owing to the circumstance that Sir Lamine Worthington Evans, the Secretary for War, has gone to India, he that trip necessary or

ALL FIGHT OVER NEW PRAYER BOOK

London, Eng.—Whatever may be the fate of the merits or demerits of the new Church of England Prayer Book, which, after many months of ecclesiastical and lay controversy passed the House of Lords, but met with unexpected disaster in the Commons, it is certain that the "affairs" must to some greater or lesser degree affect upon the Anglican communications in the Dominions.

One thing at least clearly emerges. That is that the division, the schism what you will, between various sections of sincere and well-meaning religious folk remains in essentials as marked as it did when the Prayer Book now sought to be revised came into use in the Church over two centuries ago. Men and women in High Church, Low Church, Broad Church, even members of the Church of Rome or Wesleyan Methodist and other great communions without the Church of England have taken part and that no minor one in the controversy.

In the welter of argument one phase of the proposed book which has persisted through the ages on such occasions, whether triumphant for the moment or not, has again been manifested—Episcaumen of the hierarchy.

Above all matters which one thing is clear, and clearly during the week in Parliament and out of it, and that is the astonishing political dexterity of the 70-year-old primate, the Archbishop of Canterbury. In spite of debate the Canterbury has never made it manifest that the interest of ecclesiastics in the affairs of Heaven is in no way inconsistent with an active comprehension of the affairs of Earth.

LIVESTOCK HAS HAD BIG CHANGE

Used To Be Shaggy Elephants And Buffalo— Wild Animals

Cambridge, Mass.—Three thousand years ago the livestock that roamed the hills and dales of New England was somewhat different than at present, according to Professor Harry W. Shimer of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who has made a study of geological investigation of several sections of New England.

Along the banks of the Connecticut Professor Shimer found that the most common animals were those of forage. But in those times the climate of Massachusetts was much warm as it is at the coast of Virginia now." He based his conclusions on the presence of marine animals that have gone dug up from the soil beneath the city of Boston. Some of the shells that were found indicated that nine-inch oysters frequented this section in days gone by.

In the Tertiary period the Eohippus, the ancestor of the modern horse, which stood about two feet high, was common in New England along with camels and various species of the elephant family, according to Professor Shimer.

QUINTE ELECTRICIANS AND POINT ANNE WIN CITY LEAGUE GAMES

Dispose Of Intelligencer And Moose In Close Scoring

TWO TONIGHT

Fine Crowd Witness Double Bill—League Standing

Two close games were played in the City League last night, the Point Anne team disposing of the Moose in a hard-fought battle by a score of 1-0 while in the night-cap affair the Intelligencer Black Hawks lost to the Quinte Electricians. A fair crowd turned out and were well pleased with the games.

Another double-header will be played tonight commencing at eight o'clock. The Tigers will lock horns with the Imperial Oil in the opener, while Alemite will stack up against Ciacos in the nine o'clock affair. These games were scheduled for Wednesday night but will be run off tonight instead despite the fact that the R.M.C. game has been postponed.

Alex Weir did the only scoring of the curtain-raiser when he bunted one past Lloyd in the second chukker. Both teams fought hard throughout the remainder of the game but should not break into the score column. The Moose, piloted by Cy Young, missed some lovely chances to score in the third frame but Smart tended a nice game and would not let the bars down.

Weir, Maracle and Green were the pick of the Point Anne crew while Wardhaugh, Amo and St. Denis were the best of the herd.

Point Anne (1)		Moose (0)
Smart	Goal	Lloyd
Green	Defence	Amo
Brant	Centre	Wardhaugh
Duval		Twomley
Maracle	Wings	St. Denis
A. Weir		A. Young
Strachan	Subs	Baker
McDonald		Lapperstett
Powell		Ross

Quinte Electricians turned in a nice game against the Intelligencer and took advantage of their opportunities to score. The Black Hawks, had they combined, would have attained better results. Johnny Canning bagged two of the winner's goals while anticipated Ted Whalen managed to slap the other one in from the edge of the cage. It was a nice fast game and manager Lorne Cook of the Inkids was more than pleased with the fact that the Quintes were held to three goals. J. Canning, Whalen and Symons were the best of the winners while W. Hopping, H. Canning, Sid Hopping and O'Donahue starred for the Inkids. Harry Canning scored the Intelligencer's only goal two minutes after the start of the game. Boland turned them all aside. Therefore:

Quinte		Intell

Canning		Hopping
Whalen	Centre	H. Canning
Symons	Wings	Brown
J. Canning		O'Donahoe
Latchford	Subs	S. Hopping
Wessels		Wilson
Hibbard		O'Brien

Ken. Colling handled the ball in both games.

THIS MAID DOESN'T EXPECT GREAT DEAL

London.—Canada offers much reduced transportation rates to English domestic servants. It would be interesting to know if this writer fell in following reply to an advertisement inserted by an Enfield (North London) household, would be willing to emigrate:

"I am 18 years old. I can play the piano and am very fond of dancing. I am fond of writer-and should require the least speaker extension in my bedroom. I would like my Sundays off, as I am an ex-Territorial, and I do you would not mind my young man vis iting at the week-end during the winter I would gladly give up my church school work."

TONIGHT'S GAMES IN CITY LEAGUE

Imperials Stack Up Against Tigers—Alemite Meet Ciaco's

Two more city league games are down on the card at the arena tonight with the Tigers clashing with the Imperial Oil in the first tilt at 8 p.m. while the Alemite will meet the Ciacos at 9 p.m.

These games were scheduled for Wednesday evening but with the uncertain prevailing weather conditions Manager Carl Arnold arranged for the boys to get at it tonight. The Imperial Oil last their initial game and are out to redeem themselves over the Bengals but Manager Jimmie Hedger states that his boys will not let score their first win also. The Imperials were out on the blades for an hour last night and Manager Don Roe is of the opinion that the Marcwubles will hang up a victory. The aliemen will trot out in their new jerseys tonight which were donated by deliy Nelson and Rus Harker officials of the Belleville Ice.

The Alemite hold a slight edge over the Ciacos but nevertheless the Cootie vile squad will furnish plenty of opposition for the Eastenders. Manager Art Young claims his boys were not at their best on the ice be the other evening and will do to better advantage tonight. Scott and Utronke the two new lads will line-up with the Alemites tonight. These pairs will be well worth witnessing. The double-header last night was a thriller from start to finish and to-night's should be even better.

The beautiful trophy donated by Mr. W. C. Leybourne, local optometrist is on display in the window of McGuigan's Jewelry store and the boys are out after it hot-foot The cup must be won three years in succession in order that it may be retained.

The City League teams have won favor with the public both on the ice and a large turn-out is promised tonight.

RECREATION BOWLING

One Senior and one Junior League game were rolled on the alleys at the Recreation Alleys last night and in both games the winners counted three points.

In the Junior game the Quinte B's won three points from the Ciaco, the former finishing strong in the last game to count one point and failing by but a small count from winning on the total. High bowlers were Kiser 252, and Liberty 562.

The Seniors made a very poor show ing in their game last night when the Rovers won three points from the Wolves on the round of score. But although the scores were low the games were very exciting after the first game to count one point and failing by but a small count from winning on the total. High bowlers were Kiser 252, and Liberty 562.

The Seniors made a very poor show ing in their game last night when the Rovers won three points from the Wolves on the round of score. But although the scores were low the games were very exciting after the first game to count one point and failing by 205 pins; in the second game the Wolves won this game by a count of one pin and in the third game, the Rovers taking this game by 205 pins; in the second game the Wolves won this game by a count of one pin and in the third game, the Rovers taking this game by 205 pins; in the final game it was nip and tuck all the way, the Rovers and the Wolves going into the third break in the last frame with five pins apiece. The point by Taylor for the Rovers and Bryant for the Wolves were the best bowlers.

Senior League

Tonight at the Recreation Alleys Mayor M. P. Duff will officially open the Central Ontario Bowling League when the local bowlers take on the Kingston Five at 8.30 o'clock. This league is composed of Belleville, Trenton and Kingston and is on its third year, the local bowlers winning the large Cup two consecutive years and with the bowlers that are defending the cup this year they should make it three in a row. The following are the players who will line up against Kingston tonight: C. Anderson, C. Cornell, C. Stratton, J. Yerex and F. Austin.

CADETS WON

Royal Military College Spring Surprise of Season at Kingston

Royal Military College sprung the first real surprise package of the current season when they defeated the Kingston Frontenacs in an overtime game last night in the Limestone City, by a score of 8-7. This makes two defeats for the Frontenacs and will even up the race. As a result of this victory Eddie Thomas, manager of the locals, is all smiles and chuckles. The Cadets will be reckoned with before the season is over.

CADETS CANNOT COME WEDNESDAY

Postponement Forced By Varsity Grads-Kingston Game

Eddie Thomas received word last evening that the Royal Military College will not be able to play here on Wednesday evening owing to the fact that some of the playerswill be out with the line-up to meet the Varsity Grads at the Jock Harty arena.

This puts another crimp in the local schedule and leaves two intermediate games to be played at a later date besides one Junior fixture. The manager-ment may have a big job to work the games in should the weather interfere again.

Meanwhile the team is down to hard work and spend a busy hour at the arena last night. The boys are all feeling fine again after a week's lay-off and, with Kingston billed for Belleville on Friday night a hot argument should ensue. Previous to Belleville games are always looked forward to with more than the usual interest and this one should be no exception as the locals are hoping to avenge themselves for the 9-3 trimming handed them a week ago.

The ice was in excellent condition last night and a real treat in store for all joyed by the boys.

The management of the Maroons have been running into plenty of illluck of late. First it was the weather to interfere, and just when the fellows were looking pretty the Cadets send a wire that they cannot play here. How ever no time will be lost in getting the very best of shape for the game on Friday night and it should be a lulu-botcher. There is a possibility that the Junior game postponed from last week may be played on Wednesday although no definite word to this effect has been received at the time of writing.

Kingston with it's artificial ice is going merrily on unmindful of the weather and the schedule is being followed to the closest degree.

FANS URGED TO ATTEND MEETING

Every Supporter in Belleville Asked To Turn Out Tonight

Temporary officers of the Belleville Intermediate Football Club are expecting a big turn-out for tonight's meeting in the city hall when plans will be launched for the coming season. A manager will probably be appointed and the various offices will be filled. Prospects have not been brighter for some years than they are at the present time and Belleville fans may expect some real ball this summer. Entries for the Central Ontario League must be in the hands of Secretary A. J. Thompson by February 1st. Oshawa, Peterboro, Lindsay and Bellevile are sure-starters with an amalgamated team from Port Hope and Cobourg a possibility.

Senior baseball was at it's height in Belleville five or six years ago and about the time of Williams, Jake Solomon, Whitehouse and others, things went with a bang.

Oshawa slogoula communicated with Glues in connection with the result that a meeting was called at Port Hope when the Central Ontario league was officially organized. Belleville was represented by a strong delegation at the meeting and a fresh interest in the game was born.

Officers were honored with offices.

Oshawa, Kingston and Peterboro have been organized, and although Belleville supporters will, it is hoped be out in force. The temporary Committee headed by W. S. Rowland has been working hard and a great deal has been accomplished.

With Oshawa, Peterboro and Kingston back in the field the old-time rivalry will be revived. Belleville have been losing no time in getting down the way and a team training will likely be held this year.

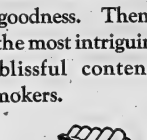

The new Ford will carry you comfortably just as fast as you want to go—sixty miles per hour if you like, and forty in second gear. Belleville Motors can demonstrate a car to you right now, and they advise placing your order immediately for later delivery.

Kingston Frontenacs with "Boun cer" Hodey in charge favorite with Kingston audiences will be here on Friday night. The "Bouncer" has been going great this year in fact it is one of the best seasons of his entire career and he and Stan Hagerman will complete their bumping line of the local ice-box on Friday night.

Many from Belleville will attend the Varsity Grad-Kingston game at the Jock Harry arena tomorrow night. The Grads will stack up against the best that Kingston can produce and it should be a smart battle. Canada's representatives at the Olympics this year are at least as strong as in former years and they will not likely meet with any great opposition from the other nations. The Grads will stop off at Kingston on their way to Halifax and they will not likely meet with defeat. Kingston fols banquet the Grads after the game.

City league games drew a nice audience last night and with two more games scheduled for tonight the attendance should be even better.

Corbyville fans are strongly behind their team and when the Ciaco step out against the Alemite in the night-cap affair there will be a few supporters of the green-clad boys on the side-lines.

Did you see the beautiful new trophy donated by W. C. Leybourne for competition in the city league? It is reposing in McCurdy's window.

Belleville basket-ball fans will get an eye-full when the Queen's team hooking up with the locals at the Y court tomorrow evening. The locals coached by Herb Scott, form erly with the Toronto Centrals are in the pink of shape following their win over the Napanee crowd. The tricolor will present an impsoing array and Armstrong, Weir and Company will have their work cut out for them. An old boys game will precede the main attraction as a preliminary.

Baseball fans in the city are being rounded up for the big get-together in the City Hall tonight. Everyone is cordially invited and although the officials cannot inform everyone personally the attendance of every loyal supporter of ball in the city is desired tonight.

Deseronto ice-races will be held next month and enthusiasts are looking forward to a revival of the old-time sport. Ice racing was at one time one of the popular forms of sport in this locality but little has been heard of it of late years.

Entries for the Central Ontario Baseball league must be in the hands of Secretary Thompson by February 15.

Notices are being sent out by Secretary A. J. Walsh of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association that February 15th is the last day for ball players who have changed their residence since the closing of the 1927 playing season, to file notice of their change and the reason for doing so. Many ball players were last year refused clearing certificates owing to not having filed with the Association notice of their change of residence and a word to the wise should be sufficient. The O.B.A.A. constitution says the player must file notice, not the club, and this is a very important point for every ball player to note

Oshawa rugbyists are not letting any grass grow under their feet, even if this is spring-like weather. Plans for next season are already under way, so reports say, and several of these have come to the surface. One that is openly talked about at the Capital is that "Hill" Hughes former Montrealer, and star wel-known Queen's coach during the palmy years of the Tricolor as Canadian champs, will be coaching for the Rough Riders. Another story is to the effect that "Irish" Mooney has, on the part of the former, with Queen's but out of the end-of-the-season game between the Gaels, will return to the Capital and will line up with the Senators in the autumn. So much for the pre-season rugby gossip.

With the Toronto Grads, last year's winners of the Canadian Senior Amateur Hockey Championship, to leave shortly for Switzerland, where they will take on all comers for the amateur hockey championship of the world, with good prospects of victory, the all-Canadian senior and junior championships 19 be decided in Ottawa and Toronto respectively, between full-blooded Canadian teams to win the honors Canadian teams to win thehonors. In the two pro leagues, Canadian hockey teams should be sitting pretty on the top of the world before the sun shines on both sides of the fence for the spring training of the amateur outdoor sport clubs.

NICK ALTROCK IS COMEDIAN KING

It seems that Nick Altrock, baseball's foremost clown, who is now touring vaudeville with his partner, Al Schacht, and Scout Joe Engle, never runs out of humor. This one comes from Pittsburg, where Nick got it off during the last World's Series, when the New York Yanks were trimming the Pirates, and he was occupying a seat in the press box.

To set the scene right for the yarn, it must be known that Nick has never quite gotten over the beating the Pirates administered to the Senators in the 1925 Series. He still holds quite a package of grudge against Pittsburg. The incident about to be related added to his bundle.

During a nice morning before one of the games, Nick was out golfing with Paul Kaemmerlen, a Pittsburg friend. Nick is anything but a slouch when it comes to golfing. He had just finished a beautiful drive and he and Kaemmerlen were talking of the beautiful lay which Nick had managed for his next shot.

While the admiration bee was going on, a car drove up by the side of the links and out stepped the driver, a dapper sort of a golfer. He calmly walked over to Nick's ball, picked it from its pretty lay, and, after feeling it up, drove off! Nick hopped into his car, bound for a point near the next-tee.

It was too much for Nick. "These Pittsburghites have me walking off on Jesse James. He at least used a horse. Now they do it with cars."

* * *

Jeff Pfeffer, Toledo pitcher, drove his car to the Dallas meeting of the minor leagues, from Chicago in the near-record time of two days and three hours. And on the return trip to Arkansas, Jeff was brought to a dead stop by an ominous looking mud hole which stretched down the road ahead for several hundred feet.

Just as the car stopped, a solemn native with two even more solemn mules, showed up from behind a clump of trees.

"Stranger," said the rustic, "that there's a darn bad spot. But I tell you what I'll do. I'll pull you through there with these here mules, and it'll only cost you two dollars."

Pfeffer pondered a moment, and then started his engine. "Guess I'll try to make it," said the pitcher. "You can pull me if I get stuck."

"Hey, there, just a minit—" said the farmer, striding into the road in front of the car. "I'll pull you through for two dollars now, but if you go in there of yer own accord and git stuck, it's finished my proposition—" and the farmer, striding into the road in front of the car. "I'll pull you through for two dollars now, but if you go in there of yer own accord and git stuck, it's going to cost you $20 to git pulled out, you betcher!"

Rumor has it that at a remote period in his career, Pfeffer had played the game of poker. He knew a bluff when he heard it. The car-towing business evidently wasn't so good.

"I'm just as game as you are, old boy," answered Jeff. "I'll just bet that $20 against the $2 I was going to give you, that I can make it. Good-bye." And the car went through the mud on its own power.

RADIO REGULATION PROVED SUCCESSFUL

Marion, Ohio.—Marion's radio device for regulating city water pressure believed the only system of its kind in existence, has proved successful after more than a year's experimental operation, according to officials of the Marion Water Company.

The device connects the uptown office of the company with its plant three miles away and through code signals transmitted from the pressure gauge at the uptown office the water pressure is maintained at the proper standard.

The transmitting device at the office operates automatically every half an hour, running for a two minute period as engineers at the plant tunes in on the receiving set and ascertains the exact water pressure. The equipment is so designed that wave lengths ear respond with the amount of pressure and the code sounds when the pointer on the dial reaches the proper figure.

The system was perfected through experiments conducted by George Way ball, general manager, and his son, Charles C. Whysall, company's chemist.

GREAT UNIVERSITY RACE DAY IS SET

London, (By Mail)—Contrary to all expectations the annual boat-race between Oxford and Cambridge universities will be rowed on a Saturday, this year, March 31st.

There is a flaw in the arrangement, however, for the race, on account of the tides, will have to be rowed about 9 or 10 o'clock in the morning (London time). Consequently only a comparative few of the thousands of people from all over the country will witness the event.

It was previously feared that on account of the tides the race would have to be rowed on a Wednesday, which would have been even worse from the point of the spectators.

Only once in seventeen years has the race been rowed in mid-week—in 1910 when it was rowed over on a Monday in 1912 after both boats had sunk.

RUSSIANS FEAR OF STRAY SHOT

Frightened By Recollection Of Assassination At Geneva

New York.—With the return of officials who attended the recent meeting of the League of Nations at Geneva, an interesting story has come to light regarding the visit of the Russian delegation, which startled and puzzled the conference by proposing immediate and complete disarmament of all nations.

The delegation was housed in a wellknown hotel. With the recollection of the assassination in Geneva two years ago, every precaution was taken that should be no repetition of the incident. The hotel where the Russians lived was stationed throughout with detectives and guards, and special officers followed the delegation wherever they went. The Russians were allotted a special dining room and took their meals in private.

Fear of a stray bullet, coupled with resentment at the distrustfulness of the Russians, made quiet of the hotel, but many guests to change their hotel. The Communist delegation had reserved quarters there and they arrived in the middle of the fuss. Senator Dandurand was assisted out to live there. He did not change his quarters however, He is said to have remarked, when asked if a bullet intended for somebody else, I suppose Canada will be entitled to apologize."

SCOTT'S EMULSION

HOUSEKEEPING EASY IN SOUTHERN SEAS

London—Housekeeping in the South Sea Islands requires a great deal of hustling and energy, says Lady Hastings who has just returned from the island of Morres, where she went two years ago as a bride. The day begins at six o'clock, with breakfast at seven.

She is the daughter of an Italian marquis, and when she settled down in her new home she had never been in a kitchen more than a few moments at a time. Her husband, heir to the Earl of Huntingdon, ran a plantation there.

"Our coral house in the South Seas sounds so idyllic that it might be the creation of some ultra-romantic imagination," said Lady Hastings.

"Such a mundane word as "housekeeping" probably never enter one's mind in connection with it. Yet keep house I did, while my husband superviised the work outdoors.'

The Hastings had two Chinese and a Tahitian as servants.

"The only difficulty about catering was that as the boat crossed from Tahiti only twice a week the consignment had to be planned a week ahead. One boat took the orders and the next delivered them. From civilized Tahiti I ordered fresh meat on ice, New Zealand butter and canned fruits and vegetables."

Regarding the daily routine Lady Hastings said:

"In that climate, tempered by trade winds from the sea, no afternoon siesta interrupted our round of work and sailing and swimming, excepting in January and February when the land from the combined effects of heavy rain and heat had to be slept off every afternoon."

EAGLES MENACE TO AEROPLANES

Attack Machine Or Aviator And Do Much Damage

Croydon, England.—Eagles, startled by invasion of their aerial preserves, have become a menace to flyers in Europe, Bird societies of the British Isles and associations of airmen alike have set out to collect information which it is hoped will help aviators themselves from danger of attack by the birds.

Some of the adventures of aviators with eagles have been harrowing in the extreme, even to the point of fatality. The eagle seems to have no fear of an airplane much bigger than itself.

A British aviator was flying high over a chain of hills in misty weather when he saw a great bird dashing straight at his plane. Without slackening speed the eagle dove for the machine and collided with the propeller, breaking it to pieces. The eagle was killed, but the airman was in great difficulties in having to make a forced landing in awkward country.

Another British pilot encountered a huge eagle over a mountain range. The eagle flew around the plane in circles, growing ever less in diameter, evidently trying to tick out the most vulnerable part of the plane for an attack. The pilot moved his head, and this caught the eye of the eagle, who prepared for the swoop. The pilot remembered a pistol in the locker near his seat. He drew it and fired. He did not hit the eagle, but he frightened it, and the big bird flew away.

The mountains behind Athens contain eagles of particularly pugnacious character. An aeroplane was flying over the mountains recently when several eagles swooped down and attacked it simultaneously. Their dashes at the machine so crippled it that the pilot was forced to descend quickly, and landed so badly that he and a pas senger were injured.

A pilot flying from Paris to Madrid met an eagle which apparently challenged him to a high flying contest. The bird soared, and so did the plane higher and higher they went, until the eagle's wings began to flag and its strength failed. The eagle suddenly closed its wings and sailed away to earth, leaving the plane master.

Even smaller birds, such as swifts, prove no fear of a plane, according to other British pilots.

A LITTLE PREMATURE

Montreal, Que., Jan. 17.—A caterpillar appearing on Montreal streets months before the usual annual invasion of such insects, was seen here picking its way along Decarie Boulevard. Heavy snow was falling at the time, but this form of weather had just suppleanted an unseasonable mild spell which is believed to have been responsible for the premature box of the cater pillar.

POLICEWOMAN IS GOOD FOR MALES

But The Women Do Not Take Arrest So Easily

London.—Big strong men will when arrested by a police woman, says Commandant Mary S. Allen, head of the woman's auxiliary corps who has been doing police work since 1914. Women, taken into custody, cause considerably more trouble, she says.

Commandant Allen, a striking figure in her uniform and who wore a trim Eton crop long before that mode of hair dressing became fashionable, told a meeting here that the public had acquired a false confidence that conditions of the streets were improving. It is her belief that things are getting worse.

In opposing suggestions that the women police of London should discard their uniforms and that their duties should be restricted, the commandant said she had never had any thing to fear when arresting men as the uniform helped to give the police woman every appearance of authority.

"There is a tendency to make a women's auxiliary corps into a body of official rescue workers attached to the police force and we resent this," said Commandant Allen.

"We want the same status as the policeman, and we want the right to wear a uniform when this is necessary.

Commandant Allen said it had often been said that a woman was not equal to dealing with men in the streets, and, if necessary, arresting them.

"I have never, since I took up this work, had any violence used to my at all," she said. "I once had my cap knocked off, but that is a temptation for any member of the community.

"I could tell hundreds of stories of how, during the war, and since, I have been called upon to settle a street fight. From the physical point of view we have no need to fear any man or woman.

BACKACHES WERE SLOWLY KILLING ME

"I was almost laid out with the terrible pains and stitches in my back. I had just about given up hope of getting relief when a neighbor gave me a bottle of "St. Jacob's Oil" to rub on my back. I got relief at once and have enjoyed perfect comfort since."

It's a pity that everyone with Backache, Lumbago, Rheumatism and Neuralgia doesn't know about "St. Jacob's Oil," its acts so smoothly. Without burning or blistering the skin, it penetrates to the affected parts and draws out the pain like magic. If you want to know what relief is, go to your drug ist and get a small trial bottle of "St. Jacob's Oil" and apply it to any aching spot.

CHILD VICTIM OF DEIGNTON TRAGEDY WILL RECOVER

Searchers Fail to Find Missing School Girl Heiress --- Fear Mob Violence at Hotelling Trial

INTENSIFY HUNT FOR MISS SMITH

Missing Smith College Freshman Reported From Many Places:

CO-ORDINATE PLANS

One Hundred Students Plan To Join Search For Young Girl

Northampton, Mass., Jan. 18.—Reports that a bundle resembling women's clothing had been seen floating in the canal at Holyoke, sent investigators to that city today in their search for Frances St. John Smith, missing Smith College freshman. More than a hundred Amherst College stud ents planned to participate in the search today.

Commissioner Tukes Charge

Northampton, Mass., Jan. 18.—Acting on direct orders from Governor Fuller, Brig.-Gen. Alfred Foote, State auchusetts commissioner of public safety, was on his way here today to take personal charge of the scattered agencies prosecuting the search for Miss Frances St. John Smith.

Despite abundance of material and willingness of many persons to identify the girl as the one they had seen under a great variety of circumstances since she dropped out of sight here last Friday, little progress has been made.

Investigation, however, seemed temporarily to centre at Philadelphia where five persons said they recognized the nineteen-year-old daughter of a wealthy New York broker.

TOURING FARMERS CREATING INTEREST

London, Jan. 18 (Canadian Press Cable).—The touring Canadian farmers are spending 48 hours visiting Liverpool, Birmingham and other points on the Mersey River and their visit is creating considerable interest. The London paper says of them, "They are dressed like English-men in their 'Sabbath best' except for few, of them who are distributed to the party by wearing fur coats."

POLICE BATTLED FOR 20 MINUTES

Liquor Raid Turned Into Free-For-All—Got Their Men

Port Colborne, Ont., Jan. 18—After a twenty minute police battle in front of his residence, George Rutka was finally arrested last night on a charge of resisting arrest. When police visited his home on a search warrant they found Rutka refused them admission and the raid turned into a free-for-all.

Officers emerged from the fray with numerous bruises and scratches but with their men. Chief of Police Duval was badly bitten and suffered bruises to hands and face.

EXPLOSION VICTIM DIES OF INJURIES

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Jan. 18.—John Hill died last night from injuries he received when Number Three blast furnace of Algoma Steel Corps, exploded yesterday. Five others hurt at the time received only cuts and bruises; the damage amounted to four thousand dollars and number four furnace is being placed in operation so that no stoppage of work will ensue.

JUDGE REFUSES TO TRANSFER THE CASE OF HOTELLING FROM FLINT

State Governor Fears Mob Violence If Prisoner Appears There

Flint, Mich., Jan. 18.—Disposition of the case of Adolph Hotelling, confessed slayer of five year old Dorothy Schneider suddenly became a matter of mystery today with the belief growing that he would be returned to Genesee County (Flint) for Circuit Court hearing. Hope of a chance of venue to be could plead guilty in another county faded when two Genesee judges declared the transfer could not be granted under the law.

Judge Refuses Transfer

Flint, Mich., Jan. 18.—Efforts of prosecutor Grant to have Adolph Hotelling tried outside Genesee County will fail, for the slayer of Dorothy Schneider as a protection against a resurgence of mob violence but a court today which denied Judge Dorsey Green's request for a change of venue to Ingham county.

Judge Brennan, from whom permission to hold the trial elsewhere must be obtained, said he saw no necessity for such a move and that he was opposed to putting the county to the extra expense involved. Dorsey Green was indignant when notified of Judge Brennan's stand and declared it would be brilliantly in force some stating by the prisoner's presence here.

BRIAND'S REPLY DEBATED

Paris, Jan. 18.—Premier Minister Briand's reply to Secretary Kellogg on the part against war was discussed by the cabinet today and its text drafted.

Nothing was revealed as to his phraseology or the date it would be delivered.

FOUR YEARS FOR "UNHOLY THREE"

Brantford, Jan. 18.—Four years in the penitentiary was today imposed on Charles and Cecil Brazier and Leslie Brereton, the "Unholy Three" who pleaded guilty to a total of 48 charges of auto theft and breaking and entering last week and Judge Logie Bence in sentencing with the two years previously given.

SOVIET SPIES ARE GIVEN 10 YEARS AT HARD LABOR

London, England, Jan. 18 (Canadian Press Cable).—Georges Bartenieff, German and Wilfrid P. McCartney, said to be Canadian-American, charged with espionage in behalf of Soviet Russia, were found guilty today by the jury in Old Bailey Court. They were sentenced to ten years penal servitude each.

The men were specifically charged with attempting to collect information about British naval forces, particularly about the Royal Air Force. So important did Attorney General Hogg regard the evidence introduced that he asked that the public be excluded from the trial.

Prepared By War Staff

During yesterday's session in camera the Attorney General showed documents to jury including a questionaire dealing with plans of the air force. He said that this document could only have been composed by a group of persons familiar with their subject such as the war staff of some foreign power.

Throughout the trial the Government contended that Soviet Russia was responsible for instituting the conspiracy to obtain Great Britain's military information.

DEIGNTON BOY IS BURIED TO-DAY

Seven-Year-Old Joan Now Expected To Recover From Wounds

MOTHER UNCONSCIOUS

Has Not Come To During The Four Days Since The Tragedy

Toronto, Jan. 18.—The funeral of four year old Bernard Deignton took place today while his mother lay in a critical condition in Grace Hospital and his seven-year, old sister, Joan, lay near her in the Sick Children's Hospital. The latter is held on a murder charge following this attack on three members of his family last Saturday.

Soon after the attack, Mrs. Deignton was still unconscious today with six compound fractures of the skull, three around a good sized hole with severe head injuries her condition shows little change. She is expected however, to recover.

Better Last Night

Toronto, Jan. 18.—To the watchful eyes of nurses hovering over the semi-conscious form of little Joan Deignton in the Hospital for Sick Children last night, an improvement in the injured child's condition was apparent.

About the middle of last evening the attendants could see indications, slight but definite, that the little child's condition was more favorable. That this improvement was effected without recourse to further blood transfusions was considered evidence of remarkable vitality in the battered little body and officials went so far as to describe the girl's condition as favorable.

At Grace Hospital, where Mrs. Barbara Deignton has been lying unconscious since Saturday, there was little to report. From the first surgeons who described her injuries as probably fatal.

MIDWINTER DAFFODILS IN N. Y.

New York, Jan. 18.—In mid-winter daffodils and lilacs have been commencing their spring growth on the grounds of the New York Botanical Gardens in Bronx Park. This is so unusual that Dr. H. L. Britton, director-in-chief of the garden, issued a bulletin about it today.

MEMORIAL CRAFTSMEN MEET

Toronto, Jan. 18.—The word "tombstones" is to be banned, it was decided today, by the Ontario Association of Memorial Craftsmen meeting here. "Tombstone carvers" are to be known as "memorial craftsmen." The formulation of trade policies for the coming year occupied the members.

ANNUAL MEETING IS HELD TODAY

Agricultural Society Getting Plans Under Way For 1928

The annual meeting of the Agricultural Society opened at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the Council Chamber of the City Hall. The room was packed with members and following the address of the president, the secretary's report was read. Mr. Dick Ketcheson's report was listened to with great interest by all present.

The main object of the meeting this afternoon was to get business for the year of 1928 in line. By press time only the president's address and secretary's report had been completed.

PLANE MISSING HAS COOLIDGE PICTURES

New York, Jan. 18.—The bi-plane carrying news reel films of President Coolidge speaking at Havana and pictures of the 26th Meeting, was reported missing today and an appeal was made to the army air service at Washington to institute a search. The plane left Daytona, Florida, on Monday on a non-stop flight to Mitchell Field. It should have arrived yesterday.

Every Father In Belleville Thinks He Was One Of The "Two"

Belleville, N.J., Jan. 18.—Hundreds of fathers in this New Jersey town are proud. The question, "Who would you like to be if not yourself," was propounded to the schoolboys. Lindbergh had the most ballots, 363. In last place with Messalini and with two votes was "My Dad", but the voting was secret.

HOLD SESSIONS OPEN TO PRESS

Pan-American Conference Lays Down Rule Of No Secrets

Havana, Cuba., Jan. 18.—The Pan-American conference settled down to business today determined upon the policy of "open covenants, openly arrived at". This agreement precludes secret sessions set a notable precedent for large international meetings. Establishment of the rule of public committee meetings and plenary sessions was agreed upon after a session of fifteen of the twenty-one delegations present. It is understood that the conference would approve the proposal as there was no reason to believe that the delegates would reverse the action of the chairman.

KINGSTON HARBOR STILL FREE OF ICE

Kingston, Ont., Jan. 18.—Kingston harbor is still entirely free from ice, and there is considerable speculation as to whether 1928 will see all previous records smashed for the earliest port. The last date recorded is February 2, 1906. The ferry to Wolfe Island is making regular trips every day and will continue until the ice forms.

POPULATION OF DENMARK GROWS

Increase Of 23,000 For Years Inclusive 1926-1927

Montreal, Que. (By C.P.).—The population of Denmark increased 23,000 during the statistical year 1926-27, says the Danish Commercial Review. On the basis of the annual returns of births and deaths in Denmark and the number of emigrations, the population of the country soon July 1, 1927, is estimated at 3,475,000 against 3,452,000 on July 1, 1926, representing an increase of 23,000, or about two-thirds per cent, the paper says.

The figures in the following table the increase last year was considerably below that of the immediate preceding years:

	Number	Increase
1922	3,320,000
1923	3,356,000	34,000
1924	3,389,000	33,000
1925	3,425,000	36,000
1926	3,452,000	27,000
1927	3,475,000	23,000

In the years 1921-26 the average annual increase in the population was 36,000, or about one-fifth per cent. More fell to about 4-5 per cent. For an increase so comparatively small as that recorded during 1927 it is necessary to go back to the beginning of the nineteenth century, the review says. It is found not only in a continued fall in the birth rate, says The Commercial Review, but also in the fact that mortality was a little higher last year than in the two preceding years, and that emigration is showing an increase from year to year.

BYNG GETS A NEW TITLE AND SAVES ALL HIS FEES

London, Jan. 18 (Canadian Press Cable).—Viscount Byng who as Baron Byng of Vimy was Governor-General of Canada from August 11, 1921, to October 2, 1926, and was yesterday gazetted Viscount, received the honor of Viscountcy in 1926 but declined to pay the fees required in connection with the new honor, which was held up in consequence.

He explained at the time that prominent politicians who had received honors from the King had paid nothing in connection therewith. Hence he declined to pay attendant fees for his Viscountcy. His friends took up his cause with the result announced yesterday that he had been gazetted a viscount, with all fees remitted.

Fees are payable for a patent of nobility and they range according to degree, as follows: Duke £730, Marquis £630, Earle £530, Viscount £430, with additional fees to dependencies other than the Crown Office.

EX-SUPT. CLAIMS IT IS FRAME-UP

Harley Elliott of Oshawa Appealing From Three Year Term

Toronto, Jan. 18.—Argument commenced in the First Divisional Court today on the appeal of Harley Elliott, Superintendent of the Children's Aid Society at Oshawa. Even his conviction and sentence to three years in penitentiary for an unnatural offence against a 13-year-old boy, a ward of the Society, T. N. Phelan, K.C., acted on behalf of the appellant. It was pointed out that though the offence was alleged to have occurred in May, 1926, in the course of a motor trip to Lindsay, the charge was not tried until November, 1927.

The appellant's contention was that the charge was a "frame up" but in reply to a question from Sir William Mulock, appellant's counsel, admitted there was no evidence of ill will.

POLICE SEARCHING FOR MR. ROY SCOTT

Police in the north country are scouring the country for a man named Roy Scott who is alleged to have committed a serious offence against a young girl. Scott was in the custody of County Constable Wormworth and after escaping he is believed to have made his way back to his old home. Police were watching the trains bound from the south and the west did not put in an appearance. The offence is believed to have been committed near Arden. Scott is a trapper.

Fourth Attempt To Break Endurance Flight Record May Succeed

TRY FOR 60 HOURS

Flying From Detroit To Cuba For a Little Holiday

Ottawa, Jan. 18.—Flight Commander of Lawrence, reported in a number of morning papers today to be lost in the vicinity of Hudson Straits Air Base and whose plane is reported to have been found, was not "lost", according to a statement issued today by Air Vice Johnson, Deputy Minister of Marines and Fisheries. Lawrence, while flying from Wakeham Bay to Nottingham Island on Jaanuary 9, landed at Little Soghik owing to unfavorable flying conditions and returned to Wakeham Bay yesterday.

No apprehension was felt for his safety but he could not be communicated with during the time he was at Little Soghik as communication can only be established at several bases while planes are in the air.

Fly to Cuba

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 18.—Austin Bement, Detroit aviator, and Frank and Leonard Flo, chief pilot for a local flying club, took off from Selfridge Field at 10.42 a.m. today on a proposed nonstop flight to Havana, Cuba. Bement announced he was making thirsty for a "few days vacation".

Trying Fourth Time

San Francisco, Jan. 18.—Nbit twenty four hours after taking off on a fourth attempt to establish a world record for sustained flight the monoplane "spirit of California" reported by radio to Mills Field here at 8.59 a.m. today that "All is well". The big tri-motored Fokker Monoplane was running smoothly with her motors doing 1200 revolutions a minute and radioed the message with the position of the field. Captain Kingsford Smith, British ace and Lieut. Pond, U. S. N., piloting plane, hope to stay in the air 60 hours.

Cold Up High

San Francisco, Jan. 18.— In her fourth attempt to break world record for sustained flight by an aeroplane, the tri-motored Fokker monoplane "Spirit of California" today is circling over Northern California. The plane took off here at 8.09 a.m. yesterday and flew over this section of the state throughout the day and last night. She reported by radio "All well", at 12 o'clock this morning. Pilots said the weather was intensely cold at a high altitude.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

We are more inclined to hate one another for points on which we differ, than to love one another on points on which we agree.

C. C. COLTON.

INDIGENT OLD AGE

A study of the extent of old age dependency, just completed in New York by the Industrial Welfare Department of the U.S. National Civic Federation, does not confirm the popular belief that 10 per cent. or thereabouts of all persons over 65 are without means of support. Of 14,815 persons over 65 interviewed only between 20 and 25 per cent. were dependent upon relatives or charity and less than 10 per cent. received aid from public or private charity, the remainder being supported by their families. One quarter of all those recorded had property worth $10,000 or more and nearly six persons in every ten had property worth $5,000 or more or had an annual income of at least $1,000. These statistics were compiled from residents of eleven cities and two country towns.

The conclusions reached from these investigations have been disputed, and their critics claim they do not provide a true picture of American conditions. Indigence among the aged, it is said, is much more rife than the statistics seem to prove, and further generalities are quoted which purport to show that the great majority of men and women are dependent upon other persons or on the public in their old age.

It is difficult to arrive at any exact knowledge of the economic status of a large group, but casual observation would seem to indicate that extreme poverty among elderly people is less common than formerly. The extraordinary development of life insurance in recent decades stands out as a preeminent explanation, although there are many contributing factors as parent to everyone. No doubt, however, a good case still can be made out for some form of State insurance against the bleakness of an impoverished old age.

PUBLIC CRITICISM

Gratian O'Leary, a well-known journalist, in an address to the Women's Canadian Club at Ottawa, made the statement that unless there was more effort to stem the present flood of criticism of public men, it would become more and more difficult to induce men of ability to stand for public office. On account of criticism alone, he said, the quality of the members of the United States Congress of today was the lowest in fifty years, and he was afraid that Canada would soon find itself in a sim ilar position.

There is much to be said in favor of the viewpoint of Mr. O'Leary. It is true that many men of great ability, who could be of service to their country and community, decline to stand for public office because of the storm of criticism which they know will be showered upon them. That reason is in many ways justified, because the moment a man steps into the limelight of public life, there are always those who will make it their business to dig up some excuse, either real or imaginary, for a storm of condemnation.

It should not be imagined, however, that criticism is not a good thing for men in public life. Honest criticism should always be welcomed, for it often leads to more wholesome and effective legislation and administration. It would be fatal to the conduct of public affairs if there were to be no criticism, for that would mean no opposition. There is a vast difference, however, between criticism and abuse, and it is true that there are many who believe that abuse of public men is an effective form of criticism. Public men themselves, however, are often guilty of this mistake in the heat of election campaigns, and should not complain if the post resorts to the defence of calling the kettle black.

DIGNITY

A national committee south of the border which takes as its task the study of the pedestrian problem in relation to vehicular traffic seems to have got the thing down to a suitable formula. It presumes that the pedestrian shall be afforded a safe and "dignified" crossing.

This certainly touches the spot, for one of the causes of abiding bitterness in the heart of the pedestrian is the hop, skip and jump with which he has to pile himself across a street to avoid cars making a corner turn or merely to escape the ordinary perils of straightaway traffic.

The sudden start, and momentary alarm; the grand rush of ignominy towards the sidewalks when the signal changes with the pedestrians scattered along the crossing; all these things and more the pedestrian ever personified in the motor vehicle and its driver. That word dignified is gold. The pedestrian must not be mocked on the crossing, but at the least he should be permitted a safe and dignified progress.

HAVE YOU HEARD THESE?

Pat: "Sorry to hear your engagement was broken off, old chap!"

Rejected Lover: "I shall get over it. But the worst blow was when she returned my ring marked, "Glass—with care."

"Did you hear the joke about that cinema actress?"

"No; what was it?"

"Her secretary didn't keep the records straight, and now she finds she has had two more divorces than she's had weddings."

Aunt Prudence—"Keep away from the loud-speaker, Denny. The announcer sounds as if he had a cold."

A traffic expert in New York speaking of traffic jams abroad, says the London chauffeurs enliven many an occasion with their wit and sarcasm. One London driver drew up, when he saw a pedestrian directly in his way and very politely inquired:

"I say, sir! may I seek what are your plans?

"Brethern, we must do something to remedy de Status Quo, said a negro preacher to his congregation.

"Brudder Jones, what am de Status Quo?" as a member.

"Dat, my brudder," said the preacher "am Latin for de mess we's in."

THE PASSING YEARS
(From The Intelligencer of this day 30 years ago)

The ice harvest has begun and the product is of first class quality. It is about sixteen inches thick.

The Bridge St. Epworth League spent a profitable hour last evening considering the subject of temperance. Several readings were given and Miss Yeo man's and Mr. Burns contributed a duet. Mr. O'Flynn gave an address on the plebiscite.

The team of Mr. Mossman, market gardener, became frightened at a pass ing trolley this morning and dashed down Front St., colliding with a Trolley Life pole in front of the Anglo-American Hotel. The team was stopped by John Campbell before much damage was done.

Clara Brown left today to attend the Normal School at Ottawa.

Miss May Lingham, John St., has been confined to her home with a slight attack of pneumonia. Her condition is improving.

Alderman McCamon went to Hamilton today on business.

NEVER SAY DIE!

Never say die though joy goes by
And sorrow comes to stay,
Though rough and stony is the track
You tread from day to day;
The darkest hour precedes the dawn,
Cold Winter days are brief,
And shine and shower each has its hour,
Like happiness and grief.

Never say die but make reply
To all life's knockout blows;
The coward heart that takes the count
Thus doubles all its woes.
But if you fight life's battle well,
With courage, faith, and grit,
You'll win the fight for truth and right
And scorn the winning bit.

Never say die, but rather, try
To smile when others frown;
To tramp along life's road with song,
Whether it's up or down.
For it's better far to laugh than cry,
Better to stand than fall,
Better to fail than, weak and frail,
Never to fight at all!

YUKON HOPES FOR LARGER POPULATION

Dawson, Y. T.—The past season has been the most active in ten years and it is predicted that within two or three years, owing to increased mining activity, there will be a larger population here than during the boom days of the late nineties' when gold was first discovered in the Klondike.

Every man who could swing a pick and shovel was working in the Yukon district during the past summer, and, as a consequence, they have money enough to buy their winter's outfit and secure them to the spring, when they will be able to resume mining.

United States interests are quietly acquiring numerous gold and silver claims in the Mayo-Keno Hill area, but successful developments are anticipated in that field soon.

While most of the mining in the Yukon country, so far as production is him when I was running the club durconcerned, is in the hands of a few big corporations and the placer operations are carried on largely by miners, it is expected more independent operators than ever will be in the field next year.

CARRY ON MISSION WORK BY WATER

Victoria, B. C. (By The Canadian Press).—One of the most colorful features of missionary work carried on in Canada at present is the progress of the United Church of Canada, which maintains a small fleet of cruisers, and several schools and churches along the rugged west coast of British Columbia to minister to the needs of white men and Indians alike.

The missionary work has been going on along that coast for more than half a century. In the early years the Indians were the only ones to be met along this almost unexplored shore, but with the passing of the years mines, canneries, lumbering, fishermen and loggers in ever-increasing numbers. The Marine Mission has met the needs of these frail-haters with unselfish service of all kinds. Among the things that the mission has established are 100 free lending libraries which afford the coast inhabitants in some of the most inaccessible places with the only literature obtainable.

The mission takes the bodies as well as souls, but at Christmas a little extra work is done. This year presents and suitable messages were sent to 400 Isolated families who otherwise would have heard nothing from the outside world during the festive season. These are not "pauper" families, although they usually have little cash, but worthy pioneers who live far away from civilization, carrying on in their modest way the task of nation-building in virgin territory.

CHICAGO NOT SO BAD AFTER ALL

Not So Crime-Ridden As It Is Made Out To Be

Chicago, January 16.—The "malicious characterization" of Chicago as "the most crime-ridden city in America" is without any foundation in fact, the Chicago Crime Commission said yesterday in its annual report.

"During the last five months," said the report, prepared by Henry Barrett Chamberlain, operating director of the commission, "there has been a more harmonious co-operation among officials charged with the administration of criminal justice than at any other time since the organization of the commission, ten years ago.

"It is a fact that there has been an actual decrease in crime generally not withstanding the amazing truth that the population increase during the last ten years has been in excess of 1,000,000. It is obvious that crime has not been permitted to keep pace with the population."

The report dealt at length with the activities of Chicago so-called "racketeers," who have threatened various persons who refused to join whatever labor organizations, it said, in part:

"The complainants, in almost every instance, told of being threatened when they refused to join particular associations, then told of bombings, shootings and broken windows which followed refusals to pay various amounts of money.

"The racket also engaged the attention of employers' associations, and in numerous instances formed a contact between that group and the state's attorney's office to the end that a special assistant state's attorney was assigned to give attention to those matters."

WHALE NOT NEARLY EXTINCT AS YET

Victoria, B.C. (By C.P.)—While scientists recently asserted in London that the whale was doomed and that a few more years of hunting would accomplish the great mammal's doom, old time whalers who have been hunting for more than a score of years contend that the whale has many years of life ahead and that he will not be extinct within the life-time of any man now living.

The whaling men point out that the whale is likely to survive because, when his scarcity reaches a certain point, hunting would become unprofitable. Hunting whales is an expensive venture, they point out, and it becomes costlier every year. Most of the whale herds stay far from shore and the chief hunting grounds are becoming steadily more inaccessible. In many parts of the world the hunting has become so poor that the whale has been abandoned and left alone, he is breeding again and increasing his numbers.

Antarctic whaling firms claim it is impossible to exterminate whales there as long as hunting is confined to the shore waters of the grounds are steadily more recognized whaling grounds, and this view is shared on this coast. It is contended that the seas are too wide and the whaling ground too small to make extermination possible. Practical whaling men here discount the theory that the whales may migrate on a circumpolar path and that the whaling impossible to exterminate whales there grounds are so placed as to catch all of as long as hunting is confined to the shore waters or bays.

BROOKS—BLAND

St. Michael's Church was the scene of a pretty wedding at 7.45 this morning when Miss Helen Vera Bland, youngest daughter of Mr. Robert Bland, of this city, became the bride of Captain Merrin John Brooks, of Collingwood. Reverend Father Killeen officiating at the ceremony.

The bride was charmingly attired in a gown of crepe satin in mallard blue and she wore a wrap of blue velvet bloon with trimmings of mole. Her hat was of metallic cloth and she carried a bouquet of American beauty roses. Miss Hilda Bland, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid and wore a becoming frock of sand Georgette. Her wrap was of marvella with bellamy fur and completed her attire by wearing a close fitting metallic hat. Mr. Kenneth Bland, brother of the bride, supported the groom.

The bridegroom's gifts to the bride were a diamond and sapphire sun burst pendant cheque, to the bridesmaid, a green gold bracelet and to the best man a gold cigarette case.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's father after which the happy couple left for a wedding trip to Toronto, Montreal and other western points. On their return they will take up their residence in Belleville.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful wedding presents and the several pre-nuptial functions attended to her popularity in this city.

VOCATIONAL WORK DOES IMMENSE GOOD

Toronto, Ont.—Dr. Sinclair, Ph. D. lecturing on the Auxiliary Classes in Ontario schools revealed to his audience a scientific system whereby boys and girls may be guided into their proper niche, and may render their true account of service in the after life which follows vocational training.

The fact that all pupils are not equally mentally equipped has been recognized for centuries, but it is only in recent years that a sane, sympathetic attitude has been taken toward those unfortunate who fall below the common standard. Possessed of talents peculiar to themselves, they have been obliged to sit in competition with those who are better equipped mentally, and to bear the consequent humiliation of defeat. They are just as good as we are. They will make good useful citizens, and can do, with happiness, a necessary class of work which would drive you and me to despair.

TRENT EXHIBITS BEING PREPARED TO SHOW AT N. Y.

Thousands Of Folders Will Be Distributed To Prospective Tourists

MOVING PICTURES

Trent Municipalities And Railways Co-operating In Annual Display

Plans are now well advanced in connection with the annual Trent Waterways Exhibit at the Grand Motor Boat Show, which will open in New York City on January 28, and will continue until January 28.

A visit to the offices of the Trent Waterways Development Association today disclosed numerous packing cases, trunks, etc., in fact, the entire paraphernalia required for an exhibit of this nature. The packing cases contained thousands of maps, booklets, supplies of flags, and bunting and such impressive and useful articles as huge mounted fern specimens in addition to many attractive framed pictures. There are also many well framed invitations to the prospective tourist to come where he may enjoy fishing, bathing boating, sailing, golfing, tennis, motoring and other summer recreations.

The Trent Waterways motion picture "Kelly's Cruise" taken during the summer of 1926 by the Provincial Motion Picture Bureau in co-operation with the Department of Railways and Canals, and under the direction of the Trent Waterways Development Association, will be a feature of the New York exhibit next month.

This scenic picture was extremely well received when first shown at the Motor Boat Show last winter and has since been circulating through motion picture theatres in the Province. Also, the Motion Picture Bureau has supplied two prints of the picture of this year's exhibit.

The secretary-treasurer of the Trent Association, in charge of the exhibit will be accompanied this year by President Walter Foulds of Hastings, Ontario; by G. A. Fraser, boundary president, of Dunlop Falls and Hamilton, and by N. K. Wagg, General manager of the Georgian Bay Tourist and Steamship Company, Limited, of Midland.

No effort will be spared in making the exhibit as attractive as possible. The various Trent municipalities are contributing in the past toward covering the evening of the exhibit. The officials realize the importance of placing the Trent exhibit at the National Motor Boat Show centre, for the success of the show attracts boating enthusiasts, who are potential tourists, from all over the United States and Canada. The show annually is extremely large and contains up to 500 booths. Many thousands of some years ago in a small way, occupy one floor of the Grand Central Palace, New York, but the three floors now inadequate and possibly another year will see the fourth floor added.

Literature to be distributed at the Motor Boat Show will include the Trent Waterway Trail, the Ontario Canadian Pacific, and Canadian National folders. The province of Ontario has supplied two thousand maps.

The 1927-28 date publication of the Trent Waterways Development Association will receive partial distribution at this show.

The railways have been pleased to co-operate in supplying transportation to and from the Grand Central Depot, and secretary-treasurer of the Trent Association.

President Foulds points out that it is obvious to everyone now that the tourist business is a good business. Ontario had the only Canadian exhibit at the Motor Show in New York for the past six years. We are pleased that the province has voted intention of giving the most successful exhibit in Central America, as we believe the best will be none too good for our matchless Trent Waterways system," he declared.

OFFICIAL QUARTERS GIVEN TO THE I. C. W.

Ottawa, Ont. — From the International Council Weekly "Bulletin" of November the following is quoted from the I.C.W. President's Notes. It is with infinite pleasure that we congratulate the Federal Council of Australia on being given official quarters at the new Commonwealth capital of Canberra, thus giving a status and prestige which will be most valuable to the future work. In the Australian report to the October I.C.W. "Bulletin" we note that the president, Mrs. Skene, was able to announce that the Federal Government had promised to provide them with a site at Canberra for their headquarters. The Australian Government made this offer to the Canadian women some years since. Can it be that the Australian women have poorer vision than the Canadian women, or is it that they venture where others fear to tread financially?"

Liverpool Prices Down

Chicago, Jan. 18.—With Liverpool quotations showing a decline whereas an advance had been looked for, wheat here here averaged materially today. Announcement that Argentine vessel charters were reduced was construed as a bearish factor. Opening at 1-2 off to 1-8c up, Chicago wheat subsequently underwent a moderate general setback. Corn, oats and provisions were relatively firm, corn starting unchanged to 1-4 to 3-8c decline but later scoring rallies.

CLOSING QUOTATIONS

Bears Raid Railway Stocks

New York, Jan. 18.—A sudden bear drive against the railroad shares which featured all of yesterday's heavy buying orders, unsettled today's stock markets. The reaction came after an opening display of strength in which public utilities had taken a prominent part. Trading continued unevenly dull, however, with indications that days total would again fall below 2,000,000 shares mark. Selling was somewhat hampered by the belief that holders of those issues were becoming discouraged over their lethargic market action during the past few weeks. Chesapeake and Ohio equalled its new five points. Canadian Pacific 3 5-8 and New York Central, Prince common, Reading 6, Louis Southwestern and a few others sold down two points or more.

Weekly steel trade reviews were optimistic in character, Iron Age stating that finished steel requirements are not only growing in volume, but are becoming better balanced. United States Steel Common nevertheless sank below 141 to a new low on the current down swing.

STANDARD MINING EXCHANGE

Quotations supplied by Homer L. Thorn & Company, per Jamieson Bros. Local Manager.

TRY ONE DAILY HOUR OF QUIET THINKING

By LOUIS E. BISCH

Not long ago I undertook a little investigation. I asked a number of persons, men and women, young and old, how much time they devoted every day to thinking. And the result turned out about as I had expected. Out of twenty persons only three admitted the practice of sitting down every day for quiet reflection. The usual behavior of everybody is to get up, go to work, spend the evening in reading, talking or amusement and go to bed. Activity all day long. Doing something every minute. Try for a change, however, to apportion your time so that you will have an hour each day set aside for thinking—not doing but thinking. If you can't manage an hour—although I know full well you can if you really try hard enough—then make it half an hour. But in that half hour or hour put all work aside, relax on a couch or bed or recline in a comfortable easy-chair, and give your brain a holiday.

No, I don't want to stop the activity of your mind. What I want you to try is mind activity of a sort that you seldom indulge yourself in the variety that does not seem at the moment to be productive, the kind that you see a picture to yourself as belonging only to those who do not have to earn a living and can devote themselves to continuous leisure.

I want you to give your mind a spree. I want you to build air-castles. I would like you to let your imagination run riot. I would like you to think only of things that thrill!

WHAT'S NEW
(From a Woman's Standpoint)

The smart Parisienne is wearing an unusually long pearl necklace with her afternoon dresses, and after passing once around the neck it falls below the waist.

The tiny melon-shaped muffs which are once more protecting the hands of smartly gowned New York women from the cold are very small and round and made of fur that matches the wrap.

While the French are keeping to grey and navy blue sports attire, suits in tan, rose, narine blue and bright green with the woollen accessories entirely in white are being chosen by sportswomen on this side of the water.

Hatless bridesmaids have been banned by the Rev. S. M. Wheeler, rector of Bulwell Parish Church, England, who has decreed that "Bridesmaids who are not decently covered will not be allowed in the church hereafter."

Much sapphire blue is being seen at Cannes where the trend of green shades for all hours is a visible omen of what we shall do for spring, especially those tones such as the almond green that the French love so well.

All of us are incorrigible whiners, you know. We start that way in childhood and it more or less clings to us all our lives.

But the trouble is that, as we grow and suffer disappointment and learn that life is hard and stern and this in many ways, we are inclined to become cynical and to believe that whining as we would like, as we didn't in old days when we were young, is a waste of energy and is extremely foolish.

We become too common-sense, too practical, too logical. Proseic, bovine colored state of wishing we go to the other extreme and stop wishing entirely. And yet the mind needs to dwell on wishing. Wishing stimulates thought. It rouses our emotions. It pops us up and forces us forward hopefully. And so an hour of wishing each day acts like a tonic.

In that hour think of the wishes you had in the past that did not come true. Perhaps you have one or in a position to make them reality. You may have forgotten them—forced them out of your mind.

Maybe there was a time when you yearned a painter or similar work of art. You could not afford it then. Maybe you can now. Buy it and you will be surprised how much pleasure it will give you. You will find that your emotions are not so dead as you thought.

Then try also to systematize your present wishes. Think about them and define them. Delimit them. That will also help you to gratify them.

Think, dream and be hopeful. Practice it daily for mental health.

Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

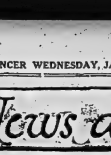

Make a funnel out of a piece of wrapping paper for pouring sugar, tea, coffee and cereals into their proper receptacles. These funnels prevent waste.

When using sour milk or cream in making cookies or doughnuts, mix them up the night before and set them on ice. They will roll out with less flour, will be light and keep moist much longer than by the usual method.

Wash the top crust of pie with four tablespoons of evaporated milk into which the yoke of an egg has been beaten. This mixture will keep a week if placed in a cup in the refrigerator.

If a piece of fat about the size of a nutmeg is added to the water in which the last drops of cream are being cooked there will be no boiling over and no stirring will be required.

The following mixture is excellent for cleaning white paint: Mix together equal quantities of soft soap, salt and whiting, and apply to the paint with a flannel wrung out of warm water. Rinse well, and dry with a soft cloth.

A SUITOR TOO MANY
By MILDRED BARBOUR

Lila was routled by the unexpected-ness of the question. She hated to lie where Herbert was concerned; she felt a sort of superstitious fear about it.

"Well-a-a-" reluctantly, and then, quickly: "Oh, Jack, whatever made you think of such a thing?"

Never mind. I'm answered," he returned grimly. "Good Heavens. Is there any one you haven't been flirting with?"

"Don't be silly!" she bade him, and began to make the tea. "If we're going to fight every time we meet, I think it would be much better if we stopped seeing each other."

"I dare say You'd be very thankful, if we did," he said bitterly. "I must be taking up a lot of the time that you'd prefer to give to other men."

"You have no right to say that," she flared.

"Oh, haven't I?" Well, to my knowledge, there's that boaster over on Main to be engaged to; there's Oli Holmes, and now that Ware-person, I mean I know of many others I haven't yet discovered!"

"Oh, dear!" wailed Lila. "I think I hate all men. They make so much trouble."

"And I think I'll soon hate all women," he said grimly, "unless I can find one who's honest and straightforward."

"Perhaps you'd like to break our engagement," said Lila, a trifle too eagerly. "I told you that you might find me very different from the girl you knew in France."

"Oh, no, my dear, you don't get off as easily as all that!" he told her, with ominous softness and a grim smile on his handsome lips. "I fully intend to hold you to your pledge to marry me. AND I don't intend to wait much longer for you. You've been spoiled somewhat by so-called fiance of yours, before I lose my temper completely and break his infernal neck for him."

Lila was terrified at the violence of his manner, but she thanked her stars that, at that brief first interview, Farquahar had refused to hear the name of her supposed fiance. It was only because for alarm along that line; he couldn't make trouble with a man who didn't exist.

At the moment she decided to resort to the one thing she had never known to fail in her dealings with the male sex. She licked at Farquahar and said coaxingly:

"Please don't be cross with me. You make me so unhappy." Her voice trembled and there were tears on her lash es. They were the result of overwrought nerves, because she'd had a trying day. But Farquahar couldn't know that.

To her dismay, he caught her close in his arms.

It was at that moment that she heard steps and voices in the hall.

Herbert and another man were coming toward the drawingroom.

CHAPTER 48.
PANIC

With a gesture of desperation, she freed herself, but there was terror in her eyes. Terror, lest Herbert should open the door to the small drawingroom and find her there with this strange young man.

Farquahar was watching her closely He hadn't heard the voices in the hall but he saw the expression in her eyes and he misconstrued it.

"I can see nothing to you, Lila—" he was beginning dryly.

"Sh!" she warned, with a quick fin ger on her lips.

The footsteps were passing toward the library. She darted forward again. But she must get rid of Farquahar at once Herbert might ask Seddons whether she was in, and, when he learned that she was down-stairs, he would undoubtedly come to the drawing-room himself.

She clutched Farquahar's sleeve. "You must go quickly," she told him breathlessly.

He looked at her.

"Why, please?"

"Because Herb— Mr. Ware has just come in."

"I fail to see what that has to do with it," Farquahar began, with a shrug.

Lila wrung her hands.

"He mustn't know—he wouldn't like it, you see," she cried incoherently.

Farquahar smiled grimly.

"You mean he wouldn't like to know that you are entertaining another man here? He is still in love with you?"

"No, no!" moaned Lila. "He—we—" "If that is the case—when he has a wife like the girl I met this morning—I can only say that he has very poor taste," said Parquahar, brutal with neglect.

Lila was too excited to understand or resent what he said.

"I don't care," she pleaded desperately, "that he—he'd be furious, if he knew he'd found me—behind this—this secret meeting of ours."

That, in a way, was the truth, she comforted herself.

"I thought you said he was such a remarkable man, clever and kind," he reminded her mockingly.

"Oh, but he can be very, very severe" she explained. "Please, for my sake, his wife's sake—"

"Your excitement and confusion is all out of proportion to the cause, Lila," said Parquahar deliberately. "Do you think that this man this Ware chap is the sort who would take it out on his wife, if he discovered me here."

"Yes!"

"Then you weren't telling the truth when you said that you were afraid of Him's really a sort of beast, is that it?"

"Yes...No...Yes... Oh, Jack, please go!"

He picked up his hat and coat.

"I'm going," he said, with ominous quiet, "but I'm coming to you to more fabled today. Good-bye."

With a quick movement, he shut the door behind him leave the drawing-room.

Again she heard footsteps coming along the hall from the direction of the library.

"It's all over now!" she thought despairingly, and sank down on the couch, hiding her face in her hands.

She waited to hear Herbert's voice. What would he say to Farquahar?

"Ah, Herbert, the latest Farquahar ray. "So it's your turn now? Sorry, if I overstayed my allotted time today."

A moment later she heard the street door close sharply.

She had a mingled feeling of relief and dismay. He was Gilroy Holmes who had come in with Herbert. It was Holmes and not Herbert, whom Farquahar had met. But the significance of Farquahar's words was not lost on her. He thought, obviously, that Herbert had come there to see her, even as he himself had. And he wanted him to leave because of the arrival of another suitor, and not because Ware had come home.

"Could anything be more maddening? she thought, uncertain whether to laugh or to cry. "Such a coincidence couldn't happen again in a million years."

Then it was that she remembered her danger. Under no condition must Herbert find her there, whatever possible construction he could have put upon her presence, simple, since, naturally, he couldn't guess that Farquahar had referred to Lila Latham, who, he far as Holmes was aware, had no connection with this household.

Lila knew she must get away before she should come face to face with Holmes.

She opened the door softly and peered out into the corridor. Holmes was removing some papers from his overcoat pocket. She caught a glimpse of his face in the hall mirror. It wore a puzzled, frowning look.

She closed it back and waited until he was again in the library; then she slipped out and made for the street door, seizing her hat and gloves. thankful that she was dressed to go out.

"Lila, where are you going?" Herbert's hail came from the hall.

CHAPTER 49.
THE CHANCE TETE-A-TETE

It was the afternoon when Dorothy drew from life at the Art Institute. She had worked late over a drawing that simply wouldn't go right. Three times she had wiped it out and started afresh. There was no particular reason on ruth the work, but Dorothy was the type of person who refused to be beaten by the tricky combination of a pencil, a piece of heavy paper thumbtacked to a board, and a hand that, for the moment, seemed to have lost its cleverness.

Eventually she got the sketch she wanted, but it was already late— too late for dinner in the dining-room in her studio-building, if she returned home. So she went in a restaurant, where she frequently dined when she was alone.

The head waiter knew her well and greeted her with a deferential smile and bow. He escorted her to her usual table in a corner of the room, where she rested herself on the cushioned wall settee. She ordered perfunctorily and sank back with a sigh of weariness.

It was a quiet place, noted, for its excellent cuisine. At that particular hour there were only a few late diners lingering over their coffee. The theatre crowd had gone.

Suddenly Dorothy noticed a young man dining alone at a table on the opposite side of the room. He rose and bowed to her and, after a moment's hesitation, came over to her table.

"Mrs. Ware! It is a pleasure to see you again. May I sit at your table for a few moments?"

Dorothy held out her hand.

SINCLAIR'S

Dull, listless, out of sorts, feeling half-sick

Is it a cold coming on? Is it overwork or what can it be? Probably it is. Nature warning that your system is not functioning properly.

When you feel this way you should follow the treatment that has helped many, many other people. Even two weeks of it will make a difference in the way you feel.

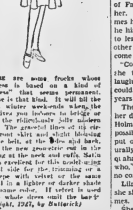

A prominent New York physician says, "When my patients have that dull half-sick feeling I always prescribe Nujol and recommend at least two weeks' continued usage. Why? Because Nujol absorbs and clears away the toxic matter that poisons you here in most cases are the cause of the trouble. Further, Nujol is absolutely harmless and can be taken by young babies or old people."

Not like medicine

Nujol contains no drugs or medicine. It's a natural substance unlike anything else. Can't hurt you. Others have benefited from it for thirty years, why not you? This remarkable product is sold all over the world. Go to your druggist, get a bottle of Nujol and see for yourself what it will do. Don't delay. Do it now. Insist on the real Nujol. Perfected by the famous Chemical Products Division of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. Look for the Nujol Sign with the label on the back that you can read right through the bottle.

Grace Is Not Lost In This Frock's Modernity

There are some frocks whose smartness is based on a kind of "richness" that seems permanent. This one is that kind. It will hit the gap on winter week-ends when the cold drives you indoors to lodge or tea of the ridiculously late modern hostess. The graceful lines of the regular front skirt and white bloused over the belt, at the sides and back, set off the new geometric cut in the trimming at the neck and cuffs. Satin crepe is receiving for this model using the dull side for the trimming or a silk crepe with velvet or the same material in a lighter or darker shade of the same color. If velvet is used for the whole dress omit the belt.

Advice to Girls
By Annie Laurie

I am a girl in my teens, and not very popular with my sex I've read your answers to girl's letters, telling them to just act natural, but it doesn't seem to work with me. I can get along with a girl for about six months and then there always comes a break. Can you advise me? I am going with a girl now and want to prevent a fall-out if possible.

UNPOPULAR.

UNPOPULAR: Perhaps, my dear you are not discriminating enough and offer your friendship where it is not wanted or appreciated! I would advise that you be more reserved and sure of the desirability of the person you have chosen to honor with your friendship. Perhaps, also, you are somewhat at fault. Think it over and determine whether or not you make unreasonable demands upon your friends or whether you are prone to argue over petty trifles. It is hard to determine just what causes these rifts as I know so little about you or the people involved. I should think that if you are congenial, understanding, sincere and tolerant you would have no difficulty in keeping your friends. And I do think that if you are yourself you will have more success in your friendships than if you affect mannerisms that are not in keeping with your personality.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl of nineteen and have been going with a fellow for five months. I love him and he says he loves me. He doesn't go with anyone else. But there is a girl one year older than I and she has been trying to cause trouble between us. He doesn't pay attention to her, therefore, I don't like to quarrel with him over her. Please advise me.

L. M.

L. M.: My dear, you are much too young to be so concerned about love! I would advise you to be content with the friendship of this boy and do not attempt to restrict his friendships in any way Since you are not engaged, and surely you are too young to think of such a step, there is no reason why you should not both have many friends As personally can see no reason why your friend should not pay attention to this other girl also if he cares to. If you are a wise little girl, you would put aside your jealousy and give him a free range. A friendship without limitations is apt to be more enduring than one that is bounded down by petty restrictions.

The only part of the United States that has never had a frost is the extreme tip of Florida.

Women, Your Manifold Duties Require Strength

St. Catharines, Ont.—"During my early married life Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was very helpful to me as a tonic and nervine. I had become run down, my nerves were all upset, I could not sleep, and was weak and miserable. I was advised by my mother-in-law to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it relieved me of the nervousness and made me a well, strong woman. Since then I have always recommended it to weak women."—Mrs. M. F. Stark, 8 Francis St.

CEMENT INDUSTRY BEING FREED OF ACCIDENTS BY SAFETY WORK

Ten Mills Go Through 1927 Without Any Lost Time

8 TON TROPHY

Point Anne Plant Wins Special "Safety" Award Last Year

Ten cement mills operated throughout 1927 without a lost time accident. This record has never been equalled in the entire history of safety work in the cement industry. In 1926 only two mills were successful in completing a year's work free from accidents; two plants were similarly free from mishaps in 1925 and in 1924.

Each of these ten plants will receive the Portland Cement Association concrete safety trophy. The award takes the form of an eight-ton sculptured monument, appropriately inscribed, testifying to the mill's record. These awards become permanent possessions of mills winning them; in case a mill repeats its record, additional inscriptions are placed on the trophy already in its possession.

Ten Winners 1927

Cement mills whose safety awards for 1927, are: Martin's Creek, Pa., and Ironton, O., plants of the Alpha Portland Cement Co.; Belleville, Ont., and Hull, Quebec, plants of the Canada Cement Co.; Bonner Springs, Kans., mill of the Kansas Portland Cement Co.; Cowell, Cal., plant of the Cowell Portland Cement Co.; New Castle, Pa., and Iola, Kans., plants of the Lehigh Portland Cement Co.; San Antonio mill of the San Antonio Portland Cement Co.; and Duluth, Minn., mill of the Universal Portland Cement Co.

Among these are two organizations which have won trophies in previous years—the San Antonio plant in 1923, and the Duluth Universal plant in 1925.

A study of the accident chart showing the record for the past three years will indicate how intense the safety work has been during 1927. Every month during the past year shows a drop in accidents over the corresponding month in either of the preceding years.

As will also be noticed by the diagram, the lowest accident figure is in June. This, is the month of the concentrated drive against mishaps, honored in both 1925 and 1927. In 1926, when the June campaign was not conducted, mishaps is numbered 304. In 1925 the June figure was 92 and last year it was reduced to 68.

High Lights of Record

133 mills operated during the entire month of June without a lost time accident.

30 plants operated throughout January, February and March, without an accident.

17 plants had no accidents in 9 months.

13 plants were without mishaps in 11 months.

10 mills completed the year to win trophies.

All member plants, then in operation completed the month of September without a fatal accident, the first month without a fatality in the history of the Portland Cement Association.

One Fatal Accident

These plants completed the month of June with but one fatal accident, which established a record for June and for all months up to September.

2,200 superintendents, foremen and safety committee men supported this executive action by making similar pledges and actively prosecuting the campaign.

32,000 workmen signed and returned individual pledge cards, promising to work without injury to themselves or others.

86 accidents were suffered—only 62 pledges out of a total of 32,000 were forgotten or disregarded, these amounting to about one-fifth of one per cent. of the total. This record shows cement mill workers about 99.83 per cent. alert and loyal—undoubtedly one of the best showings attained in any industry.

With nearly all of December accidents figures reported to the Association it is estimated 1633 lost time accidents were suffered by the industry in 1927 and 30 fatalities. In 1926, 2,221 lost time mishaps were recorded with 34 fatalities.

While this reduction is startling in itself, another factor enters which makes figures even more significant. The 1927 safety record represents the experience of 162 mills with a far greater hazard than is represented by the 1926 figures, covering only 119 plants.

Indications are that 154 mills will report their accidents to the Portland Cement Association during 1928. The Association keeps a fine statistical record of accidents—by the use of these figures a definite check can be kept on mishaps and steps can be taken for their elimination. For example, screw conveyor accidents recur each year at a certain period. By a study of the permanent record, efforts can be placed directly on this problem and effective safety work realized.

DON'T NEED, TO BE HOME TO ANSWER

Stockholm, Sweden.—A Swedish inventor after lengthy experiments has completed an apparatus which automatically receives, registers and after wards, reproduces telephone messages during the absence of the owner of the telephone. The apparatus is connected with the telephone instrument, and when the signal sonnet a motor driving a kind of dictaphone record is automatically started, registers the sudden message and stops when it is finished. On his return the subscriber starts the apparatus and receives his message. The invention has already been tested with satisfactory results by the Swedish Telegraph and Telephone Department.

TOMMY ATKINS CAN USE "MUFTI"

When On Furlough When Commanding Officer Agrees

London, (By Mail)—The British War Office has made history, of a sort, this week. It has announced, in effect, that with the consent of his command ing officer, Mr. Thomas Atkins may in future wear civilian clothes when on furlough or on pass, or when in the ordinary course of duties he takes his "walk abroad" in the district in which he is stationed.

Hitherto, going about the town of sergeant, unless belonging to the famous and, in that respect, favored regiment, "The Green Howards," possessed that privilege, but the times change and apparently even the War Office has that least intelligent of departments, has recognized that fact and felt itself compelled to bow to the inevitable.

So the figure of Mr. Atkins, reshaped ent in scarlet and paperday, will no longer grace our streets to the admiration of our womenfolk, and Gilbert's famous line:

"When I first put this uniform on

I said as I looked in the stars

It is one to a million that any civilian

My figure or form can surpass."

are now out of date.

NEW BARONETS NEWSPAPER MEN

Largest Newspaper Owners in Great Britain—Moneyed Men

London—(By Canadian Press) Sir William Ewart Berry and his brother Sir James Gomer Berry, who was included in the past New Year's list of honors as a baronet, are the largest newspaper owners in Great Britain. Their latest' big venture, as is well known, was the purchase of the Daily Telegraph," one of the principal proprietors of which was Lord Burnham. In this they were associated with Sir Edward Iliffe, M.P., director of Allied Newspapers, Limited, The Carmelite Press, Limited, and the Midland Daily Telegraph.

The Berry Brothers' rise has been remarkably sudden. They are the sons of Alderman Berry, once Mayor of Merthyr Tydfil He was an estate agent. A third brother, interested largely in coal mines, iron and steel tinplates, is Lord Buckland of Bwich, (formerly Henry Seymour Berry).

The brothers, William and Gomer now own 22 daily, evening and weekly newspapers, 26 weekly, fortnightly and monthly journals, five serials, 18 annuals, 18 libraries, and the publications of the Waverley Book Company and the Educational Book Company. They bought up most of the Holmwood Press, Cassells, Amalgamated Press, Weldons, St. Clements Press, "Financial Times", "Sunday Times," and papers in Glasgow, Newcastle and Sheffield.

Sir William's brother, Lord Buckland, is said to be the director of about 100 companies than any man living. Sir William is co-director with Lord Burkland in the firm of Guest, Keen and Nettlefolds, a £5,000,000 iron, steel and coal company.

First published on June 25, 1855, as a tuppenny paper under the proprietorship of Col Sleigh, the "Daily Telegraph" was, in the following September, transferred to J. M. Levy, and was published as the first penny newspaper. Pulsticly it was Liberal till 1878, and since then has been Conservative. The paper and its proprietors have been responsible for many notable expeditions.

The new proprietors of the "Daily Telegraph" acquired the paper for their joint personal ownership and assumed control of it on Jan. 9. This date was fixed in view of Lord Burnham's departure for India as a member of the statutory commission. No change in the political policy has been decided on in the transfer of ownership In connection with the sale, Lord Burnham issued a statement expressing his confidence that the traditions and standards of the "Daily Telegraph", which had helped to his family for three generations would be fully maintained by its new proprietors.

ROBBER CARRIED BOX OF PEPPER

London, (By Mail)—A box of pepper was found in the possession of William Edgin Leckenby, aged 21, a window-dresser, of Belsize Crescent, Hampstead, who was sentenced at Marlborough street Police Court to two months in the second division for stealing a bag of money at Messrs. Selfridge and Company, Limited, Oxford Street.

"A bad feature of this case, and it may have some significance, is that a large box of pepper was found on him when searched," said Mr. C. Crobel, prosecuting.

Mr. Crobel added that a woman assistant was at a cash register and had just made up a bag of money when Lec kenby seized it and ran.

Leckenby said to Detective Amey, referring to the pepper, "I admit I had it in my mind to throw it necessary."

G. B.S SOLDIERS HITCH UP LATE

So-DoClergy; Famous Fighting Men Marry Elderly

London, (By Mail) — Have the majority of famous men of our time married early or late in life?

General Sir Webb Gildman raised the question by recommending cadets at the Royal Military College, Camberley, The other day, to avoid matrimony until they are at least thirty

"I know it is sometimes very hard," The General added [illegible] laughter, "but if you enter into matrimony you will find that your freedom of manoeuvre is cramped."

Certainly famous leaders of our fighting forces appear to marry late. For example: Earl Haig 44, Gen. Sir G. Milne 39, Sir Ian Hamilton 34, Earl Beaty 39, Earl Jellicoe 43, Air Vice-Marshal Sir Sefton Brancker 30, Air Vice-Marshall Sir C. Rakdond 32

Politicians and lawyers, on the other hand, marry young: Mr. Baldwin 25, Mr. Lloyd George 25, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald 30, Lord Chief Justice 22, Lord Chancellor 29, Lord Merrivale 21

Literary men, artists and actors up pear to vary: Mr. Bertrand Shaw 42, Mr. Rudyard Kipling 27, Mr. G. K. Chesterton 27, Sir William Orpen 22, Sir John Lavery 34, Mr. Jacob Epstein 26, Sir Frank Benson 28, Sir Gerald du Maurier 30, Mr. Henry Ainley 24.

Dignitaries of the church also must me numbered among the later victims of cupid. They include: The primate of all England, 42 and Bishop of Birmingham, 42 and Dean Inge 45.

DOCTOR OPERATES IN UNUSUAL WAY

London, (By Mail)—A remarkable operation — the first to its kind in England—was performed the other day by a specialist in the Glasgow Royal Infirmary.

Ten years ago a young woman, while idged in her lung. Repeated efforts to remove the pin were unsuccessful. The young woman grew thinner and grew weaker, and it was feared that she was dying.

On examination it was found that the pin was deep down in the lung, and the surgeon decided to operate. A tube was inserted through the patient's mouth into the lung. Through this specially - constructed forceps were inserted, and while the X-ray was working the operator jerked and removed the pin.

FAMILIAR PIGEONS BECOME NUISANCE

London, (By Mail)—Visitors to London next season will miss the daily pigeon "parade" around St. Paul's Cathedral, considered one of the sights of the Capital.

The birds have increased so rapidly that they have become a nuisance and the executive of 1000 members of the colony has been ordered.

The depletion of the pigeon host is to be carried out at night, and some of the men with specially designed traps will endeavor to catch several hundred birds at a time until their numbers have been reduced sufficiently.

Some of the doomed pigeons will be sold as food, while others may go to the hundreds of letter-writers who, believing that the birds might be spared, promised them "good homes."

GIVE SUGGESTIONS FOR BIG PROBLEM

London, (By Mail)—The problem of unemployment, that ever present worry of working-class life in England, seems to be by way of being solved if the suggestions made by certain Labor speakers the other day be adopted.

According to these orators, the back of the problem could be broken easily by blocking up the entrances to industry and multiplying and widening the exits. Boys and girls, it is advocated, should, in company with old men and women over sixty-five, be forthwith removed from their employment and pensioned. This would get rid of 1,300,000 workers and leave vacancies enough to absorb all the able-bodied folk who today are out of a job.

This solution would appear to be so obvious that it is indeed surprising that no one has thought of it before.

But it is really as simple as all that!

TROUBLE CAUSED BY NEW RULING

Peculiar Situation Arises in Tennis World; Player-Writer Regulation

London, (By Mail)—The player-writer resolution recently passed by the British Lawn Tennis Association has given rise to a peculiar situation.

The resolution declared that amateur tenis players who receive money for radio broadcasts, press articles or interviews on tennis will be regarded as receiving peculiary advantage from the game, which is a violation of the association's rules.

The penalty for this offence has not been definitely announced, but H. A. Sabrill, the secretary of the L. T. A., told the press Offenders will not necessarily lose their amateur status but may l.. suspended from certain tourna ments or for an extended period.

Journalists May Continue

Professional journalists, however, who are also amateur tennis players, may continue both their profession and their pastime without raising the wrath of the L. T. A.

The resolution applies, not only to British players but to foreign and ateurs playing in this country. They may not goeitve money from the British Broadcasting Corporation or British newspapers for contributions dealing with lawn tennis. The association, however, cannot prevegi them from receiving remuneration from newspapers or radio broadcters in their own country, for articles or broadcast talks concerning tennis tournaments in Britain.

L. T. A. officials regard the movie con tracts of Betty Nuthall, Evelyn Colyer, Whittaker, providing the films do not contain any reference to the British tennis championships as quite permissible, but they will be breaking the association's rules if they allow their movie con tracts purely on the name they have made by their tenis. The moment they lift a racquet in a film, however, they will be breaking the association's regulations as they will be receiving pecuniary advantage from the game

No Lines On Racquets

The use of amateur's names or initials on racquets, balls or other tennis equipment is also prohibited unless the player is the actual manufacturer of the articles.

Some tennis authorities are wondering what the attitude of the Lawn Tennis Association would be if it were to take pis player who accepted a fee for the use fo his name on footballs, baseballs, baseball bats and cricket bats.

70,000 CLAIMS FILED

New York, Jan. 18.—Expiration of the five month period given by the Supreme Court for the filing of claims on the $6,000,000 loan for the "Republic of Ireland" has found only 70,000 claims entered, Matthew G. Healy, manager of the receivers, announced today. He said there are about 130,000 bondholders.

PARENTS QUARREL; SO DO CHILDREN

London—(By C.P.)—Why do certain families of children quarrel violently over their parents? According to Dr. Alice Hutchison, a well-known authority on children's and maternity hospitals in London, this friction is the inevitable result of superficial discord between parents.

"As regards birth control," says Dr. Hutchison, "I do say very clearly that birth control has wrecked numbers of marriages I am not discussing the question of birth control. Birth control wrecks marriages because the maternal urge cannot be quenched so easily. If you put a difficulty in the way of that urge you will find women harboring a feeling of animosity against their husbands."

Dr. Hutchison said she wanted to see children absolutely break the tie of dependence upon their mothers. "We see the young man who won't marry because he won't leave his mother, People say: "How beautiful! The truth is that he won't leave his mother because he is a baby and won't break the tie. He can't do without her. We want fully grown men who will leave home and take a wife not as a second mother but as a mate. What seems to outside people to be excellent parenthood often means failure in the child. If you make a child a baby you make him selfish, and a fully grown man he will never be."

JEAN ROBERTSON BEST PETER PAN

Miss Jean Forbes Robertson Is Ideal In The Part

London.—E. A. Baughan dramatic critic of the Daily News, regards Miss Jean Forbes-Robertson, daughter of Sir Jonston Forbes-Robertson, as the ideal "Peter Pan." In connection with Miss Forbes-Robertson's recent appearance in this role at the Gaiety Theatre here, Mr. Baughan writes:

"Sitting in the Gaiety Theatre at the revival of Peter Pan, I gratefully came to the conclusion that Jean Forbes-Robertson's boy who wouldn't grow up is the best of all the 'Peter Pans' I have seen. Until then Nina Boucicault, who created the part, stood out in my memory as the only 'Peter Pan.' Others, Pauline Chase, Hilda Cowper and Dorothy Dickson, especially, had their good points, but Nina Boucicault was supreme. She suggested a certain detachment in the ordinary matter-of-fact world. The others did not.

"Jean Forbes-Robertson has the same quality of being 'fey.' But she has something more; unflagging nervous energy and a suggestion of being a leader. Moreover, she has the rare gift of enjoying herself, and is not too solemn.

"The 'Wendy' of Mary Casson is the first 'Wendy' that has given the impression of youth. Her assumed airs of motherhood, which most actresses who could be real mothers of fifty choose—become comic when assumed as a cloak of her youth. It was curious, by the way, to refer some of the characteristic intonations of her mother (Sybil Thorndike).

"In the absence of Hendy Ainley, who is indisposed, Captain Hook was played by William Luff in the traditional style. He was quite successful. To those who have followed every performance it was sad to miss George Shelton's 'Smee', but James C. Wilton was a perfect imitation of the 'non-commissioned pirate.' The 'boys' were more youthful and less girlish than usual, and the Michael of little Freddie Sprigett was one of the successes of a very successful revival.

WAS KILLED BY TRAIN

Peterboro, Ont., January 18.—Ashley Rogers, 16, was instantly killed in Norwood this afternoon when struck by a C.P.R. passenger train.

The boy was riding on the back of a truck, whose driver did not see the train until they were crossing the track. The truck barely cleared the track, but the boy became excited and jumped off in front of the engine.

JUSTICE PASSES OUT TIPS TO REALTORS

Vancouver, B.C.—Tips to real estate men on how to avoid most of their legal troubles were given by Mr. Justice Aulay Morrison of the British Columbia supreme court, when he addressed the members of the Vancouver Real estate Board recently.

"Misrepresentation during negotiations for a deal is one of the commonest complaints we have," said the judge. "What took place between the client and the real estate man preliminary to the transaction is a question very frequently in dispute. My advice is to commit your negotiations to writing."

Mr. Justice Morrison said he did not share the alarm of some legal men that real estate operators were encroaching upon their professional duties by performing services as notaries public and other duties filled by lawyers.

"If lawyers are inclined to make a commercial business of their work, then it will be time for them to abdicate the position which they have been elevated among the recognized learned professions," said the jurist.

ASKS QUESTIONS OF CONFUCIUS

Received Replies—Oriental Scholar is Impressed at Seance

London, (By Mail)—A gramaphone record of the alleged voice of Confucius resulting from the Book of Odes was played at a South Kensington meeting under the auspices of the National League of Spiritual Research.

The record was one wihich had been taken at a seance held at the London flat of Lord Charles Hope. The medium on that occasion was the well-known Mrs. Osborne Leonard.

Dr. Neville Whymant, the Oriental scholar, said the voice was undoubted by Chinese, but the record was so foggy that he himself would not like to say anything, but he gave an account of some remarkable seances he had attended at which the same medium was present.

Used Antique Dialect

A voice came through and talked what was undoubtedly an antique dialect of Chinese. It claimed to be Confucius.

Dr. Whymant said he was at first frankly skeptical, but later had the cause to be so. He immediately asked questions. He asked by what name Confucius was known when he was 15 and other details of his life, known to very few people. Correct answers were given the voice went on and showed that it knew more Chinese literature than the Odes of Confucius than Dr Whymant did himself.

For instance, he said, he completed a quotation and gave a name in one of one of the works of Confucius, known only to a handful of scholars in China.

STILL RETAIN OLD WEDDING CEREMONY

Alert Bay, B.C.—This is one of the few places where the native weddings are still carried out by the Indian inhabitants in accordance with the ancient ritual of generations. At such a ceremony was held recently when Flora Alfonso, daughter of Moses Alfred, married James Sewed, of Village Island.

Both today, the wedding ceremonies are largely intermixed with Christian rites and about all that remains of the old marriage service are the dances. The festivities opened with two or three Indian dances, the first one was danced by the mother and the grandmother of the groom in front of the bride. This was a dance of gratitude, supposed to signify the women's pleasure at receiving the bride into the tribe.

Even the dances seldom form a part of the Indian wedding nowadays. The picturesque features of the old-time ceremony have been banished almost entirely. In place of the potlach fires and feasting there was a six-piece orchestra led by the village schoolmaster and a six-tier wedding cake.

BELLE THEATRE

A poignant cross-section of circus life has made its way to the screen in the Columbia production, "The Clown," which opens at the Belle Theatre tomorrow. A story of true dramatic action, it shows a deftness and fine restraint in direction that gives it appeal as well as strength.

The action centres about a circus owner who is unjustly sent to prison through the treachery of his partner. After 18 years he sees his daughter, now a young woman, performing in a show given by the circus at the penitentiary. He also sees the man who has ruined his life—and determines upon revenge. He escapes from the prison and makes his way back to the circus in clown guise. He overhears his former partner's plan to wreck the girl's happiness and that only stiffens then his desire—for he must save her. It is a horrible revenge that he takes—but he accomplishes it—in a highly dramatic climax that is but the forerunner of an equally tense situation.

The circus background of the story is a vivid one—with all the glamor and color of the sawdust arena. It gives a glimpse behind the scenes as well as provides a regular circus performance rich in glitter and gayety. The big entrance parade is there, the bands, the air performers, the galaxy of clowns and the crowds—all do their part in presenting an authentic circus atmosphere.

William V. Mong portrays the title role of "The Clown"—and he does so with an understanding and a grasp that makes it an outstanding bit of screen acting. Dorothy Revier gives a commendable performance in the dual role of wife and daughter, while Johnnie Walker, who plays a wealthy young man in love with the girl, is convincing. John Miljan again earns admiration for the manner in which he makes the "heavy" role thoroughly despicable. Credit for the sympathetic direction of this vivid tale of the big tents goes to Wm. James Craft.

RUSS WESTOVER

W. E. ROWSOME CHOSEN AS HEAD OF LOCAL BASEBALL ASSOCIATION

Enthusiastic Meeting Augurs Well For Success Of Team

SENIOR SERIES

Great Revival Of Summer Game Promised In Belleville

At one of the most enthusiastic baseball meetings ever held in the city, the Belleville Amateur Baseball Association was officially organized in the Council Chambers last evening. Over thirty supporters of the summer pastime turned out for the meeting in response to a call issued. Discussions were animated, enthusiasm ran high-and a great future is painted for Belleville on the diamond this summer. With Senior ball assured, the fans are taking an added interest in the baseball situation with the result that Belleville is now organized and ready for the opening of the season and although there is still some preliminary work to be done the big questions have been settled. Kingston Mogals are trying to rouse the inhabitants up to some pitch of enthusiasm over the baseball situation but little success has greeted their efforts Oshawa and Peterboro have not yet elected their officers and Belleville is the first in the field. With the Quinte City revival in the atmosphere will probably get busy within the course of a few days.

Pres. W. E. Rowsome

The most important item was the election of officers and a fine, capable set of men were chosen to fill the various positions. Mr. W. E. Rowsome who has filled the honorary office of President for the past two months was honored with the permanent position and it is safe to say that there are few men who could handle the job better than Mr. Rowsome. He has shown by his executive ability during the early stages of preparation that he is the man. Always keenly interested in sports activities of all kinds, Mr. Rowsome is readily regarded as one who gives liberally of his time toward the success of any undertaking.

Other officers chose were:

Hon. Pres: W. R. Tummon, M.P., Dr. Embury, M.P., W. H. Leland, M.P.P., J. Cook M.P.P., J. F. Hill, M.P.P., John Hubbs, M.P., Horace Calliver, M.P.P., J. H. MacMillan.

Pres.—W. E. Rowsome.

1st. Vice-President— Major A. W. Pratt.

2nd Vice Pres.—Ald. A. B. Collins.

3rd. Vice-Pres.—Chas. Hanna, ex-M.P.

Secretary-Treasurer—George Griffin

Assistant Treasurer—A. W. Armstrong

Executive—The vice-Presidents, President, Mayor M. Ponton, Ald. Collins, D. McMillan, Frank Rayfield, Manager of team, players representatives and Harry Greenleaf

With this imposing array of men success should attend their efforts to give Belleville back on the map in the baseball sphere.

George Griffin, well-known Canadian National Express official will make an ideal secretary-treasurer and with Mr. Griffin's past experience he should fill the position most capably.

It was announced that Cobourg and Port Hope will enter an associated team while Oshawa, Peterboro and Kingston will likely file their entry with Newton Thompson, C.O.B.L. Secretary within a week or two.

The Association went on record in favor of organizing Intermediate baseball and these two classes will be considered if possible. Belleville may be represented by a team in the Bay of Quinte league. This matter was left in the hands of the Executive Committee.

The Senior team will likely be known as the Canadian Nationals, the same name which they have travelled under during the past seven years Executive meetings will be held from time to time till the commencement of the season.

BOWLING

C. O. B. L. Opens

The Central Ontario Bowling League got off to a flying start at the Recreation Alleys last night when the local five pin bowlers took on the boys from the Venetian Gardens from Kingston.

Mayor M. P. Duff officially opened the league by making a few remarks and rolling the first bowl down the alleys after which the boys got down to business and started in earnest.

Both teams got away in a poor start the locals taking the first point with a 587 score against 728, the second game was the best of the three, Belleville rolling 1059 and Kingston 900, in the final game the visitors weakened a bit and the locals also won this game which gave them the four points. G. Anderson led the way for the highest single and three string with 305 and 711, for the visitors J. Milne was the best bowlers.

Kingston played in Trenton earlier in the evening and lost three points and won one.

SKIING IS MOST ANCIENT SPORT

Dates Back To Heathen And Prehistoric Times

Stockholm, Sweden.—Ski-running, the most ancient winter sport in the world, dates back to heathen and prehistoric times and the ski undoubtedly was created in Scandinavia, according to the research of Professor R. B. Wilhund, the well-known Lapland expert at the University of Upsala, in an interesting treatise on the history of the ski and the snow-shoe. In olden times the ski sport held such an important place in the life of the Swedes that heathen mythology includes a special deity who was the patron and protector of all ski-runners. The god of the ski was called Ull, and his name is still found in many Swedish place names, such as Ullsuna, Ullevi, etc. On a rune stone in the province of Upland is seen the picture of a ski-runner, and heather legends also contain a northern ski-goddess Skadi, the daughter of giants and the wife of Njord. The original Scandinavian ski consisted of one long ski of wood with a groove in the centre and a short one ungrooved and covered with leather. The long one was the running ski and the short one was used for climbing hills and for standing in. Russia and Siberia the skis were long, covered with leather and both intended for sliding in the snow.

These interesting facts about the history of the ski sport are published in the excellent yearbook of the Swedish Society of the promotion of ski sport in Sweden, just out. Skiing is the most popular of all Swedish athletics, and the interest in this sport seems to be growing.

TIGERS, ALEMITE WIN CITY LEAGUE GAMES AT ARENA

Tigers Surprise Imperial Oil In First Game—Ciacos No Match

GOOD CROWD

Brignals Slip Over 3-2 Victory While East-Enders Win 6-2

The biggest surprise of the city league season was handed out at the arena last evening when Lamoile Rogers Tigers subdued the speedy Imperial Oil clan by a 3-2 score in a close-checking affair. The Imperials trotted out the heaviest line-up in the city league and with most of the boys experienced in hockey ranks the Tigers were given little chance to win. How ever the Brigals staged an up-hill fight against the long odds and triumphed in a game that had the crowd on edge. It was probably the most exciting tilt to date and the fans were solidly behind the underdogs and the Tigers made many friends by their clean-cut victory last night.

The second game was not nearly as exciting as the first, the Alemite putting the Ciacos away by the score of 6-2. The East-enders were all over their opponents and did not have a great deal of difficulty in salting the contest away. Had it not been for the smart work of Vanderman in the Ciaco's net, the count would have amounted a great deal higher. He turned aside a heap of shots labelled goals.

Tigers 3, Imperial 2

The Marvellous trotted out in new spick and span uniforms and presented a natty appearance and on paper they certainly looked the best of the two teams. It was the Imperial's second defeat they having lostto the Y's Men last week. If they hope to get into the play-offs they will have to step on the gas.

Jimmie Rodger played bang-up hockey for the Tigers and was in every play. The Matthews boys assisted in the tallying by hanging up one each. The game was inclined to be a trifle rough at times and N. Guyer was none too strict with the boys. Pick Arnott and Cook on the defence were carrying their sticks high all night and a couple of the youngsters felt the effect of the spills. Peets, Jeffery and Wickerton were the best of the losers. Wardhaugh, Hedger, and Max Matthews under some nice work and had the Marvellous outpointed at times.

Tigers		Imperials
Donovan	goal	Jeffery
Krantz, Hedger	defence	Cook, Arnott
Wardhaugh	centre	R. Arnott
R. Matthews	wings	Peets
M. Matthews		Jeffery
McMahon	subs.	Kerr
Hutchlow		Wickerson, Miles

Alemite 6, Ciacos 2

The Alemite simply went to work and had the Ciacos at their mercy most of the time. It was not nearly as good a game as the first one but the Ciacos made things interesting at times between two and until the finish. Cornell, the Port Hope Times and The Daily Intelligencer Manager-Coach, has been approached by Manager Lamber Mason (formerly of this staff, but now in Port Hope) with the idea of bringing the intr-alingers together soon and it will probability that boys will drop over the boards before the season closes.

According to reports from the Limestone City the baseball team which it is proposed to put in the C.O.B.L. will be largely made up of juniors. Those who saw the Circle Six team perform in this district last fall will remember the promising youngsters from Cobourg and there are many others just as good down in the eastern city, who, if given a chance, will show up well in the higher division. The report indicates that some of the veterans will be put on the shelf in favor of the youngsters, and this will apply to pitchers as well as others. There is a raft of young pitchers in the Limestone City many of whom would, in all probability, make good in a senior grouping. The activity down there always well for the future of the C.O.B.L.—Port Hope Times.

Belleville hockey fans are moving for an artifical ice rink for next year according to reports from that city. With a really strong intermediate team this year, they have been handicapped by lack of ice for practices and for games. Given a raft of good junior material coming along for next winter, they feel that the only thing for them to do is to get the artifical ice. One thing is certain, Belleville needs a new rink that much is patent to anyone who has seen hockey in the Railway City and here's hoping that when the boosters are at it they will be successful in getting the artifical kind which does not depend on outside weather.—Port Hope Times.

If Queen's and Kingston win their games in Belleville, it will simply mean that the second meeting of these two teams, on February 6th, should be as good as the game last week. Of course anything is liable to happen in Belleville.—Kingston Whig-Standard.

Basket-ball fans will see a real team in action at the "Y" tonight with the city quintette standing up against Herb Scott's Intermediates. The locals will trot out in new regulation and sparkling duds which are of the latest design in basket-ball jerseys. The Queen's team recently disposed of the Royal Military College and while the Cadets defeated the Belleville team the latter were handicapped while playing on a strange floor and against players who had been practising faithfully. Queen's will meet almost a new team tonight and the fur will fly when there two step in at nine o'clock on the "Y" floor. A fast preliminary game will also be played.

Kingston folk are playing hosts to Varsity Grads, Canada's representatives at the Olympics tonight. After, Porter, Trottier and Company have met the best that Limestone City can produce they will be feted at the new La Salle Hotel.

Professor Colley of R. M. C. will be in charge of the Kingston team that meet the Grads while the team mustered from the three Intermediate squads will wear the Cadets jerseys.

Efforts were made to have the Picton youngsters come to Belleville to play the Eastport game tomorrow evening, but the management of the Picton Arena were handicapped while in no event with Manager Thomas' request.

City league schedule has been caught up to date following last evening's double-header. No further games will be played until Monday, January 23rd., when the Y's Men will meet the Point Anne gang, and Quinte Electricians will try for their third straight win over the Ciaco in the night-cap.

Joe Saundercock the big defence man of the Brockville Intermediates has not to date been in the line-up it was reported a short time ago that he was expected back in the fold after the game in Belleville but to date Joe is still an absentee and we wonder what the cause can be.

An exhibition game of hockey may be played in the near future between two rival teams, namely the Port Hope Times and The Daily Intelligencer. Manager L. Cook has been approached by Manager Lamber Mason (formerly of this staff, but now in Port Hope) with the idea of bringing the intr-alingers together soon and it will probability that boys will drop over the boards before the season closes.

OSHAWA WINS IN TANKARD SERIES

Belleville Club Put Out By Motor Town Boys Last Night

Keen interest was aroused among local curlers yesterday by the Tankard competition for this district held in Belleville yesterday. In the morning Belleville and Cobourg played, Belleville winning, and in the afternoon Oshawa and Cobourg played, Cobourg losing this round also. In the evening Oshawa and Belleville met and Belleville had to take the loser's end.

Yesterday afternoon saw what was perhaps the most exciting game of the day. An extra end had to be played off and one of the Oshawa players had to be summoned from Hotel Quinte where he had gone to rest up after his labors in the afternoon play.

A large crowd of enthusiastic curlers was present at the evening session when Belleville and Oshawa took the ice together but despite stiff opposition Belleville went down to a crushing defeat at the hands of the visitors.

JOE, JUNIOR, WILL NOT TURN "PRO"

Toronto, Jan. 18.—There is little chance that Joe Wright, champion junior golfer, will turn professional, even after he has competed at the English Henley and Olympic golf this summer. Wright, international coach, who manages Joe, said today there was "nothing to it" when asked if Bobby Barrie, new world's professional champion had in New York yesterday said there was some talk of Joe Junior entering the monied ranks.

FIRST SHIPMENT OF LIVE RANGE CATTLE

Vancouver.—Shipments of dressed beef have been exported to Japan from this port for several years past and shipments of pure bred and grade dairy cattle have also been made, but what is believed to have been the first shipment of live range beef cattle was made from here by the Vancouver Livestock Exchange recently. The shipment consisted of forty head of heifers averaging 1200 pounds each, which were obtained in Alberta. The animals which will be slaughtered at Kobe, were in prime conditions, but coming straight off the range and never having had a rope on them since they were branded, the longhorn men had a lively time getting them on board ship and tied in their stalls.

MISS MORGAN DENIES REPORT

New York, Jan. 18.—At the home of Miss Morgan, 3 Sutton Place, it was said last night by Miss Morgan's private secretary that she had been authorized to deny the Paris report of Miss Morgan's engagement to the Prince of Monaco. She characterized it as "utterly without foundation" and "untrue."

VESTRY MEETING POSTPONED

Kingston, Jan. 18.—The annual vestry meeting of St. John's Church, Portsmouth, which was scheduled for Monday evening, has been postponed until Monday of next week by the wish of the congregation in respect to the memory of the late Ven. Archdeacon O. O. Dobbs, who was rgiidly known and loved in Portsmouth perhaps as much as in any other parish of the Diocese of Ontario.

THE BIGGEST EVENT

Kingston, Jan. 18.—The biggest event this year will be the Kiwanis Charity Ball in the City Hall on Wednesday, January 25. This will be the eighth annual Kiwanis Charity Ball, and the Chairman, George Bawden, promises to surpass all other dances. If he succeeds the people of Kingston are in for some "ball."

IN CONFERENCE

Cannanoque, Jan. 18.—Mayor Wilson, Dr. J. P. Sinclair, Lennox A. Guild, accompanied by J. G. Mitchell of Lansdowne, were in Brockville yesterday and had a conference with the officers of the chamber of commerce there regarding the proposed international bridge between Collins Landing, in New York State, and a point just above Rockport, on the Canadian side. These gentlemen were appointed at the meeting in the Provincial hotel here a week ago, to take the matter up with Brockville interests, and after a discussion of the subject in Brockville yesterday, it was decided to let the matter rest until the government has made the announcement of its policy concerning the site of the lake shipment terminal, and as to whether it is their intention to build a bridge over the St. Lawrence in connection with it.

WINTER TOURIST TRAFFIC

Winter is with us and the annual exodus to Florida, the Gulf Coast, and to California, is under way. There is ample choice of routes available to the traveler and it is evident business is to take full advantage of the many diverse and optional features available to the winter tourist tickets by the Canadian National.

Let our nearest representative assist you in planning your trip and he will also be glad to advise you fully as to Canadian National through train services to Montreal, New York, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Detroit and Chicago, connecting at those cities with the services of United States Lines therefrom to the various winter resorts. Passengers for Florida, travelling via Detroit, will find the afternoon train from Toronto, with a through parlor car to Detroit, a most convenient and comfortable connection.

Apply to any Agent of the Canadian National Railways.

COBOURG FIRE LOSS

Cobourg, Jan. 18.—The report of the Cobourg fire department presented to the Town Council by Chief T. J. Turpin, shows that there were 28 fires last year, with a total loss of only $2,700. The amount of insurance carried on these properties was $23,900.

TRY SALTS IF KIDNEYS HURT

Drink Water Freely and Often to Keep Kidneys Flushed and Clean

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Too much rich food creates acids which clog the kidney pores so that they sluggishly filter the waste out part of the acid and poisons from the blood. Then you get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage, or stended by a sensation of scalding, begin to drink soft water in quantities; also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everyone can take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby often preventing serious kidney complications. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

SHORTAGE FOUND IN LODGE FUNDS

Orange Grand Lodge Treasury Appears To Be Out $17,000

OFFICIAL BLAMED

Raised Salary Cheques Alleged To Have Been Method Employed

Toronto, Jan. 19.—There is a shortage in the funds of the Orange Grand Lodge of British North America, running from $14,000 to $17,000, and an investigation is being held.

Hon. Joseph E. Thompson, former Speaker of the Ontario Legislature, and member of the Legislature for the Riding of St. David's, is the Grand Lodge Treasurer, but is in no way responsible for the shortage, although the Grand Lodge may look to him to make the amount good to the treasury.

The auditors are Ald. J. Wesley Bennett, Past County Master, and James Harper, of Hamilton.

Believe Salary Cheques Raised

According to information obtained last night, the shortage was brought about through the circulation of a number of "raised" salary cheques and cashed at the bank, where the Grand Lodge deposits its funds.

The Grand Secretary is that veteran Orangeman William Lee, who has an office in the Orange Hall, Queen Street East. In this office was a trust fund official, a Past Master of one of the city lodges, who acted as stenographer and bookkeeper, Hon. Joseph E. Thompson, because of the legislative and business demands on his time sometimes could not give close attention to the duties of Grand Treasurer, and left some of the work to the stenographer and bookkeeper.

Cheques Marked N. S. F.

Hon. Mr. Thompson recently issued some official cheques, which came back marked "not sufficient funds." He visited the bank and, it is understood, discovered the shortage in the bank account. Both the bank officials and Hon. Mr. Thompson and the Grand Lodge auditors made an inspection of the cheques, which had been cashed.

Money Purchased House

It was stated last night that a considerable portion of the money had been traced into the purchase of a house, which may yet become the property of the Grand Lodge through restitution that may be made.

Three years ago, the Grand Lodge auditors had checked up an apparent shortage of $700 and when they discovered to report the matter to Grand Lodge, the clerk said that rather than have any disputes about the alleged shortage and perhaps lose his position worth $2,000 a year, he would pay the $700.

Hon. Dr. Edwards is Supreme Grand Master. The Grand Lodge Executive is now dealing with the matter of the shortage and is endeavoring to place the responsibility and, if possible, obtain restitution.

Members of Grand Lodge in Toronto last night refused to discuss the shortage.

MRS. MARY GAY DEAD AGED 95

Spent Ninety Years Of Her Life In The Quinte District

Another of the fast-vanishing pioneers of this district passed away in the person of Mrs. Mary Gay. The decreased lady, who was in her ninety-fifth year, was born in Prince Edward County, and had spent most of her life in the vicinity of Belleville and Stirling. Four years ago she made her home with her daughter, Mrs. T. E. Coeford, and it was at her residence at 52 Strathcona Avenue, Hamilton, that she died.

Her husband predeceased her some thirty years ago. Two sons, Wm. J. Gay and Charles Gay, of Eldorado, also died several years ago.

She is survived by four daughters, who with a large number of other relatives attended the funeral which took place from Green Guernsey Funeral Chapel to Hamilton Cemetery, where the Reverend Dr. J. Wilson officiated at the burial service. The pall bearers were son-in law and friend of the deceased.

COURT HAS MERCY

Parole Officer Shot In Attempted Escape To See Mother

Auburn, N.Y., Jan. 19.—Because he was shot into coma of rapture after escaping to see his mother before she died, Seaney Perlieon, Auburn prison convict charged with escape from Victory Road Camp, on Sept. 9, 1927, has found there is leniency at the bar of Justice. When arraigned before Justice Rod enbeck, in Supreme Court today Seaney was given a suspended sentence.

LIFE IN PRISON GIVEN HOTELLING

Crime Almost Convinces Judge Of Need For Capital Punishment

Flint, Mich., Jan. 19.—The slayer of golden-haired Dorothy Schneider is on his way to pay the penalty for his crime. Judge Fred W. Brennan, of the Genesee County Circuit Court today sentenced Adolphe Hotelling to life imprisonment at hard labor in solitary confinement in the State branch prison at Marquette.

The murderer broke with him on his trip to the bleak upper-peninsula institution a mute, but brutal appeal for mercy and desperate grief of the father of his victim.

As the stolid, disheveled Owosso carpenter and church elder was brought into the courtroom today, Leslie Schneider, father of the girl, sprang from an atternoon, lashed out with all his strength and struck Hotelling full in the face. The man blinked, shook his head and placed his hand on his face as if it were evident that the blow was painful.

In passing sentence upon the confessed murderer, who had entered a plea of guilty, Judge Brennan declared: "The death as shown by this confession and the proof almost convince me we should have capital punishment in this State."

GOLD REACHES ITS FRENCH DESTINATION

Paris, January. 19.—The second of three large gold shipments made recently from the United States to France, containing $7,500,000 in gold, arrived at Havre aboard the French liner Buffon, was landed immediately into four railroad cars and transhipped to Paris. The gold was packed in 147 kegs, the total weight of which was more than thirteen tons. It was sent by the Guaranty Trust Company to the Bank of France.

SKIES RAINED STONES TO STARTLE NATIVE INDIANS

Lapaz, Bolivia, Jan. 19.—A meteorological phenomenon described as a veritable rain of stone from the skies has frightened the natives of the Yarugani province, according to advices reaching this city. A flash in the skies a day or so ago was followed immediately by a roar as of thunder which had not ended, before small stone fragments began to fall to earth. Within a moment the fragments became larger, this ending with the fall of a huge stone which fractured into small pieces when it struck the ground.

COSTELLO CHILD WAS MURDERED

Subjected To a Gang Attack And Then Clubbed To Death

NOT DROWNED

Thirteen-Year-Old Girl Destroyed By a Band Of Fiends

Toronto, Jan. 19.—Florence Costello, the 13-year-old North Toronto girl, whose body was found frozen in a creek near her home, December 26, was the victim of a gang of blackguards who assaulted her, and then clubbed her to death with some blunt instrument.

The remains of the child were found frozen in a creek which runs through Brier Park, near St. Clement's Avenue, North Toronto, by three school-girls, who stumbled over her glove-covered hand, while playing on the ice of the stream, and thus brought to an end a search in which hundreds of men and boys had taken part.

Verdict of Murder

A verdict of murder was returned to Chief Coroner M. M. Crawford last night at the morgue, after Dr. R. Franklin had given the results of his autopsy.

Although there is no mention of it in the jury's finding, the child was also the victim of a terrible assault.

Dr. Crawford announced that the opinion that the case was one of the most unfortunate in his lengthy experience.

Certain of the organs had been sent to the provincial laboratories for microscopic examination and these showed that the girl had been assaulted shortly before her death. Dr. Franklin told the jury.

"It looked to me as if this poor girl had been subjected to a terrible ravishing." Dr. Franklin asserted. "It appeared to be the work of a gang."

PROPOSE REWARD

Toronto May Offer Money For Conviction Of Child Murderers

Toronto, Jan. 19.—It was learned here today that Mayor McBride will propose a reward for the apprehension and conviction of the slayer or slayers of Florence Costello, at a meeting of Police Commissioners to be held today. This action follows the verdict of the coroner's jury last night that the twelve-year-old girl had been murdered.

Hon. W. S. Price, Attorney-General, stated today that no action is being taken by his department in regard to the murder, but if the city police ask for assistance, they would do all in their power to help clear up the mystery of the girl's death.

SEPARATE BOARD NOW ORGANIZED

Old Officers Again Honored With Offices --- Committees Chosen

Belleville's Separate School Board for the ensuing year met in the Board Rooms in the Council Chambers last evening. Rev. Father C. J. Killeen was again honored with the office of Chairman, while Mr. J.V.C. Trudeau was unanimously elected Secretary-Treasurer. The following committees were chosen:

Organist—Chairman, J. M. Trudeau, John Fitzgerald, W. A. Dolan and T. J. Hurley.

Sites, Buildings and Repairs—Jar. Lynch, chairman, F. Walsh, Wm. Dunnink, Jos. Hurley and A. Fitzgerald.

Printing and Supplies—W. A. Dolan, chairman, Rev. C. A. Huffman.

Finance—Rev. C. J. Killeen, chairman, T. J. Hurley, E. P. Hughes, F. C. Lee and J. V. Trudeau.

Representative on High School Board—Mr. E. C. Butler (reappointed).

Public Library Board—P. F. Carney, (reappointed). Mr. O'Leary replaces F. D. Moriarity on the Board.

School Attendance Officer—Frederick Bennett.

Auditors—W. N. Belair and T. J. Hurley.

Favor New Collegiate

Mr. Butler addressed the body in regard to the building of the new Collegiate. The Board had passed a motion authorizing Mr. Butler to ask that the Board were in favor of the Collegiate.

The question of teaching of music in the Separate School by the National School for the advancement of music was discussed at length but no action was taken and it was decided to wait and determine the results of the new system in the other schools of the city. Music is taught in the Separate School at this city but under a different system and it was the unanimous opinion that this is proving satisfactory.

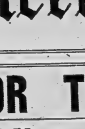

PRESENTATION MADE TO YOUNG COUPLE

Local employees of the McLaughlin Motor Company, and their friends gathered in the C. O. R. Hall last evening to do honor to two of their number in the persons of Mr. and Mrs. Gome Hoopes, who were recently married. Mr. Moyes is foreman of the local plant and has been connected with the firm for some years.

After a jolly evening spent in cards and other forms of entertainment, Mr. and Mrs. Moyes were called to the centre of the floor and Mr. Sam Wilkie, on behalf of the employees, after reading an address, presented the couple with a beautiful dinner wagon. Replies were made thanking the McLaughlin employees for the gift, after which dancing commenced with the music furnished by Mr. Dick Denmark. About seventy were present.

No change, however, is reported in the mother's condition. Mrs. Delgarnon has been under her administrance to the hospital on Saturday.

PRESENTS PLANE TO FLYING CLUB

Fine Gift Of $7000 Moth Made By Sir Charles Wakefield

Gift of a $7,000 Moth plane has been made the Toronto Aero Club by Sir Charles Wakefield, Bt., noted Imperial and one of the greatest benefactors of flying in the British Empire.

The Moth plane presentation was supplied yesterday by W. H. Howard, representative who handle the Canadian business of C. C. Wakefield & Co., Ltd., Producers Castrol Motor Oils of which Sir Charles is Managing Director.

"Mighty Good News"

This is mighty good news to those of us who were in the Private Ops during the war and also to the many younger chaps who have never had a chance to take up the most fascinating sport in the world. We now have to see a great amount of flying, starting this summer, and this unexpected gift from Sir Charles Wakefield will bring flying along faster than ever in this country. It is a great gift that since the war flying has been let die. The revival, however, is on and in the next three years will astonish everybody.

Other Planes Presented

It is interesting to know that extent of Sir Charles' philanthropy in the flying field. He has presented Moth planes to flying clubs throughout Great Britain, and the Toronto gift is but the start of a chain of gifts to flying organizations in other parts of the Empire. The world-renowned Sir Alan Cobham, who is now engaged on the colossal task of mapping Africa from the air, is a protege of Sir Charles. Cost of this latest Cobham-adventure is being met chiefly by Sir Charles in the hope that it will mean the tying together of Empire bonds.

INSURANCE CO. ASK THAT POLICIES BE CANCELLED

New York, Jan. 19.—Motion for a jury trial of the suit of the Prudential Insurance Co of America to have cancelled policies for $97,000 on the life of Albert Snyder, murdered art editor was denied in the supreme court today.

The action is directed against Mrs. Josephine Brown and Lorraine Snyder, mother and little daughter of Mrs. Ruth Snyder who was executed last week with Henry Judd Gray for Snyder's murder. The policies were taken out by Mrs. Snyder and the company asserts this was done without Snyder's knowledge and with the intention of killing him for the money.

TO-DAY'S THOUGHT

Act well your given part; the choice rests not with you.—Epictetus

OVER THE PEAK

The great increase in banking business as revealed by the statements of the big chartered banks of Canada shows that the Dominion has passed through its trying period of post-war readjustment and can face the future with complete confidence. Taking the banking situation as a whole, government figures give the total assets of the banks as $3,242,400,000 at November 30 last, a record high.

The most gratifying feature of this official report is the fact that savings deposits likewise attained a new high record, being $1,430,955,000 at the date mentioned. When current accounts are added, the total deposits reach the huge sum of $2,161,300,000. There is another consideration which makes the financial condition of the Dominion all the more satisfactory. Mr. Kenneth Taylor, in the Financial Post, states that Canadians own 68.8 per cent. of Canadian securities, being an increase of 9.8 per cent. in the past seven years.

According to this table, the United States was the only other country, besides Canada itself, to increase the value of its holdings of Canadian securities in that period, the amount of such increase being 1.1 per cet. On the other hand, British ownership of Canadian securities declined in the seven-year period from 15.5 per cent. in 1920 to 12.2 per cent. last year.

The total value of all Canadian securities—government and municipal bonds, railways, industries and trade, finance and insurance, land and mortgages—has grown from the sum of $12,408,000,000 in 1920 to $13,793,000,000 in 1927. If Canadians continue to increase their holdings at the rate indicated, some compensation for the borrowing-off in the British total is afforded but it is to be hoped that the Mother Country will be able to make up the leeway in due time.

NO USE TO CANADA

Probably there is little significance in the fact that the U.S. senate yesterday adopted a resolution calling for tariff reduction. The twelve Republican senators who, with the forty-two Democrats, voted with the majority against thirty Republicans and two Democrats, represent western states where the spirit of insurgency against the Republican party is strongest. The resolution is not in itself effective for all tariff matters are in the hands of the house of representatives; it is merely a suggestion to the house, and, as there is a substantial Republican majority in the house, there is not much chance that it will have any effect. In fact, the resolution is merely a threatening gesture from the representatives of western farmers, warning the administration and its Republican supporters that it would be politically expedient for them to grant a large measure of relief to the farmers, even to the adoption of the McNary-Haugen bill.

There is not much interest for Canada in this incident. Even if heed were given to the resolution and an attempt were made to satisfy the American farmers by scaling down the tariff in spots, this country would not be likely to benefit by the changes, for the farmers, while demanding tariff reductions on things they buy, insist upon the maintenance of high protective duties on all farm produce, and still higher duties on corn, poultry, hides, vegetables, oils and several other things which they produce. Like the farmers of western Canada, they want the earth, and are not inclined to pay anything for it.

NO TINKERING!

Ottawa correspondents, seemingly well-informed, report Mr. Robb busy regarded on a downward revision of the tariff. If this be so, then it is to be hoped that the Minister of Finance will give a thought to our latest figures on trade. Briefly, they show that in the past eight months Canada's trade balance has declined by $84,000,000; that, in the eight month period, imports have increased by 76 millions while exports declined by 30 millions; and that, at the present time, Canadians are importing goods from abroad at the rate of almost three millions a day.

Canada's tariff, in some respects, may be unnecessarily high. Cases may exist where a slight downward revision would bring good to consumers. But, taken by and large it can hardly be argued that a tariff which permits nine million people to import a billion dollars' worth of foreign goods in a year, is an unduly high one. It is certainly not a prohibitory one.

Numerous readjustments might well be made, and sensibly, in the customs schedules. The tariff, for example, might profitably be removed from a number of articles which are not manufactured in Canada but which are imported in considerable quantities. It may well be, too, as already stated, that, in some lines, reductions of duties would bring more good than harm.

What should be guarded against is a mere tinkering with the tariff for sectional political gain. Canada has just about recovered her feet after "a difficult post-war struggle, and it would be little short of criminal if, by political meddling with a tariff that is already one of the lowest in the world, she were given another setback.

IMMORTALITY

They are not dead, those singers of the past,
Who feel no more the stab of Beauty's pain
At song of bird, or sunset's tired flame
Or drifting scent of lilacs after rain.

The lambent flares of passion and regret,
The laurels that were wreathed about their brows,
Are one with all the vanished past, and yet:

Though future worlds despise the poet's art;
Who knows what scented summer wind may bear
The lyric dust of dappho's broken heart?

When buying an "electric" radio—

Actual Size of Tube

Look for the Rogers A/C TUBE with the Top Clips

THIS is your means of positive identification of a Rogers Batteryless Radio, as this tube is found only in the Rogers and is made and controlled in Canada exclusively by Rogers for their Batteryless Receiving Sets.

Thousands upon thousands of these tubes have been in active daily use throughout Canada for years and most of those now in use for the third year are as good as new.

The A/C tube is the heart of any electric set and the Rogers is the only A/C tube in Canada that has proven its ability to give maximum service for years.

Fully Guaranteed

Moreover the Rogers A/C tube is absolutely guaranteed to give satisfactory performance. You take no chance of heavy tube expense!

The phenomenal success of the Rogers Batteryless Radio (it now enjoys the greatest sales of any radio in Canada and more than all other "electric" radios combined!) is based largely on the quality, power, and durability of the Rogers A/C tube.

$215 and $275 for Sets complete, except Speaker
$290 to $425 for Console Models, complete.
Jubilee 7-tube Console—550 volts—$990 complete

HAVE YOU HEARD THESE?

Prisoner: Ere—Wot's this bill for fifty dollars?

Jailer: We've just found out that you're the wrong guy, and that's for a couple of months' board and lodging.

"I broke off my engagement with George because my feelings were no longer the same as when I accepted him."

"Yes? Then why do you keep his engagement ring?"

"Because my feelings towards the ring are unchanged."

A lady ran away from her husband and went to live in a hotel. After several days she went back to him. She said she couldn't stand looking at the sign on the hotel door every time she went out; it troubled her conscience. The sign read: "Think; have you left anything?"

They sell a story about a tiny and who gazed longingly but helplessly at the body of a dead horse. Just then a bootlegger's truck rattled by and a case of stuff fell off and crashed to the ground. A puddle formed and the ant took a sip. Then he seized the dead horse by the tail and shouted: "Come on big boy, we're going home."

If there is anything we dislike more than anything it is to hear a man boast of what he is going to do.

QUEEN'S PROVED TO BE TOO GOOD

Beat Local "Y" By 54 To 39—Grads Won From School

Although they fought all the way the Y Intermediates were not equal to the task of stopping the smooth working Queen's Basketball Machine at the Campbell St. Gymnasium last night. Queens won by the score of 54-39 and the score was quite representative of the play. In Rose defense player and pivot man, the University team have one lovely player and without that one player on the line up the Queens team could be made to look quite ordinary.

The local line up was minus the service of their husky defence player Elmer Walters, which handicapped them to a certain degree but at that they must improve their game considerably if they are to keep up with the leaders in the group. From now on more frequent practices will be in order with especial attention to foul shooting in which department the Tome Town are deplorably weak. Captain Weir ran the Queens ace, Rose a close race potting only one less basket than the latter. The remainder of the points were well scattered among the other members of he team.

Grads Won Out

Belleville Collegiate Institute team gave promise of handling the Grads or Old Boys a real drubbing but as the game progressed the Grads worked a little more system into their play and thereby got better results. The school team also found the going rather heavy towards the end of the game due to the fact they were playing against much older and heavier players for the most part.

For the School, Davison and Faulkner furnished the scoring punch whereas on the grads lineup Armstrong was contributed by the various members of the team both forwards and defence.

COSTELLO CHILD

to the police. He did not see the child's face, and as a consequence was unable to identify her through a picture.

"I searched a portion of the ravine on the night my sister disappeared. I feel certain my sister's body was not in the creek between Briar Hill and St. Clement's Avenue," said Michael Costello, brother of the girl. "The water was only about two feet deep. I used an electric bicycle lamp, which threw a strong light four feet square."

Coroner Court Room

Before Dr. Frankish gave his evidence Coroner Crawford ordered the courtroom cleared. He believed there would be evidence from which the public could receive no benefit. He asked the press to use every discretion and to consider the feelings of people who were interested in the case.

"The external appearance of the body was that of a girl who had been in the water," said Dr. Frankish. "Her hair was covered with mud. The body was free of external violence. The lungs were normal, without any signs of water. There were no symptoms that the child had died from drowning.

Clot of Blood

"On the left side of the head there was a blood clot," he continued. "Underneath the clot there was a fracture of the skull. My impression is that the girl did not live long after she suffered the fracture. The cause of death was fracture of the skull. There was no other cause, such as drowning. The fracture caused immediate unconsciousness."

Dr. Frankish said that respiration had ceased before she went under water.

"I doubt if the same result could have followed a fall," he told Coroner Crawford. "The fracture was on the side of the head. I cannot conceive of it as the result of a fall. In a fall the girl would fallen limp. My impression is that she was struck with a blunt instrument over the whole side of the head. If it had been a sharp instrument, the fracture would have been different in character."

Examination revealed the fact that the girl had been assaulted a short time before her body was frozen into the bed of the creek. Dr. Frankish described the assault as "terrible." His opinion could be confirmed, he said, by the Grace Hospital pathologist.

GRADS OUTPLAY KINGSTON BOYS

Team Looks Good To Capture Amateur Honors Of The World

Kingston fans saw Varsity Grads Canada's representatives at the Olympic games play last evening, in fact they saw too much of them as the Grads opening up with a customary barrell of speed in the last period overwhelmed the home-boys and defeated them 8-2. The rink was packed and the crowd went home satisfied that Canada's team will give a good account of itself in the trials with the teams representing the other nations. The Grads have been playing every night for the past month and did not show unusual form in the first two periods but they swept the Kingston amalgamated team off their feet in the last two chukkers.

Captain Red Porter, Trottier and Ross Taylor on the defence were probably the pick of the Olympics. Lou Madison was suffering from an allment and appears to have gone back in the last year. The three Paxtons played mediocre hockey and do not weaken any positions when they go into the ice. Charlie Delaney who form erly played for the Belleville Juniors has improved by leaps and bounds and was going nicely while on the ice.

Howard Reid kept pace with the Grads and made some pretty sallies into enemy territory and along with Lawlor was the best of the combines. Reid's one goal was a nifty piece of work and Joe Sullivan didn't see it.

The Grads play more or less along the style or the old game and had absolute back to their positions to await the attack of the opponents. They are certainly a smooth-working outfit and despite the fact that they are somewhat stale from a long campaign were right in their element when the King ston team started to force the play in the second period and soon overhauled the temporary one-goal margin.

Chick Mundell was handled but well did not issue one penalty although a little rough work crept in at times.

The Kingston fans were surprised with the dazzling speed shown by Trottier who has received more than one flattering professional offer. Trottier left a string of players in his wake every time they broke away. Porter too, although he is clumsy-appearing gets results and can skate like a demon.

Quinn played a fine game in goal, while Kinnsmill of R.M.C., was also in good form.

Lots of speed and power in the new Ford engine. It develops 40 H.P. at 2200 R.P.M., a low speed for such power; it has the entire new standard for light car speed and acceleration. Have Belleville Motors demonstrate it to you.

DEATHS & FUNERALS

MRS. EMILY MITZ.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Mitz was held yesterday afternoon from the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. O. Hendity, 442 Highland Avenue, to West Huntingdon Cemetery, where the committal took place in the family plot with Rev. W. H. Truscott and Dr. E. N. Baker officiating. Rev. F. E. Malpitt, minister of Bridge Street, United Church and Rev. Dr. E. N. Baker conducted an impressive service in the home in this city in the presence of many friends and relatives. A large number of beautiful floral tributes were also placed on the casket as tokens of sympathy from friends.

The bearers were Messrs. H. Phillips, F. White, G. Bonisteel, C. S. Clapp, S. A. Lockwood and R. Gardiner.

STARVED ALONE IN A TINY SHACK

Old Man Died From Cold And Hunger In Wealthy City

Toronto, Jan. 19.—In twentieth century Toronto last night, while hundreds raup with voices and laughter and prosperity was reflected in crowd exhilaration and brightly lighted shops, a man starved to death.

At 7 o'clock two policemen forced their way into a miserable little shack at 250 Front Street East, and on the bed in the room in the place they found the emaciated form of John Sullivan, aged 59 years. They took him to St. Michael's Hospital, where at 7.30 o'clock he died.

Everything Sacrificed

Not a solitary morsel of food was to be found in the cupboard, not a single lump of coal in the cold stove or blistered grattle. Everything of worth seemed to have been sacrificed to the pathetic struggle or existence, and only a few tottering pieces of furniture remained in the house.

His neighbors, kind-hearted souls, who fed the old man out more or less regularly when his need became apparent, knew little about him, except as a victim of apparently great age and poverty and indigence.

Rushed to Hospital

The constable, with his patrol sergeant, P. S. Tooth, entered the house and turned up the dim light. A bed was in one corner of the room, and half upright on the bed was the figure of the man. He was so unmistakably in the last stages of starvation and exposure that the officers made haste to call an ambulance, and Sullivan was rushed to the hospital.

At the institution a bed was prepared and the form of the old man laid under warm sheets. For a few minutes he remained conscious, and everything possible was done for him.

In a short time, however, he sank into a coma and in half an hour he was dead. Death was attributed to starvation and exposure.

Inquest May be Held

Investigation by the police, who notified the Public Trustee, and by Coroner, Dr. Burgess, indicated the report, as yet unconfirmed, that the man had two daughters residing in Toronto. Pending further efforts to learn something of the child or children, the body had been removed at the Morgue for an autopsy. An inquest may be held.

FUNERAL NOTICE.

BURKITT—Died in Frankford, Ont. on Jan. 18, 1928, George Burkitt, in his 76th year.

The funeral will take place from his late residence, Fourth Concession Sidney, Jan. 20th. Services at house at 2 p.m. Interment Frankford Cemetery.

GEDDES-WALDER

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized in Toledo, Ohio, January 16th, by the Rev. P. H. Lehmann when Mrs. Beatrice Walder of Toronto and Mr. Albert Geddes of Burke's Falls, Ontario, were united in marriage.

The bride was attired in a pretty frock of deti blue with trimmings of gold cloth and she wore a small French hat and shoes to match. Her bridal bouquet was of sweet pea and baby's breath. She was attended by her sister and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Egzert of Detroit, Mich. Mrs. Egzert wore a pretty pale green satin with close fitting black satin hat and gold shoes and stockings.

After a short honeymoon the young couple will be at home to their friends at 665 Landsdowne Avenue, Toronto.

The bride's father was formerly Miss Beatrice Welch of Belleville. Picton papers please copy.

FELLOW EMPLOYEES MAKE PRESENTATION

DOCTORS SCORED BY SPECIALIST

Visiting Cancer Expert Says They Know Nothing Of Disease

Toronto, Jan. 19.—Toronto cancer experts drew the critical fire of Dr. Lester Dunhan, well known specialist of London, England, who is in the city collecting statistics for the British Empire Cancer Research Fund, in an interview yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Glover, formerly of Toronto, whose specialty is cancer research worker has become widespread, was the target for most of Dr. Saunders' dissertation. The theories propounded by Dr. Glover simply wouldn't hold water, the London surgeon asserted, and scientists and reputable medical men everywhere knew this.

Merely "Bluffers"

"For the past three years I have travelled all over the world in the interests of cancer research collecting statistics for the British Empire Cancer Research Fund," said Dr. Saunders "and everywhere I go I find one, or more men who build up reputations for themselves. They are in many cases looked upon as demi-gods by the lay public, but they are little more than bluffers."

Dr. Bentley of the Western Hospital here, who is also an expert on cancer, was another who drew Dr. Saunder's fire.

"How can these men be authorities on cancer when they have not practically the time and study to the subject? Dr. Saunders wanted to know. "The field of cancer research is so immense that no man with a hare ten months' experience behind him can have any claim to authority as to fundamentals."

In British Expert

Dr. Saunders, officially representing the British Empire Cancer Research Fund, has been touring Toronto for 10 days. While here he will give a series of private lectures to the Royal College of Surgeons of Edinburgh University and a post graduate course of lectures. He has held a number of administrative posts in large English hospitals and is the author of "The Pathology and Clinic of Cancer" and "Unusual Cases of Surgical Practice."

ROBBED MAN WHO GAVE THEM LIFT

Woodstock, Ont., Jan. 19.—A suitcase and $58 was taken from P. Wilder, of Delhi, by two men he gave a lift to, when they a "lift", ashe was travelling in his motor car east of Woodstock last night. After taking Mr. Wilder for about three miles one of the people in the back seat, pulled a revolver at him and told him to keep driving, while the other rifled Wilder's pockets. The two then ordered Wilder to stop and they left with his cash and suitcase. They were both about 24 years of age, dark, sharp featured and clean shaven.

TODAYS MARKETS

Cold Wave Raises Price

Chicago, Jan. 19.—Forecasts of a cold wave implying danger for the domestic winter wheat, unprotected by snow led to an early upturn in wheat values today. Wheat bertitz was also stimulated through unlooked for higher quotations at Liverpool. Opening at 2-8 to 3-4c against Chicago wheat later hardened little more. Corn oats and provisions were likewise firm, corn starting at 1-8 to 5-8c gain and subsequently holding near to the initial figures.

Winnipeg Grain

Winnipeg, Jan. 19.—Wheat, May 2-8c to 1-4c higher at 136 1-2 to 3-8, July 3-8c to 1-2c higher at 136 1-8 to 1-4. Oct. 3c to 3-4c higher at 129 to 129 1-8. Oats May 1-4c to 2-8c high er at 64 1-2 to 5-8c. July 1-4c higher at 63 1-4.

Exchange Rates

New York, Jan. 19.—Foreign Exchanges strong, demand rates in cents. Great Britain 467 1-4, Canadian dollars 3-16 of one per cent. discount.

CHICAGO WHEAT

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 19.—Wheat Mar 129 3-4, May 136 3-8, Corn Mar. 90 1-2. May 92 7-8. Oats Mar. 55 1-8, May 56 1-8.

CLOSING QUOTATIONS

Market Shows Strength

New York, N. Y., Jan. 19.—Quite generally characterized today's stock market. The abundance of money available on call at 3 1-2 per cent after a renewal rate of four, tended to allay uneasiness over the credit situation. Although many traders showed a tendency to keep out of the market, pending publication of the weekly Federal reserve report, on brokers loans after the close.

There was little in the day's business of financial news to influence prices of United States Cast Iron Pipe Co., movement. Publication of 1927 report showing $11.11 share as against $15.96 in 1926 surprised many who had anticipated as the stock showed little change. Montgomery Ward sold down 1 1-2 points to 138 on declaration of $1 extra but quickly made up the loss. Wall Street heard rumors of larger extribution.

STANDARD MINING EXCHANGE

Quotations by Homer L. Gibson & Co., per Jamieson Boon, Local Manager.

The market was a good deal better today with well informed buying ensuing in to such stocks as Amulet, Beaver, Hard, Hewey, Mclaren, Mining Corp., Int. Nickel, Wright-Hargreaves, Sherritt Gordon & Treadwell. Reports from Amulet and Wright Hargreaves are very optimistic. Ayes was up two points today. Amulet sold up to $3.15, Bidgood up 1?, Bathurst strong at 39c. Teck strong at $2.90. Hewey up 4 to $1.65, Malartic very active and 5 points up. Mining Corporation still heavily bought at 29c. Wright Hargreaves at $5.70, Sherritt Gordon on strength of new stock offering quite active around $7.50. Some of the B.C. mines are getting a run lately. Premier advancing 60c today to $7.35. Coast Copper is very active on the Montreal Curb around $26.00. Quotations at 3 p.m. are as follows:

Amulet 3.15; Acadia 32 3-4; Arnoud 27; Aunty 37; Amulet 68; Area 20; Bidford 46; Bidgood 106; Byrty Hollinger 106; Capital Rouyn 18; Central Manitoba 179; Castle Trethewey 70; Dome 1250; Federal Kirkland 71; Goodfish 59; Granada 30; Gold Hill 34 1-2; Goldcrest 42; Hollinger 17.75; Hewey 165; International Nickel 92; Wrights Hare 570; Jacknad Mclaren 81; Kirkland Hunton 240; Kirkland Lake 249; Lake Shore 26.00; Laval 24; McDougall 54; Mc Intyre 27.60; Macassa 47; Malartic 70; Marriott 45; Mining Corp 694; Noranda 21.50; Nipissing 590; Pre-Cambrian Explorer 51; Premier Gold 223; Potterdoal 18; Rouyn 17 1-4; Sherritt Gordon 7.50; Stadacona 17; Sudbury Basin 13.00; Touch Oaks 67; Tuwanmse 3.76; Treadwell Yukon 26.25; Teck Hughes 2.90; Vipond 67.

Toronto, Jan. 19.—James Hutcheon of the survey branch of the Department of Lands and Forests, and former city engineer of Guelph, died suddenly here today.

President of the Ladies' Class—Mrs. (Capt.) Hunter.

The following Trustees are also members of the Board: H. J. Clarke, B.A., E. F. Dirkens and Stephen Burrows.

The Minister's report was the last to be presented. Mr. Maloff congratulated the various Societies on their successful work. He spoke at some length on the manifold duties of a modern minister and reminded the Congregation that a minister has a seven-day week and the days frequently lengthen out for beyond the 8 hour or 10 hour day of the workmen in other employments.

For the 9 months year, Dr. Maloff reported that he had received 65 new members, 38 on profession of faith and 27 by letter.

The present membership totals 962 on the roll of the congregation.

Mr. George Osirom and Mr. F. S. Deacon moved a vote of appreciation of the work of the Pastor Rev. Dr. Maloff, which was carried unanimously.

Some discussion followed on the best means of promoting the Spiritual life of the Church. Stress was laid on the need of emphasizing the Spiritual first. The meeting was closed with prayer by Rev. Dr. Bishop.

CREATIVE ART A THING OF PAST

Toronto, Ont. —Creative art among the British Columbia Indians has largely passed out, as they have abandoned paganism, and adopted Christianity. Carving of marvellous totem poles, as insignia of tribal power and social rank, rose to its height within a century, and to-day the art is dead, according to C. Marius Barbeau, of the National Museum, Ottawa, speaking recently at the Art Gallery of Toronto, upon "The Traditions, Music and Art of the West Coast Indians."

"They do not believe in traditions any longer," he said; "they do not indeed, believe in themselves. They no longer believe in art for its own sake, as they once did. But nevertheless, their art is the finest inspiration on the American Continent, and is a heritage every lover of beauty must cherish."

Mr. Barbeau pol ted out that with the west Coast Indians, poor, uneducated and warlike, art was not "the first-born of wealth." There seemed no reason why it should have flourished with them until one realized that it was their mark of social standing, and their most vital interest in life. Every tribe had its own artists and carvers, and thus the art became diversified from district to district.

Mr. Barbeau said that the West Coast Indians had come originally from Asia, a thousand years ago, perhaps two thousand. He himself had been able to trace a tribal migration of 1,000 miles in a space of 150 years. He described the crests which were exclusively the property of a family, and sang Indian songs of different types, one used at the naming of a male child, another a dirge.

"The art represented in this building," said Mr. Barbeau, "is without doubt prehistoric; that is, before the country was explored by the Russians, in the first place, and then the circumnavigators at the end of the 18th century. When Captain Cook himself went up Nootka Sound he observed specimens. But its growth is largely 18th century, due uniquely to its tremendous importance in the life of the natives. As far as the totem poles are concerned, I cannot find one that stood over 80 years. This manifestation of the power of the chiefs grew in the last century."

BELLE THEATRE

No efforts were spared by Harry Cohn, vice-president in charge of production for Columbia Pictures, to surround "The Clown" Columbia's drama of the big top, now playing at the Belle Theatre, with the true circus atmosphere.

The huge Al. G. Barnes Circus, one of the largest circus properties in the country, was rented in its entirety, equipment, grounds, performers, and all, for this picture. More than 1,000 extras were used, mainly for the circus audience because the Al. G. Barnes performers themselves supplied the big indoor parade and show.

A fleet of buses were chartered to transport the extras daily from the Columbia studios to Venice, California, where the circus was located. A production staff accompanied Director W. James Craft, and complete technical equipment was transplanted to the circus grounds.

William Y. Mong plays the title role in this circus drama which deals with a father's revenge and sacrifice for his daughter's happiness. Johnnie Walker, Dorothy Revier and John Miljan complete the featured cast.

REGENT THEATRE

But "Every Mother's Son" is not a sad or lugubrious record of England's glorious dead; it is a stirring, human, wide-awake tale of the old country, beginning in 1914 and ending on a note of fine humor and cheerful outlook for the future of dear old Mother England. Made in an English studio by English actors and workmen, it is one of the finest exposes of British wit, humor and romance that has ever come to Canada. Today at the Regent. -

CROWN DID ALL COULD BE DONE

Attorney - General Makes Statement Regarding Mellor Sentence

Toronto Jan. 19—Without voicing his own opinion in the matter of the sentence upon Rev. J. J. Mellor, Attorney -General Price in a statement to the press is careful to point out that the duty of his department is only to prosecute a case fairly; there is usually a jury to determine the guilt or innocence of accused—and a judge to measure the punishment in these cases.

"All that the Crown could do," Hon. Mr. Price commented, "was to prosecute. The Crown did so and the man was found guilty. The question of sentence is one for the judge. He had the opportunity of giving him five years and he gave him the equivalent of about 18 months. There is no review of the judge's discretion. When a jury felt that the disposition of it was in case was first brought up the Crown adequate and laid a more serious charge, which involved proof back over three years. The town then had the charge before a new magistrate, appointed special counsel, and Mellor was committed for trial. The case considering the girl's illness, came on as soon as possible. The accused elected to be tried by the county judge, the Attorney-General's Department having no power to order otherwise. The case was tried, the host counsel employed, and Mellor was found guilty. The court sentenced the prisoner. The Attorney's-General's Department has done everything that it could."

W.C.T.U. HELD DAY OF PRAYER HERE

Toronto, Ont.—A centenary celebration in honor of the birthday of the late Mrs. Treble Lowell Beecher is observed by a Canadian day of prayer by members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union throughout the Dominion. Outlining the story of Mrs. Youman's life, Mrs. A. C. Rutherford said she was born and brought up on a farm near Cobourg, and distinguished herself as a student at the institution later known as the Wesleyan Female College of Hamilton. She married at the age of 20, and during the responsibilities of a large family of stepchildren, became active in the public as a temperance advocate in the year 1874, and concluded a great work for the cause nearly forty years in the year 1893. Having accompanied Mrs. Youmans through many strenuous campaigns, Mrs. Rutherford was able to speak with assurance of her outstanding ability; executive gifts; skilful financial appeals, breadth of vision, warmth of sympathy, firmness of conviction, keenness of wit and unfailing common sense.

REWARD FOR DEAD BANDITS

Albuquerque, N.M., Jan. 19.—New Mexico today followed the lead of Texas when the New Mexico Bankers' Association offered a reward of $1,000 for each bank bandit killed while in the act of robbing a bank. An additional step was taken in the offer of $500 for each robber arrested and convicted.

A man thinks that he's just as good as anybody when he goes to church in the rain.

OUR SISTER CITIES

Newsy Neighborhood Notes

FILTHY STATE

Peterboro, Jan. 19.—John Edgar, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society, told the board yesterday afternoon at its meeting in the municipal chambers of conditions he found in a city home which he described as most filthy. On Saturday he visited the home and found a mother and three small children. The children were so dirty he couldn't tell what they looked like. Two of the children were outside playing; the third was found upstairs on a stretcher. He asked the mother if she had any soap and water and she said yes, but she did not have time to wash her children.

Tender, Aching Swollen Feet

In Just Five Minutes Those Sore, Tender, Aching Feet Get Amazing Relief, Moone's Emerald Oil Is Guaranteed.

Go to Dorie's Drug Store, Schryver's Pitcy, Dolan the druggist or any other good druggist today and get an original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil.

The very first application will give you relief and a few short treatments will thoroughly convince you that by sticking faithfully to it for a short while your foot troubles will be a thing of the past.

Don't expect a single bottle to do it all at once but one bottle we know will show you beyond all question that you have at last discovered the way to solid foot comfort.

Remember that Moone's Emerald Oil is a clean, powerful, penetrating Antiseptic Oil that does not stain or leave a greasy residue and that the very first bottle must give complete satisfaction or your money cheerfully refunded.

ATTENDED FUNERAL

Kingston, Jan. 19.—Many of the clergy of the Diocese of Ontario were in the city today for the purpose of attending the funeral of Ven. Archdeacon O. O. Dobbs which took place at 2.30 p.m. from St. George's Cathedral where the remains lay in state in the chancel from 2 p.m. on Monday.

ICE IS FORMING

Kingston, Jan. 19.—The ice has formed in the vicinity of Trte-de-Pont Barracks wharf during the last two days, and also near the shore below the La Salle Causeway, although it is still too thin to bear the weight of a man and is unsafe for skating.

CHURCH SHOWS GAIN

Peterboro, Jan. 19.—The annual vestry meeting of All Saints' Church was held on the evening of Monday, January 16, with Rev. J. Douglas Patterson presiding over an unusually large and enthusiastic gathering of the congregation. The financial reports showed a deficit of over $900 on general maintenance account, but this was counter-balanced by the very large amount received and paid off the mortgage which still stands against its church. During 1927 the sum of $2,250 has been paid off on the mortgage, leaving $3,650 still to be raised before the church is clear of debt. Approximately $10,000 has been paid off in the last two years, and an effort will be made to clear off the balance as quickly as possible.

PLANE WITH FILMS MISSING

New York, Jan. 19.—A biplane carrying news reel films of President Coolidge speaking at Havana and piloted by Ted Mosely was reported missing today and an appeal was made to the army air service at Washington to institute a search.

"My skin was a sight"

"I couldn't look people in the face — I was so ashamed of my skin! It was always blotched with pimples and blackheads and at times itched terribly. I had tried everything and was so discouraged that I couldn't bring myself to take hope in anything. You can imagine my surprise therefore when one application of Rowles Mentho Sulphur almost completely cleared my skin. I have never been troubled with it in a short time you wouldn't know my skin —it was so clear, so soft and white." Thousands of people are discovering that there is a remedy for skin trouble—even dirty, itching eczema! It's the magical combination of sulphur and menthol—sulphur for clearing the skin, menthol for healing the broken and irritated tissue. Rowles Mentho Sulphur is inexpensive and all druggists supply it in jars ready to use. Be sure it's Rowles.

SURVEYOR IN ROLE OF PIONEER EXPLORER OF CANADA'S DOMAINS

Mapping Land An Interesting Sphere Followed By Many

In a new country such as Canada, where pioneering conditions have been and still are accepted as part of our national life, the surveyor stands out as one of our romantic figures. His place in the popular mind is in the vanguard of progress, along with the discoverer and explorer, the fur-trader and all those whose efforts go toward the initial development of our unoccupied lands. In the colonization period after Confederation he played a major part. During these formative years of our country's growth he was entrusted with the distinctly important task of subdividing the untracked expanses of Canada's West into farm units, a work which was carried out by the organization now known as the Topographical Survey, Department of the Interior. He was ever crowded by the increasing waves of settlement behind him and ever alive to the necessity of keeping ahead of them.

Occupied with such an urgent task wherein time counted for so much, he could not allow himself to be delayed in his work by attempting much beyond the actual immediate requirements. Thus it was, for instance, that he could not take time to record topographical data except in so far as the main purpose at hand was affected. That would have to wait until some more opportune time.

Now that opportune time is at hand. The surveyor has not yet given up the role of pioneer explorer, indeed for many years to come he must still play that role, but some of the effort that formerly went toward surveying farms for incoming settlers can now be turned to the equally important work of providing detailed topographical maps of settled areas as a necessary element in the national development.

The collection of the field information preliminary to the issue of such maps is a work of an admittedly different order from that of land subdivision. The camp of a surveyor engaged upon such work in settled country would present a different atmosphere to that of the subdivision survey camp on the frontier. Just as the farmer in the older districts no longer wends his lone way with camp or in prairie schooners so also the surveyor in mapping the more localities has eliminated from his camp the pack-horses or trail dogs and other features that distinctly belong to frontier surveying.

Your modern surveyor, engaged in mapping the countryside makes use of the motor car—he can speed up his work thereby—and he has found it convenient to include in his outfit such items as folding stoves, folding beds, folding tables, and folding seats. Indeed, everything that can be is carefully folded and reduced to the ultimate limit of its "collapsibility." Yet with all these elaborations of modern science and invention, the shelters of the survey parties still remain as mobile as the sheepskin tents of the nomad Israelites in the days of Abraham.

The usual equipment of the surveying party includes a chief's tent, a cook-tent which would probably also be a dining tent, perhaps another for-stores a number of sleeping tents and an office tent. In this unit, too, the chief himself is commonly stated that the cook is the most important personage. Certainly he possesses capabilities far beyond those of any other member of the party for rendering camp life a pleasure or the reverse.

It is the office staff, however, who have made the greatest change in converting the primitiveness of the former survey camp to its present state. Their canvas office is not the less efficient in that its folding standing desk may be homemade, and that perhaps an oblong case, somewhat resembling a coffin on legs, which carries the instruments when the camp is on the trek, may do service as a bench. As a rule two draftsmen comprise the office staff. Their duty it is to check up the work of the topographers and make the necessary computations so that when the field work is completed the actual process of compiling and plotting the finished map at Ottawa will not be delayed by unnecessary checking of field data. Their equipment usually comprises plotting machines, mathematical tables, slide rules, and other drafting appurtenances, with possibly a typewriter, a stereoscope for drawing board for use in the interpretation of aerial photographs and a high-powered reading lamp, the latter an invaluable aid for working at night. There are filing racks for field notes, correspondence and aerial photographs—a modern aid in mapping, largely developed in Canada.

When it is remembered that camp must be moved far and frequently, with but undue loss of time, the necessity for an orderly and businesslike system must be apparent. And this system appreciates every detail of the camp life from the disposal of refuse to the care of delicate instruments, from the cook's "roll out" at five in the morning until the "wee sma' hours" when all calculations on the field notes for the previous day have been completed and checked.

Since we are past the days when the only knowledge considered necessary about land was the ability to read boundaries, the value of three surveys can scarcely be over-estimated. The resulting maps, covering topographical features, particularly in a young country such as Canada, can enter into so many phases of its development that the wonder often is that they are not used more. And though utility maps may not appear to have in them such that lies beyond the realm of the matter-of-fact, the data therefore has not been gathered without interesting incidents of all kinds in the "moving accidents of flood and field."

WOMAN'S PICTURE OF JAPAN TOWN

"Grace Hope" Describes Jap Section Of Vancouver

Vancouver, B.C.—"Grace Hope" writing in the "Province" describes Japan Town of this city:—

"Butchers were not to be found, as the Japanese eat no meat, but fish markets there were aplenty, white-tiled and gay with pink and purple starfish, salmon roe, enormous pink things like lobsters, devilfish, all slimy and squirmy and various other queer sea dwellers that looked as though they had come out of a fairy tale. Strangest of all were the cakes. Pale green squares of jelly with pink roses and green leaves, round yellow ones with stains of pink—bulls of almond paste seeds, and—these were really appetizing—large green leaves doubled over a delicate substance, in perfect imitation of a cocoon. These dainties were temptingly displayed in several stores, but they looked so expensive that we did not venture to purchase them.

"Then we came to what was evidently a bakeshop. Rows and rows of these and dozens of other varieties were laid out on baking boards—tier upon tier. Surely they could not be as dear as they looked, unless, of course, the Japanese were all millionaires. 'Two for 5 cents', we were told.

"Why, what are they made of? 'Bean'.

"Beans—we couldn't believe him, we really couldn't. We bought one of each sort, and took them home to lunch, to a family which did not fail to be properly impressed. But—beans they were, cooked without salt and slightly sweetened, the most insipid mess imaginable."

Every Cold is Serious

Any cold is serious enough when its distressful possibilities are considered, but when there is soreness or tightness in the chest and a dry hard cough you can look for bronchitis, which is often confused with an ordinary cold.

It is usually known by aching limbs and body pains, chilly feelings, weariness and weakness, pain in the chest and a tight, tearing cough. Fever, dry skin, thirst, coated tongue and constipation are other symptoms.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine seems almost like a specific for bronchitis because it is so successful in loosening up the cough, aiding expectoration and preventing the inflammation from reaching the lungs.

REGULATIONS AT 1ST APPEARANCE

Rules For Those Being Presented Are Set Forth

London, England—Those Canadian women who hope to secure the privilege of being presented at court during the coming season will be interested in the regulations which the Lord Chamberlain has already issued concerning the preliminaries. The applications of those from the Dominions who desire to be presented are usually passed through the office of the High Commissioner of the Dominion in question. Although nothing has yet been announced upon the matter, it is probable that two Courts will be held in May and two in June. Applicants from the Dominions would be well advised to make application for presentation either at the second Court in May or the first Court in June.

An interesting departure will be made this year in regard to presentation from the Dominions. They will in future be presented by the wives of their respective High Commissioners, and not, as formerly, by the wife of the Secretary for the Dominions and Colonies.

The Lord Chamberlain announces that a person presented for the first time can only present her daughter or daughter-in-law on the occasion when she is presented.

Wives must be accompanied to court by their husbands if the latter have been presented. Those who wish to be accompanied by their husbands should state the fact in their applications and they should also state if the women they desire to present wish to be accompanied by their husbands. It is essential that the husband's full title and designation be given. Once the summons has been issued the ammending of a summons card in order to include the husband can only be permitted under the most exceptional circumstances.

Summonses are issued about three weeks before the date on which attendance is required. Any person who has attended Court within the last three years should state when applying the year she last attended, and whether she was presented on that occasion or attended to make a present.

Hungarian partridge and pheasants are also breeding well acclimated in Musquodoboit, N.S.

Pile Sufferers

You can only get quick, safe and lasting relief by removing the cause—congestion of blood in the lower bowel. Nothing but an internal remedy can do this—that's why salves fail. Women's News and Views

IT'S TIMID WOMEN WHO ATTRACT MEN

By LOUIS E. BISCH

Men prefer timid women. They prefer them to virile, strong, clear-headed and clear-sighted women.

Men, you see, find it relatively easy to please such women and "make a hit" with them. Timid women are not self-assertive and domineering; therefore they do not tend to come into conflict with these same traits that are so characteristic of men in general.

Women, by far and large have known this for a long time and so they have often allowed men to think they were timid when, in reality, they were anything but subdued. And men, almost invariably, have been very stupid in not being able to discover that the ladies they were interested in were not exactly what they seemed.

The timid woman flatters a man's vanity. If she looks up to him and seems to admire him he is already half in love. To be considered powerful intellectual, capable, superior, first-wise—these are the qualities man almost lives by.

The timid woman subscribes to these standards, submits to them and acknowledges them by her attitude of timidity. She leans on her man for support and guidance. And he responds with all the enthusiasm of which he is capable.

A man delights to command. He did it as a boy when he took charge of his regiment of toy soldiers. He gets a real thrill out of being an executive and bossing other men around.

Mut to feed it over a woman! That constitutes the quintessence of masculine joy. Seeing that women often lord it over men one might be led to believe that the feminine sex enjoys dominance as well.

Nothing, however, could be further from the truth. When a woman is able to subjugate a man, when she is able to make him afraid of her, she in variably loses respect to rpim.

She often tries to intimidate him and to bend him to her will through forceful and deliberate, instead of tactful, methods. But if she succeeds she is disappointed. Perhaps she is even dis illusioned. She couldn't want her man to be afraid of her. She wants her way with him through cajoling. She tries to win through the weapon of charm and feminine appeal. She is disgusted when the man gives to be cause he is scared of her.

It is man's liking for timidity in women and his blief that most women actually are timid that helped to develop chivalry.

Chivalry it not practised as much as it used to be. This is because women are not behaving as timidly as formerly. Man fi ds often downright afraid of the woman who is free frmo timidity. He is really afraid of her mind. He realizes that she is more quick-witted than he is. He fears her penetrating insight.

The best side of a man's nature is developed in his relationship with a woman who is not entirely devoid of timidity.

He becomes generous to such a woman, kind, considerate, sympathetic, understanding. Such a woman inspires him. He wants to live up to the ideal ism in which such a woman holds him. He wants to win her love and her trust and faith in his superiority is not misplaced.

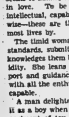

One finds exceptions, of course. There are men who are timid themselves. They are inferiority complexes. They feel most comfortable with women who possess the masculine qualities they lack.

Such face-about relationships can also turn out very happily. But the average man prefers timid women even if he does not always find them.

Mother of Eleven Children Praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Her Interesting Experience

Buckingham, Quebec, "I am the mother of eleven living children and my baby is five months old I am only 29 years old and I have taken L-y-d-i-a E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for weakness and my nerves. I know of it from my sister, Dame Edouard Bellefeuille of Ramsayville. For five years I was in misery and was always ready to cry. Now I am so happy to have good health. My daughter, who is 18 years old, has also taken it and will be happy to recommend it to all young girls." —Dame WILLIAM PARROT, Box 414, Buckingham, Quebec.

Why suffer for years with headache, nervousness and other ailments so common to women from early life to middle age? Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will give you relief!

In a recent country wide canvass of purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, over 250,000 replies were received, and 98 out of every 100 reported they were benefited by its use.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I know two girls who are very pretty and nice. I like them both very much but, unfortunately, they do not like each other. If I go out with one the other refuses to speak to me. I tried to reason with them, but they won't listen to me. I want to be friends with both of them, but it looks as though I'n have to drop one. I can't make up my mind. What would you advise?

PUZZLED.

PUZZLED: Unless you are considering becoming engaged, I can see no reason why you cannot enjoy the friendship of both of these girls. You are really quite free, my friend, and they are free, too, to choose their own friendship. You might have a talk with each and explain that their personal differences in opinion should not affect your individual friendships, and since you although are not in love with either of them, I would suggest that you continue you wither both until you yourself reach a decision as to whose company you prefer. If you don't feel that it is necessary to give up the friendship of one, I am afraid, since I know none of you, I cannot help you make your choice.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am in love with a boy about twenty-three. Last week we both went to an affair and he was with another girl. Do you think he wants me to be jealous of him? I love him and thought he loved me. He is always talking about how happy we would be if we were married. Please advise me what to do.

DAUGHTER.

DAUGHTER: There is no reason why friend should go out with others, my dear, and I can see nothing questionable in his escorting another girl to this affair. You went with another boy, did you not? The fact that he went with someone else does not prove he even realizes that he does not love you, and if you are considering marriage I must advise you not to limit your friendships until you are engaged. There is nothing for you, to do but go along as you were and wait until you are privileged to restrict his friendships before you attempt to do so.

Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

Match marks on a polished or varn ished surface may be removed by first rubbing them with a cut lemon and then with a cloth dipped in water.

To skin a finnan-haddie cut the fish into halves and hold it in front of a brisk fire till it begins to curl up. Then start at the tail end of the fish and pull the skin off gently.

A SUITOR TOO MANY

By MILDRED BARBOUR

"How do you do, Captain Farquahar. What brings you so far up-town at this hour?" She seated herself opposite her. He sealed himself.

"May I smoke?"

"Do by all means. Have you finished your dinner?"

"All except coffee."

"Tell the waiter to bring it to this table," she said graciously.

When it came, she poured it for him He watched her deft, pretty hands; their every gesture was amazingly graceful.

"To return to your question about what I'm doing here, Mrs. Warren. I'm afraid you'd have to ask Lila. We had a-er-disagreement this afternoon. I left your house in something of a rage. It's taken me all these hours to walk it off."

"Oh, I'm sorry," she said softly. "It happened as—er—my house, sir?"

He nodded.

"We were quite happy when suddenly some one came into the house. She said it was your friend, and that he would object—" He broke off at Dor othy's look of alarm.

"Of course, you know all about it, I thought."

"Some one-her Head. "

"—I haven't been there since—since this morning."

She was thinking: "Oh, poor Lila! Did Herbert come home unexpectedly?"

Farquahr looked at her astonished.

"You must have had a very busy day," he remarked wondering what these post-war women were coming to First there was Lila and her fast-and-loose game with several devoted admirers, and now hep was her friend, who didn't even trouble to go home to dine with her husband.

Dorothy smiled serenly:

"Yes. I worked very late today. You see, I play at being an artist. I have a studio near here."

A great light broke on Farquahar.

"Oh, then you're the friend of Lila's who received my letters for her at your studio?"

Dorothy nodded.

"And you are the girl I met in the corridor of that building, the night I was scouting around, trying to find some trace of Lila?"

Dorothy flushed a trifle. She remembered that meeting too well. She had suspected that the young man she'd seen was Farquahar.

For his part, he seemed delighted.

"I knew there was something familiar about you when I met you this morning. It was as though I had known you a long time ago. Have we met before?"

"No," she said', in a low voice.

"Somehow, I don't believe you," he said She smiled and shrugged.

"At any rate, Captain Farquahar, I have an apology to make to you. The night you first saw me, I was wearing the orchids you had sent to Lila. I—appropriated them."

"I know," he smiled. "And it made me pretty mad then, because I didn't know who you were. Now—well, I'd rather you wore them than any one else I know. Except, of course—Lila."

Dorothy finished her dinner, and they both lingered over coffee. It was ten o'clock before she remembered to look at her watch. Then she uttered a little cry.

"I'd no idea it was so late."

"Nor I." Farquahar exclaimed. "I've enjoyed this talk so much, Mrs. Ware Couldn't I persuade you to lunch with Lila and me one day this week?"

"I'm afraid not. I—I shall be very busy," she laid hurriedly. "So nice of you to dine with me. Good night." She held out her hand.

He took it, but he said:

"Mrs. Ware, I'll see you home. I think we'll find a taxi outside"

"Oh, no, please. It isn't at all necessary."

"I'm not offering for that reason," he smiled.

"But I'd much prefer—really it's better that you shouldn't," she insisted.

His answer was to hail a cab at the curb and assist her into it—

He climbed in beside her and gave the address of the Ware residence.

CHAPTER 50.

AN EEL-LIKE ABILITY

When the taxi bearing Dorothy and Farquahar drew up in front of the Ware residence, Dorothy said hastily:

"Don't trouble to get out. It's not at all necessary."

But Farquahar was already on the sidewalk, extending a hand to assist her. She had to be thankful that, at least, he hadn't dismissed the cab, so evidently he didn't expect to be asked in.

But she grew terribly uneasy when he accompanied her to the door. "Have you your latch-key?" he asked, and, when she shook her head, he pressed the electric button.

Dorothy was in a panic. Suppose that, when Siddons opened the door, Herbert should be standing in the hall. It would be difficult to get rid of Farquahar, if Lila were there; even in ex cusing her presence at such an hour, when the supposed mistress of "the house had been away all day, according to her own statement.

"Good night," she said, giving Farquahar her hand hurriedly. "Thanks for bringing me home."

It seemed to her that he held her hand a long time. She could hear Siddon's measured footsteps on the other side of the door.

Oh, if Farquahar didn't go! And Siddons would be sure to greet her as Mrs. Carter.

At the very moment that the latch raised under the butler's hand, Farquahar turned and went to his waiting cab. Dorothy slipped into the hall with a nod to Siddons.

"Mrs. Ware is not at home, Madam" he said.

"Oh, really? Then I'll not stop but a moment. Will you bring me a glass of water, please, Siddons?"

She must wait until Farquahar's car was well out of sight before leaving the house. So she sank into a chair. And in the reception-hall while the butler went about his errand.

An exclamation made her look up. Herbert was standing on the stairs, looking down at her in astonishment.

"Where is Lila?", he demanded.

Dorothy gasped. Something was expected of her, and she couldn't guess what it was.

"Lila?"

Herbert descended the stairs quickly. "Has anything happened? And how do you happen to be here? I thought you were at death's door, from the way she talked!"

Dorothy was growing cold with fear.

"Did I—was she frightened?" she asked, to gain time.

"She seemed to be in a panic," grumbled Herbert. "She ran out of the house, only deigning to call back over her shoulder that you were in desperate need of her. I—I—was I understood it. And I'd brought Cilroy Holmes to dinner. He's still waiting in my study up-stairs for a hostess who hasn't the grace to show herself."

Dorothy was beginning to understand "Don't be angry with her, Herbert," she pleaded. "It's all my fault. I—can you understand? Herbert stiffly—

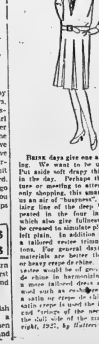

"If this is one, then I don't wish to understand," answered Herbert stiffly. "I've come to ask your pardon, Herbert," said Dorothy softly.

He relented a trifle.

"Where Is Lila?"

That was a facer. Where on earth was Lila? Dorothy took a chance. She chuckled and threw Herbert a mischievo us glance.

"Will you promise not to be angry with her, if I tell her up and tell her to come home?" [illegible]

Urbane and Clearcut Like November's Crisp Sunlight

Runs days are also a tallored feeling. We want to be up and doing. It is wide awake things for later in the day. Perhaps there is a lecture or concert to attend or if it is only shopping, this smart frock gives us an air of "business". The slender tailing line of the deep V neck is repeated in the inverted golden bands which also give fullness. They may be omitted if desirable or may be left plain. In addition this frock has a tailored trimmed with buttons. For general daytime wear as materials are better than silk crepe or heavy crepe de chine. With these the sleeve would be of georgette or crepe de chine in harmonizing color. For a more tailored dress a light weight wool with an exclusive design and a satin or crepe de Chine inside. If satin crepe is used the inverted points of the vee and the sash could be of the full side of the material. (Copyright, 1927, by Hatters Co.)

Her heart was beating fast. Suppose she was wrong? Suppose Lila were not in her studio, after all? And yet, was'nt that the one place to which she would have fled when she learned that Gilroy Holmes was in the house? The Janitor would have admitted her. She must have been impatiently awaiting Dorothy's return all this time, frantic to return and yet afraid to. Yet she find Holmes there.

Dorothy went to the telephone with every outward evidence of calmness. She gave her own number and waited. To her relief, the operator at the building said: "Oh, Miss Caine, Mrs. Ware is in your apartment—I'll connect you."

WHAT'S NEW

(From a Woman's Standpoint)

The throw collar, which will be a favored treatment on spring coats has the fur falling as a long scarf at the right side, which can be thrown about the neck.

Paris reports that after black and navy blue, a soft grey-green is in high favor for afternoon frocks, and there are also several in a varm tobacco brown.

In the advance suits in New York, navy, marine and lighter shades of blue are first place, while grey and beige are placed second.

The Maison Jenny, in Paris, is showing several new models designed for southern wear in a soft shade of light green, in tweed or broadcloth.

The use of jersey or a material of like texture as the blouse, with coats and skirts in novelty flightweight woolens forming sports ensembles and knitted fabrics, particularly attractive and striking effects in the new sports attire.

Rose, pink and cherry tones, as well as yellow, green and beige, are the colors emphasized in the sportswear for southern wear presented in Fifth avenue window displays, where ensembles and suits fashioned of Rodier's silk-and-wool embroidered fabrics, and of printed silk, also from Rodier, are receiving most consideration.

WOMAN ONCE A MERE ARTICLE

Not Until 5 B. C. That There Was Beginning Of Emancipation

Montreal, Que.—"Not until the fifth century B.C., was there the beginning of a strong feminist movement in Greece," said Dr. Woodhead, Professor of Classics, lecturing before the Women's Club. "Homer stands on the threshold of European literature, and a woman meets us there too. All men who have ever lived have been consciously or unconsciously in love with Helen of Troy, the ideal of beauty. No wonder if Helen has appealed to all writers from Homer to John Erskine. Homer nowhere tells us the color of Helen's hair or her eyes, a pedantic catalogue of her charms in the manner of a modern novel would have spoiled everything. He just gave us a sense of the devastating power of her beauty.

"There was little or no education in the modern sense for the girl of Athens. She might be married at 15 and as a wife she disappeared entirely from view. There was no such thing as romantic love, and no companionship in such unions." Dr. Woodhead commented. All that was required in a bride was a dowry and the ability to manage a house. A little light came into a woman's life if she bore a son, but a daughter was not welcome because it meant providing her with a dowry.

"What must have made the position of the Athenian woman still more unbearable was the emancipation of the Hetiarii of whom Aspasia was ancitizens, although their children were, erampus. She and others like her, of not eligible for 'Athenian citizenship."

DEERS AND WOLVES

BY JACK MINER

Among the editorials in the Toronto Mail and Empire of December 28th appeared the above words—"Deer and Wolves"—and, as I read and reread this most important article, I couldn't help but wish that all the editors in Ontario could be better posted on the destructiveness and cold blooded, murderous acts of these timber wolves. Just to think that in Algoma District a doe was seen stumbling her way back and forth to a little stream and when put out of her misery by a bullet, she was found to have one ham over half eaten away and the shredded skin showed the marks of a devilish timber wolf's sharp teeth! This, of course, is an exceptional case, but it can readily be understood by men that know the letter A about sheep—dogs and wolves.

Now who is chiefly to blame? I say, from personal knowledge, we so-called sportsmen are to blame. We meet in conventions and the decreasing of the deer is being discussed. The still hunter condemns the dogs. The dog hunters claim it is the still hunters and the settlers, the latter killing them in the summer time and I stand up and prove that we recommend a buck law and only those with antlers be allowed shot. This apparently only increases the friction—that is rapidly growing warmer until the chairman can hardly keep us or views from inclining at once, and finally we go home sorry we ever went and wishing we could recall every scrap word we have said. Meanwhile, the skulking timber wolf is going big himself on our wild animals, rolling up in the sun or under the dropping boughs of the second growth pines, licking his chops and laughing at our calamity.

Now just a word about the nature of some of these so-called wild animals. There is the moose, the caribou and the snowshoe hare, all creatures of the solitude or virgin forest. While the red deer, white-tailed deer or Virginia deer, which is one and the same animal, also the cotton-tail rabbit, follow up the pioneer's axe. Yet we Ontario sportsmen in our innocent ignorance condemd the settler for the scarcity of the deer when right down in our hearts we know that where the country is partly settled we get our best deer hunting. Why? Simply because the settlers keep up the wolves in check and allow the deer to multiply far faster than the settlers kill them—that is why.

Just a word about the dogging of deer. We know there are a few of us that love the music, the baying, yet our chief reason for taking the hound is to get the deer. Take the wolves out of Ontario and allow the deer to multiply by leaps and bounds, as they evidently would, and your dog question is settled, for as soon as the hunter knows that he can get his two or more deer, which could easily be allowed, he is not going to be bothered with a dog. Personally I am opposed to dogging deer, but while ninety or ninety-five per cent. of the deer that are born in Ontario are being eaten up by wolves I am in favor of allowing the hunter to get his deer any way he can and as for my suggesting the buck law, get the wolves out of the country and this law will automatically enforce itself, for no hunter is going to the woods and shoot a doe that has been nursing a fawn all summer when deer are plentiful enough for him to pick a three or four-year-old—at any point back that weighs over two hundred pounds.

Let us turn the leaves back twenty-five years and take a look at the old trail that is grown up with personal knowledge. At that time deer were very plentiful and as far North as Bisco, which is about one hundred miles north-west of Sudbury on C.P.R., and there was a good sprinkling of deer right through to Port William. But any novice of a hunter could get his two bucks as far north as Bisco. The caribou, for some unaccountable reason, were fast disappearing or moving farther north. At Siraksi, which is about fifty miles west of Sudbury, I saw seventy-five deer the first two weeks of November 1906. I saw twelve in one day and never fired a shot because I did not see the buck I wanted. Five Kingsville tenderfoot hunters whom I directed there killed ten bucks that ever aged over two hundred pounds each, but in 1907 we saw the tracks of wolves and in 1910 fully eighty or ninety per cent. of deer were gone. In fact we saw the remnants of more dead deer than we saw live ones. There is a great percentage of people who claim wolves can only get the deer in winter when the snow is deep. This is absolutely wrong for as long as there is a live deer left where there are wolves, you will see deer hair in the well stools all summer. This is only one of the many proofs of their dreaded ability to kill our deer. Remember deer are only wild sheep and wolves are wild dogs and it is not because wolves are so abundant but because each wolf is so murderously destructive. Let one sheep dog go unchecked in your township and see how many sheep your council will have to pay for. There is one thing you can best believe—you will have more to pay for the first year than you will the second. We all know it would be fair pleasure for our government officials to report deer increasing, but they frankly admit they are decreasing, for ten years ago our two dollar license permitted one to shoot two deer. Now we pay four dollars for the privilege of shooting one deer—that is, providing you see this one to shoot. But please charge your memory with this, especially when you have your rifle in your hands, you are not supposed to shoot at something you don't see.

Why have these wolves increased so the last twenty years? To us backwoods men this is easier understood than the alphabet. I can trace it back to January 1906 when I spent three or four weeks trapping with the Phillips family who lived on Pansy Island, which is about ten miles north of Bisco. I arrived there in the evening of January 6th, 1906 and Grandpa Phillips, who was then sixty-three years of age, entertained me nearly the whole evening telling how he had poisoned three big timber wolves and found two of the mandi took them to Bisco, and the third got their bounty, fifteen dollars each, and how sure he was that he and I could find the other wolf. And that was only part of the rejoicing, for furs were going up, mink were bringing as high as one hundred and twenty-five dollars; dollar and fifty cents and Mrs. marry Phillips and her two oldest daughters, who were twelve and fourteen years old, they had a short trapping line out and came home well a beautiful fisher and took it to Bisco and got five dollars and a half, which was fully one-third more than they had ever got for a fisher. Harry Phillips got as high as three dollars for foxes he got while I was there. This, of course, was fully one-half more than foxes had been selling for and still Grandpa Phillips, Harry and I would go fully fifteen miles to some of their poisoned bait, anxiously looking for another fifteen or thirty dollar wolf bounty haul. At that time there were eleven in the Phillips family and they killed all the deer they required within one-half mile of their home.

What happened the next fifteen years? Furs continued soaring. Think of it, fisher selling for as high as one hundred and twenty-five dollars; mink, twenty dollars; beavers, thirty to fifty dollars; muskrats, four dollars! What is the result? These same fellows that were making five to ten trips to their wolf bait in order to collect fifteen dollars bounty were getting five hundred dollars worth of furs with less exertion and the wolves multiplied and ate the deer up alive.

I believe the Hon. E. C. Drury Government raised the wolf bounty to twenty-five dollars, but even what temptation was that when the fact is one trapper could and did catch as high as a thousand dollars' worth of furs in one month—but not wolf furs!. The beaver season opened in 1916 and our north country was overstocked with them, for in places they had become a nuisance. I could have taken you to seventy-five occupied beaver houses in one day. The above are all facts of the past twenty-five years. Since the Drury administration, the bounty has been set back to fifteen dollars, same as it was in 1906 and other years. Now is the time, I say, to start anew, for if we could pay fifteen dollars wolf bounty by charging a two dollar license to shoot two deer, surely we can pay a thirty dollar or forty dollar or even fifty dol lar wolf bounty by charging the sportsmen five dollars or seven dollars to shoot one deer.

The thoughts of a music composer should be noteworthy.

KINGSTON HERE FRIDAY EVENING

"Chicks" Mundell May Be In Goal To Replace Brooks

Kingston Frontenacs will be here tomorrow evening to clash with the Belleville Maroons in a game which is attracting more than the usual attention. The Frontenac-Belleville duels always draw a big delegation and tomorrow night's tilt should pack the arena. It is rumored in reliable circles that "Chicago" Mundell, erstwhile Queen's goalie, will be between the sticks for the Kingstonians, replacing Babe Brooks who did not look at all good against the Royal Military College. Mundell has had plenty of experience and managed the Limestone City team last year.

"Bouncer" Holway, an old Belleville boy, will team up on the defence and he and Hagerman will likely complete the bumping bee started in Kingston. Bouncer has been handing out some stiff body-checks and he will not show any mercy against his old team-mates. Joe Smith who received a nasty bump in the Queen's game has been taking a rest and will be in perfect shape for this game. Lawlor is improving every time out and looked good against the Grads last night in Kingston. Kingston will bring their strongest lineup to Belleville and a great argument should ensue.

Manager Thomas has been sending the boys through some stiff work-outs this week and the boys, although they have not played since Monday, the 9th, will be in the pink.

Bowen will guard the twine with Green and Rooney lining up in front of him. The forward line will be chosen from Hibbard, Whalen, Weir, Hunter, Gibson and one or two others.

BOWLING

In the usual weekly roll of the C. N. R. Shops League at the Recreation Alleys last night the three winners each won all four points from their opponents. Team No. 2 counting four from No. 3, with Baldree and Knoll leading the way for their respective teams. Team No. 4 won four from No. 5, Robinson and Elliott rolling the highest scores. No. 1 won four from No. 6 with Gerow and Revell leading the way. Players and score.

Kingston Frontenacs with Joe Smith, "Bouncer" Holway and company will be here to-morrow night to do battle with the Maroons at the local ice box. Frontenacs squeezed out with a narrow win over the Royal Military College on Monday night in an overtime game which would indicate that the Cadets have either improved a whole lot or the Kingstonians are in a slump as Queen's defeated the Military boys 8-0 in a one-sided tilt two weeks ago.

Manager Eddie Thomas had his proteges out for another workout at the arena last evening and they will be in the very best of shape for the test with the Kingsgin team. Every one of the boys are in perfect shape and if the Belleville-Frontenac game measures up to those of past years the fans should not pass up this engagement.

A number of Belleville people were among those attending the Grads-Kingston all-star game last night at the Jock Harty arena. The Grads did not exert themselves but nevertheless the game was enjoyed by over two thousand fans.

Charley Delahey sub-forward of the Grads was a member of Eddie Thomas Juniors a few years back and his work last night was watched with interest by the Belleville contingent.

City league will not hold open house until Monday evening when another double-header will be played. The loop this year is better than ever and as a result the patronage is increasing.

Basket-ball enjoyed a real tilt last evening on the "Y" gymnasium floor when the Queen's team battled with the Belleville team.

With a live set of officers, Belleville Baseball Association is due for one of the most successful years in it's history. Ernie Rowsome of the Alemite is the right man in the right place and under his leadership the local entry in the C.O.B.L. should make it's mark on the diamond.

All of the old players have promised to come out and with several new faces Walter Gerow the newly -elected Manager should have plenty of available material to choose from Junior hockey in Brockville is it seems on a fair way to out-bid their big brothers in the way of attendance. Last Monday night in the Island City over six hundred fans witnessed the game between Brockville and Kingston juniors. The fans like excitement and they get it watching the kids in action. Belleville fans in the past have not supported their Juniors as they should and it is to be hoped that when the local youngsters play again at home that a full house will greet them.

The fans of the eastern city are certainly supporting their Junior team, as much as a special train will be run to Kingston next Monday night for a return engagement between the same two teams.

EYE DEFECTS FAULT OF THE PARENTS

Toronto.—The greatest obstacle that optometrists have to contend with in correcting defective sight is "parents," Dr. R. M. Peckham, before the Ontario Association of optometrists, declared that there are few defects in sight which cannot by either wholly eliminated or greatly reduced. Near-sightedness in children, if taken early enough, can be dispelled altogether and in adults the defect can be reduced to a minimum.

"When a child goes to school" he asserted "his sight should be constant ly watched. The child between the ages of five or six years and 12 to 16 years, no matter how good his sight usually is, should have a careful eye examination, by a competent optometrist, every six months. It is hard to get parents to realize that in a child of nine years of age normal sight is abnormal. Sight does not become normal until the child reaches the age of 12 to 14 years.

"If the child is a studious type, determined and anxious to get along in school, he will compensate for the defect in his eyes by using bodily energy to put him where he would be. For this reason, it is very important that parents observe carefully 'how the child does see.' The child who uses his bodily energy to augment defective sight is the child that, later on, has a nervous breakdown."

The Durant "55" Six Cylinder, Four Door Sedan

The Durant "65" Six Cylinder, Coupe with Rumble Seat (Below) New Star "4", Four Door Sedan

(Below) New Star "4" Coupe

(Below) New Star "4" Two Door Sedan

The Durant-Star line exhibited at the Annual Durant Star Dealer Convention, shows numerous changes and big improvements over the line as shown last year.

The Four Cylinder Star Line has been increased to 107" Wheelbase, bodies are all considerably larger and provide more room and comfort to the passenger. The radiator is of an exclusive Durant-Star design, lending a beauty to the complete line of automobiles far ahead of anything shown to this date. There is a Convertible Roadster, a 5-passenger Sport Phaeton, a 5-Passenger Two Door Sedan, a 5-passenger Four Door Sedan, and a 2-passenger Coupe. Bodies are all finished in duco with entirely new color combinations, beautifully striped, with interior finish to match.

The Durant "55" Six Cylinder Line follows very closely last year's Star Six Cylinder Chassis design which was so universally endorsed by the Public as one of the finest six cylinder cars in the light six field. This line comprises two body types a 5-passenger Four Door Sedan and a 2-passenger Coupe.

The Durant "65" is a new line comparing with cars in a much higher price class. The Chassis is 116" with unit power plant, coincidental locking device, and practically all the modern features found on high priced cars, such as air cleaner, oil filter, gasoline strainer and many other features. This line is comprised of four body types, one of exclusive design, a Coupe with rumble seat, a Cabriolet with collapsible top and rumble seat, a 5-passengers Four Door Sedan and a 5-passenger Four Door DeLuxe Brougham. These cars are most pleasing to the eye, beautifully finished in outstanding duco color combinations, with the innovation of two tone trimming. The trimming blends perfectly with the outside finish and is in genuine mohair with the exception of the Cabriolet, which is trimmed in genuine leather.

The Durant "75" line is another entirely new automobile. It is mounted on 118" wheelbase Chassis, and has two beautifully designed bodies; a 5-passenger Four Door Sedan and a 5-passenger Four Door Sport Brougham. The motor is 3 ½" x 4 ½" with high compression head, and is designed with unit transmission of the double high type. This creates four speeds ahead and one reverse, giving a maximum speed up to 75 miles per hour. The transmission has been designed and developed by Durant Engineers to a point of very high efficiency.

The entire line of both Durant and Star is equipped with highly efficient Bendix 4-Wheel Brakes; all newly designed Hayes Hunt bodies, with exclusive Durant-Star design radiators; bodies are larger and roomier and of clear vision type.

A complete line of Commercial Cars is also shown, comprising a 1 ½ Ton High Speed, Quick Delivery Cylinder One Ton Truck Chassis. Body types suitable for all purposes are available on each Chassis.

DEER HERDING BY AEROPLANE

Vancouver, B.C.—Airplanes are now being used to herd vast numbers of reindeer in the big Arctic stock farms according to Ralph Lomen, pioneer of the reindeer industry in Alaska.

"It's a new idea and it's not being practised regularly, but herding by airplanes seems feasible, said Mr. Lomen.

"Our head herdsman went out recently and in two hours accomplish ed as much as would otherwise have required a weeks work of seven men.."

There-is room for 12,000,000 reindeer in the northern tundra of, Canada, in the opinion of Mr. Lomen, who added that such a vast herd would be worth $50,000,000. "It could be done in fifty years, he said, "if Canada started now in a very modest way.

"Up in Alaska we have room for about 4,000,000 head and we hope to have that number within ten years," said Mr. Lomen. "That will mean an annual revenue for our company of close to $20,000,000."

"Development of the reindeer on a big scale in Canada would be a tremendous thing for the Dominion," he said. "Besides utilizing waste land it would provide employment for the nomadic Eskimo tribes and give the country a steady revenue from a vast territory that at present contributes little to the nations prosperity.

"Canada is also fortunately located to export the meat to various parts of the Empire. Orders could be no com petition in this vast market, as the Alaskan producers sell their entire product in the United States. Reindeer meat is not sold in competition with beef, mutton and other standard meats, but as a supplement to the diet It has been introduced into Britain and from Norway, but not in large quantities."

While the growth of the industry in Alaska has been very rapid because of the natural increase in the number of animals, Mr. Lomen points out that no quantity production could be expected from any Canadian herd within twenty-five years.

In Alaska, he said, the herd has grown from 1200 animals from the per iod of introduction—1892 to 1902 —to more than 600,000 today, of which more than 180,000 were killed last year The natural increase of 20 percent, an nually is what makes reindeer herding so profitable, explained Mr. Lomen This and the fact that the herds require a minimum of care and food costs nothing.

"Reindeer," continued Mr. Lomen, "are the worlds oldest domestic animal and are believed to have come from Central Asia. They were first introduced into Alaska to provide food and clothing for the Eskimo, and they have been an important factor in improving his morale. Today many Eskimos earn a good living as herdsmen or operate small herds of their own."

STAMP ENTHUSIASM ENRICHES DEALERS

London, (By Mail).—A profit of six thousand per cent. on a single specimen has been made by some collectors as the result of a recent rise in the price of postage stamps.

These phenomenal increases in values are often due to the sudden withdrawal, without notice, of a stamp after a short period of issue, which makes it very scarce.

A rare specimen is the ten-shilling (@2.50) Malta, issued in 1918, which is worth now $150 or more. Others are the Cyprus ten-shilling and twenty-shilling stamps issued in 1923, which are difficult to buy now for $45 and $100 respectively.

A special tercentenary set of stamps was issued in 1923 for St. Kitts and Nevis. It contained 14 varieties from 1-2 d. @ 6½ ct (a cent to $5) and was worth altogether about $12. Today the set fetches $100.

Three-quarters of the area of the Maritime Provinces is best suited for growing forests, and 65 per cent. of New Brunswick must continue to grow trees if it is to continue to produce a crop of any kind.

An Old Recipe to Darken Hair

By JANICE RANDALL

Almost every one knows that Sage tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color, and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is musssy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, for only 75 cents. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

Tale of a Man Who Got in the Wrong Berth --- Bitter Feelings Aroused by Malines Documents

WEIRD STORY OF HIGH FINANCING

Arthur T. Stone Of Madoc Sold Stock By Devious Methods.

TOLD OF BIG ORDERS

Supposed To Have a Plant And Own Property In Belleville

St. Thomas, Jan. 20.— A story of high finahcing was unfolded by Crown witnesses in the Police Court when Arthur T. Stone, aged 56, of Madoc, Ont., described as General Manager of the Art Stone Company of Belleville and Detroit, was committed for trial by jury on five charges of obtaining money by false pretenses, with intent to defraud, from St. Thomas and Elgin County people.

The preliminary examinations were taken in two of the charges, while the defendant waives examination in the other three charges. Crown Attorney McClintonon, who prosecuted, intimated that several other charges could be laid is desired. Barrister Hugh C. Cain is conducting the defence.

Bought Two Shares

Mr. Edgley swore that Stone sold him two shares of stock at $100 each in the company in June of last year, after stating that he had orders for 12 carloads of hand-cleaners and other products from the T. Eaton Company of Toronto; orders for 10 carloads from the F. W. Woolworth Company, Limited, and also large orders from the Robert Simpson Company, Toronto, and the Pendford Construction Company of this city.

Mr. Edgley also testified that Stone had told him that he had received an order of 60 car loads in Toronto was $2,100; also that he had gone to Belleville and Detroit were equippers and paid for. Mr. Edgley told of motoring to London with Stone and exhibiting a list received in order to rai the $700 to buy the stock.

Land in Hastings

Witnesses who told about Stone having sold the company had $200 worth of stone deposits in Northern Ontario and Hastings County and 214 acres in Belleville.

In commenting on the cases, following the hearings, Magistrate Maxwell said that the evidence of stock being sold at various prices per share was to his mind an indication that it was a fraudulent scheme.

SANDINO MIGHT BE ONLY FOOLING

Report Of Rebel Leader's Death Thought To Be Just a Ruse

Managua, Nicaragua, Jan. 20.—United States marines feared today that reports of the death of the rebel general Augustino Sandino might be a ruse. Around his mountain stronghold of El Chipot, the only evidence noticed by marine aviators was that of death and desolation. Sandino, if alive, it was believed, may have fled through the jungles to Honduras or down the Coco river to the Caribbean.

Since the Honduras government promised to allow no concentration of rebels on Honduras soil, it was believed that Sandino might be heading for the sea.

MERRY PARTY IS ON FOR TONIGHT

Young Men's Conservative Club Have Arranged Splendid Dance

Indication are that the First Annual Dance under the auspices of the Young Men's Conservative Club in the Moose Auditorium tonight will draw a capacity crowd. The officials have left no stone unturned to make the evening a pleasant one. One big feature of the evening is the fact that the new Bon-Ton seven-piece band will play in Belleville for the first time. The new instruments have been added to this popular orchestra and the organization is now numbered among the finest in Central Ontario. They recently played in Kingston and were given a wonderful reception and have been urged to visit that city at an early date. Novelties will be introduced and many fine prizes given. Valuable prizes will be given to the winners of the various dances.

WIFE HELD FOR SHOOTING PARTY

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 20.—Mrs. Clare Gaudet, who with Dr. Harold Guilfoyle was shot in Guilfoyle's apartment Wednesday night, died today in the hospital here. Dr. Guilfoyle who was wounded in the temple, is expected to recover but may suffer total blindness. Mrs. Guilfoyle is held as a material witness in the case, under ten thousand dollar bond and a police guard is stationed at Dr. Guilfoyle's bed in the hospital.

COURT FREED 4 MEN WHO HACKED WITCH TO PIECES

Szegedin, Hungary, Jan. 20.—Four men today owed their freedom to belief in witches. The men had a sick friend who told them his illness was due to the visits of a beggar woman who cast an evil spell over him. As the invalid slept in his cabin the old woman entered the room begging for alms. She was unable to answer questions put by the four.

They accepted the story she was a witch and hacked her to pieces. They were accused of murder. The Supreme Court reviewed their conviction, saying that attendant circumstances pointed to the presence of a witch.

COMPLAINTS MADE

Strange Man Accosts And Frightens Students, But Escapes

Toronto, Jan. 20.—Police continued today the almost hopeless endeavor to find some trace of the person or persons responsible for the death of thirteen-year-old Florence Costello, North Toronto school girl, whose body was found in a creek some weeks ago, with a fractured skull and startling evidence that she had been assaulted.

One outcome of the case is the Board of Education's request to the city council to provide a safe way for children of the Northern Section to reach the Oakwood Collegiate School without passing through a piece of bush to the north of the school. Repeated complaints have been made of school children being accosted and frightened and there have been aroused in full force. Two serious incidents have already occurred and parents fear that more will be recently as Friday last, school children near there were frightened by the actions of a strange man who accosted them on their way to school. Police were notified but the officer had escaped.

CRANKS THROWN OUT OF THE PARK

Insulting Placards Barred From Scene At Cosgrave's Welcome

New York, Jan. 20.—With placard-bearings supporters of the opposition party ejected from Battery Park by police to avert possible disorder, President William Cosgrave of the Irish Free State stepped onto United States soil today. The placard incident occurred shortly before the city top "Salom" with the Irish president and the mayor's reception committee landed.

Three men and a woman marched into the park bearing giant placards which they had carried distributed up in the gusty wind. The placards followed immediately behind with debt and taxes, Cosgrave." "Who murdered 72 Irish patriots, Cosgrave." "Who is the Republic, Cosgrave" and "Who is the real head of Cosgrave's Irish Free State, King George the Fifth."

FOUGHT GALE TO RESCUE COLLIE FROM DRIFT ICE

Detroit, Jan. 20.—A shivering white collie, adrift on a cake of ice, far out in Lake St. Clair, made its way ashore at Grosse Pointe police, members of the Harbor Master Division and Humane Society representatives today as they fought a raging gale to rescue the dog. Seen floating away from shore on an ice floe last night, the collie yelped for aid but was lost in the darkness. All night a vigil was kept and today the dog was sighted far out in the lake. He was still alive and attempts were immediately made to reach him.

RELEASED CONVICTS

And They All Came Back After Rescuing Hospital Inmates

Boonville, Mo., Jan. 20.—Given their freedom on their word of honor, two hundred inmates of the Missouri State Reformatory early today rescued six fellow inmates from the Reformatory Hospital which was destroyed by fire, and then, according to officers of the institution, returned to their quarters. Six other patients were able to escape unaided from the burning building but Lee Jim James, sixteen year old negro, was burned to death.

STRICKEN FATHER OFFERS TO HELP

Second Disappearance From Smith College On Friday The Thirteenth

Northampton, Mass., Jan. 20.—Offer of any assistance he can render in the search for Miss Frances St. John-Smith, the missing Smith College co-ed, was received from State-Detective Joseph Daley from James H. Corbett, Utica, N. Y., the father of Miss Alice Corbett, who disappeared from the College in a similar manner on November 13th last.

Mr. Corbett called attention to the strange coincidence that Miss Smith and Miss Corbett both disappeared on Friday, November 13th and reminded searchers that the thousand dollar reward he offered at the time his daughter was lost, is still on deposit in Northampton.

STARTS JAIL TERM NOT A HONEYMOON

Sturgeon Falls, Jan. 20.—Ringing of wedding bells for George Ratcliffe has been indefinitely postponed while the bridegroom-elect languishes in the Nipissing Industrial Farm. This was to have been Ratcliffe's wedding day but instead he will commence three months sentence, meted out yesterday when he was convicted oftheft of a horse by conversion.

YOUTHS KILLED GRANDMA FOR BEAUTY TREATMENTS

Dubuque, Iowa, Jan. 20.—Two boy slayer twenty, whose makeup of rouged cheeks, painted lips and penciled eyebrows has given way to the pallor that follows two months in jail, began serving life sentences today for slaying the grandmother of one of them. William Kramer, 18, and Howard Kramer 19, were yesterday sentenced to life imprisonment for killing Cota's grand mother, Mrs. Elizabeth McKitrick, of Twingle, Iowa.

It was the boys' "Beauty" treatments that aroused suspicion of the detectives and led to their arrest six days after they had bound and gagged the aged woman and left her to die on the floor of her house while they looted twenty thousand dollars in cash and an equal amount in securities, nearly all of which was recovered.

C.N.R. Have Never Lost a Man And Hated To Start Now

A JOYFUL SOUL

Discovered Asleep In Some One Else's Berth And All Is Well

Two gangs of Canadian National Section men patrolled the territory between Belleville and Napanee in the bitter cold wind during the early hours this morning, searching for a man who was sleeping peacefully in a berth on the Montreal-Chicago train.

It all happened this way: The man, a commercial traveler, was returning from what was formerly termed the "Coast of Canada," Montreal, and apparently he taken unto himself a goodly supply of wet goods and as the train pulled out of Ottawa he was in a slightly inebriated state. All went well until the train neared Napanee, when the porter discovered the berth minus the man.

He was in a frenzy and searched every conceivable nook on the train for the quarry but he was not to be found. The porter, an efficient sleeper of the fraternity, has never yet "lost a man" and he became decidedly worried. Consulting the official conductor, he took the official into conference and explained the circumstances.

Walked Before Sleep

The porter, a Southerner, drawled out to his superior and was frantic lest the man had in his jubilation stumbled off the train platform into Belleville city. Given leat seen he was ready to retire but insisted on patrolling the corridor of the pullman much to the indignation of fellow passengers. His disappearance was not noticed at first but after the train was well under way the porter discovered his absence.

At Napanee the despatcher was notified and within an hour two gangs of men on "speeders" left Belleville on "scooters". After a relentless search that lasted until near morning, word was sent on that the "lost" was sleeping placidly in a berth, not his own, but one which suited him fancy. He was surprised when told that search parties were out while he was in the land of slumber.

FEAR COLD SNAP IN CENTRAL ONTARIO

Toronto, Jan. 20.—A southwest wind with a velocity ranging up to forty miles an hour has ushered into Central Ontario what promises to be a cold snap. A drop of twenty degrees in the temperature was effected over night in Toronto and districts where the mercury stood around twenty above zero today. Forecasts is for gales and low temperatures, for the most sections of Ontario today and tomorrow.

HOPES TO BREAK SEAGRAVE'S MARK

London, England, Jan. 20.—Belief that he may break Sir Henry "Mad Bird" built at a cost of twenty thousand pounds sterling especially for an attempt to break the world's automobile speed record at Daytona Beach, is capable of a speed of 220 miles an hour was expressed by its owner and designer, Capt. Malcolm Campbell, here today. The "Blue Bird" is on display in this city and with its nine hundred horsepower is attracting a good deal of attention.

SAULT RESIDENTS DIGGING SELVES OUT

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Jan. 20.—Street car service here, which was tied up between midnight and last evening by a heavy fall of snow, is being restored today. City crews working during the night had opened many of the roads for motorists. About seven inches of snow has fallen and it is still snowing.

TO-DAY'S THOUGHT

When anything brings trouble, remember this maxim: This accident is not a disaster, but bearing it well may turn it into an advantage.

MARCUS AURELIUS.

HIGHER EDUCATION

Some considerable controversy has been stirred up by the statement made recently by Chief Inspector Putnam of Ottawa to the effect that there are too many boys in the higher schools of Ontario who are wasting their time be cause they are unfitted for higher education. His statement is straight to the point, for it says, in part:

"Many an honest working laborer looks upon school as an open door which will lead his son into a propelled land where the hands will not be soiled by soot or grime or blistered by monotonous" toil. The son, except in rare cases, sacrifices the fair chance, wastes three or four years, acquires habits that unfit him for the work he really could do well, and ends up an unskilled adventurer who tries many things and succeeds at none."

There is a great deal of food for thought in the Ottawa inspector's charges. Ambition is a laudable thing, and there is something wrong with the father who does not wish to give his son the very best he can in education, who does not desire to see his son step higher in life than he himself has been able to do. There is no reason why boys from working-class families, where they have the mental capacity to do so should not rise high in the ranks of the professions and in business life. But, in determining what is the best thing for the son or daughter, ambition often comes into conflict with reason, and it is in such cases that the wastage of which Inspector Putnam speaks occurs.

There is no harm in parents seeking secondary education for their children provided the children are fitted to take that education and turn it to good account. But the records of secondary schools furnish countless examples of boys and girls being sent there, with a hope of a future career, when they have no capacity for absorbing the type of education given in these institutions. The examination results speak eloquent ly of this fact, and form a basis for the assertion of the Ottawa inspector that in many cases the years spent in secondary schools are lost years so far as the students are concerned.

It is hard to convince parents, however, that a secondary education would be wasted on their particular boys and girls. Parental love often fails to see the truth when it is stated in general arguments, and the father and mother often fail to realize that it is their boy or girl to whom this truth can be applied.

END OF DISEASE

The head of a great chemical manufacturing concern predicts the end of all disease in fifty years. He included the dread cancer within the scope of his prophecy, which he bases on the progress now being made in chemical science.

The prediction does not come within the realm of the impossible. In fact many unversed in chemistry or medicine have long been confident that mankind would soon conquer the last of its disease enemies. This confidence has been strengthened and rewarded by the progress made in the battle against tuberculosis and the virtual elimination of disease epidemics.

CRIME STATISTICS

Speaking of Philadelphia, Mr. Justice Riddell, of the Supreme Court of Ontario, gave the following statistics, which he said were official figures, for the twelve-year period of 1914 to 1925 of homicidal crime in Canada:

"Murders (per million)—By Canadian born 11.8; by born in other British possessions, 29.1; by born in the United States 42.3; by born in other foreign countries, 260.3.

"Manslaughter — By Canadian born, 31.5; born in other British possessions, 43.2; born in the United States, 93.6; born in other countries, 264.8.

"Murder, manslaughter, and attempt to murder—By Canadian born, 52.4; born in other British possessions, 91.1; born in the United States, 224.6; born in other foreign countries, 691.9."

His Lordship said it was our "misfortune" to have in Canada "a somewhat large and increasing foreign population" which raised the Dominion's crime sheet "beyond what it should be." It is a fact, however, as His Lordship pointed out, that "we measure up pretty well among the peoples of this continent and show a reasonably decent people among the English - speaking nations" and so we are encouraged to go on with the good work of Canadianizing the foreign-born.

WINTER UPLANDS

The frost that stings like fire upon my cheek,
The loneliness of this forsaken ground,
The long white drift upon where pond-weed peak
I sit in the great silence as one bound
The rippled sheet of snow where the wind blows
Across the open fields for miles ahead;
The far-off city towered and rooted in blue
A tender line upon the Western red;
The stars that singly, then in flocks appear,
Like bits of silver from the violet dome,
So wonderful, so many and so near,
And the golden moon to light me home;
The crunching snowshoes said the stinging air,
And silence, frost and beauty everywhere.

Just Stories

Sir Arthur Sullivan, the noted English composer once visited a small American mining town with a party of friends, and upon arrival was told by the driver that he was "expected."

"And sure enough there was a small knot of prominent citizens gathered at the store where we stopped. Sullivan is quoted in a biography by Herbert Sullivan and Newman Flower.

"They looked hard at us and one of them went up to a tall man and said, 'Are you Mr. Sullivan?'

"'No,' he said.

"'Then which one is?'

"'That'—pointing to me.

"'How much do you weigh?' a man asked me.

"'One hundred and sixty-two pounds,' I replied.

"'Hell!' the man exclaimed, 'then how did you come to give hell to Paddy Ryan?'

"'I didn't,' I said.

"'Nor to John H. Sheehan?'

"'No.'

"'Aren't you John L. Sullivan, the slugger?'

"'No.'

"'Are you, anyway?'

"'I am Arthur Sullivan.'

"'Arthur Sullivan! Oh, you're the man as put Pinafore together?'

"'Yes, I am.'

"Well, we're just as glad to see you as the slugger, anyway. Let's have a drink.'"

KNUCKLES ACHED WITH RHEUMATISM

"My knuckles were so sore and swollen with rheumatism I couldn't hold a pen in my hand. After many remedies had failed I tried "St. Jacob's Oil". Almost instantly the pain disappeared and soon my hands were normal again." "St. Jacob's Oil" is the good old remedy for the pains and aches of Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuritis, Lumbago, Sprains and Strains. It goes directly to the seat of the trouble and draws out all the "ouch". It works every time and doesn't burn the skin. Get a small trial bottle of "St. Jacob's Oil" at your druggist today, and see the magic.

BANKRUPTCY ACT OF CANADA GOOD

Privy Council Rules That Federal Parliament Within Its Rights

London, Jan. 19, (C. P. Cable)—The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council today dismissed the appeal of the Attorney General of Quebec in a case involving the bankruptcy laws of the Dominion. The Attorney General of the Dominion was interested in the case.

Their lordships answer affirmatively the first important question involved, whether under the British North America Judicial hypothec, or security by lawful real estate of the debtor results from registration under the Quebec civil code should be postponed to subsequent authorized assignment for the benefit of the creditors.

On the second question, whether section 11 of the bankruptcy act of 1919 was within the powers of the Dominion Parliament or was an infringement of the exclusive powers given the provinces to make laws respecting property and civil rights, their lordships are of the opinion that exclusive authority given the Dominion Parliament to deal with all matters arising within the Dominion Bankruptcy Act enables that Parliament to determine by legislation the relative priorities of creditors under bankruptcy or authorized assignment.

Miss Jean Galway who was operated upon for appendicitis at the Belleville General Hospital about two weeks ago has announced that she was able to be removed to her home on Charlotte Street.

Mrs. T. D. Bacon, Cedar Street, is confined to a Toronto Hospital and her physician has ordered her to undergo an operation for cancer immediately. Her condition is regarded as critical.

Mrs. Frank C. Mikel is in Toronto on business today.

MOTHER'S CONDITION NOW LESS CRITICAL

Toronto, Jan. 20—Mrs. Barbara Deniston, struck by an axe in the hand, of her husband in a fit of insanity, is reported to have passed a fairly faint signs of returning to consciousness. For six days her condition, due to compound fractures of the skull has been despaired of, but a very slight improvement today led to the hope that her condition may become less critical. Deniston, charged with slaughter, does, is slowly recovering from head wounds.

LIVES IMPERILLED IN SPREADING FIRE

Valhalla, N.Y., Jan. 20.—Fire that became a raging furnace when it leaped five hundred gallons of kerosene and imperilled many lives when hundreds of thousand of shotgun ammunition were exploded, today destroyed the post office and an adjoining general store.

The fire started during the night and six fire companies from here and White Plains were helpless to do more than check the spread of flames.

CARRIED SEVEN TO A WATERY GRAVE

Panama City, Fla., Jan. 20.—Divers were working today to recover the bodies of seven men drowned and pinned in the cabin of their Bay yesterday when the saloon on which they were at work sank and capsized them with it. The huge steam shell, which workmen were putting in place for pouring cement to mould concrete piers was also engaged and held the men imprisoned with it, while it toppled to the water and sank in a depth of 55 feet.

MONOPOLY COST U. S. MILLIONS

Remedial Bill To Help Curb British Control Of Raw Rubber

Washington, Jan. 20.—The American consumer of tires has lost millions of dollars annually as a result of the British, rubber monopoly, Secretary Hoover told the House Judiciary Committee, in endorsing a bill to permit the formation of United States trade associations to make collective purchases of raw materials controlled by foreign nations.

The reduction in rubber production by the British keeps the world dangerously near a buying panic, the Commerce Secretary declared, and at times has lifted the price of the product beyond reason.

Mr. Hoover appeared before the committee in connection with the bill introduced by Representative Newton, Republican, Minnesota, which amends the Webb-Pomerene export trading act and is designed especially to permit collective purchasing by United States combines of rubber, jutelsisal and shellac which are under monopoly control by foreign countries.

Three leaders of the automobile industry, including Harvey Firestone, President of the Firestone Tire Company; Charles B. Sear, President of the United States Rubber Company, and John J. Raskob, Chairman of the Finance Committee of the General Motors Corporation, also appeared to statement of the measure as essentially needed to aid the American tire consumer.

At the close of the hearing Chairman Graham declared that the Committee would report the measure favorably, "as the evidence appeared convincing and further statements were unnecessary."

2ND SESSION IS PROMISED QUIET

Little Contentious Legislation In Prospect, Says Finlayson

Toronto, Ont. (By C.P.) - With little contentious legislation in prospect, the second Session of the 17th Legislature of Ontario which opens on Feb. 9 is expected to be short and quiet. The Ferguson Government will begin its second session with a majority increased by one. Horace Colliver's election by acclamation in the Prince Edward County by-election, following the resignation of Hon. W. R. Raney, who was appointed a judge of the Supreme Court, gives the government an additional supporter.

Mr. Raney's presence in the legislature will be missed, for as leader of the Progressive Group he took an important part in the debates of the house. His successor in the group will be Capt. Col. Lethbridge of West Middlesex. Rumors have been afloat to the effect that Mr. Lethbridge may resign the leadership early in the session to pave the way for a return of the Farmer and Labor group.

The riding of South Bruce will be unrepresented. Mr. Finlayson will not hold the seat since the unseating of John McGibbon, K.C., by the Judicial Court's rumored appointment as sheriff of Wentworth County materialize another year and a half hence.

The Liquor Control Act which secured so much attention at the last session will not be under review to any extent. It is understood that J. A. Penard, K.C., who is in charge of the liquor enforcement will be given a free hand to suppress illicit sale of beer by the clubs. Premier Ferguson and the Government are said to be pleased with the manner in which the Liquor Control Act is working out.

Some sort of a blue-sky measure will be introduced by the Attorney-General to facilitate the inspection of suspected brokerage houses by provincial officials. From time to time complaints have come to reputable Toronto firms, will have been victimized by the shrewdness and knavery, peddlers and transient traders has been effective a special run been drafted but nothing to show exists as yet. It is doubtful if it will be introduced.

The standing of the parties at present is as follows: Conservatives 75; Liberals, 17; Independent Liberals, 4; Labor, 1; Independent, 11; and Labor 1. One seat vacant.

AFGHAN YOUTHS TO STUDY OUR METHODS

Birmingham.— A party of six Afghans from India will shortly arrive studying the organization and methods of English police. They will be given opportunity to see at work the police machinery of this great provincial city from the detection of crime to the control of traffic and the preservation of public order. Later they will spend some time in London, and probably will extend their study at Scotland Yard and will be shown something of the working of the Metropolitan Police system.

CLOSING QUOTATIONS

Market Tone Light

New York, Jan. 20.—Further recessions took place in today's stock market although the advance was not accompanied by any substantial increase in trading. Buying seemed to centre in a few special issues in the leading groups of stocks, with prices generally forced somewhat by the inactivity.

Despite the weakness of the stock list, which was 2 to 3 points, and the decrease of $2,000,000 in brokers' loans reported last night, call money held firm at 5 per cent. and the discount rate at 5 per cent. Commercial paper was in good demand and loath to restrict operations for the present. The banking situation remained unchanged in the further liquidation of United States government securities and the federal reserve bank, which was interpreted in some quarters as an official effort to put a stop to the volume of credit available for securities speculation. There was little in the day's business news to indicate any price movement.

STANDARD MINING EXCHANGE

Quotations by Bonner L. Gilson & Co., pet Jamieson Building, Toronto.

The market was quite active today, and is becoming more selective. Interest was centred in Hollinger, which rose 50 points to 27.50. Dome Mines was also in demand, 5 to over 110. Kootenay Florence and Premier Gold, listed in Toronto, are also in demand with the rest. The silver stocks are almost feverish. Interest is also very keen in the Sudbury and northern Manitoba fields. Amulet was selling ex rights today around 84. Bidcoud early active around 30. Beaver also very active and advancing to 85-85 Noranda seems to have settled down and has been gradually weakening to $2750 although there are reports of a pool acquiring this stock at these low prices. Wright Hargreaves on reports continuing of high grade ore near Lake Shore boundary, was strongest around 86. Quotations at 2 p.m. were as follows:

LETTERS TO EDITOR

Editor Intelligencer:—

Dear Mr. Editor:—Through your columns I wish to express my thanks to the different public of our city, for electing me President of the Belleville National Baseball Club for 1928.

It is gratifying to me to realize that the fate of our city have, by this action, shown their confidence in my ability to serve them in this survival of Senior baseball in Belleville.

I realize that in every line of sport it is impossible to avoid criticism, and I can here appreciate to the Belleville baseball fans to assist the executive of the Club by making their criticisms constructive. Nothing disturbs the harmony and efficiency of our organization so much as ill-advised destructive criticism. On the other hand, well founded, helpful criticism is valuable and I appeal to my fellow fans to help us by their ideas.

I also wish to ask on behalf of Mr. Mike Tobin, our Manager, the cooperation of every sport-loving person in the city. He has a big responsibility and the knowledge that he has the whole-hearted support of every fan is going to make his task easier and that much earlier.

In occupying the services of Mr George Griffin as Secretary-Treasurer, the people of Belleville are to be congratulated, the new fate of George taking over the job ensures its success.

In conclusion, I wish to plodge myself to do everything in my power to assist success to our new Baseball Club and to ask you to help me by giving all my energy in the interests of clean sport in Belleville.

Faithfully yours,

W. E. ROWSOME.

SET RULES FAIL WHEN DEALING OUT JUSTICE

By LOUIS E. BISCH

Society is slowly waking up to the fact that criminals differ one from the other just as all human beings differ one from the other.

All pickpockets are not alike; no two house burglars are identical; all hold-up men do not have the same personalities; murderers may differ as day from night.

Nor does a certain type of personality commit a certain type of crime. A high-strung neurotic criminal may steal an automobile while another of the same make-up may blow a bank safe. In fact the crime that is committed may often be more or less accidental.

If a man is found lying under a bush in your front yard he may be charged with a misdemeanor, although he was really trying to hide in order to rob your house. An hour later he might have been inside the house. Then he would have been charged with unlawful entry. If stolen goods were found in his possession it would become a case of burglary. And if some one attempted to stop the burglar, and shooting took place, then the burglar might become a murderer.

Science has known all this long since. But our judicial procedure and our punishment of criminals are still lagging.

There can be no question whatever that some criminals are absolutely irresponsible, that some are so defective mentally they do not even know the difference between right and wrong.

Other criminals are not defective in brain development but are suffering from incurable defects in their emotional constitution which renders them quite unable to react to their surroundings as normal, average individuals do.

Still others are affected by defective powers of self-control. Their inhibitory abilities are weak and easily overwhelmed.

Many criminals are suffering from functional nervous disorders in which the compulsion to commit misdeeds plays a dominant role. Even adolescence, with its emotional upheavals, can start off a career of criminality.

I have mentioned only a few of the high-lights in relation to the criminal as an individual. No set rules can be worked out regarding the problem. Every criminal is an individual study. In each case the causes for his criminality must be sought in the character make-up.

And it is absurd to punish a man or woman according to the crime committed instead according to the criminal constitution of the offender based upon thorough study of his heredity, his developmental status, his environment and his emotional structure.

Let us suppose that a misdemeanor is punishable by a year's imprisonment according to the law.

Of a half dozen offenders thus sentenced one may be suffering from a chronic neurosis, another may have made him steal, and the place for him is in a hospital and not in the penitentiary. Another may be an imbecile or a moron and he belongs in an institution for the feeble-minded, perhaps for life. A third may be an epileptic and his mental reactions may be warped because of it. A fourth may constitute a case to be developing insanity and the proper place for him is in a hospital under the care of physicians. A fifth may have stolen because forced to do so by necessity—hunger maybe. Such a one will become definitely antisocial if mingled with hardened criminals. Maybe only the sixth of the group is normal and will profit by incarceration.

I am not simplifying, of course, that the ratio of abnormality and consequent degree of irresponsibility is as heavy as these examples might indicate. Far from it.

I stress the abnormal side merely to emphasize the tremendous importance of individual physical, psychological and psychiatric studies in fixing guilt and determining punishment.

Our present system is relatively easy and convenient. All we have to do is to determine whether a man is guilty. Then we look it up in the book to see what sentence such guilt carries. Then we ship the offender to all and fore about it.

But such a system is as short-sighted as it is stupid and useless. We don't help the offender and we don't help society.

It is like throwing refuse into the ocean and then getting it all washed back on the beach again.

A SUITOR TOO MANY

By MILDRED BARBOUR

Lila's voice, strained and tense, came over the wire.

Dorothy said cheerfully: "It's all right, Lila, Herbert is here beside me. He understands that I've made a fearful folo of myself and got you into trouble as the result of my trying to play a scorched face—but he'll be all right, Herbert," she pleaded, extending the receiver.

Herbert spoke up. "A little stiffly if she don't understand what this is all about, Lila. Dorothy seems very vague, and I must say you've been guilty of great rudeness to our guest. Please come home at once."

"May I speak to Dot again, please?" asked Lila.

Frowning, Herbert gave up the phone.

"If Holmes is still there, how can I come?" demanded Lila.

"Why, Holmes left!" answered Dorothy, and turning to Herbert, she smiled radiantly. "And you must, too, Herbert, even if I do act absurdly sometimes."

He answered stiffly: "It is unfortunate that the letter I know you, Dorothy, the less I am inclined to trust you."

She laughed, apparently not in the least offended.

"And I'm really such a nice person!"

A sound on the stairs made her glance up. A young man was descending.

She recognized the young man, from whom Lila had fled at Vandergrift's shop. Gilroy Holmes!

Herbert was presenting him. The young man smiled.

"Haven't I seen you somewhere before, Miss Caine?"

"I doubt it," she denied hurriedly.

But she gave him a charming smile, and he seemed pleased.

"You don't happen to be just leaving, do you, Mr. Holmes?" she asked prettily. "Because I wondered if you'd mind taking me to a bus. It's so quiet in this part of town, and there have been so many pickpockets about . . . ."

"I should be delighted and honored!" Holmes reached for his hat with alacrity.

"Good night, Herbert," said Dorothy. Close to his ear, she whispered: "Don't scold Lila! Keep all your energies for me."

It aroused her from his scowl. But then, she wasn't worried in him!

"But," she said to herself: "I might as well have a henchman! I've had enough trouble over men lately."

CHAPTER 31.

THE TIGHTENING NET

It is doubtful if Herbert would have overlooked Lila's outrageous behavior that night, or accepted Dorothy's vague reference to a practical joke, had not he aroused himself over the phone that she was actually in Dorothy's studio. Even then he was suspicious; she might not have been alone in the studio.

She retrieved home, penitent and loving, a little apprehensive, until she learned that Gilroy Holmes was no longer in the house.

Herbert read her a lecture on her frivolous ways and ended with a warning about Dorothy Caine.

"I repeat, Lila, that this girl is not a safe friend for you. She is entirely too careless and irresponsible. Nearly all of our—of—disagreements have arisen from some incident in which Dorothy has played the leading part."

Perched on the arm of his chair, her lips against his cheek, Lila was adorably docile.

"Dot doesn't mean any harm, darling She and I—well, we play silly games; we've always had heaps of fun together And sometimes we forget that I'm married and have responsibilities. I'll try to behave in a much more dignified fash ion in the future."

Herbert let the matter rest at that, but, in his heart, he was not at all satisfied. He told himself that Lila and Dorothy Caine were up to something, and he didn't intend to let them pull the wool over his eyes.

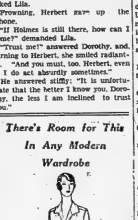

Lila, grown super sensitive every day to other peoples' moods because it was desperately necessary, realized that suspicion regarding her actions was firmly implanted in Herbert, so she strove to be more than ever sweet and charming and docile. She agreed with him in everything, fell in with all his plans, and gave him all her time, with the exception of the hour each day when she had to see Jack Farquar, her uncle's business manager.

Farquahar was growing more and more restive. His demands that she publicly announce their engagement became alarmingly insistent. He no longer seemed content to have tea with her at the home of "Mrs. Herbert Ware."

One afternoon he demanded abrupt ly: "Why doesn't Mrs. Ware ever show herself? Now that I've met her, there seems no reason for her absenting her self so pointedly."

"Oh, she's very busy," declared Lila hastily. "Why do you want to see her?" she asked teasingly. "Did you find her so attractive?"

"I saw your uncle yesterday," he re-

Advice to Girls

By Anne Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young girl in my teens. About a year ago I met a fellow whom I have learned to think a great deal of. We have been keeping steady company for about three months and during this time he has given me a beautiful watch for my birthday. I am afraid that we will have to give up each other's friendship as we cannot get along without fighting.

Which would be the proper thing to do, return the watch or may I keep it?

CLARK BAR.

CLARK BAR: If you cannot curb disposition to quarrel over petty things and find it advisable to sever your friendship on this account you must return the watch which you really are not privileged to accept unless you are engaged. WHAT'S NEW

(From a Woman's Standpoint)

Ruby velvet evening wraps lead in New York this season.

A novel note in a new suit is seen in a tailored mode of black velveteen and satin, the cape and skirt made of velvet, the nearly cut jacket of brighter toned satin.

Paris is wearing cuff muffs that might well be called muff cuffs, and some of the most attractive winter coats in Paris just now are being made with these handsome fur cuffs, which are wide enough for the wearer to tuck her hands into them, and they are so shaped that when they are put together they look just like a muff.

D'Ye Ken Hoo Tae Mak An Oatmeal MacAroon?

Scuse the Scotch. It's the best we can do so far awa' frae the land o' cakes. But the word MacAroon in conjunction with' Oatmeal, would make a Zulu wish to play the bagpipes. If Oatmeal MacAroons originated in Scotland, then it constitutes one more reason for admiring the versatile abilities of the Scottish people. The recipe is very simple—and, as might be expected—most economical!

1 tablespoon butter
1 cup white sugar
1 egg
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons Magic Baking Powder
1 teaspoon vanilla
2½ cups rolled oats

Rub together butter, sugar, rolled oats, salt and baking powder, then drop in the egg unbeaten, add vanilla, mix well with wooden spoon. Drop mixture about the size of a hazelnut in buttered pans and bake 10 to 15 minutes.

ST. THOMAS' MEN LISTEN TO FINE ADDRESS FROM BISHOP SEAGER

Over 200 Present At Get-Together Supper In Parish Hall

"A real religion and a real Christianity" was the subject upon which Right Rev. Lord Bishop Seager addressed a gathering of the men and young men of St. Thomas Church last evening in the Parish Hall, at a get-together supper meeting. Over two hundred of the male members of the congregation listened with rapt attention to the able discourse delivered by His Lordship.

Bishop Seager complimented the parish on the efforts of the past three months and he pointed a great and successful future for the Parish. "Every parish has unsuspecting power within it and you haven't begun to realize the power that is within this body of men" declared the speaker. "The religious instinct was never more strongly moved than it is today but it does not always permeate the ordinary, orthodox channels." The only "way for the Church to be successful is to be Christlike."

Bishop Seager spoke of Religious instinct as a hard thing to suppress as it is just as natural as the aspirations of the mind in regard to our every day life "It is often distorted sin and every one knows that there is something perverse in all of our natures" he said.

"Continuing he warned that Religious instinct needs to be Christianized and controlled otherwise it is the most selfish instinct of human nature. "Religious instinct gone wrong has conceived and carried out more terror than anything else" observed His Lordship. He feelingly compared the late Archdeacon Ogilvie Dobbs as akin to St. Barnabas. "The former never allowed the differences of opinion and teaching to separate man but rather created a united feeling. "He radiated in his life patience and undying faith and his secret had Christianized his religious training" said the Bishop. Speaking of the present day religion Bishop Seager affirmed that it's manifestations are not at all reassuring at times and he stated that it must sound to the core. "After all, are we really Christian in spirit and heart" he queried.

"We must examine ourselves first to determine whether we are Christian or pagan" he declared. "Christianity never at least always unites and the incarnation of Christ was meant to reconcile men and to creat a brotherhood." "We cannot take a position of exclusiveness as we affect one another directly and what is of interest to one is of interest to another." Bishop Seager pointed out the four channels through which the Anglican Church came into Canada approximately one hundred and fifty years ago. The gateways St. Lawrence River, London's Bay, Maritime Provinces and the Pacific Coast. "As a result of these four centres communion found itself in isolated units and those in the East and South knew nothing of those in the north which gradually resulted in a group of Dioceses in each area."

The Connecting Link

"To-day the last spike of the Canadian Pacific Railway was driven and it was this act which no less than pre-Confederation days, that has brought forth Canada and been United on paper only."

Bishop Seager described the building of this great Transcontinental system as a great station of faith which started out in a most marvelous way. "From that time onward, Canada began to be, and out of the turmoil of the forties and fifties emanated the same principles as have governed the whole British Empire." Bishop Seager noted that Canada then started on the journey to a great destiny. Confederation began then began to assimilate and it was eight years later that a General Synod was called and the barriers were broken down and the Church really un-fled." "The representatives had the consciousness of a growing power and as a result the Church has gone always by leaps and bounds."

Speaking of the Missionary problem he mentioned the myriads of workers in foreign fields as well as those engaged in the work at hand. "It is not worth a man's devotion and a woman's sacrifice" he said.

In this connection he mentioned one particular case where a Missionary in the far-off frozen north brought the message that every Eskimo within a certain territory was a Christian and a member of the Anglican Church.

"It is here in this Parish that the door is open for you to take your stand is there a man who knows the vision who will not line up behind such a worthy faith," he questioned.

Divine Assistance

Modern civilization is possible only with the abstinence of the fundamentals of Jesus Christ and countries will not find success from social reforms or any other thing without His help. "Christianity is radiating and liberating the truths and impulses of Christ and these are gradually finding their way into the hearts of men," affirmed the speaker.

"Newcomers in a community" he said, "must find that bond of brotherhood which is in reality the work of the Church. Mayors flow past and Churches every day who profess to be Christians but many of them have not the courage to stand.

Turning to the local situation Bishop Seager declared that members of the Diocese are engaged in a serious but not-too-rapid work. "City parishes are centres from where the people must come and the members must feel the weight of responsibility and carry the burden." He reviewed the work done in many of the parishes in the north country but pointed out that there was "Still a great deal of ground to be covered."

Bishop Seager referred to the problems of the middle west but said that these in the East were not pending unsolved nor did they contemplate the mountains which are bothering them. "The great call for Church work is in western Canada where many communities are pressing to flourish but where Christianity is not being taught with any amount of zest." "There is a difference of opinion as to where the emphasis should be laid," he added.

The speaker stated that fifty-five per cent. of the money given for Mission work is placed in the Diocese of the middlewest. "The business of the Church is to make known His Spirit to the younger generation and if it's at such gatherings as this that steps must be taken in the right direction," said His Lordship in closing his address.

Mr. Allan Elliott moved a vote of thanks to the Bishop and Rev. A. L. Geen, seconded the motion. Rev. John Lyons, vicar of St. Thomas spoke briefly thanking the Bishop for his splendid talk.

Mr. W. O. Adams acted as chairman of the evening and Mr. J. Arnold Thomson was leader of the community singing.

FAILED TO EXCEED ENDURANCE RECORD

San Francisco, Jan. 20.—Capt. Chas. Kingsford-Smith, British aviator and Lieut. George H. Pond, U.S.N., yesterday failed in their attempt to break the world endurance record when their monoplane, Spirit of California, was forced down at 10.16 p.m., Pacific Coast time, when their gasoline supply was exhausted.

"Speedy acceleration in the new Ford. S to 25 miles per hour in 8 1-2 seconds in high gear is what you can expect. A phone call will bring you a car from Belleville Motors for a demonstration.

AGRICULTURAL SOC. ELECT NEW OFFICERS

Picton, Jan. 20.—The annual meeting of the Prince Edward County Agricultural Society took place in Shire Hall on Wednesday afternoon. Officers were elected for 1928 as follows:—

President—B. R. Leavens.
1st Vice-President—T. G. Crandell.
2nd Vice-President—Arnold A. Way.
Secretary-Treasurer—A. P. MacVannel.

Directors—H. S. Collirer, Morris Huff, W. H. Gough, Fred H. Hubbs, James deC. Hepburn, Dr. E. M. Herrington, Charles Metcalfe, Howard Leavens, E. J. Healy, E. B. Purtelle, Wm. Monaghan, A. P. MacVannel, S. A. Welbanks, Morden Gilbert, Arthur Wright.

A general discussion of the finances of the society ook place and the subject of holding the fall fair at a later date in September was broached but nothing definite decided.

PLACED VICTIM'S BODY ON TRACKS

Allowed Train To Mangle Man Knocked Down By His Car

Paris, January 19.—The details of an unusually sordid crime have just been disclosed at Meaux with the arrest of Jules Plogue, 48, well-to-do.

Plogue is charged with attempting to escape the consequence of such a motor mobile accident, wherein his car knocked down a man, by picking up the body and carrying it to a railway line, where he laid it across the tracks and allowed a train to run over it. It is unknown whether or not the victim, Cyprien Gramblich, a Czechoslovakian farm hand, was killed by the motorcar or was only injured. A workman saw two men place a body on the track a few minutes before the express roared by. Eugene Patron, a butcher, is accused of helping Plogue.

MANY ENTRIES FOR POULTRY SHOW.

Picton, Jan. 20.—The hundreds of people who wended their way through the Armories on Tuesday, Wednesday and today have the opportunity to view and inspect one of the best exhibits of quality poultry ever brought together at any show in the district. Had the man who lately asked, "What has become of the old-time keepers and fanciers" been there, he would have seen that those still living were here as exhibitors and visitors and that for those who have passed over, a score of new ones were here to assume their responsibilities and to carry on the work of improved standard poultry.

There were nearly eight hundred birds on display and the armouries was a bedlam as the crowing of lusty cocks, the quacking of ducks, the cackle of geese mingled with the strains of music from the radios. This year nearly all the old exhibitors are back again and keen competition for the new ones.

GOOD TRIP BY AIR MAIL PLANE

Moncton, N.B., Jan. 20.—Leaving here yesterday at 10.15 a.m. the mail airplane, carrying 300 pounds of mail, made the trip to the Magdalen Islands and arrived back at her landing place at Cape Tormentine about 3.15, making fourth hour's mail. The round voyage is practically four hours.

PROTEST ABSURD MICHIGAN LAW

Same Penalty For Child Murder As For Having Pint Of Gin

Albany, N.Y., Jan. 20.—A protest against the Michigan laws which suffered the same punishment to Adolph Hoelling as was meted out to Fred. Pelm was filed in Governor Green, of Michigan, today by Louis Cuvillier, of the New York Legislature.

Hoelling was the slayer of five-year-old Dorothy Schneider, and Pelm was a farmer boottlegger, convicted of a Lansing boottlegger, convicted of a fourth felony, which was punishable by a year of gaol.

Cuvillier's telegram said:

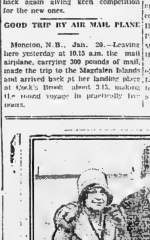

"The State of Michigan abolished the death penalty for murder, yet Adolph Hoelling would have been electrocuted by the citizens of Michigan for the brutal murder of five-year-old girl if the law had not protected Hoelling from such ruin.

"Yet the Anti-Saloon League demanded and the Legislature of Michigan reenacted, to make life imprisonment and a habitual criminal clause persons convicted four times of having intoxicating liquor in his or her possession. Such is the case of Fred. Pelm of Lansing."

"In the eyes of the people of Michigan, Hoelling's crime is no greater than Pelm's crime of having a pint of liquor."

James Holloway, who "saved" his police dog on a little fox terrier, at St. Thomas convicted of wilfully killing the terrier. Sentence was reserved.

Only a silent man is able to realize the folly of talking too much.

Here are some of the women golfers who participated in the Bahamas championship tournament, which started at Nassau, Bahamas, on Jan. 17. Right: Mrs. Louis B. Perkins, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., former amateur champion and winner of several titles, and Ada Mackenzie, holder of several invitation tournaments; Dorothy Reid, United States and Canadian champion; Helen Payson, holder of several championships.

PRINCIPAL GIVEN THREE YR. TERM

Prosecuting Attorney Regrets That He Could Not Ask For Lash

London, Ont., Jan. 20.—Three years in Kingston penitentiary was the sentence imposed on James F. Kirkwood until recently Principal of Victoria Public School, who pleaded guilty in City Police court yesterday to a charge of having had improper relations with a girl between the ages of 14 and 16 years, the girl being a former pupil at his school. As sentence was passed by Deputy-Magistrate Gladman, Kirkwood, 54 years of age, collapsed and had to be carried from the prisoner's box.

The court was cleared of spectators for the hearing with only the girl, her parents, reporters and officers of the court allowed to remain.

The statement signed by the girl and later signed as a confession by Kirkwood contained information of his relations with the girl as stated and that the Crown refused to read it to the court even with the court room cleared of spectators.

On Verge of Collapse

Pale and haggard, Kirkwood was brought into the court room a few minutes to ten o'clock, and placed with two other prisoners in the box. Not once during the proceedings did he raise his eyes and even as the magistrate was addressing him he shielded his face as best he could with his hands. Leaning against the dock-rail for support, the prisoner seemed on the verge of collapse several times and on one occasion was supported by an officer.

JOINS THORNTON'S STAFF

ONCE A NIAGARA IN OLD SWEDEN

25,000 Years Ago Claim Geologists Who Have Investigated

Stockholm, Sweden.—A former Swedish Niagara in the Swedish Midlands 25,000 years old and existing for 9,000 years," when the waters of the Baltic Sea, then without an outlet to the south, forced its way through a rocky barrier in the Swedish province of Nerke and pressed further on to the North Sea, is a startling discovery claimed by H. Munthe, a Swedish geologist, who has now completed his theoretical researches in a number of practical observations of the districts in question.

According to Mr. Munthe's report the pressure of the ice, covering Scandinavia and great parts of the European continents, during the glacial period was so heavy that at its centre in Sweden the ground sank about 200 metres. As the ice melted and retreat ed towards the north the country rose even higher than its present level above the sea, and thus blocked the southern outlet of the Baltic to the North Sea between Germany and Denmark. Across this barrier after a season on the steppe, turned to the screech. For some years she was well known in motion picture audiences for her interpretations of flighty dramatic roles. Then

Evidences of reconstruction work in Yokahama is seen through the fact that a five-story office block and reinforced concrete hotel was recently completed. The new building, known as the Hotel New Grand, is of the most up-to-date earthquake-proof construction and is modelled after the style of the best Canadian hotels.

Toronto.—The Province of Ontario is at the door of the greatest gold producing year in its history, according to official figures of the Department of Mines, who forecast an increase in gold production this year of $2,000,000 as compared with last year's output. In addition, the total mineral production is expected to reach $71,000,000—a gain of $6,000,000 over 1926.

Halifax.—Boys' and Girls' Swine Clubs are now being established here. Calf Feeding Clubs are also on the increase and it is predicted that in 1928 the latter will attain the same popularity in the Maritimes as the former. Egg marketing circles are also busy and considerable marketing good work is already reported. These clubs promise a valuable aid to the poultry industry.

Preparations for the Banff Winter Carnival, to be held February 4-11, are well under way. Canadian members are training and intend to make a strong effort to bring back to the Dominion "Lipton's Trophy" which was carried to the United States by Warren Cunningly, of Ashton, Idaho. It is anticipated that there will be several teams from the United States competing again this year.

Saint John.—An epoch in the transportation of cargo between Canada and the United Kingdom was fetal when recently when W. B. MacInnes, vice-president in charge of traffic of the Canadian Pacific Railway; W. A. Wainwright, assistant to the vice-president, and other officials of the railway, inspected the "Empress" cargo liner "Fredericburn," which recently docked here, completing her maiden voyage.

According to a report covering the activities of the past year of Canada Co-operative Wheat Association, a subsidiary of the Canadian Pacific Railway, 6,000 farmers, consisting of 3,445 persons, were settled on 162,263 acres of land by the association. The value of these transactions is over $3,000,000. Nearly 300,000 acres of land are now ready for settlement and prospects for the current year are very bright.

Vancouver.—In an address before the Board of Trade upon the subject of Canada and the Dominion by the late Sir William Van Horne, founder of the city of Vancouver and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, C. J. Coleridge, general superintendent of the railway's British Columbia district, said: "The Canadian Pacific Railway is the largest taxpayer and its largest purchaser in the province; it spent last year $20,750,000 in stores and supplies, taxes, wages, etc.

CAPITOL THEATRE

Comedy of the side splitting variety reigns supreme at the Capitol Theatre on the screen till the last half of the week. Coorge Sidney and Charlie Murray are back again and teamed up in "The Life of Riley," a picture with a small town setting and a laugh at every turn. Riley and his pal are the fire department and police force respectively, and what's more, "they're both" some on a beautiful widow. And the things that happen in and around that quiet little country town make a story that's just about as funny as we're seen around here lately.

On the stage, two big acts are presented, the first, a good offering of singing and comedy, and the second a meritorious musical act, several really good violin solos making the offering an excellent one.

BELLE THEATRE

Barbara Tennant, the circus woman in "The Clown" Columbia's production now at the Belle Theatre, began her professional career on the London stage. She played ingenue rolls and appeared in English presentations of Shakespearean drama. She came to America, after a season on the stage, turned to the screen. For some

REGENT THEATRE

Victoria Gardens, the Thames Embankment, Cleopatra's Needle, the House of Parliament, Waterloo Station Westminster Bridge, and Westminster Abbey—these are only a few of the interesting sights of London's city that will be seen in "Every Mother's Son," the all English picture now showing at the Regent Theatre. From the first flash to the last fade-out, the atmosphere in "Every Mother's Son" is absolutely English—the real thing, as every one familiar with London and the Old Land will realize at once. The production is a sincere effort on the part of the producers to tell a strong human story of English life and character covering a period of abut thirty years and it is characterized throughout by two distinctly British sentiments—love of home and fireside, coupled with intense and practical patriotism.

LOCAL TEAM AT FULL STRENGTH FOR FRONTENAC GAME TO-NIGHT

Kingstonians Hope To Trounce Maroons On Home Ice

Belleville Maroons have been hampered by weather and other difficulties and the few hav' not been treated to any hockey for the past two weeks. However tonight will see the O. H. A. series reopened with Kingston Frontenacs here. The locals are still smarting under the 8-3 defeat handed them some two weeks ago and are out to get revenge for that trimming tonight. Kingston had to fight all the way against the Intery College the other evening but they were handicapped on that occasion by the fact that Rochmont and Molway and Joe Smith were somewhat under the weather. These two boys will be in the best of shape for the tonight's game.

As has been the case in past years the visit of the Frontenacs here has meant a sell-out and it is expected that the arena will be jammed for the game tonight. It is seldom that Kingston manages to slip over a win in the local arena but they must win tonight if they hope to keep up with Queen's who have not lost a game to date.

New Line Up

On the other hand Belleville has for one game and that to the Kingston team at the Jock Harty and they were cast by any means at full strength that night. Bill Green has been getting in some useful work during the past two weeks and is travelling in mid season form right now. It is expected that Jack Rooney will team up with him although Manager Thomas refused to make any announcement last night. There may be one or two new ones take the ice and a couple of surprise packages may be handed the fans. John Hibbard will be back again after his recent illness and he will assist on the forward line materially. Daw Whalen will be in his accustomed place on the net. The other forwards will likely be chosen from Weir, Gibson and Hunter. This array looks good enough to take the Frontenacs in to camp.

"Chicks" Mundell may replace Bass Brooks in the nets for the visitors, Hollway, Priest and Downey will likely form the defence. Lawlor the trickiest player in these parts will be in centre with Bellinger and Smith on the wings. Watts and Bays will take care of the substitute positions. Stan Burgoyne will handle the bell.

BOWLING

The Wanderers won four points from the Alemite in the Ladies League at the Recreation Alleys last night, both teams rolling below their average scores, but the Wanderers just a little the best in every game. Miss Flagler for the Alemite and Misses Reddick for the Wanderers were the highest bowlers.

In the mens Junior League the Stevens-Adamson Office won four points from the Baby Shoes, with McIntosh and Evans leading the way for their respective teams.

Ladies League

Junior League

S. A. Office—McIntosh 378; Marsh 544; Ethier 444; Freeman 471; Carter 386; total 2075.

The first Ten Pin League will get under way on Recreation Alleys next Tuesday night. Last night the teams were picked by the different captains. This league comprises four teams and the following are the Captains and their teams. Team No. 1 McIntosh, Sag; Johns, Yerex, Salisbury, Baker, J. Legault, Jones. No. 1 Stratton capt; Hope, O'Brien, Luffman, Cummins, Freeman, spare. Team No. 3 Atkins Capt; Monck, Barrage Hemming, Delshaw, Donahue spare. Team No. 4 Walters Capt; Darrell, Black, Allore, Smith, Domenico spare.

CONTENDERS FOR TUNNEY TITLE

New York, Jan. 20.—Champions of the heavyweight, lightweight and welterweight divisions ran into a barrage of challenges yesterday as the weekly meeting of the New York State Athletic Commission.

Right on the heels of an unsatisfactory defence against Tom Heeney, Australian champion, Jack Sharkey posted $2,500 with the Commission in support of his demands of Orlie Tunney's heavyweight diadem. The boxing Sailors dyaked Tunney for a return match months to spare before answering an opening gong in view of the champion's decision to risk his title in New York, the committee suggested that Flowers fight Tevris for the logical contenders' ship.

Mandell, who has not ridked his welterweight title in Canada since he won in Detroit last July, is under indefinite suspension here for failure to meet Tev Rissko in a match between Jimmy McLarnin, Pacific Coast star, and Tevris, scheduled for February 24 at Madison Square Garden, was ruled out, owing to agreement of the promoters as fighting weight. The Commission ruled Tevris must stay in the 135 pound class. An exception will be made to substitute Flowers for McLarnin.

CANUCK MAY NOT ENTER TOURNEY

Heavyweight Contender Receives Many Offers To Fight

Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 20.— Jack Delaney's chances of entering the four-twenty-second victory over Sully Montgomery Monday night, will in all probability drop out of The Richard's heavyweight elimination tournament, his manager, Jas. Jacobs, announced yesterday afternoon.

Jacobs asserted that he had received a telephone call from Jim Mullen, Chicago promoter, asking him to wait until February 1, before signing for bouts in the tournament. Mullen still entertains hopes of signing Gene Tunney to meet the winner of the Chicago summer and Delaney has already signed with Mullen for the bout. Delaney's new manager also said that he will abide by his agreement unless Richard is willing to sign a Johnny Risko-Jack Delaney fight at ten rounds. The promoter has announced that all contestants will go the full ten round championship distance.

At the same time, Jacobs said that he had received offers for Delaney to fight in Buffalo, Pittsburg and Toronto Delaney left yesterday afternoon for Boston, where he meets Jack Humbeck Belgian champion, tonight.

Agreed on Three Rounds

New York, Jan. 20.—Pre-Publication of the New York State Athletic Commission on Tuesday of the "score" card of the two judges and the referee at the draw battle between Jack Sharkey and Tom Heeney last Friday night, disclosed that in only three of the 12 rounds did the two agree.

These were the third and fourth, which were all awarded to Heeney, and the seventh, which went to the Sharkey sailor by a unanimous vote.

Referee Jack Dooling awarded 5 rounds to Heeney, 4 to Sharkey, called three even and voted for Heeney; Georges Patrick, a judge, gave five rounds to Heeney, five to Sharkey, called two even and voted for a draw; George Kelly, the other judge, awarded five rounds to Heeney, six to Sharkey, called one a draw and voted for Sharkey.

Even if riches did bring unhappiness some people would struggle for them just the same.

SportOgramS

By "The Observer"

With an excellent ice sheet promised for tonight by Manager Carnant the cash customers are on the Frontenac-Maroon tilt are due for a real battle. The Frontenacs squeezed out of the R.M.C. game with a win but it was by a narrow margin and necessitated two overtime periods before the, turned the trick.

Reports from the Limestone City state that "Bouncer" Holway and Joe Smith will be in the line-up as they are almost recovered from the "grippe" Queen's-Kingston game. Both of these boys did not get in the Grad game because they are just now recuperating from the injuries.

"Chick" Mundell who has been prominent in Kingston hockey circles for several years will probably be guarding the twine in the Kingston game. Mundell is filling "Babe" Brooks shoes as the latter was especially erratic in the R.M.C. argument.

Although the Grads did not show any great burst of speed until the closing stages at Kingston opinion is divided as to whether they measure up to the standard of the Granites, Canada's representatives at the Olympics in Holland. It is thought Al Porter is the equal of Donne Munroe on the defence and Dave Trenholme is the king pin of the forward line it is a question as to whether he over shadows Harry Watson who was one of the greatest amateur players ever turned out.

The Grads should come back with the smartest combination in the world dangling at their belts although despatches from Berlin, Germany state that the team to represent that country have been practising faithfully and it is also stated that a number of them speak with an O.H.A. accent.

The rumour has gone abroad that several of the players throughout around the German settlement at Kitchner will wear the colors of the Republic. But then Jacks at one time boasted of one of the fastest squads performing in the Junior series.

Panet who was making some nice rushes in the game with the Grads may line-up with the Frontenacs tonight's tilt at the Arena. There are worse players in this league than the same Panet.

"Chummy" Lawlor is looking better every time we see him and the little centre player drew a round of applause every time he was on the ice with the Frontenacs Lawlor while he is clever with the stick and a dangerous shot works hard while on the ice.

Bowen has been showing wonderful form in practice session and the Kingstonians will find him the same old stone-wall. Bowen was batting kicking and swatting them out in great style when the locals were beat en 8-5 at Kingston.

Don't be surprised should a couple of dark horses put in an appearance tonight. Manager Thomas is a foxy bird and is apt to spring a last minute surprise on the boys from the domains of Rockwood and Portsmouth.

Cornwall have enticed old man Foran and Lt. M. Cormant back in the line-up and the rejuvenated team stopped into Brockville and stung the Hawks to the tune of a 6-2 beating. These two are numbered among the veterans of the Factory Town Hockey circles. The former has been reported quite often since the season opened to have shaken the dust of Cornwall from his feet but it looks like the dust wouldn't leave him.'

'Another old-timer was in the line up for Brockville against Cornwall in Ernie Higgins, but with him had all Dominion hockey stars in front.

Bob Lee who is described as a whirl-wind is performing in great style for the Limestone youngsters. He is a North Bay product.

Stan Burgoyne one of the most efficient referees on the O.H.A. will handle the game tonight and little escapes the eye.

Ye Men Club held a fine practice at the arena last night and are preparing for the game with Point Anne in the Ice Carnival on Monday night. All of the players are confident that the villagers are due for a trimming as the locals have not suffered a defeat to date. In the other game on the same evening the Clare and Quinte Athletics will cross sticks.

BASEBALL HUMOR

Umpire Wilkinson, the human charterbox, who is a veteran of many minor leagues, has a hobby of gathering and storing in his memory baseball wise sayings and humorous cracks that will come from a gathering of fans during a ball game.

"There is lots of real wit in a stand full of baseball fans and the wise guy side of many incidents if he will but see them in the light of the fan," Wilkinson says.

He relates one of the best bits of baseball fun he had heard at the ball game it occurred while Wilkinson was work ing with an umpire named Hurley.

Hurley was on the bases and Wilkinson behind the bat. The hitter sent a fly to centre field which went for three sacks. As he was tearing around the bases, Hurley, whose player was right in his wake, watching to see that he touched all the bags.

"I'll not a great deal of noise in the stands, but the semi-silence was suddenly broken by a leather-lunged baseball fan near where Wilkinson stands as a real wit.

Lads, lads, leave the devil you rain' in'—you didn't hit that ball," burst out the fan and the stands were set in a roar again.

"It was enough to make even an umpire smile," Wilkinson says.

MADOC CAPTURES EXCITING GAME

Home Team Defeat Campbellford Picksters By 2-1 Score

Madoc, Jan. 20.—Old Lady Luck, Dame Fortune, or whatever you wish to call her, was on the side of Madoc with the Campbellford team when they came to Madoc on Monday night. The truth is, the game was fast and for the most part good, clean hockey, but the visitors were unsuccessful in the open rink and the low stung lights and lost out 2 to 1. In the first period the visitors almost scored twice. On one occasion the goal umpire actually raised his hand but the usual siren but took a second look and lowered his arm. The visiting supporters felt their hearts and bodies rockers took a new lease of life. By the end of the period Madoc really had a goal. The second period ended without a score from either side. In the last session both teams rallied a counter and the final score was two for Madoc. From the beginning Ross Dann, Trenton, ruled the play with his usual unsuccessionable fairness and as the lawyers say, without fear or favor.

SUSPEND PLAYER BALANCE SEASON

Perry McInrue Openly Attacked Referee At Brockville

Brockville, Jan. 52.—Brockville intermediates sustained their third loss in the O.H.A. group schedule last night at the arena when they were defeated by Cornwall before a small number of spectators. The final score was 5-2 with the teams tied at 1-1 and 2-2 at the close of the opening periods.

Besides losing the game the locals lost one oftheir regular players. Howard (Perry) McInrue, whose suspension from the O.H.A. for the season at least is a certainty, following a cowardly and unsportsmanlike attack which he made on the referee, Clair A. Devlin, of Kingston in the third period. Cornwall had opened up a determined attack on the Brockville nets with the result that they were pressed and been rewarded by two goals, scored by M. Jamieson and Spence, after the Brockville defence had been severely worked by the players from down east, who were out to win the game. The puck was batted from the Brockville net to near the Cornwall blue line and was taken in an offside play by McInrue. Play was stopped and the puck was about to be faced off again at the Brockville blue line when McInrue was given a two-minute penalty for an unsalled-for remark to the referee, but was reluctant about leaving the ice. The referee skated towards the penalty box and McInrue came up behind him and drove the skates from under the official, throwing him heavily to the ice on his shoulders and head.- Devlin was justified in immediately ordering McInrue from the ice for the remainder of the game, but before departing McInrue jumped on the referee, using his left arm to choke the official. Devlin was borne to the ice, face downwards, and only after some exertion had been expended by the Brockville players and officers on McInrue's arm, which was still clutched tightly around Devlin's neck, from behind was the official released. In the fracas Devlin's spectacles were broken and afterwards he was seen to be suffering not a little from the injury to his back received when he was first thrown to the ice.

The entire scene was a disgusting exhibition of poor sportsmanship on the part ofthe offending player, who deserves the suspension which he will surely receive when the matter is taken up by the O.H.A. executive as it will be.

An architect can tell you the reason the new house doesn't suit a wife is because he drew up the plans exactly according to her directions.

DENIES SALE OF TORONTO HURLER

Pres. Lol. Solmon Of Leafs Says Grandmanne Not Disposed Of

Toronto, January 20.—President Solman of the Toronto club, on his return from New York the other day, denies emphatically that there was anything in the story from the Yankee headquarters that any arrangement for the sale of Pitcher Grandmanne had been entered into with Huggin's club. "They would like to get him," he said, "but the Yankees have never done anything for my club and I don't see why I should give them the preference." Evidently Mr. Solman doesn't care for the club controlled by Messrs Ruppert and Barrow. And with reason.

The Toronto club was victimized in the case of Myles Thomas, who was sold to the New York Americans for cash and players. The money was paid over but the players never materialized. Ed. Barrow claimed that Thomas was really the property of the Yankees and that Toronto had little title to him. The business manager of the world's champions based his contention on the fact that Thomas was only loaned to the Reading club when the Leafs purchased his release from that club. All of which probably was correct at the time, but the American League club relinquished all title to the player when Thomas signed and the formality of recalling him at the end of the season.

The next year Thomas proved to be a consistent winner and Barrow then came to bat with his claim. Subsequently a deal was arranged and Thomas went to the Yankees, but to this day the Toronto club has not received adequate compensation for the loss of the twirler.

Under the circumstances President Solman is not likely to enter into any other transaction with Ruppert's club if Prudhomme is sold or traded it will be to some other major league organization, unless it is a straight cash deal.

Mrs. Rev. Seymour entertained the children upstairs with games and play ed with them herself until the cocoa very kindly donated by Mrs. W. S. Dick, was ready. Lunch was then served, sandwiches and cake and a treat of candy given by Mrs. Seymour who enjoyed the children and ladies present. All went home feeling the Mission Band was a good thing to belong to, but it is not just to have a good time in their gatherings, the children are aiming at not to learn about and pray for the heathen children across the sea and give their money to help send them the missionaries to teach them the Bible stories we know so well. Next meeting at Earle Stratton's Jan 7th.

NOBILITY CROWD ORLEANS COURT

Appeal Being Heard On Disposition Of Famous Chateau

Paris, Jan. 19.—The legal battle over the disposition of the famous Chateau de Chambord, which the Austrian courts awarded to Prince Elie de Bourbon-Parma of Vienna, entered another phase yesterday when the case went before the court of appeals of Orleans

The Chateau de Chambord, built by King Francis I, is one of the proudest of Renaissance architecture, with its conical towers, its forest of magnificent chimneys, in which Louis XIV. used to view Molliere's productions play ed in one of the most beautiful theatrical value is close to 800,000,000 francs.

The Paris tribunal in 1925 reversed the ARustrian settlement and gave the chateau to twenty-one separate heirs of the late Duke de Bourbon-Parma, among whom figure former Empress Zita of Austria, King Boris of Bulgaria and Princess Cyrille. Prince Sixte de Bourbon-Parme, Princess Eudocie of Bulgaria and other members of the European nobility who were either present or represented in court yester day.

Counsel for Prince Elie retrewed his claim to the sole inheritance of the chateau and property. The proceedings are expected to last several days.

Napanee, Jan. 20.—Mr. Sinclair, local manager of the Belrite store, the stock of which was destroyed in the big fire on Sunday evening, has leased the vacant store in the Harshaw Block, formerly occupied by the Hewson Drug Company, and will re-open in the near future.

WON TANKARD
Kingston, Jan. 20.—Kingston curlers were successful in winning the Tankard Primary at the Curling Rink on Saturday, defeating Brockville in the finals by two shots, after close matches.

Kingston were successful in winning in the first round from Napanee, making through good scoring by Skip Travers' rink. At the same time Brockville were winning from Rockwood.

In the finals Skip Hanson was defeated by Skip Jenkins, but Skip Travers again came to the rescue by defeating Skip Algie by a margin of 7 shots.

MINOR ACCIDENT
Tweed, Jan. 20.—Mr. A. W. McGuire, I.P.S., was driving into town Tuesday evening, and when almost opposite Mr. A. C. Barrett's residence he turned out to pass a horse and buggy. He failed to notice a second buggy following it in which Mrs. George Thompson and her son were riding, and in trying to avoid a collision his car skidded and struck the rig, smashing it badly, but fortunately not injuring the occupants. The car continued to skid and finally landed in the ditch against a big tree.

APPEALS TO PRIVY COUNCIL DISMISSED
London, Jan. 19.—(CP)—Judicial committee of the Privy Council today dismissed the petition for leave to appeal by Thomas Lacovoli and P. M. Camarallis, from conviction and sentence of three years in the penitentiary after their arrest at Windsor, Ont., for carrying arms to the danger of the public peace. Lord Handsan remarked that the case came entirely within the criminal code and his appeal to the Privy Council in such a case was allowed only under most exceptional circumstances.

PREMIER KEEPS PROGRAM SECRET

Cabinet Busy All Week In Confidential Sessions Preparing Details

OPENS THURSDAY

Delegations Visit Capital Looking For Favors Of All Kinds

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 21.—Events of the week in the capital were not of a nature to catch the headlines of the papers. Undoubtedly many things were happening within the inner council of the cabinet where the Government's sessional programme was being formulated, but as these matters are most closely guarded secrets they were not productive of news.

The speech from the throne, which will be read by His Excellency the Governor-General in the Senate Chamber on Thursday will likely reveal some of the past week's governmental activity but the Prime Minister and his cabinet have been notably silent and evening press speculation regarding legislation to be brought down has been meagre.

Government departments have, in the natural course of their work, provided some news. The work of the Royal Canadian Air Force in Hudson Straits is reported as progressing favorably and veteran flying men state that the men operating the survey there are carrying on one of the most strenuous flying undertakings in the world.

It has been said that some announcement is to be made shortly by the Minister of the Interior regarding the Alberta-Ontario coal movement question. As is usual during the days preceding the opening of Parliament there have been several public and private delegations bringing to the Government requests for new laws, amendments to old laws or advances from the treasury of the country.

EX-MADOC REEVE HAS SUCCUMBED

Joseph Burns, Prominent In North Hastings, Passes Away

One of Madoc's prominent citizens died yesterday in the person of Joseph Burns, Ex-Reeve of the village. The late Mr. Burns was taken ill two weeks ago and his death was not altogether unexpected. He was rushed to Kingston General Hospital but it was soon apparent that he would not recover and he was taken back to his home in Madoc.

The late Mr. Burns had resided in North Hastings practically all his life and had been active in the civic and community life of the County of Hastings and the village of Madoc. He was active in political circles having been a life-long Conservative.

Mr. Burns sat in the village council for some years and served as Reeve and County Councillor for a long period. He was readily recognized in his official capacity and his opinions on important questions were highly valued.

In early life Mr. Burns followed the occupation of a brick manufacturer but of late years he had acted as Fish and Game Inspector for North Hastings. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church and a breth'ren of the Masonic Order. The funeral will be held on Monday under the Masonic auspices.

Mr. Burns was in his seventy-fifty year. Besides a wife he leaves one son and two daughters. One son was killed overseas.

Other members of the party would be Floyd Bennett, famed as pilot to Commander Richard Byrd, and Harold Gatty, navigator of the plane of Lindbergh, the Oriental asserted.

SHOULD ENFORCE SHIPPING LAWS

United States Vessels Are Capturing All Canadian Grain Carriage

ACT IS IGNORED

Government Winks At Infractions Of Coastwise Shipping Regulations

Toronto, Jan. 21.— The statement that in five years United States shipping interests have gained control of 85 per cent of the lake carriage of Canadian grain and are breaking the Canadian Coastwise Act, as per Canadian steamship companies out by business was made today by Capt. F. Robinson, Gosfield, who this week was elected Grand President of the Canadian Navigators Federation.

"American shipping interests" he said, "have practically taken over the grain carriage on the great lakes. Over 65 per cent of Canadian grain is now carried in American steamships. Only a few Canadian steamships companies will be completely extinct until the government enforces the act."

The act, he pointed out, forbids ships of any other country than the Dominion to carry cargo between two ports in Canada. The Government had been winking at the violation of the act, Capt. Robinson alleged, saying Buffalo boats were permitted to carry grain from Port Williams (Montreal) by way of Buffalo and Rapert.

FAMOUS CONCERT PARTY COMING

Ye Old Tyme Village Quartette Canada's Leading Entertainers

Music lovers of Belleville have been looking forward with interest to the visit of Ye Olde Tyme Village Quartette of Toronto who will entertain here on Wednesday February 1st under the auspices of the local Ye Men's Club. This organization which has recently completed several tours is given an excellent reception wherever they give one of their concerts. Arrangements have been completed for the use of Albert College Memorial Hall for this special concert and tickets are already in the hands of the local club members. The profit of the organization is especially interesting to Belleville people as Miss Brethel Walton is the comedian. New York, Toronto and Ottawa newspapers have carried glowing accounts of the entertainment given by this talented quartette. It was only through the fact that they were given a concert in Maude W. Chapman. The quartette able to bring them to Belleville. The party brings in the concerts by the old fashioned costumes which create an added old time atmosphere to the concert.

The Quartette have only recently finished engagements at the Kitz Edward Hotel Toronto, Massey Hall, Toronto; Sister Parish Hall, Ottawa; Canadian Club and Exhibition and Kiwanis dinner during the past week the concerts have been broadcasted from the Mount Royal Hotel, Montreal. The party is known as "Canada's most popular Entertainers". Following is the personnel: Karjorie Waters, Soprano; Brethel Walton, Contralto; W. H. Norris, Bass; C. A. Chapman, Director, tenor; piano Maude W. Chapman. The quartette numbers are chosen from modern and old time selections.

Y. M. C. C. DANCE GREAT SUCCESS

One Of The Best Parties Of The Year—May Hold Leap Year Dance

The first dance held by the Young Men's Conservative Club was such a success last night that the Executive are being urged to put on a Leap Year Dance on February 29th. The dance last night—a stormy weather there was a good attendance and with prizes, novelties and a splendid orchestra the evening lacked nothing which could add to its enjoyment.

The prize, a $5.00 gold piece, donated by Mr. Harry Green, went to Mr. Arthur Hill, a ex-M.L.A., F. Hill, M.P.P. for East Hastings. In the social circle dance it was announced that at the conclusion of this number the partners of the mysterious Mr. and Mrs. Conservative would receive prizes but the names of the mystery couple were not given. They turned out to be Mr. and Mrs. J. Earle McGregor and their partners were Mr. Jack Rose and Miss Bessie Hart. The couple were then presented with a safety razor outfit and a compact respectively. Prize dancing was donated by Mr. W. E. Tummon, M.P.

The winners of the 1-cky ballo-n dance were Miss Bernice Sherman and Mr. Jack Murphy, who were rewarded by large boxes of chocolates and cigarettes, gifts of Mr. Chas. Payne, President of the Belleville Conservative Club. For the most light dance the prizes went to Miss Marjory Sherman and Mr. Ed. Lally. They received chocolates and cigarettes, the gift of Mr. W. H. Ireland, M.P.P. for West Hastings.

Mr. Ireland in his usual genial man ner awarded the prizes and complimented the dancers on their luck or skill. Most attractive novelties added to the fun of the evening.

DELIGHTFUL TEA AT HOME MRS. SANDFORD

The Parsonage Committee of the Methodist Church were entertained at a delightful afternoon tea held yesterday, at the home of Mrs. Sandford Forin Street. The dining room was tastefully decorated for the occasion with yellow flowers and the centre piece of the same flowers formed the centre piece for the tea table.

Mrs. Sandford and Mrs. Sandford received the guests at the door and Mrs. Palmer ushered them to the dining room where Mrs. Kindred poured tea. Assisting in the serving were Mrs. French, Mrs. Pearce and Mrs. Mott.

During the afternoon entertainment was held which was much enjoyed and sang a delightful solo. Miss Eleanor Gas and Miss Marjory Moore gave delightful instrumental numbers. Miss Helen Cook, gave two or three piano recitations which were much enjoyed.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL ORDERS THIRD TRIAL FOR BARTLETT J. BROOKS

HONOR LA SALLE

Jury Disagreed After Nine Hours Of Deliberation Last Night

ALLOW BAIL

Costs Of Action May Mount To New Record For Canada

Toronto, Jan. 21.—A third trial was ordered today by Hon. W. H. Price, Ontario Attorney-General, for Bartlett J. Brooks, charged with attempting to procure an illegal operation for Ruth Dember, his fiancee, who died a year ago.

Brook's first trial, conviction and sentence of five years was quashed and the second ended last night in a jury disagreement.

The third trial may bring the costs of the action up to a record figure for Canadian criminal case. Two appeals were taken before the first trial was reached. It is understood that Brooks will be allowed bail of ten thousand dollars pending his third trial.

Toronto, Jan. 21.—At 10 o'clock last night, after hours' deliberation, the jury in the case of Bartlett J. Brooks, on trial for criminal libel on the charge of attempting to procure an illegal operation on the late Miss Ruth Dember, appeared in the Justice Wright in the Assizes that there was no possibility of their reaching an agreement. His Lordship expressed regret that the jury had been unable to reach a unanimous decision. "Very unfortunate," he commented.

Application for Bail

After discharging the jury, Justice Wright remarked that Brooks was still in custody and said that an application for bail could be made.

J. J. Maddrere, K.C., Crown counsel, stated that he would leave the question of bail for the Attorney Attorney to arrange.

The court was adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning for the purpose.

In conversation with The Globe, Mr. Maddrere said that he expected Brooks would be placed on trial for the third time at the next Assizes.

Mercury reached ten degrees below zero at Ottawa while Sault Ste. Marie had a temperature reported four below. At Toronto the temperature was six above.

The preliminary test leap will be made Sunday by John Tranum, stunt parachute jumper, who will hop into space at a height of 7,500 feet. He intends not to open the parachute until after falling four thousand feet or more. The world's record fall is 4,200 feet.

"Developing Citizenship" Is Subject Of Interesting Address

The members of the W.C.T.U. who braved the inclement weather on Friday afternoon, and attended the meeting at the Conservative rooms were amply rewarded by a most helpful and inspiring address on "Developing Citizenship" by Rev. L. S. Wight. The subject, he stated, was of paramount importance, if the standard of citizenship were desired, and in any country, such matters as temperance and social reform would automatically right themselves.

Going back to the times of the Roman Empire, he showed how it was composed of three classes of citizens—patricians, plebians and slaves. The patricians alone had the right of voting and ruling. Citizenship then was highly valued and gold sums were often paid to obtain it. Today citizenship counts every man and woman, not as a result of effort on their part, but through the price paid for it by our forefathers and it should be none the less precious to us.

Two cases were given for the downfall of Rome—first, the engrossment of

TODAY'S THOUGHT

To make mistakes as we are on the way to knowledge is far more honorable than to escape making them through never having set out to seek knowledge.

TRENCH.

DOUBTFUL SINCERITY

The Pan-American Congress at Havana, in which the United States is playing a leading part, is occupying a prominent place in the day's news, and, coupled with the efforts of the Washington administration to secure pacts with other countries for he outlawing of war, might be taken as an indication of the United States desire to become the world leader in the promotion of international goodwill and peace. Yet there are other items which have been just as prominently displayed which might lead one to doubt the sincerity of the United States in these activities.

In the first place, the Pan-American Congress cannot but help give more earnest thought to the fact that armed United States forces are engaged in actual warfare in Nicaragua, one of the Central American states. There may be some justification for the presence of troops there, but this condition of warfare is hardly consistent with the oft-repeated expression of desire to pursue only paths of peace. If the United States is really in favor of the outlawing of war, might it not be possible to put this theory into actual practice in connection with the Nicaraguan troubles?

Again, the United States' huge naval program is hardly consistent with the desire for international peace which has been put forward by its government. A large naval force, aiming to be the greatest in the world, can hardly be cited as a strong argument in favor of abolishing war. A strong navy is essentially an instrument of warfare and if the United States is sincere in its exhortations to outlaw war, why should that country expend billions of dollars to have the greatest naval fighting force in the world? The other nations can hardly be impressed with the United States' sincerity in the face of these two conditions which are so contradictory to the declarations of the government's leaders.

A GOOD SPEECH

Sir Henry Thornton was called upon the other evening to deliver an after-dinner speech to members and friends of the Canadian Produce Association, assembled in Montreal. And this was his speech:

"I had intended to address you in serious vein," Sir Henry said, "to discuss with you the relative merits of buttermilk and condensed cream, and how to get the greatest number of eggs out of the average hen. But I find that you are already enjoying yourselves, and, loath to spoil a good party I would suggest that the orchestra strike up a dance while I thank you, and sit down."

We commend to all public speakers Sir Henry's tact and consideration, and all of those who have suffered mutely in the cause of after-dinner oratory will join in three rousing cheers and a tiger.

OTHER MEN'S THOUGHTS

The Rev. Amos J. Thomas, pastor of Central United Church, takes the position that girls should never propose marriage, even in Leap Year.

One is inclined to agree. It doesn't seem just right. It is probably better for the girls to follow the procedure so many of them use in regular years. They don't do the proposing, but stoved them, they see to it that proposing is not overlooked.

There are several methods of killing a cat!—Border Cities' Star.

HAVE YOU HEARD THESE?

"I am very careful; whenever I quarrel with my wife, I send the children for a walk."

"Dear little things, one can see they get a lot of fresh air."

Mr: What do you mean by saying this is a possum car?

She: Oh, it plays dead in the most convenient places.

THE PASSING YEARS
(From The Intelligencer of this day 30 years ago)

Some big loads of flour—four tons each—were taken up Murney Hill today.

Only two of the Civic Committees met last evening and no new legislation was introduced. The public works committee passed pay sheet and one account and the fire, water and light committee passed a few accounts.

The Reformers of West Hastings held their annual meeting in Trenton yesterday. The attendance from Belleville was small. The election of officers resulted as follows:—President, R. Bleecker, Vice-President, John Williams, and J. L. Biggar (Belleville) Dr. U. Symons

John Holgate (Sidney) Secretary-Treasurer, C. D. Macaulay.

Mr. E. Cora Porter was in Toronto yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Corby entertained a number of friends at their residence last evening.

Mr. Ernest McMullen, teller of the Merchants' Bank, left today for Winnipeg to assume a similar position in the branch there.

All the worry you can have in this world is what you carry around under your hat.

Invitations are being sent out for the Musicians' Annual Dance which is being held in Johnstone's Academy on Jan. 31st.

Mother!
Child Gets Sick, Cross, Feverish if Constipated

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign the little stomach, liver and bowels need cleaning at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, remember, a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Fig Syrup" for children's ills; give a teaspoonful, and in a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless, delicious, "fruity laxative"—and it never fails to effect a good "inside cleansing." Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," then see that it is made by "The California Fig Syrup Company."

NEW RAILS FOR THE MODERN RAILROAD

Stockholm, Sweden — A new kind of rails for railroads, said to embody the solution of several problems now confronting the railway builders and more economical and safer in use, has been invented by a Swedish engineer. The new rail consists of two different parts, the foot and the head, joined together in zigzag fashion and in such a way as to eliminate the joits when the wheels pass over the rail points, thus ensuring long wear and durability while greatly reducing the risk of rail breaks. When changing the rail, only the top part is removed, while the foot remains, its latter not having been exposed to wear and poised to fit slits more securely than the usual kind of rail. Experts claim that the new rail will be considerably cheaper in use, easier to change, and that it will eliminate the "wandering" or displacement of the rails while reducing the wear on the rolling stock.

THE BULLETIN BOARD

Mainly About People You Know

LAID OVER AGAIN

The three men arrested in a recent raid under the Liquor Control Act appeared once again before Magistrate Mikel in police court this morning and once more were laid over. Their case will come up on Monday at 10 o'clock. The men are James Neelon, William J. Harris and Charles Summers.

AT BROCKVILLE.

The Belleville - Badminton players who will take part in the contest at Brockville this evening, are Mrs. C. C. Walker, Mrs. O. H. Scott, Mrs. A. H. Ketchem, Mrs. D. M. Robertson, Mrs. R. Porter, Miss Fralick, Col. R. J. E. Graham, George E. Graham, Major R. D. Ponton, Ald. C. C. Walker, Lieut. A. H. Ketchem, and J. Robertson. The party will leave this city on the afternoon train.

The Cleco Club held a dance at the Canadian Legion Hall last evening with about thirty couples in attendance. The music was supplied by the club's own orchestra.

SLEIGH PARTY

About twenty-five members of forms 2-D and 3-B formed a sleigh party and drove to Mr. Wallbridge's home at Hull's Island where an enjoyable time was spent. The party returned to this city about three o'clock this morning.

CURLING GOOD

The ice at the curling rink was in excellent condition last evening and a large turnout of members were present, taking advantage of the "Jorm's" game.

SMALL MARKET

Due no doubt to the extreme cold the market square was nearly deserted this morning and only one or two rigs were drawn up. Eggs this morning were selling at forty and forty-five cents the dozen and chickens ranged in price from seventy-five cents a piece to $1.50 each. Butter retailed at 45 cents the pound. In the City Hall many preserves were offered to the public at reasonable prices.

6 BELOW

The temperature took a decided drop last night, the thermometer registering 6 degrees below zero at the coldest period and 3 above zero for the 24 hour period. These temperatures are considerably colder than those of yesterday, the coldest recorded then being 10 above and the warmest 39 above.

FROZEN TO DEATH

An alley cat was observed by several citizens on the east hill today that was frozen to death last night or early this morning. The body was quite stiff and as thermometers registered 14 below on several homes it would be quite possible for the animal to meet death from exposure.

BAY BRIDGE CONFERENCE.

The Bay Bridge problem will again be discussed at the local Chamber of Commerce this afternoon by the Belleville City Council, the Directors of the Chamber of Commerce and W. H. Ireland, M.P.P. for West Hastings, W. F. Hill, M.P.P. for East Hastings, and H. Colliver, M.P.P. for Prince Edward County.

HIGH SCHOOL TO PLAY.

Belleville High School will play a scheduled Interscholastic game on Monday evening at the local arena against the Trenton students. Belleville have most of last year's players in the line-up and have hopes of retaining the opening league game. This should be a fast game. The puck will be faced at 8 p.m. The City League games scheduled for Monday night have been moved to Tuesday night. Ye Men will meet Point Anne at eight o'clock and Clace and Quinte Battery will meet at nine. Managers are advised to make note of these changes. Wednesday's games may also be switched and managers of the teams concerned for that night are advised to watch the press for further notice.

REV. L. S. WIGHT

the citizens in the pursuit of pleasure, and their neglect of the obligations of citizenship; and second, their failure to work out a systematic representative government. For this system, we are indebted to the Anglo Saxon race, and in Canada we have an unparalleled opportunity for developing it. Therefore we should value our citizenship, study it, thinking of and cultivating only those things that are true, honest, just, pure, lovely, of good report, and if there be a high standard.

Two special dangers threatened democracy. One was the possibility of the purchasable vote. This was aggravated by the fact that many citizens were given the franchise before they realized the responsibilities that go with it. A second great danger was the influence of large corporations upon governments. But in this there is no more sinning the governments. They are what the people make them. When the citizens are filled with the spirit of Christ, the government will be Christian also. The speaker quoted on this subject saying that the greatest enemy to Christianity was the spirit of nationalism. Christ came to make us one brothers, and our love for our own country should not lead us to forget that weak winners of His Kingdom which embraces all nations.

In closing Mr. Wight spoke of the price paid by the 600,000 Canadian soldiers who fought overseas to preserve our heritage, and asked now we as citizens were using the liberty they had won. He complimented the W.C.T.U. on what they were doing to promote good citizenship, and reminded them that responsibility rested on all citizens, but sin is a stumbling to any people.

Mrs. (Dr.) Moore, who occupied the chair in the absence of the President thanked Mr. Wight most cordially for his kindness, and after considerable business had been disposed of, the meeting adjourned.

GENERAL PROGRESS AT DUNDAS ST. MISSION

General progress has marked the activities of the Dundas Street Mission of the United Church for the nine months of the financial year just ended. About twenty new members have been added, making a total membership of 66.

The Sunday school raised $302 this year for ministerial support and approprated $470 for the new year. Forty-five dollars were raised for maintenance and extension fund.

The three Sunday Schools, Dundas Street, Rossmore and Centre Street, conducted each Sunday by R. J. Smith, A. Gerow, and Charles Elvins respectively. 150 children raised $200.

Rossmore congregation has done nobly in the past nine months in raising $195 for ministerial support and $205 for much needed church repairs.

Centre Street (Stoney Lonesome) sustained largely by Bridge Street Church, has become aroused and put her strength into the last nine months, raising $23 on Ministerial support, $30 insurance, $225 repairs, raising in all $309.

Sunday Street Church put on $80 repairs. The United Churches of the city conceived the plan of operating the three missions and got behind the idea.

WILL PROBE S-4 DISASTER

Washington, D.C., Jan. 21.—The three civilian experts picked by Curtis D. Wilbur, Secretary of the Navy, for appointment on the proposed presidential commission to investigate the S-4 submarine disaster, were named in the Senate today as John F. Stevens, of New York, president of the American Society of Civil Engineers; W. R. Whitney, of Schenectady, director of research of the General Electric Company, and Thomas A. Scott, a salvage expert.

JOHN ELLIOTT

The High School Trustees for the year of 1928 will be:—O. A. C. Wells, Colonel W. A. Ponton, Mr. John Elliott, Mr. H. W. Ackerman, Mrs. Boyes, Mr. G. P. Ostrom, Mrs. McFee, Mr. C. Cole, Mr. Anderson and Mr. Harvey. The chairmen of the trustees of the various public schools of the city will be:—

Queen Victoria—Mr. Fairbairn.
Ann Alexandra—Mr. Stillman.
Queen Mary—E. A. Geen.
King George—Don. G. Bleeker.
Non-resident Committee

The Nominating Committee was composed of—Col. W. J. Ponton, Mr. G. A. C. Weir, Mr. Don G. Bleeker, Mr. Wm. Harvey, Mr. Arthur Jones, Mr. Anderson, Mrs. McFee and Mr. Stillman.

Colonel W. N. Ponton moved the motion that John Elliott be the chairman of the Board for 1928 and Mr. G. A. C. Weir seconded it. The motion was received enthusiastically.

Miss Rous' report, School Nurse, as given to the local press was as follows:

During the month of December the communicable diseases were as follows: Whooping Cough 2; Mumps 1; Scarlet Fever 2, Measles 3, Diptheria 1.

Total number of eye conditions 2 and for skin conditions 1. Eight pupils had their tonsils removed. Dr. Clarke held four dental clinics at which 29 pupils were treated. Seventy pupils had their dental work completed by private dentists. Home visits made, 65; pupils treated in office, 31; health songs and talks and a prominent place on the programme of the Christmas concerts in the various schools.

Other Business

After the election of the various committees Colonel Ponton said he had been completed, regular business, which did not last long, was completed.

A discussion arose over the employment of local labour in the erection of the new Collegiate Institute. Several members of the Board arose and stated that complaints had been made to them that contractors that they had been "laid off" and that out of town labour was being employed in their place. After some discussion Mr. John Elliott stated—that the matter would be looked into immediately.

The Music

The question of music in the public schools arose at last night's meeting again. Colonel W. N. Ponton made a motion that the Music Committee be made a standing committee, which it has not been to date.

The Colonel also motioned that each pupil furnish his or her piano keyboard, and that the music lesson on 29 could a lesson, with a minimum of five lessons being taken. He also stated that provision should be given in the proper school days.

Mr. Cecil Wood began to look like the good old times during the hot fight for the new Collegiate Institute when he was author of instructors for the new method of teaching piano lessons on the key board and not before.

Colonel W. N. Ponton and Mr. Arthur Jones waxed warm in their arguments as to the desirability of Miss Wylda Palmer as an instructor. Colonel Ponton supported Miss Palmer's appointment, but Mr. Arthur Jones claimed that she had not had the experience to teach this subject. The matter was finally settled when Colonel Ponton moved the acceptance of Miss Palmer will issue the pest.

The next new face on the Board of Education last night was that of Mr. G. P. Ostrom. He, and Mr. Ed. Hall (Hallowell) will be the new chairmen, to his chair.

Hopper-Woodrow was read and either referred to the various committees or filed. An application for a teacher on the staff of the new Collegiate Institute was received and filed. Meeting was adjourned.

35-MILE GALE IN NEW YORK

Buffalo, N.Y., Jan. 21.—A gale from the west swept western New York today, bringing a 35-degree drop in temperature and a prospect of a still further drop tonight.

Although the wind this morning was blowing 52 miles an hour, no serious damage was reported. A temperature of eight degrees above zero was forecast for tonight.

Wheat is Steadier

Chicago, Jan. 21.—Unfavorable reports as to the Winter crop outlook for wheat tended to steady Chicago wheat values today after a sharp reverse. Export demand also was ascribed to Liverpool setbacks had set off prospects. Prices were generally opening unchanged to 3-8c off. Chicago wheat ranged a fraction and more above night quotations. Corn was easy, starting at 1-4 cents to 5-8 cents decline and subsequently.

CLOSING QUOTATIONS

STANDARD MINING EXCHANGE

Quotations by Homer L. Dawson & Co., per Jamieson Local manager.

The market was rather quiet this morning, and not much activity in prices. There was heavy buying in Hollinger, Howey, Teck, Keatens in preference, and Hollinger Corporation. Wright Hargreaves was firmer at 85 and Tread well Yukon was lower at 1-2c. Trades were 329 and somewhat restricted at late, sold up to 53¢ at the close today, and up to 52 1-2 at the noon recess. It is quite apparent that the interest for the present is in the Porcupine. Dome, Northern Manitoba and Sudbury district. The close at noon was as follows:

Ahama 330; Acanda 84; Argonaut 26 1-2; Amalgamated 50; Beaver 72; Bidgood 67; Bidgood 66; Barry Hollinger 102; Capitol Rouyn 14 1-2; Central Patricia 30; Dome 12.00; Federal Kirkland 73; Goldfish 50; Granada 28; Hollinger 17.75; Howey 1.53; Hargreaves 50.00; Wright Hargreaves 50.00; Wrights Hargreaves 50.00; Kirkland Lake 2.30; Bedford 60; Bidgood 164; Barry Hollinger 102; Capitol Rouyn 14 1-2; Central Patricia 30; Dome 12.00; Federal Kirkland 73; Goldfish 50; Granada 28; Hollinger 17.75; Howey 1.53; Hargreaves 50.00; Wright

MILADY NOT LACKING IN SELF-CONFIDENCE

By LOUIS E. BISCH

If women are anything at all, they are self-confident. Have you ever met a woman who would be willing to admit that she could not do a thing as well as some other woman?

I do not, of course, refer to statistically unusual stunts, such as trans-Atlantic flying. I refer to the ordinary pursuits in which all women are interested—housekeeping, cooking, dressmaking, millinery, child rearing, etc.

Nor do I mean that every woman believes she can absolutely excel in all of these activities. I mean that a woman believes that if she puts her mind to it, or had to, she would make good.

And they do make good at that! Seldom, if ever, does a woman fail if she really is interested and tries. It's her self-confidence backing up her innate ability that brings success.

One sometimes hears a woman say that she simply cannot do housework. What she should say is, "I don't like housework, therefore I cannot do it."

Even take an artistic pursuit, such as dressmaking or millinery. To be superior in such undertakings, training and practice are necessary. Nevertheless, any woman who really wants to can make a decent dress or trim a wearable hat. Here again, the motivation is self-confidence.

Self-confidence can and often does carry a woman almost anywhere she wishes. More often misunderstand and misinterpret women's self - confidence. They call it vanity and arrogance. Women do not assume this air of self-confidence, however. It is perfectly spontaneous and natural with them. They don't "put it on." They don't do it to show off.

And curiously too, women, with all this reliance upon their own opinions, are not only willing to take advice from men—they often seek it.

On the face of it this would seem a contradiction in a woman's make-up. If a woman is so sure of herself why should she ask help from man?

The point is that her self-confidence rests upon her ability in activities distinctly feminine. But when it comes to forming opinions about what, until rather recently, was considered masculine thinking and doing—politics, for instance; buying of property, making investments, etc.—the woman is not a keen judge and her self-confidence forsakes her.

However, as soon as a woman becomes familiar even with masculine types of pursuits—secretarial work, let us say—then the self-confidence rather soon asserts itself.

This self-confidence often carries with it a certain amount of obstinacy. If a woman makes up her mind to do a certain thing, or forms a certain opinion, nothing can shake her. Logic and reason will have very little influence upon her. Her self-confidence will withstand all arguments.

It is for this reason that women are often called unreasonable. It is also for the same reason that women have often accomplished what would be considered impossible.

Self-confidence also makes woman a more valuable ally of man and more efficient of a reform nature. If a woman believes in it she will become an unlikely worker, never daunted or discouraged by possible failure.

Self-confidence is likewise frequently displayed by women who fail in love. It is said that a woman can make any man fall in love with her if she wants to.

I am INCLINED to agree!

A SUITOR TOO MANY

By MILDRED BARBOUR

"I won't have it, Jack!" declared Lila. "I—you'll get me into serious trouble. If you persist in such nonsense."

"And I'm telling the truth — for once!" she thought grimly.

"I'm not sure that I wouldn't prefer that," answered Farquahar deliberately. "Then you'd have to take steps to free yourself from that other engagement, instead of stringing me along, as you're doing."

"If you're so little consideration for me and are so dissatisfied with things as they are, why don't you break our engagement?" asked Lila hopefully. This was the second time, since his return, that she had made such a suggestion.

He smiled ironically, and replied, as he had before:

"Not by a long shot, my dear. I consider you more than merely engaged to me. I hold that pledge almost as sacred as a marriage vow. And I'm not the sort who goes back on his word. I'll never give you up, and, if you try to make me do so, I'll go to your father with the whole story. And, before that, I'll send an announcement to the newspapers. I'm not going to let you make a fool of me, Lila."

She was aghast at the threat, but she managed to say faintly:

"I don't believe you love me a bit, Jack. I think it's only that you want your way. You can't bear to be a loser."

"You bet your life I can't — and won't!" he answered warmly.

Lila sighed resignedly. She wondered how long this farce—or tragedy, which ever it was to be—would go on. Could she endure much more? The suspense, the constant need for prevarications, for evasion, for downright falsehood, was telling on her frightfully.

It was that same afternoon, after Siddons had offered Farquahar to the door, that he returned to Lila.

"I trust that Madam has not forgotten that little matter of an increase in my salary," he suggested respectfully.

"I'll speak to Mr. Ware tonight," said Lila wearily.

She had little hope regarding the outcome, and her premonition was justified. Herbert declared flatly:

"It's raise? Ridiculous. The fellow is vastly overpaid as it is. Not another cent from me, and, if he doesn't like it, tell him he can get out."

That was the last thing Lila dared tell Siddons. She must get the money somehow.

CHAPTER 23

The Betraying Check

As usual in her moments of distress, Lila went to Dorothy with the story of Siddons' conduct.

"The wretched creature will rush directly to Herbert, if I don't manage it somehow," she declared desperately.

"Poor silverskin," suggested Dorothy. "Couldn't you scrimp a bit?"

Lila smiled wryly.

"I suppose I'll have to, but it's dreadful inconvenient, right now. I've ordered three gowns and a dream of a new hat from Madame Irene. You know the fancy what her bill is going to be! And I bought six Paris hats last week. I didn't in the least need them, but they were exclusive models and too delectable to resist. They've made a terrible dent in my monthly finances."

Dorothy laughed.

"No wonder poor father has refused to help with your bills when you ever draw your allowance. Really, Lila, you're financially incorrigible!"

"Oh, don't you scold, too!" said Lila petulantly.

Dorothy slipped her arm around her shoulders.

"Of course not, dear. And I'll help with the odious Siddons. I've some money saved up, and you're quite welcome to it. I don't need it."

"Dot, you're an angel!" declared Lila, kissing her. "But I feel like the lowest worm, borrowing from you. I feel like a worm most of the time nowadays," she added pensively.

"How are you getting along with Captain Farquahar?" asked Dorothy.

Lila made a wry face.

"Worse and worse. He's getting out of hand completely. I'm simply closing my eyes and waiting for the inevitable."

She sighed and slumped hopelessly in her chair, watching Dorothy put in a wash on a drawing.

"Dot, what do you think of him, really, since you talked to him that night?"

Dorothy bent low over her board.

"He seems very pleasant," she murmured.

"It was a queer twist of Fate—your having to meet him first, after all, when you'd once flatly refused," commented Lila.

Dorothy was silent.

"Well," Lila rose, with a yawn. "I'll be toddling along. It's such a nice day that I think I'll walk home. Dot, summer has come; you'd better be falling in love!"

To her amazement, vivid color flash ed into Dorothy's cheeks.

"Why, you little fraud!" cried Lila. "I believe you have some one in mind. You're blushing!"

Lila winked solemnly at her own reflection in the mirror.

"If you marry him, Dot, whoever he is," she said mischievously, from the doorway, "be sure you haven't a long, fiance flaunting around anywhere. Take my cue as a horrible example."

Despite her predicament in several directions, Lila's spirits lifted as she walked briskly down the avenue. The fragrance of summer was in the air. The soft blue of the sky was flecked with fluffy little white clouds scudding before a gentle wind. Flower venders displayed their wares at the corners; people looked gay and happy—not yet stifled by the heat that would soon be here. Life didn't seem cruel to her alive, even if existence had its precar ious moments.

She wasn't even disconcerted when she ran into Jack Farquahar not far from Sixty-fourth street.

"Going home?" he asked, falling into step beside her.

She considered for a fleeting moment. It might be a good idea to drop in and lunch with her father. Decided, it wouldn't do to let Farquahar walk with her to her own home. There was just a chance that Herbert might be coming home to lunch.

So she nodded brightly. "Good Heart girl! Going home to lunch with my Dad!"

He answered grimly: "I should say it was about time. In all the months that I've been around this neighborhood. I've never once seen you enter or leave your home."

"What do you mean by that?" she asked, startled.

He shrugged.

"Only that it seems a bit odd. And a bit un-daughterly, considering that your father, so you tell me, is danger ously ill."

"Perhaps," she hazarded hastily, "the reason you don't see me going in or out frequently is because I do stay home with Dad."

"I've been considering a way of finding out whether you do that," he told her calmly.

"Jack, you haven't the right!" she flashed. "You—"

"I believe, as your fiance, I have the right to telephone you at your home," he said ominously. "The only reason I haven't done so is because you elicited a promise from me. I ask you now to relieve me of that promise."

Lila's agitation was unbounded. She grasped wildly for some new excuse to keep him from telephoning her father's house and being, quite naturally, informed that Miss Latham was now Mrs Ware and had a new telephone address.

It was unfortunate that, in her panic her fingers relaxed their hold on her hand-bag. It fell to the pavement, and Farquahar stooped to retrieve it. The clasp of the frivolous little bag had opened and the contents spilled up on the sidewalk.

Advice to Girls

By Anne Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a boy in my teens and have been going with a girl one year my senior.

When I am with her in the evenings she acts as if I am the only one she cares for, but during the day at school she ignores me in the presence of her minor acquaintances, and of course this is very embarrassing for me, as it is noticeable by many of my friends.

BOYFRIEND.

BOYFRIEND: I would suggest that to avoid future embarrassment, you have a talk with this girl and determine just what her attitude is. If she is sincere and desirous of your friendship, her actions in the presence of others are inexcusably rude. If she is but superficially interested in you, you would do well to cease to be concerned about her. You are too young to be seriously affected by any girl and I would advise you not to attach too much importance to her friendship. Have a talk with her and clear up this situation to your mutual satisfaction.

One way to prevent sealskeins is to remain on shore.

HALF THE ENJOYMENT OF ANY PARTY

lies in the knowledge that one is looking his or her best. And that knowledge can only be yours when you have enjoyed the services of the best in Dry Cleaning.

Modern Service is recognized by discriminating people as the one which thoroughly satisfies, made possible by the use of the most up-to-date equipment and a skillful staff. It's the service you're seeking.

And, by the way, after the party, send that frock or suit immediately to be cleaned. It can be more easily and better cleaned then than later on.

WHAT'S NEW

(From a Woman's Standpoint)

Imported novelty tweeds are being shown in smart shadow tones.

Palm Beach reports that white lace mitts or falletta is liked for the evening gown and if none of these appeals to your taste satin is in high favor.

capelet backs, capelet boleros and bolero tbones caught in at one side over tinue as accepted modes for the dress makers show them in many new ways and in the stiffer media.

Much bead work is used this spring applied in horizontal lines, and also applied in round scroll designs, making yokes, cuffs and skirt sections.

BY-LAW NO.

A BY-LAW TO CHANGE THE NAME OF "WHARF STREET" IN THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE.

Passed the ..... day of ..... A. D. 192

WHEREAS, the residents of Foster Ward have presented a Petition to the Municipal Council, requesting a change in the name of Wharf Street in the City of Belleville to St. Paul Street AND WHEREAS, it is deemed expedient for various reasons to change the name of Wharf Street in the City of Belleville.

THEREFORE the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville ENACTS as follows:—

1. THAT the name of "Wharf Street" which Street extends Easterly from Front Street to the intersection of South Power Avenue in the said City, is hereby changed to St. Paul Street, by which latter name it will for the future be known, the reason for the change being that the present name "Wharf Street" is a misnomer as no person of not leading to the wharf and also St. Paul is the name of a very old Street in the said City, and also the change is desired by the property owners and the inhabitants who reside along the said street and also desired by the citizens generally.

2. THAT this By-law shall come into force and take effect from the date of the registration thereof in the Registry County Judge of the County of Hastings approving of the same and not before.

Mayor.

Mayor.

Clerk.

Read a first time in open Council, January 3rd, A.D., 1928.

J. Wilfred Holmes,
City Clerk.

IN THE MATTER OF the change of the name of Wharf Street in the City of Belleville to St. Paul Street.

Before His Honour J. F. Wills, Judge of the County of Hastings.

APPOINTMENT.

UPON THE APPLICATION of the Municipality of the City of Belleville and upon reading the foregoing By-Law, pursuant to Statute in that behalf.

I appoint Tuesday the 7th day of February 1928, at the hour of 11 o'clock in the forenoon at my Chambers at the Court House, Belleville, for consideration the said By-Law and for hearing the objections of the Corporation and those who may deem themselves aggrieved thereby and may desire to be heard.

Dated at my Chambers at the Court House in the City of Belleville this 4th day of January A.D. 1928.

J. F. Wills,
Judge.

PANTOMIMES ARE OVER 100 MARK!

In Great Britain Many Produced During Holiday Season

London.—There were more than 100 pantomimes performed in Great Britain during the recent holiday season. That shows how strongly this form of entertainment is entrenched in the popular mind. Its roots go back very far, and probably few people taking part in the rollicking shows at the Christmas season realize that they are distinctive survivals of an old Roman feast.

This was the feast of Saturn, held annually on Dec. 13. It was one great day in the year when the slaves of those times were allowed their liberty a privilege which permitted them to buffet their masters and rulers with almost as much abandon as the funny men on the pantomime stage buffet each other today.

There are scores of different pantomimes, but none popular to-day is as old as the well known as "Cinderella." It is stated that there are something like three score of the favorite stories and the children are familiar with it, in some form or other, in almost every part of the world. Even Americans know the little Cinder-girl as the "Enchanted Slipper" in a "Fairy Tale" Scandinavia she is called the "Cinder Brat" whilst the Russians have preferred to immortalize her as "Cinderella" based on her nose."

"Dick Whittington in the Wood" first made its appearance in London some 500 years ago and it seems to be of Italian origin; but the most popular pantomime is nothing compared with "Red Riding Hood" for this old story can be traced back to the days of Nero—some 2,000 years ago.

"Puss in Boots" was written by a person named Straparola, and first appeared in an old volume of tales called "The Sleeping Beauty," hails from Bagdad, and was first introduced into this country by Charles Perault.

JUDICIAL SALE

In the Supreme Court of Ontario

Purdy v. Deamsey.

Pursuant to a Judgment of the above Court in this cause, there will be offered for sale at the office of the Local Master, in the Court House, Belleville, on Wednesday the 8th day of February, A. D. 1928, at 2 p.m. the following lands and premises, consisting of 40 acres more or less, situate on lot 35 acres which are orchard, being parts of the South part of Lots 13 and 14, and the South part of the West half of Lot 15, in the Third Concession of the Township of Murray, in the County of Northumberland.

Upon the said premises there is a frame house and barn.

The purchaser will pay 10% of the purchase money by way of deposit at the time of sale, the residue of the purchase money to be paid, without interest, within 15 days from the date of sale. In all other respects the terms and conditions of sale will be the standing conditions of sale of the Supreme Court of Ontario.

For further particulars apply to Mikel Alford, Barristers, Trenton, and Belleville, or H. J. Smith Esq., Barrister, Trenton.

Dated at Belleville this 11th day of January, 1928.

News Of Movie Regent Theatre

New blood, new ideas, fresh viewpoints. These are the things that Adolphe Menjou believes are vital to the future development of motion pictures.

The famous Paramount star's most latest comedy "Service for Ladies" comes to the Regent Theatre Monday is never so happy as when he is surrounded by new blood, people with fresh ideas.

In his current production is illustrated Menjou's views on this subject. The director, Harry D'Abbadie D'Arrast, makes his bow as a full-fledged Paramount director with "Service for Ladies." It is the first directorial achievement in which he has handled the megaphone exclusively.

Kathryn Carver, playing the leading feminine role, is a Menjou discovery. She makes her debut as a leading woman in this picture. Others in the cast are Lawrence Grant and Charles Lane.

Women Who Are Weak

Gain New Vitality by Building Up the Blood

There are many women who pass their days in a constant state of weariness. They have barely sufficient energy to enable them to perform their manifold duties. Often they have an aching head, a miserable pain in the back, and limbs that feel as heavy as lead. The whole trouble is due to tiredness. No woman need suffer in this way. It is easy to obtain a supply of rich red blood by using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The new blood created by these pills rapidly builds up the entire system; headaches and backaches disappear, energy returns and the joy of living is felt once more.

Proof of these statements is given by Mrs. Ed. Lavoy, Stoney Point, Ont., who says:—"For a long time I had been in a very miserable condition, always feeling tired out, sleepy and weak. My last work about the house would leave me helplessly tired and nothing that I did seemed to give relief. Believing that a rest might do good, we moved to town, but, contrary to expectations, instead of getting better I was growing steadily weaker. One day while talking to a neighbor, she urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, telling me that her daughter had been in a similar condition much like mine. This persuaded me to try this medicine, and I have much reason to be grateful that I followed her advice. After the use of a few boxes of the pills, there could no longer be any doubt that they were helping me, and as I continued their use my health and strength came back and now I can do all my own work and feeling in the most thankful that this splendid medicine I must give my thanks to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

The pills are sold by all druggists, or you can get them by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Motherhood!

Peterboro, Ont.—"Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was very beneficial to me. I had become all run down, tired, nervous and miserable, had no appetite and my nerves were all upset. I saw the 'Prescription' advertised as being helpful to expectant mothers so I decided to try it. It built me up, restored my nerves, gave me an appetite and I got along for the remainder of the time was able to do all my own work. I had comparatively no suffering, and my baby was fine, strong and healthy."—Mrs. Lottie Mattney, 501 Townsend St.

FRANKFORD

Frankford lost another game in the Trent Valley League last evening, the latter combination defeating their makers 4-2. It was a bang-up game and the rink was packed for the life. This is Frankford's first year in an organized league and the team is doing exceptionally well. Lost of the Mudoc players were experienced, having played for several years, while the home team were at a disadvantage in this respect. The visitors displayed a better combination throughout but Frankford, had they continued to play as they started, might have annexed the verdict. Shirley team is leading the Trent Valley league at present. Stan Brewerton of Belleville refereed last night's game. The line-up:

Frankford—Goal, Lloyd; defence, Mahaffy and Dolan; centre, Hamilton; Munn; wings, Pillon and Lawrence, subs, A. Munn and Symons.

Mudoc—Goal, Shalliday; defence, Rupert and Henderson; centre, McDonnell; wings, Watson and Monet, subs. Brady and Whitman.

Don't dose a Child's Cold

CONTINUAL dosing upsets children's delicate stomachs. Vicks is applied externally and therefore cannot disturb digestion. It acts in two ways:

(1) The body heat releases the ingredients in the form of vapors which are inhaled.

(2) At the same time Vicks "draws out" the soreness like a poultice.

SINICAL SADIE SEE S

EXPERT ADVICE

Elmer, thirteen, was puzzled over the girl problem and discussed it with his pals, Joe.

"I've walked to school with her three times," he told Joe, "and carried her books. I bought her her ice-cream soda twice. Now, do you think I ought to kiss her?"

"Naw, you don't need to," Joe decided after a moment of deep thought. "You're done enough for that girl already."

Sinical Sadie says the only people interested in Leap Year are the pedestrians.

The whole nation would profit if Bill Thompson got the idea that crooks and gunmen are British propagands.

A Hibernian and a Highlander were arguing as to the merits of their respective countries. "Ah, weed," said Sandy, "they tove down an auld castle in Scotland, and found many wires under it, which shows that the telegraph was known there a hundred years ago!" "Well," replied Pat, "they tore down an auld castle in Cireland, and there was no wires found under it, which shows that they knew all about wireless telegraph in Cireland hundreds av years ago!"

NOT SO EASY

By James J. Montague

Long years ago I learned to see
The needs in their appointed places,
And smiled to see the plantings show
Within a week their cheery faces.
But when they withered over night,
I learned that I could never grow 'em
Unless I toiled with main and might
To hoe 'em.

Next season I attained this art,
I hoed the things through sun and shower,
And with a glad and hopeful heart
I watched them come to perfect flower.
But lo, they drooped upon the dirt
And I, in each season growing wiser,
Discovered that they needed fertilizer

I fertilized the following year,
And my tomatoes, I remember,
Thrived healthily and flourished clear
Until the fifteenth of September.
Then bugs swept down upon the lot
And I was powerless to stay 'em;
They ate my plants, for I'd forgot
To spray 'em.

There's always something I forget.
Each year I've toiled and mooled and panted
Around that garden patch, and yet
I've never reaped where I have planted.
I think perhaps the soil might give
A fair return from my endeavor
If I could find some way to live Forever.

An English policeman recently stopped traffic to allow a duck to lay an egg in the middle of the street. The egg and duck were then rescued.

Infant Care

No mother in this enlightened age would give her baby something she did not know was perfectly harmless and reliable, especially when a few drops of plain Castoria will right a baby's stomach and end almost any little ill throughout the system. Prettiness and fever, too; it seems no time until everything is serene.

That's the beauty of Castoria: its genius influences seem just what is needed. It does all that castor oil might accomplish, and without shock to the system. Without the evil taste. Castoria is delicious! Your own tongue will tell you why "Children Cry for It." Being purely vegetable, you can give it as often as there's the least sign of colic, constipation; diarrhea. Or whenever there's need to aid sound, natural sleep.

Only one word of warning: the above is true of genuine Castoria! Fletcher's is the original! Other preparations may or may not be as pure, as

JUST IN PASSING

If I could be a gipsy-boy and have a caravan,
I'd travel all the worst, a would, before I was a man;
We'd never spend the far blue hills—us two, my horse and me—
And on 'em all on end on and on until we reached the sea."

Pacing for commercial advertising is one of the latest professions as real photographs are rapidly supplanting the sketches formerly used for the figures in advertisements. An "advertising personality" is now almost as valuable as a "film face." Many of the professional models are theatrical people of course but most of them are persons in the ordinary walks of life. Some people go in for certain "types" which are entirely opposite to the roles they play in real life. The fare seen in settlement of an English cigarette belongs to a country vicar.

Strange were the "cures" adopted for the sick in old times, and that they got well and died in some cases that they did not die from them, may be attributed partly to faith than to anything else. Dr. John Dee, the famous, sixteenth century magician who was consulted on every difficult occasion by Queen Elizabeth, cured himself of an attack of the stone in this way:—

"I drank a draught of white wine and salet oyle and after that orabe eyes in powder with the bone in the crabs head. . . . I did eat toasted cake but of orange."

Sir Henry Slingsby, who lived in the reign of Charles I., describes his experiences when his wife was ill. She could not get the doctors to agree about her, and with all their elaborate remedies including "hot beer as mealo," there was no improvement. He goes in for fashionable doctor of the day who "doth not a little brag" and "aids you of his 50 pounds sterling, and 100 pounds sterling cures" and finally consults the King's Physicians—"which indeed made him more ontely to deal withal." But it was all of no avail, and his wife died.

Lord Warrinton, a Scot, at about the same period regarded his illness from the point of view of punishments from God. So when he finds "my conscience rambling," he says "the Lord's will be done." He was a vegetarian, because he found when he left it that it "filled all his brain with phantasies" and was apt to cause "hot bilious and melancholick humeurs."

When Klas Annebe, the seventeenth century Swedish antiquary, was ill he hung three spiders about his neck, believing that they would cure him. In the seventeenth century Sir Richard Newdrate has a simple cure for tooth ache. "Touch the pained chamber rod with sack" and for a dizziness in one's head, . . . I did privately eat two bits of toast."

Let Me Tell You

Five lumps of sugar weigh about an ounce.

To clean a permabulator hood occasionally with boot polish will improve its appearance and prevent it cracking.

Shoes that slip at the heel can be remedied by placing a shaped piece of velvet to the inside of the heel.

Cloths should be taken from the line as soon as possible after they are dry. They are likely to become too stiff if left out longer than necessary.

For cleaning the top of a kitchen stove use a blackboard eraser. It is much more satisfactory than a cloth and keeps the hands from becoming soiled.

When removing fruit stains from table linen hold the cloth in embroidery hoops. In this way it is easy to keep it in place over a bowl while pouring the boiling water directly onto the stain.

To keep the molding board from slipping when it is used on a perfectly smooth table or cabinet, place a damp cloth under it. The same idea can be used with a mixing bowl.

When covering a kitchen table with oilcloth, stretch the material smoothly over the edges and fasten on the under side with gummed tape. The method is quick, the wood is not marred and the cloth can be easily removed at any time.

The waxed paper in which baked bread is wrapped is excellent for wiping off the steel top of a range. The paraffin helps to keep the metal in good condition.

When making fruit cake, colored cupp drops, cut in pieces, will answer as a substitute for candied lemon peel and citron. The bits of color add to the attractiveness of the slices of cake.

Peanut butter makes a delicious shortening for gingerbread. Use it in the same proportions as other shortening.

When washing sweaters, sew up the underarm seams. This will prevent their being stretched out of shape.

A Good Complexion

No one has a fine, clear face, and one way to prevent this is to wash your face each morning in cold water, in which a little oatmeal has been soaking over-night—a heaped teaspoonful to about a quart of water. This skin is better than the constant use of powder, for however good a kind this may be, its effect is to close up the pores of the skin, a very undesirable thing for anyone who aims at a good, fresh complexion.

EMERGENCY SHELF IS ADVOCATED

Every efficient housewife should have a well-stocked emergency shelf, because none of us know when an unexpected guest may arrive. In planning the foods for this shelf be sure they consist of variety.

An adequate emergency shelf does not consist of a lot of cans of meat, vegetables, fruits, cookies and sweets. You may have a great many varieties to serve as many guests as may drop in, but you have not planned consider how much time you will spend in their preparation?

The foods you should have in reserve are those which can be turned quickly into an appetizing, well-cooked lunch or meal.

In the first place an emergency shelf consists of ribbity meats and fish. Select canned goods that embrace a whole meal such as soups, salads, meats, vegetables, macaroni or spaghetti and deserts. Serve foods which go well together, and see that the meal does not have the look of a hastily canned meal.

Always have on hand a supply of cans, milk, cheese, etc. Then in a few minutes a main dish can be quickly prepared. If you are short on bread always have plenty of flour and shortening and a quick bread can be easily prepared. There is never an unexpected guest who will not relish hot biscuits or muffins.

There are many sandwich spreads on the market and something of this nature may be used for a hasty lunch or on afternoon or evening for a game of bridge. Then sandwiches and coffee can be served. Mayonnaise salad dressing is a good emergency to go and should be always at hand.

Fresh fruits are a necessity. Everyone enjoys them served for a dessert or in a salad, and who doesn't like apples between meals. Remember "an apple a day keeps the doctor away."

According to British dietitians, the perfect square meal consists of cold chicken and egg sauce, new potatoes, corn flour mold, fruit salad with cream, whole wheat bread, butter and lemonade.

Red Cherry Sponge

3-4 cup gelatine, 1-cup cold water, 7 cups hot water, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup lemon juice, 1 cup red cherries.

Soak the gelatine in cold water five minutes. Drain juice from cherries, and bring to boiling point. Pour over gelatine, and when dissolved add the cherries. Allow to cool and when just beginning to thicken, fold in the stiffly beaten egg white. Mold in individual dishes and chill. Serve garnished with a yellow or soft custard made from the leaves of the yolks.

WHEN TO DRINK

The great objection of drinking at meals, says Sir Bruce Bruce-Porter, is that the fluid is used to save digestion and for many people the best time to drink would be an hour before meals. But this is no reason that it is so often given a nbis after. Drink, therefore, a the end of a meal. In the advice of the famous physician; and where th, work is hard and sweating. Rest the eye points out the glass of light beer with a meal, or at night with a friend, will not shorten life, but though the bulk of beer is water, it does not take the place of water as a correct of waste from the body.

Keep Your Appetite Young

If the things you used to like disagree with you, take a tablet of Pape' Diapepsin and in five minutes you can note the excess acid in the stomach, sweetens your food, and digests it. The misery caused by indigestion goes; healthy tissue and blood; you gain weight and strength, and with that comes a healthy, youthful color.

Thousands of people who suffered from stomach trouble for years, praise Pape's Diapepsin for their good health and young appetite. They can now eat anything they want. That's why 5 million packages are used a year.

Any druggist will supply you with Pape's Diapepsin, because it is indispensable in every home.

Poems Old And New

EDGE OF LIFE

When the world is lost and nothing is left, and fortune has cut her hand,
Grant me then but a few frail gifts to take to the Unknown Land!
Let me hold the curve of the moon in my hand, and smell the scents of dawn,
And see the mist-blue splash on the hills where the bluebell buds are born.
Let me hear the wind come home through the trees, when the night is swift and young.
Let feel the silence that gardens know when the blackbird's song is sung.
Oh, grant me memories clean and fair to take to the Unknown Land.
When the world is lost, and nothing is left, and Death holds out her hand!

—M.D.T.

A BALLADE OF MR. SAMUEL PEPYS

(Reprinted for Mr. James B. Pagan, author of "Sweets to Bed")

"Up, to the office, and there till four;
"Up, to the office, and to the play."
Thus Mr. Pepys in the years of yore.
This is the sum of his earthly day.
Early he rose, or long he lay:

"Up to the office—and so to bed."

Donned his stockings and ate his bread.
Went to court in a splendid shay . . .
"Up, to the office . . . and so to bed."

"Saw the ships as they left the shore";
"Met with Nelly . . . my wife distrait";
"Kissed Mrs. Knipp . . . but I vowed no more."
This is the sum of his earthly day.
"Up to church for an hour, to pray;
So to a barber's who trimmed my head.
Met with Mercer, who sold me nay.
"Up, to the office . . . and so to bed."

"Donned my surtout I had never wore
So to the office, accounts to pay.
Met Mrs. Nell, which I do declare."
This is the sum of his earthly day.
"So to the playhouse, and thence away
Home, and a volume of Porter's read.
Played my flute, and was merry and gay . . .
"Up, to the office . . . and so to bed."

ENVOI

Gather ye rosebuds while ye may—
This is the sum of his earthly day;
And, when the whole of it's done and said,
"Up to the office . . . and so to bed."

TYPOGRAPHICALLY WRONG BUT TRUE

Hamilton, Ont. — "Once in a while" says The Hamilton Herald, "a typographical error does a newspaper a blunder into a truth. That happened to our clever reporter, Miss St. Caldwell, handed the other day. Somebody had written to the information department asking the name of the First of England, and this was the concluding sentence of the reply: 'He was crowned King of England in 1603, and thus Scotland and England came under the rule of one king.' By a transposition of the first and last letters of the word, James Stuart, was transformed into Janes Tuart, a spectacle, we confess, to make any Scot blush. In a subsequent issue The Herald printed a full, plenitude called for, and handsomely apologized to James for the indignity it had sustained at the hands of Caldwell. "But the error was a happy one" The Herald continues. "If ever there was a crowned king, it was that same James Stuart. The word pink does not appear to be familiar to our lexicographers, but it is a very good word for all that. It means a person of un genuh manners and appearance, not endowed with much common sense. James the First was all that. His great contemporary, Henry the Fourth of France, called him 'the most learned fool in Christendom.' Miss St. Caldwell's erring compositor was not so very far wrong, after all."

MUSSOLINI'S EYES

Sir Frank Fox gives an interesting personal impression of Mussolini in his recent book, "Italy To-day."

"The appearance in public of Il Duce becoming rare of late owing to the frequent attempts on his life—are arranged with some eye to dramatic effect; and his peerless dash," he writes. "A secretary opened a door and disappeared. I was on the threshold of a vast four-roure room, in which a centurion, could range his men to join their Legion, the walls, ceiling, and floor glowing with the rich, sedate decoration of opulent and waverer. The chair, her seemed at first quite empty, and, as is car corner—a day's journey away! —there came to sight a desk of rosewood, and behind it two luminous eyes.

"I walk up towards those eyes was in progress a little intimidation. I confidered pursuee with the thought that he mercifully imposed. So vast exacts was an artifice of stage management.

"Mussolini swept away this idea of artifice by rising and coming to the middle of the room to meet me. After all, I the did not have to look up to those eyes. For a moment I forgot him to note his characteristic method of offering his hand. It seemed at once cordial and wary—in say, 'I am minded to meet you as a friend, but if when you come, near, you do not seem to be a friend, I have you at arm's length, and I am a powerful man.'

Facing the Dictator

Mussolini approached Sir Frank Fox with a hand outstretched straight forward from the shoulder somewhat in the attitude of a workman in the act of throwing a stone. TAILORESS JOBS GIVE POOR PAY

Judge Censures Factory Owner For Wage Business In Ruin

London (By C.P.)—Commenting at Clerkenwell Court on the wages of a tailoress, Magistrate Friend said:

"I never knew that in this country such a state of affairs existed. If this is what the tailoring trade is like, the sooner here is some rad inquiry the better. It seems to me a most glaring instance of the worst type of sweated labor."

The registrar was hearing a case in which Olive Sheikh, a young machinist, sued Albert Moqid, maker of women's tailored garments, at Soho Green, for £1, 3s, in respect of work done. Mr. Moont's manager said some of the girl's work was not satisfactory. Alterations had to be allowed for, and the deductions made were according to the rules of the trade.

The girl replied that nothing was said to her about being liable for alterations or about garments requiring alteration until she went for her wages.

The manager said it should not have to be altered. The girl left without notice.

The magistrate: "She is a piece-worker and notice is not necessary. How much money do the 18 garments represent?"

The Manager: "Twenty-five shillings."

The magistrate, "Then it might be that at the end of the week she might owe you a bit of money. Why does she have to pay for her own threads?"

"It is a rule of the trade," said the manager, who explained further, that the girl had to pay for her sewing.

The magistrate: "That is a nice state of affairs. You are getting some thing out of them. Do you mean to say that in the tailoring trade the machinist who makes up the garments pays for he thread?"

The manager: "Yes."

The magistrate: "It is a curious case of affairs that in the trade a girl earning 30 shillings a week is expected to pay for part of the materials. I hope this will be noted by the proper authorities, and I hope, it will be stopped."

Giving judgment for Miss Shellitt, the magistrate said a more disgusting defence he had never heard.

CARRIED WIFE TO BED

Suffered So She Could Not Walk. Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Minesing, Ontario.—"I am a practical nurse and I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to suffering women. For three months I was almost helpless and could not sit at the table long enough to drink a cup of tea. Many a time my husband carried me to bed. I suffered so weak. When he read in the paper of a woman suffering as I did who got better after taking the Vegetable Compound, so he went and got it for me. When I had taken three bottles I was just like a new woman and have had splendid health ever since. When I feel tired and run down pains I always take it; sometimes a half bottle or whatever I need. It is my only medicine and I have let many to one about it. You may publish what I know more about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I will gladly write to her. I do all I can for it. I recommend it for I feel I owe my life and strength to it."—Mrs. Nicol Bowman, R.R. 1, Minesing, Ontario.

Do you feel broken-down, nervous and weak sometimes? Do you have this horrid feeling of fear at times sometimes even women when they are not well? Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is excellent to take at such a time. It always helps, and if taken regularly and persistently will relieve this condition.

WASH POISON FROM KIDNEYS

Drink Water All Day Long and Take Salts if Your Back Hurts.

Kidney and bladder irritations often result from acidity, says a noted authority. The kidneys help filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it may remain to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread; the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is often one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Begin drinking lots of soft water, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast. Continue this for two or three days. This will help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normal again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by acid irritation. Jad Salts causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia water drink which may quickly relieve your bladder irritation. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

POLICE CAR IN THRILLING CHASE

Scotland Yard's Flying Van Tore After Thieves' Truck

London, Eng.—A Scotland Yard Flying Squad wireless van returning from a cruising expedition in North London recently figured in a thrilling chase after a stolen van through miles of congested streets. The stolen van, which was recovered, contained $1,500 worth of gowns belonging to J. H. Shaw, robe manufacturer, Bow Road. E. A man was taken to the police station charged with the theft of the van and gowns.

The "cruiser's" part in the chase was purely accidental. It happened to be passing and was hailed by the owner of the stolen van who was giving chase on foot and who did not know that it was a police van.

"I left my van outside a costumer's in Holloway road," Thomas Spencer, of Vanstittart Road, Forest Gate, the owner, told the "Daily News." "I went across the street to have a cup of tea, and while I was away I heard the engine starting and saw my van move away with two men in it. I gave chase but it outstripped me.

"When I heard another van approaching from behind and turned and hailed it. It stopped at once. I clambered aboard and found it was a Flying Squad wireless van, in charge of Ins. Heath.

"It gave chase at full speed. The disguised men dodged in and out of side streets. At one point we lost the van. We hunted around until I recognized its tire marks again. We followed these tracks and surprised the men by appearing suddenly at their tail.

"They shot off at full speed, with the wireless van close behind it. They apparently thought they could shake off the big Flying Squad car by taking turnings but we hung on. We carried the van in a side street and forced it on to the pavement. Even then the men were not beaten and, as we closed in, the driver tacked sharply and twisted round and slipped past us.

What Doctors Think of the Laxative Habit

In all history, no Indian was ever known to have constipation. Nor need YOU. He chewed the bark of a tree called cascara. Today, we have the candy cascarat.

Cascarating the bowels never forms a laxative habit. If already formed, an occasional cascaret will usually break the habit. For cascara strengthens the muscular walls of the bowels, and their need of any aid at all grows constantly less. What called cathartic has this characteristic? The writer knows of none.

An evacuation brought gently about by cascara will, nine times in ten, be followed by full functioning of the bowels on the morrow—and for days after. For there is NO REACTION as with sickening salts, or any of the man-made purgatives that go through one's system like a bullet.

CRITICIZES THE FRENCH - CANUCK

For Poorness Of His Literature—Needs New Ideas

Montreal, Que. (By C.P.)—French-Canadian literature of today lacks individuality and distinctiveness because of the mis directed training of the writers and the absence of publishing facilities. The prose produced by Canadian authors using the French language is weak and lifeless, while the verse is even more feeble, according to a well-known Montreal critic who has been endeavoring for several years to instil more vigorous spirit into his race. This pessimistic commentator does not prophesy any chance for the better until the remainders and universities of the Province of Quebec modernize their methods of instruction in literary style.

"Fifty years ago there were a few French-Canadian writers possessed of vigorous style and dependable taste," he remarked recently. "They wrote lucidly of the life going on around them and laid the foundation for a racial literature.

"But the young men who came after them, the men who are writing and publishing today, have lost that strength and assurance. They totally lack the power of selection—the ability to choose from the vast amount of material at hand that which is harmonious with and necessary to their themes, abandon the rest.

"Many of them possess what they believe to be a sound literary education, having been drilled in the classics. They have studied Molière and Racine, but believe they are called to write plays—in the style of Molière. Consequently, they make no progress and their books are worthless from an artistic standpoint.

Contemporary French-Canadian authors are for the most part newspaper men, the critic pointed out, and their books are merely specimens of flowery journalism. They devote pages to descriptions of natural scenery, descriptions devoid of imagination and having no bearing upon the movement of their stories. Action and character work are handled in the same unsatisfactorily manner. As an example, the literature referred to the humanitarian word pictures of the Grippe country and the St. Lawrence Valley. French-Canadian novel contains such description and in each the same time-worn adjectives are utilized. There is no endeavor to present original environment and human drama.

"Before an author can produce vital work he must learn to criticize," continued the speaker. "He must know the literary value of his input from his imagination. This cannot be done without intelligent instruction. That is the important requisite which our literature lacks."

Turning to the matter of securing a publisher for a book written in French, he pointed out that, while there were a few houses in Canada ready to publish cheap editions of popular novels, a work of true literary quality could not find a publisher.

French-Canadians are urged to buy the works of their own authors. Once clothed they try the experiment but, finding the fare insipid return to the writings of the modern French authors.

Sour Stomach

Sweetened instantly

Just a tasteful dose of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in water. That is an alkali effective, yet harmless. It has been the standard anti acid for 50 years, among physicians everywhere. One spoonful will neutralize at once many times its volume in acid. It is the right way, the quick, pleasant and efficient way to kill the excess acid. The stomach becomes sweet, the pain departs. You are happy again in five minutes.

Don't depend on crude methods. Employ the best way yet evolved in all the years of searching. That is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any druggists.

Swollen Veins

Physicians tell us cascara is the ideal laxative—the tongue tells us candy cascarets are its ideal form. At least a million people know this; what a pity there are not a billion! Especially parents; because children love to take a cascaret. After which, for days-on-end, the bowels will be seen to work of their own accord.

The only habit from cascara is that of regularity! Cascarets tone and train the bowels. But at the first sign of returning sluggishness another cascaret is as effective as the first.

There isn't a druggist who hasn't cascarets, so WHY experiment with laxatives?

THREE BIG EVENTS OF YEAR JUST PAST

London, (By The Canadian Press)—Sir John Lavery, R. A., noted British painter, asked as to what in his opinion, were the three outstanding achievements of 1927, replied as follows:

"I think that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's flight of the Atlantic is the greatest artistic achievement of 1927. It has by its superlative perfection passed beyond the realms of the merely scientific and has entered into the province of the ideal, which is art. In the realm of painting and of sculpture I would choose the election of Mrs. Laura Knight (wife of Harold Knight), the artists, as an A.R.A., because it is a landmark in the recognition of women painters, and Jacob Epstein's figure of the Madonna because it is the only thing I can recall in a particular by dull year of art.

A SNAPPY AD

A friend said "You should write a snappy ad on Quebec—The Chateau"

He had been there and come back too full for words. He raved about the gay lights and bright crowds, the dances and dancing, the dinners. The Frontenac, but he said "Don't forget the Snow, the Sleighs, The Slides the Skating, the Snowshoeing, the Sunshine, the Skating—oh! what a glorious resort is Quebec in Winter."

KINGSTON CLEARLY OUT-CLASSED MAROONS TO WIN BY 6-3 SCORE

Frontenac Team Superior In Every Department—Locals Ineffective

By S. R. C.

Displaying a marked ability in every department that stamps them as leading contenders for the group title the Kingston Frontenacs disposed of the Belleville Maroons before a fair crowd at the arena last evening by a score of 6-3. The visitors bore a distinct edge throughout and with the exception of the first ten minutes of the third period Belleville team were clearly out-classed. During this time the locals pressed hard scored two goals and threatened to tie up the fixture but Kingston recovered themselves and bagged two more before the period ended.

Belleville lacked the scoring punch that characterized the Kingston play and they had several pretty chances to drive the rubber home through erratic work by the forwards. The first two periods produced only mediocre hockey but some real fast work was dished up in the third period when Belleville out-scored the winners 3-2. The Frontenacs were leading 4-0 at the end of the middle chukker and from all appearances had the tilt sailed away but the fighting Belleville team came back with a dashing attack that left the visitors bewildered for a time.

The best team won. They showed a more systematic form of attack as well as a nice defensive line and had it not been for the pretty work of Bowen they would have went into an early lead in the first period. The local custodian coolly turned aside shot after shot in the initial stanza and the Kingston forwards were visually discouraged in their attempt to dinge the mesh.

Belleville have now lost two games while the Limestoners are sitting pretty with only one reverse that at the hands of Queen's and it begins to look as though these two will meet for the honors of the district. Queens are still on top of the loop following their latest win over the Brockville team last night.

The Maroons have been handicapped by the lack of ice and it was here that the Kingston team had the advantage as the locals have been on skates not more than a dozen times at the rink side. The crying need of an artificial ice rink was never more clearly shown than last night.

The ice was the fastest sheet provided by Manager Cur Arnott this year in fact it was equally as good as any artificial surface but despite this fact there was a tendency to rough it at times and for the most part it was unnecessary. There is still that friction between these two clubs that cannot be overcome. It has existed many years and is evident every time that the two meet. Not one team, but both were responsible although Belleville received the major of penalties. Green visited the house-gow on three separate occasions. Referee Stan Burgoyne handled a perfect game and there was little to escape his eye. Every offender was promptly despatched to the timers box and players could not get away with a three-inch off-side.

Bowen's Good Work

There were few outstanding players on either team. Bowen turned in a marvellous game in the nets and although six beat him he turned aside dozens that were on the goal. He is cool and collected under fire and his work throughout the season has border ed on the sensational variety.

Dave Whalen was the all-same hard worker on the wing and gave Bellringer a merry session. Whalen's one goal was a mid-ship shot that caught the upper right-hand corner of the net. He never stopped trying and along the boards he was especially effective.

Johnny Hibbard who returned after a recent illness was shaking miles but hard-luck robbed him of at least one counter when he beat the defence only to have Brooks leave the net to make life save.

Weir was the same old hornet over on right wing and kept the veteran Joe Smith pretty well lashed to the mast which is a task in itself as the Kingston player has plenty of good hockey in his system, yet.

Hage'man who was shifted to centre ice per'ormed in nice style and held in low the speedy Lawlor. He made some fine dashes into Kingston territory that kept Brooks on uneasy street.

Green and Oyer spilled more than one play'er who attempted to fathom the defe nce and Bellringer was shaken up in the early part of the fracas when the forw er sent him into the corner. Both pla yers were more effective toward the close of the encounter when they used their bodies to better advan tage.

Manager Thomas surprised the fans by introducing Bentley of Napanee but the boy certainly did not appear to be of intermediate calibre although he has only on the ice for a short period: Rooney was left at home and from his past performances he certainly would have turned in a better exhibition than the new-comer.

Bellringer, Lawlor and Joe Smith divided its scoring honors for Kingston with a brace each and these three were the pick of the winners. Bellringer worked himself into exhaustion at times and spent considerable time on the bench. Lawlor did not look as good as on previous appearances but outwitted the Belleville team at times with his tricky puck-carrying.

Joe Smith was right at home on the wing and was a consistent menace to the Belleville team. Both of his goals were the result of clever work and he was given a hand by the crowd for his second goal which was a nice back-hand shot.

Hosney and Rooney gave Brooks some nice protection but the latter received several penalties for tripping. Hosney was using his weight as he always does and slowed up the attacking division.

Brooks spent almost an idle night and looked poor on Weir's shot which never left the ice. The locals would have undoubtedly met with more success had they resorted to long range fir ing instead of trying to crash Kingston's strong defence.

Belleville meet Cornwall in the Factory town next Wednesday night and must win to remain within hailing distance of Queen's and Kingston. Kingston carried the play into Belleville ter ritory on the opening and Bowen was bombarded. He rose to the occasion nicely. Hagerman grabbed a loose puck and streaked for the Kingston goal but Brooks went down to save it; Bowen was given a busy session and it was feared that Kingston would tally on Lawlor's perfect pass from behind the net.- Green and Oyer drew applause when they broke up a three-man combination attempt. Rooney was handed the first penalty for tripping Weir. Green followed him for charging Bellringer. The latter was wobbly when he got to his feet. The first period ended with neither team having broken into the score column.

Locals Threatened

Belleville came back with a new lease of life and Hagerman missed a nice chance when he slipped up on Dan's perfect pass. Green hailed "Bouncer" with a clean body-check and a minute later Hagerman was injured when struck in the face. At this time "Stony" Geyer was drilling some long ones which were right on the button. Bellringer was left uncovered in centre on and drove home the opening counter Joe Smith on a nice pass from Bellringer got number two, half a minute later Lawlor dinged the hemp on Bellringer's timely pass. Bellringer soloed through just before the whistle blew to drive home number four.

The Maroons unleashed a new attack in the third period and Green missed the home fans to a pinch of excitement when he scored the first goal on solo effort going from end to end. Weir sent one at Brooks which never left the ice but the latter allowed it to go under. Lawlor scored Kingston's fifth goal and a few minutes later while the visitors were playing two men short Joe Smith tallied again. Whalen netted the third goal to complete the scoring.

Belleville—Goal, Boven; Defence, Green and Oyer; Centre, Hagerman; Wings Whalen and Weir, Subs. Hibbard and Rooney.

Kingston—Goal, Brooks; Defence Hosney and Rooney; Centre Lawlor; Wings Smith and Bellringer; Subs. W. Watts and E. Watts.

NOTICE-MOTORISTS!

If Your Vision Is Defective Read This!

At the Annual Convention of the Ontario Optometrical Association held this week in Toronto, it was definitely learned that steps would be taken in the near future to have all drivers of motor vehicles subjected to a rigid optical examination.

In the interest of safety on our highways, the idea was strongly recommended by the Association.

The wise thing, then, is to have us make an expert examination of your eyes now, and, if necessary, be fitted with proper glasses.

Incidentally, shell frames are "going out," and plain and fancy engraved white gold, all-metal frames are coming rapidly into general use.

We shall be pleased to show you our attractive line of white gold frames. They are recommended because of their light weight, strength, attractiveness and because of the clearer vision they afford.

See them in our store!

No Better Medicine For Little Ones

Is What Thousands of Mothers Say of Baby's Own Tablets

A medicine for the easy or growing child—one that the mother can feel assured is absolutely safe as well as efficient—is found in Baby's Own Tablets. They are prized by thousands of mothers throughout the country. These mothers have found by actual experience that there is no other medicine for little ones to equal them. Once a mother has used them for her children she will use nothing else. Concerning them Mrs. Charles Hutt, Tancook Island, N.S., writes: "I have two children, the baby being just six months old. I have used Baby's Own Tablets for them for the past 20 years and can truthfully say that I know of no better medicine for little ones. I always keep a box of the Tablets in the house and would advise all other mothers to do so."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all medicine dealers or will be mailed upon receipt of price, 25 cents a box, by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Would not be Without Zutoo Tablets At Any Cost

"Mr. A. O. Norton, the millionaire Jack Manufacturer, of Boston, who recently died, was a great 'booster' for Zutoo Tablets. —

He suffered from headaches from childhood and when he found Zutoo Tablets stopped those headaches in a few minutes and left no bad effect, he began recommending them to his family and friends. In an unsolicited letter, Mr. Norton says in closing:

"My family use them when ever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from Headache and they never failed to give quick relief. I always carry Zutoo Tablets in my pocket-book and WOULD NOT BE WITHOUT THEM AT ANY COST."

NOW IS TIME TO GET GOLOSHES FIXED

Just about this time of the year, a good many pair of rubber boots and goloshes develop holes in them and aren't of much use. Most people have learned the value of having them resoled and repaired by an expert vulcanizer—for they've learned that it means real money-saving.

No longer is it necessary, when a hole appears in the sole of the rubber boot or goloch to go out and invest in a brand new pair; the Quinte Vulcanizing Company on Front street, next Queen's Hotel, is fully equipped to repair them for you and make them as good as new, practically, for comparatively little money.

This being the case, why throw away money on new ones? You can't afford to throw it away—who can? These repairs aren't makeshift ones either; they're done by expert Vulcanizers—men who know how to do this work perfectly—so you can be sure of a good job.

So take them in to George Deline of the Quinte Vulcanizing Company on Front street and have them re-soled or repaired.

Well Known Holly's Line Now Sold Here By Moores

Have you tried Hollys' Candies? A short time ago, Moores' Candy Store in the Anglo-American Bldg., assumed the local agency for this well known brand of chocolates and from week to week an ever increasing number of Bellevillians have been becoming familiar with a new quality in candies —candies which they have found different from any they have ever tried.

Holly's Candies are made of purest ingredients, and contain the finest variety of centres that one might wish to taste; moreover they are dipped with quality chocolate by means of which the freshness of the candies for an indefinite time is assured.

The management of Moores' store reports that sales of Holly's have increased by leaps and bounds in the past month or so; a good percentage of the sales consisting of repeat orders, evidence of the satisfaction this popular make of candies is giving.

Moores' customers couldn't be coming back for more of the same kind if they weren't well satisfied with Holly's and a visit to Moores'"on your part, too will make you acquainted with some of the finest candies you ever tasted.

If you're a lover of good candies, just try these. They sell in 1-2 lb., 1 lb. and 2 lb. boxes, at the popular price of forty cents per pound.

WONG'S ADD ITEM TO SUNDAY MENU

In line with their policy of offering patrons an unexcelled service combined with the finest quality of foodstuffs, the management of Wong's Cafe announces that henceforth, a special chicken dinner will be served at this popular restaurant every Sunday at the regular hours, 11-2 and 5-8.

An increasing number of loyal people find Wong's an ideal place to have their Sunday dinner, and in its effort to please patrons, the management is adding the regular Sunday chicken dinner as a special treat to Sunday patrons. Wong's have always led in making this restaurant one of the best in town and this latest improvement should attract even larger Sunday patronage to Wong's. It's on Front Street next to The Intelligencer Office.

FINE NEW MODEL PONTIACS DRAW LARGE CROWDS

Many Improvements Make Pontiac Even Greater Value

Have you seen the 1928 Pontiac? Bellevillians were privileged last Saturday and following days to have their first views of this new series, Pontiac in the showrooms of the McLaughlin Motor Car Company on Bridge Street. And judging by the very large crowds which have filled the showrooms of the local factory branch, Pontiac appears to be in for its greatest year in 1928.

But when the multitude of improvements which have been added this year is considered, and it is borne in mind at the same time that prices have not been increased the enthusiasm which motorists are manifesting towards this newest General Motors product may be readily understood. Pontiac has, in truth, enjoyed in the two years since its introduction one of the most remarkable successes ever accorded any car, and in introducing this new Pontiac—and is new from headlights to tail light, it is building for even greater success.

Anyone who has driven a Pontiac knows of its powerful dependable and silent motor; but its even a better one this year because of the new G. M. R. cylinder head, which reduces knocking and eliminates thump with any fuel, and provides greater power than heretofore—and a new crankcase ventilation system eliminates crankcase condensation, new manifold and muffler too, for more efficient furling.

In appearance the new models to be seen now at the McLaughlin showrooms are entirely pleasing. New Fisher bodies, a higher radiator, new lines, new Duco colors, new elongated windows etc., are a few features, which make for an improved appearance.

Two of the outstanding improvements on the new car are the Lockheed brakes and Lovejoy shock absorbers which will ensure the maximum of safety and riding comfort.

Those are a few of the improvements and here are some more: New instrument panel, new carburetor, new steering gear, new thermostat, new fuel and water pumps, new gasoline gauge, new frame, new sales and new wheels. A special six sedan is Stockholm lair October, for the use of his Court Marshall.

PRINCE WILLIAM OF SWEDEN HAS FIRST NASH RIDE

Presented With Car By Scandinavian Men Of Nash Co.

How a prince of the royal blood regards the Nash car was indicated yesterday in a talk given at the Nash Motors Company from Prince William of Sweden which read as follows: "Had first ride today in delightful new car. Three cheers for Nash, signed Prince William."

When His Royal Highness last fall in the course of his tour of America visited the Kenosha plant of the Nash Motors Company, Scandinavian employees presented him with an Ambosador. The car which bore the royal crest, immediately after the presentation, was shipped to Stockholm to await the return to Sweden of the prince and his party.

The Nash car long has been a favorite with the royal family in Sweden. When His Royal Highness Prince Eustart, son of Prince William, passed his matriculation examinations last spring he was presented with a Nash standard Six coupe.

Crown Prince Gustav-Adolf is another member of the Swedish royal family to own a Nash. He purchased a special six sedan in Stockholm last October, for the use of his Court Marshall.

James Keiller, Chamberlain to His Majesty, the King of Sweden, is also an enthusiastic Nash owner, His Majesty often riding in the Keiller car.

BATTERY RADIO SOON WILL BE THING OF PAST

Success Of Batteryless Sets Makes Them Big Favorites

Reviewing the radio situation of the past few months, we find that remarkable strides have been made by practically all builders of receivers. In the past few months, the efforts of years of research have culminated in the presentation to the public of the batteryless receiver, termed now as the radio of the future; in fact it is claimed by some that within a year or so the battery operated receiver will be a thing of the past.

However that may be, the new batteryless sets are great achievements both as to mechanism and cabinet, for the trend is towards receivers with built in speakers, and cabinets which are at tractive pieces of furniture. Among the foremost of these batteryless models is the New De Forest Crosley Electric line; it is one which incorporates the newest ideas in radio building.

Absolutely batteryless with tubes operating from your ordinary light socket, this set has been demonstrated to give uniform perfection of tone at any volume. The old howling and squealing, the bane of the earlier type of receiver is done away with. A new speaker unit reproduces notes formerly lost; the operation of the set is exceedingly simple; all in all it embodies the results of five years research by the greatest radio laboratories on the continent—and what's more it is built in Canada to meet Canadian conditions.

The local De Forest Crosley dealers, the Radio Shop, 249 Front Street report a big demand for this set; this firm usually places the set in the home for a few days trial, and the De Forest batteryless actually sells itself. Guaranteed installation, free service for one month plus most attractive terms make the ownership of this set satisfactory and very easy.

Before you buy that radio set, just phone 1462-W and have Mr. Carl Reid of the Radio Shop place one of these sets in your home for a few days trial.

WINTER WEATHER STILL TO COME

Old King Winter seems to have arrived after all, but where we were beginning to think that Ontario's chang ing climate was just about as good as the south may time. In fact some people were so far ahead as to be burning out just how much money the Spring like weather of the past weeks would have them on their coal bills, should it continue for awhile, and perhaps get just a little milder.

Coal bins are being filled for some time yet. Looks now as if running winter winds and swirling snow flakes will descend on the countryside for a month or two to come.

If you haven't been satisfied with the coal you've been getting, and feel that you might easily get better value for your money than has been the case in the past, get in touch with the Dow ney Coal Company, office on Bridge St. This firm handles the famous D.L. & W. Coal, renowned for its extra quality its freedom from clinkers and all round greater value. Phone 149.

SKATE SHARPENING KEEPS SHOP BUSY

Hurrah! Winter is here at last and we'll be able to get the old skates out once more. Which reminds one that those skates will probably need sharpening. The handiest place to take them is to Bert Adams at the Footwrights' Gangway. Bert is fully equipped to sharpen them for you in quick time and do the job right.

And by the way, if those goloshes or rubber boots of yours have developed holes, you'll want to be getting them repaired or re-soled too, and you can take them to the same place. Bert can save you a lot of money in this line, because a pair of goloshes re-soled and repaired are almost as good as new again, and all at comparatively little cost. Bert's place is on the Footwrights' Gangway, just off Front Street.

MOTHER MAY BE HELD FOR JAIL

Son Pleads 75-Year-Old Lady Is In Contempt Of Court

London, Ont. Jan 23—Hearing of a motion in which a son would have his 75-year-old mother committed to jail for contempt of a court order was adjourned for two weeks by Justice Fisher in weekly High Court Saturday.

Stanley Hubbard is plaintiff in the motion, and his mother, Mrs. Ellen Hubbard, is defendant. Both parties reside in Plympton township, Lambton county. The motion is one to commit the defendant for failing to carry out the terms of a judgment to reconvey a farm to the plaintiff.

Last fall, at Sarnia, the son sued the mother to secure possession of the farm. Justice Wright presided at the hearing and at that time the two parties entered into a agreement whereby the mother would turn the farm over to her son and judgment was entered to that effect. Since that time, he is allered the mother her refused to carry out the terms of the judgment.

Mrs. Hubbard is a widow, and 75 years of age. J. Ray Donahue, of Sarnia, represented her in court. Charles Weir, of Sarnia, appeared for William Hubbard, another son, in whose name the farm is said to be registered now, and Howard Cluff represented Stanley Hubbard.

After hearing particulars of the motion, Justice Fisher directed that the motion be adjourned for 12 weeks with out court costs to anyone and if the court order is not carried out by that time, motion for contempt will be considered. The case to receive hearing he said, must be set down before February 2.

Five Lanes For Motor Traffic In New Structure

1.7 MILES LONG

Contracts For Wire Have Been Awarded To Cable Company

New York, N.Y., Jan. 23.—In a special despatch from Detroit the Herald Tribune says this morning: "Contracts for supplying the wire for the main cables and suspender ropes of the new Detroit International Bridge have been awarded to the Roebling Cable Company Inc., Associate company of American Chain Company, this making assured the fact of a fully contemplated span over the Detroit River to cost over $10,000,000 and Canada as well as northern the largest part of entry point our northern border.

The new bridge will be 1.7 miles long with the main span of 1,850 feet. This span is a hundred feet longer than that of Philadelphia's Camden Bridge, at present the largest suspension bridge in the world. Specifications carry provisions for five lanes of motor traffic and eight feet wide for pedestrians. The wire for cables is made by new process which is said to increase its work by one-third by twenty percent."

TWO HOURS WORK NETS BANDITS $1

Tied Night Watchman To Chair Then Ransacked Premises

Toronto, Jan. 23.—After holding up George Storey, 104 Galt Avenue, assistant night watchman for the Parisian Laundry Company, King and Portland Streets tying him to a chair, and working for two hours to open the office safe all that two thugs got for their palma and perspiration was about one dollar. The prisoner was carried safe beyond repair, and in their departure left behind them the tools of their trade, a sledge hammer, crowbar, cold chisels, etc. These were packed up by Detective Sergts. Hicks and Mulligan. Though a little shaken, Storey is none the worse for his experience.

Storey, a brother of Charles Storey, operator on the police switchboard at Central Station, relates what happened to be on duty at the time of the robbery. He employed by the company as a driver On Saturday nights, however, he fills in as relief watchman. About 1 o'clock Storey was making his round of the signal boxes.

As he emerged from the basement and stepped upon the main floor, two men, who had apparently gained entrance by means of a rear window, confronted him from the lavatory.

FAKE MESSAGE FRIGHTENS PARENTS IN E. TORONTO

Toronto, Jan. 21.—Will you please send Mrs. ——'s children home at once right after recess?

This message, taken over the telephone a few days ago by a pupil at Corpus Christi Separate School, is causing Beach residents to fear that some of the marauders reported in North Toronto are transferring their activities to the east end. The request came from some person unknown, and the parents cannot account for it in any way.

Dorothy, aged 13, and Tommy, aged 12, living on Main street, were the children referred to. Dora was allowed to start for home following the request, but Tommy telephoned before starting to see what was wrong.

Girl Buried Alive

The little girl, hurrying as much as possible, reached home just as the boy widdered and frightened mother, who knew of the request only when Dora boy called—turned from the telephone. She immediately hurried to the school with her child and told Sister Anita, the Principal, the whole story. The police were immediately notified by the parents.

Plainclothesmen and policemen have been very active in the district since then.

Spending $1,750,000 to Stop Erosion Canada and the U. S. Plan

By construction of submerged weirs and removal of shoals the international Niagara board has reported that currents in the rapids above Niagara Falls can be so deflected as to limit Horseshoe erosion and provide a greater flow over the flanks which are now almost exposed. The illustration shows the points at which the work, whose total cost is estimated at $1,7500,000, is required. The most important portion of the work is estimated to cost $500,000.

JUDGE RESERVES GIVING DECISION

Osteopath Appeals Against Conviction For Using Title "Doctor"

Toronto, Jan. 23.—Judge Denton reserved decision in the appeal of Hubert J. Pocock, doctor of osteopathy, against a conviction and fine by Magistrate Jones for using the title "Dr." in contravention of the Ontario Medical Act, which was heard by him in Division Court Saturday afternoon. At his first trial before Magistrate Jones, the appellant was acquitted. The College of Physicians and Surgeons, who are prosecuting the case, appealed to Mr. Justice Middleton, who said a conviction should have been registered. Later, Magistrate Jones convicted him and imposed a fine. Under the Ontario Summary Convictions Act, the appellant brought his case before Judge Denton, a Division Court judge. The case took the form of a new trial, the college witnesses being heard first and the appellant, who was defendant, in police court afterwards.

The youth came into contact with a high tension line while running to a fire on the outskirts of this place last night. He was knocked unconscious by the charge and was revived after thirty minutes effort.

KLAN TO DISCARD FACE COVERING

Will Banish Members Who Cast Votes For "Al" Smith

Birmingham, Ala., Jan. 23.—The Birmingham Sunday News and Age Herald say that the mask of the Ku Klux Klan will be universally discarded February 22.

This action will be taken, the newspaper will say, following a meeting in Montgomery, Ala., last week, between Hr. Hiram W. Evans, of Atlanta, Imperial Wizard of the order and high officials of the Alabama Realm.

The News and Age Herald says that the announcement was made at the banquet given by James Esdale, Grand Dragon of the Klan in Alabama, and Dr. Evans officially sanctioned the flesh.

Two reasons are given by the News and Age Herald for the Klan's action in discarding the hood from the regalia.

First, the newspaper says, "there are many persons within the Klan and many others on the outside who are violently opposed to the hidden face.

"Second, states, municipalities and divisions of the country are outlawing the mask by legislation. To forestall universal legislation against the visor, the Klan officials deemed it wise to act at this time."

ESCAPE INJURY; CAR IS WRECKED

Murray Hall And Edward Moreau, Occupants, Are Unhurt

Murray Hall, 203 George Street, and Edward Moreau, 30 Colborne Street, escaped injuries when their car driven by the former, left the highway near White's Church between Belleville and Trenton last evening at 7.20. The car, owned by W. J. Hall, the driver's father, was badly wrecked when it struck the ditch.

The two young men were returning from Trenton and were travelling at a moderate rate of speed as the road was treacherous with a heavy coating of ice. When near the point of the accident, Mr. Hall applied the brakes, and the car started to slide and careened into the right ditch. The windshield, radiator and top were all more or less damaged when the motor turned partially over. Both occupants suffered no injuries whatever and their escape was a miraculous one in view of the condition of the car.

NEW CONSTABLE APPOINTED HERE

William John Scott of Sidney has been accepted as Constable on Belleville Police force to succeed Constable Price Morris who was recently given an appointment on the Provincial Police force, a position for which Morris has had no previous experience in police work, given promise of becoming a valued acquisition to the local force. He is a Canadian, six foot one inch man, weighing one hundred and eighty pounds and is of Irish descent.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Jan. 23. — A Diary telling of fallpins and a parachute jump in a blizzard has revealed how Fred Hoyt, Kansas aviator, died of exposure while he sought shelter in the snowbound mountain country of Northern Idaho

The diary, also containing a letter to his bride of a month, told how Hoyt was forced down in a canyon on January 31 and of his unsuccessful effort to avoid being frozen to death. His body was found Saturday by a rancher six miles from the spot where his ship crashed and between two piles of brush he had gathered for a fire he was up able to start.

BARTLETT BROOKS GRANTED BAIL $20,000 PENDING THIRD TRIAL

Deputy Attorney-General Requests New Trial At Present Assize

FATHER ABSENT

Defendant Lawyer Opposes Heavy Bail—Spirited Controversy

Toronto, Jan. 23.—Mr. Justice Wright, to-day granted Bartlett Brooks bail of $20,000 in two sureties of $10,000 each, pending his third trial on a charge of aiding and abetting in an illegal operation on the late Ruth Dember, his fiancee.

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 23.—Bail of $20,000 was granted to Bartlett J. Brooks today by Mr. Justice Wright, pending the third trial of Brooks on a charge of attempting to procure an illegal operation in connection with the death of his fiancee, Ruth Dembury.

The accused gave recognizance for $10,000 and two other sureties of $5,000 each were accepted.

Edward Bayly, Deputy-Attorney General suggested that His Lordship have a new trial held at the present assizes, but Mr. Justice Wright said this was not usual practice.

Mr. Bayly opposed bail, pointing out that Brooks's father was now in United States. Mr. Justice Wright returned that Brooks was out on bail with the prospect of being convicted not long ago, and yet had returned. Mr. Bayly then said he would prefer bail on a substantial bond. Suggesting $20,000 which amount was agreed to by Mr. Justice after a spirited opposition by J. E. Cartwright, on behalf of the defendant.

The first trial of Brooks when he was convicted and sentenced to five years was quashed by The Supreme Court of Canada and the second trial ended last week in the disagreement of the jury.

PROPOSE ACTION TO SAVE WOMAN

Montreal, Jan. 23.—An attempt to save from the gallows Mrs. Doris Palmer McDonald, who together with her husband, is under sentence of death for the murder of Adelard Bouchard, taxi operator, found shot to death on the highway between Huntingdon, Que., and Malone, N.Y., last July, will be made by the Canadian Farmers' Welfare Association.

This decision was reached at a board meeting of the association here, but discussion over the matter of sex discrimination arose while the case was under consideration but members present insisted that the execution of a woman was revolting. Accordingly the records of the board were deputed to see the Minister of Justice at Ottawa.

It was also decided at the meeting that similar representations would be made on behalf of Ernest Philamlee, also under sentence of death for the murder of a local grocer here last Summer.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL MEETS MAGISTRATES

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 23.—Police magistrates from all over Ontario met Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney General today, for discussion of the way latest legislation worked out in the courts in the past year. "I have a meeting every year with the different officers like this," Mr. Price commented after the meeting, "and it helps me to find out just what changes there should be and in what way some of the laws could be strengthened."

CLEARING HOUSE POSSIBLE HERE

Growth Of Banking Business In This City Justifies Step

There is a possibility that there may be a Bank Clearing House in Belleville in the near future according to the manager of one of the large branches in this city. No definite arrangements have been made as yet but it is expected that a meeting of the local bank managers will be called to discuss the matter.

The Clearing House would only meet at extended intervals in all probability but if it was decided by representatives the plan for a clearing house should be established in this city.

GROWTH OF C.M.A. TOLD BY SECTY.

Rotary Hears Something Of The Ideals Of Canada's Manufacturers

Some idea of the magnitude and work of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association was given to the Rotary Club at its luncheon this afternoon by Mr. J. J. McIntosh, Secretary of the Ontario Division. Mr. McIntosh based his talk on the idea that all elements of our national life are inter-dependent and that the progress of the farmer interests the manufacturer and that the growth of the manufacturer is of benefit to the farmer, the retailer and the professional man.

The growth of the C.M.A. from a small association of saw mills and flour mills in 1871 to its present membership of over 4200 members was traced by the speaker. When the association was organized it was largely a rural Ontario proposition. At that time there were over a hundred farmers for every 23 people engaged in other occupations with the result that the country was stagnant and the farmers had no markets for their produce. At the present time in Canada the ratio is 139 otherwise occupied to every 100 farmers.

Past president Charles Dolan made an urgent appeal to the Kiwanians to give more generously to the work of crippled children in order that the scope of the Club's activities might be enlarged.

LINDBERGH BACK FROM PLANE AGAIN

France Field Cristobal, Canal Zone, Jan. 23.—Col. Charles Lindbergh and his flight of St. Louis today gave a convincing demonstration that they are both fit.

Lindy said so himself after giving his plane test today, during which he did many stunts much to the delight of the crowd which had gathered at the field to see the famous team of "We" back in the air. The plane had been overhauled during the Colonel's training and fueling trip and new mechanics found that only a set of new exhaust valves were needed.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

We live by admiration, hope and love;
And even as these are well and wisely fixed,
In dignity of being we ascend.
WORDSWORTH.

HOME INDUSTRY

The tourist traffic is having a curious but highly satisfactory effect on Canadian life, which promises to bring much profit to rural residents. The natural resources intelligence branch of the department of the interior reports a strong revival of home industries, due to the demand of tourists for hand-woven and homespun products. Rug-weaving, it is said, is becoming a flourishing industry in Quebec, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick. The designs of fifty years ago or more are very popular, but new and original designs are being turned out. These meet with a ready sale, either direct to the traveler or through local stores. As much as $2,000 was realized last summer in some of the small villages of Nova Scotia from the sale of these home-woven rugs. The villages of Quebec bordering the highways have done just as well, and similar reports come from Prince Edward Island. In the latter province women's institutes are organizing the industry for the benefit of those engaged in home handicrafts.

Another thriving home industry is spinning. In some parts flax is grown, spun and woven into linen on the same farm. Wool also is converted into cloth by hand methods and even the dyes are home-prepared. Spinning wheels of different designs are to be found in all parts of the Dominion. It is reported that one Cape Breton farmer has been weaving all his life—"his homespuns would pass for Harris tweed." In Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba "the spinning wheel is no stranger in many homes." Besides articles produced by Europeans there are the wares of the native Indians, so familiar to all, and even the Eskimos are contributing their quota in response to the ever-increasing demand for souvenirs.

According to a statement by Mr. W. H. J. Tisdale, manager of the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers, as reported in the Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph, not more than 500,000 pounds of a total wool clip of 4,000,000 pounds in rural Quebec ever finds its way into commercial channels. "The remainder is spun at home or woven into cloth in local community mills." All provinces share in the handicraft trade, Ontario producing many novelties which meet with great appreciation from tourists. Special mention is made of unglazed pottery, an exhibit of which attracted much attention at the Handicrafts Guild exhibition in Montreal. It is to the rural residents particularly that the opportunity presents itself, and those having an aptitude for such work should consider the possibilities of profitable trading.

PROGRESSIVE MENACE

Despite "safety first" warnings, admonitions in the press, speed regulations and restrictive legislation, the number of deaths from automobile accidents steadily mounts. A report prepared by the secretary and manager of the American Association of Life Insurance Presidents contains the statement that during the year 1927 the number of deaths from automobile accidents in the United States was 29,480 as against 23,264 in 1926—an increase in a single year of nearly 2700 in the loss of human lives. "The great waste of human life from this prevent ible cause," says the writer of the report, "continues to demand vigorous attention of public officials and is a challenge to every good citizen to contribute improvement of this deplorable condition."

Of course reckless and careless driving and "jay walking" are largely responsible for this terrible mortality record; but the increase in the number of deaths is not necessarily proof that drivers were more reckless or jaywalkers more foolhardy than they were the year before. The increase is to be accounted for mainly by the fact that there were more motor cars in use last year than in 1926. It can be confidently predicted that the mortality figures for 1928 will be larger than those for 1927, because there will be more cars this year to run down pedestrians or to be dodged by them. We shall have to be reconciled to the fact that the more automobiles in use the more automobile casualties there will be. This is one of the disadvantages of motor traffic to be weighed against the advantages.

A DIFFERENCE

An interesting discussion is going on in some newspapers as to the difference in meaning between the two words "politician" and "statesman." Digging back into the original meaning of the two words, some papers have discovered that a statesman is a man who is interested in and employed about affairs of state, while the term politician, derived from the Greek word "polis" meaning a "city state" in the early days of history, has an exactly similar meaning.

It is not enough, however, to say that because two words originally had the same general meaning, they mean the same thing today. In a recent interview in the Toronto Star, Sir Henry Drayton is quoted as having said that the two words mean same thing, but general usage and custm have given to one a shade of meaning which is not implied in the other.

To the mind of the average man, there is a decided difference, and the average man is not going to be bothered with academic arguments as to derivation when he has a fixed conviction in his mind. To his mind, the difference is clear and plain, for a "politician" is looked upon as a man who is interested in politics or in the affairs of state for the benefit of the particular party he favors, while a "statesman" is a man who is interested in the affairs of state for the benefit of the country, irrespective of the party with which he is affiliated.

There is a difference and a distinction between the two terms of that degree, for there are many politicians who wouldn't by any stretch of imagination be called statesmen, just as there are many statesmen who have never claimed to be known as politicians. In fact, the man who is a statesman has qualities which do not fit him for being a good politician in the generally accepted usage of the word.

THE GIFT OF WORK

When I have touched the end of days
And bid farewell to earthly ways,
I have one thing to ask of Him
Who sings above the Seraphim—
The gift of work—more work to do
To let God's glory glimmer through.
For well I know that in the Land
More work will be our work's reward.

Perhaps the Master's lips will say
"He touched one heart upon the way,
So give some further work to him;
But he must draw the lines less dim—
This time must not so bungle there,
But give his sketch a nobler air.
He must put action in that curve:
Give to this feature more reserve.
His early orders were too thin;
He now must dash the beauty in
With bolder stroke. This li the plan;
More work; by work we build the man!"

—Edwin Markham.

OTHER MEN'S THOUGHTS

Policemen are a decent lot. In the average town they are the only ones who don't know where the gambling dens are.—Vancouver Sun.

The lady who wants to put a "Chair of love" in a southern university probably doesn't know they have park benches in that town.—Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph.

Sometimes viewing the progress of our next-door neighbor, Canadians have felt discouraged. The United States was moving ahead so rapidly and Canada's progress was apparently snail-like. It is true that our rate of advancement has now been so rapid, but we have been building on a firm foundation and we are now in a position to reap the benefits. The next ten or fifteen years should see a development that will bring joy to the heart of every Canadian.—Border-Cities Star.

HAVE YOU HEARD THESE?

It was midnight. In the club's smoking room sat a young man huddled in his chair. A friend entered.

"Hello, not gone home yet?"

"No, I—I dazen't. At eight o'clock I telephoned my wife and gave her a perfectly good excuse for not coming straight home—and now fil've forgotten what I told her."

"Never you take a place with any of these 'ere 'ighbrows, my dear, Him an' 'er's quarrelling continual, and ' 'ave to spend 'arf me time running backwards and forwards between the keyhole and the dictionary."

When the train emerged at last from the tunnel the young lovers looked flushed and happy.

"That tunnel," he said, "cost $100,000."

"It was worth it all," she whispered.

Cheery Spirit (to friend, after celebrating first meeting after many years)—I never cease to admire the wonders of the age, old fellar. Motorplanes, aercars, broadcastings—not to mention trains. Here we are together, you and me, in the same train. You goin' to Aberdeen, and I'm goin' to London!

English Clergyman—And when you arrive in London, my dear lady, don't fail to see St. Paul's and Westminster Abbey.

Fair American—You bet. I'll rattle those off, sure; but what I've been hankering to see is the Church of England.

A farmer received a crate containing some fowls. He wrote to the sender informing him that the crate was so badly made that it has come to pieces when he was taking the hens home with him, and they had all escaped, and after much searching he had succeeded in finding only eleven of them. In due course he received the following reply:

"You were lucky to find eleven hens because I sent you only six."

FROM "A FAIRY FUNERAL"

Dear her along,
Keep ye your song,
Tender and sweet and low;
Fairies must die!
Ask ye not why.
Ye that have hurt her so.

Passing away—flower from the spray!
color and light from the leaf!
Soon, soon will the year shed bloom on her bier, and the dust of its dreams on our grief.

Men upon earth
Bring us to birth
Gently at even and mourn!
When as brother and brother
They greet one another
And smile—then a fairy is born!

But at each cruel word
Upon earth that is heard,
Each deed of unkindness or hate,
Some fairy must pass
From the games in the grass
And steal thro' the terrible Gate.

THE PASSING YEARS

(From The Intelligencer of this day 30 years ago)

At last evening's meeting of the Executive Committee of the City Council a large deputation of influential citizens was present to discuss the appointment of an Assayer. Messrs. John McPee and U. E. Thompson urged that an English Assayer be appointed while Ald. Hungerford and ex-Ald Brown were in favor of a Canadian.

Mr. L. Sebert has telegraphed from Port Perry that he will be here with two horses "Pred Darling" and "Little Hector" on Monday. The entries for the ice race meeting close on Monday night.

The East Hastings Conservative Convention was held at Roslin last evening resulting in the choice of Mr. W. P. Hudson for Conservative candidate

Mr. W. E. Rathbun, of Deseronto, was in the city today.

Mr. Wm. Johnston, who has been in Ottawa on departmental business for two weeks, returned to the city last night.

Mr. H. Corby, M.P., W. B. Northrup, W. S. Morden and Mayor Johnston left the city today to attend a Conservative meeting in the interests of Mr. W. R. Dempsey.

COBHAMS RESUME FLIGHT

The Cobham seaplane suffered a number of minor mishaps upon its arrival here at the end of November.

If you've believed it impossible to find absolute riding comfort in a light car, have Belleville Motors demonstrate the new Ford, and you'll change your mind. Flexible springs and four hydraulic shock absorbers permit perfectly comfortable travel over the roughest road. But place your order now for Spring delivery.

First of New Fleet at Saint John

Saint John Harbour

S. S. Beaverburn

Completing her maiden trip across the Atlantic, the "Beaverburn" new fast cargo liner for the Canadian Pacific Railway fleet, docked at Saint John, N.B. to receive the official welcome of several officials of that company, among whom were, W. R. MacInnes, vice-president in charge of traffic, and W. A. Walsewright, assistant to the chairman, Canadian Pacific Steamships Limited, also the harbour officials of that port. A thorough inspection was made of the vessel and appreciation of her qualities was expressed.

The Beaverburn is the first of five fast cargo vessels, which will be known as the "Beaver" class, displacing 10,000 tons and having a length of over 500 feet. These ships are capable of making the ocean passage in ordinary weather conditions at an average speed of fifteen knots, the Beaverburn however, attained a speed of 16 knots on her trial trip.

These cargo ships will provide a weekly departure from Canada every Friday, arriving in London and a half days later, Montreal is to be their Canadian port during the summer and Saint John in the winter. The liners are considered the finest and highest class of cargo ships afloat today. Another steamer of the passenger style, the Duchess of Bedford will be launched at the Clydebank shipyards January 24.

Altogether there are to be five Duchess liners attached to the Canadian Pacific Steamships. To date the Duchess of Atholl has been launched, the Duchess of Bedford will be launched shortly, while in 1929 the third and fourth to be delivered will be Duchess of Richmond and Duchess of Cornwall, with one more ship to come.

At first he was puzzled —now he understands

THE first time Mr. Russell was asked to "Hold the line, please" when he had placed a Long Distance call he was puzzled. He had not heard of our new high speed service.

In little more than a minute he was talking to his party two-hundred miles away. Of course, Mr. Russell had given the distant number to the long distance operator in placing his call. It is a great aid to announce the number — the operator then proceeds at once to establish the connection while you remain at the telephone.

We will be glad to prepare for you a special directory of distant numbers you frequently call. With such a list you will be assured, in the majority of cases, of prompt connection with the far-away telephone.

High Speed long distance service is essentially a number service. Ask us to prepare your list of distant numbers.

"Every Bell Telephone is a Long Distance Station."

COLLIE RESCUED AFTER 56 HOURS

Dodges Bullets And Extends Welcoming Paw When Found

Detroit, Jan. 23.—After at least 56 hours, and probably more, on an ice-floe in Lake St. Clair, the marooned white collie which Grosse Pointe Park police endeavored to rescue for two days was brought ashore yesterday. Despite the fact that its rescuers, employees of Grosse Pointe Park police, were compelled to chop it from the ice, it suffered only mildly frozen feet.

The dog was rescued yesterday after Frank Sandley, Grosse Pointe Park police electrician, who thought it might be his own, attempted to end its suffering with a bullet from a high-powered .22-calibre rifle, with which he is an expert.

Believed It Dead

Sandley, explained that each time he fired a ranging shot near the dog it leaped about. Finally, police watching through binoculars, reported that a shot had undoubtedly hit at the point where the dog stood and the collie was seen to run behind an ice hummock.

It did not reappear when succeeding shots were fired and Sandley felt confident it had received a fmrtal wound.

Frozen in Crevice

Yesterday, however, ice floe employees put out in a rowboat without informing anybody of their intention and continued to search among the ice floes. When they discovered the collie it was unwound, but was found to be tight in a crevice into which it had crawled. To release it the men were rodlgelled boatbound by the ice and withdrew from the animal's cleat.

Returned, the dog was to offer a paw and shake hands. It was definitely identified as "Lady", Sandley's white collie, missing since Monday.

Despite the fact that "Lady" is a house dog and spends little time out of doors, her long exposure left do visible mark.

CHAMPAGNE ISLAND SINKS BACK INTO SEA

North Wildwood, N.J., Jan. 23.—Swept by swirling currents, Champagne Isle is fast disappearing, its chance as bubbles of wine with which its mysterious name suggests, the sea was celebrated a score of years ago. This was revealed today by a survey which has led engineers to believe that the site may later reappear off North Wildwood and there were those who professed to see in Egyptian laws two centuries and a half old to determine the new ownership.

The survey was instituted after reports had come through a quantity of wine operated when a fishing smack capsized and the title to new land was obtained by Charles Mace.

TIGHTEN RULES ON TRANSFERRING MEN

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 23.—Procedure under which prisoners are escorted to institutions where they are to serve sentences has been tightened up, said Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General to-day. He also said that in the near future there would be required to treat all prisoners on the same basis. Hon. Mr. Price remarked that he had severely reprimanded Deputy Sheriff Smith, of Hastings, for his slipshod method of taking Inspector Joseph McDermott, convicted cattle dealer, from Barrie to Portsmouth Penitentiary last December.

SAULT BUSINESS SECTION DAMAGED

Sault Ste Marie, Ont., Jan. 23.—Fire breaking out today from an unknown cause resulted in the loss of thirteen thousand dollars by damage to a vacant hotel and two adjoining buildings. Most of the damage was divided between the hotel, a three-storey frame structure owned by Scarfone and Mancini, and a frame store and dwelling owned by J. A. Hussey.

PANAMA ENGINEER DIES IN NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 23.—Major Gen. George Washington Goethals, officially recognized as the man who accomplished one of the world's great engineering feats more the Egyptians built the pyramids —the Panama Canal—died at noon yesterday today in Gorgas Memorial Hospital, after an illness of two months. His wife and two sons were at his bedside when he died.

The funeral will be in accordance with the wishes of the engineer. It will take place Tuesday at West Point, the Gen. Goethals was a soldier for his career and where for a time he acted as instructor in astronomy and civil engineering.

FRESHMEN IN TEST DO NOT KNOW LINDY

Fayetteville, Ark., Jan. 23.—Four freshmen in the University of Arkansas do not know who Charles A. Lindbergh is.

One of them thinks he was the Prime Minister of Sweden during the fifteenth century; one thinks he was a German General in the World War; one thinks he is the leader of the Bolshevik in Russia; while the fourth understands Lindbergh was the battle line that the Allies had such difficulty in breaking through in 1918.

These answers were found among papers handed in at a test in the freshman history course here yesterday.

McMASTER ADVOCATES WORSHIP ELSEWHERE

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 23.—Eighty men here have seceded from Runnymede Baptist Church over the question of fundamentalism and while the remaining of the congregation attended a funeral yesterday thereby dissenters, essentially almost half the membership, held services in the Lawn Bowling Club. Those withdrawing are supporters of McMaster University.

TRY TO SAVE DOG AS HOME BURNS DOWN

Kenosha, Wis. Jan. 23.—While firemen battled to save their home last night George and Guy Cleary, brothers were vainly using artificial respiration methods on a year-old beagle hound, Jerry, owned by George. Firemen found the dog overcome by smoke. They rushed him over to the brothers who gave up carrying the furniture from the house in an unsuccessful effort to save the dog.

ENGLISH PREPARE FOR LENTEN SEASON

London, Jan. 23.—Lenten season, which greatly heightens the English society folks after the winter drabness, will be in full swing by the first week in February, when King George and Queen Mary return from their rest at Sandringham Palace. The usual society functions of this early season will be somewhat extended and heightened by the visit to London of the King and Queen of Afghanistan, and possibly by the presence of Crown Prince Leopold, of Belgium and his pretty wife, the former Princess Astrid of Sweden.

STEAMER DOCKS AFTER STORMY TRIP

New York, Jan. 22.—Anchor liner Transylvania arrived here today after a two-week stormy trip of a week ten days. Capt. David Bone, author of "Broke in the command" of the liner said that the storm raged from the moment the ship left Ireland. At times the wind and waves were so tumultuous that he had to reduce his speed to 6 knots and the steamer like sailing a sail. The liner arrived coated with ice but undamaged.

TEACHER TUMBLES THROUGH SKYLITE

Sault Ste. Marie, Jan. 23.—William Burrows, science teacher at the technical school, is in the hospital with a broken arm and possible internal injuries as a result of an accident on Saturday. He was preparing a Christmas tree on the school's roof ready for a lecture on radio, when he fell through the skylight, falling thirty feet to the floor of the assembly hall.

SHAMOKIN YOUTH PAID DEATH PENALTY

Bellefonte, Pa., Jan. 23.—Twenty-year-old youth, Ivon Sechrem, of Shamokin, went to the electric chair at the Rockview Penitentiary today and paid the death penalty for the murder of his former sweetheart's brother.

S. S. COLLISION IN COLLISION

Athens, Greece, Jan. 23.—The British cruiser Caledon, which was in collision with the Italian steamer Adriere in the Aegian Sea, has reached Karystos, on the island of Euboea, with her bow badly damaged. The Antares was towed to Piraeus.

The first officer of the Antares was killed in the collision and the steward is missing.

TODAYS MARKETS

CHICAGO WHEAT

Chicago, Jan. 23.—Wheat prices tended downward here early today, influenced by declines at Liverpool and by the predictions of snow or rain over the winter wheat belt. Shortly after the opening weather led also to selling of corn. Opening unchanged to 3-4c off, Chicago cash wheat only underwent some further loss. Corn started at 1-2c to 3-4c off and later held to the initial rate. Oats were easy. Provisions held steady.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Jan. 23.—Cattle, receipts 491; trade brisk. Heavy beef steers 10 to 11.50. Butcher steers and heifers 10 to 11.25. Butcher cows, medium 6 to 7.50. Calves good to choice 12 to 15. Sheep select 3.50 to 3.60. Good ewe lambs, 12.50 to 14.

WINNIPEG WHEAT

Winnipeg, Jan. 23. — Wheat May 1-8c to 1-4c lower at 126 3-4 to 2-4. July 1-4c Oct. 1-8 lower to unchanged at 129 1-4 lower to unchanged at 129 1-4 to 3-8. Oats, May 1-8 to 1-4 lower at 61 1-2 to 3-8.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, Jan. 23. Wheat, March, 139 5-8, May 131 3-8. Corn, March, 87 3-4, May 90 7-8. Oats, March 54 7-8, May 56.

CLOSING QUOTATIONS

New York, N.Y., Jan. 23. Stock prices gave an impressive demonstration of strength in today's market. Lowering of the call money renewal rate to 5 per cent. The first reduction charge since last November and few public character of week end trade prices helped to create bullish sentiment and inspired resumption of pool activity on large scale.

United States Steel Common crossed 49 to new high on the current upswing. Motors responded to reports of increasing sales of new models with Hupp again in the leadership of advance. Some of the sharpest gains were recorded in the merchandising group Woolworth, S. H. Mary, Gimbels Brothers National Biscuit, Chesi Peabody and Abraham and Straus selling three to eight points higher.

STANDARD MINING EXCHANGE

Quotations by Homer L. Gibson & Co., per Jamieson Bone, local Manager.

The market continued lately with a varied trend, but on the whole leaned towards strength. Atlantic, Beloved and Barry were active. Amulet was up 50 points to 14.65 with the right selling at 30. Hollinger was also heavily bought around 4.6. Mining Corp. was off 10 to 15 points. Bonanza was off on the short spots, up 51 from Saturday. Wright Hargreaves continued quite active at 85. Dufferay Rouyn had its good demand at 511. Trumbull Yukon at 51 and Sherritt Gordon off 50 ex-rights now, at around 37. Quotations at 3 p.m. as follows:

MYSTERY OE SEX GIVES IT UNDUE IMPORTANCE

By LOUIS E. BISCH

One hears so much talk about sex that one would almost be led to believe that some of us, at least, are concerned with little else.

Current plays are forever being watched for suggestive line and situations. Motion pictures are regularly censored for the same reasons. Every now and again a novel is ordered off the book-shop shelves because it is charged with indecency. Then the conversation of people themselves. How frequently they get on the subject, discuss it animatedly, even tell jokes about it.

Does this mean that we are oversexed? Does this continual bothering which incidentally has had a lot to do with making a problem of sex—does this thinking and fussing over it in any sense as being fundamentally indecent?

Not at all! This talk and writing and questioning are what might be termed a "hang-over" from our young er days. Sex information was then withheld from us. And being withheld it became strangely mysterious.

When we grew up this mystery still tended to persist. We kept on wondering. And by so doing we of course, absolutely overvalued the importance of the subject.

It is a well-known fact that if you tell a person he must not think about a certain subject because it is wicked he will think about it all the more. On the same principle, if a play is produced and word is passed that it may be shut down because of its sex appeal, men and women who never had the slightest interest in the play before will then flock to see it and will even pay exorbitant prices for the privilege.

When all is said and done, sex is nothing to get so fussed up about.

The sex urge is perfectly natural and instinctive and is essential to the propagation of the human race.

There is nothing inherently indecent about sex, either. It should really be looked upon as fine and beautiful. It not this the means by which the most lovely and inspiring thing in the world is brought into being—a child?

But if we continue to whisper and giggle about sex we continue to surround it with an immoral atmosphere. So long as we pretend that it is really wicked even to think about it, just so long will we give a wrong and indecent twist to what should be a perfectly decent subject.

Thanks to the modern viewpoint in child training, teachers and parents are beginning to realize more and more that to tell the truth about babies and these sex torments of childhood and young people is far better than pretty fairy tales that the children sooner or later discover are absolutely false.

The story of sex can be told by analogy simply and beautifully. Plants and animals that children are interested in can be used for examples. The approach to sex is then gradual, sane and sensible. The child is not shocked.

And what is more the subject loses that mystery and consequent naughtiness which has so much to do with later adult emotional upset.

The truth never does anybody any harm if the truth is presented in the right way. Unfortunately the majority of us grown-ups did not have the benefit of enlightened teaching on sex matters and consequently we continue to make too much of it.

It is the mental attitude that is all important. In effect it is thinking lies that does the harm.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl of 17 and a man, 18 years old. Two years ago I met a very nice young girl of whom I am fond. I went out of town and have been back for about a week and a half. This girl heard that I was in town and when I ree her on the street she does not speak to me. Do you think that it would be proper if I spoke to her and asked her to explain her actions?

WORRIED.

WORRIED: It is possible that this girl is provoked because you did not call her up when you returned to town and since you hesitated to speak to her when you met her, her attitude is quite justifiable. I would advise you to make amends immediately if you wish to regain her friendship.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am engaged to a girl and we are to be married soon. Just a few days ago she went out with another fellow.

Is it right for either of us to go out while engaged??

JOSEPH.

JOSEPH: I should think that neither of you would care to go out with other people since you are soon to be married. However, there may have been reasons which prompted your fiance to make this engagement and which may justify her keeping the appointment. I would suggest that you have a frank talk with her and ask her for an explanation which I think you may justly claim. Tell her that you do not wish her to go out with other men, and do not let this incident affect you unduly until you have discovered the reason for her action.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young girl in my teens and am very fond of a boy one year my senior. He pays very little attention to me since he became acquainted with one of my girl friends.

Will you please tell me some way to win his friendship again?

UNHAPPY.

UNHAPPY: I advise you not to be too deeply pressed, my dear; there is no reason why this boy cannot be friendly with both of you and if he seems no longer interested in you, I would suggest that you make no effort to regain his friendship. Continue to be sweet, congenial and interesting and let him come back of his own accord. Seek the companionship of others and be in no way dependent upon him for your good times. If he really interested in you, he will make all the advances to regain your friendship, when he sees that you are not so deeply concerned about him.

A SUITOR TOO MANY

By MILDRED BARBOUR

Starting up at Farquahar in the brilliant sunlight of the summer day was a check for five hundred dollars, made out to "Bearer," but signed unmistakably "Herbert Ware."

Chapter 33

A PARENTAL THREAT

Jack Farquahar restored Lila's handbag in silence. His face was grim. She thanked him hurriedly. She too had seen and knew that he had seen, Herbert's check.

"I should advise you," he said coldly, "not to carry such compromising evidence with you. There are persons who might not trouble to ask for the explanation, as I do."

Lila stuffed the check into the little bag and snapped the clasp.

"Oh, you mean the check signed by Herbert Ware?" she asked, with feigned carelessness. "Jack, you're really impossible with your suspicions! What is more natural than that I should carry Mrs. Ware's checks to the bank to be cashed, if she can't go there herself?"

"You don't seem to be in much of a hurry to fulfill your compulsions," he reminded her.

"The banks are open until three o'clock, old bear!" the light tone was losing a mischievous little moue. "An revoir!" She ran up the steps of her brother's hotel, with a coy gesture of farewell.

He stood still for a moment, looking after her and frowning; then he strode slowly down the street. Lila's heart-beat became normal again, as she entered the house, but the sound of a step made her start guiltily. She rose her father standing in the door of his library. His expression was disapproving.

"I happened to be glancing out of the window," he remarked, "and I saw that you were with that young fellow again. Lila, this has got to stop! I have given you pretty free hand, but now you're married, and I won't stand for her when you met. her attitude is quite justifiable. I would advise you to make amends immediately if you wish to regain her friendship.

"Dad, you wouldn't!" gasped Lila. "That would be too awful!"

"Then behave yourself!" he said, turning back into the library. "That young idiot fairly haunts the neighborhood. I can't go out, or come in, without stumbling over him. I've half a mind to notify the police and have him up as a public nuisance."

"Oh, dad, he's only—" She shuddered to think of the disclosure Farquahar would make, if her father carried out his threat.

Here was a new source of anxiety! It seemed to her that there was no end to her troubles.

She said meekly: "I've come to lunch with you, Dad, if you care to have me."

He turned around and scrutinized her shrewdly.

"Just what mischief have you been up to now?"

She pouted: "Is that a nice way to treat me when I come to visit you?"

"Perhaps not," he shrugged, with a smile. "But I know you. You always become very cordial just before, or just after, you've done something outrageous."

She laughed, once more her old, coaxing self.

"I'm going to tell the chef to make my favorite chicken a la king. And I'll prepare an omelette for you with my own fair fingers."

She blew him a kiss and left the room.

Meanwhile Jack Farquahar continued his walk down the Avenue and across the Park toward Fifty-ninth Street. He was frowning as he strode along.

Why, he wondered, did he constantly suspect Lila? Her explanation of the presence of Herbert Ware's check in her handbag had been perfectly logical and satisfactory; and yet, some inner sense told him that she had been extremely alarmed at his using it. And there was no reason for embarrassment, if what she had told him was true.

"She isn't the same," he told himself. "She isn't the same girl, I knew in France. What's wrong? What's different? Is it I who have changed?"

After a while, he thought: Perhaps she hasn't changed. Perhaps the excitement of the war kept us from seeing each other clearly. Perhaps she was just as she is now, only I didn't notice it."

By the time he had reached Fifty-ninth Street, he decided:

"There's only one way to end this infernal situation. She must marry me at once."

At Fifth-seventh Street he decided to call her up and deliver his ultimatum at once. He sought a restaurant where he could telephone and lunch pleasantly.

He was past entering a smart and exclusive little place that was noted for its excellent cuisine, when he encountered Gilroy Holmes. The two men bowed stiffly. Farquahar glanced at Holme's companion. She turned and nodded.

"Mrs. Herbert Ware."

For some reason, Farquahar was forsooth angry. He supposed it was the sight of Holmes, his erstwhile friend who had betrayed him, that enraged him.

U. S. WILL PAY ABOUT A HALF

Washington To Bear Cost Of Entire International Section

Ottawa—While Canada will construct and maintain sections of the proposed St. Lawrence seaway which lie in Canadian territory if the Dominion Government accepts the advice of the National Advisory Committee, it should not be assumed that Canada's share of the total cost of the waterway project will be much larger than the contribution of the United States.

It is true, the Advisory Committee recommended that Canada should retain complete control of the Canadian section of the St. Lawrence River and the Welland Canal and should not seek financial assistance from the United States with respect to these portions of the seaway.

On the other hand, it is proposed that the United States shall bear the entire cost of construction and improvement in the international Rapids section of the St. Lawrence, not only on its own side of the boundary, but also on the Canadian side. Moreover the United States would be expected to take care of the entire boundary line between Lake Erie and Lake Superior. This alone would cost $68,200,000 for a 27-foot channel.

Estimates of Engineers

The estimate of the engineers includes compensating works on the Niagara and St. Clair Rivers, $3,700,000; channel excavation, Lake Erie to Lake Superior, $54,900,000; new lock in the St. Mary's River, $6,500,000. As to the International Rapids section, the cost of a two-stage development is estimated as follows: Works solely for navigation, $33,681,000; works primarily for power, $140,300,000; jointly for power and navigation, $90,656,000; total cost with complete initial power installation, $264,540,000; initial cost of one-half the initial power installation is deferred pending development of the marked $238,400,000.

Thus it will be seen that if the United States agrees to undertake construction and assume the entire cost of the International Rapids section and the section lying between Lakes Erie and Superior, the Republic will be contributing nearly half the total cost of the entire improvement. The engineers' estimate for a 27-foot waterway, The size favored by the National Advisory Committee), including the installation of 1,265,000 horsepower on the St. Lawrence and the entire cost of the new Welland Ship Canal, is $536,800,000, made up as follows: in the Great Lakes, connecting channels, $54,800,000; St. Mary's River Locks, $6,500,000; compensating works, $3,700,000; Welland Ship Canal, $115,600,000; St. Lawrence River to Montreal, $355,300,000.

INCREASE PROPOSED IN U. S. IMPORTS

Washington, Jan. 23.—In the face of opposition on the part of Republican party leaders to revision of the tariff at this time, Representative Dickinson, Republican, Iowa, proposed an increase in the import rates on corn (more than a dozen farm commodities, and the transfer of a number of others from the free to the protected list.

He introduced a bill to that end, and it was referred to the Ways and Means Committee, which must pass on tariff legislation, but predictions based on the line-up of the House recently on the tariff question, for the most part, were that it would not get far.

Dickinson is a leader of the Farm bloc in the House, and his proposal is designed to benefit the farmer.

Among the products, the Dickinson bill would afford greater tariff protection are: Coconut oil, cattle, cattle hides, swine; extracts of meat, fresh, prepared or preserved corn or meal, including cracked corn; oil-bearing seeds, nuts, and oils, expressed or extracted.

DEATHS & FUNERALS

JAMES JOSEPH GARTLAND

James Joseph Gartland, two months' old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Gartland, Point Anne, died at the home of his parents last evening. The interment will be made at Marysville Cemetery.

MISS BEATRICE A. THOMPKINS

The funeral of the late Miss Beatrice A. Thompkins took place on Saturday afternoon last from the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Lockwood, 45 Highland Avenue, to Belleville Cemetery where the interment was made.

At the house in the presence of many sorrowing relatives and friends, the impressive funeral service of the Anglican Church, was conducted by Rev. C. E. Clarke, of Christ Church, who also officiated at the committal at the graveside. There were many beautiful floral tributes placed about the casket.

The bearers were George Bird, Ray Seeley, Don Cameron, Gordon Chalmers, John Lewis and Kenneth Munnings.

MRS. SARAH ANNE SMITH

Mrs. Sarah Anne Smith died at the home of her son, Wilfred Smith, 57 Everett street, on Saturday evening last at the age of seventy years.

The late Mrs. Smith resided at Moira and about three weeks ago came to Belleville to visit her son when she was taken seriously ill. Her husband, the late Frederick Smith, died about eight years ago.

Surviving are three sons, Wilfred, Belleville; George, Corbyville, Fred, Moira, and two daughters, Mrs. William Thompson, Rossmore, and Mrs. Bert Bell, Belleville.

ARMOUR CROSS

The funeral of the late Armour Cross was held yesterday from the home of his parents, 8th Concession of Tyendinaga, to Roslin Presbyterian Church where in the presence of a legion of sorrowing relatives and friends who filled the church to overflowing an impressive service was conducted by Rev. A. S. Downes after which the interment was made in Roslin Presbyterian Cemetery. There was also a wealth of flowers which acted as silent tokens of sorrow and sympathy.

During the service at the Church Master Allan Donean sang effectively "Three is a place for little children" and Miss E. Donean sang "Looking this way."

The bearers were Masters Armour Colden, Stafford Colden, Walter Colden and Albert Alford.

MISS MARTHA A. JACK

All that was mortal of the late Miss Martha A. Jack was laid to rest in the family plot, Belleville Cemetery on Saturday afternoon last after an impressive funeral service had been conducted at her home, 148 Victoria Avenue, by Rev. A. Graham and Rev. R. G. Stewart. Besides a large attendance at the services there was also a wealth of flowers from sorrowing relatives and friends.

The bearers were Messrs. J. W. Cook, C. A. Cameron, G. R. Sinclair, G. H. M. Arthur, R. Tannahill and J. D. Findlay.

SHORT COURSE WILL START AT MELROSE

About 200 people from all parts of Hamilton township attended a Community gathering at Melrose Hall, Thursday evening and enjoyed the very interesting programme.

The programme consisted of songs, plays and speeches. At the conclusion of the regular programme a motion picture was shown which proved to be of an interesting nature.

Arrangements were then made for the Short Course in Agriculture and Home Economics which is to be held at Melrose commencing Tuesday, Jan. 31st to Feb. 24th.

From present indications there will be a large attendance at these courses.

Newsy Neighborhood Notes

PLAN NEW SYSTEM

Peterboro, Jan. 23.—Dr. A. E. Berry, Director of the Revision of Sanitary Engineering of the Ontario Department of Health, on the invitation of Mayor Denne, visited the local sewage disposal plant, and discussed the plans whereby the plant will become more workable.

Mayor Denne is anxious to have the drying beds and digestive tanks installed in the local plant as soon as possible, so that there will not be the same disagreeable odor in the southern part of the city and surrounding townships this summer as there was last.

67TH BIRTHDAY

Kingston, Jan. 23.—Ex-Mayor C. J. Graham was on Friday receiving the good wishes of his many friends, on the occasion of his celebrating his 67th birthday, of, as he said, "I am 60 years young today."

Ex-Mayor Graham has been in public life for over thirty years, and first entered the City Council in 1899. He was mayor of Kingston in 1911 and warden of Frontenac in 1920, being the only man to hold both positions. Another enviable record he holds is that of being mayor of Kingston and later reeve of Kingston township.

HARBOR JAMMED

Kingston, Jan. 23.—A large amount of drift ice was blown into the Kingston harbor during the storm on Thursday night, and on Friday morning was packed against the La Salle Causeway up as far as the old M. T. Company's dock.

The ice was fairly soft, a great deal of it more "slush", but with no wind, and any kind of cold weather at all, this ice should pack fairly solid and expedite the repairs which are to be made to the vessels wintering in the harbor.

CARRIED BURDEN

Once again Kingston Mills power came to the rescue of this city last night during the break in the Hydro service, owing to trouble caused by the storm. The power from Kingston Mills carried the load in the city practically all night. In this connection it was learned this morning that this service was provided by one unit. A second unit is now being tried out, and is expected to be ready for service about Sunday. This will make another 1500 h.p. available, which will be sufficient power to light the city when the Hydro is cut off.

Final Decision Is Reached After Seventeen Years Of Litigation

Montreal, Jan. 23.—That the way of the litigant is long, hard and expensive was never better proven than by the judgment of the privy council Friday last, condemning the Cedars Rapids Manufacturing and Power company to pay the de Beaujeu estate $120,000 and all costs for certain water rights and one island in the St. Lawrence, 28 miles west of Montreal, which form part of the power development, but has sided in lighting the city since 1915.

The cases lasted seventeen years, minus five days, having opened January 24, 1911. For fifteen years the value of land has ceased to be the real basis of the struggle. Costs were the true issue, and the case ends with the expenses estimated at almost half a million dollars. And while the matter has been in process of adjudication and re-adjudication, four of the main figures linked with it, died — Sir Alexandre Lacoste, who was the representative of the estate; Francois De Sales Bastein, K.C., umpire of the first arbitration board; Hon. Louis Tellier, umpire on the second arbitration board, and Percival W. St. George C.E., the company arbitrator.

Chrysler's tremendous production and rapid growth are the direct results of public recognition of values and savings which only Chrysler Standardized Quality can provide.

Four great lines of cars—"52," "62," "72" and New 112 h.p. Imperial "80"—supplying every price need from $870 to $4685—offered now at prices which upset all previous standards of value—make Chrysler more emphatically than ever before, the unchallenged leader of the industry in motor car quality. See these cars—unchanged in quality—at their sensational values. Ride in them—drive them.

You will then instantly recognize why Chrysler cars—by the most astounding price savings which result from a huge (and rapidly growing public demand—are today more than ever the most marvelous motor car values in their respective price groups.

See the brilliant Chrysler models — "52," "62," "72," and New 112 h.p. Imperial "80"—on display this week at the Motor Promo.

The report of the Anglican representatives who discussed the possibility of reaching a basis for reunion between the Church of England and the Roman See, which was withheld at the request of the Archbishop of Canterbury, has just been issued by Lord Halifax, leading Anglo-Catholic layman and chief among the deputies who conferred with Catholic spokesmen under the late Cardinal Mercier at Malines between 1921 and 1925. It is regarded as certain to intensify the warfare over the prayer book in the Anglican church, as definite Rome-ward tendencies are revealed. (1) Lord Halifax; (2) the late Cardinal Mercier; (3) Most Rev. Randall Davidson, Archbishop of Canterbury; (4) Bishop Barnes of Birmingham, a leader among the evangelical and anti-Rome factors of the Church of England; (5) Bishop of Truro, one of the Anglo-Catholic delegates at the Malines conference.

REGENT THEATRE

In the scenes laid in the Swiss Alps, Menjou appears in a guise different from previous characterizations. Tenderly the versatile clothes of former roles are replaced by sports wear. Men you is seen as a skater of unusual ability in one of the most brilliant ice carnival sequences ever filmed.

Playing the leading feminine role opposite the star, is a new leading woman, Kathryn Carver. Miss Carver's face is well known to the American public as Harrison Fisher's "Ideal American Girl." Thus she was characterized by the celebrated artist and as such she posed for a series of head studies.

Others who appear in the cast are Lawrence Grant, Charles Lane, Sally Blane, Marian Ivy Harris and Louis Thompson.

Harry D'Abbadie D'Arrasi, who makes his debut as a full-fledged Paramount director with this production, handled the megaphone, directing from the original screen story by Ernest Vajda. Benjamin Glazer acted as supervisor for Associate Producer B. P. Schulberg. Regent today.

WORTHLESS CHEQUES PASSED

Toronto, Jan. 21.—A six months' term in prison was imposed today on Ernest Schmaltz of Kitchener, who was arrested later yesterday on a charge of passing worthless cheques. He attempted to evade arrest by jumping from a four-storey window and as a result has been in hospital until the last few days. He pleaded guilty to two charges of forgery in police court.

TILLIE THE TOILER—

LOCAL INTERMEDIATES TO FACE CORNWALL WEDNESDAY EVENING

Maroons Not Discouraged At Set-Back By Kingston

QUEEN'S LEADING

Two More Home Games On Schedule For Belleville

Belleville Intermediates still have a decided chance of getting into the group play-offs and for this reason Manager Thomas will take the strongest team in town on Wednesday for the only game in which the locals are scheduled this week. The boys are not at all down-hearted following the set-back on Friday night at the hands of the Kingston Club, but will invade Cornwall with every hope of taking a full out of the Flying Frenchmen. Royal Military College turned the trick on Friday night and the Maroons feel capable that they can repeat the dose.

On the surface it, looks like Preston ace and Queen's for the title, but at the same time some of the so-called weaker teams are liable to upset the dope pail and put the skids under either of these teams.

Queen's certainly did not look like world-beaters against the Brockville team when they waited until the last two minutes to slip in the winning goals, and the students may be in a slump and Coach Powell needs to be cautious the trickie lest they grow careless.

Belleville has lost two games to date and both of these to the Kingston team, and they must strike hard while against the Cornwall team and make things interesting. Cornwall has defeated here and they are out for revenge in their home fixture and Eddie Thomas and his crew will have their work cut out for them. It is rumored that "Soup" Guyer will not be with the team and in this case Jack Rooney may go along.

Filion, Centanni and Company will give the Maroons a battle all the way.

Brockville have practically finished up the season as far as the Intermed isles are concerned and will confine their efforts to Juniors. A special train is being run to Kingston tonight for the clash with the Frontenac Juniors. Belleville supporters have not met with a great deal of success in a financial way and only a little over a twelve hundred people have attended the three games here. This is a poor showing for a town as large as Belleville and does not lend much encouragement to the management.

HIGH SCHOOL TO OPEN TO-NIGHT

Local Students Will Cross Sticks With Trenton Collegiate

Belleville High School will officially usher in the season at the Arena tonight when they will be at home to the neighboring Trenton High School squad in a scheduled Interscholastic game. Desecrons, called the honors last year but Belleville with their usual same team, hope to reaspture the championship.

Students in the local institution think highly of the team and believe they are good enough to win the group. The services of "Bud" Galway will be lost tonight but "Al" Young, one of the other members, will be with the team.

Gulling, who has been the regular net-minder for the past three seasons will guard the twine tonight. The remainder of the team will be selected from St. Dennis, Young, Ross, Williams and others. Some of the above comers have shown up exceedingly well in the practices and Coach Howard will experience no trouble in putting a strong team against the visitors St. Dennis, "Pig" Ross and Young were with the team last year. Williams, a new lad from Ottawa, is going good and should be able to match his speed with that of the visitors.

The Trenton School team is somewhat of an unknown quantity but they will send a well-balanced team against the homesters from all accounts and the game should be well worth the price of admission. A local official will handle the ball.

LADY BOWLERS

ATTENTION

Owing to the fact that we couldn't get enough bowlers in the C.N.R. Ladies' Afternoon League, we are going to form a new league which will be open to all ladies who care to bowl in the afternoon. We will be glad to hear from all bowlers interested in this league. For further information, Phone 1317.

Belleville Intermediates have but one game on the schedule this week unless in the meantime Manager Thomas arranges to play one of the postponed games here. The Maroons make the long jump to Cornwall on Wednesday and the locals simply must grab this tilt if they hope to remain in the running. At the present time the leadership remains in the hands of the Queen's team but the latter's majority was menaced on Friday night when the Brockville team gave them a great battle and it was only in the last two minutes of play that the students drilled the past Murray that clinched the verdict.

Murray as usual turned in a masterful performance and kept the tri color guessing all the way. The local grips in the opposition cage had goal-minders and the only weak spot appears to be Brooks of the Kingston team. Quinn, of Queens; Bowen, of Belleville; Filion, of Cornwall, and Murray of Brockville, are in a class by themselves.

Kingsmill, of R.M.C., has improved since last season and the Grads found it hard to get past him.

The action of the O.H.A. in suspending Meritons of Brockville, is a timely piece of business and the Association officials are to be commended for their stand. Such an unwarranted attack should bring no mercy from the higher-ups. McTaggart Thrue speedily went after Devlin when his fists and not official had motioned high to the penalty box and it is a certainty that fans will not tolerate such rowdyism or cultural tactics. The officials of the governing body are endeavoring to keep the game clean and the present standard can only be maintained by banishing the rough parties. My sympathy for McInroe has been shown by his appearance with the Brockville and such players will learn that the old and hard rule of clean hockey is the only channel through which players may gain favor with the public. William Duckworthy who has taken over W. A. Hewitt's duties pro tem, is a man up and up on the hockey situation, and those who do not play a fair game are likely to be given the same dose that has been administered to McInroe.

Royal Military College Cadets are a team to be reckoned with as was evidenced by their win over the Cornwall team right in the midst of the Freshmen. The Cadets are out of the race but they will make things interesting for the others.

City League games have been postponed from tonight to tomorrow evening owing to the fact that the High School team are meeting Trenton high school here tonight.

Belleville Juniors play in Picton tonight and the locals should accordingly to the past averages, come back with a win.

Trenton kids will be here on Thursday night to play the postponed game with Eddie Thomas' lads.

According to those who have witnessed some of the games the calibre of hockey at played in Trent Valley League is greatly improved this year. Stirling team is on top of the group at the present time although Tweed and Campbellford are still very much in the fight.

Belleville baseball fans are solidly behind the Club and indications point to a most successful season. Home talent for the most part will fill the positions, Bryce Rowsome and George Griffin will make a good pair to guide the destinies of the Club. Walter Green is a capable manager and is well-liked by the general run of fans and the players. Boost Belleville Baseball —drop the hammer—resign from the anvil chorus, and join the boost era!

Another player's name has appeared on the line-up of the Cornwall hockey team, in Dextras, the fast centre man of two years ago. Dextras was not with them last year season. Both Fellon and Dextras have returned to Cornwall since the opening of the season, from fields u.kr.

RED SOX OPEN WITH NEW SQUAD

Number Of Old Players Pass Out Of The Picture

Boston, Mass., Jan. 23.—A winter of vigorous house cleaning by President Bob Quinn, of the Red Sox, has left the dusty corners of the roster swept clean and a host of new performers mostly young and of more than average promise, ready to hustle the remaining veterans in the 1928 American league pennant race.

Three pitchers, three catchers and the entire 1927 outfield, with the exception of Flagstead, have passed out of the picture in the series of trades, swaps, purchases and releases which have marked President Quinn's off season activities.

Last year's veteran infield has been held intact, and is expected to prove a foundation for Carrigan to build on in his second comeback year along the managerial trail. Phil Todt at first base, Bill Regan at second, Russell Rawlings, third, and Roger Jack Rothrock and Charles "Buddy" Myer at shortstop, or utility points on the base path, are again available.

May Bolster Team

Three promising minor leaguers and Ken Strong of St. Louis, will bolster up the outfield.

The outstanding pitching replacement seems to be Herb Bradley, who was obtained by the Waterbury club in the eastern league last year.

Two more ex-Mobile players have been obtained in Ed Morris and Morrill Stutsenire.

In the catching department, Fred Hoffman remains. The new recruits are Charlie Berry, from Dallas, Texas John Hevling, from the Toledo Amer ican Association: Ed. Doherty, of Holy Cross and Ed. Connolly, a New York state semi-pro.

PLAY BADMINTON CHALLENGE FEB. 1

Ottawa, Jan. 23.—Badminton Club of Ottawa have been challenged by the Kingston Badminton Club for the Kingston Mixed Doubles Trophy. This challenge has been accepted and the cup will be played for on Wednesday afternoon, February 1. The challenging club were the original donors of the cup and defended the Kingston all challenges for a period of 19 years. It is not yet known how many teams will compete but will probably consist of seven or eight. Local badminton enthusiasts are cordially invited to attend these games.

The club also received a challenge for this cup from the Badminton and Racquet Club of Toronto to be played on the same date but the Kingston challenge having been previously received the latter was accepted. Should the Ottawa Club successfully defend the trophy against the Kingston team the Toronto challenge will be accepted later on.

SIX GAMES IN LOCAL LEAGUE

City League Hold Forth At Arena Three Nights This Week

Six games are down on the card in the city league this week and some fine battles are in store for the fanes.

The double-header scheduled for tonight has been laid over until tomorrow evening owing to the fact that the High School team is playing the opening game at the arena tonight. The leadership of the group B will be menaced when Point Anne and the Y's Men meet on Tuesday night. Y's Men have not lost a game and Point Anne in their one appearance dished out some smart hockey. This game will be play ed from eight to nine o'clock on Tuesday night. Following this till the Cubs will meet the Quinte Electrics and the Y's Wednesday Imperial Oil clash with Point Anne at eight o'clock and when the eight-ten after the Inlet Black Hawks cross sticks with the Clucos. On Friday evening the Alerite and Quinte Electrics play an eight o'clock and the Moose and Y's Men finish out a series. These six games will be fast and fans will do well to visit the rink on Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday nights.

YANKS' PROFITS IN BIG FIGURES

According to Secretary Edward G. Barrow, the Yankees last year played to 1,204,000 paid admissions in Colonel Ruppert's Stadium and 982,000 in the other American league parks. From the gross receipts at the Stadium $216,000 was paid to the visiting clubs at the gate head. On the road the Yankees received a similar cut amounting to $170, 000. Consequently the drawing power of the world's champions netted a total of $1,118,000 for the New York American league club.

These interesting figures show why some of the major league clubs can afford to pay unheard-of prices for young minor league stars. The Yankees, for instance, recently purchased the release of Lary and Reese from the Baltic Coast club for $125,000, then by outbidding several wealthy competitors, Charles A. Comisky, owner of the Chicago White Sox, also handed over $123,000 to another Coast league magnate for a kid shortstop named Cissel.

What were the Yankees' expenses and profits? Official figures are not available but smart baseball men give estimates that can be taken for what they are worth. If is believed that the New York American league club's gate receipts were about $797,000, as follows:

Salaries of players, manager, executives and scouts, $425,000; railway transportation, $30,000; hotels, $25,000; baseballs, $10,000; grounds, $15,000; ticket sellers, gatemen and ushers, $20,000; printing and advertising, $15,000; clerk hire, postage and telegrams, $10,000; purchased players, $150,000.

If these figures are fair, the profits of the Yankee owners must have been in excess of $400,000 on baseball alone. From football and boxing it is thought that the club's share reached $300,000 additional. Since 1919 Col Ruppert has spent at least $600,000 for new players, including $125,000 for Babe Ruth and the same amount for Lary and Reese, who will not report until next year. The players' salaries for the last ten years have consumed nearly $2,500,000.

A hotel and restaurant will be features of the airport to be erected by the chamber of commerce of Lyon, France.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

Belleville, January 20th, 1928.

To the Editor of The "Intelligencer"

Dear Mr. Editor:—

At last we have more than a reasonable chance to get good, clean Senior Baseball in our City.

As one having pledged financial support to our new Club, I wish to congratulate the Citizens of Belleville in their choice of executives to operate the team. Their choice without a single exception pleases me very much. To me it means just one thing—that we are going to see a team take the field, composed almost exclusively of our local boys. This assures clean sporty ball.

In the past we have all been fed up on the non-working type of player who has tried to professionalize our amateur national game, whose only interest in sport lay in its financial return.

Belleville is to be congratulated that the new team is a team of workers and in whom Baseball is an expression of their love of Sport.

In the selection of officers for the coming season of the club, I cannot but feel that every office is very suitably filled. Through some I could not attend the meeting but the selection was just what I wished. From the President down, every member of the executive is a live citizen. They are all occupying responsible positions in the business life of our City. We are lucky to be able to get men of their type to give up their very limited leisure in the interest of clean sport in our city.

In appointing Walter Gerow as Manager of the team the executive have made an excellent choice. He is an able baseball man and a natural leader. Belleville is fortunate in having such a man as Mr. Gerow to lead their boys in what I feel is going to be our big baseball year.

I would like to see every good sport in our city. Let us all get behind the new organization—boost it—help it along by our presence at the games—and—above all, by throwing away our hammers.

Yours to the last inning is played,

THE BAT-BOY.

BRIGHT OUTLOOK FOR PHILLIES

Burton Hopes To Finish Near Top Of National League

Philadelphia, Jan. 23.—With a raft of new players, a seasoned first baseman and additions to the pitching staff, not to mention the inspiring influence of Burt Shotton, the new man ager signed for two years, the Philadelphia Nationals face the 1928 baseball campaign looking through rose-colored spectacles.

The most notable addition to the team is George Kelley, first baseman bought from Minneapolis, who has been a successful minor league first sacker for five years and completed 44 homers two years ago with Buffalo. Fresco Thompson will be back on second base. The other infield holdovers will return to his old position at short and Irish Dietrich, of Portsmouth, Va., will be fixed underfoot.

Third Base Scrap

A struggle for third base will take place between Barney Friberg, a near veteran, and A. C. Whitney, erstwhile New Orleans player and would-be batsman infielder in the Southern Association last year. One of the two will round utility men in the National league, Roggy Wrightstone, will be available for emergency duty.

"Y" BASKETEERS MEET KINGSTON

Local Girls Preparing For Visit Of Limestone Lassies

Wednesday evening of this week two basketball teams from the Kingston Association will pay a visit to the local Y. Phil Brickell formerly of the Belleville Association will bring with him both a ladies and a mens team, the latter playing their scheduled K. C. A. B.A. fixture.

To date the Y Intermediate's have one win and two losses chalked up against them and they are out to bat nice the account on Wednesday evening if at all possible. In their game against Queens here Wednesday night, the Campbell St. Aggregation were not at full strength but it is hoped to have the full team out to oppose the King stonians in this next fixture.

The local Y Girls will doubtless find plenty of opposition in the girls team which covers representing the Kingston Association. On the occasion of their meeting last year the girls from the Lime Stone City proved just a little too strong for Belleville Girls but the latter have advanced several stazes over their games of a year ago and can be depended upon to give a good account of themselves. This, the opening game will take place at 8.15 p.m.

MARTIN-HARVEY'S ILLNESS

London, Jan. 21.—Sir John Martin-Harvey is progressing satisfactorily after an operation for an intestinal obstruction at the Middlesex Hospital today. The eminent Knglish actor, who is a Canadian born, was stricken suddenly yesterday. He passed a good night and his recovery is considered only a matter of three weeks or so. He is 65 years of age.

The twirling corps is stronger than in recent years. It consists of Frank Ulrich, Claude Willoughby, Alex Ferguson, Art Bowerman, right-handers, and Clarence Mitchell, Herb Pruett and Lester Reynolds, southpaws.

In the outfield, Cy Williams, who tied with Hack Wilson for home run honors last year with nine, will probably alternate with Denny Sothern. Centre field will be guarded by Fred Leach, a deadly hitter in the outfield while Dick Spalding will hold forth at left.

The catching department is led by Captain Johnny Wilson with Schulte and O'Donnell in reserve.

Piles are caused by congestion of blood in the lower bowel. Only an internal remedy can remove the delphia Nationals face the 1928 baseball campaign looking through rose-colored spectacles.

The most notable addition to the team is George Kelley, first baseman bought from Minneapolis, who has been a successful minor league first sacker for five years and completed 44 homers two years ago with Buffalo. Fresco Thompson will be back on second base. The other infield holdovers will return to his old position at short and Irish Dietrich, of Portsmouth, Va., will be fixed underfoot.

Third Base Scrap

A struggle for third base will take place between Barney Friberg, a near veteran, and A. C. Whitney, erstwhile New Orleans player and would-be batsman infielder in the Southern Association last year. One of the two will round utility men in the National league, Roggy Wrightstone, will be available for emergency duty.

Famous Director of Dance Orchestra Refuses to Play Jazz

Louis Lilienfeld Plays Dance Music Twenty Years Without Jazz

New York City—Modern jazz finds no champion in Louis Lilienfeld, director of the Hotel Biltmore Orchestra who is playing "modern music as he played it twenty years ago.

Lilienfeld holds the record in this jazz-mad age—he has played every day for the last twenty-odd years, and never in that time has his orchestra, the Hotel Biltmore Orchestra who is playing "modern music as he played it twenty years ago.

Lilienfeld holds the record in this jazz-mad age—he has played every day for the last twenty-odd years, and never in that time has his orchestra, the Hotel Biltmore Orchestra who is playing "modern music as he played it twenty years ago.

"Jazz takes beauty and grace out of dancing and reduces it to physical clownishness that is neither graceful nor decorous," declares Lilienfeld. "Worse than that, it makes dancing a crazy thing to look at."

Lilienfeld, a famous conductor of the classic dance music of Vienna, and gives considerable attention to new dance numbers that retain the swinging melody of the old tunes. That he has more accurately appreciated the desires of the crowd than those in charge at the Biltmore, is proved by results and old time dance numbers are strangely enough popular at college clubs, and private dances of New York's younger set. When the jazz epidemic hit New York, Lilienfeld simply resorted it. His friends, other prominent directors, told their leader he was warned him that he might be wiser to change his step. They argued at least a half-way measure. "Put some jazz in your programs," they said, "your orchestra will find yourself losing prestige, if you don't keep modernized." But Lilienfeld could not see the sense of that way, he didn't feel that way about jazz. His friends were wrong. In the music of New York, Lilienfeld holds a job.

"Jazz is not as many beautiful non-jazz tunes written now as there were twenty years ago. It's all in the way a number is interpreted," explained Lilienfeld. "Selutz"—as Italian in flavor as Santa Lucia—is butchered if jazzed. I always choose music of this type. Perfect dance rhythm but string effects predominate. Special expression so charmingly in Italian friendly greetings. In a truly musical mood, "Selutz" is an excellent example of beautiful dance music which is not jazz. The very title has expression. The music has caught all the wistful charm of the Italian scenery and the lyrics the dulce far niente spirit of the Italian people."

Aviation Branches Springing Up In Many Canadian Cities --- Relief Promised to Railway Unions

AVIATION LEAGUE WILL AFFILIATE WITH BRITISHERS

Governor-General Solidly Behind Efforts To Promote Flying

TWENTY BRANCHES

Vice-Regal Authority Finds Long Train Jumps Tedious

Ottawa, Jan. 24.—Branches of the Aviation League of Canada are forming in twenty-two cities and within a year we should have at least four branches," the Governor General declared, president of the league informed the first annual meeting today. General McBrien read cable messag of good wishes from the air league of the British Empire and it was agreed the Canadian organization should apply for affiliation with the British.

His Excellency the Governor General, as Patron-In-Chief, visited the League meeting. He came "to express my pleasure and pride" on being offered the position and the hope that the league would do much to promote aviation in all its branches throughout the Dominion.

"General McBrien he said, "has been conducting a cort of Midlothian campaign across Canada in order to establish this league which is of great importance in this country of ours, as distances." He was sure that the government would be delighted to feel that an organization such as the League was being created to foster safe and efficient aviation. "Canada must not be left behind," he added. "I hope before long you will find gre flying over to spy out land and observe your good work. I confess that as Governor General I find long train trips rather tedious and if you can organize perfectly safe air service for the Governor-General I shall be extremely grateful."

WIFE OF FORMER PREMIER DIES

Lady Roblin, a Prince Edward Girl, Passes Away In Winnipeg

Winnipeg, Jan. 24.—Lady Roblin, wife of the late Sir Redmond Roblin, former Premier of Manitoba, died here today. She had been in poor health for the past five years. Lady Roblin was a native of Prince Edward County.

Lady Roblin's maiden name was Adelaide Donallie and she resided in the Township of Sophiasburg, Prince Edward County. Her husband was one of the many men of this district who sought foreign fields and by steady persistent work brought honor to himself.

Sir Redmond Roblin was the son of a farmer in Prince Edward County, James Platt Roblin. After securing his early education in his home district, he attended Albert College, Belleville, movine to Winnipeg in 1871. He was elected to the Manitoba Legislature in 1892 and was shortly afterwards made leader of the Opposition. In 1900 he formed a Government and became Premier. He was later Commissioner of Railways and Minister of Agriculture. Sir Redmond resigned in 1915. Later he was knighted. Lady Roblin was always prominent in society circles in Winnipeg. Burial will take place in Winnipeg.

PLUMBERS GASSED BY MONOXIDE FUMES

Stanley Harris, Wendal Kellar and Geo. Dusberry, all employees of Howe Bros. plumbing and heating Company, were all slightly gassed on Saturday afternoon while inviating an Oil-O-Matic burner in the Riggs' Garage.

The trio suffered from the effects of monoxide gas coming from the pit where they were working. Mr. Loy Howe was called at the time and the trio were taken to their respective homes.

They were able to resume their work at the plumbing establishment today. One of them was confined to his bed over the week-end and was given medical attention.

AMERYS GUESTS OF PREMIER KING

Ottawa, Jan. 24.—Col. Amery's visit to Ottawa continues extremely interesting not only officially and socially, but in the matter of sports. Before breakfast in the morning, the Dominion Secretary goes on a short ski run through the grounds of Rockcliffe Park adjoining Government House Gardens.

To-day, Col. Amery will address the Canadian Club of Ottawa, while Mrs. Amery will be the guest of Lady Borden at luncheon. To-night, both Col. and Mrs. Amery will be guests of Premier King at a private dinner, at Laurier House.

RAILWAY UNIONS PROMISED AID BY GOVERNMENT

Deputation Urges Better Protection At Dangerous Crossings

SAFETY EQUIPMENT

Would Prevent Senate From Vetoing Bills Passed In House

Ottawa, Jan. 24—Continuation of representations made by the legislative committee of the railway unions was organized by the government today. It was also arranged that the committee should take up the prepared legislative enactments respecting railway matters with the Hon. Charles Dunning, Minister of Railways and Canals. The committee was received by Premier King and members of the cabinet, and Hon. L. C. M. Murray, British Secretary for the Dominions, was present during the brief conference.

Amendments in R. N. A.

Ottawa, Jan. 24—Better protection of level crossings was urged on the government today when legislative committee of Railway Unions met Premier King and members of his cabinet at noon. The committee asked for the amendments to the immigration act and criminal code along the lines of measures in the House by the government at the last session but defeated in the Senate. In this connection the committee argued that the British North America act be so amended as to prevent the senate from vetoing bills passed by the House of Commons more than twice.

With respect to level crossings, a memorandum, presented to the government, urged that crossings should be equipped "A1" by watchman, "B" by gates "C" by bell signals, or other means which will require the driving of all vehicles to stop or at least slow down before passing over level crossings, unless absolutely sure of no danger ahead. The committee was in favor of leaving the highways unimproved unless seven hundred feet of railway crossings to force traffic to slow up.

NON-STOP FLIGHT IN TINY PLANE

Harry Brooks Hops Off On Detroit To Miami Trip

Detroit, Jan. 24.—Harry Brooks, piloting a flivver plane took off at seven fifteen today on a projected non-stop flight to Miami, Fla. The plane carried 44 gallons of gasoline in the wing tanks. Brooks said he planned to get 24 miles to a gallon and to complete the flight in fourteen hours. He carried no food and only one quart of drinking water. With a wing spread of less than twenty feet, the plane is believed by its designers capable of negating the fourteen hundred mile journey on half its gas load. Tests of this ship have showed a gasoline consumption of only a fraction more than 2 gal lons per hundred miles. The plane is powered by 170 cu. inch cylinder motor.

"LINDY" CONTINUES TRIP TOWARD SOUTH

Critobal, Canal Zone, Jan. 24.—Dieu Genne Costes and Joseph Lebrix French fliers, were expected here this day from Barranquilla, Columbia, about four hundred miles distant. Col. Lindberg who intends to stop at for Bogota, Columbia, early Friday was understood to be pleased that French fliers did not venture to fly there as he likes to do what others do not. Costes and Lebrix who are hurrying towards New York, said they had no time to waste on bad landing fields which are the fliers' ability nor value of his plane.

SCOUR COUNTRY FOR TRACES OF MISSING STUDENT

Nation's Searchlights Trained Across American Continent

FATHER ASSISTS

$10,000 Reward Stimulates Interest For Clues Of College Girl

New York, Jan. 24.—A little college girl whose very existence was never known outside her own small circle until she mysteriously disappeared from the quiet campus of Smith College, today became a figure of almost national importance and one in whose welfare millions of people had suddenly become interested.

The pastime of the waiting parents and sought the inauguration of the title and today probably no face was better known or more watched for, at least by the eastern states, than that of the girl with the most common name in all the country.

Two Governors have been drawn into the search, Alvan T. Fuller, of Massachusetts, and Alfred E. Smith, of New York, both fathers themselves and so in position to sympathize with the missing girl's parents.

It was on January 13—Friday—that Miss Frances St. John Smith was missed from college from which two years ago Miss Gladys Lloyd, another student, disappeared and was not been heard from.

Since then the searchlights of publicity have been trained all across the country and even across the ocean to foreign shores. No trace of her has been found, but unlike most disappearances once the hue and cry has not died down with the passing of time, but has steadily increased.

Tangier, Morocco, Jan. 24.—Miss Mercedes Gleitz, London typist, was almost drowned in a futile attempt to swim the Straits of Gibraltar today. She entered the water at 12.06 a.m. and after swimming for five hours was caught in a whirlpool and nearly drowned. She abandoned the swim. On reaching land Miss Gleitz, who seemed greatly distressed at the failure, said she would abandon all further attempts to swim the 27 mile stretch of water. She showed no signs of exhaustion.

S. B. ROLLINS IS CHOSEN WARDEN HASTINGS COUNTY

Reeve Tweed Village Has High Honors Bestowed On Him

NO OPPOSITION

New Warden Prominent In Fraternal And Civic Affairs

Sam E. Rollins, of Tweed was selected as Warden for the County of Hastings at the opening session of the year at Shire Hall this afternoon. The members were in caucus about half an hour.

The new Warden well merits the honors that have been bestowed upon him having been prominent in Municipal affairs for the past twelve years. Mr. Rollins has resided in the Village of Tweed practically all his life where he successfully conducted a flour and feed business.

He was born in Huntingdon Township, a son of the late James Rollins and Matilda McCard Ireland. He was educated in the common school and in the Ontario Business College of Belleville, in 1897 he married Miss Elizabeth Margaret Ann Murray of Huntingdon Township and from this union one son and two daughters were born.

For the past thirteen years he has served well and faithfully as Reeve of the village of Tweed and although he was faced with a hard fight in the recent elections he emerged triumphant.

The new Warden has been prominent in Fraternal affairs and is a member of the Loyal Orange Lodge as well as Tweed A.F. & A.M. He is a brother in the Independent Order of Oddfellows. Always a Conservative in politics he has taken an active part in political affairs. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church and a prominent member of the congregation.

He took up his residence in Tweed in 1888 and for twenty-five years was the proprietor of a baking business and flour and feed store. Since the year 1920 he has lived a retired life in Tweed.

He was Chairman of the Finance and Property Committee in 1918 and has always been a member of that committee. His elevation to the office of Warden of the County for the year 1926 is a well earned honor and he will unanimously popular with his confreres around the Council Board.

YOUTHFUL BANDITS SECURE SMALL HAUL

Love is love forevermore.

BYRD'S PLANS

Commander Richard Byrd, who has a North Pole flight to his credit, among other aviation feats, is now preparing for a flight across the South Pole, and contemplates starting on his venture on September 10 next. Both Poles have long since been conquered by the old method of trudging over the wastes of ice and snow by foot, assisted by the never-tiring Eskimo dogs. Robert E. Peary tried for years to reach the North Pole and refused to give up despite many failures His first attempt was in 1891, and he tried again in 1893-95, in 1898-1902, in 1905-06, and finally in 1908-09, when, on the 6th day of April in the latter year, he achieved his life's ambition. On one of his sorter trips Peary was accompanied by his young wife and had the distinction of being presented with a baby girl, Marion, while within the Arctic Circle. When Peary arrived back in civilization in 1909 he was greeted with the news that Dr. Cook had already returned from the Pole, which was a great disappointment to him, although he was rightly convinced that Dr. Cook's claim was ill-found ed; it was finally disproved, but Peary's disappointment made the rest of his life bitter, and there were always people ready to cast doubt on his achievement. The South Pole race also had its bitterness for the contestants. While the Scott expedition was preparing for the Antarctic adventure Roald Amundsen was projecting a new seven-year Arctic expedition with Man sen's ship, the Fram, but suddenly he changed his plans and made a dash for the South Pole. This was in 1911 and on the 14th of December in that year Amundsen, and his companions and his dogs, planted the Norwegian flag on the South Pole. The party had found conditions less difficult than they had anticipated and they stayed at the Pole, taking observations until the 18th, when they made the return journey. While they were going back to civilization, Scott's party were struggling down successfully, but their disappointment must have been great when they reached their goal and found that Amundsen had forestalled them. The British expedition perished on the return, having run out of fuel oil and provisions, and been overcome by hurricane weather. Their names were added to a list of about a thousand men who had given their lives in search for the Poles.

SPIRIT OF VERMONT

The work of the November floods in Vermont had drastic values in the news. But the tug-of-war afterwards and even now, in reconstruction and recovery has had a no less engrossing finale.

Putting the loss over the entire state at not less than 25 millions of dollars distributed among a population of about 350,000, the nature of the catastrophe may be better realized. Seven millions of this has fell upon the high ways and not far from ten millions upon individuals with negligible insurance.

It is a testimonial to the dogged persistence of the down east Vermonter that the federal investigator who was sent at intervals to line up the situation heard not a word of complaint—not a single request for help.

It is a testimonial to the thrift of the Vermonter that the state public debt is only slightly over a million. The legislature has been able to finance the rehabilitation to the extent of several millions.

But apart from that, individual self help has put its best foot forward in the work of reconstruction. An organization of leading business men has guaranteed or underwritten credits up to the reasonable needs of suspended or wrecked industrial concerns. Confidence has been restored for Vermont business men are good risks.

Those who have had to grin and bear it on the farms and in the villages have done so without general complaint. The Vermonter lit apparently taking his flood experience with the indomitable courage of what is called a New England cruelchee.

ADVICE TO PRESS

Certainly if the newspapers aren't what they ought to be, it is not for want of advice. The man who is willing to admit his knowledge does not include the operation of departmental stores or electric locomotives is always perfectly certain he could run a newspaper. He knows what should be put in, and particularly what should be left out, and if there are two of them they proceed to pass an amiable resolution to tell the editor his shortcomings.

A clerical organization in Western Ontario passed one of these resolutions the other day. It asked the press "to be more careful about what they publish in the interests of the young." The phraseology is a bit careless and would earn no commendation for the youngest reporter, but we know what they mean. It is implied that newspapers—presumably Ontario newspapers—are careless of what they publish in the interests of the young." Readers of Canadian newspapers know this is a gross exaggeration.

Newspaper publishers face peculiar difficulties. If their paper is dull people will not buy it. If the editor excludes crime and scandal from his pages many, many people declare indignantly that he's an old fogey and rush out to buy the newest tabloid. Without public support the paper cannot pay its way and thus is at the mercy of all sorts of influences which may be prejudicial to the public interest. In other words a newspaper can serve its community only by becoming first of all a financial success and it cannot achieve and retain this happy position unless the public in sufficient numbers buy it and read it.

If we are bright and entertaining, publishing judiciously such murders and other unusual events as Providence permits to occur, people buy and read the paper; even though the rigid moralists, after reading it, sit down to write the editor or call together their brethren to pass a few resolutions. If we are dull and censorious, excluding all that is painful or frivolous, the moralists may give us their ponderous support but the great buying Public keeps its pennies in its pocket, since it is the habit of the people to buy only that which pleases them.

Perhaps it is lamentable but it is true that the average gathering of men and women shows an utter lack of interest in the annual report of the library board or the season's program of the League of Nations but is eager to exchange views on the latest sensational murder. The interest in crime may be the result of newspaper publicity, or the publicity may be more ly the reaction to an insatiable popular demand—frankly, we do not know which is the cause and which the effect. But this generation of publishers and readers has to deal with a state of mind which exists, and not with theories of ultimate perfection.

Lord Rothermere, British publisher, and his party of associates had a chance to wear real cowboy togs when they visited the farm of Amon G. Carter at Fort Worth, Texas, the other day. The lord and his comrades felt fit and fine under 10-gallon hats, with ranchers coats and real Texas bandanas.

RUSSET AND GOLD
(Chicago Daily News)

russet and gold! Was it yesterday
The hillsides flaunted their grand array
Of Tilian tints in patterns gay?
Alas! Their glory has passed away!
When change was wrought, in a passing night,
To newer beauty of spotless white,
My thoughts were not of the chilling mold,
But backward turned to russet and gold.

Across the hearth, in her old arm chair,
My good wife sits, and the firelight glare
Tenderly touches her snowy hair.
To me no traces of time are there:
Only a picture of yesterday,
Illumined there by the firelight's play
Joy of my life, as she was of old,
Crowned with a wealth of russet and gold.

Just Stories

It is believed that the present Governor of North Ireland, Lord Abercorn, will retire in the present year. He will most likely be succeeded by Lord Craigavon, better known as Sir James Craig, the present premier. The duke will probably remain in office until after the visit of the Prince of Wales next May to lay the foundation stone for the new Parliament House at Belfast. H. M. Pollock, the present minister of finance, or J. M. Andrews, the minister of labor, are spoken of as Craigavon's successors.

x x x

There is a story told of Hon. L. S. Amery, when in 1917 he was sent to the Balkans front on a rather vague mission. His commanding officer there, having no particular use for his services, and being rather contemptuous of soldier M.P.'s in general, thrust into his hand a handbook on Serbia. "There you are, Capt. Amery," he said. "Go away and amuse yourself trying to digest that book in the next six weeks." "Very good, sir," said Amery. "I'll try; I think I can digest the book in six weeks—as I wrote it in there!" An other story is to the effect that in a campaign meeting at Wolverhampton a certain local sailor called Mr. Amery a "short and ugly" nadle. The candidate paused and said that he would deal with his detractor in due course. Next day Mr. Amery called at the tailor's shop and "mopped the floor with him." As a result he was fined two guineas and costs on a charge of assault and battery. A penny subscription was taken up to defray the fine and costs, and the popular view was the candidate that there was sufficient over to purchase him a gold watch.

FOR RHEUMATISM

BAYER ASPIRIN

Perhaps you didn't realize that Aspirin tablets are made to relieve the deep-down rheumatic aches as well as dispel the occasional headache. They do! In cases of neuralgia, neuritis, lumbago; for those pains that penetrate one's very bones, Aspirin tablets offer real relief. Just be sure you are getting the real Aspirin, with Bayer on each tablet and on the box—with proven directions inside. All druggists.

Physicians prescribe Aspirin; it does NOT affect the heart

Aspirin is the trade mark registered in Canada indicating Bayer Manufacture. While it may well mean that the tablets contain Acetyl-salicylic acid, to assure the public against imitations, the tablets will be stamped with their "Bayer Cross" trademark.

REGULAR MEETING.

A regular meeting of the Parks Board was held in the Council Chamber last evening when only routine business was discussed. Mr. Scott, caretaker of the Exhibition Grounds in 1927, was again appointed to serve in that capacity.

JOINT BANQUET THURSDAY.

W. Z. Bell, B.S.A., Principal of the Agricultural College at Kemptville, will be the speaker at the banquet to be given at the Quinte Hotel on Thursday night next by the City Council and Chamber of Commerce to the members of the County Council and County officials.

MANY AT LECTURE.

Over one hundred were in attendance last evening at the lecture given by [illegible] Fenton at St. Thomas' Parish Hall, under the auspices of the A.Y.P.A. Col. Fenton spoke on Canadian and English Literature and unusual he held his hearers spellbound as he reviewed the outstanding events of those two countries.

TO PLAY EXHIBITION GAME

An exhibition game of hockey is being arranged for this Saturday evening at 8 p.m. at Victoria Rink between the employees of the Port Hope Times and Daily Intelligencer, at Arnott's arena. A letter was received this morning from Lamont Mason of the Times that he was bringing a fast team here of employees only and that the local inducitory will also use only employees who are on the pay sheet of this office. Already the locals are down to hard training and a good game will likely result. Queensbury rules will be the order of the game.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

A most delightful children's party was held at the home of Mrs. W. H. Coulby, 154 Albert street, yesterday afternoon in honor of little Margaret Coulby's fourth birthday. About twenty little boys and girls were in attendance. Supper was served in the dining-room at tiny tables. Assisting in serving and entertaining little Margaret were Mrs. Glen McKinnon, Mrs. O. R. Thompson and Mrs. Cress. During the afternoon all manner of [illegible] games were played and the little tots had a most wonderful time. The party broke up about seven o'clock.

NO ACCIDENTS

Despite treacherous roads no accidents were reported to the police last night. This week there has been singularly few accidents in Belleville and vicinity.

L. O. L. PARTY

A dance was also present last evening at the bi-monthly card party and dance held under the auspices of the L.O.L. Lodge of this city. Following the euchre playing a supper was served after which dancing was indulged for some time. Mr. Jack Denmark furnished the music for dancing. The card prize winners were: Ladies 1st, Mrs. M. Stark; 2nd, Mrs. E. Smith, 3rd. Mrs. C. Johnson; Men 1st, Mr. Baldwin, Ottawa; 2nd, C. J. Martin, 3rd, G. Johnson.

The bearers were Messrs. H. Ross, H. Hall, A. Carrison and T. Mills.

SHARKEY REFUSES TO BOX SECOND RATERS

Boston, Jan. 24.—Jack Sharkey will box Gene Tunney for the heavyweight championship, Madison Square Garden bowl, Sept. 23, in which an offer to match the Boston sailor with Johnny Risko, Cleveland heavyweight, was definitely rejected. Bartley Madden, McMahon that his man was through with eliminations of the type of the proposed Risko bout and in addition put the possibility of a fight with Jack Delaney.

ANOTHER EXPENSIVE APARTMENT HOUSE

Chicago.—The Chicago Herald and Examiner says that Robert Rosenwald, Chicago business man, plans to erect a model housing project, paralleling the recently announced $10,000,000 similar development of the Marshall Field estate.

The newspaper says Mr. Rosenwald already has acquired a property on the south side and that work will be used as a unit and that formal announcement of his development will be made soon after construction of the first project is started.

Occupancy of the first unit of the Marshall Field apartments is also expected about October 1, according to George Richardson, representative of the estate. Mrs. Ellen McKinnon, who plow have already been approved.

Excavation for the memorial project, it is understood, is contingent on the success of the Marshall Field plan.

$12,000 FIRE AT THE SOO

Sault Ste. Marie, January 24.—Fire breaking out early yesterday from an unknown cause, resulted in a loss of $12,000 to the stock in a vacant hotel at 81 Goulais Avenue and two adjoining buildings. Most of the damage was divided between the hotel, a three-story frame structure owned by Scarfone and Marco, and a frame store and dwelling owned by J. A. Savoy.

HUGE SUM TO BE SPENT ON FALLS

For Preservation Of Scenic, Beauty Spots—Joint Expenditure

Ottawa—The joint expenditure by Canada and the United States of $1,750,000 is recommended by a special international board to preserve the scenic beauty of Niagara Falls.

The board finds that the recession upstream of the crestline, the cubical action of abnormally low run-off years, in the great lakes system and the with drawal of water for power and sanitary purposes have all united directly over the beauty of the falls. The mean rate of recession of the crest of the active portion of the falls since 1842 has been 3.2 feet annually, and 2.3 feet since 1906.

It is the opinion of the board that with joint supervision and action by the two governments in the future, much of the falls can be perpetuated, and to accomplish this certain remedial work is recommended.

The most serious injury to the spectacle as a whole is the progressive cutting bare of the Goat Island shelf and the Canadian flank. The other principal damage is that to the limestone cap of the American Falls and of the rapids above both falls and to the bar between Three Sister Islands and Goat Island.

Estimates Prepared

While the out of the works of a comprehensive nature recommended cannot be foretold with exactness, estimates have been prepared with an intimate care as to the nature of the work permits, and are submitted as follows:

For works at the United States flank of the Horseshoe Falls, $250,000; channel and contingencies, $150,000.

For works at the Canadian flank of the Horseshoe Falls, $200,000; channel and contingencies, $100,000.

For works in the Chippewa-Grass Island pool, $500,000; channel and contingencies, $300,000.

Total, $1,750,000.

TOO MUCH HASTE SPOILED PAINTINGS

Washington.—Haste of many of the great masters to furnish their works of art at the "ravening demand of that dirtiest, Hunger," caused many of their paintings to maintain precedence only a short time, in the opinion of Dr. Adolf Wrbiik, Viennese art critic.

"It should not be surprising," he said here, "if, among 1,000 paintings, several hundred will be found to be shortlived because of the haste used in finishing them. Many of the great masters resorted to this haste, and the work they turned out under such conditions reflects this fact.

Dr. Wrbiik defended certain work of John Singer Sargent, which recently were branded as worthless because of defects in the materials employed.

"We should not pluck leaves from the laurels fruitfully bestowed by Sargent," he said. "but rather add to them." Sargent's masterpieces, he added, were "no more worthless today than are Raphael's or those of other old masters."

"Did not four of Raphael's paintings have to be restored within the first years after his death by the Bolognese master, Francesco Primaticcio?" he asked.

SHOE FACTORY DESTROYED

Quebec, January 24.—The shoe factory of Leclerc and Sons on Montmarquette street, in Saint Sauveur ward, was destroyed by fire last night. The flames started for two hours in an attempt to extinguish the blaze. The factor had an output of 3,000 pairs of shoes a week. No estimate of the damage had been made early today.

TODAYS MARKETS

Chicago, Jan. 24.—Reports of high winds in Kansas and persistent dearth of moisture in the large areas southwest of that state caused many traders to buy wheat in full quantities today after its mid downturns. Corn prices developed firmness owing largely to delayed movement over the corn belt. Starting at 1-12 to 1-2 decline wheat later rose in some cases to above yesterday's finish. Corn opened 1-4c off to 3-8c up and subsequently advanced still more. Oats likewise tended to hard en.

Five Empire drills have been ordered for immediate delivery by Massey-Harris Mfg. Co., and additional will be sent into the company's property with a crew of 20 men next week, under direction of I. E. Drummond, E.M.

Operations will be commenced at a point on the north end of the river three miles from Peers, on the Canadian National Railways, which is 120 miles due west of Edmonton, and drilling crews will proceed on new ground to the south and east of Sudbury. This section of the company's leases which embraces 20 square miles, is the property best tested in a preliminary manner and promises unusually good values.

Laval has optioned the old Massey Power Manufacturing Co. property. The property was operated a number of years ago and has fair chances, according to reports received by Mount and Macgillivray.

Macassa is going ahead with drawing out of the shaft, which has a depth of 600 feet. This will be carried to a greater able time, as the lateral work underground is further exploration completed. This exploration will include extensive diamond drilling, particularly in the west portion of the property, as well as shaft sinking to a depth of 2,700 feet. It will be over-crowding to the extent prior to march the favorable horizon, particularly in the east portion of the property. This work has fair chances of locating ore. What its extent will be cannot be determined, but the work is well advanced several months from now.

Canadian Kirkland has voted to reduce its property to two new companies, each capitalized at $2,000,000, which will have formed. One of these companies will take over the old Field-by property close to Bidwood, while the other will take over the Canadian Kirkland property south of the Hunton. We have not the details as yet as to what interest Canadian Kirkland will obtain in the new companies. It is proposed to immediately start work on both properties. They can be considered as interesting prospects.

DOMINION UPHELD; BANKRUPTCY LAW

London, — The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council today dismissed the appeal of the Attorney-General of Quebec in a case involving the bankruptcy laws of the Dominion. The Attorney-General of the Dominion was interested in the case.

Their Lordships answer affirmatively the first important question involved: whether under the Bankruptcy Act a judicial liquidator or security in bankruptcy of real estate of a debtor resulting from registration under the Quebec civil code, should be postponed to the Dominion authorized assignment for the benefit of creditors.

Under the second question, whether Section 11 of the Bankruptcy Act of 1919 was within the powers of the Dominion Parliament or was an infringement of the exclusive power given the Provinces to provide as basic control over civil rights, their Lordships are of the opinion that the exclusive authority given the Dominion Parliament to deal with all matters arising within the Dominion Bankruptcy Act enables that Parliament to determine by legislation the relative priorities of creditors under a bankruptcy or authorized assignment.

BIG BOSS DOWNTOWN MEEK IN OWN HOME

There are wives who set out deliberately to make their husbands afraid of them. Many more wives, however, achieve that result without trying, without wishing it.

It is astonishing how many really capable, virile dynamic men there are who become as subdued as a well-trained pup the moment they set their feet inside the house. Outside they may be powerful in the business world. Inside they are as meek as lambs. In the world of affairs their word may carry the greatest weight. In the home what they say counts for less than the chatter of the pet parrot.

When a man is afraid of his wife it does not mean necessarily that he does not love her. On the contrary, his fear may be the direct result of his love.

In the courting stage men not only idealize women, they almost always overidealize them to an absurd extent. Despite disillusionment afterwards, something of the idealism sticks. And so we find them continuing to look up and revere with a certain kind of fear and trepidation, even when their common sense tells them they are making fools of themselves.

The mother complex has a lot to do with it also. In fact, it is the basic cause of man's fear of woman.

The mother was the first to say "don't." She it was who corrected and punished. The mother was the child's real boss, much more of a boss and much more to be feared than the father.

Even when the mother is gentle, kind and considerate, the child is somewhat afraid of her. Is it not the mother who teaches the child self-control in matters of physiological necessity; and does not every child, without exception, develop a certain amount of shame and guilt towards the mother because of it?

Then again, every man realizes that woman secures intuitive, divines things, makes what seem to be guesses, but which hit the bull's-eye surprisingly often. Therefore he wonders what she will say, what she suspects, of what she may accuse him.

And he often gets so after a while that even if he has nothing to fear and nothing to hide he feels guilty just the same.

Lastly, few men really understand women. A woman to the average husband is most mysterious and puzzling, more or less incomprehensible than Einstein's theories of relativity. And whatever is mysterious is fear-inspiring.

The worst of it is that women themselves do not relish fearful and intimidated husbands. When men help in the housework and wash the dishes when it is not necessary, wives accept the service; but deep down they feel scornful. One never hears them boasting about it to their friends.

Women have a distinct appreciation of what is man's work and what is woman's work. They admire the man who excels in his own masculine occupation. They often actually despise the man who steps into the domain of feminine activities, and they get a real kick out of it when their husbands refuse to be made molly-coddles.

The wise husband will do well to recognize his natural and inherent tendency to fear his wife and will guard himself against it.

The wise wife will not take advantage of her position.

Lasting, deep happiness and accord were never built upon fear.

Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

If you wish to remove the odor of onions from the pan in which they place it in the pan before putting the into the pan and let it get hot.

When frying ham or bacon always have been fried pour a little vinegar pan on the fire. It cooks much brown quicker and better than if put in a warm pan.

To keep marmalade airtight heat well the white of an egg with it brush over white paper and put over the jar lade pot with the paper while the pre serve is still hot.

A SUITOR TOO MANY

By MILDRED BARBOUR

"Ah, Mrs. Ware, you have come quickly in response to my request. I ask pardon. But you understand that I frequently a business woman like myself needs ready money, and it is then necessary for her to send out her bills and beg for prompt payment."

Lila went faint.

"Your—your bill?" she stammered. "I——"

Irene waggled an arch finger.

"Was I not wise to send it to your husband? Ma foi, those indulgent bridegrooms! But then, if a man is not generous when he is newly married, when I ask you, will he ever be?"

Lila got to the street somehow, leaving a perplexed and slightly disgruntled Irene.

Her one hope gone! And Arsenel Herbert had received her dressmaker's bill—an exhorbitant one, too—when he had every reason to expect that she realized economy. Of course, Herbert would pay it out of her allowance. How was she going to account for the fact that she hadn't paid it—and still had no money. And how was she going to raise the money to meet Siddon's blackmailing demand?

CHAPTER 55.

ONE OF THE LAST RESORTS

When Lila told Dorothy of Siddon's demands for more money, the latter, after a moment's troubled silence, said, with a shrug.

"Well, there's always your uncle."

"Uncle Dan?" said Lila in surprise. "But, mon Dieu, I haven't his address."

Dorothy laughed.

"Darling, I don't mean your real uncle. I mean the one who sits all day under three little golden balls and waits for improvident fools to blunder in."

"A pawnbroker!" gasped Lila horrified.

"Well, something has to be done. To help you, if I could, but I can't spare another penny, honestly, Lila. I'm already way ahead of my income until next quarter."

"I know. You're an angel to have loaned me so much already. But a pawnbroker!" she repeated, with a shudder. "And whatever for?"

"Why, pawn your jewels and swipe," said Dorothy calmly.

"Oh, not yours, Dot."

Dorothy smiled slightly.

"We'll need all we can lay our hands on. We're in a mess up to the neck, and your precious Siddons demands. You don't realize, Lila, how little you get when you pawn things."

Lila sighed.

"I suppose I'll have to do it. But how will I explain to Herbert, if he notices that I'm not wearing my jewels?"

"You can buy a paste necklace that will resemble your pearls, if not too closely inspected. And, for the rest—well, you'll just have to pretend a sudden desire for simplicity. Then, of course, with the first money you get, you can redeem them."

"And then when I give me a big check on my birthday," murmured Lila, "and that's only a month off. Dot, will you go with me to see this business through. I'd drop dead alone in a pawnshop."

"I'm not very crazy about them myself," shrugged Dorothy, "but—come along."

They drove down-town in Dorothy's car, stopping at Lila's for her jewel-case.

"I'd like to murder Siddon," declared Lila viciously, as they climbed back into the car, with the precious case tucked under her arm. "He escorted me to the door and smirked. I'll bet the wretch knows what I'm going to do."

Under Dorothy's guidance, they made short work of the pawnshop business. Lila was hopelessly ignorant of the lady's-in-distress methods, but she was aghast at the comparatively pitiful amount realized upon her cream and Dorothy's jewels. She was even inclined to be indignant.

Dorothy, however, said practically:

"You'll be glad enough when you come to redeem them. At any rate, this is enough to stop Siddon's mouth for the present."

"I feel like the lowest wretch, letting you pawn your pretty things, Dot."

Dorothy only smiled.

"What are a few trifles, compared with friendship?"

"That's all very well and fine and generous, but we're getting in deeper and deeper," groaned Lila. "Irene doesn't seem to be any friend to Jack."

Dorothy laughed.

"Oh, it'll all come right. I feel it."

"It might—in a story. But this is real life," Lila reminded her.

Dorothy reached home, she rang for Siddons and silently handed him a roll of bills.

"And that is positively the last, Siddons," she said idly.

He bowed deferentially.

"Captain Farquahar is awaiting Madam in the small drawing-room," he said.

Lila started. She had forgotten about tea. Wearily, and with an air of boredom, she went in to greet Jack.

He wasn't in the best of moods. Herbert was in the mind his grie had been turning over in his mind his grie vances against Lila and he was firmly convinced that he was being treated downright shabbily. Moreover, he'd happened to overhear some men in the lounge of his hotel discussing Herbert Ware, and their opinion seemed to place that gentleman in a most favorable and enviable light as a young financier. Farquahar had forgotten for what he resented this, but he did nevertheless.

Tea that afternoon was rather a ghastly failure. Lila felt in her bones that there was trouble in the air but, even then, she wasn't quite prepared for Jack's deliberately malicious move—and after she'd just paid the blackmailing brute, too!

He knocked on the door and, when she bade him enter, stood bowing on the threshold.

"Mr. Ware's secretary is on the 'phone, Madam. Mr. Ware wishes to speak to you."

Jack Farquahar flashed a wrathy glance. She murmured an excuse and slipped away to the library.

"Herbert's voice came over the wire, after a few moments. It was stern and unfriendly.

"I want to talk to you, Lila, on a most important matter. I shall be home in twenty minutes. Please remain in the house and try to get rid of any callers you may happen to have."

Lila hung up the receiver meekly. That bill of Irene's of course, that was the "important matter." She shuddered.

Farquahar was standing when she re-entered the drawing-room, his brows drawn together in a black frown.

"Well? And is this Ware chap accustomed to ordering you in his wife's home?" he demanded shortly.

"Of course not! Well—that is—" faltered Lila trying to edge in some degree, to the truth, "why shouldn't he give me a message for his wife?"

"Mrs. Ware is not at home?"

"You mean D—" Lila caught herself up. "No, no, she's out."

Suddenly she realized the danger she was in. Even now, Herbert was on his way up-town. He would be home in twenty minutes. She must get rid of Farquahar.

"It's time for you to go now, Jack," she said flatly.

He gave her an ironical glance and flung himself into a chair.

"Not a chance! I see this thing very clearly. Ware called up to tell you he is coming to see you during his wife's absence. You want to kick me out and make way for him. Well, you don't! My presence here is necessary here I stay until I meet Ware face to face and tell him a thing or two for his own good!"

The Modern "Geometry"

Condescends To Curve

FASHION, which is really a ruthless tyrant, sometimes has a gentle mood. It is of the latter kind when he designed this fetching dress for seventeen-and-up damsels to wear at school parties. She can jauntily set the captain's signature on this. It is essentially stylish. Dot Marianne backs Irene to curve that angles, and love she his them. The large bow that tucks in long ends, etc., gives an uneven line that is not just graceful for the young. The gathered front meets the waist in a lovely, curved outline, and the neck is tucked up with startlike stitching. It may be really true-learned into the most fetching afternoon frock by banding the neck in a lighter or darker shade of the material whether it is georgette, crepe de chine or transparent velvet or silk and ribbon crepe. Another suggestion that is always good is the two sides of satin or velveteen crepe. (Copyright, 1927, by Bell-ew Ick)

THREE IN SUTTON FAMILY RESTORED TO HEALTH

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Rather a Remarkable Record

Others Also Benefited

Campbellford, Ontario. — "I was feeling very run-down, always tired, no ambition, had a poor appetite and I should not have been at work, but I would not allow myself to stay at home only now and then. Last spring my brother-in-law gave me a book and told her to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was feeling better after the first bottle and she wanted me to take it, too. So my sister, mother and I took it until we were all well. My sister and I took the wooden pail, and we felt every one was benefited as well. Feeling well about the Vegetable Compound. We cannot praise it enough for it has done so much good. You may use this letter if you like, for I would tell anyone and am glad to get the benefit that others may receive." — Mrs. Campbellford, Ontario.

The injurious effects of hard or heavy work on a young girl cannot be overestimated. She cannot afford to stay at home, yet she is often unable to lift heavy articles or to stand on her feet for long hours. What can she do? Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a dependable medicine for girls and women. Let it relieve you of that feeling of nervousness when which comes at certain times.

South Vancouver, B.C. — "I was a victim of G.U. — called internal medicines and have been before hospitals to no avail. Then I was advised to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After using it a few months, cramps, fainting spells, and dragging down pains left me. I feel like a new being every month, with no pain or suffering to write about. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is very highly recommended to me in fact, I surprised myself when I took it, and I am very thankful that at last I took the step that has helped me so much. As you know I could hardly credit the results, as I had suffered for seven years, every month. I can truthfully say that for the last four months I have suffered no inconvenience nor pain in that respect. I tell everyone of the good results obtained, and I shall be pleased to answer questions as to the wonderful benefits derived from the Vegetable Compound." — Mrs. G. E. Lewis, 285 8th Ave., South Vancouver, B.C.

The experience of Mrs. Lewis should interest other women. She tells you how she used to feel and the wonderful results she obtained from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Advice to Girls

By Annette Laurie

DEAR ANNETTE LAURIE:

I am a girl of eighteen. I am married and I have a baby 10 months' old. We are living with my husband's people, as is getting dissatisfied with mother-in-law. He goes away at nights and leaves me and the baby at home. Can you tell me what to do to make him satisfied so he will take me out?

BERTHA.

BERTHA: If it is at all possible for you to have your own home, I would most assuredly advise you to do so. Living with your husband's parents is bound to be somewhat of a strain no matter how considerate and willing they are. I am inclined to think that if you had your own little home and made it a cozy, attractive place your husband would prefer the comfort of it to any outside diversion. Why not talk it over with him and see if it can be done? I must caution you to use tact, however, and do not let him feel that it is because you fancy yourself restricted that you wish this change. You are perfectly justified in wishing a home of your, own and it might alter his attitude considerably.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young fellow and have been keeping company with a beautiful girl for three years. I know that she loves me and she knows that I love her—but every once in a while she will go out with other fellows. How can I prevent this? I don't dance, and she wants me to. Do you think that if I learned to dance it would help?

JEALOUS.

JEALOUS: Unless you are engaged to this girl, you really have no right to object to her going out with others It is a tribute to your charm, my friend, for this girl to go out with others and prefer you to them all! Don't be jealous, make use of the privilege which is yours also. As far as the dancing is concerned—I would advise you to learn. It is undoubtedly a social asset and since this girl likes to dance, you will have that much more in common if you make a good dancing partner.

WHAT'S NEW

(From a Woman's Standpoint)

A few glass is on the market which differs from most of the glass we have been seeing, in this way—it is opaque and employs such solid color as to give an effect almost of pottery.

The new models show irregular neck lines with three-cornered effects conspicuous, one frock introducing this treatment in deep three-cornered neck inclination at both back and front, also favoring long sleeves.

A new fashion note in New York is mesh hose in nude shades, combined with metal slippers used in satin to harmonize with the gown in color.

Some of the smartest women in Paris are wearing paillette dinner jackets with full skirts, very uneven in length, dipping in a deep oval at the back and with frills all over the place.

QUEER NURSERY FOR PRINCESS

Surrounded by Old and Lovely Objects Of Art

London (By Mail).—The youngest member of the British royal family, Princess Elizabeth, is a modern baby. But she is being brought up in a nursery surrounded with "old and lovely things" because her mother the Duchess of York, believes that it will influence her future sense of the beautiful.

Instead of the hygienic but bare white walls which are found in the aver age modern nursery, the Duchess has ordered Princess Elizabeth's room to have blue walls. They are hygienic because they are washable. But they have not that cold "hospital-look" of white walls.

No Miniature Furniture

There is no miniature furniture painted teddy-bears or figures from fairy-Elizabeth, canopy bed and gaze at a toy cupboard decorated with brightly colorful.

hand. Instead, there is a grand-father clock in one corner of her nursery which attracts much of the royal baby's delighted attention, because of its resonant "tic-toc."

The Duchess believes in hygiene, but she requires it to be coupled with beauty. She has studied the science of child welfare and has the most up-to-date ideas as to fresh air and diet.

But she prefers a modernized version of an old-fashioned nursery because it is more attractive.

She thinks that if a child is brought up among genuinely old and lovely things, its sense of form and color will be unconsciously moulded. Her baby's nursery was designed for the purpose.

At first glance the royal nursery is just like the average pleasant sunny sitting-room of a grown-up person.

Has a Thick Carpet

The floor is covered with a thick carpet. The furniture includes two chairs for the special use of the Princess. One is a child's chair of old oak several old. It is a favorite of the Duchess who used to sit in it herself when she was a child. The other is a high chair in which baby Princess eats.

When the high chair is required, the time has arrived for the feeding of a daily occurrence. This is when the Princess' favorite teddy bear, richly colored and nearly as large as herself is squeezed into the chair beside the royal mistress.

A beautiful, rosewood, glass-fronted bureau similar to those used in the Jacobean china is used as the top cupboard. In this bureau has ordered a small selection of Princess Elizabeth's toys. Occasionally they are all replaced by other toys, but most of the time is the royal baby allowed to play with more than two.

BLIND MAN SAYS HE IS AN HEIR

To Lost Dauphin Of France; Contests Chateau De Chambourd

Paris—Among the claimants of ownership of the Chateau de Chambord, which is being contested by 17 descendants of Robert, Duc de Bourbon Parme, is a blind man who has entered a protest against any settlement on the ground that the chateau belongs to him alone as a direct descendant and heir of Louis XVII, son of France, son of Marie Antoinette, the last Dauphin, who disappeared from Temple Prison during the Terror, and whose fate was never known. In his letter of protest this blind man signs himself Louis de Prince of Bourbon, grandson of Louis XVII., last legitimate King of France.

Prince Louis certainly looks like a Bourbon. He is a man of 60 years now and for 25 years has been engaged in tracing proofs that his grandfather, who was known as Naundorff, and who died at Delfmhiland, was really the son of King Louis XVII.

"Now I have found them," he told an interviewer. "The war did me that service, for in several Royal archives I found documents which prove beyond question that Naundorff was the missing Dauphin, and I am going to begin my suit. It is an amazing history, and played an astonishing part in many lives.

"It was through his knowledge of the truth that Fouche had his hold on Napoleon. It was their knowledge of the truth which cost the lives of the Duke de Berri and General Hoche. I am seeking nothing except justification. I lay no claims either to the throne of France or to the Chateau Chambord, which belongs by right to the heir of the Kings of France."

3000 NOVELS LAST YEAR PUBLISHED

London, (By The Canadian Press) — More than 3,000 novels were published here last year, an increase on the previous year's total of over 400. "The Manchester Guardian remarks that while these facts should give every satisfaction to the manufacturers of writing-pads and typewriters, to the printers and binders of books, and the publishers' readers who are paid piece-rates for their dreadful labors, the writer and reader of discrimination have increased reason for discontent. The larger the pudding the less chance there is of getting one's teeth against the six-penny-piece. The greater the flood of story-telling the greater the risk that a new artival of quality may be swept under and drowned before his quality has had fair chance of notice. It is common knowledge that only a small fraction of all this story-telling is decently remunerative to author and publisher, but the publishers continue to add to the spate because their profit side loss in case of a story's failure is by no means large, while the possible reward if the book should happen to sell well may be very great indeed.

The Guardian surgests that if the publishers could agree to issue only 70 or 80 per cent. of their standard crop, there would be little danger of good work going unprized and a far better chance of good work being duly tasted and recognized by the reading public and so winning its just reward.

DARWIN'S CHILD CLEVER WRITER

Fourth Child, a Girl, Noted As a Brilliant Authoress

London, Eng. —(By The Canadian Press) — Henrietta Litchfield, fourth child of Charles Darwin (1809-1882), English naturalist, author of "The Origin of Species by Means of Natural Selection," died recently at the age of 84. A correspondent of The Times writes about her as follows:

"She had outlived nearly all her friends of her own generation, but perhaps one of a younger generation might say something of a very remarkable and lovable character. As a young woman, before her marriar, she helped her father in his work. As recorded in his biography, it was when the proofs of his books arrived at the 'slip' stage that he began seriously to consider the question of style. The sentences had a way of getting themselves transposed, and he welcomed assistance in the disentangling of them. It was at this stage that his daughter came to the aid, and she herself writes of it: 'I do not think that he ever used to forget to tell me what improvement he thought I had made, and he used almost to excuse himself if he did not agree with any correction.'

"The late Richard Buckley Litchfield to whom she was married in 1871 was one of the founders of the Workers' interest in it and helped it in various A Century of Family Letters, Serious ways. Besides a little memoir of her husband, she edited 'Emma Darwin, A Century of Family Letters, between Mrs. Josiah Wedgwood, and Mrs. Charles Darwin, in 1896. It was an admirable piece of work, in which the editor, while largely effacing herself, yet gave a notable picture of an interesting family life.

"But Mrs. Litchfield will be remembered by all who knew her, not for anything she did, but for what she was in herself. She had an extraordinarily clear and vigorous intellect, wide reading, and a great power of grasping a subject. Here was, I think, essentially a virile mind, but with it there went a feminine and Victorian quality which made her fierce respect-folly to men whom intellectually she could have 'bought and sold' many times over. To the last day of her life was vitally interested in politics and

DISCUSSION OF FEBRUARY 29TH

In Daily News—Idea Originated In Old Country

London, (By C.P.)—Discussing Leap Year, with 29 days in February, the Daily News says:

"On the face of it, it seems an arbitrary arrangement. For its origin and explanation we must go back to Julius Caesar or to his astronomers, who, some where about 45 B.C., fixed the length of the year, as measured by the sun's transit, at 365 days 6 hours. The odd hours presented a difficulty which was overcome by ignoring them for three years, and, on the fourth year, adding four times six, or 24 hours, to the year's length. Feb. 29 was not originally the added day, and is not even now regarded universally in that light. In the Roman calendar the trick was worked by doubling the 24th day before the calends of March, that is Feb. 24, the year for this reason being called "bissextile," a name still retained in the Latin countries of Europe.

"In the British Isles, however, it has been considered more reasonable, as it is certainly less confusing, to give Feb ruary an extra day, rather than have two consecutive days bearing the same date. The English term 'leap year' is almost self-explanatory. The effect of interposing the extra day is that after Feb. 29 every date 'leaps' over the day of the week on which it, would have fallen if February's lats of days had not been increased. Thus last year March 1 was on Tuesday. This year it will be on a Thursday, and so on with the remaining months.

"There were many dangers to be encountered in the days when the right of spinsters to propose marriage in leap year was actually upheld. For at one time this hoary tradition went beyond a joke, although the origin of the custom is lost in the mists of antiquity.

"In 1288—a leap year—a law was enacted in Scotland decreeing that it is statute and ordained that during the reign of Her Most Blessed Majesty for each year known as leap year each maiden lady of both nigh and low degree shall have liberty to bespeak any man she likes, albeit he refuses to take her to be his lawful wife he shall be mulcted in the sum of one pound or less as his estate may be, except that he can make it appear that he is betrothed to any other woman he shall then be free."

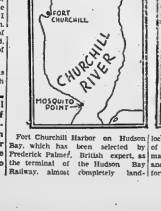

The motive for this devestating enactment is not clear. It was not, as far as one can learn, an age of surplus women, or one in which men were unduly backward in the arts of courtship. The fact that declared at the time was under the rule of the maiden Queen Mirvaret is suggestive, and, trading, since she, the ill-fated 'Maid of Norway' was a mere child who had never set foot on Scottish soil.

"No one, it seems has ever succeeded in tracing any reasonable, or even plausible, connection between the custom of courtship and the occurrence of leap year, but it was not only in Scotland that the superstition won statutory recognition. A few years later a similar law was passed in France, and in the 15th century the custom of spinsters proposing every fourth year, with penalties for recalcitrant males, was legalized in France and Genoa. In England the custom was never legally enforced but there is no law against it.

INCREASED LUXURIES TAX

La Paz Bolivia, Jan. 23.—The Government has levied a 50 per cent increasing the taxes on luxuries. The bill lists as luxuries liquor, pianos, automobiles, jewellery, silks, phonographs and perfumes.

There was somewhat pathetic in the eagerness with which the world question those who came to her quiet home in Surrey from a busier world, wanting to know what that world thought of the questions of the day and recovering with a little disappointment to her and affectionate answers from those more well-informed and more fastwitted than herself."

Fort Churchill Harbor on Hudson Bay, which has been selected by Frederick Palmer, British expert, as the terminal of the Hudson Bay Railway, almost completely land-locked, will, when completed, be one of the world's finest harbors. The map indicates its sheltered nature, and the rugged natural breakwater formed by the eastern peninsula and its protection to Churchill harbor are shown by the photographs. Churchill Harbor was the historic destination of the Company of Gentlemen Adventurers Trading into Hudson Bay."

CENTENARIES IN 1928 NUMEROUS

London.—The year 1928 will have its full share of interesting centenaries, although the birthdays are somewhat outnumbered by the anniversaries of death. Among the former are four distinguished names in literature—John Bunyan (who was born on an uncertain day of November, 1628), Oliver Goldsmith (November 10), Tolstoy (August 28), and George Meredith (February 12). A figure, however, which stands for as much as any of them in the world's history is that of Captain Cook (October 28, 1728).

John Hunter, the great surgeon, was born on February 13, 1728, and on April 13, 1728, Mrs. Josephine Butler, who devoted herself to the abolition of the Contagious Diseases Acts. September 3, 1728, was the birthday of Matthew Boulton, the partner at the Soho Works in Birmingham, of James Watt, the inventor of the steam engine. October 2 is assigned to the birth of the Chevalier d'Eon, a diplomatist of mysterious aura, who flirted through the gossip and memoirs of the eighteenth century, and died in London in 1810.

Of those whose death centenary falls this year, Albert Durer, the great painter (April 6, 1528) may be placed at the head. Three centuries earlier, on July 9, there died Stephen Langton, the famous Archbishop, who defied both King and Pope and was one of the unbending witnesses of Magna Charta. In 1628, on August 23, the Duke of Buckingham, courtier and Minister of Charles I., was assassinated at Portsmouth. On December 4, 1828, died Lord Liverpool, famous for his long tenure of office as Prime Minister. On January 26 of the same year there had passed away Lady Caroline Lamb, the highly-temperamental wife of the statesman best remembered as Lord Melbourne, Queen Victoria's first premier. Two figures prominently in the life, letters, and poetry of Byron. A lady of more hallowed memory is Hester Johnson (the Stella of Jonathan Swift), who died on January 28, 1728.

Colton Walker, famous in the history of New England, died on February 13, 1728, and on March 17 of the same year Samuel Patterson, who is remembered as the first auctioneer of books in London. A century will have passed next year since the deaths of Dugald Stewart, the philosopher (June 11), Francis Joseph Gall, the founder of phrenology (August 22), Thomas Bewick, the wood-engraver (November 8), Luke Hansard (October 29), the organizer of Parliamentary reporting, and Schubert, the composer.

Nowadays... you press a button

OR PERHAPS a switch, or some little gadjet, and a lot of things happen around a home that lighten labor and banish trouble. A whirling fan brings a cooling breeze, and a little copper, dish-like affair throws out a sizzling blast that warms the room in no time.

Another button boils coffee, toasts bread and cooks waffles. Another does a better job than a broom, another makes a happy laundress out of dismal washwoman. Another one cools the icebox. Another—but why go on?

Labor and time saving devices have come and are to-day within the reach of the humblest home.

And one of the chief reasons why they have come and why they are within the reach of the humblest home is the power of advertising.

Advertising has carried the news of these better ways of doing things to every home. It has created a desire to possess them, and countless thousands have purchased them, and live better because of them.

Reading advertising not only tells you about new, helpful mechanical devices for the home, but it is an unfailing guide to reliable products.

ASKS FOR POWER TO MAKE LIQUOR

Winnipeg—Provisions of Manitoba's new liquor bill which is now being considered by the Legislature, providing for the Government to acquire a brewery if necessary, but would frighten not to exceed $1,000,000, were under fire from Opposition members in the House today.

The Government had no intention of this proposition was inserted in the bill making an immediate purchase, but in case of necessity in the future.

W. Sanford Evans, Conservative, Winnipeg, described the provision as a "scare-crow" that would frighten no one. The Government's idea in having the provision in the bill was simply to exercise some influence over the brewers and distillers.

Joseph Bernier, St. Boniface, declared it was no part of the Government's business to become brewers or distillers. He would vote for the deletion of the provisions.

YOUNG PEOPLE TO SEEK PEACE

Should Think Peace a Possibility, Says Mrs. J. Wilson

"Young people should grow up think ing of peace as a possibility instead of war as a necessity," said Mrs. J. A. Wilson, of Ottawa, President of the National Council of Women.

Can Create Peace Psychology

Believing that women have it in their power to create a peace psychology, Mrs. Wilson impressed their responsibility in the matter of training the younger generation and advocated membership in the League of Nations Society as a practical step towards full filling one of their obvious duties.

Commenting on the fact that the League included in its programs an international art movement, the speaker declared this to be one reason for women's interest. Then women were given absolute equality with men in the League and that it boasted a committee of experts who were studying the economics of the world were other reasons, she thought, for support of this great peace council.

Mrs. Wilson reviewed some of the League's efforts, stressing those along the lines of health, traffic in women and children, and mandates, and recommended the perusal of the pamphlet "Intellectual Foundations of International Co-operation."

Labor Conditions Discussed

That Canada was the last civilized country to make provisions for maternity in industry was the statement of Mrs. Horace Parsons, regarding the International Labor Section of the League and told of its desire for greater health insurance for all workers. Being honored by an invitation to sit with the League and participate in a discussion on minimum wages, Mrs. Parsons had learned how other countries contended that only those working privately in their homes for factories and business concerns could be brought under a minimum wage Act and that interference between employers and employees in organized industry was not possible. Canada, having taken successfully another stand in this respect, was held as an example of what might be accomplished on behalf of industrial workers.

William Ivens, Labor, Winnipeg, reiterated his opposition to the private sale of liquor. He claimed that if the Government can manufacture liquor and sold at cost, the evils of the traffic would be eliminated.

An amendment to delete the provisions was presented, but not voted upon before adjournment.

CAPITOL THEATRE

A large crowd last night at the Capitol greeted the first night's offering of the picturization of Peter B. Kyne's great story "The Valley of the Giants." The picture has as its stars two old favorites, Milton Sills and Doris Kenyon, and with the aid of an excellent cast, these stars combine in a story of great interest, good acting, extraordinary scenic effects, not a few thrills, and with all this, a good bit of comedy thrown in.

The story is laid among the giant redwoods of California, where a hardy industrious pioneer in fifty years of effort lees a great city and lumber business out of the forest, and the efforts of his son to maintain and expand the business form the basis of the story; the forest scenes of the immense redwoods represent especially fine photography, and the entire picture is one of interest, thrills, comedy and good entertainment. It's one of the best shown at this popular playhouse for some time.

REGENT THEATRE

An Adolphe Menjou vehicle is always refreshing. One goes to the theatre in a pleasant anticipatory frame of mind and is never disappointed. This is particularly true of his latest Paramount comedy-drama "Service for Ladies" which opened yesterday at the Regent Theatre.

Here is a Menjou picture that tickles one's risibilities with its delicious, subtle humor, and yet at the same time holds your interest with the dramatic quality of its underlying story. "Service for Ladies" is an Ernest Vajda story of the romance of a head waiter, directed by Harry D'Abbadie D'Arrast, with the story land in Europe.

It is an interesting fact that virtually all of Menjou's most successful pictures have been those with a Parisian background. .

BELLEVILLE JUNIORS OVERWHELM PICTON IN ONE-SIDED EXHIBITION

Henry Canning Scores Four Goals—Now Meet Trenton

CLEAN GAME

Belleville Swept Home Team Off Feet In Final Period

Belleville Juniors staged a scoring bee at Picton last evening that completely swept the homesters off their feet and as a result Belleville eliminated the Picton lads from the group and placed themselves in an excellent position to even the series with the Trenton lads who are leading the group with three straight wins. The next game will be played here on Thursday evening when Trenton will be here for a game that should produce plenty of thrills as these two are evenly-matched aggregations. The score last night was 10-3 and never at any time did the Picton boys shape up like winners.

To make the victory sure the locals gave a great demonstration in the last period, running in half a dozen while the home team were collecting a pair.

Belleville opened both goals for Picton, the first was of the fluky variety but the second came as a result of a real play on the part of the puck-carrier. Hodgins was the best of the homesters by a wide margin

Henry Canning scored four goals and played a bang-up game all around. He was on top of every play and gave the Picton fans an exhibition of skating and puck-carrying that they will not soon forget. His brother Andrew hung up a brace of counters. Simpson turned in an excellent game as did Pringle and Galway who teamed up on the defence Galway is becoming a tower of strength to the Juniors. Youn Pringle also duplicated his Trenton performance by turning aside a great many shots that were on the net.

Cole and Welch were especially prominent for the home team but their efforts to score were frustrated by Jeffery

The game was exceptionally clean although referee Canning chased Galway and Cole for major penalties for using the cue. Cole started the fracas.

H. Canning tallied both goals of the first period and both on solo efforts.

J. Canning and H. Canning each had the goals for Belleville in the second period which ended at 4-0. Both of these goals came in the last period Hudgins doing the trick.

The Thomasburg crew came along with a rush in the last period and before the homesters could get going they had put the game on ice with four goals before the period ended. Towards the end Belleville caught a strife, but it was that the Picton team banged home two that prevented a shut-out. Darragh did the sinking along with Heron, and the former also broke into the score column.

Thursday night's game should prove a real live affair as the locals are out to redeem themselves for the trimming they received by the Trenton lads in the latter's game. It is hoped that a big crowd will be on hand as Junior hockey has more thrills and spills in the period than most International games have in a whole game. The kids need the support and nothing will make them work harder than to see a full house on Thursday night.

The goals were scored by the following players:—

Picton:—Hodgins 2.

The line-ups:—

Picton		Belleville
Hunt	Goal	Jeffery
Stevens	Defence	Galway
Cole		Elder
Hudgins	Centre	H Canning
Ferguson	Wings	J. Canning
Welch		Simpson
	Subs	Darragh
Irwin		Heron
Wright		Mesger

Referee—W. Cummings, Trenton.

STIRLING LOST OVERTIME GAME

Bitterly Fought Contest Finally Won By Campbellford 3-2

Before thirteen hundred fans, one of the largest crowds to ever witness a hockey game in Stirling, the Campbellford team defeated the home aggregation in the twenty minutes overtime last night by a score of 3-2. It was thrilling hockey from the start and both teams were almost exhausted when the final bell completed the play.

Campbellford had taken the gryaum to the goal-mouth.

Jack Ackers in centre ice was the best of the home team and gave a fine performance. He was dangerous at all times and gave Fox plenty of anxious moments. Wallace, sturdy defence man was also going nicely and lining up the first goal from one of his pretty wing shots. Ackers drove the first goal past Fox.

Cowell in centre for Campbellford, was probably the best man on the ice. He scored two goals, and had the honor of whipping the winning goal past Hulin, a snait-high drive that the goalie had no chance to save. The winning goal came half way through the second extra period, the first having been scoreless. Ingram on the defence for the visitors was in excellent form and although he did not score any goals, was a hard man to watch. Johnston on the wing was going nicely and lent some fine assistance. Although the game was bitterly fought from the start it was exceptionally clean, and Referee Burtt of Trenton, did not have to issue many penalties. Stirling and Campbellford are now tied for the leadership of the Trent Valley League and another great battle is in store when Billy Whitty's proteges play the return game in the northern town.

BOWLING

The newest league to get under way at the Recreation Alleys is the C.N.R. transportation league with six teams in this league. Although some of the boys have been away from bowling since last season there was some very good bowling done. McElrath setting up a nice single score with 258 which is going to take some beating. The standings are the results. Office Team No. 1 took three points from their fellow workers Office No. 2. The Yard Office and the Road Dept. each count two points and also did the Car Dept. and Signals Dept.

Senior League

Although the Wolves rolled over the 3000 mark they lost all four points to the Hardware who were a little the best in each game and who also rolled 3226 for their total score in a senior league game. The Hardware got a lead of 227 in the first game but in the second and third they just managed to get the few extra pins for points.

Hardware—Sinclair 278; Harris 615; Whalen 681; Doran 668; Anderson 678; total 3220.

SPORTOGRAMS

By "The Observer"

All aboard for Cornwall tomorrow evening. The Maroons feel that after the Royal Military College taking the Pyrites in two games last camp they are equally capable of turning the trick. Belleville line up may be changed up a bit for the game. Unforseen things may shake this group up before many moons.

Phil Brocket will tote his Kingston "Y" basketers to the city tomorrow night for the local's second home game. The International boys were defeated by the R.M.C. team but Weir, Armstrong and Company have not yet hit their real stride and when they do it's going to be hard sledding for others to follow.

Tonight's double-header in the City League should draw a big crowd to Arnou's arena. The class of hockey in this loop is improving and the players have made many new friends by their aggressive work.

Corbyville and Point Anne will be faced with the task of playing tonight as well as tomorrow night. It means standing up to the ice on two consecutive nights but both teams have signified their willingness to undergo the test.

Belleville High School team certainly showed promise in their game with Trenton last night. The locals should go a long way in the quest of the Interscholastic title. Belleville Collegians have been weakened up in the race each year but have never yet captured the silverware.

Belleville Juniors came through with flying colors last night at Picton and as a result they are now situated in a nice position provided they can take a fall out of the Trenton team next week.

It's four months until the opening of the baseball season but Walter Perow and his boys are reluctantly waiting until our friend Jack of the Snows disappears in order that they may again get the old apple out for a warm-up.

A Cobourg-Port Hope amalgamated team in the Central League is practising daily while Belleville Kingston, Peterboro and Oshawa will be ready to renew the old-time feud when the umps call "play ball."

Kingston will rely chiefly on the graduates of the Circle Six Junior O'Connell, Peterboro and Oshawa have some new material coming along. The Petes will miss the services of Jimmy Hall who has migrated to Guelph whither he was followed by his employers. Hall was one of the most promising prospects in these parts.

Canadiens play in Toronto on Feb. 7 and a number of local enthusiasts are hoping to see the fam ous wonders in action. Les Canadiens had their long winning streak broken by the Montreal Maroons on Saturday night.

Boxing fans are anxiously awaiting word of the announcement of the next Belanger-Genaro bout. It is a safe bet that a few Bellevillians will occupy ring-side seats when these two game cocks meet toe-to-toe.

Billy Whitty, veteran Stirling

Willie Davies, sensational flyweight who defeated Jack Jarvis of England in Toronto last night.

STALLINGS SIGNS MANY PLAYERS

Montreal, Jan. 24.—George T. Stallings, manager of the Montreal Baseball Club, will arrive in this city this morning for a conference with the officials of the Montreal Exhibition Company, Ltd., and to attend to several matters of business in connection with the Club.

Manager Stallings attended the special International League meeting at New York a week ago having immediately for his home in Haddon, Ga., to arrange his affairs there so that he could spend several days in this city, if necessary. Among other matters he will take up, while here will be final arrangements in connection with the club's spring training trip. As already announced the players candidates are to report at the Stallings plantation, a month or so hence, before joining the main squad at Jacksonville, Miss., which is the training camp selected for the coming season.

It is likely that while in this city the Montreal manager will complete two or three players he has had in mind, as well as to announce the purchase of another major league pitcher if the latter has been negotiated for some time. The Montreal roster, at the present, numbers 27 players and it is probable that the squad at training camp will be just about that size.

John Conway Toole, president of the International League, who came to Montreal Saturday morning, returned to New York yesterday more than delighted with the progress that is being made in the construction of the stadium at Delorimier Avenue and Ontario Street. President Toole stated a complete inspection of the work, while here and declared forts was not the slightest question in his mind regarding the completion of the stadium by the 15th of September next. Jarvis, well in advance of the specified time of May 1st. He further stated that the advent of Montreal would greatly add to the strength of the International League circuit.

HIGH SCHOOL WIN OVER TRENTON IN CLOSE FIGHT

Belleville Youngsters More Aggressive And Capture Opener

RAGGED HOCKEY

Heaney, Goal Tender For Visitors, In Excellent Form

Belleville High School opened the season auspiciously with a win over the Trenton students at the arena last night before a fair sized crowd by a score of 2-0. The kid rinkers were the best throughout and during the major portion of the game the play centered around the visitors' goal. Twomey Black and "Nig" Ross were the marksmen for Belleville and both goals were pretty and well-earned. On both occasions wing shots did the trick and both players took the gymnasium up in the corner out of reach of Heaney. Both came within a few minutes of each other in the second period.

The Belleville boys after only a few practices are not yet playing the box-ey they are capable of but they should show up to better advantage in the coming games. They are matched with Trenton, and Picton and with the first game chances are well on the way to a championship.

All of the boys are inclined to clutter their defence when in front of their own position and as a result several pretty shots on the net are lost. Nearly every time that one of the redshirted players broke away there was no one to follow up the play and the rusher was forced to try and take it in himself. Heaney, in goal, had a man been with him the score would undoubtedly have been higher.

Belleville forwards were not going as well last night as they did last season when the Tri-colors went on to Toronto but Mr. Howard plans to drill them in combination work in the preliminaries.

Heaney in the Trenton goal turned in a magnificent performance and proved to be a big helped to a great extent in keeping the score down. Heaney tended goal for the Trenton squad for many years and he was steady and cool in turning the once aside, "the game depended on his performance and he was equal to the occasion. The last period found the Trenton squad on the defence and made some pretty attempts to score. But the fates were against him and he failed to break into the score column. The locals were the better workers of the game, a stellar defence man who was playing with the Junior Trenton Toole and his partner would have undoubtedly played better hockey with Galway on the ice. He was the star of the entire game. Norm Clarke bears the ear marks of a clever hockey player. He blocks well and gets away nicely with the rubber.

Rough at Times

There was little to choose from during the last three minutes. "Nig" Ross, veteran of the past two years was probably a trifle the best. Ross was dangerous at all times. St. Dennis was inclined to be a bit rough at times and if he would stick to his knitting would develop into a valuable player. Black gave some nice assistance all the way. The Belleville boys, as a team would not roam out of their positions would show better combination. Moll and Christie made a capable pair of defenceman. Colling turned in a splendid game between the posts and made some pretty saves.

Trenton presented a well-balanced line-up with Jewell in centre display ing nice judgment at all times with the puck. Jewell is a clever boy who has had his hands full keeping him off the score sheet. Heaney in the goal was good and Purdy and Hicks did a nice bore watching.

Referee Sam Curry gave the team good sup port and with the first game already stowed away they should get solidly behind the boys who are out in search of the championship.

Belleville—Moll, Colling; defence, Young and Clarke; Centre, Ross; wings St. Dennis and Black; Subs, Christie and Moll.

Trenton—Goal Heaney, defence, Colbrell and Hicks; centre, Jewell; wings, Purdy and Hicks; subs, Langdon and Crawford.

Referee—Sam Curry.

Score by periods 0 0, 2 0 and 0 0, final 2-0. Timekeeper—G. Miles.

CITY LEAGUE AT ARENA TO-NIGHT

Double Headers For Fans On Tuesday, Thursday And Friday

Two of the best teams in the City League will tie into each other at the Arena tonight when the Y's Men's Club, champions of last year, clash with the Point Anne team, managed by "Buzz" Caskin. The Service Club will present practically the same line up as won the laurels last year with Vern Weir, Armstrong, Drew and Symons, the chief help-mates. Stratton a youngster from Peterboro, is guarding the nets and thus far he has made a good job of it. Weir will not play tonight as he has already played two games with the Intermediates which places him on the Ineligible list.

Clacos will attempt to lower the colors of the Quinte Electricians in the second game on the card tonight. The Quinte appear to be headed for the championship of Group "A" unless someone tosses a wrench into the works. The Electricians have a nice balanced line-up with enough veterans with experience to make things interesting for the others.

On Wednesday night the Imperial Oil stack up against the Point Anne team and the fur should fly in this game. The Point Anne team will send a heavy team on the ice and as the Marvelubs possess one of the biggest sets of boys in the league, this tilt should prove real interesting.

In the second game on Wednesday evening the Intelligencer Black Hawks will attempt to break into the win column at the expense of the Clacos The last time these two teams met the game resulted in a tie and with both evenly matched tomorrow night's Speaker.

HAS NOT HEARD OF JERSEY BID

Possibility of This Speaker Joining New Montreal Club

Hubbard, Tex., Jan. 24.—Tris Speaker, star outfielder of the Washington Senators, said today that he had no knowledge of bids reported to have been made for his services by the Jersey City club of the International league.

Tris revealed, however, that he had been sounded out by George Stallings manager of the new Montreal club of the same league in regard to joining the Canadian team. No definite offer was made by Stallings and Speaker would not indicate whether he would entertain one.

"If any proposition has been made by Jersey City, it has not yet reached me," Speaker said.

The veteran outfielder is virtually a free agent, but the Senators may retain his services by tendering a contract before February 1.

President Griffith of the Washington club was quoted in despatches as saying Jersey City was dickering for both evenly matched tomorrow night's Speaker.

MARMORA

Dancing will not e possible in the Town Hall after the end of the month. The Inspector of Halls and Theatres having issued instructions that the seats in the hall must positively be fastened to the floor by that time.

The Euchre held on Tuesday evening in the Parish Hall was very successful. Nineteen tables being played. Supper was served in the basement and was all that could be desired. The lady's prize was won by Miss Jean O'Neil and the gentleman's by Mr. Harry Dunlay. Mrs. Wm. Flynn won the door prize.

A meeting was held in the Town Hall last Saturday to consider the question of holding a School Fair for Marmora Township. Deloro and Marmora Villages. There was a very good attendance and seven or eight schools were represented. CHURCH ASKS A CURB ON LIQUOR

Against Booze Running—Is United Church At Niagara

Niagara Falls, Ont.—Amendments to the law which would curb liquor smuggling at the international border were asked by the United Church Presbytery of Niagara in resolutions this week.

The Presbytery held that import of liquor to a nation that forbids its importation was an unfriendly act, and that Canada was violating the principle of "Do as you would be done by."

Another resolution stated that no further liquor stores be opened in the Niagara district. Establishment of brewers' warehouses at points where liquor stores have been opened or proposed was termed "a violation of what the people were led to believe would be the case."

In resolution, the statement is made that the protest "is strengthened by the fact that intoxication upon our streets and roads is much more in evidence now than has been the case for many years."

NEW CHURCH FORMED BY BAPTIST GROUP

Winnipeg, Jan. 21.—Disappointed with the Church's policy during 1927, a group of local Baptists have withdrawn from the Baptist Union, and will form a Church of their own. It will be known as the Independent Regular Baptist Church of Winnipeg, and will be independent from any other Baptist Church in Canada.

The Baptists who have withdrawn from the Union are members of the First Baptist Church, and declared there had been "a repeated departure from the historical Christian doctrine as commonly understood among Baptists."

This is the costume symbolic of Night which was worn at the Queen of the Zodiac ball in London by Rosita Forbes (Mrs. McGrath), the noted explorer. Without doubt she holds the travel championship among the English society women and has a wonderful knowledge of the treasures of the little known islands and strange half-forgotten countries. Each year she wanders away for travel and investigation and each social season sparkles for a time in London society.

HUMANE REPORT

Oshawa, Jan. 24.—During the year 1927, 4 os 500 and well over 1,000 cats were destroyed by the Ontario Humane Society in Ontario county, according to the report of Nelson Baird, Oshawa, county inspector. The number of dogs destroyed was not as great as that for the previous year, when distemper accounted for a large number of deaths. The heaviest month for dog fatalities, according to Mr. Baird, are in July and August, when the motor traffic is at its height and the society is called upon to destroy the unfortunate canines hurt beyond recovery by the cars of tourists. The end of the camping reason in the early autumn is also one of high cat and dog mortality. This is due to the neglect of people who when closing their summer cottages, forthe season, leave their pets to starve. The Society is daily carrying on a merciful work in caring for sick animals and putting others out ofttheir misery.

EMPIRATICAL DENIAL

Campbellford, Jan. 24.—An emphatic denial of ever having made any offer of $1,000 to the man who would spend a night alone in the cellar of the Seymour township haunted house was made by Chief of Police Light on the pamphlet yesterday.

"I'll swear on a stack of Bibles that I never said any such thing," stated the chief. "Why, I'd do it myself for one-quarter that amount."

JUST RUMOR

Cobourg, Jan. 24.—Chief of Police J. C. Huse yesterday discounted a report that an alleged effort was made to abduct a young girl at a Cobourg school Friday as a ridiculous, sensational rumor."

TWO CARS STOLEN

Oshawa, Jan. 24.—Two cars were stolen in Oshawa Sunday evening. An Oakland sedan, belonging to the Ontario Motor Sales and bearing license number M1294, disappeared, and has not yet been recovered. The other car a Chevrolet sedan, the property of Steve Plunkett, was stolen from outside the rink, while the hockey game was in progress. This car was recovered by the police.

FIRE IN STORE

Portsmouth, Jan. 24.—A fire which might very easily have attained serious proportions, broke out in the store of William B. Westlake, 18 Main street, Portsmouth, at about 9.30 a.m. on Saturday.

The assistance of the Kingston Fire Department was asked for, the request beingg accorded to as some definite arrangement between the city and Portsmouth is under consideration as regards protection and all the city's fire fightingge apparatus responded.

PICTON BUS HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Slippery Track On Union Hill Makes Heavy Car Unmanageable

BROKE EIGHT POSTS

Strong Cable Held Automobile From Plunging Down Embankment

Eight passengers in the Picton-Belleville bus owned by "Duke" Smith escaped with a bad shaking up when the conveyance driven by William Trotter plowed into several posts on Union Hill at Mountain View, Prince Edward County, shortly after seven o'clock last evening. Only the heavy cable strung between the posts prevented the bus from plunging over the thirty foot embankment at this point. The wooden posts were laid some years ago at this point, when the route of the road was changed and the cable was strung from the top of the hill to the bottom. It was his safety measure which undoubtedly saved the occupants of the bus, from possible serious injuries as the motor was on the brink of the sharp incline and had the cable given way the car would have shot from the highway over the deep precipice.

Broke Off Eight Posts

Mr. Trotter was driving toward Belleville and when the car started to descend the hill he took extra precautions in view of the slippery condition of the road on the curve. As he reached the brow of the hill, the bus reeved to the right and plowed up eight posts before it was finally brought to a stop. The radiator of the car was badly jammed but aside from that it suffered little damage.

Mr. Smith was called from Belleville and he proceeded to the spot, transporting the passengers to Belleville while the bus was later brought along under its own power.

Several motorists found the hill too treacherous and those going from Belleville to Picton were forced to forego the trip and turn back to the city.

HICKMAN'S CASE TESTS NEW LAW

Plea of "Not Guilty By Reason of Insanity" By Defense

Los Angeles, Jan. 25.—California juries today set out on a voyage through an uncharted legal sea as it undertook to determine the punishment of William Hickman, confessed kidnapper and slayer of Marian Parker.

The trial, which will determine the sanity of the murderer, will follow new and untested state laws governing insanity defenses. Hickman has pleaded "Not Guilty by reason of insanity." If such admission is made by prosecutors the offenses charged but was not legally responsible. The defense hopes to save the young criminal from hanging by having him declared criminally insane and lodged in the State asylum, while the State expects to send Hickman to his death on the gallows.

Case Opens Today

Los Angeles, Jan. 25.— William Hickman, confessed kidnapper and slayer of little Marian Parker, was brought into Superior Court today for the opening of his sanity trial. He was in the custody of the deputy-sheriff and jailer.

WITH ANCIENT CEREMONY HOUSE TO OPEN NEW SESSION TOMORROW

Speech From The Throne Delivered Amid Vivid Surroundings

Ottawa, Jan. 25.—Two days of drifting snow with a forecast of cold weather promises to give a realistic January background for the ceremonials of the opening of parliament tomorrow. The historic ritual will be carried out as in the past with perhaps some additions to the color of the occasion.

Her excellency Lady Willingdon will arrive at the Parliament buildings first and enter by the Senate door shortly before three o'clock. Her procession will form on the grand stair case in the senate entrance. Escorted by Senator Dandurand and accompanied by aides-de-camp, ladies-in-waiting and pages, she will enter the Senate chamber and take her place at the left of the throne.

His excellency Governor General will arrive with an escort of lancers at the main door of the Parliament Buildings at three o'clock and will proceed up the Hall of Fame, through the north corridor to the apartments of the speaker of the Senate which serves as a robing room. He will then enter the Senate chamber by the main door and take his place on the throne.

Prior to the apartments of the speaker be occupied by members of the upper house and ladies, the latter in accordance with custom, wearing evening dresses, though the ceremonies take place in the middle of the afternoon.

The Prince toured the library asking many of the youngsters what they were reading, and exchanging views on books with them.

GHOST MIGHT BE RICH GAS FLOW

University Professor Thinks Keating May Have Discovered Treasure

AS GOOD AS GOLD

To Send Samples of Gas To Toronto To Determine Its Value

Toronto Jan. 25—The possibility that Frank Keating, Cumberland County farmer, may have something as good as a gold mine in his cellar instead of a "ghost" was believed to-day by Prof. L. Milligan of the University of Toronto. Keating wrote a letter to a Toronto newspaper today saying that cracks had been found in his cellar and through this gases might escape and assume the form which was taken for the ghost which aroused province-wide interest recently.

Prof. Miller thinks the explanation quite plausible and suggests that if a sample of the gas could be obtained he would be glad to analize it.

"Who knows, if there is natural gas or oil in the neighborhood," asked Prof Miller, "that that farmer hasn't a gold mine in his cellar?"

KINGSTON-WOLFE ISL. FERRY SERVICE STOPS

Kingston, Jan. 25.—The ferry service between Kingston and Wolfe Island has been discontinued until spring, the steamer, Wolfe Islander, being icebound, owing to the formation of ice over practically the whole harbor during the last thirty-six hours.

It was impossible to even attempt to make the trip to the island on Tuesday morning and the only means of communication was by ice-boat.

Several parties of men made the journey by ice-boat on Monday, the greater part of the trip being made walking on the ice. Automobile boat the only open water being two or three narrow channels which have not yet been frozen over.

SCOTLAND'S POET HONORED TODAY

Glorious and Pathetic Spirit of Bobbie Burns Stirs Countrymen

Loyal Sons of Scotland in particular, and literateurs in general the world over last night and this morning paid over today celebrate the birthday of the great Scottish poet "Bobbie" Burns His poem, for the most part in the dialect of his race, have stirred the emotions of his countrymen, the land immortalized Scot, in a manner that no other poet has ever done.

Born in 1759, the son of an Ayrshire, farmer, one of a large family, he at first followed the occupation of farming along with his brothers. He later received the post of Excise Officer in Dumfriesshire county, but these occupations were clearly not his vocation in life and in 1786 he published his first book of poems in Kilmarnock which immediately attracted marked attention, and he was sought after and made free of literary circles.

Married "Bonnie Jean"

In 1788 he married Jean Armour, the "Bonnie Jean" of his poems. Like many another great man Burns had his weaknesses and to his over indulgence in the wine cup many attribute his early death. Latterly however, authorities on the subject say that Burns has been much maligned in this respect. His poems have been the result of his works will stand as undying proof of his genius. Dying in 1796, while still in his early prime, Burns was able to ungrudged his fellow countrymen, their humor and their pathos as no other poet ever has or probably every will understand them. His poems have a wide range from the intensely humorous story of "Tam O' Shanter" to those of deep pathos. In the opinion of such a learned critic as Matthew Arnold, Burns, deserves to rank with the foremost literary genius of all times.

Burns needs no testimonial, his works stand as a living tribute both among his own people who loved him and those who appreciate genius no matter of what nationality they may be.

Defense of Burns

Toronto, Jan. 25.—In various ways the 169th birthday of Robert Burns, Scot and bonnie poet is being celebrated here today, but the chief ceremony in honour of the day was held by the Robert Burns Society of Toronto. The anniversary is made the occasion of a strong defence of Burns by Dr. Norman Hughes, veteran educationist who has made a study of the life and works of the Scot. He said in part: "Burns was the best educated man in Scotland in his day, the best read, the schooled man, but the best educated."

Heroism of Little Girl Will Be Recognized By The Council

SOME NEW SCHOOLS

Agricultural And Domestic Science Classes Established Generally

County Council resumed the January sessions at Shire Hall this morning. For the most part the body is made up of the same members as last year with comparatively few new faces around the Board. Fred Curry, Reeve of Madoc is among the missing and Mr. E. C. Tufts now represents the village. James Bronson represents Mayo, he having defeated Frank White, Mr. T. E. Laycock, another new-comer, was elected in Marmora and Lake succeeding Mr. Bonter who retired. Mr. H. Way won from W. A. McMurray in Tudor and Cashel in a close fight. Mr. McMurray served in the Council for some years.

The chief business transacted this morning was the submitting of the reports by the Public School Boards and Centre Hastings. The newly-chosen Warden, Mr. Sam B. Hollins, occupied the chair.

The report of Mr. A. W. McGuire, School Inspector for Centre Hastings, was submitted.

Mr. McGuire visited each school twice with the purpose in view of holding an idea of the teacher's ability to judge the proficiency of the pupils and to determine what equipment was needed.

School Boards in different parts of the county discussed with the Inspector the needs of the individual schools. The most profitable meeting was held at Springbrook where forty-five met in a conclave. The most important matter settled was the decision to employ a special teacher for music in Rawdon Township.

The Agricultural Specialist at Stirling was one of the best ever held and many valuable suggestions came from the discussion. There were five school fairs held under the management of the agricultural representatives. Keen interest was shown by the parents in these fairs. The subject of agriculture is taught in most of the schools.

Seventy Rural Schools

In Centre Hastings there are seventy rural schools, and five village schools, seventy-eight teachers in the rural schools and twenty-two in the villages. Fourteen of the teachers have first-class certificates and eighty-six have second-class certificates.

The highest salary paid to a principal in a village school is $1850 and the highest salary to rural school teachers is $1000. The lowest salary paid to any teacher is $800, while the average is $900 or $1000.

Ten class rooms are carried on in four schools, which qualify for the Legislative and County Grants. In all these schools the work of the first and second years at High School is taught.

The school was rebuilt in No. 8 Rawdon, while a new brick building was erected in No. 3 Rawdon. Mr. McGuire stressed the need of new buildings in other sections.

FOUND FORTUNE ON SANDY BEACH

Astoria, Oregon, Jan. 25.— The sands of a beach here yielded golden sands for two clam diggers here. When James Carner and Harry Brown found that it was real abundance mingled between four and five pounds on the beach near here. Carner did not know at first they held eight thousand dollars' worth of ambergris.

Experts declare the substance might be worth something they brought it to Astoria. No one could estimate its value. Finally, they sent some of it to Los Angeles, where it was identified as ambergris, worth from $40 to $100 per ounce.

ENGINEER PASSES

Major-General George Washington Goethals, who died at his home in New York on Saturday, will be remembered by his great achievement of directing the building of the Panama Canal. General Goethals was an army engineer, a graduate of West Point, which has turned out some of the best engineers in the United States men who are qualified to cope with any engineering tasks that may arise. Goethals was a leader among them and when he was asked by President Roosevelt to undertake the work of making a canal through the Isthmus of Panama he accepted and expressed confidence that the venture, which had been discussed for more than a hundred years in the Old World and the New and which had been attempted by French engineers and others, would be carried to a successful conclusion. Like all great works the Panama Canal project was assailed by critics, large and small, and there were engineers and politicians in the United States and elsewhere who asserted that Goethals would fail as had De Lesseps before him. But Goethals was a worker and knew his business and unlike De Lesseps, he had the backing of the tireless President Roosevelt, who had a supreme confidence in army men, and who overrode all political opposition, in both the United States and Central America, and saw that funds were never lacking for the construction of the waterway. The American engineers also had the advantage of knowing climatic and health conditions in the Canal Zone they having had experience with yellow fever in Cuba, which disease they had defeated there. They knew that the first requisite was to make the zone free of fever so that men could perform their tasks without fear of illness. At the head of the health brigade was General Gorgas, another army man, who cleaned up the Isthmus and enabled the workers to go ahead as though Panama were located in the north temperate zone. The Culebra Cut was driven through sliding mountains and in due time the world saw the completion of the Panama Canal. It remains a monument to the engineering skill of Goethals, who lived to see his chief life's work a complete success. It was fitting that Goethals should be appointed the first governor of the Canal Zone and in that position he again proved a capable administrator. His was a useful career that benefitted more than his own country.

JOLT FOR BILL

Robert Burns longed for the gift "to see ourselves as others see us." Mayor William Hale Thompson, of Chicago, is acquiring that gift in instalments, and it is doubtful if he is getting much satisfaction out of it. Certainly the image of himself reflected in the mirror held before him by the American League of Municipalities will not be to his taste. It is anything but a flattering picture.

"Big Bill," fearful lest the proceedings which he instituted against Mr. McAndrew, Chicago's superintendent of education, whom he charged with pro-British tendencies, will fail through lack of evidence, recently eliminated all the posts of the American Legion to bring pressure to bear upon the Chicago board of education to have that body conduct the deposed superintendent. This he asked "for patriotic" reasons. Massachusetts Legion, representing 70 posts, has replied informing Big Bill that his association with any political movement "detracts from and does not add to its effectiveness." Moreover, he is told in curt language that the Massachusetts war veterans are familiar with his record; that they consider him anything but a patriot, and regard his request for their interference as little short of insulting.

Poor Big Bill! If ever he acquires in full the gift to see himself as others see him, will he not hate himself?

WONDER OF RADIO

A report come across the ocean that a British company thinks it is able to produce television across the Atlantic ocean and that the said by radio a picture across the ocean.

This will be merely extending what has been shown to be practicable for a less distance.

In Schenectady, N.Y., recently a group of persons assembled in a private home listened to a radio-transmitted concert and saw upon a screen the images of the artists performing. This was declared a hugely successful demonstration of radio-television.

But the great master of wireless promises more. Signor Marconi, in a recent article in an American paper, states that he thinks it probable that within a few years radio will transmit moving pictures. He thinks it probable that a man will be able to sit in his arm-chair at home and not only hear some great tenor singing in opera, but see the opera. That it will be possible to put into a hundred miles away not only to hear the announcement of what is going on in an argument between Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey, but to see the fight as it occurs.

This world bids fair to be quite remarkable fifty or a hundred years from now. The human race may be making holiday excursions to the moon

A CONTRAST

Two armed boys in New York one night held up a pedestrian and robbed him of $2.50. The other day they were brought to trial and were sentenced to serve twenty-seven years in the state penitentiary. While the crime of robbery and the use of arms cannot be condoned, this is a striking contrast to some other sentences and decisions in far more serious crimes. Possibly, if they had killed someone, and had been able to engage a sufficiently clever lawyer to raise the plea of insanity for them, they might even have been acquitted.

THE PASSING YEARS
(From The Intelligencer of this day 50 years ago)

The annual dinner given by Captain Thomas Bowen to the members of "F" Company, which he commands was held at Wallace's restaurant last evening. It was the most successful function ever held by the company and this happy state of affairs is entirely due to the good fellowship existing between Capt. Stewart and his men.

BLESSINGS ON LITTLE BOYS

God bless all little boys who look like Puck,
With wide eyes, wider mouths and slick-cut ears,
Each little boys who stay alive by luck
And Heaven's favor in this world of tears,
Ten-thousand-quest-ons-a-hing little boys,
Rapid of hand and foot and thought as well,
Playing with gorgeous fancies more than toys,
Heroes of what they dream, but never tell.
Father, in your vast playground let them know
The loveliness of ocean, star and hill;
Protect from every bitterness and woe
Your heedless little acolytes, and still
Grant me the grace, I beg upon my knees,
Not to forget that I was one of these!

Just Stories

Not long ago when at Bournemouth, the Prince of Wales met an old lady of 70. She had made his first baby clothes, "in the Victorian style" she added. Her name is Sarah Arter, now a patient in the Bournemouth Hospital. The Prince gripped herhand and laughed uproariously when informed that she had been his first tailor. "Though," he explained, "I'm afraid I don't remember it; perhaps because it was such a long time ago." The Prince handed Miss Arter a bunch of violets which had been presented to him and passed on, leaving her very happy.

Perhaps you won't believe this story. The incident actually happened and to me in a well-known personage than Miss Peggy O'Neill. She told it herself.

I was staying—she said—at a certain hotel in Monte Carlo, and put my shoes outside my bedroom door to be cleaned.

Next morning I looked for them. They were there—uncleaned.

I was angry. Then, up the corridor you're senior partner, aren't you dear?

GEORGE B. WOODS

President of the Continental Life Insurance Co., which has just closed a most satisfactory year.

CONTINENTAL LIFE REPORTS SATISFACTORY YEAR

The annual report presented to the policyholders and shareholders of the Continental Life insurance Company at the Annual Meeting held on January 25th, was most satisfactory. Mr. George B. Woods, President, occupied the chair, and in moving the adoption of the report, laid stress on the gratifying increases in all departments of the Company's business. The new business for the year was $9,094,942.00, and the insurance in force at the end of 1927 year was $32,779,660.00. The total net income for the year was $1,425,311.69. The assets of the Company on December 31st, had increased by $562,775.61 to $5,650,118.55. These include First mortgages on real estate policy loans, bonds, debentures and the Company's Home Office Building. The average rate of interest earned during the year was 6.35 per cent. The reserves held by the Company at the end of the year for its policy and annuity contracts amounted to $4,971,267.00 an increase of $507,818.03. The payments to policyholders and beneficiaries during the year were $442,540.75, making the total paid to or held for policyholders since 1899 $9,727,639.00. The President referred to legislative changes during the past year made in Canada with a view to adapting life insurance contracts to social needs. New bases of valuation were introduced by the Companies and authorized by the Department of Insurance, and several new tables of mortality have been authorized including a Canadian one. Table based on the actual experience of assured lives in Canada. It is believed that the new legislation will be better fitted to modern life insurance needs.

The same directors were re-elected for the ensuing year.

I espied a dark-skinned man.
"Hil! Boots!" I shouted. "Here!"
And pointed to my shoes.

The man bowed. He took away my shoes, and they were returned later nicely polished and filled with lovely flowers.

"Decent chap that!" I said to myself. "I must remember to tip him a bit extra when I am leaving."

That afternoon at the roulette table I sat opposite a dark gentleman immaculately dressed. He looked at me rather quizzically.

"Me? But I seem to know that face." I thought, and I asked a friend who he was.

"The Shah of Persia," was the reply.

"Great Scott!" I gasped. "And I ordered him to clean my boots this morning!"

SLAVES ARE STILL SOLD LIKE CATTLE

London, Jan. 24.—Lady Kathleen Simon—wife of Sir John Simon, noted Liberal statesman—who had much to do with bringing peace to a quarter of a million slaves in Sierra Leone, Africa, speaking at the showing of the film "Trader Horn" said that slaves sold for complete section of human misery throughout the world in this generation.

"We have reason to believe, indeed, where are still 200,000 or 400,000 slaves to be sent free to Abyssinia and China. Mothers have been known to torn from them and murdered before their eyes. Husbands are torn from their wives and, in Abyssinia, are marched across the desert. They are brought to the date markets and sold like cattle into serfdom, which only ends with the grave."

Sir Austen Chamberlain and Lord Cecil, the cabinet, had appealed to the League of Nations to regard ships which carry slaves as pirates, but their plea has failed when France, Italy, Portugal and some other nations declined to support it.

Pirates dried their meat supply on racks called buccans, hence, the name "buccaneers."

OSHAWA WINNER OF DISTRICT CUP

COUNTY WARDEN SPEAKS ECONOMY

"Prosperous Year For Hastings Ahead," Says S. B. Rollins

Mr. Sam B. Rollins Reeve of Tweed, seemed much touched yesterday when he was unanimously elected warden of the County Council for 1928. "I am sure words fail me just here," stated the new Warden in opening his silent inaugural address. "I appreciate your electing me Warden. There was no opposition in the caucus and the election was perfectly unanimous. I will endeavour to fill this position to the utmost of my ability."

Two Things

"There are two things that I will endeavour to fulfill in this position," continued Warden Rollins, "I will try to fill the position with dignity and respect. I hope that you will give me your support and I believe I shall do well."

"I don't know that there is anything startling to come up this year" continued the speaker, "the great economic question is, and always will be economical."

"Economy is the great thing. Keep everything in order and up to a standard and you will be economical. I would advise the chairmen of the different departments to look after their sheep most carefully."

Prosperous County

"The prosperity of the county as a whole is good. I look forward to a great year. The prices in your markets are good, but it is low the prices of beef, cheese, also. There has been a boom on now, the discovery of a tin mine in northern Ontario. If they should turn out all right it will be a great boon to the province and to the Dominion as a whole."

Less Prisoners

"The lessen of prisoners" continued Mr. Rollins, "has found that the prisoners of term-age are increasing. The County Council has a scheme to deal with this matter up with the reeves. If something could be done to keep these boys a great reduction in prison inmates would result."

Immediately following the Warden's address it was moved that the County Clerk send a letter of condolence, the one to Mrs. Burns, in the death of her husband, and the other to Mrs. F. J. Sprague, in the death of Mrs. Carnew Elsiver, in the death of her husband. The meeting was then adjourned.

TODAYS MARKETS

Wheat Is Set Back

Chicago, Jan. 25.—Something of setback in wheat values resulted early today from weakness of the New York stock market and unexpected declines in Liverpool. Corn prices likewise declined with wheat and on account of favorable weather, starting at 1-4c to 3-8c off with May later near to the initial rate, corn opened 1-4 to 2-4c lower and soon afterward declined little more. Oats were easy.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

Winnipeg, Jan. 25.—Wheat, May 1-4c lower at 1.33 5-8, July 3-4c to 1-4c lower at 1.30 3-4, Oats 3-8c to 5-8c lower at 1.29 1-8 to 1.28 7-8, Oats May 1-4c lower at 67 7-8.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK

Toronto, Jan. 25—Livestock receipts 1464 trade dull. Heavy steers and cattle 10.75. Butcher steers, good to choice, 9.75 to 10.15. Butcher cows common 6.00 7.50. Calves good to choice 12.00 to 15.00. Hogs select 9.40. Good ewe lambs. 13.50.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, Jan. 25—Wheat, Mar. 1.24 5-8, May 1.30 3-8, Corn Mar. 88 3-8 May 91. Oats Mar. 54 3-4, May 55 3-4.

EXPECTED TO WIN

New York, Jan. 25.—Foreign exchange bankers generally expected that Great Britain 487 1-8. Canadian dollars 5-32 at one per cent discount.

CLOSING QUOTATIONS

Prices Broke Sharply

New York, N.Y., Jan. 25.—The stock market experienced a sharp reaction today as a result of heavy liquidation inaugured by an unexpected increase in the discount rate. Prices broke two to seven points at the opening, rallied moderately, sagged again before midday and turned upward in the early afternoon when heavy buying developed in the public utilities, several of which advanced to new high records. Trading started off at a terrific pace but slowed up on the rallies.

The market having advanced rather steadily for five consecutive days, was in a vulnerable position for selling attacks. Several pools which had been operative in specialties, mainly within a few brief minutes put out extensive offerings and as soon as the first outburst of the selling had spent its force.

DEATHS & FUNERALS

FRANK THOMPSON

Frank J. Thompson, a man prominent in the civil and municipal affairs in the Township of Elzevir passed away Saturday at the village of Tweed. Exactly thirty-three years ago yesterday Mr. Thompson was honored with the Wardenship of the County of Hastings. He will be buried tomorrow at Tweed where he has been making his home of late years.

SARAH ANNE SMITH

With a legion of sorrowing relatives and friends in attendance, all that was mortal of the late Mrs. Sarah Anne Smith was laid to rest in the family plot, Belleville Cemetery, yesterday afternoon following an impressive funeral service at the home of her son-in-law, Mr. Wilfred Smith, 57 Everett Street, which was conducted by Rev. W. F. B. Maher, Minister of Bridge Street United Church, who also officiated at the committal at the graveside. A wealth of flowers bore silent evidence of sorrow and sympathy from relatives and friends. The bearers were Messrs. Wellington Fisher, F. Milne, F. Held, E. Waite and J. D. Nelson.

MRS. W. G. BELL

The funeral of the late Mrs. W. G. Bell was held on Monday from her home, Lean Avenue, Toronto to Mount Cemetery Vault, Picton where the interment was made.

The funeral party motored from Toronto and many friends joined the cortege at Belleville. Mr. Thomas C. Thompson, Belleville, Mr. Fisher, F. Milne, F. Held, E. Waite and J. D. Nelson.

POLICE COURT

TOLD ON SELLER

James Dresser, Front Ave. Anne was arrested yesterday at 601-2 Calberton street on a charge of drunkenness and this morning was brought up before Magistrate Mikel. When queried by His Worship the accused stated from whom he had bought the three bottles of beer that caused his downfall and the peddler will appear in court in the near future.

VAGRANT REMANDED

Arthur Clarke appeared on a charge of vagrancy but was remanded for ten days for a week after pleading guilty to the charge. Clarke, the police chief owes money to several boarding houses in the city.

THEFT FROM EMPLOYER

Thomas Webb was charged this morning by Chief Constable Ponton with theft from his employer, Mr. A. McMullen, of Rawdon Township. The accused was remanded until his previous record could be investigated

COUNTY SCHOOL

Two hundred candidates were on the examinations at the four centres and one hundred and sixty-five passed which is 82% of the total number.

School Boards have three sources of revenue, legislative grants, township grants and levy on the ratepayers of the section. The total legislative grants for the county of Centre Hastings was $32,798. Of that amount, 1845 was placed at the inspector's disposal and 30,953 to the various schools. The County Council gave an equal amount making the total $1690 for school purposes.

The amount of the legislative grants is determined by the Department of Education in such a way that a school section with a low assessment receives a higher grant than a section with a high assessment.

Mr. Corbett Hastings there are five sections which do not have a travelling library. The Department of Education has been considering the advisability of this matter with a view to changing to plan in order that the ratepayers of Hastings may receive the same treatment in regard to taxation for school purposes.

Mr. H. J. Clarke, inspector for South Hastings, submitted his report this morning. There are sixty school houses in the section and these are in such a condition that hitherto will serve the needs of the county.

Many improvements were made during the past year. A new school was built at S.S. No. 20 Thurlow, at S.S. No. 22 an addition was made to the school. The school in S.S. No. 5 was built at a cost of $6000. Every school has the minimum equipment in furniture library, maps. S.S. No. 6 Thurlow, a motion picture machine has been installed. Two rural schools have electric ranges installed.

There are in the Inspectorate at the present, one hundred and thirty-four teachers, besides those on the Indian Reserves as well as the literary classes at the Ontario School for the Deaf, where there are twenty-seven teachers. In the past year the schools have reached a high state of proficiency. A few families give trouble in the matter of school attendance but the attendance officers are doing all possible to enforce the law.

Three Rural School Fairs were held with a large attendance at each. Agriculture is systematically taught in forty out of the fifty-one schools. In nineteen schools, classes are taught Household Science and pupils are given hot lunches.

Mr. Clarke stated that Township School Board are the only ones who can adequately handle the system. In some cases it was stated that schools might be closed where the attendance is low and the pupils attend other schools.

A letter was received from the Town Clerk of Deseronto explaining the situation in that town where neither a Re-ve or Council has yet been elected. He asked that the interests of the town be looked after at the Session of the Council. The Council accepted the invitation of J. O. Henry, Manager of the Chamber of Commerce to attend the banquet in the Hotel Quinte on Thursday night. Mr. W. J. Bell B. S. A. of Kemptville Agricultural School will be the chief speaker.

A letter was received from Mr. G. Jorgansen, teacher of North Hastings with regard to organizing the town of Joyce Price a little Detlor girl aged nine years who at the risk of her own life entered a burning home to rescue her two brothers who were sleeping. She carried them to a place of safety. The heroic act happened some months ago but no efforts were made to bring the name Society.

The matter was left in the hands of the County Clerk who was instructed to communicate with W. C. Mikel, Magistrate of Belleville who has handled similar cases. It was also decided to leave the matter of a grant for the girl in the hands of the Ways and Means Committee.

No action was taken in the matter of a grant to the Sick Children's Hospital Toronto. It was left in the hands of Ways and Means.

The City Clerk, of Peterboro communicated with the Council with regard to the Provincial Legislature in the city which was recently closed by the Government. Efforts were made to reopen it but the Premier stated plainly that they would pay one-half of the up to a certain amount if the ratepayers took care of the remainder. It was pointed out that Hastings County derived a certain benefit from the Institution and last year eleven per cent. of the cases came from this County and for this reason it was felt that the County Council should assist in the matter. The matter was left to deal with the Ways and Means Committee.

The nominating Committee for the Chairmanship was chosen by the Warden as follows:—Mr. Gilroy, Mr. George Stokes and E.—Warden Alhart.

MARRIAGES

PEPPLES—BTRET—On Saturday evening, Jan. 21, 1928 at 36 Breckenridge St., South Falls, Ont., Mr. Robert James Pepples of Belleville, Ont., and Miss Mary A. Street, South Falls. were united in marriage by Rev. J. Semple of the United Church. The witnesses were Mr. and Mrs. Myron Street.

moners, the actual business of opening Parliament commences. The genial Sergeant Usher of the black rod is despatched as an official messenger and the speaker instructs the sergeant-at-arms to "admit the messenger". The Commons procession then forms with the mace borne by the sergeant-at-arms leading and the speaker and clerks of the House following. Commoners fall in slowly behind.

In the Upper House, the speaker stands at the bar, a brass bar drawn across the entrance. Members crowd in beside. The speech from the throne is read by His Excellency, seated. Speaker of the Commons and his followers stand and Mr. Speaker wears his tri-cornered hat through out, though it is lifted in salutation.

The Commoners then return to their chamber, and bill number one, an ancient dummy bill, is read for the first time simply as a gesture of the lower house demonstrating its historic right to proceed, if it wishes, with other matters than the speech from the throne. Parliament is opened.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Mrs. Sarah Ann Smith wish to thank their friends and neighbors for kindness and sympathy during the illness and death of their mother.

SUBCONSCIOUS MIND THE HIDDEN MASTER

By LOUIS E. BISCH

We all make mistakes. We lose things; we forget appointments; we say what we do not intend; we make mistakes in reading and writing; our tongue often slips and we let out a secret.

Sometimes we wonder how we could have been so stupid. I have known persons who, after making several errors of this kind, have begun to worry lest it indicate mental unbalance or possibly premature senility.

There should, however, be no misgivings on that score. The course of our everyday lives is replete with examples proving that the mind does not always function as we should wish. Forgettings and errors are perfectly normal mental curiosities. One should think of them as deviations within the normal.

There is, nevertheless, always a reason for such errors. Forgetting a telephone number that you ought to remember, misplacing the house keys, losing one's eye glasses, forgetting the combination of the safe, calling your old friend Smith instead of Jones, writing a note in a letter different from the one you intended, committing a social error when you know better—each and every mistake can be explained.

We are beginning to realize more and more the tremendous importance of that underneath mind of ours, the subconscious or unconscious.

This unconscious mind is not merely a storehouse for past experiences and past ideas. The subconscious means more than chiefly and exclusively the past. The unconscious also attempts to make our deepest wishes known, to remind us, as it were, that there are certain things we want to do, or don't want to do, or neglected to do, or are ashamed of doing, as the case may be.

For example, I know a physician who admitted to me that he could not recall the names of his patients. Try as he might, familiar as the faces might be, he had the greatest difficulty in remembering to whom they were.

This inability on his part became more and more irksome and embarrassing until he hit upon the idea of having his secretary write the names of the patients waiting to see him on pieces of paper and having her slip the appropriate name to him just before the patient entered the consultation room.

He kept up this custom for about two years and then dropped it altogether and entered the real estate business.

From his inability to remember the names of patients it is plain that he did not want to remember them. His conscious mind told him he wanted to be a physician, but his unconscious mind, always truthful, told him "no." Forgetting the names of the patients meant he did not want patients.

If you forget a familiar telephone number or your friend's name, or signal not, try to figure out if it is not true that for some reason or other you don't want to remember. You might forget your grocer's number because you owe him a bill. You may call your friend Smith instead of Jones because you really like Smith better.

The next time you write to some beloved one and you sign yourself, by mistake, "sincerely" instead of with the accustomed "love," you had better think it over and find out why your state of affection happens to be altered.

When you pick up the fork by mistake to eat your soup the motivating unconscious reason may not be so plain. Maybe you don't like the soup and you don't want to eat it. At any rate, there is a reason.

There is a reason for everything.

"High Rigger" Knocked Out By Extremely Painful Back

Gin Pills Saved Him Pain and Money

Mr. J. F. Miller's letter contains priceless advice to people who suffer from backache, and shows clearly the value of Gin Pills as a prompt relief for ailing kidneys:

"In the world I was cashed with this for days. God got me to the back. I was bad to walk now wanted to send me to the city for medical treatment. One of the boys advised Gin Pills. In four days I was back on job. Thanks. By all of the boys carry Gin Pills in their pocket."

Neglect of kidney trouble is very dangerous. Backache is not the only symptom—dizziness, brick dust in urine, spots before the eyes, headaches, swollen joints, painful, scanty or too frequent urination are others. Gin Pills relieve immediately and prevent Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, acute Bladder trouble. All druggists carry Gin Pills. 50c a box. WHAT'S NEW

(From a Woman's Standpoint)

Taffeta no longer suggests just an evening dress for the ingenue, as is witnessed by sophisticated evening gowns of this material at foremost Fifth avenue shops for in one a white taffeta gown subtly draped into a bustle bow, from which graceful panels depend, offers one version, while glace red and blue taffeta is employed in a stately gown which is also draped.

Many of the best coats in formal and sports groups for spring are without any fur whatsoever, and almost inevitably adopt some sort of fur collar, while when furs appear, beige and platinum fox are most important in luxurious types, and also broadtail, black caracul; burundubi.

The pendulum of fashion is swinging toward long, even trailing gowns for dinners and dances in New York, and Lady Mendl (Elsie de Wolfe), at the Embassy Club the other night, wore a gold brocade, puffed at the hips had covering even the tips of her golden slippers, while another well known beauty had a black lace gown which swept the floor, and had long sleeves with a decolletage, long and pointed, back and front.

A SUITOR TOO MANY

By MILDRED BARBOUR

Lila saw his uncertainty and took hope. Her eyes went to her watch.

Ten minutes had passed since Herbert had phoned. He should be almost up-town. And Dorothy?

"Then why did you want to get rid of me so suddenly?" Parquahar asked abruptly.

She looked up with a start and forced a laugh.

"Why, isn't it obvious? We can't stay here all afternoon. I think you have other uses for her drawing-room."

He was silent.

Five minutes more, Lila's watch told her! Only five minutes, and then Herbert would burst in upon them!

Lila closed her eyes.

Suddenly the front door-bell rang, and a moment later, Dorothy's voice was heard in the hall, addressing Biddons. Then she pushed the drawing-room door and stood framed in it, a pretty, graceful figure.

Parquahar was on his feet. She turn to him, after a bright, encouraging smile to Lila.

"Captain Parquahar, how do you do? She held out her hand. "Did Lila warn you?" she asked laughingly.

"Warn me? Are you even more dangerous than you seem, Mrs. Ware?"

Her eyes flashed a challenge.

"I've come to kidnap you, Captain Parquahar. When Lila told me you were here, I rushed down in my car. Do you know, I was sitting in my studio waiting for a man who, as usual, that could finish an important commission I was working on the whole time of professional models, because one let me down without warning this afternoon. Will you play truant, Captain Parquahar? One good turn deserves another," she reminded him archly, "and I've been rather good to you and Lila, haven't I?"

"You have indeed, Mrs. Ware," declared Parquahar fervently, "and I'll be most happy to assist you, if I can. But," he laughed, "I'm afraid I don't know much about posing."

"Thank Heaven for that!" breathed Dorothy. "Then you'll do exactly as I tell you, without trying to work in ideas of your own. Is it a bargain?"

It seemed incredible to Lila that Dorothy had taken Parquahar out of the house and that her car had already disappeared around the corner. And Herbert had not yet arrived.

Nevertheless, she sank onto a chair, feeling almost ill. A few minutes later, she looked up to find Herbert standing in the doorway. He was regarding the tea-service fixedly.

"You had a caller?"

"Dorothy was here," murmured Lila. She seized Herbert by the wrists and drew some papers from his pocket. Lila caught a glimpse of the heavy cream stationery that her modiste, Irene, affected. The bill for those gowns, of course!

She reached out to take it, suppressing a sigh.

"Lila!" The sharpness of Herbert's tone made her start.

"Where is your wedding-ring? Why are you wearing that ring of Mrs. Varney's?"

Also, when Jack had left, Lila had forgotten to take off his ring!

CROSS-CURRENTS

Jack Parquahar sat in Dorothy's studio, patiently holding a pose, while her sketch-pencil flew. It wasn't a difficult pose. Dorothy had been sketching jonquils when Lila's frantic message arrived; so she had hastily reenacted an unfinished piece of work that she had undertaken for an advertising agency. Fortunately, it had a male figure in the foreground that suited the occasion admirably.

Parquahar asked if he might talk.

"Sit all mean," Dorothy assured him "it prevents your pose from becoming wooden. And you may smoke, as soon as I've block in your right arm. But please don't turn your head or move your body."

A few minutes later she rose from her drawing-board.

"Now for the cigarette," she said gaily. "I'll light it for you, as you won't have to break the full pose."

He said laughingly: "The left pocket," and she slipped her hand into it and produced his case. Extracting a cigarette, she stuck it between his lips and lighted it.

For several minutes after she returned to her drawing-board, there was a curious silence; then she began quietly to talk to him about his experience in France.

He found himself recounting his dramatic story; he talked to her as he had never talked to Lila. She seemed honestly interested and sympathetic; she understood. It struck him that Lila's interest was forced; she was restless; she seemed always to have something else in her mind than what was then giving him her full attention.

He was still talking when Dorothy laid down her pencil.

"The light has gone," she announced. "Thank you very, very much, Captain Parquahar."

He licked frankly disappointed. "Is that all? Is the drawing finished?"

Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

To remove mildew from clothes, mix equal parts of soft soap with powdered starch, half as much common salt and the juice of a lemon. Spread this mixture over the mildew spots and then lay the article on the grass day and night, or hang out of doors, until the stain comes out.

When using gum arabic for starching, put 1 tablespoon into 1 quart of cold water. Let it stand overnight. In the morning stir it well, then strain it and it will be ready to use instead of starch.

When a sweater is to be washed the buttonholes will not stretch if they are sewed together before the sweater is put into the water.

When Dancing

Holds Its First Party

Groceries, with her straight, basin-shaped hair-cut and her drooping legs, is mighty glad she is alive this month. The "Greatest Progress Week" is coming next and more than 50 women and the designers are interpreting it to itself and the outside world knows and sees clearly through its choices. For dancing class this honest dress will flatter gracefully with just enough decoration for a really good-old. Its two-tiered skirt front is very new and the straight back is one piece very short. It may be of taffeta, crepe de chine, georgette or a silk or cotton voile with long sleeves. For parties, printed voiles, crepe de chine, georgette, silk voile or batiste would be charming without the sleeves and having the cut-out bows of plain silk to match or harmonize. SINCLAIR'S

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I have a problem I want to ask you about. I feel I am not popular. I tried many ways in which to remedy this, but I have not been successful. And also will you tell me if it is proper for a boy to speak to a girl if he does not know her, except by sight. I would like to know as a particular girl and would it be right to speak to her and walk home with her?

HAPPY-GO-LUCKY.

HAPPY-GO-LUCKY: Perhaps you think about this too much and by trying too hard defeat your own ends. Just be your natural self; be always considerate of others, and I'm sure you will succeed. Above all, avoid self consciousness.

As to your wish to know this girl try to get some mutual friend to furnish the introduction. I am afraid she would not welcome your attentions under the circumstances your mention.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

This letter may cause an argument in your column, but please publish it to give the type of girl I am about to discuss something to talk about.

You would-be-popular girls, who snatch the latest colored magazine of clever remarks, jokes, etc., and lodge them in your memories to make a "grand slam" with your friends, usually at the expense of some member of the party, are about the least thought of and the dumbest yet.

These same girls seldom say a sensible sentence the whole evening, but are very outstanding in my opinion. Do you think me wrong in being bored with this sort or do you think I should put aside the idea of finding a sensible friend and companion?

JOHN.

JOHN: I think it is because you are judging the majority by a noisy minority that you are reaching those dras tic conclusions, my friend. Undoubtedly the type of girl you are so justifiably prejudiced against does exist but you are wrong to infer that she is typical of the girl of today. There are many more girls than you suspect who are idealistic and desirable and who are properly offended by the careless actions of their less worthy sisters. By no means despair of finding a sensible companion, John! Cease to be concerned about the actions of these pseudo-modern girls and widen your circle of friends to include the type you are seeking. Be more discriminating in your choice of friends and I am sure you will have less difficulty in realizing the goal of your ambition. Put aside these cynical thoughts, John and resolve that so long as the type of girl you admire does exist, you can and will find her. Good luck!

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I have been going with a young man of whom I think a great deal. He is of a poor but respectable family. I am of a very wealthy family and have always lived in luxury. It is my father's wish that I marry a man ten years my senior, who is very wealthy and well known, but I just don't like him. Father says that I would not be satisfied with that the poor man could give me. He also says that I would no longer be his daughter after a divorce, and that all his possessions would go to my younger brother. I fear that we would never get along without father's help and I would not ask him to help me.

What do you think I should do?

BOOTS.

BOOTS: I cannot help but question your sincerity, my dear, if you refer to your love in one sentence and in the next breath admit that you are already considering divorce in case you find yourself mistaken in your choice! If your love were true, you would not admit or even conceive any doubts as to its permanence. I urge you to take more time before making a decision and consider the situation from all sides. Realize that if you marry this man you will have to forfeit many of the luxuries to which you are accustomed and try to determine what effect this change in your standard of living will have upon you. I am sure this man's pride would not permit him to accept too much help from your father, even if he were willing to give it! If you feel that he cannot support you, why not wait until he is in a better position to consider marriage? Is it other than into such an undertaking now? I am sure your father does not wish you to marry without love, and you might in deference to his wishes develop your friendship into the man of his choice and discover what feeling you have for him. Remember, always in considering marriage with the poor man you will have to do without many of the things you now take for granted and if it hurts you to think of giving these up, I am inclined to think your love is not strong enough or deep enough to endure the initial hardships of marriage.

1928 SESSION IMPORTANT ONE

For The Future of This Country, It Is Expected

Ottawa, Jan. 25—Parliament opens tomorrow, January 26th, and a session of great importance to the future of Canada is expected. The outstanding question will doubtless be that of the development of the St. Lawrence River navigation and power proposals. That it will bring on a big debate is assured. The divergent views as to the advisability of going ahead with the scheme as the present time, the large amount of money involved, the disposal of the power such a development would provide, the partnership arrangement with the United States to carry through the undertaking—all these points will be fruitful in argument.

Following the reports of the international committee of engineers on the plans to build a deep waterway from the real lakes to the sea which differed in that the United States experts favored one dam in the St. Lawrence River and the Canadian engineers two, the United States intimated it was favorably disposed to going ahead with the project. The Canadian government referred the reports to an advisory board which met here last week and presented its report to the government. This report will be brought before parliament and although no details have been made public as to its contents, it is understood to advise the going ahead with the construction of a deep-water canal and the consequent power development along the rapids between Prescott and Montreal.

Premier Mackenzie King will have opposite him a new Conservative leader. Hon. R. B. Bennett was chosen this summer at a national party convention held in Winnipeg to take the place temporarily held by Hon. Hugh Guthrie since the retirement from the leadership of Hon. Arthur Meighen. The position Mr. Bennett and his party will take as to the St. Lawrence development project is not definitely known until the report of the advisory board has been presented to the House of Commons. Whether the government forces will all be of one mind as to it will also probably not be definitely indicated until the debate starts.

No session of a Canadian Parliament would be complete without a tariff debate and the reports of the tariff advisory board will be a new feature. Last session the tariff was left alone, the government taking the stand that the then newly appointed tariff board had not been long enough in harness to give much assistance. Since then it has been at work for a year, held many inquiries, dealt with a wide variety of applications, some wanting higher duties and some wanting lower. Those best informed seem to think that there will be many alterations to the tariff in this year's budget.

The excise taxes will also probably be reduced particularly the sales tax which was at last year three and a half per cent. A further cut is looked for this year. The provincial governments think that the federal government puts too heavy a tax on liquors. All the liquor legally sold in Canada now is through provincial government stores and the provinces contend that the high tax is too great an encouragement to the illegal manufacture of spirits for which no tax is paid. Whether the federal government will acquiesce in this request for a tax reduction is not known.

DEADLY POISON PLACED OUT FOR THE INITIATION

Toledo, Jan. 23.—A Wallie High School instructor and seven students were recovering from serious illness, while Principal James A. Pollock and two detectives continued to investigate the substitution of a deadly poison for a harmless but ill-tasting chemical.

Miss Lulu Howard, chemistry instructor, who prepared the chemicals, said that the poison was not on the table shortly before the initiation. She said it probably was placed there after her attention was attracted elsewhere.

Pollock and Detectives Eaton and Brown questioned more than 40 students who attended the initiation party in the Athletonic Club.

An examination of the chemical laboratory disclosed the substitution of the poison for a harmless but ill-tasting chemical.

APPEAL PETITION IS THROWN OUT

Privy Council Refused To Consider Case Under Criminal Code

London.—The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council today dismissed the petition for leave to appeal by Thomas Linwood and P. M. Cunnarola from a conviction and sentence of three years in penitentiary, after arrest at Windsor, Ont., for carrying arms in the danger of the public peace.

Lord Haldane recorded that the case came entirely within the Criminal Code and an appeal to the Privy Council in such cases was allowed only under the most exceptional circumstances.

Counsel for the petitioners submitted that if the present conviction was allowed to stand, it would be a departure from the fundamental law that criminal intent should be established affirmatively by the Crown. They argued that the course of the trial was such that the petitioners were improperly required to prove their innocence. They also submitted that proper discretion was lacking in the judge's charging up to the jury.

Cunnarola and Linwood, both of Detroit, were tried at the fall assizes in Sandwich as a result of guns being found in their possession while in Windsor. They pleaded when charged with carrying weapons to the danger of the public peace that they were liquor smugglers and that as there was a hazardous occupation it was necessary that they be armed for self-protection. Their weapons were no more use to the public peace, they said.

The jury did not accept this view, they were convicted and sent to the penitentiary. Cunnarola had been arrested more than a dozen times in Detroit within a brief period on a great variety of charges, but had been only once convicted and fined $5 for a minor traffic breach.

NOBEL PRIZE WINNER TO BEGIN EXPERIMENTS

Chicago, Ill.—Prof. Arthur H. Compton, who returned recently from Stockholm, where he received the Nobel Prize in physics, said he plans to start work immediately on an experiment to confirm his conclusion that X-rays proceed as corpuscles, or particles of matter, in definite directions. The work which brought Prof. Compton of the University of Chicago the prize, has established to the satisfaction of scientists that light is composed of a form of matter and that the old "wave" theory is only a part explanation of light action.

Many doctor of theology asked the professor what the practical value of his work would be.

"I wish I knew," Prof. Compton replied. "A hundred years ago Fresnel first arrived at his theory of light waves, but it was not until 75 years later that this theory developed into the practical application of wireless telegraphy."

ANGLICAN CHURCH BURNED

St. John's, Nfld., January 25.—The Anglican Church at Joe Batts Arm, in the Fogo district, was destroyed by fire Sunday night, according to word received here yesterday. The building was valued at fifteen thousand dollars and carried two thousand dollars insurance.

Three-quarters of the area of the Maritime Provinces is best suited for growing forests and 65 per cent. of New Brunswick must continue to grow trees if it is to continue to produce a crop of any kind.

KINCADE HAS A HEALTHY FEAR

Of Aeroplanes—Was In Rome Airship Disaster

Daytona Beach, Fla.—Despite the fact that his name has been linked intimately with one of the most daring aerial exploits of history, T. E. "Doc" Kincade, motor expert, has a "horror of airplanes" and wouldn't get into one unless he had to.

Most commercial aeroplanes of today are unsafe, but the time is coming when such means of transportation will be as safe and sane as trains or motor cars, said the man who for 16 years has been field expert for an aeronautical corporation and also last year conditioned the motors used in trans-Atlantic flights and the North Pole flight of Commander Richard Byrd. Kincade was also one of the lucky survivors of the Roma airship disaster of a few years ago.

In outlining his admitted horror of planes and their general lack of safety, he said:

"Despite the development of aviation in the past few years, American engineers and designers have not even touched the subject, but one of these days aeroplanes are going to be as common as automobiles. They will be able to go through fire and storms with the safety of trains or ships at sea."

Kincade also expressed belief that present day manufacturers of commercial planes were "making a big mistake" in turning out single motored ships. He declared they should centre their attention on tri-motored planes, to provide speed and power in all kinds of weather.

VENIOT ISSUES LENGTHY REPLY

To Baxter; Says Government Has Not Kept Faith

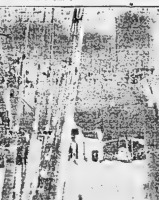

St. John, N.B., Jan. 21.—Hon. P. J. Veniot, Postmaster-General, this week made a lengthy reply to recent statements by Premier Baxter and others regarding Maritime freight rates and the extent to which the Duncan Report is being fulfilled. Referring to the freight rates as recommended by the Duncan Commission and provided for in the legislation of last session, Mr. Veniot said:

"It is no wonder that there is possession of the facts of this case are in refused to the belief that some one is trying to make a political football out of this question of Maritime rights. It is because the Federal Government, in implementing the Duncan Commission recommendations, went far beyond what certain political opponents hoped for, that some one is now trying to turn the tables by influencing the minds of the public in an opposite direction by the production of unfounded data.

"Not only is this true of the freight rates question, but it applies with equal if not greater, force to the attempts being made to convince the public that the Government has not made an honest attempt to implement all the recommendations of the Duncan Commission."

Mr. Veniot cited comparative rates to show that "there is no instance where local freight rates have not been reduced as recommended by the Duncan Report."

Touching on rates from Maritime points to Montreal or farther west, he said it had been impossible to avoid having some rates slightly above and some below the 20 per cent. reduction. Had they been applied any other way, discrimination would have been encountered. With reference to the "gateway" problem, he denied that the closing of the St. John gateways would work to the detriment of the Maritime shippers to the West.

ACCOMMODATION FOR OVER 6000

At St. Moritz—During Period of Olympic Games

St. Moritz, Switzerland.—Accomodation for 6,000 visitors have been arranged in the forty-five hotels of St. Moritz and the neighboring health resort, St. Moritz-Bad, during the Olympic Winter Games from February 11 to 19.

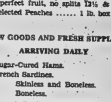

Many hotels which ordinarily do not cater to winter business will be opened on account of the unprecedented number of tourists expected to be attracted by the international games, which last were held at Chamoix, France, in 1924.

M. C. Nater, syndic, or mayor, of St. Moritz, who heads the local committee, has been advised that 600 athletes will compete in the various events. This does not include trainers and managers. The winter sports season is at its height in St. Moritz in February, and normally there are 2,000 visitors here during that month.

The new toll gates on February 11 with hockey matches both morning and afternoon, and there will also be hockey on the 12, 14, 16, 18 and 19. The finals will be on the nineteenth.

There will be horse racing on the ice on Lake St. Moritz on February 12 and a military ski team race. The same day there will also be ski-joring a sport in which skiers are drawn by the reins of horses they drive in racers. The date for the 50 kilometer ski race is February 14.

Speed and figure-skating contests will be held on February 13 14 and 15, with the bob sleigh races in heats on February 16 and 17, and the ski-jumping contests is down for February 18.

QUEBEC PROVINCE FINE FOR FRUIT

Montreal.—The Province of Quebec is in an ideal position for the production and marketing of fruit, according to A. Fulton, head of the Markets Division of the Fruit Section of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, who gave an address at the recent meeting of the Pomological Society of Quebec at Macdonald College. Mr. Fulton said there was a great variety of fruit, a good market near at hand, cheap land and a cheap spraying schedule owing to the comparatively limited number of pests

Noted Singer Has World's Most Complete Jazz Library

Everybody hums in talking of last evening's entertainment. Everybody had something

Frances Arms Possessor of Exhaustive Collection

New York City—Where did it start and where is it going? Into these two questions in any gathering of jazz enthusiasts, and the resultant discussion will be as intense and combative as that aroused over the right or wrong of the Marines in Nicaragua, or the fate and foul of the Dempsey-Sharkey fight.

Frances Arms, a singer of vaudeville headline fame, as a hobby, has made a collection of articles on the source of jazz. Miss Arms, who in her tours, has traveled from coast to coast and abroad, has gathered her material from magazines, newspapers and books. The collection will eventually be presented to the musical library of a leading university.

"I believe that the material will be valuable to research students, but it will by no means settle the question of the origin of jazz," declares the singer. "So far, I have found competent authorities completely at odds over the original source of modern music, with the collection presenting almost three thousand different versions.

"Here are a few of the many opinions of the beginnings of jazz. One authority believes that the negro slaves of the first American settlers in and around Philadelphia and Boston, hearing their masters play English ballads, translated the songs into their own African rhythm, and this was the foundation of our present jazz.

"Another writer holds that jazz is entirely traceable to native American negro. Directly opposing this version is that of a musician who has spent several years in the interpreting study of the disputed question, and supports his theory that jazz rhythm is identical with that found in ancient Hebrew chants, with seemingly indisputable evidence of similarity.

"There are many leaders of jazz orchestras and composers who believe that jazz was originally brought to America by the sea captains and sailors with their interpretations of the veiled tom-tom music of the South Sea Islands.

"Each song gives credence to a different version.

"Take 'At Sundown,' the popular favorite of the day—it might well be descended from an English ballad or it might have come from Mediterranean above freely translated into our American rhythm—as a matter of fact it did neither really. It is as original as any musical composition can be. By what its haunting strains were inspired the author declares ignorance. Analyzing gets us nowhere.

"And there you are—none the wiser on the original source of this modern rhythm," laughs Miss Arms, commenting on her remarkable collection. "Jazz is the one american word that is the same in all languages—all people have adopted it as it stands and have made no attempt to translate it. There is agreement here, that the name 'jazz' is an excellent representative, but I doubt that there will ever be agreement as to everything."

BELLE THEATRE

In private life, Eugenia Gilbert, petite leading lady in "By Whose Hands" the Columbia Pictures mystery melodrama coming to the Belle Theatre tomorrow, is a real honest-to-goodness farmerette with a ranch of noble proportions in Ventura County, California. She expects this ranch to support her some day in the fashion to which she is accustomed.

During the filming of "By Whose Hands" Miss Gilbert walked on the studio set with shaved eyebrows and blistered and calloused hands. She only laughed it off, explaining, "Just passed a day in light plowing, harrowing and irrigation." But Director Walter Lee requested that she hire a workman until the completion of the picture, which Miss Gilbert did, for she had enough excitement provided for her in the climax of this thriller.

REGENT THEATRE

You must see the human catapult in action—the Indian attack at the fort—supreme thrills in a film of a thousand exciting moments! Tomorrow at the Regent.

The "cash in hand" value of the nine largest automobile companies exploding Ford for 1928 will be $1,000,000,000, an increase of $45,000,000 over last year. This is surprising since 1927 has been marked by a slight decline in business.

The only safe way to insure delivery of a new model Ford when you want it is to have Belleville Motors book your order for a car immediately. Meanwhile, they can demonstrate a car to you any time now.

SMILING HARRY IS NOW ON THE BRIDGE

New York, Jan. 25.—"Smiling" Harry Cunningham, who was navigating officer of the Leviathan during the Great War, has been placed in command of the giant liner, succeeding Commodore Herbert Hartley, who has quit the sea for a desk in the business world.

Vice Commodore Cunningham, known in shipping circles as one of the merriest skippers on the sea, will be on the bridge of the liner when it makes its next trip to Europe, February 11.

QUINTE ELECTRICIANS AND Y.'S MEN'S CLUB WIN CITY LG. GAMES

Games Played On Soft Ice—Two More To-night

Two games were played in the city league last night but little real hockey resulted from either of them as the ice was in poor condition and the boys just battled and kicked the puck around in old-time fashion. In the opening game the Y's Men's Club continued their winning streak at the expense of the Point Anne Club, the villagers lasting defeat to the tune of 3-1. In the night-cap affair the Quinte Electricians disposed of the Clacos in easy fashion by a 4-1 count. The ice was sticky and the players found it almost impossible to try any combination or lone rushes.

Another double-header will be played tonight and the ice should be in better condition than last night. The Point Anne Team will play again tonight meeting the Imperial Oil in the first game while the Clacos will battle it out with the Intelligencer Black Hawks.

Army Armstrong was the best man on the ice in the first game and tallied two of the three goals scored by his team. He was given some nice help by Peake, Grob and Drew. The Point Anne team played a ragged brand of hockey all the way and appeared to be getting in each other's path. J. Maracle was probably the best of the cement team. The latter were handicapped by the absence of Abe Weir. He will likely play tonight.

The Quinte Electricians were all over the Clacos in the second game and had it cool been for the good work of Holway in the nets the score would have been much higher. He allowed two easy ones to go through but he saved many hard ones.

Symons, Whalen and Canning were the pick of the Coleman Street squad. Lupenette turned in another of his nice games for the Clacos. Ken Collins refereed both games.

Point Anne (1)—Smart, Green, Dural, Brant, Maracle, McDonald, Caulin, Hoole, Konasky, Hutchings.

Clacos (1)—Holway, Hurst, Reginbali, J. Murray, L. Murray, Lupernette, Latchford.

Quintes (4) — Boland, Canning Hanna, Whalen, Symons, Derry, Richeson, Wessels.

MAROONS LEFT FOR CORNWALL

Locals Have Visions of Disposing of Habitants To-night

Belleville Intermediates boarded the train at noon today bound for Cornwall where they play match ups with the Flying Frenchmen in a game which means a great deal to them.

Should the Maroons lose, they may as well put their skates in the moth balls for another year while a win will entrench them strongly in third place with a good chance of sneaking into the play-offs for the group championship.

The Cornwall team lost to the Royal Military College but Manager Eddie Thomas is taking nothing for granted and gathered together the strongest team possible.

The Canal town crowd were strengthened recently by the return of De Viteran goalie Filion, while Destrau and M. Constant who did not play in Belleville, were back in the line-up. Belleville always found the sledding hard in the home of the Habitants and tonight will be no exception and the lads will need to give everything they possess in order to come home with a win.

Bowan, who has distinguished himself every time out this year, is sure to be in the same old form unless he has a decided "off night." Hurley Whalen, Weir, Hagerman, Goyer and Green will be the starters.

Ken Mallen, veteran Morrisburg player, will referee the game and with his experience in professional company should have no trouble. Fans through out the city will undoubtedly await the result of tonight's game.

LADY BOWLERS

ATTENTION

Owing to the fact that we couldn't get enough bowlers in the C.N.R. Ladies' Afternoon League, we are going to form a new league which will be open to all ladies who care to bowl in the afternoon. We will be glad to hear from all bowlers interested in this league. For further information, Phone 1317.

LOCAL QUINTETTE MEET KINGSTON

Teams From Local "Y" Clash With Limestoners To-night

Bert Scott, coach of the Belleville basket ball team has his boys cocked and primed for the doings over at the Y.M.C.A. tonight when Bull Brockel slips into town with his Kingston Y team for a crack at the locals in a game which should be one of the season's tit-bits.

Mr. Brockel who is an old hand at the game, the strength of the Belleville team and he will send a quintette on the floor that will give the Intermediates a worthy battle.

The Queen's team were probably a trifle too strong for the local outfit and devotees of the cage game will see two squads evenly matched when these two line up tonight. Scott received set-backs at the hands of the R.M.C. team and as a result have been waiting for this opportunity to decide the supremacy. Keen rivalry has always existed between Belleville and Kingston since the palmy days and whenever these two meet a fast game results. The Belleville team can not afford to lose this game as they will be faced with elimination from the running and for this reason they are determined to break into the win column at the expense of Mr. Brockel's squad.

Belleville has one of the fastest teams of recent years with such well known names as Armstrong, Weir, Alexander, Sinnett, Bowen, Kerr of Hamilton, Walters of Chicago, Brown and others gracing the line-up. Mr. Brockel has been doing little boasting regarding the merits of his team but followers of the game state will be sure to witness a real struggle.

Besides the main game with the locals' team an aggregation of local girls will tackle a team of young ladies from Kingston. The Belleville ladies have been practising faithfully under the eye of Ralph Morden during the last few weeks until they have perfected a nice system and although it is the opening game of the season for them they have all hopes of starting with a win.

SportOgramS

By "The Observer"

Belleville Juniors for the first time in several years have an excellent chance of winning a group championship and the chief obstacle in their path is the Trenton team who will be here tomorrow evening for a return game with the locals. Canning and Company lit fearly insect in the first game with Trenton away after they had a sub stanial lead but they are out to turn the tables on their neighboring townsmen tomorrow night at the local arena. The boys have a fine chance of turning the trick and let us state right here that fans will pass up a wonderful amount of sport if they fail to come around for this game. It's a long time since Belleville could boast of a team or junior team as they have right now and Trenton will know they've been in a game after the Junior Maroons get through with them tomorrow night.

Here's what Pat Jennings has to say about it. Under the heading "Trenton plays in Belleville on the 26th and I am asking the locals to win on Belleville ice." Half of the town of Trenton will accompany the Juniors here tomorrow night so let's turn out and give Eddie Thomas' boys a real welcome hand in their first home game of the season.

Apparently they like Leo Barrett's refereeing up Trenton way as here's how the Advocate describes him: "Leo Barrett of Belleville was the ruling power on the ice and we may say right here that he is a real referee and calls everything on the ice. We think the O. H. A. would act wisely in giving Leo more work to do." Pretty good recommend for a Belleville official, don't you think!

Advices from Port Hope state that the Lake Shore town are dubious about entering the Senior clas of ball. At the present time 94 Hamilton Intermediate Football Club to act as scout and general advisor. There is no more astute judge of budingsmen in the game than the self-same genial Irishman.

Patsy Donovan, former Red Sox manager, who has handled many clubs successfully in the International League, who is piloting the Falcons into the championship, has been signed by the Toronto Baseball Club to act as scout and general advisor. There is no more astute judge of budingsmen in the game than the self-same genial Irishman.

TRAIN FOR CANADIAN NAVY

Liverpool, Jan. 24.—Sixteen seamen from the Canadian naval base at Esquimalt, Vancouver Island, arrived in Liverpool yesterday on the liner Ascania to take six months' instruction in gunnery and torpedo practice at Portsmouth. They intend qualifying for senior ratings in the Canadian navy.

PORT HOPE MEN BEGIN TO STIR

Lake Shore Town Outside Possibility In Senior Group

Port Hope, Jan. 25.—For the purpose of discussing the baseball situation in Port Hope for 1928 and to consider a probable entry in the Central Ontario League a meeting is scheduled to be held at all officers and signed players of the Port Hope Intermediate Baseball Club in the Department of Agriculture rooms, Ontario street, tonight.

Interest in the jump to the senior company in the C.O.L. series would have lagged but those in charge of affairs are taking things easy and will not rush into the fatal company without first getting the assurance that Port Hope will have a team that would be in the running. Port Hope had a most successful season last year in the Intermediate league and from present indications are not anxious to get out of it. Pans last year were given a good season of baseball and while Port Hope proved to be just a little better than the other teams in the league, they were not that far advanced that there wasn't plenty of interest and close contests before a winner was declared.

RENEW JUNIOR FEUD THURSDAY

Movie Colony Are Coming Here For Big Game Tomorrow

Trenton hockey fans will invade the city in droves tomorrow evening for what may be aptly termed the "crucial" game of the Junior series. The supporters of the team in Little Holly seem have every expectation that the team will walk through to another group championship but they may find out before long that there's a Belleville team still very much in the running. The actors and actresses associated with Bruno Rairmather in the filming of "Carry On Sergeant" have taken a lively interest in the Trenton fixture and fans who grace the boards tomorrow evening will not only see a hockey game but a galaxy of movie stars as well. Some girls! Powder your noses, buckle the pinion on and trip over to the Belleville hockey tomorrow night; who knows but that the film colony have not waken up to the fact that we have a few beauties here and a second Milton Sills may grab you off for his next feature picture. The first game at Trenton was a wow, absolutely, positively, nothing else but, and if those Trenton boys have visions of a championship this year they're looking for a strong direction, and may find themselves out in the cold after the fans complete the fixture tomorrow night.

Johnny Canning in centre ice will have his hands full watching this speed merchant Johnston all evening. If Canning can keep Johnston off the score sheet his work will be considered as well done.

Belleville did well at Picton and they plan to lay the same dose on the Trenton six here. Those who saw these two teams battle the first time, will not pass up tomorrow night's game.

CHICAGO PLANS SPORT CARNIVAL

Westerners Hope To Play Host To Next Olympic Games

Chicago, Jan. 22.—Plans for a great sports carnival as an added attraction to the World's Fair in Chicago in 1933 were under way today.

Among the events on the ambitious sports program are the Olympic games and world series in baseball, a football game, bringing the two greatest teams of the country together, and a horse race of international calibre.

The dates of the fair are from May 1 to November 1, that a complete sports program of the country could be carried out during the fair time. It is estimated that 80,000,000 people will attend the fair, and this insures unprecedented financial gains to make the sport carnival a success.

Would Postpone Games

The Olympic games, under the Olympiad program, are scheduled for 1932. However Chicago hopes to be able to convince the Olympic games authorities that the games should be postponed for one year in order to have the benefit of the tremendous crowds which will be here. Hutin C. Dawes, chairman of the fair committee, has been authorized to appoint a sports committee to negotiate for the Olympic games.

In event the Olympiad cannot be obtained, it is planned to have a sports carnival that will rank with the inter national games. Countries from every section of the world will be invited.

It is planned to use Soldiers' Field —the huge stadium in which the Dempsey-Tunney fight and the 1926 Army-Navy games were staged—for the sport program. With the arena cleared the stadium can conveniently handle approximately 100,000 persons.

Within one month after the opening of the New Holland tube under the Hudson river, more than 300,000 motor vehicles passed through it.

MODEL "Two-Sixty"

NO BATTERIES NO CHEMICALS NO CHARGER

Model "Two-Sixty"

A 5-tube Rogers-Batteryless Receiver (completely shielded) combined with the famous Symphony Speaker in a beautiful Walnut-finished Cabinet with Drop Door and outside Power Switch. The greatest radio value in Canada at $290 complete—ready to "just put in, then tune in".

"Just Plug in—then Tune in"

HERE is a brand new 1928 Model "Rogers", on which the factory has been concentrating for months past; it is going to be wonderfully popular with those who want a powerful, year-'round, modern radio at a minimum price.

Radio sets without batteries, chemicals, chargers, attachments, etc., are now the standard and are rapidly replacing battery-operated sets wherever electric current is available. And among all electric sets on the market today, the Rogers-Batteryless is the only one that is old enough to have established a three-year record of proven performance.

The remarkable price of $290 for this latest Rogers Console Model is only possible because more Rogers-Batteryless Radios are now sold than all other electric radios combined. There are no "extras" of any kind, this radio is complete—all ready to operate the moment you switch on the current.

Ask us to demonstrate the "Two-Sixty" in your home. If it does not perform to your complete satisfaction you may have it returned FREE of all cost. If it does, a small cash payment makes you the owner and the balance can be arranged on terms to suit your convenience.

RECREATION BOWLING

The Big Bowling get away at the Recreation Alleys last night with the Pirates and the Cubs playing the first game and it proved a very close and interesting game all the way through. The Pirates put a lead of 22 pins in the first game but the Cubs came right back in the second and cut this down to 20 pins, in the final game it was nip and tuck all the way through and when the scores were added up the Pirates were just 1 pin to the good. McIntosh was the outstanding bowler of the night with 318 for the Pirates while for the Cubs Barrett was hich with 407. The next 10 pin game will be on Thursday night.

Moved by Denis Meagher, seconded by Henry Larkin, that the Road Superintendents be allowed $1.25 per diem.—Carried.

Moved in amendment by J. S. Meagher, that the salary of the Road Superintendent be $4.00 per diem and Superintendent No. 3 $3.50 per diem.

The resolution carried.

Moved by J. S. Meagher, seconded by Wm. McLaren, that Wheaton Mills and Marysville to Napanee known as he old Belleville Road and now a part of the County Road System of Lennox and Addington and Hastings County Roads, in our opinion, could be a part of the present Provincial Highway No. 2, being a much more direct route and shorter by several miles, and would also be a very inexpensive section to build owing to excellent gravel pits close to the proposed route;

That whereas the proposed extension would not, in our opinion, in any way interfere with the present route, and would, in relieving traffic on the present route, also the Department of Highways in maintenance charges on the present route should they decide to build the proposed extension, at the same time being a much more direct route for through motor traffic;

That whereas the greater part of the people of this section of the Province have always felt that the proposed route should have been the original route, instead of the present Napanee River;

Therefore, be it resolved that this Council now in session assembled request the Clerk to forward a copy of this resolution to the Honorable the Minister of Public Highways of the Province of Ontario, and humbly request his most serious consideration to the proposed extension.—Carried.

The following accounts were ordered to be paid: John Buckley, Collector Ward 4, $40; Phillip Mordin, Tyrant Officer, $15.87; Board of Health, $28.20; The Municipal World, $16.95; Deseronto Post, $3.00; Deseronto Gazette, $2.50.

GROENER IS REICH DEFENSE MINISTER

Berlin, January 23.—President von Hindenburg appointed Wilhelm Groener, head in charge of railway operations of the German army during the war, minister of defence. He succeeds Otto Gessler, resigned recently.

It was as a colonel in charge of railway operations that Groener, who was born November 2, 1867, first came into prominence, for upon him devolved the task of mobilizing Germany's armed forces. In May, 1916, he was put in charge of the economic end of Germany at von Hindenburg's programme for co-operation of civilians with the fighting forces. Later he was given the assumed Berlin, workers to give up their munitions' strike in 1917.

Groener in March, 1918, was out in charge of the reorganization of military railways in the Ukraine, then occupied by Germany.

WHEN KIDNEYS HURT CONSULT YOUR DOCTOR

Drink Lots of Water All Day and Take Salts if Back Aches

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Eating too much rich food creates acids, which excite the kidneys. They become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood. Then we get dull, tired feelings, backaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys, or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding begin drinking a quart of water each day, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, and in a few days your kidneys may act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush and stimulate the kidneys; also to help neutralize the acids in the system, so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby often avoiding serious kidney complications. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

Swims and Runs, Nervous Man Gains 9 Lbs.

"I swim and run much better now than I ever could, due to Vinol. Nervousness is gone, and I gained 9 pounds."—Alfred Main.

Vinol is a delicious compound of cod liver peptone, iron, etc. Nervous, easily tired, anemic people are surprised how Vinol gives new pep, sound sleep and BIG appetite. The very FIRST bottle often adds several pounds weight to thin children or adults. Tastes delicious. J. S. McKeown, Druggist.

THRONE SPEECH PROMISES LITTLE OF NEW INTEREST

Bennett, New Conservative Leader Focus Of Keen Attention — Japan To Send Ambassador Too

CHIEF INTEREST IN NEW LEADER

Conservative Attitude Under R B. Bennett Focuses Attention

SAYING VERY LITTLE

Expected To Force Issue On St Lawrence And Other Questions

Ottawa, Jan. 26.— Peculiar interest attaches to the Parliamentary session which today's formalities ushered in. Members and Senators are expecting that it will hold no little importance, and that it will shed no little illumination. On the side of its importance, it is agreed that it will not come from the Government's legislature program, which is not expected to be unusually heavy or arresting. Rather is it thought that several issues which have for a long time been undercurrents in Canadian politics are scheduled this year to come to the fore. Notably the St. Lawrence development issue is expected to press itself upon Parliament's attention.

New Conservative Leader

The feature with which this year's Parliament is expected to prove illuminating is the manner in which it is expected to give of the efficiency of the Conservative Opposition under Hon. R. Bennett. Although an old member in point of service, Hon. Mr. Bennett is conceded to be a fresh figure in the role of leader, and he is the issue of an interest which is keen to see the success with which he carries off the responsibilities of his new office.

Hon. Mr. Bennett himself is preserving a discreet silence upon the question of the course which he intends to pursue. He woked at his office yesterday afternoon until after 6 o'clock, was gratefully accessible to the last of the newspapermen, who wished to see him at the close of his labors, but had nothing to volunteer with respect to the coming session.

Seating Arrangements

Final arrangements for the seating of the members were discussed yesterday afternoon by the party whips. Hon. Mr. Bennett as Conservative leader will have the same two desk mates his last session supported Hon. Hugh Guthrie, namely Sir Henry Drayton on one side and Sir George Perley on the other. Mr. Guthrie will take the seat which Mr. Bennett occupied last session. No definite seat has yet been allocated to George Scotton, the North Huron acces sion to the Conservative ranks.

FRENCH FLYERS OFF ON 800 MILE JUMP

Colon, Panama, Jan. 26.—Dieudonne Costes and Joseph Lasseix, French flyers hopped off from France Field at 6.46 a.m. today for Guatamala City, eight hundred miles away. The French aviators carry with them as mascot an alligator brought from Barranquille, Colombia.

BOMBS WARN OF AN OPENING WAR

Chicago, Jan. 26.—Terrorists opened fire on the city administration today with dynamite bombs, exploding them almost simultaneously against the homes of two of Mayor Thompson's close political aides.

One bomb, carrying an unusually large quantity of dynamite, tore away a portion of the residence of Charles Fitzmorris, city comptroller and former chief of police. The other smashed windows in the home of Dr. William Reid, commissioner of public service, during the earlier Thompson administration. No one was injured in either explosion.

DORIS JACK IMPROVING

Toronto, Jan. 26.—Doris Jack, young daughter of Richard Jack, celebrated Canadian portrait painter, underwent a slight improvement in hospital today after an operation yesterday for appendicitis.

TWEED IS PROUD OF HIM

Samuel R. Rollins has served for the past twelve years as Reeve of the Village of Tweed. On Tuesday afternoon he was honored by his confreres of the County Council at a banquet tendered at Shire Hall with the Warden's Chair, Mr. Rollins, for many years conducted a flour and feed store but had lately been living a retired life. He has served on the Finance Committee of the County Council since 1919 and to that capacity has discharged his duties honorably and well. Mr. Rollins is a man well-versed in civic and municipal affairs and should make an able man for the chief executive position of the County. Mr. Rollins is a member of the Masonic order as well as the Oddfellows. He is a Presbyterian in religion and a Glenbrook Conservative in politics.

HASTINGS BOYS AND GIRLS HELD THEIR OWN WELL AT BIG FAIRS

District Representative Of Agricultural Department Is Pleased

Ray Atkin, Agricultural Representative, presented his annual report to the County Council this morning.

Excellent results have been obtained in the work and a large program of new projects has been arranged. From the latter portion of May to the end of June, been satisfactory, farm crops of all kinds were at least average, prices of dairy products were reasonable and the condition of all farm stock is good.

Special efforts were made to have the farmers weigh milk and where possible an attempt has been made to have dairymen test the milk from the individual members of the herd. Farmers are paying more attention as a result of the Dairy Standards Act to the per cent. age of fat in the milk.

Farmers of the County have become interested in the eradication of tuberculosis stock as carried on in Prince Edward County. There has been considerable trade in stock between Hastings and Prince Edward and it is apparent that Hastings should be included in the tuberculine Free World.

Twenty demonstrations in Sheep Improvement were given throughout the County. Six dipping tanks were installed in the vicinity of Hybla, Delter and Bancroft, and several hundred sheep were dipped.

Two ram clubs were formed under the Dominion policy and plans were made to hold a lamb fair at Deloro during the coming year.

Considerable improvement has been shown in the general type of hogs marketed especially where bacon hog clubs have been established longest.

Alfalfa Campaigns

An extensive alfalfa campaign was carried on throughout the County. In 1922, Hastings County grew 8407 acres in 1925 this was increased to 17,893 and in 1926, 21,000 acres.

SIXTEEN INCHES OF SNOW IN TWO DAYS

Ottawa, Jan. 27.—Sub-zero weather today followed yesterday's driving snow storm. The snow storm which started last Tuesday and lasted into last night, six inches of snow fell in Ottawa. This is the greatest fall since 1919 when eighteen inches came down in two days in March.

NO DOUBTS AT ALL THAT THE LIQUOR WAS GENUINE

Although an officer is not supposed to drink while he is on duty, this morning in Police Court, an officer not only had a little "shot" while doing his duty but had two!

Provincial Police Officer David Sylvester was seized the liquor in the Parliamentade case which appeared before Magistrate Mikel today was on the witness stand when the booze was produced as an exhibit.

After objecting to the seized liquor the officer was asked to break the seals and after obeying this injunction the Crown Attorney handed him one of the bottles and asked him to taste it. Officer Sylvester raised the bottle to his mouth and took a swallow gingerly, pulling a wry face while doing so. He pronounced it brandy.

Then the gin was produced. Both gin, some of the most powerful it is possible to procure. Officer Sylvester was ordered to take a swig of this, which he did. His second swallow was larger than the first as the bottle slipped and the witness failed to regain his breath before continuing his evidence. He pronounced the second liquor gin.

COLOMBIA WELCOMES HERO OF THE AIR

Cartagena, Colombia, Jan. 26.—This picturesque seaport is making a hilarious welcome for Col. Lindbergh. Closing of public offices, and business establishments at noon was agreed upon. An army of police were hastily mobilized to keep the crowd within bounds at the landing field.

MORE MINISTERS AT OUR CAPITAL

Japan Is Next To Establish Diplomatic Relations With Us

Ottawa, Jan. 26.—Exchange of legations between Canada and Japan will, it is expected, be announced at the opening of parliament today. When the negotiations are completed, Canada will have her own legation in the Nipponese, Paris and Tokyo. It is understood that although negotiations have been made to send a minister to Tokyo, no appointment of a Canadian Minister has yet been made.

Japan Announces Decision

Tokyo, Jan. 26.—Diplomatic relations between Canada and Japan will be established shortly it was announced here today at the Foreign Office. Foreign Office announced that the Japanese government has decided to establish a legation shortly in Ottawa. The statement, which added that a Canadian Minister would also be appointed to Tokyo said that the Japanese Government considered that an exchange of ministers would be beneficial to the relations of the two countries.

FELL 3 STOREYS, DIED OF INJURIES

Thos. Whitely, Bricklayer, Slipped Off Ladder At Corbyville

FRACTURED SKULL

Was Descending For Lunch When Foot Slipped From The Rung

Falling three storeys from a ladder for his mid-day lunch, Thomas Whitely on which he was descending at noon aged forty-two years, a bricklayer by occupation and a resident of Trenton. He had been employed with the bricklayer for the Foundation Construction Company at Corbyville. Deceased leaves from which he died at the Belleville General Hospital at 1.30 this afternoon. Whitely and his fellows have been engaged for some time on construction work at Corbyville and Trenton. He was an artful and efficient mechanics by their employers.

Just how the victim of the accident lost his footing will probably always be shrouded in mystery, but from what can be learned from those who were near the scene of the fatality, the deceased was about to descend the ladder when he slipped and lost his footing. When he was picked up and examined by Dr. J. A. Faulkner and Dr. R. W. Tennent it was found that the skull had been fractured and he was suffering from other severe internal injuries. Whitely was rushed to the Belleville General Hospital as speedily as possible and all that medica skill and careful nursing attention could do for him. Pain and ease his life was done, but death intervened within two hours afterwards. He is survived by a widow and three children. The remains were removed to the mortuary parlors of Messrs. Tickell and Sons where an inquest was held at four o'clock this afternoon.

AUTOIST MUST PAY $10,000

Toronto, Jan. 26.—Damages of $10,400 were awarded to Mrs. Alice Griffin by a jury in the assizes court for the death of her 13-year-old son, George E. Griffin. The youth was struck by a motor car driven by Charles Premes, the defendant, against whom the costs are also assessed.

H. S. STARKS IS WARDEN OF P. E.

Harvey S. Starks, Reeve of Athol, is elected Warden of the County of Prince Edward by acclamation. All the Reeves received nominations for the position but one by one Mr. Starks. In 1924, this, the highest honor in the gift of the people of the county, also went to Athol, Mr. Charlton Metcalfe being the chosen one. Mr. Starks was born in Athol and has always resided there being a prosperous farmer and also engaged in the evaporating and canning business. Warden Starks has been Reeve of Athol for three years and Councillor for 5 years.

THREE OFFICERS SURROUNDED RAT

Rodent Hadn't a Chance When Police Were On The Job

An official in charge of the Front Street store of Wallbridge's was alarmed last night when he entered the store to take a last look around to hear strange noises arising from the regions of the cellar. He promptly notified the police and Constables Evans, Isard and Booth investigated. A cordon was thrown around the building, two of the men posting themselves at the rear of the store and one going in the front door and proceeding directly to the cellar.

Upon arriving at the blue casted arm of the law heard the noises under a pile of old boxes and carpet remnants, found a huge rat caught in a trap, and kicking up quite a disturbance, evidently in severe pain. The rat was quickly put out of his pain with a revolver bullet and the burglar scare was a thing of the past.

Mostly a Continuation Of The Last Session's Problems

MINOR LEGISLATION

Trade Treaties To Be Made With "Certain Foreign Countries"

Ottawa, Jan. 26.—The speech from the throne with which his excellency the Governor General opened parliament this afternoon announces.

1. Canadian Ministers plenipotentiary to be sent to Paris and Tokyo.
2. Legislation arising out of the recent conference between the Dominion and Provinces.
3. Pending complete revision of fin ancial arrangements contemplated in the Duncan Report, money grants to the Maritime Provinces made last session are to be continued.
4. Negotiations continuing with the Prairie Provinces for a return of natural resources.
5. Government considering restoration to British Columbia of railway belt lands and Peace River block.
6. Railway problems of several provinces as outlined in conference under consideration.
7. A timber let for grading and bring ing Hudson Bay railway extension to Port Churchill.
8. A high answering tower to be erected on airship base near Montreal and a public air terminal for aeroplanes provided.
9. Departments of Health and Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment to be incorporated in a single department of National Health and Veteran's welfare.
10. Trade treaties between Canada and "certain foreign countries" to be submitted to parliamenta.

Provincial Conference

Ottawa, Jan. 26.—In part of the speech from the throne which followed the announcement made during the last session of parliament, a conference was convened by the Premiers of the Provinces with the Dominion Government and the Governor General of the Dominion of Canada. It is the opinion of my advisers that the conference proved of ultimate value in facilitating a full and free exchange of views between the participating governments on problems of mutual interest and concern. Your attention will be invited during the present session to the report of the most important matters discussed at this conference.

As a result of the Dominion-Provincial conference my advisers have decided to undertake a complete revision of financial arrangements as contemplated by the Duncan report, to recommend the continuance to the Maritime Provinces of the money grants made at the last session. In the light of recent financial resources and are giving consideration to the return to the Provinces, of certain Dominion lands of the railway belt and the Peace River block.

Settle Boundaries

Consideration is also being given to the railway problems of several provinces, as outlined at the conference. As

SIX DEAD FROM STORM'S RIGOUR

New York, Jan. 26.—Six deaths, scores of injured and hourly property damage was the known toll in the East today at end of the severest storm in recent years, extending from Cape Hatteras, off the North Carolina coast to Northern Maine. The gale left in it's path disrupted communication and hampered traffic on land and marred the entailment of shipping at sea.

In Canada, every form of traffic was interrupted in the Ottawa valley by what was described as the worst storm of its kind in ten years, bringing with it more than a foot of snow. In the province of Quebec, two feet of snow accompanied a fifty mile an hour wind, snowing in one train and disorganizing communications.

THE WEATHER

Fresh northwest winds, light local snow but mostly fair and cold today and Friday.

EIGHT OF THE JURY ARE SORRY THEY CONVICTED

London, Eng., Jan. 26.— T. P. O'Connor, veteran member of parliament, figured prominently in the news papers today as the leader of a movement to obtain a reprieve for Daniel Driscoll and Edward Rowlings, recently sentenced to death at Cardiff, Wales, for the murder of David Lewis, boss. John Rowlands, who was also sentenced for the crime has been declared insane since the trial. The movement, however has been unsuccessful so far.

A sensation was created by the statement of the defense lawyer that eight of the jurymen in the case were so impressed by evidence disclosed after they had convicted, the men that they signed the petition for a reprieve and said they had regretted they had voted for conviction. Unless something interferes Driscoll and Rowlings will be hanged at Cardiff tomorrow. The hanging apparatus has been stated for two of them held Lewis while the other cut his throat.

WASTING HEAT

The frequent and extreme changes of temperature during the present winter, and the trouble which the average household must find in the attempt to meet the conditions with reasonably continuous comfort recalls the tenor of a booklet published by the Department of the Interior recently on the subject "Why you should insulate your home."

The purpose of the booklet is "to direct public attention to the advantages and economies that can be effected through proper insulation in house construction." This insulation is defined "as the use of a building material, or of a form of construction, or both, by which the passage of heat is resisted." In winter, resistance to loss of house-heat; in summer, resistance to entry of sun-heat.

The booklet prepared by C. D. Mallory of the Interior Department, is a very clear and very interesting one, and ought to have a general circulation. It tells of a waste of about one half the value of the coal used to heat an average house.

Householders generally will agree that Mr. C. D. Mallory, who prepared the booklet, has not overdrawn the picture. It is an amazing fact that only in a very small proportion of the houses built in Canada even in recent years has any adequate attention been paid to insulation against cold in the winter—and heat in the summer. In the smaller type of dwelling the speculative builder is invariably more concerned about keeping down the initial cost than in the comfort of future occupants or in the economical operation of the house.

A LITTLE MISTAKE

It is important to the well-being of Canada that crime should be punished but it is even more important that the lives of innocent persons should not be put in peril by over-zealous officers of the law.

Following the robbery of a Montreal bank detectives toured the city with the bank manager seeking the culprit. When the manager thought he identified two men on the sidewalk as the bandits the detectives stopped the car and ordered the men to put their hands in the air. They complied, and a search of their persons was commenced. Then one of the pair put his hands in his pockets and an officer promptly shot him, alleging that he thought the man was reaching for a gun. Subsequently the man died, and it was admitted he had nothing to do with the robbery.

No doubt there will be a strict investigation of the affair, but it will not bring back to life the unfortunate victim of a grave official blunder. We believe the public will not tolerate any degree of recklessness in the use of firearms by the police. There may be good reasons why an officer should carry a revolver, but there is no excuse for use of the weapon unless to save his own life or to overcome one known beyond all question to be a desperate criminal.

No police force that ever existed in this world has done better service than the Royal Northwest Mounted Police, and their tradition and practice was not to shoot first.

DANGEROUS TALK

Senator Borah characterizes as "sheer madness" the statement of Rear-Admiral Thomas P. Plunkett, commandant of the Brooklyn navy yard, that war between the great commercial countries of the world—specifically Great Britain and the United States—is bound sooner or later to occur. Whether there was political method in the madness of his remark is another question; but certain it is that the rear-admiral is guilty of a very serious indiscretion, which should receive prompt repudiation from the government. Talk like this, on the part of high officials at public functions, is mischievous in the extreme, even if it is treated, as it deserves to be, as sheer madness and utter nonsense. There is a disposition in Great Britain to dismiss the incident as beneath consideration, and it would be well if it could be so easily forgotten. Irritating pin-pricking of this kind, however, can not fail to produce certain effects which to say the least, are deeply to be deplored. The great need of the world at this time is to create and foster a mentality for peace; if we are to have provocative challenges from militarists, with their positive predictions of future disturbance, the task of turning the thoughts of the nations away from strife in the direction of universal peace becomes all the harder.

THOMAS HARDY, O.M.

Doyen of English authors; b. 1840, d. 1928. Buried in Westminster Abbey January 16.

We that have walked upon the Wessex wolds
And felt the magic of the morn's caress,
And seen the sombre shepherds by the folds,
And sympathized and wept with lonely Tess—

We that have left behind "The Madding Crowd,"
Or waited for "The Native" to "Return"
Under the Greenwood Tree," humble and proud
We cast a reverent look towards that urn!

"Ashes to ashes," as the words we say,
Within the hallowed place where England's Dead
Of high heroic mould are laid away,
We cannot still remain unconforted!

What though man's fate should lie beyond control,
What though man reaps a crop he has not sown—
Yet there abides the imperishable soul,
And laughter and sweet voices drown the groan!

Yea! here is place for him among the bards
With Chaucer and Macauley and the rest,
The songsters - whom our England's soul regards
As prophets of the noblest and the best.

But leave his heart in Wessex, where he dwelt,
Loved, wrote and died, a little gray, gray man,
And yet immortal as the love he felt,
Ardent, with fire divine, by God's own plan!

OTHER MEN'S THOUGHTS

Kingston claims to be the most bookish city in Ontario, the public lib rary record showing that 12,000 volumes were read for every 1000 people during 1927. No information is available as to what the inhabitants did during their spare time.—Montreal Gazette.

According to health department records, 84 persons died in Buffalo last year from alcoholism.

Most of these, one supposes, died from poisoned liquor and may therefore be called victims of prohibition. We should like to know the thoughts of a dry as he contemplates such figures. Does he really believe that Volstedism is a blessing when its toll of life is so heavy among those who must take the dregs instead of the good liquor of these prohibition days?

And one wonders whether the fanatical dry finds it gratifying to read that the health commissioner believes that many deaths actually due to bad liquor are attributed to other causes and estimates that five times as many deaths occurred here from poisoned liquor in 1927 as are reported in the official statistics.

Killed mine, too. Giddap.

Prince Arthur of Connaught told an amusing tale of his experience when serving as Governor-General of South Zambesi to some of the paramount chiefs. One of them made a speech of welcome which took three-quarters of an hour to deliver. When he had finished a native interpreter came forward to explain the oration. Pointing to the chief the interpreter discharged his task with a single sentence: "Him say him dam pleased to see you."

THE PASSING YEARS
(From The Intelligencer of this day 30 years ago)

Last night Mr. Wm. Black, Assistant Secretary of the Y.M.C.A., was presented with a handsome dressing case by a number of ladies of St. Andrew's Church, whom he has been instructing in fancy drills.

Telephones have been placed in Dowling's drug store and Carney's shoe store.

The annual Bachelors'-Ball was held last evening at the Hotel Quinte and was one of the most successful functions ever held in the city. The patronesses were, Mrs. Alexander, Mrs. John Bell, Mrs. H. Corby, Mrs. Dickson, Mrs. Davy, Mrs. Kelso, Mrs. S. B. Lazier and Mrs. McAnnany.

F. H. Hamilton, of Peterboro, was in town today.

Messrs. Wallbridge and Clarke have dissolved partnership and Mr. Clarke will form one of the Belleville party for the Klondike.

A pretty wedding was celebrated at 2 p.m. today at the residence of Mrs. Casey, corner of Charles street and Victoria Ave., when Miss Maggie Shaw was married to Mr. John Peirce, of Waukesha, Wis., by Reverend M. W. Maclean.

Just Stories

—James Whitcomb Riley was so well known in Indianapolis that whenever he went he was greeted by acquaintances. He had lots of callers too, and frequently had to hide from friends when he wanted to get any work done. One morning Riley started to walk downtown, relates George Ade. A policeman saluted him and observed:

"This is a fine morning, Mr. Riley." As he continued, small boys, eminent citizens and lady friends hailed him until at least 50 had mentioned the beautiful weather.

He finally waded into the office of Will Bobbs, and Mr. Bobbs, glad to see him, greeted him with:

"Well, doctor, this is a lovely morning."

Riley could stand it no longer. He shouted so he could be heard all over the store:

"It must be! Every body speaks very highly of it."

A recent record has been found of Rev. Ben Jonson having killed a man. He slew one Gabriel Spencer with his rapier. The record of the deed is among the collection of documents, many hundreds of years old, which are in process of restoration at the Middlesex Guildhall, Westminster, within a few yards of Jonson's grave in Westminster Abbey. The indictment sets forth that Jonson "on an assault with force and arms against and upon one Gabriel Spencer at Shoreditch (Shoreditch, a section of London) with a certain sword of iron and steel called a rapier of the price of three shillings." The wound was mortal. Jonson pleaded "benefit of clergy and his neck verse," which means that he pleaded the benefit of clergy and read a verse from the Bible to prove that he was a clerk. But he was branded on the thumb with the letter "T" known as the "Tyburn T."

A RECORD YEAR FOR NORTH AMERICAN LIFE

Largest Surplus Earnings in Company's History—Dividends to Policyholders Increased

Many old records of the North American Life were shattered by the achievements of 1927. In presenting the 47th Annual Report of the Company satisfactory progress was reported and the splendid showing justify the Company's descriptive phrase "Solid as the Continent."

The assets of the Company now total $35,606,067 showing an increase of $3,-214,287.59 over last year and after providing for all contingencies, exceed the total liabilities by over $6,000,000.

To its policyholders the Company paid over $688,000 in dividends in 1927. The most outstanding feature of the year as the report is the announcement of an even higher scale in 1928. Policyholders of the Company will benefit by this accession which is the fifth of its kind in as many years. The record of the Company's ratings in respect to its dividends. For a period of fifteen years North American Life has increased which is a singular achievement in the history of Canadian insurance companies.

The total assurance now in force exceeds $105,000,000 which is a substantial increase over the total of last year. The Company has made great strides in this phase of its business, and the total now carried is a splendid indication of the manner in which North American Life representatives are fulfilling their duty to the public.

The beneficial effects of life insurance as a safe and profitable investment are proved by the fact that over $2,157,000 was paid to living policyholders of the company last year. This is a positive indication that life insurance provides more than protection in case of death.

In prophesying the future of the Dominion, the President painted a splendid picture based on a summary of the achievements of 1927. Canada as a whole, he said, has enjoyed a prosperous year, and indications point to even greater development and growth in the years to come.

BIG BATTLE ON FOR SAT. NIGHT

Port Hope Times Staff Coming Down To Engage Intelligencer Boys

Looks as if the "fur will fly at Carnovitch's ice arena this week end. Manager Cook of the Intelligencer Black Hawks received word this morning from Manager Larmar Mason, that the stalwart puck chasers of the Port Hope Times were all set to "do battle" with the locals on Saturday in this City.

Accordingly, at 6 P.M. this Saturday evening, the representatives of the Port Hope Daily will clash with the Intelligencer ink-slingers, and since among the rules and regulations is one to the effect that only "bona fide" employees of the two papers are eligible, it looks as if the spectators are in for a "real treat." Speaking for the Intelligencer hockeyists, at any rate, a few of the subs will likely find it necessary to scrape the rust off their skates, and said spectators, if we're sufficiently fortunate to have any—may be assured of a fair exhibition of "gymnastics" and "tumbling," all included along with the hockey match.

BELANGER-GENARO FIGHT WILL GO ON

New York, Jan. 26.—Any disciplinary action which the New York State Athletic Commission may take against "Frenchy" Belanger, Canadian flyweight will not interefere with the scheduled National Boxing Association championship match between Belanger and Frankie Genaro, New York, at Toronto, Feb. 6th.

This statement was authorized today by James Farley, chairman of the New York Commission who explained that there was no desire to upset matches arranged previous to the action against Belanger at the last meeting of the board.

At any rate, it looks like a real evening. We're informed that the Port Hope staff is coming in force—about twenty - four of them, to cheer on their huskies—and with our own supporters vociferously inspiring their, "stars" to noble efforts, the rafters of the local arena should ring loud and long.

So remember the date, and the time, (8, p.m. Saturday) we can assure you that it will be at least, interesting.

Trainer Ernie Blaind alreey is hard at work on the boys and they all should be in first class shape. The locals will have no alibies if they lose.

BELLEVILLE WIN DOUBLE - HEADER

Kingston Basket-Ball Teams Lose To Both Local Teams

Kingston Y.M.C.A. were the guests of the local Association last night for two games of basketball. The Limestone team came and saw but they failed to conquer. Both the Eastern team's ladies' and the intermediates representing Kingston Y. In the E.O.A.A. were compelled to accept the lean of the locals, the Belleville girls winning the opener by the score of 23-8 and the men's game also credited to the home team by the count of 44-30.

Just why the visiting teams from the Kingston Y always have to arrive late in Belleville for their basketball fixtures with the local teams is a matter of speculation. Last night's occurrence was by no means the first and it meant that the games were taggin up hour and a quarter late in getting started. Belleville patrons at the local games are very patient, but it is taking too much of them when they must wait the arrival of the visiting teams for over an hour.

Kingston Y Girls play the boys' rules and the Belleville Ladies' have always played under the ruling adopted for ladies. However, a compromise was made whereby the first period was played under girls' rules and the second half under the men's rules. In the opening period the Kingston girls were quite outclassed because of their unfamiliarity with the rules they were playing under and as a result were outscored, 16-4. The second half of the game played under different, gave the men the home team at a disadvantage but notwithstanding they acquitted themselves nobly by holding the hard checking Kingstonians to two field goals and at the same time managed to score four points.

Kingston Y Intermediates are a vastly improved aggregation over that which met the Belleville team earlier in the season. Since their early games Phil Brocket has acquired the services of two of the Queen's players, thereby strengthening his team considerably. Without the services of Capt. Cecil Weir the scoring machinery of the locals was somewhat impaired however, the rest of the players arose to the occasion and went about the business of doing the necessary. The local players were strong on the defence, every member of the team, looking after his own charge and in this way the visitors had to work for every point they got. Benton and Young were the only two players of the visiting team who met with appreciable success against the hard checking defence keep exposed to and neither of these afore mentioned were in a class with Johnnie Kerr, high scorer for the Campbell St. aggregation, last night. Johnnie managed to garner 22 points for his teammates, who fed him unselfishly when they saw that it was apparently his night. Noticeable improvement was shown by the local quintette in their foul shooting, only half their five throws were made good.

The half time score was 22-18, with the final score 44-30. Mr. Herb Scott of Queen's University handled the game in his customary able manner.

HOSPITAL BOARD ASK GRANT FOR NEW AMBULANCE

County Committees Chosen; Deer Season May Be Shortened

County Council resumed sessions yesterday afternoon with Warden Rollins in the chair.

A representative of the Globe Indemnity Company asked the Council to renew the policy with that Company. The matter was left in the hands of the Finance Committee.

The Council moved to concur in the motion of Simcoe County Council relative to the shortening of the deer season to 15 days. It was deemed that a move in this direction is expedient as the ranks of the deer are becoming depleted. A resolution was also decided fixing the open date for deer hunters from the 5th to the 20th of November.

The Council concurred in a resolution in regard to the request of the government to pass a legislation reimbursing the County for the upkeep of prisoners arrested by Provincial officers and committed under the Liquor Control Act. Under the present system when convictions are registered the fines are forwarded to the Government. A recommendation was made that the fines officers appointed by the local municipalities have to be also designated as Liquor Control officers as well as criminal officers

The appointment of W. St. Kells and J. Miller Carl for the position of Corn Inspector were referred to the Committee on By-Laws.

W. C. Mikel, County Solicitor, addressed the Council in regard to the purchasing of a filing cabinet for County records and communications at his office. The motion was referred to the Finance Committe with power to act.

No action was taken in the matter of appointing a Director on the Belleville Fair Board. It was felt that Reeve Vandervoort of Sidney and Reeve Mitchell of Thurlow on the Board, no others were required."

The Council referred the matter of a grant to the Quinte Seed Growers' Association to the Committee on Ways and Means.

New Ambulance

Judge Wills of the Belleville General Hospital Board spoke to the Council in regard to the purchase of a new ambulance. Judge Wills pointed out that the auto-drive served the people of the surrounding district and is regarded as useful for the service rendered. Judge Wills stated that the city had already pledged $1500 and he ask ed the County for a $1000. The new ambulance will cost in the neighborhood of $3,000 and the remainder will be raised by the sale of the present conveyance.

Judge Wills spoke of the fact that the new Nurses' Home which will cost in the neighborhood of $40,000 will be erected through the kindness of the late Thomas Ritchie who bequeathed the money for the purpose.

The present ambulance has been in use for the past seven years and has outlived its usefulness. The matter was referred to Committe on Ways and Means.

The matter of a grant to Bancroft and other Continuation Schools in the County was left in Ways and Means Committee.

The Quinte Seed Growers' Association was given a grant of $50 to assist them in their work.

The usual grant of $100 to the Institute for the Blind, Toronto, was made.

Empire's Smallest Island Asks for Help

From King George and Queen Mary down to the lowliest of their subjects throughout the Empire, interest has been excited in the distant and isolated island of Tristan Da Cunha in the South Atlantic by the voyage of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of France on its first African-American cruise in the course of which the vessel will touch at the island. Hardly one ship in a twelvemonth comes anywhere near the island and the advent of one which carries with it every facility of modern luxury is an event which will certainly be unique.

The 149 inhabitants of Tristan Da Cunha will have a treat in store since presents have poured in to the offices of the I. O. D. E. for them. These include timber and nails which are being sent on the recommendation of Captain S. Vial, old-time mariner who lives in Montreal and who recalls days when he sailed near the island and the inhabitants put off in boats and begged for wood and copper nails. Other gifts are books, magazines, clothing, gramophones and records and particularly a powerful radio set which will keep them in contact with the outside world.

No ships can dock at the island and the Empress on her passage across the 3771 miles of ocean that separates Buenos Ayres and Cape Town will stop about half way within sight of the island and will run in its inhabitants the rests of the outside world. The gifts will be done about the last week in February.

The people are self-governing and self-supporting. The men are during seasons and never carpenters and masons, but there is a touch of the primitive about the picturesque bullock-carts and the cottages built of huge blocks of stone. High cliffs circle the island and are pierced with ravines, the walls rising like ramparts from the sea to a height of over 1,600 feet. They are topped by a central mist that stands out amid the surrounding cliffs at a height of 7,640 feet, snow-capped and symmetrical as the Peak of Teneriffe. The island has only been in continual occupation since 1817, although discovered in 1506 by the Portuguese Admiral Da Cunha.

DEATHS & FUNERALS

JAMES WEIR

James Weir, one of the old residents of the Township of Thurlow died yesterday after his home at Moneypenny. The deceased who was in his 82nd year was a well known farmer. His wife died ten years ago. Two sons William and Joseph, of Reelin, survive. Besides Ernest and James at home. The late Mr. Weir was a member of the Loyal Orange Lodge and the Anglican Church.

CLAUDE TANNER

Claude Tanner, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Tanner, 82½ Station Street, died yesterday at the home of his parents. The interment was made this afternoon at Belleville Cemetery Mausoleum Vault. Adjutant Bolton of the Salvation Army conducted the services at the house and cemetery.

JOHN WILLIAM RUSHLOW

The funeral of John William Rushlow, one of the triplets born to Mr. and Mrs. William Rushlow last month whose death occurred on Monday of this week, was held yesterday afternoon to St. Paul's Church, St. Paul Street, (Wharf street) where with the sacred edifice crowded to overflowing the impressive burial service of the Anglican Church was conducted by Rev. J. Lyons, Vicar of St. Thomas Church. The body was placed in the Belleville Cemetery Mausoleum Vault to await spring interment. A wealth of flowers from relatives and friends was mute evidence of sorrow and sympathy.

POLICY TO BE A WAITING ONE

Lively Debate Certain In House And Government Awaits Outcome

Ottawa.—Watchful waiting will be the policy of the federal Government on the St. Lawrence deep waterway project. From what can be learned it is evident that there is no desire to cross this ridge before it is reached, and that on the other hand, the Government is disposed to await developments in Parliament.

That there will be a lively discussion of the question in the House is inevitable for, if no other move were made, the debate could be precipitated by the resolution in the name of C. H. Cahan, one of the Montreal Conservative members, and it is believed that the minority prefers to await some step by the Opposition which might possibly relieve it of immediate responsibility in formulating and submitting to Parliament its policy.

There can be little, if any, room for dispute or debate as to the course to be pursued on the national section of the river between Cornwall and Montreal where already there is considerable private development of hydro-electric energy. The National Advisory Council in its report to the Government, it is understood, has recommended continuance of that private enterprise.

For deepening the channel in the international section, enlarging the locks and incidentally developing power only the negotiation of a treaty, between Canada and the United States is essential, but it is believed there is no objection on the part of the Government to institute such negotiations at this time, and it is possible they may find it advantageous to await the outcome of the presidential election next year.

A considerable division of opinion amongst members of the Government party is one of the strong deterrents of early action on the international phase of the project, and another formidable obstacle is the large sum of capital expenditure that would be involved in such an undertaking. Canada's share of the necessary outlay is not regarded as commensurate with the advantage that might accrue to this country from the completion of the project.

MISS ONARIES AT PICTON

About twenty representatives of the four United Churches of this city attended the annual Presbyterial of the Woman's Missionary Society for this district held at Picton yesterday.

BANQUET TONIGHT

At 7.45 this evening the annual banquet of the Cisco Club will be held in the Moose Auditorium. There will be a dance following the dinner. No speaker has been engaged to address the gathering but the reports for the year of 1927 will be presented this evening.

SPEAK AT PETERBORO

Rev. Dr. E. Mahaffy, Minister of Bridge Street United Church, this city will speak at Peterboro Tuesday next—tomorrow, it being the thirteenth anniversary of International Kiwanis. Dr. Mahaffy's subject will be "The Kiwanis Club as a training school for citizenship."

OFFICERS INSTALLED

District Deputy Supreme President Ernest Cunnell of Trenton paid an official visit to the Juvenile Lodge of the Sons of England, No. 14 last evening at their hall and installed the officers for the coming year. Following the impressive ceremony of installation a musical evening and banquet was held.

BACK FROM MOTOR SCHOOL

Clinton Jones, Foreman, and Earl Anderson, Mechanic at the Chevrolet Garage of this city have returned to duty after spending two weeks attending the General Motors Service School at the plant at Oshawa. They received a great deal of instruction in the most important technical problems and were shown many ways of simplifying service work. They were also required to pass examinations on the problems met by a mechanic to properly service the new "Bigger and Better" Chevrolet.

SCHOOL TEAMS TIED

Queen Victoria and Queen Mary Schools battled to a tie 5-5 score on Queen St. rink last night in a scheduled Public School league game. It was fast and interesting and the youngsters showed promise. The ice was in excellent condition and the boys played to a large number of spectators. Queen Victoria played with five men while their opponents had the usual six in the line-up. The same teams will play at a later date to decide the supremacy. "Red" Carmichael handled a perfect game.

ANNUAL DANCE

Burns' Night was flittingly celebrated last night when over one hundred couples gathered at the Johnstone Academy at a most enjoyable dance. Music was furnished by Baxter's Orchestra which gave complete satisfaction. A special feature was a Scotsbourine dance artistically rendered by Misses Johnstone, Givens, Kiser and Yarrow, and Miss Mattie Browning contributed a sword dance.

Refreshments in charge of Mrs. White, Mrs. Browning and Mrs. Hay, rule proved of a most tempting order. After several supper dancing continued till an early hour this morning when the party broke up.

ENJOYED SPEECH OF R. J. GRAHAM

Mr. Arthur Stevens Of New Ontario Writes Of Belleville

The following letter, which explains itself, has been received at the Belleville Chamber of Commerce from Mr. Arthur Stevens of Cochrane, Ontario. Mr. Stevens was a delegate from Cochrane to the Belleville Chamber of Commerce Convention held the latter part of last year in South Africa. Only four Canadian delegates attended the convention, Mr. R. J. Graham of this City being one of the number.

Secretary,
Chamber of Commerce,
Belleville, Ont.

Have just returned from South Africa where I had the extreme pleasure of the acquaintance of your decent Mr. Graham at the Congress, and on the tour which followed, that of his charming daughter.

Belleville has always had the reputation of being very much in a "Fore," and her energy has in no way diminished.

Many were the enquiries I had concerning your esteemed citizen. Col. Preston, and his mantle certainly fell upon good shoulders and I can assure you that those who were fortunate enough to hear Mr. Graham will ever remember "Belleville" and it's optimism.

I could not let this occasion pass without a reference to my old friend Mr. John Elliott about whom I also had several enquiries.

With very kind regards and New Year's Greetings to all your members.

Faithfully yours,
(Signed) ARTHUR STEVENS.

A full report of Mr. R. J. Graham's speech to the Convention appeared in the Daily Intelligencer of Nov. 21st last.

MARTIN HARVEY RECOVERING

Toronto, Jan. 26.—Sir John Martin Harvey, eminent English actor, is recovering steadily from an operation for intestinal adhesions and today was reported as doing very nicely.

HEAVY BUYER AT ALL THE PLACES

Wilfred Did Not Overlook Any Available Source Of Supply

Wilfred Patenaude, 303 1-2 Front street, of this city, today appeared before Magistrate Mikel in Police Court and pleaded not guilty to a charge of keeping liquor for sale. Mr. A. B. Ostliva was defending Patenaude and Crown Attorney Donnan, prosecuted. Patenaude's apartment on Front street was raided on the 17th of January last and on the 18th, next day, the officers returned and confiscated two bottles of liquor, one of Scotch, the other brandy. The Crown this morning called three men into the witness box, Mr. Walter Healy, of the Quinte Breweries; Mr. Harry Maylor, of the Government Liquor Store, and Mr. Fleming, of the Government Bath-house. These men gave evidence as to the purchases on Patenaude's permit, and it was a well-filled one.

Heavy Buyer

From the Government Liquor Store Patenaude, during within two months and thirteen days (November 3rd to January 16th) forty-one bottles of either Guiness' Stout or Bass' Ale. Besides this the accused, according to his permit brought over four cases of spirits in Trenton in December.

From the Government were those Patenaude procured were totalling in price $24.10 within a period between November 3rd and January 16th.

The accused appears to have got weary after this and switched his trade to the Quinte Breweries for between the 3rd of December and the 4th of January he purchased beer totalling in costs $71.40. The permit had a new sheet attached to the original, the first permit having been used up entirely.

Constable Sued

Constable Isard, in giving his evidence stated that on several occasions he had noticed empties on the back general direction of Patenaude's apartment which is situated above the Fisher office.

Two more residents of the same apartment block testified that they had heard men going into Patenaude's apartment on various occasions.

TODAYS MARKETS

Wheat Shows Strength

Chicago, Jan. 26.—With persistent dryness reported in the domestic Winter wheat belt, values here touched an early upward trend today. Liver pool wheat quotations were higher than were looked for acted also as a strengthening influence.

Quotations ranged from 1-2c higher Chicago wheat reacted a little and then advanced again all around. Corn gain spots likewise developed firmness, corn starting at 1-4c off to 1-4c up and subsequently making general advance.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, Jan. 26—Wheat, May 1.29 5-8. May, 130 1-2. Corn, March 87, May 90 1-8. Oats, Mar. 54 1-8, May 53 1-4.

EXCHANGE RATES

New York, Jan. 26.—Foreign exchanges steady, demand rates in cents. Great Britain 485 1-2, France 3.91 dollars 9-64 or one percent discount.

WINNIPEG WHEAT

Winnipeg, Jan. 26.—Wheat, May 1-8c to 1-2c higher at 1.25 5-8 to 1.26; July 1-8c higher at 1.25 1-8 to 1.25 1-4; 1-2c higher at 1.29. Oats, May 1-4c higher at 63 3-4; July 1-4c higher at 60 1-2.

CLOSING QUOTATIONS

Prices Going Up

New York, Jan. 26.—Speculation for the advance which received a sharp set back yesterday on selling inspired by an increase in the discount rate, rallied more forward a point or two, recovering most of yesterday's decline. Standard industrials and rails moved forward a point or two, recovering most of yesterday's decline ground while several specialities were marked up three to five points to new high records. Trading showed moderate contraction in volume.

The immediate recovery in prices was influenced to a large extent by unofficial Washington advices that treasury department officials saw no immediate prospects of an increase in the New York rediscount rate. Confidence in the Directors of the New York institution met after the close of the market this afternoon.

Public Utilities continued in the vanguard of the advance, Electric Bond advanced 10 points, Laclede Gas seven, and several others, including Brooklyn Edison, moved up two to five points. Packing shares responded to improving trade conditions and strengthened by Cudahy, which was bid up five points above last night's closing quotation.

STANDARD MINING EXCHANGE

Quotations by Hoover L. Gibson and Co., per Jemieson Bone, local manager.

The mining market flattened out today considerably as per quotations at 3 p.m. below. As mentioned before the interest is all into the Northern Manitoba, Sudbury and B.C. issues to the entire neglect of the old favourites. Several more sales of Bralorne stocks appear on the board for the first time today viz Big Missouri, Ruth Hope, Cork Province, Standard Silver, Sunloch and Big Horn. Nevertheless some of the B. C. issues will give a good account of themselves.

Pend Oreille was firm at $9.50 to 10.75, Coast Copper opened up at $5.00 and sold to 5.05 Cr. Premier 6c $5.00 and sold up to $5.00 with very few transactions. It is said there is not more than 10,000 shares of this floating around, Hudson Bay was firm around $21.00. Teck Amulet, Wrights Harg. and almost all the old timers were decidely weak. International Nickel was a notable exception, the buying here is said to be from the inside and at one time it was $99.00 bid and $100.00 asked.

ANXIOUS ABOUT BELLEVILLE BOY

Missing From His Boarding House In Kingston Since Monday

Kingston, Jan. 26.—Mystery surrounds the disappearance here of Clifford McQuaid, aged 18 years of Belleville, who has been missing since Monday. The young man came here a couple of weeks ago and on Monday left his boarding house saying he was working in a local hotel. At the hotel it was learned he was never employed there. He left all his clothing and effects at the boarding house. Miss Helen McQuaid, of Belleville, is a sister.

TURN HICKMAN CASE OVER TO NEW JUDGE

Los Angeles, Jan. 26.—A judge who comes from one of the sparsely populated "cow counties" of California, presided over the court where William Hickman, kidnapper and slayer of Marian Parker, faces justice with a plea of insanity. The new presiding officer of the court is Judge Trabucco, of Mariposa county, named yesterday by the presiding judge of the Los Angeles Superior Court to hear the case after Judge Carlos Hardy had disqualified himself.

HASTINGS BOYS

A careful survey of the County was made and 1,500 acres of scrub was found in every Township. Mr. Thomas Montgomery was appointed Inspector and he distributed literature and visited all of the schools in the southern portion of the County. Clean-up measures have been taken by the farmers and this pest has been partially eradicated.

Under the supervision of Mr. Kennedy, who has been making a close record on and twelve orchard men took advantage of this advice. Instructions were issued and prices in the County lowered.

12,450 pounds of wool was shipped from the County in 1927. The drainage dept. O.A.C. Guelph made a number of surveys of the County.

The class of help was satisfactory, and applications received were satisfactory. Valuable assistance was given by the advisory agricultural committee in the matter of school fairs, public speaking contests and poultry culling demonstrations. Assistance was also given in the matter of courses in agriculture and Home Economics County Institute meetings and Short Courses in Agriculture and Farm Home Hog Club.

The local Ayrshire Breeders Association of which Percy Rutherford, Campbellford is Secretary-Treasurer held a field day each year.

A school, championship fair was held at Stirling when the prize-winning exhibits at each school in the County were shown.

Ten fairs were held from among one hundred and twenty five schools with thirty-hundred people taking part.

Home Garden contests were held and increased interest was shown.

At the end of the year - breeding stations a fifty per cent hatch resulted from the eggs. One hundred and eighty members were included in the five Junior Farmers Associations. Activities among the youth included a soft ball league, debates, field day and achievement meetings. Twenty Junior Farmers attended the convention at Belleville.

POLICE COURT

Charles Bailey, of Point Anne, appeared before Magistrate Mikel this morning on a charge of theft and was charged with illegally selling liquor and a second count of selling liquor to a minor. His case was laid over for a week and Bailey was allowed his liberty upon furnishing two bonds of $500.

It was James Derochie, also of Point Anne, who when brought up in court yesterday to answer to a charge of drunkenness broke down and confessed from whom he had purchased the liquor. Derochie claimed he bought three quarts of beer from Bailey.

NURSERY STOCK TO BE GUARDED

Inspection of Stock Coming in From The United States

Ottawa.—Inspection in Canada of nursery stock coming in from the United States, the advisability of prohibiting the importation of elms from Europe on account of disease and kindred problems were discussed today at a public hearing of the Destructive Insect and Pest Act advisory board. Mr. Arthur Gibson, Dominion entomologist, presided and there were present representatives of the Canadian Horticultural Council, nursery firms, importers and transportation companies.

The meeting considered the advisability of re-imposing nursery stock entering Canada from the United States and recommendations of the board will be submitted to the Department of Agriculture. The responsibility of fixing a policy will be taken by Hon. W. R. Motherwell.

Mr. F. T. Gussow, Dominion botanist, and Dr. J. M. Swaine, associate Dominion entomologist, discussed the question of elm disease which was discovered a few years ago in Europe and is spreading rapidly. They emphasized the danger of importing elms on that account.

Dr. Swaine was recently in Europe and reported on the danger of importing the gun moth, by the importation of conifers from overseas. The gun moth, he said, was responsible for great damage in certain of the forests of Central Europe.

His remarks were supplemented by Mr. Gussow in connection with the canker disease which affects various types of elm trees and would be particularly dangerous to Canada if imported by reason of its serious effects on the Douglas fir.

BELLE THEATRE

Some of the most authentic and effective scenes in "By Whose Hand?" Columbia Pictures' detective drama, now showing at the Belle Theatre, are those of a famous New York night club. The actresses who portray the cafe patrons were chosen for their beauty and smartness of appearance and were elaborately gowned in order to carry out the atmosphere of New York's most elegant night club. Only actors who were at the night club habitue type were chosen to give realism to the scenes, and they were garbed in a manner indicative of their roles.

An orchestra from Hollywood's most frequented cafe furnished jazz music during the filming of the sequences in order to enliven the atmosphere.

The role of night club hostess in play is by Dr. Becky Moores, who bears a striking resemblance to Tex Guinan of night club fame. Ricardo Cortez, Eugenia Gilbert, Lillianne Leighton, William Scott, J. Thornton Baston, Tom Dugan, Edgar Washington Blue and John Steppling are in the cast. "By Whose Hand?" was directed by Walter Lang.

BELLEVILLE LOST TO CORNWALL 7-2

Maroons Eliminated From Group 1 By Factory Town Squad

A CLEAN GAME

Locals Handicapped; Home Team Held Edge Throughout

(Special to The Intelligencer.)

Cornwall, Ont., Jan. 26.— Eddie Thomas and his belleville O. H. A. team usually play to a run nouse when they appear in Cornwall, but when they came to town yesterday afternoon they brought the worst storm of the season with them and the result was that the attendance was very small, but this was due solely to the storm and in no way to pulling power of the Belleville team. In fact, forever five hours, between noon and 5.30 p.m., there was grave doubt as to whether or not the match could be played, for the whole town was without electric power as a result of the storm, and everything was at a standstill. But the trouble was located and remedied and before 5 p. m. the juice was on again and the game was assured, much to the delight of the officers of the local club, who would have been in a dilemma but for the resumption of the power.

Of the match itself too much cannot be said. Both teams were on their good behaviour and while Referee Tom Mallen, of Morrisburg, imposed three or four penalties, none of them were serious and the game throughout was a most enjoyable one and the four hundred people who braved the elements were well rewarded, for they saw a fast, clean exhibition of the popular winter sport. While Cornwall eventually won by 7 goals to 2 this is hardly a fair criterion of the play, although perhaps Cornwall had a shade on the Thomas men most of the way. John Dennenny had his men pretty well groomed to individual work and they followed instructions and to this can be attributed their success.

One Substitute

Eddie Thomas came down with only one substitute and this held him at a disadvantage, but the boys he did have played a nice game all the time and deserved better results. Cornwall led in the first period by 2 to 0 but Hagerman should have had a goal near the end had Bert Fortune smiled the less big bit after Ribbord and he carrying the puck through, all Hagerman had to do was to poke it in, but the poke wasn't quite straight. Dextras scored both Cornwall goals. Hagerman and Whalen worked right in on Pilion after the second period started, but the Cornwall man made a brilliant save of what looked like a sure goal. Maurice Jamieson made the score 3 to 0 in four minutes after he and Dextras rushing. Weir and Green made two fine rushes through, but Spence and Melion contant saved and Spence took a race. Belleville away and gave Bowen a teaser. Art Parker, Cornwall's kid goaler, next came into the limelight with two bullet shots. Hagerman and Weir, both of whom played great hockey all night, charged strong, but Pilion foiled their efforts. "Mo" Jamieson, the younger of the two brothers, forced Bowen from net to net to save a goal. Gayer made a brilliant attempt to break through and Spence came up for a tip and the Cornwall man took a rest in the cooler. Art Contant, R. Jamieson and Dextras combined and Bowen made a great save. Spence came on and got a nice hand from the crowd just as Gayer made another of his heavyweight rushes.

Mo Jamieson got the score 4-0 for the locals.

Weir, Green Score

Melio Contant made it 5-0 one minute after the last period started going all the way unaided. Art Contant missed a momen' later and the red flicker: ed on but Pilion was not allowed, and at the face off the same player made sure of his next shot, three minutes later, Youp' Gayer and Ribbord combined prettily but just when they looked got to beat the defense, Whalen got offside and there went their chances. Weir and M. Contant went off for a rest and while they were in the box Green broke Belleville's goose egg and the crowd cheered his fine effort. Gayer and Weir shone in a race but lost out to the Cornwall defence, but Ribbard and Weir returned and on a nice pass from the former gave Weir the puck just where he needed it and he flipped it behind Pilion and the score stood 6-2. Art Parker broke into the scere column and scored the seven th goal for Cornwall.

Line-ups—

Belleville—Bowen, Goal; Defence: Green and Goyer; Centre, Hagerman; Wings Weir and Whalen; Sub. Ribbard

Cornwall—Pilion, Goal; Defence: A. Contant; Centre, M. Contant; Wings, R. Jamieson, M. Jamieson, Subs Art Parker, W. Dextras.

Motor driven horn, starter, foot accelerator, one piece windshield and sunvisor, are a few features in the equipment of the new Ford. Have Belleville Motors demonstrate a car to you today. They advise placing your order immediately for Spring delivery.

FRANKFORD SLIP VISITORS A LOSS

Campbellford Lost To Fast Travelling Home Team 2-1

Frankford hockey team displaying a real dash of form, disposed of the Campbellford team last night in a thrilling scrimmet that equalled the Stirling game of Tuesday night. The final score was 2-1 and it was not until the last period that Frankford tallied the winning goal, five minutes after play had started. The class of hockey in this league is improving and although the Frankford team was only entered this year they are already making their presence known. Campbellford has one of the strongest teams in the league and the visitors were conceded the edge. The Frankford arena was well-filled for the game and those who attended left the rink satisfied that it was one of the best games ever played on the home ice.

It was literally a battle between the goalies and both Lloyd in the Frankford net and Fox who guarded the twine for the visitors, made some spectacular stops. Both goals were in constant danger and play for the most part was even. Orwell, the brilliant little centre man from Campbellford, who distinguished himself in the game against Stirling, was again in the lime-light and drove the only goal scored by his team past Lloyd.

Neither team scored in the first period, each hung up one in the second period and Frankford repeated the winning tally in the final chukker. Bill O'Malley and Lawrence scored Frankford's two goals on combination work. Only three minor penalties were handed out by Referee Ross Burtt of Trenton. Madoc play in Stirling tonight and a special train is arranged for the game.

Frankford—Goal, Lloyd; defence, O'Malley and Mann; Wigg, O'Malley and Lawrence; Centre, Filion; subs, Simmons and Munn.

SCRIBES PREPARE TO DO BATTLE

Daily Times of Port Hope Boast Of Ability At Hockey

Commenting on the proposed Hockey game between the Port Hope Times team and the Intelligencer The Times Reporter writes:

Some few days ago the Belleville Intelligencer challenged what was very closely allied to a challenge to the staff of The Daily Times for a game of hockey in the Railway City, and the dcti was copied into the sports columns of this paper. As soon as it came to the attention of the players and the management of The Daily Times' hockey team, negotiations were opened up with the management of the team of the Intelligencer and before very long a date quite probable there will be a clash between the respective staffs. The Port Hope type-setters, press men, newsbounds and circulation men have grown enthusiastic over the prospect and are loudly proclaiming the merit of the local team and the almost certainty of "bringing home the bacon," as the saying is. The fever has even spread to the ladies in the front office and the whole staff when the eventful evening comes. Just when it will be depends on the outcome of the eastern newspaperman. but it may be on Saturday evening next.

INTELLIGENCER AND POINT ANNE WERE WINNERS

Cement Boys Defeat Imperial Oil—Black Hawks Stop Ciacos

Point Anne and Intelligencer Black Hawks were winners in the city league double-header at the arena last evening. The villagers turned the Imperial Oil back by a score of 3-1 in a close and exciting fixture. B. Brant scored the winning counter a few minutes before time. The Intelligencer boys rolled up the biggest score of the season in the city loop when they walked rough-shod over the Ciacos in a game that was featured by a good deal of slashing and rough-play.

The ice was fast and both games were hard-fought although the printers held a distinct edge in the second tilt on the program. There was little to choose from in the opener but the addition of Alex Weir supplied the necessary punch for the cementmixers to come through with a win. The Imperial Oil shaped up as one of the leading contenders for the Leybourne Cup but they have fallen dismally by the way-side and have yet to win a game. The Marvellers are practically eliminated from the race following last night's set-back. The Imperials are a heavy team with some fast boys in the line-up but they lack the scoring ability. Bob Caulin and B. Brant dinted the mesh for the visitors, while Bill Coon was the only star. Sarjeantat in drifting the puck past Grant. Young Peets was right in his element and was all over the ice and kept the green shirts worried.

Two games on consecutive evenings may have had something to do with the defeat of the Ciaco Club but the Intelligencer boys looked up some smart hockey and were leading at one period by a score of 6-1. The Corbyville club came back and threatened in the third period but it was too late and their two goals were of little use against the lead accumulated by the Black Hawks. The latter tied with the suburban team on their first meeting and were out to demonstrate their superiority. The final score was 7-3.

Henry Canning was by long odds the best man on the ice and aided the Corbyville team look bad when he soloed through to the goal mouth several times.

Bernie Brown helped himself to three nice goals and played a fine game. Monty Murray, at centre, was the king-pin of the Ciacos although he was mixing in a little rough work at times.

Hobway in the Corbyville net turned aside many goals that were right to the button and even made some nice saves when the Hawks rushed the puck in to him.

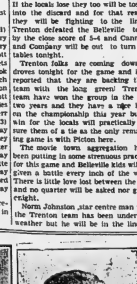

H. Canning scored two goals, Bernie Brown three, Cene Doyle, one, and Dan O'Donahue, one, while for the Ciacos, Latchford got two and Murray, their other.

Friday night will see another double header in the city league and the patronage at these games appears to be improving.

Do you remember when they looked like this? On the left is "Cy" Dennenay, left wing, and on the right, Harry "Punch" Broadbent, right wing of the Ottawa Senators, N.H.L. and world's professional hockey champions of last season. The photo of Dennenay was taken in the spring of 1916 while that of Broadbent was taken in the fall of 1922. Both are now well past the thirty mark, but both have taken care of themselves physically and they are still mighty useful players.

CRUCIAL GAME OF JUNIOR GROUP

Trenton Kids Here Tonight For Battle With Locals

Belleville's Junior team is the one remaining hope in the O.H.A. series and they will make their stand at the arena tonight against the Trenton laddies. If the locals lose they too will be tossed into the discard and for that reason they will be fighting to the limit. Trenton defeated the Belleville team by the close score of 5-4 and Canning and Company will be out to turn the tables tonight.

Trenton folks are coming down in droves tonight for the game and it is reported that they are backing their team with the long green! Trenton team have won the group in the last two years and they have a nice hold on the championship this year but a win for the locals will practically assure them of a tie as the only remaining game is with Picton here.

The movie town aggregation have been putting in some strenuous practice for this game and Belleville kids will be given a battle every inch of the way. There is little love lost between the two and no quarter will be asked nor given tonight.

Norm Johnston ,star centre man with the Trenton team has been under the weather but he will be in the line-up when the visitors step out on the ice tonight.

Belleville will be at full strength with Jeffery in goal, Ethier and Oalway will play the defence, Johnny Canning in centre, Ellis Canning and Simpson on the wings and Young and Henn subs.

These Junior games are real fast and fans should not pass up this chance to see the youngsters in action.

PORT HOPE NOT TO ENTER CENTRAL LG.

A despatch from Port Hope this morning states that that town will remain in Intermediate ranks and will not be enter the new Senior circuit. A lack of material is given as the reason for the Hopers not entering the higher series. This means that Belleville, Kingston, Peterboro and Oshawa will comprise the Central league. The decision was reached at a meeting of the executive held in Port Hope last evening. The Port Hope club was approached by the Senior league and they promised to look into the matter. Cobourg, it was hoped would amalgamate with the Port Hope team but the thing was deemed impossible and the league will function with the four teams.

HEENEY SIGNED WITH DELANEY

New York, Jan. 26.—John M "Tex" Chapman, accountant only to the whims and fancies of six-day bicycle racers, took full possession of Madison Square Garden in the absence of Tex Rickard on Thursday, and celebrated his professional debut by signing Jack Delaney and Tom Heeney to a 15-round bout on March 1.

Achieving his and where the original "Tex" had given up in high dudgeon before leaving Wednesday night for Miami, Fla., Rickard's newly anointed assistant hauled the fight managers before him and in half an hour talked them into splitting half of the gate receipts evenly between them. Papers were signed.

The match forecast the final lineup of the "elimination" campaign to name Gene Tunney's opponent next summer Tex is reviewing the heavyweight pro cram to sign Jack Sharkey and John ny Risko in a second bout on March 12, with the winners of both matches meeting early in April for the right to challenge Tunney's supremacy in July Jack Dempsey probably will face the title-holder for the third time here in September.

The endurance contest between managers of Heeney and Delaney enjoying the second day, was brought to a sudden halt and general agreement when challengers of the New Zealander's courage reached the ears of Bernard Mortimer, British promoter, and one of Heeney's stockholders. Mortimer went into private session with the remainder of the Heeney boostmen and came out with an offer to bet $5,000 on the Aussie and an agreement to split the purse. Negotiations had been prolonged by Heeney's desire to five percent more than Delaney.

No mention was made of Paulino Uzcudun, the fifth starter originally selected by Rickard for the final elimination fight. The Spaniard left to fight Romero Rojas in Mexico City January 29, and will meet Georgy Godfrey, the new "black menace" in Los Angeles, in February.

In selecting the two gentlemen above members of the Canadian Olympic boxing committee the Canadian Olympic committee secured two of the hardest workers in Ontario in the cause of amateurism. Chas. E. Higginbottom has held innumerable offices in amateur circles and is at the present time the president of the Ontario branch of the A.A.U. of C. He has been appointed chairman of the committee, while Fred E. Robert-is also a member. Mrs. Robert is one of the best-liked men in the amateur boxing game in Ontario and has acted as supervisor of boxing and wrestling for the Ontario branch for the past six years. This committee will have charge of the conducting of the preliminaries of the Olympic boxing trials which will most likely be held in Montreal the latter part of June. George McBeth of Winnipeg, John Leslie of Edmonton and L. E. Mcintosh of Montreal are the other members.

STATE MAY SEIZE CAR CARRYING LIQUOR

Boston, Mass.—The State Supreme Court has upheld the right of the State to forfeiture of a motor car which was found to contain liquor while in possession of a man to whom it had been sold on the instalment plan, the payments on the car not yet completed.

In so ruling the court sustained the decision of Judge Postick of the Superior Court from which the Industrial Finance Company had appealed. The company financed the sale of the car and claimed ownership after seizure on the ground that forfeiture to the state would constitute unconstitutional deprivation of property.

Judge Wait, who wrote the opinion of the full bench, said that the law did not go beyond constitutional power "in depriving the owner of property which he has himself previously entrusted to another, because of the fault of that owner or of any successive person in control before the owner has regained lectual possession.

He added that the court did not pass on the question whether the right of forfeiture extended to a stolen car.

THAT GUILTY FEELING OFTEN MERE FANCY

Truth! The truth hurts—that's the reason for avoiding it.

For our faulty thoughts and behavior, for emotional states we try to deny, there is likely always to be some plausible lie ready at hand with which we can cover and conceal.

How often a man finds himself attracted by a woman not his wife. How often a wife may be obsessed with often a wife may be obsessed with some man, other than her husband, whom she may only have seen casually.

What happens under such circumstances?

Sense of duty, idealism and faith enter into conflict with primitive strivings, philandering tendencies and a colorful imagination.

That small but insistent voice, called conscience, begins to accuse. Self-accusation may follow. A growing feeling of unworthiness ensues. And, all the while, the individual may not have done a single thing that might be construed as immoral by wrong or even indirect.

A person can go through similar experiences with reference to ideas other than those connected with the love-life. One may be walking through a department store and suddenly feel like stealing. The suggestion may be so strong that it is necessary to leave the store in order to overcome it.

One may suddenly develop an intense hatred for another. Even a definite wish may accompany it.

Self-destruction may pop into one's mind. It may become so powerful an idea that one becomes afraid of oneself.

Then there are lesser thoughts that nag us.

Procrastination may be one of these We put off writing a letter from day to day. We find we keep in touch with our friends. We don't keep our promises.

And all the while we worry about it and cry with all our might and make excuses for our dereliction. If we were to practice facing the truth fairly and then reading it we would save ourselves needless mental torment.

Make it a point to realize that if you suffer from faulty ideas others are suffering from them as well. Your next-door neighbor may not be battling with identical problems, but he is battling with others. Humanity is one. And he is also trying to build up pleasure reverses the same as you do.

Face facts. Face the truth always. Don't think you are the only one who may harbor a stealing impulse on an occasional suicidal idea.

Don't try to salve your conscience. If you think a wicked thought, admit it. That's the quickest way to rid your mind of it.

Nobody is perfect. Everyone has character faults. You, yourself cannot very well expect to be the exception to all the rules of human nature.

The more you accuse yourself, the more important do you make the distressing thoughts and impulses. Admission is a long, long way from confession.

You invariably make things worse and at the same time undermine your will-power when you become afraid of what you think and feel impelled to do.

Size up the truth for what it really is and don't get into a panic.

Before you begin to make any cake take care that all your ingredients are all ready at your hand. Beat up your eggs well and then do not leave them to go about anything else till your cake is finished, as the eggs by standing unmixed will require beating again which will contribute to making your cake heavy. If you intend to put butter in your cake, be sure to beat it to a fine cream before you put in your sugar, otherwise it will require double the beating.

An Inspiration For A Poet's Muse

Helen of Troy, would come to America in all her youthful, radiant beauty, finding little wonder in her standing with her husband about Paris, let's say; this is the dress she would choose for her first soiree. If her style-sense were as acute as her good looks, Helen of Troy-burgh or Boston-on-the-Seine will wear royal dress. Even the silliest flapper would cry, straight in raising. The wide flare of the shoulder cried at the left edge to form a full, graceful drape that brings below the skirt front and back. Made of silk crepe, or light weight velvet or brocade or metallic fabric the quality of this model glitters over a background for the sparkle of beautiful jewels—the semi-fitted one costume pre-eminent which are so popular in Paris this year.

(Copyright, 1927, by Butterick).

WHAT'S NEW

(From a Woman's Standpoint)

Paris reports a growing vogue for the new beige "cecille," a kind of blonde suntan shade which made its debut in the mid-season collections and at once achieved popularity in such different materials as velvet, tulle taffeta, suede, lace and satin.

Beige and brown mixtures collared with coarse-haired durable furs are standard in Paris for travel and sports coats, and cling to the one-piece dress to go with them, with skirt made of the material as the coat, and blouse of crepe satin attached to it.

Paris is wearing a big pearl or metal studded buckle about the waist of the clever Quaker hat, but instead of having the centre cut out to expose the leather, the latest ornaments perch on an unbroken surface made up of rows of large pearls, gold or steel nailheads, or small jet beads and such buckles are usually placed on simple court pumps of black or color.

In the advance spring fashions the bolero continues to be high-lighted, frequently taking on swinging cape lines, and sometimes manifested in all-round effect with attached at the front, dropping over the waistline, and there are also evidences of the detachable bolero, and also of the cape that may be swung over the shoulder in theatre fashion, with one side attached to the bodice.

Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

Sour milk may be used just the same as sweet, in cake, etc., if one-third of a teaspoon of soda is added to each cup of sour milk. After that use baking powder just as though sweet milk has been used.

Never add raisins, currants, fruit or nuts to cake until the eggs and eggs have been added and before adding milk. They will not then sink to the bottom of the cake.

In cleaning real lace, spread it out on a sheet of white paper. Cover with fine calcined magnesia, place another paper over it and press between two pages of a bulky book for a day or two. The powder may then be shaken off and the lace will be quite clean.

Wash discolored flower vases first of all in strong soda water if there is no silt or pattern on them. Otherwise leave the soda out altogether. Next fill them with vinegar or tea leaves. Shake well and let them stand for a few minutes. Rinse again thoroughly and dry with a clean, soft cloth. This treatment is generally effective. If it fails get a few crots worth of oxalic acid—poison—moisten a flannel with it and rub the stained part; but remember that oxalic acid should be very carefully handled and must not be allowed to touch the hands.

Up two days 5,000 Detroit motorists were "ticketed" for speeding.

Advice to Girls By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young girl in my early teens and go to high school. I am invited to many parties but I refuse because I know that I will not have a nice time. I am always a wallflower and can't seem to get in with the rest. The girls and boys try to make me enjoy myself, but I know it is out of pity for me.

Also I can't get out of the habit of blushing. Please advise me.

MISS ANXIOUS.

MISS ANXIOUS:

My dear girl, you seem to be developing an inferiority complex and I urge you to curb this tendency before you let it cause you acute unhappiness! There is no [illegible] easier for your supposing that people are nice to you out of pity! Such a supposition belies the intelligence your letter reveals! Take a fair estimate of yourself and don't exaggerate your faults. Correct and improve yourself as much as you can and make yourself as interesting as you think your companions are. When people are nice to you, stop trying to motivate their kind acts and accept it in the cheerful spirit it is offered. When you gain more self-assurance and poise I am sure his habit of blushing will leave you and I advise you not to be unduly concerned about it. Instead of refusing invitations, accept them and prove yourself the agreeable companion that your friends think you are. Forget yourself—come your self-consciousness if you will but make the effort, my dear. Go to it and good luck!

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a boy in my early teens. I have been introduced to a couple of girls but I was too bashful to speak to them, and I like the girls very much. Please advise me.

BASHFUL.

BASHFUL: I strongly advise you to make a sincere effort to overcome your shyness, my friend, and this you can do by taking stock of yourself, correcting your faults, cultivating a manner at ease and poise, developing your mind so that you can easily engage in conversation with anyone—in short by making yours a compelling personality. Your bashfulness as far as girls are concerned will wear off when you acquire more self-confidence. Remember, if you like these girls, they have no way of detecting it unless you are friendly and show your interest by seeking them out. Go ahead, Bashful; these girls are probably eager to hear from you.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I feel steady company with a young man about eight months. Then I let my temper run away with me and we quarrelled. I see now how wrong I was. I asked him to forgive me and wrote him a letter asking him to come back to me and telling him how sorry I was for my mistake. He never answered my letter. That was as far as I could go. I tried my best to forget him but I could not. He has told some of my dearest friends that he really loves me but is too stubborn to come back to me. What can I do?

PEG.

PEG: There is nothing more you can do, my dear; you have apologized and the next step rests with your friend. If he really loves you, Peg, he will not let his stubbornness keep him from you, but he will accept your apology and come back to you. If he does not do this, face the issue square ly, my dear, and determine for yourself whether his refusal to make up is really due to his obstinacy or to the possibility that he has had a change o fheart! If this latter is true, I must urge you to seek the companionship of other friends and gradually put him out of your mind. I am sure if this boy is sincerely concerned about you, he will not be willing to lose you over a petty quarrel.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am almost seventeen. I went with a boy who is seven years older than I am. My mother and father do not want me to go with him.

He asked me to marry him and I told him that I was too young and my parents would not let me. He asked me to go with him and be married secretly. I love him and I believe he loves me. What shall I do? BLUE EYES.

BLUE EYES: I would suggest that you have a frank talk with your parents and learn what their objections are to your going with this boy. I must sincerely advise you to be guided by their advice and do as they think best. Since they do not approve of this boy, I think you would be wise to discontinue your friendship with him and go not by any means consider this idea of marrying secretly. Such a step would only further incur the displeasure of your parents and might lead to subsequent unhappiness. If this boy really loves you I am sure he would want you to respect the wishes of your parents. I would suggest that you enlarge your circle of friends and make an effort to put this boy out of your mind.

R. G. GEEN ACTIVE IN ROTARY WORK

Former Belleville Boy Honored By Choir At Guelph

The following article is copied from the Owen Sound Sun-Times and refers to a former Belleville boy.

Mr. R. G. Geen, former organist of St. George's Anglican Church in this city, and now organist and choirmaster of St. George's at Guelph, has not lost his interest in the work of the Rotary Club, of which he was a member in Owen Sound, but still takes an active part in the affairs of the Guelph Club. At the luncheon of the club held at Guelph on Friday last, a special musical program was given in which the choir boys of St. George's church, who have been trained by Mr. Geen during the past year, took a prominent part. The Guelph Mercury of Saturday last makes the following comment:—"The next number on the program was by Mr. R. G. Geen's choir boys from St. George's Church: Osborne Canfield, Douglas Shaw, Frank Young, Jack Brown, Harold Riddolls, Harold Luscombe, Gordon Duke, Albert Steens, Walter Bolton, John Sutherland Confer Scovil and Stanley Hodgkins. The boys sang 'Just As I Am' to the tune of 'The Rosary.' Mr. Geen has shown what can be done with a boys' choir after a year's training and he and the boys received prolonged applause for their beautiful rendering of that well known hymn."

Leader Honored

During the Christmas season the members of the Orpheus Chorus, of which Mr. Geen was the leader for so many years, remembered him in a kind manner by sending to his address in Guelph a handsome silver cigarette case, suitably engraved, and a cigarette holder, and at the same time expressing to him their appreciation of his untiring efforts making the chorus a success, which was for so many years. Mr. Geen is deeply appreciative of this remembrance from the members of the Club.

HIS SECT DIDN'T APPROVE OF IT

Modernism Did Not Appeal To The Backward Mennonites

Toronto.—"I have to go to the village to telephone. Why shouldn't I have a 'phone in my room?" This was the question put not long ago by Miss Bable Dunham, author of "Toward London," by a Mennonite farmer, who had somewhat "fallen from grace" in the eyes of his co-religionists by allowing electric light and other modern improvements to be "installed."

In an address given before the Authors' Association recently Miss Dunham, of Kitchener, Ont., gave many odd instances of those who were "the original handmaidens." Descended from Bishop Ely, of Elytown, Ontario later Berlin and later still Kitchener, Miss Dunham has a clear conception of the excellent qualities of these settlers and also sees the humor in some of their theories. She wishes to explain them to those who do not understand them; she also hopes they too may understand criticism, kindly meant. "They take everything so literally; you will find, no photophyls of the Mennonites, because they think it is against the Commandments to make a likeness."

"The question of bonnets not so very long ago used to be a question of a new church necessary. They are always having 'spring' in the churches—it may be over the question of driving sheds, which has resulted in different churches in one each."

But as to the bonnets. The younger generation going out into industrial life found it irksome to be pointed out as a peculiar people; and they gave up the old headgear; so then they had to have a meeting-place to themselves. In one church, the other day, it was decided to have some musical instrument installed, "either a piano, or an organ."

Miss Dunham writes after her day's work at the Library is over. "I always stop at 2 a. m. I think that's enough for anyone," she said. "I would like to write historical stories for Canadian girls and boys—I do not care whether I am known by our neighbors to the South, or not, so long as Canadians will read my books and find them interesting."

NO HIGH HEELS FOR THE SHAPELY KNEES

Philadelphia, Pa.—If you have nice shaped knees don't wear high-heeled shoes. The Philadelphia Podiatric Society was told by Dr. J. Torrance Rugh, the wearing of high heeled shoes causes the foot to assume an unnatur al position with the result that the muscles and bones are thrown out of balance, the knee action becomes much less secure and fatigue results.

Dr. Rugh also sounded a warning against toe and other fancy dancing, none of which is conducive to normal and shapely feet, but held out a ray of hope for those afflicted with low legs. Such a condition can be remedied, the physicians were told, by adjusting the height of one of the edges of the shoes Knock-knees are incurable, though, and there is no hope for correction.

UNITED FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS

We offer you more than an investment

In offering you issues of United Bonds which we sponsor, we offer you more than a mere investment. We offer you, as well, a lasting supervision which makes United Bonds a good investment kept good.

When United Bonds are being issued we make searching enquiries as to the moral and financial worth of the mortgagor; examine, the locality; search the titles of lands, and familiarize ourselves thoroughly with the plans and specifications. Then we maintain a personal supervision of the building during erection.

Following that, we supervise the upkeep of the property, insurance upon it, and the collection of moneys from the mortgagor to meet payments of interest and principal per the maturity.

We render to our bondholders a sustained Investment Service.

Dear Sir—

I am writing to you to tell you of the value of your electric stove to me. Let it's see what it has done for me.

During the Great War, while I was overseas, I made a collection of revolvers, among them a few of my enemy bullets. Well, during the summer some of the children got hold of them and played with them. Of course, I knew nothing about it. I was down at the factory. I had no idea that they were playing with them. Then one day I was in the house and I heard a report in the kitchen. I thought the stove had exploded, but I soon found out that it was not the stove. Then I heard another report in the dining room. I thought the stove must have exploded there. I ran to the dining room door and opened it. Then I heard another report in the front room. I thought the stove must have exploded there. I ran to the front room door and opened it. Then I heard another report in the sitting room. I thought the stove must have exploded there. I ran to the sitting room door and opened it. Then I heard another report in the bedroom. I thought the stove must have exploded there. I ran to the bedroom door and opened it. Then I heard another report in the kitchen. I thought the stove must have exploded there. I ran to the kitchen door and opened it

CHAPTER XI.

"Not quite. But I can finish it with out a model, now that you've so kindly given me a pose."

"But I want to see it through," he protested aggrievedly. "If you don't let me pose again, I'll think I haven't given satisfaction."

She laughed.

"Then come again tomorrow, if you like. But I insist that it's an impossition for me to descend on Lila's — affiance—and make him poor."

He frowned.

"It's a pleasure for me, Mrs. Ware. And—I don't seem to be taken very ser iously ar'Lila's fiance."

Dorothy rested her clasped hands on the edge of her drawing-board and re garded him thoughtfully. Her beauti ful hair was lined against the patch of sky revealed through her big studio window. She looked distractingly pret ay. Farquahar thought that he had never in his life seen a girl so cool and sweet and gracious, or one to whom he so yearned to tell his innermost hopes and fears.

"I'm sorry about you and Lila," said Dorothy slowly. "But I can see nothing for you, Captain Farquahar, except the role of patience. Lila's is a most difficult position, and you'll simply have to be chivalrous and give her time."

Farquahar leaned forward.

"Do you honestly think that there's any use in being patient? Do you believe things between Lila and me will ever come right?"

Dorothy's candid gaze grew troubled.

"That is a question you must ask Lila—not me."

"Lila is your best friend," remarked Farquahar abruptly.

"Yes. We have been friends from childhood."

"Mrs. Ware—" Farquahar said, "will you forgive me, if I ask you a very personal and, I fear, impertinent question?"

She looked at him gravely and nod ded.

"Do you love your husband?"

Dorothy started slightly. Then she smiled a little; her pretty eyes were unreadable.

"You ask—do I love Mr. Ware?"

"Yes." He was watching her with a queer intentness of which he was not aware.

Dorothy shook her head.

"No," said distinctly.

Farquahar fairly jumped. His thoughts were in turmoil. He could n't have told what prompted him to ask her that question. Something stir ring belief in his own mind that there was something between Lila and this Herbert Ware.

Dorothy sensed his embarrassment. She rose and said:

"Would you care to see a little miniature I did of Lila last year? It was exhibited at one of the galleries, and people were kind enough to praise it. But, of course, it doesn't do Lila justice. An artist cannot do her justice, or ivory with complete success."

Farquahar's ebony cabinet that was filled to overflowing with the pret ty trifles that a lover of beauty collects Dorothy came to stand beside her.

Dorothy seemed suddenly embarrassed by his proximity. She pulled out a tiny drawer hastily.

"Here it is!" she said, rather breath lessly, producing a miniature into his hand. Very hurriedly, she endeavored to push the little drawer back into place.

It stuck, caught by a crumpled paper Farquahar, with a smile, took hold of his handkerchief.

Suddenly he paused. He was looking at a number of letters in his own handwriting. His gaze lifted questioningly to hers.

"Those are my letters, are they not, Mrs. Ware?"

"Yes," she admitted, almost inaudibly "Why are they here?"

"Lila—" began Dorothy falsely.

"If Lila had wished to keep them, why did she not take them to her home?

Dorothy said hurriedly:

"She was afraid, lest—lest some one find them—some one who had no right—"

He took both her hands in his and looked into her eyes.

"I think I can guess the real truth. Lila discarded my letters and you kept them—and are not telling me—because you are so kind that you don't want me to be hurt. Isn't that so?"

"That was not the reason," said Dorothy, in a low voice.

Still holding her hands, he stared down at her, trying to guess what it was in her simple statements that had set his pulses a-rioting.

CHAPTER XII.

THE ETERNAL QUESTION

Lila met Herbert's shocked question regarding her wedding-ring with a calm born of infinite weariness. She had been greatly tried that afternoon, and she began to understand the feelings of the meekest worm just before it turns.

So her answer to her husband was a shrug and a careless glance at the circlet of diamonds that adorned the third finger of her left hand.

"I felt like wearing this—for a change."

Herbert looked as though he could n't believe his ears.

"For a change!" he echoed wrathfully. "Is it for a change that you discard your wedding-ring after six months of marriage, and wear a ring that is not your own?"

She was so tired of the whole shabby business that, for two cents, she would have said: "It is mine. I love it! I told you that I belonged to Max Varney."

But, fortunately, her common sense came to her rescue and she sighed and murmured:

"What was it you wanted to talk to me about, Herbert, darling?"

He glared at her. for a moment. Then:

"When you have resumed your wedding-ring, I will talk up the matter in question."

Lila ascended the stairs laggingly. The sight of her depleted jewel-box brought a resigned sigh. She slipped off Farquahar's ring and put on Herbert's chaste gold band and the square cut diamond that was her engagement ring.

"I must be careful to make a quick change hereafter," she thought ruefully.

When she returned to Herbert, he was examining the ash-tray that stood on the uncleared tea-table. He picked up a cigarette that bore the name of a well-known Turkish brand.

"I have always understood that one of the few virtues of your friend, Dorothy, is her aversion to smoking," he remarked.

Lila, who wasn't noticing what he was at first, looked disinterested.

"Dot detests cigarettes."

"Then who smokes these?" Herbert fairly pounced upon her. "Do woman would choose such a strong brand."

Lila should have been prepared. Even she realized what he held between his finger-tips, but she was still at the women-turning stage. So she said airily:

"How little you know about women, Herbert, darling!"

Herbert retreated into cold silence. She had to remind him again that he wasn't yet privileged to be important business that brought him up-town in the middle of the afternoon. She knew only too well what it was, but she wanted to get the ordeal over with.

He displayed Irene's bill solemnly.

"What does this mean, Lila?"

She answered with a flippancy born of resignation:

"It means, I suppose, that I owe Irene for half a dozen dresses and things."

"But I give you an ample allowance to pay such bills."

Lila yawned lightly. She was feeling unsurprisingly perverse.

"I spent it for—other things."

Herbert eyed her sternly.

"You mean that you deliberately took the money I gave you for this month's household bills, and spent it on other channels?"

"Why not?" she countered. "It was mine, once you'd given it to me, wasn't it?"

She had to carry this off with a high hand, she reminded herself, for there were bills and bills and bills yet to come, and there must be no repetition of this scene with the arrival of each one.

Herbert said angrily: "If you were n't my wife, I would term such action downright dishonest, Lila."

She answered irritably: "Don't quote me because I'm your wife. Men don't as a rule, I've been told, once the honeymoon is over."

Herbert stared.

"What in Heaven's name has come over you, Lila? I've never seen you in this mood before."

"I'm getting tired of being constantly called to account for every little thing," she cried, with a sharp note of hysteria in her voice.

Herbert said stiffly:

"Then let us end this humiliating scene."

"By all means, do," urged Lila fervently.

"But not until you tell me what you have done with the money I gave you to pay your dressmaker's bill," insisted Herbert stubbornly.

"I threw it away!" Lila made a flippant gesture with her hands, "on nothing."

It was then that Herbert lost his temper. They had their first serious quarrel, and Lila was angry to make the effort to pour the oil of tears on the seething waters.

"You have spent the money," she flung at him. "Why do you have to insist on her the sake of a few paltry thousand dollars?"

He snapped at her: "It's not the money; it's the principle of the thing. I demand to know what my wife does with her money and her time. Good Heavens, Lila, of late you've been acting like an adventuress. Do you realize that? I have noticed it, and haven't aroused my suspicions at every point? Do you think I've swallowed the preposterous story that you and Dorothy Caine have told me? Not Not in a million years! Lila, I'm going to find out the truth!"

CHAPTER 50

The Four-Row Game

Farqhahar came to Dorothy's studio the next day and the next. At his second visit, she declared laughingly:

"But I have no further need for a model, Captain Farquahar. I'm working on a still life."

He dropped into a chair and lit a cigarette.

"Nevertheless, I'm going to hang around," he said obstinately. "You may need one some time, and I want to be here when you do."

Dorothy shook her head, smiled and returned to her work.

"You're very persistent, Captain Farquahar. You like to have your own way, don't you?"

He nodded, watching her slim, fly ing fingers.

"Do you always get it?" she asked.

"Pretty generally. I don't give up until I do. In the case of Lila, however," he added ruefully, "my record seems to be going to smash."

"What do you intend to do about it?" asked Dorothy, quietly.

He shrugged.

"I'll follow the policy of another great man," he smiled, "and 'fight it out on this line, if it takes all summer.'"

She regarded him seriously.

"Your tactics must in-fere great ly with business."

"I haven't any business," said Farquahar briefly. "And that's Lila's fault, too. My job was selling bonds and I've been notified that it's waiting for me, but it happens to be in Chicago... And I can't leave New York. Pretty soon I'll go broke—I'm living now on a small private income—and then I'll be standing in the bread line, and all hope of marriage will be off."

His spoke lightly, but Dorothy sensed an undercurrent of seriousness in his words.

"Why don't you hasten matters by going to Chicago?" she suggested quick to seize a chance of a respite for Lila. "Maybe absence separation would work wonders. It might make Lila see—"

He interrupted her with a grim laugh.

"If five years' absence failed to make her heart grow fonder, what show have I?"

"But then she believed that you were dead. She had to fashion her life over again without you."

"And so she forgot me," added Farquahar bitterly. He leaned forward. "Would you have forgotten a man, Dorothy, who cared for you as I do?"

Dorothy bent over her drawing-board.

"I never believed you were dead," she said.

He gave an exclamation of suprise. "Why?"

"I don't know," she shook her head and smiled. "I simply felt that you were still living. I thought I wouldn't admit it to myself."

Sage Tea Bathe to Darken Hair

By DOROTHY LANG

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. It costs only 75 cents. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, as a well-known druggist, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications its gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

GOITRE

Why Dr. W. J. Hughson's Famous Goitre Remedy is still becoming more Famous. The following letter explains—

S. W. Hughson,
Toronto.

I receive so many enquiries concerning your Goitre Remedy, that I should find it convenient if you would send me some more of your literature that I might put it to those interested. I even had a letter from a lady here from Florida asking about it. Also want to tell you something else which, perhaps you do not know. I find it to be a wonderful remedy for Poison Oak and Poison Ivy. I get poisoned with those every spring and summer and the Goitre Remedy heals it much better than anything else I have ever tried.

I am still using mine wonderfully well after getting rid of the horrid Goitre.

Yours truly,
Mrs. J. D. Mills,
Redland Nursery, Sarnia, Ont.

COUNTY COUNCIL HOSTS KIWANIS

Jolly Evening Spent At Joint Banquet At Queen's

Hastings County Councillors last evening partook of the hospitality of the local Kiwanis Club, when they were tendered a typical Kiwanis luncheon and entertainment in the Queen's Hotel.

Approximately seventy-five Club members and guests sat down to luncheon, and in true Kiwanis style, with songs, music and mirth thrown in, the affair progressed. President Harry Greenleaf occupied the chair. "Bill" Mitzi, in proposing a toast to the "County of Hastings" welcomed the visitors on behalf of the Club.

During the course of the meeting several short addresses were listened to, including talks by Messrs. T. Montgomery, of Stirling; Col. Roscoe Vandervater, James Moore, Bob Mitchell, Reeve of Thurlow, H. T. Miller, Reeve of Frankford, Mayor Duff, and Chas. Hanna, President of the Belleville Agricultural Society. Incidentally, Charlie predicted great things for 1928, "Greater Hastings Exhibition" and assured his guests of the value to them of the Belleville Fair.

Other Councillors present included Messrs. R. C. Brett, J. J. Bronson, W. M. Gilroy, A. H. Gritts, J. M. Anderson, Chas. Burlington, E. Brown, T. Montgomery, S. H. Fox, Jas. W. Haggerty, J. A. Moore, Chas. Thompson, O. A. Bailey, Henry Ray, Geo. Thompson and S. C. Gay.

DID FIREWORKS START THE FIRE?

Kingston Man Claims $3000 Damages For Burning Of House

Kingston, Jan. 25.—As an aftermath to Kingston's part in the Jubilee celebration last July, Edward Burnside of Barriefield, has entered a suit for $3000 against R. J. Reid and James Halliday, for damages for the loss of his dwelling house and the case will be heard in Supreme Court before Justice Fisher next week.

Messrs. Reid and Halliday were in charge of the displays of fireworks on the night of July 1st and the displays were made from the Barriefield Hill. Mr. Burnside's house was burned to the ground and his claim is that fireworks alighted on the roof and started the conflagration.

THREE CHARGES OF FORGERY

Hamilton, Ont., January 25.—Pearly Austin Wright, of Ottawa, was committed for trial on three charges of forgery and a charge of false pretenses yesterday by Magistrate Jelfs.

The proposed $3,000,000 highway from Washington to Mt. Vernon, the birthplace of George Washington, has been approved by President Coolidge. It is planned to have the highway completed by 1932, the 200th anniversary of the birth of Washington.

Here and There

Saint John—Almost 200 new Danish colonists were added to the settlement of New Denmark in the course of the past year, and the population of the colony is now 800. Colonists are prospering and a further increase in activity is expected in 1928.

Morris Ackerman, acknowledged as one of the leading authorities on fishing and hunting on this continent, urges protection and a close season for great northern pike, grey trout and deer in Ontario and the reduction of number allowed to be caught in a day below the figure of four specimens now permitted. Otherwise depletion will cause heavy loss in diminished tourist traffic.

French-Canadian folk songs are becoming more and more popular as was shown by the recent recital at the Jacob Sleeper Hall, Boston, addressed by J. Murray Gibbon and illustrated by songs by Charles Marchand, well-known singer of French-Canadian songs. Boston University students and many members of the Canadian Club and of Boston Musical societies attended the recital.

Ottawa—A shipment of six bacon type pure-bred swine from Canadian farms to New Zealand has recently been made. Three of the hogs were Canadian type Berkshires from Fisherton, Ontario, and were prize winners at the Royal Fair. The other three were Tamworths from Ontario and Quebec breeders. This is the first year that hogs have been imported into New Zealand from North America since 1916. Other shipments are expected to follow shortly.

The annual dog-racing classic—the Eastern International Dog-Sled Derby—will again be run in Quebec City, February 20-22 next under the auspices of the Winter Sports Association of that city. It will cover 120 miles in the three days and already some of the best known mushers in the United States and Canada are entered for the race which carries a cash prize of $1,000 and custody for a year of a handsome gold cup.

Calgary — More than $500,000 worth of cattle from the farms of the province of Alberta were exported to the United States between July 1st and November 30, 1927, according to the report of the American Consul at Calgary. The shipments include some 12,000 head, comprising stockers, feeders and butcher cattle. The American markets at the present time are very inviting in stockers in Western Canada and shipments have shown a greater activity during the past six months than in any similar period since 1922.

Canadian Pacific Express, railway and steamships and finally an airplane were employed to carry two boxes of roses from Brampton, Ont., to Paris, France as a gift at Christmas. They were sent by Lt.-Col. J. H. Maclean of Toronto to Princess Carolyn Fe Fassigny-Lucinge and to Countess Gdon de Lubersac and only the heavy snowfall that swept Great Britain at that time prevented them from being placed on these ladies' breakfast tables on Christmas morning. As it was they arrived two days later, as fresh as though they had just been plucked.

FORMER PUBLISHER DEAD

Vancouver, January 25. — James Bryan, 76, a former warden of Bruce county, and for thirty years publisher of the Lucknow Sentinel, Lucknow, Ont., died here last night. He was born in London, Ont., and came to Vancouver upon his retirement from active newspaper life.

SNOW BLANKETS MOST OF QUEBEC

Several Feet Deep At Various Points—All Lines Are Down

Montreal, Jan. 18.—Exceptionally heavy snowstorm struck the entire province of Quebec last night and at noon today, was still raging. From Quebec three Rivers and other points came reports of snowfalls to the depths of several feet.

Facilities were severely crippled. The telephone company lost most of their long distance, while both the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Telegraph Companies were accepting messages and press reports for Quebec and Maritime points subject to heavy delay.

Storm Hits New England

Providence, Jan. 25—Thousands of dollars damage was done in this state today by a sixty mile gale which ripped roofs from buildings, brought telephone poles crashing down and blew in the side wall of a factory at Burrington. The roof of the new Post Office Plaza was blown off, high waves carried away cement fences near the beach and the steamer "Commonwealth" was blown from her dock onto the mud flats. She was hauled off later by several tugs.

DOUBLE MURDERER ENDS HIS OWN LIFE

Charleston, W. Vir.—Jan. 25.—Wise Bailey, thirty, charged with killing his mother and step-father, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Tolliver, hanged himself in the county jail today. The murders occurred in the Tolliver home at Pierpont, W. Vir., on Dec. 26.—Bailey escaped. He was captured in Ashland, Ky., and brought to Charleston last night by a state policeman.

GALE SWEEPS IN ON NEW YORK CITY

New York, Jan. 25.—A gale swept New York early today, uprooting trees, shattering store windows and ripping signs from their moorings. It followed a heavy rain last night which ended the warmest January 24 in fourteen years. The highest wind velocity was 68 miles at seven a.m. today. Shipping was warned of a storm of great intensity centring over Maine which would bring west and northwesterly gales all day.

THREE OF ESCAPED PRISONERS RE-TAKEN

Detroit, Jan. 25.—Eighteen of the twenty-one prisoners who escaped yesterday from the Elmwood Avenue branch of Wayne County jail here were still at liberty today as city, state and federal authorities continued their search for them. Two were recaptured yesterday and a third James Dwyer, was recaptured early today, at Fordson near here.

REPRIMAND CAUSED SUICIDE

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 25.—Reprimanded by his parents for returning some late at night and for drinking, Thomas F. Leonard, 21, shot and killed himself in his home locked on yesterday. His parents said he had been brooding over estrangement from his young wife.

"Captures the Soul of the Music!"

—says Fritz Kreisler—famous violinist—in praise of the new Orthophonic Victrola.

It captures all who listen to it!

Captures the soul of the violin, of the piano, the clarinet, the voice—captures the soul of any and all musical sounds, singly and together! Plays naturally the tones of these musical sounds, and all the rippling overtones, that give beauty and color to music. Captures the low fundamental notes that give instrumental music its depth and richness, and liberates them at your pleasure.

All this is yours in the new Orthophonic Victrola (and only in this instrument). And all because scientists have shown us the practical application of the principle of "Matched Impedance" or "smooth flow of sound", the patents for which are Victor-controlled.

Thus you may have beautiful, realistic, music at home, and you may have graceful cabinets finished in fine woods. Artistically designed models—all equipped with a device which stops every record after playing. Electric drive which eliminates winding is optional at slight additional cost. Prices from $1400 to as low as $115.

Obtainable on convenient payments at all His Master's Voice dealers.

LONGER SKIRTS TO BE THE FASHION

New York.—Women of fashion will wear longer skirts next Spring—fully one inch below the knee—the semi-annual review of the Garment Retailers of America has disclosed.

The style promenade given here also introduced three new colors for spring wear. They were independence blue, a light navy blue; water blue, a blue with a greenish tinge, and natural beige, a grayish tone of beige.

Evening models disclosed an even greater skirt length than the gowns lengths in front and the backs almost touching the floor.

The virtual disappearance of the all bouette was evident, most of the models being along straight lines. A return to femininity also was indicated with the introduction of tucks, profuse lace trimming and embroidery.

Sports toggery included a three-piece bathing suit in China blue, with short trunks, jumper and a very brief jacket.

MUST HAVE HAD THE WANDERLUST

Ignatius Trebitch Lincoln Has Served In Many Occupations

Peking, China.—Ignatius T. Trebitch Lincoln, whose kaleidoscopic career includes service as a Church of England curate, member of the British Parliament and German spy during the war, has turned up in Pekin in his declining years and is devoting himself to a study of Buddhism.

Lincoln embraced the Buddhist faith in Ceylon after the war.

Described by those close to him as much broken in health and spirit, he arrived in Pekin last October and took quarters in a German hotel under the alias of H.-Suh. His incognito was maintained for a month, until newspapermen who had crossed his trail during his meteoric European days, recognized him.

Previously Lincoln had visited the British Legation, where he disclosed his identity, disclaimed any intentions of intrigue against British interests in the Far East and asked that the Legation do nothing to destroy his incognito. British officials, convinced of the harmless character of his visit to China, agreed.

When it became known that the quiet and studious Herr Suh was really the internationally famous spy and intriguer, however, he was so besieged by newspapermen and others that he left his hotel, disappeared for several days and only recently returned to take up humble lodgings over a shop near the great Hata Gate. Here he denies himself to all callers except those he knows in connection with his religious studies and only at rare intervals does he emerge to visit centres of Buddhist wisdom and piety.

Lincoln has asserted that he is preparing a series of lectures on Buddhism which he intends to deliver in Pekin.

It was in Ceylon in 1920 that Lincoln learned that one of his sons, John Lincoln, was being tried for murder in England. The father raced back to England, but the speed of British justice made it a losing race, for the son was convicted and hanged before he arrived. Then, according to his own account, he returned to Ceylon.

Speedy Relief From Banions-Soft Corns

No sensible person will continue to suffer from those intense, agonizing, throbbing bunion pains when the new powerful penetrating yet harmless antiseptic Emerald Oil can readily be obtained at any well stocked drug store.

Apply a few drops over the inflamed swollen joint and see how speedily the pain disappears. A few more applications and the swollen joint is reduced to normal.

So marvelously powerful is Emerald Oil that soft corns seem to shrivel right up and drop off.

Doyle's Drug Store, Schryver's Pharmacy, Dolan the Druggist guarantees it and is dispensing it to many foot sufferers.

MACHINE TO HELP LIBRARIAN'S WORK

New York, N.Y.—Making librarians out of machines instead of machines out of librarians is the avowed purpose of an instrument that has been installed in the New York Public Library to do the vast amount of clerical work in checking books in and out.

The machine, which has been installed in the central circulating branch of the library at 42nd Street and Fifth Avenue, eliminates the writing of innumerable figures by the librarian as she receives and dispenses books.

With one punch it dates both the borrower's card and the card that is attached to the book. A little tin plate bearing the imprint of the borrower's card number is attached to the card and as a book is taken out and the card is checked through the machine it leaves the borrower's card number upon the book card, making a record of the date and person borrowing the volume.

The installation of the machine in the busiest circulating branch in the city has expedited the handling of the large crowd, officials say.

FIRST PUPILS SOON GRADUATE

And Will Be Competent To Teach Drawing Subjects

Montreal.—During the present winter the first pupils to complete courses at L'Ecole des Beaux Arts, the Province of Quebec's art school at Montreal will graduate and receive diplomas of authority to teach drawing. This school, which has, since its inception four years ago, maintained close contact with L'Ecole des Beaux Arts, of Paris, charges no fees, thus making art training available to any person in the province over the age of 14.

Commercial and practical aspects of the decorative arts are stressed, design in woodwork and wrought iron, modelling and wall decoration receiving particular attention. A five-year course in architecture which is a special feature, is reputed one of the best in Canada.

Because of its youth the school has as yet no alumni, but many of its pupils have won honors in exhibitions of paintings and drawings, while others have secured important commercial assignments through the recommendation of their instructors. A much coveted honor open to the pupils each year is the Prix d'Europe, awarded by the Quebec government. This scholarship entitles the holder to two years' study in Paris.

Landscape painting receives scant attention at l'Ecole des Beaux Arts, but portrait work, still life and drawing from the antique and from life are thoroughly taught, according to Parisian academic standards.

When, on the representation of the Hon. Athanase David, provincial secretary, the government decided to establish an art school, it turned to Paris for the men fitted to direct such an institution. Emmanuel Fougerel, a French painter of high academic distinction and a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor, was brought over as director. With him was imported a staff trained in the same artistic tradition. Since then the Parisian atmosphere has prevailed, manifesting itself not only in the methods of instruction, but in the paintings and sculpture which decorate the school building, all of which are the works of French masters.

Two years ago M. Fougerel was succeeded by Charles Maillard, under whose direction the school has made rapid progress. A fact which frequently handicaps an ambitious minority of the student body, made up of foreign-born and English Canadians, is that the French language is almost entirely employed in tuition.

During its brief life l'Ecole des Beaux Arts has supplied art training to hundreds of men and women, of all ages and from all parts of the province. It is attracting an increasing number of pupils from the far distant rural districts and when its next term commences in October it is expected that its enrolment will exceed 500. A course of lectures on "The History of Art", in which the general public is invited, constitutes a prominent feature of this government experiment in the propagation of culture.

MRS. AMERY WAS A DISTINGUISHED PUPIL

Toronto.—Mrs. Amery, for whom the Alumnae Association of St. Hilda's College arranged a reception, is one of the most distinguished graduates of the college. As Miss Adelina Florence (Birdie) Greenwood, she matriculated in 1898. Three years later Miss Greenwood graduated with high honors in modern languages, English and history. For a few years she was a resident mistress at Glen Wawr, Spadina Avenue, in the days when the late Mrs. Veals was the proprietress of the school. Her health suffering from the strain of the exacting duties, Miss Greenwood went to England to become head of her brother's establishment, he being then a young barrister and M. P., making his way rapidly both at the bar and in Parliament. In recognition of her services to the Empire, the Royal Colonial Institute, which exists for the purpose of binding the various parts of the Empire more closely together, honored Mrs. Amery by making her the chief guest at one of their dinners last Spring, that being the first occasion on which such a thing had been done for any lady.

CITY AND COUNTY GET TOGETHER AROUND THE DINNER TABLE AGAIN

Eighth Annual Banquet Tendered Members Of The County Council

TALK OF FARMING

W. J. Bell, Principal Of Kemptville Agricultural College Chief Speaker

Members of the City and County Councils enjoyed a splendid address at the eighth annual get-together banquet held at the Hotel Quinte last evening given by W. J. Bell, B. S. A., Principal of Kemptville Agricultural College. Mayor M. P. Duff acted as chairman and Ex-Mayor H. J. E. Graham, President of the local Chamber of Commerce was deputy toastmaster.

One noticeable feature of the get-together was the absence of the bachelor ity of the members of the local Chamber of Commerce. The gathering was chiefly made up of the members of the City and County Councils.

Mr. W. H. Ball, B.S.A.

"The County of Hastings is a choice spot for following the agricultural industry" stated the speaker. But he also spoke of the possibilities of Eastern Ontario as a farming centre, pointing out that scientific methods were employed in enriching the soil.

Speaking of the vast improvement made by the people of the country in farming and scientific methods, Mr. Bell stated that the men of the city who have succeeded are those who possess considerable skill in acquiring special training along their special lines and it was the same with the farmers. "If the farmers are to succeed they must devote their spare time to studying the needs of the farm and how to obtain the most out of their land and live stock" said the speaker.

Principal Bell devoted considerable time to the raising of the right kind of dairy cattle, stating that to secure the most desirable dairy cow, the proper method of breeding the young cows should be employed. Mr. Bell advocated feeding more alfalfa and less timothy hay to cattle. Another thing advocated by the speaker was increasing the alfalfa crop and growing clover hay which they stated contained the protein and mineral matter than does alfalfa.

"It is more profitable to farmers if they keep their children on the farm and by improving their homes with convenences and beautifying their grounds than banking their money" said Mr. Bell who related the story of a man who was at present occupied this way. "You need not make your home elaborate, but make it presentable" added he.

Mr. Bell dwelt for some time on the utilizing the soil, stating that although alfalfa was good in that respect there was a tendency to leave it too long before plowing up that field. "Sweet clover is better for destroying the sod growth of weeds than anything else" said he who added that it was also excellent for fixing and containing more food products than did corn also.

In conclusion Mr. Bell referred to Belleville stating that it was one of the prettiest towns in Ontario and also had excellent hotel accommodation. He closed by thanking Mr. Elliott, who proposed the toast to the Province of Ontario for the many kind things which he said about him.

Speaking of the County and City Councils, Mr. Bell said that he hoped they would have the most successful year in 1928 than ever in the history of their respective bodies.

(Mayor M. P. Duff

The County of Hastings which is about twenty-five hundred miles in area is rich in minerals, dairy and agricultural industries" stated Mayor Duff in addressing the gathering. The speaker congratulated Warden Rollins on his elevation to the Wardenship of

BRIGHT OUTLOOK FOR ASSOCIATION

Central Fair Meeting Held Here Points To Successful Year

Directors present than ever are in store for the Central Ontario Fairs Association which met in the City Hall yesterday afternoon. The new officers were optimistic and everything pointed to a prosperous and successful year.

Mr. G. F. Reid, Belleville Director of Fairs, for Central Ontario, spoke briefly to the members and stressed the value of community school fairs which teach the youngsters the prime benefits derived from the judging com petitions and the exhibits. Mr. Reid reported that the exhibits as each of the Fairs are rapidly increasing.

Mr. William Bill, of Madoc, introduced a motion providing that the Presidents should hold office for one year only instead of two terms as has been the case in past years. D. H. Kerrbe, of Campbellford, and the Association did not have the privilege to change the system for the time being as they would support it if it was made a resolution instead of a motion. The recommendations was unanimously passed.

Mr. William Bill, of Madoc, stressed the need of "Rides" at village fairs and said that two of these were stored in Campbellford at the present time. He said he was in favor of making a contract with the concern to make a circuit of the Central Ontario Fairs providing a suitable agreement could be made. Mr. Bill was owned by Mr. Hollinger, of Campbellford.

BETTING 10 YEARS

Eighty Year Old Millionaire Gambler On Another Decade

Salina, Kans., Jan. 27.—A person living on "borrowed time" can extend his credit by activity, W. Watson, eighty-year old capitalist, said 10-day as he told how he expects to win his $100,000 bet with an insurance company that he will live five years longer, and probably ten. If his latest venture, he accepted an insurance proposition, paying $100,000 for which he will received $1,500 a month as long as he lives. "As I have arranged it now for ten years longer, I will have $100.00 back in five years and for the next five will receive $50 a day profit."

WHITELY INQUEST TO BE RESUMED

Dr. Faulkner Gave Evidence As To Exact Cause Of Death

Minor evidence was taken at the opening of the inquest into the death of Thomas Whitely at Tickell's Undertaking parlors yesterday afternoon. Whitely died of injuries received when he fell through the elevator shaft in the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company while descending a ladder at lunchtime on Wednesday last week and succumbed. Whitely a brick-layer residing on the lane at the rear of Front, a wife and three children. The body will be taken to Trenton for interment.

Ronald Whitely, a brother of the man, identified the remains when the body viewed the body.

Dr. Faulkner gave evidence as to the cause of death which he attributed dir ectly to a broken neck and fracture on top of the skull. He fell forty-eight feet to the floor and never regained consciousness. Whitely died at 1.30 p.m. An attempt was made to take an x-ray but it was in the early hours and before the photo could be taken. The injury was discovered until this evening at eight o'clock.

HOLLOWAY STREET LADIES ENTERTAIN

The Ladies' Aid of Holloway St. Church held a very successful afternoon tea yesterday between the hours of 4 and 5 o'clock about 60 ladies gathered in the Sunday School parlours of the Church to spend a pleasant time together. The room was artically decorated with carnations and hyacinths and the centre piece of the table was a miniature church.

During the afternoon a fine programme was enjoyed which consister of the following numbers.

Solo—Mrs. Deldon.
Reading—Miss Aubin.
Duet—Mrs. Jordon and Mrs. Moyne
Piano Solo—Mrs. Hubbs.
Reading—Miss Aubin.

The guests were welcomed by (Rev.) Mrs. Wight and Mrs. Wickett. The ladies who assisted in the serving were Mrs. Kercheson, Mrs. Wooton, Mrs. C. Haley, Mrs. McMurray and Mrs. J. Shaw.

ROWDY ACTIONS DESERVE REBUKE

Complaints reached this office of acts of hoodlyism committed by several young people on a sleigh party in the early hours of last Sunday morning. Resident on Victoria Avenue stated that he placed his garbage on the boulevard for collection and during the late hours last evening the pails were upset and the contents strewn about the yard. It was an unsightly scene that was presented to the eye this morning.

It would seem that such acts are unwarranted and one would think that the chaperones in charge of these parties would see to it that the youth do not interfere with other persons' property. The time for these practices is later such liberties as last night. Now it is time for the law to interfere.

SISTER REFUSES TO BE WORRIED

Believes Her Missing Bro ther Will Turn Up Alright In Time

LEFT NO TRACES

May Have Shipped On An Ocean Liner To Satisfy Ambition

Miss Violet McQuaid, 26 Murney Street, sister of the missing Clifford McQuaid, 20 years of age, who left his brother in the victim of foul play, denies stories from Kingston intimate that McQuaid was an employee of the American Optical Company told the Intelligencer today that her brother left of the roving nature and was apt to leave Kingston without informing any of those in close contact with him.

"My brother always had a hope of sailing the ocean and in my opinion he may have left for Montreal in hopes of joining the crew of one of the larger ships bound for an ocean port" she said. She is not the least disturbed over her brother's strange disappearance and stated that in view of his 18 years he would in all probability not send word to his relatives until he was ready to leave port. "I had expected him to write from Montreal" she said "and I am confident that some word of his whereabouts will reach me shortly."

Mystery has surrounded the disappearance of young McQuaid since Monday last when he did not report at his boarding house in the evening. He took up his residence in Kingston two weeks ago. The mystery was deepened by the fact that all of his belongings remain at the Montreal Street house.

Like McQuaid who resides with her mother on Murney Street, admitted that her brother had not left home under similar conditions on any previous occasions.

Was Employed Here

Young McQuaid was employed by the American Optical Company here but left a short period but afterwards left and during the summer months was employed as a deck-hand on the "Sault Docks" and other well known lake boats. At the close of the navigation season he could find no work in Belleville and remained in Kingston. At the time of his disappearance he was employed by a cafe in Kingston and resided with Mrs. Ellis, 253 Princess Street. His sister was satisfied from his letters that he was not content with his job and was contemplating a change.

Despatch from Kingston today states that foul play is suspected but Miss McQuaid scorned these suspicions. She said that she was aware he was not despondent or in any financial difficulty. Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Princess St. his

AMERY AFFABLE TO NEWSPAPERS

Pays Small Attention To Cabled Criticisms Of Lloyd George

Montreal, Que. Jan. 27.—Chatting informally with a group of Montreal newspapermen here today, Rt. Hon. L. C. S. Amery, British Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs, answered a wide range of questions. "Pure dignified ceremony," was his comment on the opening of the Federal Parliament at Ottawa yesterday, which he saw for the first time.

His attention drawn to recent cabled criticisms made by Mr. Lloyd George of a speech made in Canada by Col. Amery, he said that Mr. Lloyd George is evidently anxious to snatch some party capital; he had better wait until he reads the speech more fully."

Mr. Amery had not heard of any protests from the United States in regard to British preferential tariffs working against United States shipping but remarked that it was time the people of British ships to enter steamer traffic between "Pue instance, Hawaii and San Francisco."

DOCTOR WILL FACE 1ST DEGREE MURDER

Hartford, Conn.—An indictment of first degree murder will be asked of a grand jury against Dr. Harold W. Guilfoyle, charging him with the fatal shooting of Mrs. Clara Cavanagh Gardner of New Haven, it was announced at the state attorney's office here tonight. Both Mrs. Gardner and Dr. Guilfoyle, who is a federal veterinary, were shot in the lower hallway of the Guilfoyle apartment last Wednesday night following a dinner party. Mrs. Gaudet died a few days later, and Dr. Guilfoyle, shot in the head, is in the Hartford Hospital with the scars of his self-inflicted wounds. Immediately following the shooting a warrant charging him with first degree murder was issued.

The state attorney's office and the police, after investigating along separate lines, announced tonight that they were convinced that Dr. Guilfoyle had done the shooting. Mrs. Guilfoyle would be held, they said, as a material witness.

POLICE COURT

Two Months

Despite his claims that he has not "bootlegged" since the Ontario Temperance Act went out of force, Wilfred Patenaude, 303 1-2 Front street was sentenced to two months imprisonment by Magistrate Mikel in police court yester day afternoon. He will appeal the case he told the Intelligencer to-day.

Patenaude's permit resembled nothing so much as a closely written sheet of paper and he has spent, in the short time of two months over $100, at the lowest estimate, upon liquor of different kinds. Crown Attorney Donnan in court yesterday afternoon in examining the prisoner, brought out the fact that Patenaude had not worked many days in 1927 and endeavored to determine where the accused got all the money to spend on "booze."

DEATHS & FUNERALS

MRS. MARGARET A. VANTASSEL

Mrs. Margaret Amarilla Vantassel died yesterday afternoon at the home of her son, George Vantassel, 169 George street, following an illness of about one month's duration.

The late Mrs. Vantassel was born in Sidney Township 82 years ago and was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alexander McMullen. Her whole life was spent in this district. The deceased lady was a life-long Methodist. Her husband, the late W. H. Vantassel, died some years ago.

Surviving are one son, George Vantassel, this city, and four sisters, Miss Tabitha McMullen, residing at 189 George street.

MRS. SARAH WILSON

One of the oldest residents in this section of the province in the person of Mrs. Sarah Wilson died at the Belleville General Hospital this morning at the age of 98 years.

The late Mrs. Wilson was born at Cornwall, Ontario, but for the past four years had made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Maitzer Weir, 71 South John Street. She had only been ill a short time. The deceased lady was a member of St. Thomas Church.

The interment will be made at Belleville Cemetery Mausoleum Vault tomorrow.

John Waldron Collins died at the home of his father, Mr. Richard Collins on Lake Street, this morning following an illness of about one week's duration.

The late Mr. Collins was born 39 years ago. He is survived by his parents, he was unmarried and a member of Christ Church.

Rev. Canon Bigg-Wither will conduct funeral services at the residence of the deceased resided in Belleville.

Surviving, besides his aged father, Richard Collins, are four sisters, Mrs. E. Porter, Picton, Mrs. H. Reddick, Oshawa, Mrs. James Miller, Niagara Falls, Mrs. Smith, Belleville and five brothers, William and Samuel, Tyendinaga, Thomas, Deseronto, Charles Demorestville and Steward at home.

REICH ARMY RADIO MISUSED

Berlin, Jan. 27—Five operators attached to the wireless section of a Reichswehr battalion stationed at Gleiwitz have been arrested for sending messages abroad.

An inquiry is being held to establish whether the men were guilty of espionage, or whether they were merely conducting harmless experiments.

There Judges Sign Report

The report is dated October 15th, 1927, and bears the signatures of the three judges who comprised the Commission. Chief Commissioner was Judge J. T. Brown, Chief Justice of the Court of Kings Bench. Saskatchewan and the two other commissioners were Judge W. H. Wright, of the Supreme Court of Ontario and Judge Ernest Roy, of the Quebec Superior Court. Some of the recommendations have already been acted upon in the re-organization of the Government of Canada. Revenue which has been in progress for some time.

In advocating the appointment of a Board of National Revenue, the Commissioners state that the condition of the present Board of Railway Commissioners might be adopted to a greater extent with such changes as the nature of the work might require.

"The Board of Customs as at present constituted does not appear to operate satisfactorily" states the report. "All present members of the board are customs officers. Their duties are in some respects judicial and the members should be removed from departmental influence and have all the authority and independence of a court."

Some Present Defects

The commission points out as defects of the present system that no written record is kept of evidence submitted and that evidence is not now taken under oath. Also the present board sits only in Ottawa, even though it decides upon matters arising in various ports of the Dominion.

Jurisdiction of the new board as outlined by the Commission should be.

(a) —To hear all appeals from the decisions of customs officers, except as to questions of values which would be finally decided upon by the board of appraisers.

(b) To hear all appeals under the Income Tax Act, Special War Revenue Act and all other acts administered by the Department of National Revenue.

(c) To adjudicate upon all seizures made by the department of its officers.

(d) To hear and determine all other matters that are now within the jurisdiction of the Board of Customs.

(e) And generally to hear and determine such matters as might be assigned to it.

Decisions to be Final

Decisions of the new board should be final on all questions except matters of law in which case there should be an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Dealing with the number of ports of entry in Canada the Commission points out that a reduction in these was recommended by a special committee of the House which dealt with Customs matters.

One of the most important recommendations of the Commission is that which refers to section 206 of the Customs Act This section makes smuggling an indictable offence when the value of the smuggled goods is $200 or over. Under this section a person smuggling goods into Canada which are worth $200 or over is liable, in addition to any other penalty, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding seven and not less than two years in the case of first offence. For the second offence, the minimum term of imprisonment is three years and may mount ten years in the alternative.

Smuggling of Cigarettes

Smuggling of cigarettes and liquor was found to be on very extensive scale by the commission.

Evidence was given in regard to cigar stores the price in Canada was so much higher than obtained in that it offered an inducement or incentive to the smuggling of this line of goods. The difficulty of detection of the smuggling of these goods is another reason for the prevalence of the practice and even with an efficient preventive force, this condition would still obtain to some extent.

"One of factors in the price of cigarettes in this country is the high excise duty levied on the same. There was evidence given before us that would indicate that a material reduction in the excise duty would materially diminish smuggling without seriously affecting the revenue," says the report.

Liquor Taxes Too High

"In seeking the cause of the smuggling of liquor on such an extensive scale as we found to exist we had evidence presented to us which indicated that one of the reasons was the present high price of liquor in Canada, owing, to some extent, to a high customs tariff and excise duty imposed upon such excise duty on liquor manufactured in Canada."

"The incentive to smuggling on liquor is the possibility of very large profits to the smuggler. This is possible because of the great difference in the price between liquor legally manufactured or imported and that smuggled. This difference in price is due to a material degree to the high tariff on imported liquors and high excise duty on liquors manufactured in Canada, the customs duty being $13 per gallon while the excise duty is $9 per gallon. It may well be that with the profit to the smuggler substantially reduced he will be loth to take the risks incidental to his operations."

SOFT COAL MINES

The soft-coal industry of the United States is in poor health and the report of certain senators and congressmen for a sweeping investigation is not unlikely to receive substantial corroboration. It is said that there are too many strikes and an over-supply of both coal mines and coal-miners, with resultant hard times for both sides. If all the mines produce at capacity there is too much soft coal and the price drops so low the majority lose money. Consequently, some mines are idle much of the time and most of the remainder make no effort to produce at capacity.

This unsatisfactory condition is aggravated by the fact that there are enough coal miners to man every mine at capacity production. As a result producing less than capacity means that many men must be out of work. Nor is that all. It is maintained that even with production along still below capacity there is still an oversupply of coal, with resultant low prices and small profits. Thus the operators feel the need of reducing wages and the miners, naturally enough, want to keep the wages high. Strikes, suffering and bitterness have been the consequences.

These are the charges made to prove the need of an investigation. It is true that the United States has too many mines and too many miners for its own economic good, that fact ought to be demonstrated conclusively and action taken. If it is true that, under present conditions, the operators cannot pay the wages the miners demand, that, too, ought to be proven and remedial action taken. On the other hand, it may be discovered that some mines are enjoying high profits but are making non-existent "hard times" serve as an excuse for depressing wage levels. There may be a difference of opinion about what is wrong with the soft-coal industry but there is no denying that it is beset with trouble.

PROTECT CHILDREN

Nearly every motorist, at some time in his experience, suffers a nervous shock through narrowly averting a catastrophe in hitting some child playing on the street. If it were possible to chronicle all the narrow escapes which have been recorded in this respect the list would be as surprising as it is terrorizing.

Motorists have a right to use the pavements, and they are deserving of protection in so doing. On the other hand it is the inalienable right of every child to play, and in a great many instances there is a lack of playgrounds on crowded streets and the pavements are practically the only places where they can romp and enjoy themselves.

The whole thing presents a serious problem which is becoming more grave as traffic increases. The proper solution of course, is the provision of more playgrounds, but this is not always possible either from a standpoint of expense or opportunity.

Until there is a chance of some better scheme being devised, the responsibility rests upon the parents to warn their children of the danger they are accepting through careless conduct on the streets. With older children it is possible that such advice will be heeded, and will act as protection, but there are some children of tender years who are unable to grasp the meaning and importance of this counsel. And it is they who cause the greatest worry to the motorists.

It has been suggested that if parents would warn their older children to exercise a supervision over their younger playmates an improvement might be created.

Many a child who probably would not absorb advice from a parent would listen with attention and profit to an admonition from an older child. Placing a certain amount of responsibility upon these older children would be beneficial all round, and would teach them early in life that they are in every sense their "brother's keeper."

HAVE YOU HEARD THESE?

And why did you leave your last place?

I couldn't stand the way my mistress and master quarrelled.

Er—did they quarrel frequently, then?

Oh, yes, ma'am, when it wasn't me an' 'im it was me an' her.

May I have this for keeps?

Sure thing, kiddo. Do you slink or jiggle?

A stranger entered a church in the middle of the service, and seated himself in the back pew. After a while he began to fidget. Leaning over to the white-haired man at his side, evidently an old member of the congregation, he whispered: "How long has he been preaching?

"Thirty or forty years, I think," the old man answered. "I don't know exactly."

"I'll stay, then," decided the stranger. "He must be nearly done."

A BALLADE OF MR. SAMUEL PEPYS.

(James B. Pinker)

"Up to the office, and there till four;
Up, to the office, and to the play."
Thus Mr. Pepys in the years of yore
This is the sum of his earthly day.
Early he rose, or long he lay;
Donned his stockings and ate his bread.
Went to court in a splendid shay,
"Up to the office . . . and so to bed."

"Saw the ships as they left the shore"
"Met with Nelly . . . My wife distrait;"
"Kissed Mrs. Knipp . . . but I vowed no more."
This is the sum of his earthly day.
"So to church for an hour, to pray;
So to a barber's, who trimmed my head.
Met with Mercer, who said me nay.
"Up to the office . . . and so to bed."

"Donned my surtout I had never worn
So to the office, accounts to pay.
Met with Nell, which I do deplore."
This is the sum of his earthly day.
"So to the playhouse, and thence away
Home and a volume of Potter's read.
Played my flute, and was merry and gay . . .
"Up to the office . . . and so to bed."

L'Envoi

Gather ye rosebuds while ye may—
This is the sum of his earthly day.
And, when the whole of it's done and said.
"Up to the office . . . and so to bed."

OTHER MEN'S THOUGHTS

With all due respect to the ladies, the winning design by Miss Elizabeth Scott of the new Shakespeare Memorial theatre at Stratford-on-Avon reminds us strongly of the Quaker Oats factory.—Hamilton Spectator.

It is time a word was said in defence of landladies. We print today a letter from a lonely bachelor complaining that his landlady is going off for Christmas, and that he is to be left all alone.

Landladies in reality are not only among the most useful, but among the kindliest of social institutions. They mother the forlorn youth, darn his socks, provide him with food he will remember as long as he lives, and wear themselves out in the effort to make him an efficient and presentable citizen. And then he grumbles if these guardian angels of his bachelorhood feel the need of a brief and occasional respite.

THE PASSING YEARS

(From the Intelligencer of this day 30 years ago)

Mrs. T. Butler's horse ran away from the market this morning throwing out Mrs. Butler and another lady but they were uninjured. The horse was stopped before any damage was done.

The Boys' Brigade of St. Andrew's Church met last evening and presented their late instructor, Sergeant Black with a handsome artillery clock Mr. Harry McKay read an address and W. Mathieson made the presentation. Col. Ponton and Major Biggar spoke briefly.

A meeting of the Conservatives of Ameliasburg was held last evening in the interests of the Whitney candidate, Mr. Dempsey. Among the speakers were Messrs. W. R. Dempsey (the candidate), H. Corby, M.P.; Mayor Johnston, Ald. Faulkner and W. S. Morden.

Messrs. Jos. D. Clarke, Sidney S. Moore, Edward Wensley and John Keith leave Belleville on Thursday to try their luck in the gold fields of the Yukon.

IT TAKES ALL-BRAN TO RELIEVE CONSTIPATION

More and more people are eating bran for "health's sake" these days. And it's a fine thing. But not everybody realizes what a difference there is in so-called "bran" foods. Doctors say it takes 100% bran to supply enough roughage to relieve constipation. Part-bran products, at best, can only be partly effective.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is 100% bran. It furnishes roughage in effective quantities—and in the most effective form: cooked and krumbled. It does a work part-bran products cannot hope to equal. Two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal—are guaranteed to relieve constipation.

Serve ALL-BRAN often. With milk or cream—fruits or honey added. Be sure you get genuine Kellogg's though—in the red-and-green package. Use it in cooking. Sprinkle into soups. ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

BUILDING UP A HOME AN ELUSIVE TASK

By LOUIS E. BISCH

From what one hears it would seem that people are bothered more and more every year with the problem of where to live. Should it be a house or an apartment? Should it be the city, the country or the suburbs?

None of these questions are easy to decide. Each involves many factors. And so much of our happiness and even success depends upon the answers. Before making a decision, be sure to study your tastes and inclinations, your resources and limitations, with sincerity. Often we have a desire to do the very thing that is the worst possible course to pursue.

What is most essential is a stock-taking of the things and values we prize. Little will it help, for instance, to live in the city or the country simply because most money can be made there. The mere making of money beyond our requirements and to safeguard the future never has and never will spell contentment.

One becomes used to making money like everything else. What you manage to get out of your money is more important than how much you accumulate.

Home life is an essential aspect that should always be well considered. Unfortunately, the tendency often is for to give it the least consideration.

Within the heart of every man and woman lies a deep-seated desire for a home. Home is associated with the dearest and most beautiful of our memories. Fundamentally, home is a sacred and hallowed concept. Few realize the importance of the deeper meaning of home.

But without a home, without the place, no matter how humble, that radiates that enchanting, indefinable home atmosphere, something decidedly is missing. Unmistakably there exists an aching void.

I would say unreservedly that where to live should largely be determined by where can the home best be built.

Not built in the sense of brick and mortar, mind you, but built as an abiding place that is peaceful, peaceful relaxing and associated with an intimate privacy with persons and things that are near and dear to you.

No house, no matter how palatial it may be, no matter how convenient to your work it may be, can be a home unless you put your own personality into it. You must actually live in a home to make it such. Only then can you create that wonderfully stimulating enchantment of home.

Children often do better in the country than in the city and their welfare of course, is of paramount importance city children however, need not be unhappy or sickly. Certainly a real home in the city is better than a make shift home in the country.

Social values and amusements must likewise be considered in deciding where to live. The city and the suburbs present more variety in this connection but not necessarily more stirring values.

For the person with moderate tastes and of a temperament that enjoys quiet, out-of-door life, a garden, nature—the country is in many ways ideal.

For the person of exceptional skills who wants to specialize in some particular calling, who enjoys the spirit of competition and keen competition, the city is by all means the better place.

Both the city and the country have advantages as well as disadvantages. No one can tell you which, for you, is the most desirable.

But you can decide for yourself and you should not be influenced in this decision takes time and earnest reflection. Don't be haphazard. Weigh and consider the pros and cons as carefully as possible.

Then, when once you have decided on it with vigor and enthusiasm. Prove to yourself that you are right!

MADE AT NIAGARA FALLS

A SUITOR TOO MANY

By MILDRED BARBOUR

Synopsis—Dr. Arthur Theodosher, face. She turned away her head quickly, but Farquahar, looking at her steadily, saw the blush.

"Were you sorry he hesitated, his voice strange to his own ears—were you glad that I returned?"

"Oh, yes." Her answer was quite cool. "I would be inhuman, if I weren't."

He was silent. Dorothy laid aside her pencil.

"Would you care for tea?" she asked, with a glance at her watch.

"Very much indeed, if you'll ask me to stay."

Dorothy laughed outright.

"You're such a contradictory person, Captain Farquhar. You visit my studio without invitation, but you must be formally asked to take tea."

He rose to help her wheel the tea-cart from behind a Chinese screen.

"It's not my preference to come without an invitation," he remarked significantly.

Dorothy threw him a mischievous glance.

"It is my policy never to play about with other girls' fiances."

"Not me now—with other men's wives," he retorted her cool-ly.

She bit her lip.

"Not even if the wives are very unhappy?"

He looked up quickly. His gaze caught and held hers.

"Are you unhappy, Mrs. Ware?" She laughed softly, scoffingly.

"Not a bit of it! That was a purely impersonal question. I merely wanted to see how you minded." Lie! ...

The telephone bell was ringing. She crossed the studio and lifted the receiver.

"Yes, Lila," Farquahar heard her say, and then, after a moment, cravingly: "No, no, it's all right. He's here. Don't worry."

She hung up the receiver and turned back to Farquahar, who stood in the centre of the floor, looking boldly, seriously.

"Great Scott, I had an engagement with Lila at your house and I—" He raised his hands in an expressive gesture. "I forgot!"

Dorothy laughed.

"You look as stricken. Lila won't be angry. She was alarmed for fear you were angry and—er—she paused significantly.

Lila's voice over the phone had been panicky, as she said: "Oh, Jack hasn't come. Do you suppose he's forgotten?" Farquahar, "Lila's waiting."

He spoke to Dorothy reluctantly and gave a lingering glance at the telephone.

"Will you let me come tomorrow?" he asked wistfully.

Dorothy only laughed Dorothy. "I don't propose to make my best friend green with jealousy."

"Isn't it unkind to thrust me so abruptly out of Paradise?"

"Maybe. But it's expedient. Now do run along. And give Lila all my love."

He was standing in the hall outside the studio door.

"All?" he queried, with an audacious light in his gray eyes.

Dorothy's own eyes were dancing. She laughed softly, as she lifted her face to his smile, and her lips were all a-tilt, inviting.

Farquahar, with a quick movement, bowed forward. The studio door closed gently in his face!

CHAPTER 60.
THE UNEXPECTED BREACH

Lila said, when Farquahar arrived half an hour late in the Ware drawing room:

"You can't stay long, Jack. It's too late.—And I have to rush, because I've a dinner-party at an out-of-town club. For once, he didn't protest.

Lila might be agreed, with a curious detachment. He seemed a bit absent minded throughout the tea-hour, and, when Lila said it was time to go, he departed with a docility that alarmed her.

"He's up to something!" she told herself. "And ill bet that something means fresh trouble for me!"

But, strangely enough, Farquahar's thoughts, as he went back to his hotel, were not of her.

He was buying cigarettes at the news stand in the lobby of the hotel when the two men whom he had once heard discussing Herbert Warr, strolled by. He heard one of them say quickly:

"Look! There's Ware now! Let's have him about that traction stock."

Jack Farquahar turned around swiftly, a scowl on his lean face. His eyes followed the men; he saw them stop and greet a well set-up, good-looking young man with an extremely firm mouth and a stubborn chin, a man perfectly, but not conspicuously, dressed, who had an unmistakable air of surety and confidence.

So this was Herbert Ware, the husband of Lila's friend, the secret admirer of Lila herself, thought Farquahar wrathfully!

He was experiencing an anger out of all proportion to the situation. In all truth, he hadn't a scrap of evidence that this young man was really in love with Lila—and, if he was, what of it? The first flush of friendship affect Lila, and yet Farquahar fairly hated Herbert on sight. He seethed with a fur ious, unreasoning jealousy.

"I wonder if I'm going crazy?" he thought. "What am I jealous about? Whom am I jealous of? Surely not of this man and Lila!"

He dined in the same savage mood and went to a play, as an escape from his own thoughts. Half-way through it, he got up and stalked out of the theatre.

Across the house, "Mrs. Ware" had nodded to him brightly. Gilroy Dolmore, his hated rival, was seated beside her!

Meanwhile, Herbert, after a careful purchase of greetings with the two men in the hotel lobby, had gone home to dress for the dinner Lila had mentioned to Jack.

He was gratified to see that she was in her room and would probably be one, he ready and on time for their engagement. But he didn't stop on his way to his room, as had been his want in other days.

Since their quarrel over her modiste's bill and her squandered allowance, there had been nothing but formality and coldness between them. Each was suffering, but neither would admit it.

Lila, with the stoicism born in desperation, heard him pass her door without a word. She felt like crying, but, somehow, her hurt was too deep for the light solace of tears.

She was dressed before the car came round, so she descended to the library fiddons was there. He felt at once, but, as he passed Lila, he scrutinized the pearl necklace she wore, and a curious, sardonic gleam came into his eyes.

Lila's hand went to her throat. Did the wretch guess that the necklace was paste? Did he suspect that her real pearls reposed in a pawnshop, in order that his pocket might be fattened?

She found herself torn between two disquieting questions: What manner of man was this butler of hers? And, if he would detect false pearls, what about the guests at the dinner-party?

Herbert came down while she was still trying to find an answer to these questions. His keen glance appraised her, without seeming to do so. lingered on her gown of severe black satin that was done in Irene's best style, and approved the pearls. Then he frowned.

"Where are your other jewels, Lila?" She controlled a desire to scream.

"I wanted to wear only my pearls to night," she said, biting her lip.

"Nonsense!" Herbert forgot their quarrel for the moment. "That gown requires jewels. Go, please, and put on your marquise ring and the sapphire bracelet."

Inwardly terrified, Lila managed a pout.

"Can't I even dress myself as I please?"

Herbert's brows went up.

"I ask you to do this as a favor to me."

She shrugged her shoulders impatiently.

"And I tell you that I don't want to!"

Herbert stared at her a moment; his expression was inscrutable. Then he said quietly:

"Lila, your attitude is widening the breach between us until, if we are not careful, our marriage will be wrecked."

Half-hysterically, Lila cried: "I'm beginning to think I wouldn't greatly care if it was."

Herbert looked positively savage. He would undoubtedly have launched an attack right there and fought it out, but the musical chiming of the library clock warned him of the hour.

"We shall be late. If we don't start at once," he said, with an obvious effort at self - control.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

We are two very good friends who find that our troubles are very much the same. We are in our teens. The past six months we have been going with two very popular fellows of our own age. They have always treated us with the utmost respect and we have always shown us a good time. We wanted to have other dates but during this time we did not because they asked us not to. Now they are having other dates, but they expect us not to. Please tell us how to advise to them that we all should have other interests.

BILL AND FRANKIE.

BILL AND FRANKIE:—You were wrong to consent to this arrangement, in the first place, as until you are engaged you should make good use of your privileges of going with many people and having many friends. Since these boys have already found it desirable to resume their privilege I would suggest that you have a talk with them and explain that you intend to follow suit! This should in no way affect your friendship; and I am sure these boys have no cause to object to your having other dates.

DIABOLICAL PLOT SAYS WINDY BILL

Chicago.—Efforts to change the calendar into equal months of 28 days were denounced today by Mayor William Hale Thompson as part of "England's diabolical plot" to make the United States a "subject of King George."

The mayor's view on the plan were contained in a telegram to a Minneapolis journal in reply to a request for his stand.

The telegram follows: "To the Mayor: Moses Ostworth,' Englishborn British citizen here on world tour advocates changing the calendar to equal months of 28 days each, eliminating fourth of July, Flag Day, Columbus Day, Memorial Day and all other American holidays now appearing on our calendar. Suggestion means complete recasting of year. The present long-established holidays would cease to exist.

"This English meddling, also financed by group headed by George Eastman, As leader America First Movement, can you take statement for us as to your opinion of this Englishman's plan?"

From the Mayor: "Answering your wire. Some day the loyal American people who would preserve our priceless heritage will awaken to the fact that there is in this country a well-organized effort to make America a colony of Great Britain again, haul down Old Glory and put in her place the Union Jack. Your statement about Moses Ostworth recommending the abolishing of American holidays is in line with perverted histories calling George Washington a rebel and traitor, and belittling our famous American heroes in the national press of which which I have stopped in Chicago. ?"

COUNCIL DISCUSS GRIEVANCE OF CITY VS. COUNTY

Deputation Will Visit Toronto On Agricultural College Question

Members of the County Council yesterday afternoon discussed a matter which has been hanging fire for some time. The Council appointed a Committee some three or four years ago to confer with representatives of the City of Belleville in order to reach an agreement in regard to the proportion to be paid by the City for the maintenance of the County Jail. Under the present system the City pays under the agreement of 1910 but County Councillors maintain that since the time cost of upkeep has increased since that reason the city's share has been increased. The committee appointed by the council reported that no agreement could be reached with the officials. The town of Trenton has already promised to do it's share in the matter. The following resolution was passed unanimously:

That whereas the agreement adjusting the proportion of costs to be paid by the Corporation of the County of Hastings in the Gaol Liability of the City of Belleville for the administration of Justice has not been satisfactory and

Whereas the present amount paid by the City of Belleville to the County of Hastings as its proportion of the costs is not satisfactory to the County.

Resolved that the County Council of Hastings in Council assembled do hereby request the Attorney-General in Council to abrogate the existing agreement and name the date upon which said agreement shall cease after which date the Committee of the County appointed to deal with the matter will take the necessary steps to adjust the proportion of costs to be paid by the City by agreement or arbitration in accordance with section 291 of the Ontario Statutes.

School Grant's

A resolution was passed authorizing the payment of the necessary school grants of $800.00 to North Hastings Inspectorate and $50.00 to the Poor Schools of Elzevir.

The regular grants on Roads to the Northern Municipalities will remain the same as last year, namely—Limerick, $300.00; Farraday, $425.00; Carlow $250.00; Tudor and Cashel, $300.00; Wallaston $500.00; Dungannon $300.00; Bangor, $400.00; Monmouth, $300.00; Mayo $300.00; Bancroft $300.00; Marmora and Lake $200.00.

The usual grant of $225.00, to be devided by the Inspector en the poor schools of North Hastings will be paid.

The Provincial Government asked for the Council briefly on the benefits of voting for members for road construction early in the year rather than waiting until the June sessions. He spoke of the value of carrying on a program of road construction for the year which should be discussed in open council.

A motion was passed authorizing the passing number of $100 award a fund to provide prizes for competition among the cheese-makers of the county. Mr. J. Bailey, dairy inspector for Hastings County, addressed the County Council in regard to this matter and stated the prizes would undoubtely raise the quality of the cheese as it would stimulate interest among the cheese makers.

The clerk, treasurer, road committee and other officials of municipalities be a committee to go to Toronto at the time of the Good Roads Convention to interview the Department of Highways, Department of Agriculture and relative to an Agricultural College and the Department of Lands and Forest relative to a reforestation scheme in Grimsthorpe Township. The clerk and Hon. J. R. Cooke and one of the local members of the Legislature to arrange with these departments for the interviews and advise the members of the deputation accordingly.

Grant Left Over

The question of a grant for the purchase of an ambulance for the Hospital Board was discussed at length. Col. Roscoe Vanderwater, Reeve of Madoc spoke in support of the grant. Col. Vanderwater pointed out that a saving of a life means more than anything else. The County will not be obliged to pay the $1000 until the city has raised that in there of $1500. It was decided to leave the matter in abeyance until the June session. Col. Vanderwater said he was not in favor of the County Council making a grant until the city had paid first.

The matter of rewarding Joyce Price of Dillon who saved the younger brothers from a fire was left in the hands of the finance committee.

No action was taken in the matter of a grant to the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto.

The Council's membership in the Ontario Municipal Board was ordered renewed.

Mr. Hugh Miller, Reeve of Frankford, gave notice of motion to introduce a by-law providing that the County shall assume the maintenance of one mile of road in Frankford on the County system.

Mr. Stokes stated that he would introduce a by-law providing for the County of Hastings to assume maintenance of 5 miles of road in Grafton Hungerford from Marlbank to the border of Addington.

RECREATION BOWLING

The second ten pin game to be played took place at the Recreation Alleys last night between the Wild Cats and the Tigers, the Wild Cats having the edge on the Tigers all the way through the game for a total of 4 points. Both teams were playing four men aside and although the scores were not very high they showed improve with practice. Bill White was the big noise of the night when he started off with 204 for the highest single and 480 for the highest three strings. Hemming had the lowest record as the best bowler with 392.

Tigers	Single	Total
Tigers—Atkins	340	Monch 202;
Hemming 392; DeShane 327. Total 1261.
Wild Cats—White	480; Clifford	450;
Murphy 354; Mrs. Doyle 393. Total 1920.

The Crescents were too good for the Ramblers in a ladies' league game, the former getting all four points. High bowlers were Miss Wheeler and Mrs. Hall each for three strings with 331, and Mrs. Reppard for the Ramblers.

It seemed as if the winners were running away with the Recreation Alleys last night, when in a Junior game the Moose won four points from the Star Minors. Mcrea for the Moose and Corrigan for the Star Minors were the leading bowlers.

Ladies' League

Crescents—V. Wheeler 331; D. Bell 309; M. Tighe 294; E. Lynch 321; W. Ross 496. Total 2149.

Ramblers—Mrs. Reppard 415; Miss Wind 344; Mrs. Hall 409; Miss Murphy 3544; Mrs. Doyle 393. Total 1886.

Junior League

Star Minors—Hogan 578. Total 2077.

EVEN TOURISTS DO NOT EVEN IT UP

New York.—The thousands of Americans who go abroad every year in search of pleasure have not made up for the decrease in local passenger traffic occasioned by immigration restrictions, according to figures issued by the United States and foreign ports, according to the International Conference of Passenger Board, carried 1,000,000 fewer passengers in 1926 than in any one of the four years before the war.

The greatest number of passengers between American and European ports was carried in 1913, which record statistics show. The Perman merchant marine, having shrunk to about one-tenth of its 1914 size after the war, now is rapidly regaining its former position and is the nation's growing merchant fleet. In 1914 her tonnage was 5,134,726. In 1926 it was 4,119,156. But in 1926 it had reached 3,062,095 and still is increasing rapidly, the statistics show.

The American merchant fleet has declined 75. per cent. during the same six years.

CAPITOL THEATRE

From the gloomy secrets of Montmartre, island prison, to the burning sunlight of the Algerian desert the audience was carried last evening at the Capital Theatre. A gripping story, scenes of marvelous beauty and acting of a very high order combine to make "A Man's Past" one of the finest pictures seen at a local theatre in some time.

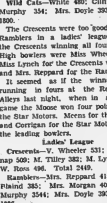

The story centres around an emminent surgeon, who has been wrongfully sentenced to a ten years' prison term, and his efforts to regain his lost position in life. The heights of self-sacrifice to which he rises are indicative of the fine character of the man. In the title role Conrad Veidt, Universal star, contributes some fine acting and an excellent supporting cast also adds much to the entertaining value of the picture.

A good act of vaudeville in which a "strong man" displays his powers, completes an excellent programme which will be seen at the Capital Theatre again tonight and on Saturday. Don't miss it!

BELLE THEATRE

An honest-to-goodness thrilling mystery story with as much suspense and as unnerving baffling questions as anyone could wish, holds the screen in "By Whose Hand?" Columbia Pictures production, starring Ricardo Cortez, which opened at the Belle Theatre last night. There's something exciting doing all the time from the opening scene to the startling climax of this entertaining film tale.

The plot involves an international society thief and precious jewels that vanish mysteriously. The intriguing action takes its swift course against a society background. A wealthy widow gives a home party at her country home. During a bridge game her prize $500 diamond necklace which she is wearing, is stolen.

DANCE FOLLOWED

Trophies Were Presented To Winners Of Softball League

Over two hundred members of the Ciaco Club, all employees of the Canadian Industrial Alcohol plant at Corbyville, turned out to the banquet held in the Moose Auditorium last night. And it was a banquet that will go down in the annals of the history of the club as one of the finest, "get-togethers" that has ever been held by the members of that organization known as Ciaco.

Perhaps the two most important items of the programme last evening were the installation of the new officers and the presentation of trophies. Those who will ably conduct the affairs of the Ciaco Club throughout 1928 are, Mr. James Boyle, President; Mr. Robert White, Vice-President, and Mr. Harry Lennox, Secretary.

From its beginning at 8 o'clock until it ended in the early morning, last night's banquet and dance was a success throughout. The banquet chamber was artistically decorated with streamers, and the tables on which a sumptuous repast was spread were also decorated.

Guests Present

There were two distinguished guests present last evening, the one, Mr. Charles Hanna, president of the Industrial Softball League, and the other, Mr. Charles Dolan. Both these men gave exceedingly humorous addresses and Mr. Hanna presented the cups to the winning Ciaco softball team, top-notchers in the Industrial League in 1927. The team composed of—F. McCoy, manager, W. Smith, pitcher, W. Tedman, catcher, D. Hurshfield base, T. McDonald, 2nd, J. Lapointe, 3rd, J. Barrage, c.f., W. Latchford, l.f., D. Crerar, r.f., and J. A. Boyle, short stop. Individual cups were presented to each player on the team.

Fine Programme

A fine programme was presented at the conclusion of the dinner. Miss Jean Croft gave a reading, Mr. Dan Milton favored with a trumpet solo, Mr. Eddie George had the guests in hysterics with his humorous sketch and dancing doll, and the three new officers gave short addresses in which they thanked the members of the club for the support given to them and outlined the plans for the coming year. Both Mr. Charles Hanna and Mr. Charles Dolan gave short addresses as did Mr. Little.

The evening was a success in every possible way. The dinner was sensible and the programme exceedingly entertaining. The dance afterwards proved one of the biggest attractions of the evening.

Hastings County and also the members of the County Council on their election to their office.

John Elliott

"This is indeed a great privilege to have been honored with proposing such an important toast" stated Mr. John Elliott in proposing the toast to the Province Ontario. Mr. Elliott stated there was the Belleville Council more determined to co-operate with the County Council than were the members of the present Council.

The speaker referred to the sterling qualities of Warden Rollins, stating he never did a thing, but what deserved honor upon himself and the County of Hastings.

"When I speak of the Province of Ontario I am speaking of the Dominion of Canada because we compose one-third of the population of it" said Mr. Elliott in eulogizing the activity of this Province in commercial and construction lines at the present time.

Mr. Elliott also referred to the cheese industry of the Bay of Quinte District, stating that it was one of the best and that the cheese factory at Sidney Town Hall which was in operation for over fifty years had only three presidents and that here was no better cheese maker in Canada than R. J. McLaughlin who was of Irish decent.

Col. R. J. E. Graham

Col. Graham, President of the Chamber of Commerce in a brief address congratulated Warden Rollins on his appointment to his influential office and who the members of the County Council. Ex-Mayor Graham also spoke of the good feeling existing between the City of Belleville and the County.

Ex. Mayor H. F. Ketcheson

"Any success or achievements which I have attained since coming to Belleville I owe to the early training I received in the County in my childhood" said Mr. Ketcheson in proposing the toast to the County of Hastings and the County Council. Mr. Ketcheson also referred to his long acquaintance with Warden Rollins and the high esteem with which he was held in the County and the Village of Tweed where he is born.

"Not only has the City of Belleville industries, but some of the finest in the Dominion are to be found in the County of Hastings" said Mr. Ketcheson in referring to the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Plant at Corbyville and the Canada Cement Company and others."

Warden S. R. Rollins

"The position to which I have just been elected is one that cannot be bought with money or secured with a pull, but is only a gift from the sel-sustaining which you have formed while in the council" stated Mr. Rollins in referring to his elevation to the wardenship.

The new Warden referred to the country by saying that exclusive of Belleville and Trenton its population was over thirty-five thousand. He also referred to the vast amount of money handled each year by the County Council. "The City of Belleville is practically ours and the County is practically yours" said the Warden in speaking of the good feeling existing between the two municipalities.

Warden Rollins also made reference to the men who had given their life in the Great War saying "They have left us to carry on."

The addresses were interspersed with vocal solos from Mr. J. Arnold Thompson, Mr. J. D. Bankier, Mr. Al. Shannan and Dr. A. B. Haffner. An unique number was a saxophone duet by Messrs. E. Parson and A. Duncan. Mrs. M. P. Duff acted as the accompanist at the piano.

Belleville Juniors nosed Trenton out in a close checking, fast game at the arena last night by a score of 4-3 and practically assured themselves of a play-off for this end of the group providing they can defeat the Picton team in the first scheduled home game here next week. In all probability the two teams will play home and home games with, in case it is decided a winner to meet the Kingston team who appear to be the class of the other end of the group.

It was a fast, keen game and the Trenton team were in the midst of one of their famous garrison finishes when the timers rang the bell completing the piece. It was a great game all the way and the cash customers went home with a big grin on their faces for the youngsters who never stopped trying from the time they were started on their way until they dragged themselves off the ice nearly exhausted. About three hundred fans were present to witness the game and the County is practically ours" said the Warden in speaking of the good feeling existing between the two municipalities.

play in the first two periods but the final chukker was a different story and many of the fans were having visions of an overtime game.

Belleville Scored First

Three minutes after play started Smith Ethier and Davis were given penalties by Referee Cumming who by the way handled a perfect game and is one of the most capable officials seen here this season. Play ranged up and down the ice and both Sternberg and Jeffery were called on to save. Henry Canning planted a loose puck in the visitors net. Trenton's shooting was a trifle erratic at this point and they were driving the puck against the boards behind Jeffery. Belleville panned up two beautiful chances to tally on perfect combination plays. Ostrow was given the gate for an illegitimate body check. Beal was sent off just before the period ended.

Johnny Canning gave the home fans a two-goal lead when he drove the even man past Steenburg on a lovely wrist shot. However Davis retaliated for Belleville on in from the right wing. Beal was eventually given another penalty for interfering with Jeffery and it fast drifted by the Trenton net-minder. This was a gift. Johnny Canning not to be outdone sailed around from behind the net to poke one in. Galway was again given the gate by the referee. Henry Canning was sent to the home-pow at the same time which left Belleville two men short but Trenton did not score.

Trenton opened with a new burst of speed in the final period and Johnston cashed in and with an open net beside him Belleville's second goal. Ethier got a penalty for tripping. Davis duplicated Johnston's feat of missing the open net. Belleville seemed to be playing in luck with the two narrow escapes. Trenton forwards were maintaining a terrific pace at this point and Belleville lads were kept bottled up in their own end. Johnston went down to make it 4-2. Simpson scored from behind the net but Referee Cummings called it back for off-side. Johnston with a burst of speed hung up another three minutes before time and this was the final goal. Trenton supporters were shouting madly for another goal but Belleville kids managed to hold the fort. Henry Canning was tendered the honor of the game.

Line-up:

Jeffery	Goal	Steenburg
Galway		Ben.
Ethier	Defence	Hutchinson
H. Canning	Centre	Johnston
J. Canning	Wings	Simpson

STIRLING DEFEAT MADOC TEAM 5-0

Stirling hockey team had no difficulty in disposing of the Madoc team last evening in a one-sided game by a score of 5-0. The home team were the best throughout and seldom did the Madocers threaten. Stirling by their win last night, placed themselves in the play-off group. Wallace and Ackers were the best of the home team and scored the majority of the goals. Wallbridge played a nice game in the nets for the visitors and stopped many shots. Rupert on the defence also turned in a nice game. The Madoc team were accompanied by a special train and the supporters were disappointed in the team's showing. It was an exceptionally clean game and referee Ross Burtt few penalties. He forced to hand out few penalties.

CITY LEAGUE AT ARENA TONIGHT

Two games will be played in the City League tonight when the Alemite stack up against the Quinte Electriclans at eight o'clock and the Moose tackle the Y's Men at nine. The Electricians defeated the Alemite in their first game of the season, but it was on soft ice and undoubtedly the lubricators will go better with hard ice. The in the second game on the program Quintes have won three straights and the Y's Men's Club who up to the present time have not been defeated, ship unless one of the other teams will attempt to hang up another victory step in soon. Paul Hibbard has a at the expense of the Moose. The smart bunch of boys and while the latter have been running into some Alemites have not been making any tough breaks and are about due for a promises they can be depended upon win. These two games should be to give a good account of themselves. among the best of the season.

$85,000,000 IN NEW INSURANCE REPORTED BY LONDON LIFE

Marks Gain of $17,000,000 Over Production of 1926 and Is By Far the Largest Increase in Company's History.

The London Life Insurance Company fifty-third annual meeting was held at its new head office building, January 16. The meeting was presided over by the president, Dr. A. O. Jeffery, K.C., and the reports submitted indicated remarkable progress in every branch of the Company's activities.

The new insurance issued during the year exceeded $85,000,000, with a gain of $17,000,000 over the production of 1926, and is by far the largest increase in the Company's history. The total business in force approaches very closely to $300,000,000. The total assets exceeded $44,000,000, being an increase of nearly $7,000,000 for the year, and the income exceeded $12,000,000, or an average of more than $1,000,000 a month. It is little wonder that the London Life requires no substantial, a structure as the head office building recently completed, when it is realized that the company operate on such a large scale.

The company is in an exceedingly good financial condition. The company completely paid for the equipment required for its new head office, and in addition shows an increase of more than $200,000 for the year in its free surplus, which now stands at $1,852,840. The company's assets are of a nonspeculative nature, and consists mainly of high grade government and municipal bonds, and mortgages on real estate. The interest yield for the past year was 6.58 per cent. The mortality rate was by far the lowest the company has experienced in the past decade.

In 1927 the company adopted an increased scale of dividends to policyholders, making substantial additions to an already very favorable basis of distribution. The policyholders of the London Life have always had first consideration and this is undoubtedly one of the reasons why its business is growing so rapidly.

A man is in luck if he lends a friend an umbrella and lives long enough to get it back.

If You Need A Tonic Get The Best!

Guelph, Ont.—"There is nothing better as a building tonic than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Several times when I was rundown, I suffered from weak stomach, thin and impoverished blood, I took it and always obtained good results. It enriched my blood, relieved me of the weak stomach, built me up in health, and made me feel like a new person. I also found it splendid to take following motherhood to give me strength. JUST JOKING IN SMITH GIRL CASE

Deputy Sheriff Promised To Produce Missing Student At 11 O'Clock

NO TRACE YET

Working Now On New Basis In Search Over Entire Country

Troy, N.Y., Jan. 28.—Frances St. John Smith, missing Smith College student, was not produced by Deputy Sheriff James Golden at eleven o'clock today because the Deputy Sheriff did not have any such girl to produce.

He told the Associated Press correspondent that earlier in the day he had jokingly told a patrolman, that he was going to have the girl at the jail at eleven o'clock and that at that time he did not believe that the patrolman would take the matter seriously.

Trailing a Woman

Troy, N.Y., Jan. 28.—Deputy Sheriff James Golden announced this morning that he would produce Miss Frances St. John Smith, missing Smith College girl, at eleven o'clock today. The deputy sheriff, according to information which was received, has been trailing a woman who resembles the Smith girl, for the past two nights. Other than imparting this meagre information the Rensselaer county sheriff refused to discuss the matter.

Twelve Motives

Northampton, Mass., Jan. 28.—Twelve possible motives which may have actuated Miss Frances St. John Smith in her disappearance two weeks ago from Smith College here formed a new basis today upon which the state planned to concentrate its investigation. What they were, General Alfred Post, Massachusetts Commissioner of Public Safety refused to say.

FIRE THREAT IN HEART OF CITY

Parcel Post Building Is Destroyed And Cleveland Jail Menaced

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 28.—Fire which swept the upper floors of the United States Parcel Post Building early today, was brought under control after it had caused more than three hundred thousand dollars damage and threatened adjoining structures in the heart of the city. Three hundred prisoners became panic stricken when the blaze announced by successive explosions of chemicals, threatened the old county jail nearby. Extraordinary patrols stood ready to take the prisoners from the jail.

Interesting Case in England

When the London Morning Post refused to print an advertisement on birth control, Dr. Marie Stopes, noted birth control writer and advocate, wrote the Duke of Northumberland, owner of the paper, asserting that a "small handful of Roman Catholics was manipulating the paper." Howell A. Gwynne, its editor, immediately brought action for libel and yesterday he was awarded £200 damages. Above are shown Dr. Stopes and the Duke of Northumberland, owner of the Post.

INSTALLATION IMPRESSIVE SCENE FOR MINERVA CHAPTER OF O.E.S.

Unity of Toronto Conducted Ceremonies — Past Officers Honored

Ancient pomp and splendor held sway in the Moose Auditorium last evening when the Minerva Chapter, Eastern Star, installed their officers for the coming year. The setting was most impressive and the huge crowd which taxed the capacity of the hall witnessed a ritual that will long remain in their memory. The Unity Chapter of the O.E.S. of Toronto conducted the installation ceremonies. Sister Ralston, Past Grand Matron of the Eastern Star in Ontario, acted as chief installing officer and fulfilled her duties in a most gracious and efficient manner. Sister Mamie Kerr of the local Chapter, acting as Grand Marshall invested each officer with their badge of service, each of which was emblematic of the work over which they presided.

Beautiful Scene

The scene was a beautiful as well as an impressive one. The white and red cloaks of the visiting chapter mingled with the purple robes of the officers to the installed and all combined in a striking effect. The central altar occupied the middle of the floor around which the semi-circle the incoming officers were grouped.

The officers installed last evening were:

Worthy Matron—Sister Flostella Morgan.

Worthy Patron—Bro. Don Bleecker.

Associate Matron—Sister Carrie McGuire.

Secretary—Sister Wonnacott.

Treasurer—Sister Bell.

Conductress—Sister Georgie Wylmsley.

Associate Conductress—Sister McIntosh.

Chaplain—Sister Kinnear.

Marshall—Sister Boyce.

Organist—Sister Singer.

Warder—Sister Watters.

Sentinel—Bro. Rathbird.

The five points or the five rays of the central star were:—

Ada—Sister Parnham.

Ruth—Sister Alfred.

Esther—Sister Robson.

Martha—Sister Haines.

Electa—Sister Dennison.

RATS A MENACE

Starving Rodents Invade Homes Fearless of the Occupants

London, Jan. 28.—Rats which the recent floods have driven from the river side have become a serious menace in South Lambeth. It was reported today that rats, suffering from hunger have invaded the living rooms of houses in the day time in search of food even though people are in the rooms. At night the rats enter bedrooms and terrify the occupants.

HORSE FELL ON DR. H. WELBANKS

Escaped Serious Injury Suffering Only From Minor Bruises

Dr. Headley Welbanks, veterinary surgeon, suffered slight bruises to his left leg this morning in a peculiar accident in the yard in the rear of S. Wheeler's restaurant, Front Street. A fidgety farmer was driving toward the city near the old rubber plant, when the horse driven by him stumbled in the loose snow and fell, and the front quarter of the animal was pushed by the sharp shoe. The farmer drove the horse to the yard and Dr. Welbanks was called to attend the animal. Accidents about the yard unhitched the horse, led him to the barn door and Dr. Welbanks was dressing the wound. The horse was suffering from loss of blood and becoming weakened, commenced to fall. Dr. Welbanks was in immediate danger of being crushed by the full weight of the animal, but he lunged to one side and his leg was caught beneath. He was taken to his home but suffered no ill effects.

OVER THE ANDES THROUGH JUNGLES, COMES ON TIME

Bogota, Colombia, Jan. 28.—Colombia's 10-day paid tribute to the lone eagle who blazed an air trail over the towering mountains of its capital. Col. Charles Lindbergh is the first airman to cross the ranges to the valley in which Bogota lies. He came from Cartagena, some four hundred miles away. Over mountains enshrouded in clouds, past tropical jungles and ravine Lindbergh flew on one of the most daring journeys of his present tour. Lindy promised to be here at three o'clock. He was in sight long before that, however, and after circling for some time, dropped on the landing field as the clocks struck three. He had completed the journey in six hours, one minute. JURY ATTACH NO BLAME IN DEATH

Thomas Whitely Slipped From Plank In Elevator Shaft

A verdict of accident death was rendered by the Jury who were empanelled to inquire into the death of Thomas Whitely who died of injuries received when he fell forty-eight feet down an elevator shaft at a new building in the course of erection at the plant of the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company. Whitely died on the operating table at the Belleville General Hospital on the afternoon of January 26th. Death was attributed to a fractured skull and a broken neck. No blame was attached to any of the employees or the officials of the Foundation Construction Company by whom the victim was employed. The inquest was heard before Coroner Dr. Tennant at the police court room last night Mr. B. C. Donnan acted for the Crown. It was determined that some of the men, without the knowledge of the Company officials had been using a plank across the shaft as a "short cut" to the ladder by which they descended to the floor below. Whitely apparently lost his balance on one of these planks and fell to his death.

Roland Whitely, a brother of the victim was the first witness called. He told how Edward Thomas down and noticed him afterwards at the bottom of the shaft on his hands and knees in the corner. Ladders had been erected between the seventh and eighth and sixth and seventh floors.

Steps Slippery

Mr. Donnan—"Were the steps slippery?"

"Yes, a trifle from the recent snow."

William Houston another bricklayer was asked if there were any guard rails but replied that he did not see any. He said he noticed the plank tip up.

"Yes."

54,000 Permits Sold To Visitors From June To October

$1,200 FROM PARTY

Estimated That Spending Ran From One Half To a Million

Toronto, Jan. 28—Ontario sold a lot of liquor to American tourists during the fiscal year of 1927. Just how much remains a matter of secrecy, which the Hanna Control Board declines to uncork. But when one stops to realize that nearly 54,000 permits were bought by visitors from over the line between June 1 and November 1, there is every reason to believe that at least 108,000 bottles of one contents or another were emptied by the same transients in that five months' period.

May Be Low Figure

Two-per-permit may be a ridiculously low estimate but even on that basis of sal, the tourists did not do at all badly by Mr. Hanna and his "control" coffers. Most Americans like their Scotch or their Bourbon. One averages $4 in price and the other $2.50. So if $4 was chalked up against each of the 108,000 bottles it means that over Yonge Street alone "dough" dipped down into the pockets to the tune of $432,000.

This amount added to the $108,000 which they spent for their permits in the beginning makes altogether $540,000 in holiday money which they sent clicking into Government store cash registers.

A ridiculously low estimate? Perhaps. Only time and Mr. Hanna will tell. But should it be low—should it run into millions—it won't be so difficult, after all, to understand. For not all American tourists last summer confined their "wet" purchases to two-per-permits.

$1,200 Worth in One Sale

On a single Saturday morning a Canadian border store sold no less than $1,200 worth of booze. It is reported, to a fishing party from across the line.

STRAP IN SCHOOLS

The school teacher's lot is not a hap py one. Apart from salary problems, there are numerous incidentals connected with the routine of teaching the young idea how to shoot which, to say the least, are extremely trying. If all pupils were ideal, apt and eager to learn, well behaved and respectful, the task would, of course, be simple; but in all classes, however high the stand and there is usually to be found some element which is a constant thorn in the flesh to the teacher. The law permits a mild form of corporal punishment for serious misdemeanors. It is, perhaps, the only really effective rem edy for some offenders; but as to that there is a difference of opinion.

This week a delegation of well-meaning citizens waited upon the Toronto board of education protesting against the use of the strap in the schools of that city. "In the light of newer educational knowledge," declared the petitioners, an investigation of existing methods was desirable, with a view to a revision of the regulations. They regarded the strap as a "symbol of hate and fear."

The question is not one which is exercising the people of Toronto alone. It crops up all over the province, and it would not be a bad idea to have an official investigation in which the viewpoints of all concerned would be adequately represented. It is not a matter which can be decided upon sentiment or prejudice. For the sake of the unruly pupils themselves, it is essential to find the proper corrective method, and for the good of those who are not unruly there must be correction of some kind or other.

In the opinion of some observers the trouble with the present generation is that there is not punishment enough. It is possible to err on the side of leniency, and there are types which are not amenable to the gentler forms of persuasion. It is first to contended that it is the busiess of the teacher to train the character, as well as the mind, of the scholar, and that indiscipline is due to faults of training. But let such critics be put in charge of a disorderly class and try their reforming hand on indocile pupils; the experience would probably soon change their opinions.

Others maintain that the responsibility rests with parents, and that misbehavior in the class is an evidence of lack of restraint at home. That may be, but it is no solution of the problem. It sometimes happens that unfaithful parents are the first to complain when their children are corrected. "Spare the rod and spoil the child" may be a maxim discredited by modern advances in the science of pedagogics; but unless an effective substitute is found, it is going to be hard on those responsible for discipline in the class-rooms if the system of corporal punishment is entirely abandoned.

NOT JUST NOW

In the British Columbia legislature a Liberal member has proposed that the federal government be urged to open negotiations for a readjustment of the Alaskan boundary. He complains that the long Alaskan panhandle, shutting out northern British Columbia and the Yukon territory from the sea-coast, is retarding the development of that vast region; and a glance at the map will show how well grounded the complaint is. That panhandle is of little use to the United States; it would be of incalculable value to Canada.

But the proposal of the British Columbia legislator is premature. Although that long strip of coast is of little value to the United States, it will be held tenaciously simply because it is U.S. territory. No government at Washington would venture to part with a mile of it, for by so doing it would be outraging the popular sentiment which upholds the policy that wherever the American flag has been raised it must never come down. The present Alaskan boundary line, which shuts northern British Columbia from the ocean, is the outcome of Theodore Roosevelt's bluffing and bluff. By means of private letters (which he took care to have shown to Lord Alverstone, one of the three British boundary commissioners) he scared that venerable jurist by threats that unless the boundary award were in harmony with American claims, war would result, and Alverstone deserted his two Canadian fellow-commissioners, thus securing the required majority in favor of the American claims. It was sharp practice, of course, but it was successful, and the disputed territory is in United States hands and not in the hands of Canada, where it rightfully belongs. And it will remain under the stars and stripes until the time comes when a U.S. government wants something from Canada more desirable in their eyes than that strip of coast.

That time may come; but it is not in sight at present.

OTHER MEN'S THOUGHTS

LETTERS TO EDITOR

Frankford, Ontario, January 21st, 1928.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:—

Certain reports which are being circulated in and about the village of Frankford concerning a conversation of mine with Dr. J. R. Simmons, of Frankford on the evening of Wednesday, January 11th, have been brought to my attention. On that evening the late Walter Petrie was seized with a sudden attack while at Lodge meeting and died a moment or two later. As soon as he was stricken, I immediately called at Dr. Simmons' office which is just a few steps away from the Lodge room. He was busy with a patient at the time and the conversation which took place between us in the presence of the patient was substantially as follows:—

I told Dr. Simmons that we had a case man in the Lodge room and needed a doctor. I told him who he was and after telling him he stated that I had probably better see Dr. McMullen first as the late Mr. Petrie was his patient and he had discussed him before when he had these spells. And with that I left for Dr. McMullen's office which is in the same block. He added as I was leaving that if Dr. McMullen wasn't in to let him know.

Dr. Simmons of course did not realize the condition of the late Mr. Petrie at the time and as Dr. McMullen's office was just across the road, and readily accessible, and what I understand to be the usual and common procedure amongst all ethical, medical practitioners. The recognized practice, I am informed reverses, is that when a call is called to see a patient who is being attended by another physician he first informs the attending physician of his intention to call or to have the patient first obtain the attending physician's consent. My plan to call in a second doctor, and Dr. McMullen being readily available at the time. Simmons not knowing the circumstances of the case, did what was right and proper.

I was very much surprised to learn that reports of a false and slanderous character have been circulated alleging statements which were said to have been made by me which I have never did utter. I cannot understand why any person would originate such an untrue report and wrongly with malicious intent as there is not a title of truth in the report and being circulated that I stated upon returning to the Lodge room that Dr. Simmons had refused to attend and spoken to me sharply when I requested him to call and see the patient. As soon as this report was brought to my attention, I immediately called upon Dr. Simmons at his office and told him that I would do all in my power to correct the erroneous and false reports that had been broadcasted. I wish it made known also that if I discover the parties who originated the report repeating statements alleged to have been made by me which were in fact never made, or if after this notice any person continues to circulate such reports I shall demand an apology or retraction and failing a suitable apology and explanation I shall take such proceedings as the circumstances may require.

Yours respectfully,
LESTER FROST.

To the Editor:

Dear Sir:—If you will permit me to use a small space in your valuable paper, I would like to try to make it plain to the person who was kind enough to impart the information to me over the phone last evening that I had better keep my children from school as one of them has Scarlet Fever. The piece of news of which they appear to be ignorant. My child had not shown symptoms of Scarlet fever more than five minutes before my wife was in communication with Dr. Creed, and four hours later was taken to the Isolation Hospital where she now is. My two older children were isolated the same night and the only one, that attends school has not been to school since. The proper officials attended to the fumigation of the house and everything that could be done has been done.

If the party who apparently is not supplied sufficient news of interest to see me personally to find out the

QUEBEC MUSEUM PLAN AMBITIOUS

Government Wants Total Grant Of $600,000—Work Started

Quebec.—The Government is becoming more ambitious in its plans for the erection of a museum and tourism in the city of Quebec. The work has already been commenced, but the act of 1923 provided for an expenditure of only $150,000 for the work, an amount altogether insufficient for the project which it is now intended to carry out. Consequently, Hon. Mr. Gallipeault, Minister of Public Works and Labor, has a bill before the Legislature to permit of the spending of a total of $600,000 for the purpose.

The money is to come from revenue only. The provincial Museum Act of 1924 provides that the Government may establish museums both at Montreal and Quebec, but no funds have as yet been provided for a Montreal museum. It is understood however, that a building will later be erected in Montreal, though probably not of the same nature as that in Quebec, since historic records and pictures which the Government has been acquiring can be used for display many years to come in a building of the proportions which it is intended to construct in the city of Quebec.

The provincial archivist, P. G. Roy, has for many years been diligently accumulating a great mass of documents relating to the history of the province, some of them originals of great value, and it is calculated that with additions which will be gained in the ordinary course of events, and purchases which Hon. Mr. David, Provincial Secretary, has been acquiring for the Government of late years, will form a very substantial basis for a "museum," as mentioned "museums for the study of history, sciences and fine arts," and it is quite probable that the new museum will ultimately specialize in history, while the one to be erected in Montreal will be devoted to science and fine arts.

Provision for meeting the needs of the newer sections of the province is to be noted in several measures which Hon. Mr. Gallipeault has before the Legislature.

Last session the House authorized an expenditure of $75,000 for the erection of a normal house and goal at Rouyn. The mining area has grown with rapidity that anticipated and such legislation was passed and the House is now asked to make the amount $100,000.

The same situation applies for the judicial district of Abitibi. The Government provided last year for a court house and goal at Amos was $50,000. It is now asked for $150 000.

Ville Marie, head of the Temiskaming district, received a vote of $75,000 last year for a court house and goal, and this is to be raised to $200,000.

Chicoutimi and the neighboring district is rapidly growing, and to meet the growth there the Government is asking for $100,000 to enlarge the goal.

Provision for a pension for the chief justice of the Quebec Liquor Commission places him on the same basis as judges of the Court of Sessions. The pension rate is two-thirds of his salary after eight years in office if he becomes permanently infirm, or two thirds after 25 years' service; and full pension on reaching the age of 70 years if he has served 25 years.

True state of affairs, would only find the truth of things before they let their tongue wag in an attempt to create trouble. It is better for them-selves and all concerned I feel sure. Thanking you in advance I am Sir,

SPLITDORF RADIO SALE
Owing to a large purchase, we are in a position to demonstrate Any Model Splitdorf Set
We have been fortunate in securing the services of Mr. A. L. Hill, of Toronto, for the week of January 30th. Mr. Hill is a qualified Radio Engineer and has been connected with radio since its inception. He will conduct each demonstration in your home.
Whether you have a Splitdorf Set or one of another make, he will be pleased to answer any questions regarding your radio problems whether by mail or in person at the Queen's Hotel.
A great many of his friends will read this announcement with interest, as it was Mr. Hill who was in charge of the Auditorium Victoria during the Kiwanis Carnival; and we feel sure that they will take advantage of this opportunity of getting first hand information direct from the manufacturer.

TRIVAL LIVING MAKES MATERNITY SLACKER

By LOUIS E. BISCH

Few women do not have at least a secret longing for motherhood. And few women there are who contemplate the prospect without certain misgivings.

Indeed there are those who go through emotional upheavals that are touching. Unwarranted fear grips them. All those feelings with regard to the joy of a child, beautiful and ideal though they be, may suddenly and unexpectedly be submerged beneath an over-powering sense of physical helplessness.

The woman may feel gripped in a vise from which there is no escape. At such time women may shake a ruthless appeal to their husband's chivalry. They often exaggerate their suffering absurdly. They make the man self-conscious and self-accusatory. The prospective father develops a wholly distorted point of view regarding the ways of nature. Both husband and wife may look forward to the future with sorrowful regret instead of joyous anticipation.

Such is the situation as one often finds it with the modern man and woman.

The older generations accepted the conditions with much more grace and with little, if any fear. And often, too they bore child after child into poverty and all sorts of unfavorable hygienic conditions. The prospect of final loss of the child through disease and ignorance of proper upbringing was always imminent.

But how different the present days! Is there really any justification for a prospective mother's fears? Has she a right, in fact, to any fears at all?

Modern medicine has safeguarded both mother and offspring in ways that a few generations ago could not have been possible.

A morbid dread such as I have outlined above is scarcely justified. One cannot help but feel that evading responsibility on such grounds often say less deliberate slacking.

Modern woman does not lack courage in other matters. She is independent, frequently self-supporting, she fights her own battles, she is athletic and altogether fearless.

Has this stressing of her individual aim and the enhancement of her career on the one hand, made her unduly on the other? Has modern woman, just because she is modern, become a maternity slacker?

There can be no question that the newest ideal, which women are apt to subscribe to have tended to sidetrack her interests away from maternity. Many, if not most, of these are divorced from domesticity. Modern women relies on her charm, her determined her diversity of interests. She wants to be a good fellow. She wants a good time. Jim Barrie sings, as Wells has said, "Women have been trivialized."

But what a mistaken ideal! Worshiping of false gods that sooner or later, but inevitably, turn into hollow mocking the images!

How long will it take for women to subscribe once again to the ageless principles, tried and true that although, after all, is the deepest, most gratifying and enduring blessing that nature can give.

Not all women are afraid, of course, nor are even most of them intentional maternity slackers. But the tendency is there growing. Often the ostensible motherhood is viewed as a gesture of smartness.

It is up to the women which way society is going to develop.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I have taught school for the past five years, during which time I have kept company with a professional man. About eight months ago I met a man who holds a menial position, having only a grade education. In spite of this I love him and know he possesses the qualifications which, in my personal opinion, make a real man. My family and friends think I am a little insane. My mother tells me how far below me this man is. I love my people, but I cannot give this man up. I could be happy with him any where under any conditions. I am 21 years old and feel I know my own mind. Please advise me.

B. S. P.

B. S. P.: You are old enough and intelligent enough to know your own mind, my friend, but I must caution you against being temporarily blinded by the glamour and attraction of this love. Think this matter over carefully and determine if you have any reasonableness in your parents objection to your marrying this man. You must not forget that your friend's lack of education is bound to have some effect up on you later on. Unless you realize that and take steps now to prepare you to meet that situation, it may later cause you actual unhappiness. Moreover, it may make this man very unhappy to realize you are so ultimately with that you are far more learned and well informed than he. You will not be able to control the effects of your education, nor should you want to, but you must foresee that the antagonistic tendencies this may later arouse in you, may cause this man to develop a severe inferiority complex which may only make you both unhappy. Take your time and look well and far into the future. Perhaps in but the opposition you are encountering that makes you so sure of your love now. If, after due consideration, you still feel that this man means your life happiness try to convince your family that he is worthy of you and make him prove himself before you consider marriage.

Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

When rendering fats for cooking purposes, chop the fat in place it in a double boiler and add plenty of cold water. Keep the water in the double boiler boiling until the fat is melted. If you have not a double boiler, put the fat in a jar and place the jar in hot water.

An inexpensive enamel, glass or nickel rod screwed to the inside of a closet door makes an ideal place to keep hand towels and face cloth.

When the upper part of a double boiler leaks it may be converted into a steamer if several holes are punched in the top with a pointed nail.

A SUITOR TOO MANY

By MILDRED BARBOUR

With perfect courtesy, he assisted Lila into her wrap of ermine and silver brocade. Then he toasted the bell. Biddons appeared, as if by magic. Lila had the feeling that he had been hovering just within earshot.

"Tell Mrs. Ware's maid to bring down her jewel-case," ordered Herbert.

Lila gasped audibly? The butler shot a glance at her and went to do his employer's bidding.

CHAPTER 41.

THE GIVE-AWAY

"Well," remarked Ray Varney, impatiently tapping the arm of her chair, "this is the first time I ever knew the Wares to be late for a party!"

Three times the country club steward had approached to ask whether dinner might be served to the Varney's party and three times he had been told that the party was not yet complete.

"Probably a little trouble with the car," suggested some one easily.

"With a Rex-Knight?" scoffed Varney. "Besides, Herbert isn't the sort who lets any car get into such condition that it can't be driven." A pause. "Well, he isn't infallible," said another. "And even Herbert Ware might be run into by a careless driver."

"Oh, it's probably Lila's fault," contributed still another guest cheerfully. "She hung her own wedding up fifteen minutes."

"But it was her last tardiness," laughed May Varney. "Herbert's seen to that!"

"Gosh, I'd hate to be Lila and live by a time-clock!" muttered some one fervently.

There were several amused echoes of sentiment, and then Varney said, with a rather knowing glance at his own wife:

"What'll you bet a domestic rupture is the cause of the delay?"

"With the Wares hardly more than honeymooners? Never!" was the scandalized verdict that met his suggestion.

But May Varney had flushed and was biting her lip. The glance she had flung her husband was far from affectionate.

After another ten minutes, she announced:

"We'll have to go in, anyway. If we wait any longer, the chicken for dinner will be ruined."

But just as the guests were entering the dining-room, Herbert and Lila arrived. It was obvious to every one that they had had a scene. Herbert was white and stern; Lila was flushed and her eyes showed signs of recent tears.

"So sorry to be late," she whispered hurriedly to Mrs. Varney, "but—

"Don't bother with excuses," said May drily. "Do you want time to powder your nose?"

Lila shook her head.

"It wouldn't do any good. I know my eyes are a sight."

May laughed.

"Herbert been acting up?" said "No. I have," confessed Lila meekly. "Well, take my advice and don't admit it. Nothing ruins a well-disciplined husband so quickly. Remember this, Lila—a husband is always in the wrong. Always. There's no exception to the rule."

The party trailed into dinner then, and Lila, found herself seated opposite Herbert, with a negligible partner on either side. She was uncomfortably aware that she was the object of his frowning glances, even when he was giving his attention to the chatty young widow on his own dinner partner. Or rather, her unadorned fingers and wrists were the objects of which he seemed to be aware.

It had been terrible, that drive out from the country club. Lila had learned that her jewel-case was empty of its treasures. She shuddered to think of the scene that it would give rise to and pretend to listen to the conversational inanities of the man beside her. And all the while, she was aware that the talk around the table had become general and had turned to the subject of bridge. It was a painful subject for her, at that moment, and one she was grateful to have no part of.

The discussion seemed to centre around the question of how the party was to be made up. Some thought which guests were to dance and which to play bridge. The efforts of the hostess'd to divide the sheep from the goats proved futile. Everybody, with three or four exceptions, voted for bridge.

"But I haven't ordered enough tables for everybody," wailed May, "and Mr. Shanahan and the Dever's will be furious; I promised them we'd split the dancing, because they haven't enough men. Now do, some of you lazy bridge fiends, act like martyrs and help me out."

With that, the party en masse voted for dancing, and May was left with the empty tables. In mock despair, she marshalled her guests—so many for bridge; so many for dancing. She called the role like a school ma'am. When she reached Lila, she said:

"And you, of course, Lila and Herbert—I think you'd better go and dance with one of the Deverman girls."

Herbert spoke up crisply: "I think we'll arrange it in some other way around if you'll permit. Lila shall dance and I'll play."

But Lila adores playing," protested May.

"I prefer that she doesn't play tonight," said Herbert decisively.

Lila's face was becoming flushed, but her hands were growing chilly. May Varney said:

"Nonsense! I want Lila to be my partner. I need some money, and I can't lose with Lila. She's a crack player—the only girl in our club who hasn't lost a penny this year."

"But I'm not playing

A tournament between the local Badminton players will be held at the armories this evening. Mrs. R. J. E. Graham and Miss Muriel West will be the supper hostesses.

NO COURT

For the first Saturday for some time no police court was held this morning. Not even a drunk incurred the wrath of the "cops" last night.

THE TEMPERATURES

Last night was slightly warmer than the evening preceding it, the lowest point the thermometer touched being 3 degrees above zero. The highest temperature by noon today was only 12 degrees above, a mere nine degrees over the colder record.

HOCKEY STICKS STOLEN

A report that eight hockey sticks were stolen from an automobile that was parked outside Bailey's rink last night was given to the police today. No clues as to the identity of the light fingered thieves has been found as yet.

HELD SLEIGH PARTY

A number of the High School pupils chaperoned by Miss Saunders, held a sleigh party last evening and after driving about the city for some hours went to the home of Col. and Mrs. W. H. Ponton, Sidney Cottage, where a social hour was spent.

PLAY AT FRANKFORD

The Intelligencer hockey team will play an exhibition game in Frankford on Wednesday night next, the intelligencers have always been a favorite in the northern town, last season two ex hibition games were staged with each team winning one each this first one by a 4-3 score for the villagers and the second 3-2 for the Intelligencers.

TALKED TO SCHOLARS

The three senior classes of Queen Mary School were honored by a visit from Wallace Havelock Robb, local journalist and bird lover yesterday after noon. Mr. Robb had with him a number of a mounted horned owl and he delivered a most interesting talk on the life, habits and haunts of this bird. The talk was appreciated by the teachers as well as the pupils and a vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Robb. He explained the use of talons, and described each minute part of the body.

RADIO STILL BAD

Last evening, once again the ill-named violet rays in this city ruined the broadcasting from early in the evening until after 12 o'clock midnight. Intermittent bumpings absolutely spoiled the two New York radio broadcasting stations and they presented fine programmes. Keen disappointment was felt by many that they had to miss the Grand Opera broadcast by the Chicago Civic Opera Company, and Madame Galli-Curci was slated to sing. Something will have to be done about the radio ray machines.

MEMBERS ACCEPTED

Messrs. "Cap" Rooney, Carson, Stratton, Grant, Maiden, and Cecil McNutt were unanimously accepted as members of the Ys Men Club at last evening's meeting. All made brief speeches expressing their appreciation at being made members of this young and growing Service Club which meets at the Y.M.C.A. each Friday night for luncheon and program. Mr. Arthur Crosse rendered a special program of music last night which delighted his listeners. President Pauley occupied the chair. Cecil McMullen acted as Sergeant at Arms and Steve Licence as song leader.

SMALL MARKET

Inside the City Hall today the market was a busy one this morning, Eggs were selling at 40 and 45 cents, the dozen and chickens were still high this week, the cheapest noticed, and many sales at that, retailing at 75 cents up to $2.50 per pair. In the market square only a few rigs were present and few vegetables on display, Butter sold at 45 cents the pound in most stalls.

PUBLIC SCHOOL HOCKEY

Only the superior efforts of Maguire in the Academy goal prevented Queen Victoria from running up a mammoth score in the game played between these teams at Simpson's rink on Friday even ing. St. Mikes took the early course in the first period, but Queen Victoria forged ahead with three goals in the second period and two more in the last winning 5-1. The Academy was well served by Maguire while Fred Morgan starred for Q. V. S. The referee was Alec Carmichael, and by the way, to this official there is a wonderfully fine arbiter coming along his work was excellent.

SHOE PRICES UP WITH WIDENING LEATHER MARKET

Jump In Price Due To Leather Demand Beyond Supply

As the shoe manufacturers have been obliged to advance their selling prices of boots and shoes on account of the increased prices of hides of sheep and upper leather and leather insoles, leather counters and leather box toes, the wholesale and retail trade will have to advance their prices also. The following brief statement issued by the Shoe Manufacturers' Association of Canada explains exactly the reasons that is behind the increase.

For about six years prior to the recent advance, prices of hides had been below the quotations of the war. During the war, inroads were made upon cattle herds in all parts of the world, and especially on the European herds to supply the abnormal requirements of the belligerents. At the close of the war there were large accumulations of hides and leather. When the Trade and Industry Act, 1921, was passed by the British Government for leather and leather products was curtailed and prices dropped sharply. Owners of the poor prices obtainable for cattle on the boof, herds were not increased, or even decreased from year by. The accumulated stocks of hides and leather were absorbed gradually, but the hide and leather industry continued in a state of depression until quite recently.

During the last year, rapid trade conditions have improved. The purchasing power of the European people has strengthened and these countries have been buying more freely than at any time since the war. On this account, too, there has been a considerable enlargement in the demand for products of all kinds and this has entailed an increased consumption of hides.

Stocks of hides in the United States and Canada have been reduced by the enormous exports to the European industries and for export. Up to early in July of this year Russia had killed 30,000,000 hides out of the South American market, as compared with only 6,000,000 for the whole of last year. Other European countries are wanting more hides and are consequently competing for the available supply. The demand has been in excess of the new production, and under these conditions, it was inevitable that prices should advance. Prices of hides have been steadily advancing about 70 per cent. since February of last year. The conditions that have been responsible for keeping hides at the abnormally low quotations which have prevailed for years have entirely disappeared. Some fluctuations must be expected, but there is no reason to look for an end of the high prices of the last several years.

As the tanners have been obliged to pay more for hides, consequently they have had to increase their quotations. Leather prices are now about 25 per cent. higher than those quoted several months ago. The advance in hide, however, represents the full increase which would be necessary on a basis of normal trade and hides purchased at the present market prices and further increases may be looked for. The higher cost of the raw material left no alternative to the manufacturers of boots and shoes but to increase their prices to advance their prices. The increase in the cost of leather during the last few months represents an advance of between 10 and 15 per cent., on the average, in the cost of the upper leather. The cost of leather in the hands of the shoe manufacturers were much larger, but there was a general reluctance to advance prices because of the keenly competitive conditions in the shoe trade in Canada. The increase in prices was delayed as long as possible, but has now become general. Nevertheless manufacturer can remain long in business if he refuses to sell his goods at less than the cost of production.

DEATHS & FUNERALS

JOHN McMAHON

John McMahon died this morning in Belleville. The deceased was an old resident of this city and was a brother of the late Michael McMahon who at one time was a well known figure in business where the Belle Theatre now stands. He was a brother-in-law of the late Mrs. Thomas Harris. Mr. McMahon had been failing in health for some time previous to his death. He is survived by one sister, Mrs. W. J. O'Leary, of Rochester. Deceased was a member of St. Michael's Church.

JOSEPH WHITEMAN

The funeral of the late Joseph Whiteman took place to the Silver Creek Cemetery, Friday, December 30th and was largely attended by old time friends and neighbours. The service at the church was conducted by Rev. F. W. Dailey. The late Mr. Whiteman was born in London, England, coming in 1850 and came to Manitoba in 1878 settling at Emerson for a year when he moved to Ontario. He returned to the West in 1878 and took up land in Silver Creek remaining on the farm until about five years ago when he moved to Silverton.

In 1881 he married Miss Hattie Bruin who survives him together with one daughter Mrs. Alex Campbell Calgary Staff. He also leaves three brothers, Dr. Whiteman, of Picton, Ont., and Messrs. Thomas and Alfred, both prominent at Lonsdale. Also four sisters, Misses Ann and Mary Whiteman, Brought of Spokane; Mrs. Morley, of Toronto; and Mrs. Quay, of Vancouver.

THOMAS WHITELY

The funeral of the late Thomas Whitely who was killed by a falling tree on Wednesday took place from his late residence Trenton today. Many were in attendance at the funeral. Floral tributes from the following brickla yers locals were present at the funeral: Thompson, Toronto, Windsor, Ottawa Kingston, Pembroke, Peterboro, Brockville, Smiths Falls and Napanee. The floral tributes testified to the esteem in which the deceased was held. Interment was made in Trenton cemetery.

MRS. WILLIAM J. ANGLIN

Mrs. William J. Anglin died yesterday at her home, Consecon, following a long illness of some duration.

The late Mrs. Anglin was 82 years of age. She was a member of the Methodist Church. Her husband preceded her to the tomb about two years ago.

Surviving are two daughters and four sons, Misses Nellie and Elizabeth Anglin, Barrister, Prof. Sam Anglin and John Anglin, Belleville, Rev. Wm. Anglin, Manitou Island, and Charles Anglin, Batteries.

The interment will be made at Cataraqui Cemetery, Kingston, tomorrow.

chaff?"

"Nothing."

How many bricklayers are employed in this building?" "Fifty-six."

Samuel Whitaker, a bricklayer and foreman on the job was next called. He said he had worked previous to the time of the accident yesterday morning." "Did you go across the opening on the sixth floor. He said he did not see the man who fell.

Thomas Sophir, a bricklayer on the job said he did not know him but saw him fall from the sixth floor.

"Where were you when you learned of the accident?"

"I heard the crash near the first floor," witness said, and he helped to take the body from the basement to the pit.

"Have you observed any openings covered to the shaft?" "Yes."

"Are they protected?" "Yes."

Dr. Ponton, the coroner, lawyer was then called. He said he saw the body flash past on its downward course near the first floor. He said that Whitely was behind him in coming down and that he was employed between attaching to the course he took. Barnes said there were two planks laid across the shaft on which accidents had been working and which they used as shelves for bricks.

G. Masters in the box said he was on his way to dinner when the accident occurred but returned when he heard the crash. He said he was not acquainted with the deceased.

Precautions Taken

Noah Briden, Superintendent of the Foundation Construction Company who are engaged in the erection of the building said that special precautions had been taken to place scantlings over the openings to the shaft as a means of protection. Briden said it was impossible for Whitely to have been near the shaft had he descended by the ladder. Men often go down by the racks I believe, which are used to transfer the barrels on. However Mr. Briden declared that any men who were employed on the job had received warnings of the dangers. The witness said the scantlings were previously used by the carpenters while they were working on the building.

It was established in the evidence that men often used these planks as a means of walking to and from the shaft shorter cut to the ground floor. These planks were a trifle slippery and bore evidence that snow had fallen after a slight coating of snow and ice from the recent storms.

Officer David Sylvester of the Provincial Police who investigated the affair produced a piece of scantling which he said had been nailed over the spectures leading to the shaft. The witness, said he believed they were a sufficient protection against possible dangers. "A man could not stumble beneath these scantlings which are only three feet from the floor," he said he examined the planks across the shaft and found them a trifle treacherous He said there was a space wide enough between them for a man's body to pass.

The Paris dressmakers have given a new lease of life to the fashion of the embroidered crepe de Chine dress by instructing their clients how to wear them, for these are no longer folded cornerwise, and worn as cloak in the ordinary English way, but are skilfully draped round the figure in what appears to be ultra-modern style although it really follows the traditional shawl-wearing observances of European peasantry.

It is sometimes easier to step into another man's shoes than it is to walk in them.

INSTALLATION

responsible duties connected with their different duties and at the conclusion of the installation she again spoke of the splendid co-operation of the Order and the charities they effect. Mrs. Ralston was presented with a gift by said Sister Ralston. The speaker told of the work being carried on by the Central organization, a gift of which had been purchased by them at Agincourt, Toronto, at a cost of approximately $11,000. "The ritual of the Order," said Sister Ralston, "is founded on the very language spoken by God."

In receiving the gavel, emblematic of her authority, the new Grand Matron expressed her thanks for the confidence thus displayed in her. Presentations then followed.

Sister Singer received suitable recognition for her services during the year as organist, Sisters Gulliver and Rainbird as convenor and co-convenor of the refreshment committee and Sister Gulding, on behalf of the Unity Chapter, Toronto, W. M. Morgan was presented with an Eversharp pencil, and in turn Sister Ralston was presented with gifts on behalf of the Minerva Chapter, both personally and for the treasury of the Unity Chapter, Toronto.

Sister Backus was presented with the Past Matron's jewel by Sister Morgan and Bro. W. C. Miller was presented with the Past Patron's jewel by Bro. Bleecker.

Sisters Kerr, Backus and Morgan were also made the recipients of gifts as a token of appreciation of their services of the dangers. The witness said the scantlings were previously used by the carpenters while they were working on the building.

Supper was afterwards served. The table was tastefully decorated with candles in the colors of the Order and was presided over by Mrs. W. C. Miller and Mrs. H. McIntosh.

Later an informal dance was held which continued till an early hour this morning. Mr. Jack Desmond's Orchestra furnishing splendid music.

A BY-LAW TO CHANGE THE NAME OF "WHARF STREET" IN THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE.

Passed this ..... day of ..... A.D. 192.

WHEREAS, the residents of Foster Ward have presented a Petition to the Municipal Council, requesting a change in the name of Wharf Street in the City of Belleville to St. Paul Street.

AND WHEREAS, it is deemed expedient to change the name of Wharf Street, the name of Wharf Street in the City of Belleville.

THEREFORE the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville ENACTS AS FOLLOWS:—

1. THAT the name of "Wharf Street" which is laid down in the Registry Front Street to the intersection of South Foster Avenue in the said City, is hereby changed to St. Paul Street, by which latter name it will for the future be known. The Clerk may for the change being that the present name "Wharf Street" is a misnomer by reason of no part being a Wharf and that as St. Paul is the name of a very old Church located on Wharf Street and also as the change is desired by the property owners and the inhabitants who reside along the said street and also desired by the citizens generally.

2. THAT this By-law shall come into force and take effect on the day of the registration of the Certificate of the County Judge of the County of Hastings approving of the same and not before.

Mayor.

.....
Clerk.

$380,000 FOR TORONTO BRIDGE

Toronto, Jan. 28.—The board of control this afternoon approved harbor board plans for a bridge to cost $380,000 over the ship canal at Cherry street at the Ashbridge's Bay. Commissioner Ross will check up the amount required to complete the commission's development programme, estimated at five million dollars so that debentures may be issued.

TO PROTECT MY LADY'S TRESSES

Organization Would Eliminate Dangerous Methods Of Hair Treatment

New York.—A death knell for the reign of self-styled beauty experts and beauty parlor artists was sounded in the announcement made by Charles Kessler, former president of the American Master Hairdressers' Association and inventor of the permanent wave, of the establishment of a Foundation for the Advancement of Hair Science. This organization, which has offices in New York City, has as avowed purpose of protecting milady's tresses from incompetent hands and unsafe treatments.

The "Jean" or "Jeannette" who runs the permanent waving machine will if the society has its way, be subjected to a rigorous course of training and thorough examination before being allowed to touch one hair of madame's head. And being registered and approved by the society they will have to work in accordance with a code of ethics which is as vigorous as those of Justinian. Those persons who are found to be altogether incompetent will find themselves outlawed in the beauty parlor industry.

The "medical" beauty and charlatan operating through the beauty parlor will find himself exposed and placed where he belongs. The Foundation hopes to co-operate with the American Medical Association in eliminating fake treatments and unsanitary and dangerous practices in the beauty parlor. It has also established a Foundation will analyze all lotions and skin and scalp treating substances offered for sale to the public and make available information on their chemical composition and possible effect on the hair and body. It will also employ its research facilities to endeavor to determine the causes of premature baldness and of premature grey hair and to solve these and other hair problems of modern society.

Temporary headquarters of the foundation have been established at 342 Fifth Avenue, New York City. It is now raising a $500,000 endowment fund among members of the industry. This fund was started with an initial pledge of $10,000 by Charles Kessler. In addition to its laboratory and headquarters in New York City, the Foundation will maintain clinics centres in large cities throughout the country.

This foundation," Mr. Nessler said in making announcement of the new organization, "will be a protection for dresser's answer to the charges and challenges that have been hurled against the beauty industry for many so-res during the past year. We agreed with the medical society that the beauty business needed house

BELLE THEATRE

From a standpoint of pure artistry and perfection of film technique "Barbed Wire," Pola Negri's new starring vehicle, which opens Monday at the Belle Theatre, has been called the outstanding motion picture of recent film history.

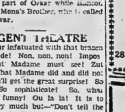

"Barbed Wire" wins this rank first and last because it portrays life as it is; because it is a story based on the most dramatic incident at all time, the world war; and because it is not a war picture in the sense most commonly accepted.

It treats of a phase of the conflict, heretofore untouched, of the life of German soldiers in a prison camp in France. "Barbed Wire" is an adaptation of Ruth Cranes' great novel, "The Woman of Knockelio." The powerful story has lost nothing in its transition to the screen, rather it has gained by it.

Pola Negri is superb as Mona, the peasant girl who is irresistibly attracted to love Oskar, a prisoner in the commandar her home, in spite of the first bit of terror she felt toward the enemy of her country. Once more she is the Negri of "Passion" and "Forbidden Love" and of cleaning and we are giving it that house-cleaning—from within. We mean to substitute honesty and train of Intelligence for dishonesty and incompetence. We feel that beauty is the highest and supreme duty of every woman, and we mean to see that she can bring safety to the skin of her own individuality by the sources of modern science.

"Hair is an important factor in life, health and happiness of humanity, that it is essential to have a reliable body of scientists and knowledge of the subject. Unfortunately, most of the so-called scientific treatises on the subject of hair are hopelessly unreliable.

"Just as medical men are experimenting on cures for cancer, scientific experts should be delving into the ways and wherefores of baldness, the prevention and treatment of premature grey hair, the relation of scalp health to bodily health, and the effect of various hair treatments on the scalp and head."

SINICAL SADIE SEES

THE GREEN WOODPECKER

By Barbara Euphan Todd

There was an old woman, so I've been told,
Who carried more gossip than she could hold;
She was terribly smart and she used to drink
In emerald gowns, and her hats were pink,
Her knobbly knuckles were worn quite sore
Through tapping the paint of a neighbor's door—
"Tippety, tap! Tippety, tap!
Haven't you heard about Mrs. Yap?
Tappety Tip! Tappety Tip!
They say her nephew is such a rip!"

Now who in the village could yet refuse
To welcome the bringer of naughty news?
And who, in a cottage on earth, refrain
From asking a gossip to call again?
No wonder her knuckles were sore; but when those Were riddled past rapping, she used her nose—
"Tippety tap! Tippety tap!
They say Miss Muffgan likes her drap!
Tappety Tip! Tappety Tip!

I heard her sister can take a slip!"
She hammered all day till—I've heard it said—
Her tongue was stretched to a writhing thread,
And her nose, through tapping, grew hard as teak,
Till, lengthened by prying, it turned to a beak.
But still she would tattle of things to

JUST IN PASSING

NOT THEY WHO SOAR

Not they who soar, but they who plod
Their rugged way unnoticed, by God
Are honored; they who higher fare,
And, flying, fan the upper air.
Miss all the toil that hugs the sod.
Tis they whose backs have felt the rod
Whose feet have pressed the path unabod,
May smile upon defeated care,
Not they who soar.

High up there are no thorns to prod,
Nor boulders lurking 'neath the cloud
To turn the keenness of the share,
For flight is ever free and rare;
But better they the soil who've trod
Not they who soar!

Then some one at last, but I don't know who,
Clapped magical hands and away she flew
More swiftly than news, and it's said that she Still carries a message from tree to tree,
And, burdened with gossip as aye before,
She taps at the bark of a dryad's door—
"Tippety tap! Tippety tap!
The birth is to-day with rising sap!
Tappety Tip! Tappety Tip!
A mumble clings to the bluebell's lip!"

Oh! long may she flutter and prink and preen
Her sulfable feathers of Lincoln green
And long may she gossip, who's grown
Of goldeny shadows and azure skies;
And long may she ruffle her crimson dress,
And laugh at the fashions of trees, new-emerged—
"Tippety tap! Tippety tap!
The blackcap's courting a maid to-day!
Tappety Tip! Tappety Tip!
I know of an egg that is going to chip!"

A REMEDY THAT INSPIRES FAITH
People Who Have Used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Speak of Them With Praise
"Going into a decline" is an expression that has come to be known as one of the most difficult conditions with which physicians have to deal. It often describes an alarming condition because it does not yield to ordinary treatment and the debility continues with loss of flesh and strength until the patient feels hopeless. In the majority of such cases the victim suffers from lack of good, red blood, and if the blood can be restored to normal no other medical treatment is necessary. Proper food and sunshine will do the rest.
Every man, woman and child who lacks health and strength should welcome take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to build up their blood supply. The mission of this medicine is to make new rich red blood, which speedily restores health and strength. "I am writing to tell you what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me," says Mrs. J. H. Cullum, Bloomfield, Man. "A few years ago I was in a shaky run-down condition, so much so that I was subject to fainting spells which would leave me in such a condition that I could hardly stand. About that I was stricken with influenza and this further weakened me, and throughout the winter I remained in this condition. I was taking doctor's medicine, but as it did not seem to help me, my mother advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I got a couple of boxes to start on. When these were done I seemed to feel an improvement and I took a further supply to continue the treatment. I took in all about a dozen boxes, and by that time I was in the best of health and had gained in weight. My faith in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is now unbounded, and I keep a supply on hand and take them occasionally if I am not feeling quite well. I often recommend them to others, and cannot praise them enough for restoring my health."
You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

STEPS UNDER WAY FOR TOBACCO POOL

Windsor.—Definite steps were taken recently to form the Ontario Tobacco Pool when the representatives of the various growing districts met and elected D. G. Sturgis, Dresden, as head of the provisional directorate of the pool which is expected to be formed as a result of a meeting of tobacco growers.

The other provisional directors named to handle the affairs of the pool are Dr. C. E. Knister, Comber, secretary, and the following directors from the different counties:

Essex—E. F. Terrier, St. Joachim, Dr. C. E. Knister, Comber; Charles F. Fletcher, M.L.A., Leamington; E. Lanier, Leamington, and S. A. Griggs, Harrow.

Kent—D. G. Sturgis, Dresden; Chas. Case, Tilbury; I. E. Campbell, Blenheim; D. Gagnier, Palmore.

Elgin—D. Galbraith and James Robb, St. Thomas; J. D. Ferguson, Port Stanley.

Middlesex—J. L. Robinson, Lambton.

After the meeting, which was held in private, Mr. Sturgis, the newly-elected president, stated that he had confidence in the success of the Ontario Pool, the good providing the growers united unanimously behind the movement. The need for unity at effort was the keynote to success, Mr. Sturgis stressed.

The provisional pool directorate evidently intends to work along the lines of the pool suggested by Hon. W. F. MacDonnell at the meeting in Chatham on January 14. The pool would endeavor to work in harmony with the Canadian Co-operative Tobacco Growers Company of Kingsville and would be prepared to assume the agreement of the Co-operative or might be decided upon by arrangement with the company.

One need not heed the blusterer; but beware of the silent man.

APPLE CAKE
1 egg. 1-2 cup sugar, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla, 1-2 teaspoon lemon, 1-4 cup water, 1 cup flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 2 1-2 tablespoons melted butter, 2 apples.
Beat egg with a rotary beater, add sugar and beat well; beat in flavorings and water, sift flour with baking powder and sprinkle upon beating the sugar with the egg until the sugar is almost entirely dissolved. Sift dry ingredients and add to egg mixture alternate by with the water. Add melted butter. Pour into greased layer cake tin and over the top arrange the thinly sliced apples, overlapping each other well. Sprinkle the apples with three tablespoons granulated sugar and one teaspoon cinnamon. Bake in a moderate (385 degrees Fahrenheit) oven 25 min utes. Serve warm with hard sauce or whipped cream.

UPSIDE DOWN CAKE
Using the same cake better as given above, pour it over the following mixture in a round layer cake tin. We are suggesting the use of the cake tin rather than the skillet, as it is easier to handle and it is more quickly prepared for the layer of cake is not so thick and it bakes more readily. In the layer take pin pour two tablespoons melted butter. In it place four slices of tart apple. Around the edge and in the spaces of over this sprinkle enough brown sugar to cover the butter well. It amounts to about one teaspoon of brown sugar in every space. A few nuts sprinkled on the brown sugar or a red cherry makes the cake more attractive when it is turned out of the pan. The cake batter is then turned over the mixture. It is baked at the same temperature and for the same time as the apple cake. Serve also with whipped cream. Prunes may be used in place of pineapple.

Keep Stomach Young!
Eat What You Want

When the food you eat goes into our acid-soaked stomach, it sours and can't digest, makes foul gas and sour bile. The blood takes these poisonous acids and carries them through the body, naturally it makes you miserable, and despondent, because your system is not nourished—you lose weight.
Pape's Diapepsin dissolves the acids and neutralizes the sourness. It digests the food; no more sour bile is taken up by the blood. Your appetite is like a youngster's again, and gradually you get back your health, flesh and energy.
Get a tablet or two of Pape's Diapepsin after meals. It tastes good, and relieves the misery of indigestion in five minutes. It will keep your stomach young and vigorous as you near and beyond 50, without being afraid of the consequences.

Poems Old And New

THE LOVE THIEF

I robbed you of your place in Love's fair kingdom,
And drove you forth into the desert
lands;
Now ever on the gates I bear the besting,
Of your frail hands.

Even from your lips I snatched Love's brimming chalice,
And now, robbed in its depths, I seem
To see in your sad eyes, so dark with anguish,
The teardrops gleam.

I hushed for you Love's golden-harp's
sweet music,
That sounded for you in your paradise;
And now for me with all its notes are blended
Your bitter sighs.

I stole from you Love's crown of your empire,
But, ah, I robbed my heart at peace
and rest,
For now remorse at hearth and board is ever
My black-robed guest!

CYCLE

By Charlotte Mish

Throw out the brushes, stiffened and worn,
Burn up the paint-smock, faded and torn,
Sweep out the paint tubes, broken and dried—
Mark how he tore them to scrape inside.
Paints are so precious, paints come so high
Painters must save, if they cannot buy.

Take down the paintings, label them well,
Now that he's dead they're certain to sell.
This one he painted aching with cold—
He could have had warmth, if it had sold.
Now it will sell for a fine amount,
If he went hungry then, does it count?

He dreamed high dreams. Of making
Of buyers flocking who never came?
No. He dreamed dreams of work well done.
His work is ended. His dreams are won.
And does it cheer him, now he has gone,
Knowing his paintings ever live on?

Well, if he suffered for each brush touch
Perhaps it didn't matter—much.
And if it mattered we'll never know—
Come, close the door to the studio.
But leave the key as you turn away—
Another painter moves in, today.

Let Me Tell You

A teaspoonful of glycerine of the best kind taken in a small meal is helpful against indigestion.

A teaspoonful of vinegar added to the water in which fish is boiled will help to make it firm and white.

Salt is good for the teeth, and strengthens the gums. Use a little instead of toothpaste occasionally.

Bananas in a trifle or similar sweet often turn black because they have been sliced with a steel knife. Use a silver or plated knife.

To Clean Silk—The water in which potatoes have been boiled is excellent for cleaning silk. Rub a small piece "just off the chill" it acts all the better.

To Blanch Almonds—To blanch almonds quickly, put them in a basin of hot water and leave for a few minutes. Then pour off the water, and you will find the skins come off readily.

Washing Day Wisdom—A handful of salt stirred into the last rinsing water on washing day will make the clothes less liable to freeze in bitter cold weather, and will keep them from sticking to the lines in the same conditions.

Why Custard Curdles—Boiled custard curdles because the mixture is allowed to reach boiling point. The custard should be stirred over hot water till it thickens, but it must never be allowed to boil, or the eggs will immediately curdle.

Coal Economy—Excellent fuel for the copper fire can be made from old newspapers. Crave some to soak in cold water for a day or two, then squeeze the pulp into balls and leave them in a warm place to get thoroughly dry.

Mashed Potatoes au Gratin—Mashed potatoes au gratin should be spiced with butter, salt, pepper, and enough milk to make them the consistency of porridge; pour into the top, dot with butter, and bake brown in a hot oven

"A DOGGY TALE"

A number of dog fanciers were discussing the sagacity of the various breeds, each man trying, apparently to substantiate the superior intelligence of that particular breed, one of his own dogs being the hero. One of the group owned one lone Airedale, male, and he was proud of him. One was not known in the show ring, although registered in the Canadian Kennel Club. He was his chum, and pet with the household guard.

Each owner listened to the ravings of the various enthusiasts, and finally broke out: "Well, you fellows, you may have wise enough dogs, but my old Airedale always bows his head when I say my prayers at bedtime."

The story is a true one, but the query is. "Did the owner ever say grace at his supper?"

A heart full of grace is better than a head full of notions.

REV. CLAY IMPROVES STEADILY

Winnipeg, Jan. 28.—Steady improvement is being shown in the condition of Rev. Dr. Leslie Clay, moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, who is in the General Hospital here recovering from an heart attack suffered last week. It was reported at hospital today that his condition was "a little better."

he was working all round the twenty-four hours clock, and went to bed at five-thirty one morning. He was up at seven, having had about an hour and a half of real sleep. When he told his mother, she asked, "How do you feel this morning?" he replied, "I would feel better if I had not overslept myself half an hour." Edison has a mordant wit, of which one example is his reply to the building committee of a Philadelphia church who consulted him about the advisability of installing lightning rods. "By all means," he replied, "you know, Providence is some times absent-minded."

STORIES OF EDISON

To separate Edison from his inventions is difficult, but Mr. C. S. Bryan in his recent book setting forth the story of the famous inventor, gives rare glimpses of an almost frivolous Edison who devised a mechanical contraption for promoting suicide among the cockroaches which over-ran the New York office in which he worked as a telegraph operator. When his first phonograph had been completed to his satisfaction, Edison, we are told, started to turn the handle of the shaft, while at the same time into one of the little tubes he declaim ed in sentences tone that immortal lyric, "Mary had a little lamb." Then he turned the shaft backward to the starting point, drew away the first tube, adjusted the other, and once more turned the shaft forward. Out from the machine, faintly but surely, came the voice of Edison reciting the classic adventure of Mary and the lamb. "I was never so taken aback in my life," said Edison afterwards, "I was always afraid of things that worked the first time." Edison's cap acity for doing without sleep has often been commented upon. Care of Babies
This baby has never had a day's sickness and never a cross or fretful spell that lasted an hour. And what do you suppose is responsible for this healthy, happy condition? Not diet for he has eaten just about anything and everything a child could eat. Not drugs, for he has not been dosed with opiates; he has never had a drop of paregoric. Nor has his sensible mother ever made him taste castor oil. Yet his nerves are normal and his little body is as strong, and when he does seem the least restless or wakeful, or out of sorts—he is likely to be—his mother has all serene again in ten or fifteen minutes!
The secret of this complete freedom from the puny ills and upsets so common to children is Baby Mine Castoria. Castoria. A million and more mothers swear by Castoria, and no wonder! A few drops is all it takes to relieve colic, diarrhea or constipation seems to vanish in thin air. Castoria is pure by vegetable, that is why physicians tell parents they may use it freely with children of any age—the youngest infants. And how they love the taste!
One word of warning; get the pure real Castoria. Fletcher's Castoria is the original. It is the kind doctors specify. And with every bottle comes a book on the "Care and Feeding of Babies" that is worth its weight in gold to any mother or prospective mother. So, remember; don't accept drugist you wish Fletcher's Castoria.

TEACHER'S TRIAL POLITICAL MOVE

McAndrew Case Crime Against Educational Profession

Chicago.—A "political lynch law before a puppet judge presiding over a packed court that will commit a shame ful crime against the educational profession" was the piquant remark emergency committee's indictment of the trial of William McAndrew, suspended superintendent of schools, which today entered its fifth month.

"The trial is being deliberately delayed so that the defendant may not have an opportunity to bring the case into court, and obtain justice," a bulletin issued by the committee said. "The real purpose of the McAndrew trial is to cover up plans to make the schools a part of the political machine."

In the meantime McAndrew, whose term of office automatically expired January 1, was carrying on "life among the boneheads." Indications were that his trial will continue for several weeks although he does not attend the sessions.

J. Lewis Coath, president of the school board, returning from New York with many retired United States historians, reported that publishers were supporting Mayor Thompson's "assault on King George" enthusiastically.

"Every book company has revised its histories as a result of our light against propaganda, so it's up our job to find clean books for our school children," he said.

"I have 20 sets of histories and not one of them omits a single patriot or belittles the country's founders."

The fact-searching board [illegible] Britain is not felt only in our [illegible] here near the Rio Grande [illegible] notice this week that it had purchased the radio interests of our schools."

The public schools emergency committee is an organization formed for the announced intention of taking politics out of the public schools, but school board members insisted Mayor Thompson have claimed that its leaders are pro-British.

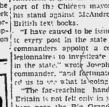

ACIDS CAUSE BAD KIDNEYS AND BLADDER

Too much rich food forms acids which excite and overwork the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Then the kidneys occasionally to relieve them like you relieve the bowels, removing acids, waste and poison, else you may feel dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or side, headache, dizziness, the stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste, begin drinking water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then eat fine and bladder disorders disappear.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help prevent serious kidney and bladder disorders. By all means drink lots of good water every day.

DURO, SYRIA TO BE EXCAVATED

By An Expedition Sent Out From Yale University

New Haven, Conn.—The City of Rura, Syria, for 2,200 years unoccupied and covered by the ranas of the desert, is to be excavated by an archaeological expedition to be sent out by Yale University, it is announced here. The work will be carried on in collaboration with the French Academy. The General Education Board of New York City has given the necessary funds to finance the expedition, the literary said. Excavation is to be gin this spring with Maurice Pillet, the famous archaeologist, in charge. The Syrian Government has given Yale a six-year concession for the work.

Prof. Michael I. Rostovtieff, Sterling professor of classical archaeology and ancient history at Yale, told how Dura became known to scientists. In 1920 a detachment of British soldiers stationed on the Middle Euphrates in Syria, in a place called Salihieh, informed Miss Gertrude Bell, noted Orientalist, of the discovery of some beautiful frescoes in the ruins of what had been a fortified city.

Miss Bell immediately informed Prof. James Breasted, Director of the Oriental Institute in Chicago, who hurried to the place. "When he arrived the soldiers were keen, to depart. Having only twenty-four hours in which to work, Breasted removed the frescoes and white colored copies of them, and drew plans of the ruins."

Upon returning to Chicago Prof. Breasted reported this discovery to the French Academy, with that time the area was under protectorate of France and the French Academy decided to excavate the place.

Prof. Cumont was sent to Dura. He dug there with the help of the French Foreign Legion, and valuable finds he made. Prof. Rostovtieff said, were startling. Besides ruins of temples, fortifications and elaborate graves, Prof. Cumont discovered most interesting frescoes of the time. He also found fine sculptures, scores of inscription of importance to classicists and about a dozen of Greek, Latin and Aramic parchments.

Historical investigations of the place showed it was an ancient Syrian for tress originally named Dura, later re placed by a Macedonian military college, called Europos, at about 300 years befor Christ.

"Very little is known of the cities which were created by the efforts of Alexander the Great and his successors," Prof. Rostovtieff said. "It is of great importance to know more about this. Dura is the first city of this type to be excavated."

It isn't what your grandfather was but what you are, that really counts.

At the first it was cold which incited the pioneer-adventurer to round the Horn or take the trail of the covered wagon. There was gold to be discovered, gold to be mined, gold to be harvested. One man stumbled over it, in either saw it and the two words "gold" and "California" drew fortune-hunters the world. From the genesis of known civilization history has shown that humanity pauses into its border stead ily increased. As it increased, transportation demands increased correspondingly, now,when Royal trains may cater to the eager numbers with ease and comfort. RATE WAR LIKELY BETWEEN COMPANIES

London.—A first-class rate war seems to be developing between American shipping Board freighters and British lines operating between India and the United States and the United States and certain Continental ports.

Sailings between the United States and India have been maintained, for more than a quarter of a century by British lines, largely guaranteed by Indian and other products being shipped to United States ports. After the war the American vessels commenced to play an increasing part in this trade, but British companies, by reason of their long experience and established connections, were able to maintain their position.

Larger Proportion

Then, according to shipping men here, American operators nominated by the Shipping Board intimated a wish for a larger proportion of the trade, and the British lines made proposals looking to a rate agreement. Declining that they had established themselves in the trade by years of hard work they were, however, unwilling to surrender any but a small proportion of it.

Their offer fell far below the wishes of the American Shipping Board, and new American sailings were, therefore, begun this year between Calcutta and New York with Shipping Board vessels.

Do Not Lower Cost

It is claimed by British shipping men that the rates quoted by the new services do not cover the cost of loading and discharging cargo, and the Sure Board does. If American vessels succeed in obtaining more cargo, they claim it will be because the American Government is prepared to accept it, irrespective of the heavy losses it will involve.

"It would appear that the resources of the whole United States are being employed in an endeavor to crush the enterprise of British owners," is the declaration of The London Times. "There remarkable developments can hardly be ignored by the British and Indian Governments, or, indeed, other Governments, since, whereas in this trade, it is hoped to secure a share therefor, it may be owners of other nationalities in other trade tomorrow."

INCREASE RESERVE FUND TO $8,000,000

Splendid Earnings and Strong Liquid Position

The report which the Directors of The Dominion Bank submitted to the Shareholders at the Annual Meeting in the City of Toronto on Wednesday the 25th instant, covering the operations of the year ending December 31st last, was a markedly satisfactory one, showing larger profits, deposits bearing interest at a new high point and greatly increased liquidity.

The Bank's business for the year, as reflected in the Statement, gives evidence of improved business conditions and the prosperity of the country.

Profits for the year reached a total of $1,328,426.05, $69,000, in advance of the previous year.

These earnings enabled the Bank after paying the usual dividends with bonus of one per cent. amounting to $700,000, to contribute $45,000, to Officers' Pension Fund provide $155,000 for Dominion and Provincial Taxes and to write off $250,000. from Bank Premises Account, compared with $200,000, and $150,000 in the two previous years, to transfer $1,000,000. to Reserve Fund and carry forward to Profit Account $120,524.05.

An index invariably accepted as evidence of the country's welfare is the trend of deposits which bear interest at our chartered banks. While total deposits of The Dominion Bank have reached $108,756,919. better than $10,000,000. in advance of last year, deposits bearing interest alone are $84,809,262. an increase of $7,000,000. and the highest point reached, an increase reached at any time in the Bank's history.

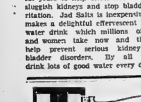

Improved business conditions are reflected in the increase in Current Loans which appear at $62,686,-[illegible] an advance of $2,000,000 over the figures of last year's statement.

The Bank's liquid position has also shown marked advance. Cash Assets are at $26,652,084. or 21.78 per cent. of liabilities to the public, while liquid assets have improved by almost $10,000,000. during the year, standing at $68,778,533. or 57 per cent. of total liabilities. Total Assets are $141,482,-733.72 an increase of approximately $13,700,000.

The Notes of the Bank in circulation also show an increase of over $600,000. which may be accepted as additional evidence of the activity in business.

The Report of the Directors received the unanimous endorsement of the Shareholders and the addresses of the President and General Manager indicated confidence in Canada's future.

There is always a mystery about how the people next door live.

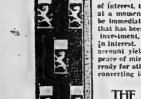

Ease your tight, aching chest. Stop the pain. Break up the congestion. Feel a bad cold loosen up in just a short time.

Red Pepper Rub is the cold remedy that brings quickest relief. It cannot hurt you and it certainly seems to end the tightness and drive the congestion and soreness right out.

Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers, and when heat penetrates right down into colds congestion, aching muscles and sore, stiff joints relief comes at once.

The moment you apply Red Pepper Rub you feel the tingling heat. In three minutes the congested spot is warmed through and through. When you are suffering from a cold, rheumatism, backache, stiff neck or sore muscles just get a jar of Rowles Red Pepper Rub, made from red peppers, at any drug store. You'll find this the quickest relief known.

SPEED SKATING AT QUEEN CITY

Championship Events Have Been Awarded To Toronto

Toronto.—The announcement that the Canadian Speed Skating Championships have been awarded to Toronto and that the national event will be held on Saturday, Feb. 4, at the Varsity Rink has livened things up in ice sports in Toronto. The absence of Ross Robinson, who has left for the Olympics to represent Canada, means that a new senior champion will be made on that occasion. Roy Pendrel of Toronto, who is skating better than at any time in his career, will probably rule as a favorite so far as local entries are concerned. Pendrel is a speed specialist and has a habit of winning everything at his favorite distances.

Lex Davis, former Old Orchard skater, now with the Toronto Club, is likely to be a contender. He is a long stroking skater with more than the average turn of speed. Fred Brooks and Basil Markham should be heard from while there is a possibility that some of the 18-year-olders may step up and make it interesting for the veterans. The most promising of the junior brigade are Allen Burns of London, Curtis and Charlie Bodle of the Toronto Club.

Mlle. Depelsin, of Ottawa, who scored sensationally in the 16-year-old Class last year, when she took a fourth place, will likely be back again. J. T. Rowan of that city also claims that he will have a string of blade pushers from the capital who will make it interesting for all comers. Billy Trevaire, the promising Ottawa youngster, who has attended the last couple of championship meets, will not be in the party. He met with a mishap last fall which may keep him out of sports for some time. While engaging in a jumping competition he landed on a hidden root and badly injured his back.

There will be no competitors from Canada in the "Silver Skate" event at Chicago this month, as the meet at the Windy City is being held under the jurisdiction of the organization with which the Canadian body is not affiliated.

The whole world knows Aspirin as an effective antidote for pain. But it's just as important to know that there is only one genuine Aspirin. The name Bayer is on every tablet, and on the box. If the name Bayer appears, it's genuine; and if it doesn't, it is not! Headaches are dispelled by Aspirin. So are colds, and the pain that goes with them; even neuralgia, neuritis, and rheumatism promptly relieved. Get Aspirin—at any drugstore—with proven directions.

Physicians prescribe Aspirin; it does NOT affect the heart

Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada) registered Bayer Manufacture, While it is well known that Aspirin means Bayer manufacture, to assist the public against imitations, the Tablets will be stamped with their "Bayer Cross" trademark.

AUDITORS' REPORT TO SHAREHOLDERS

We Report to the Shareholders of The Dominion Bank:—

That we have audited the above Balance Sheet as at 31st December, 1927, and compared it with the books and vouchers relating thereto, and with the certificates lodged at the Head Office and Branches. We have obtained all the information and explanations that we have required, and in our opinion the transactions of the Bank which have come to our notice have been within the powers of the Bank.

In our opinion the Balance Sheet discloses the true condition of the Bank and is as shown by the books of the Bank.

BIG DIFFERENCE IN 2 THEATRES

Hart House And "Little Theatre" Run On Different Lines

Montreal.—Principles behind McGill University's "Little Theatre," recently inaugurated in the Arts Building, present an interesting contrast to those adhered to by the directorate of Hart House, Toronto University's laboratory of the drama.

In the first place, Hart Hall and the plays produced there are directly under the control of the English department, while at the senior university theatre the students are accorded greater range. Again, while Hart House devotes a large proportion of its season to the modern drama, always finding a place for a certain number of native Canadian plays on its bill, Moyse Hall is practically entirely reserved for seventeenth century plays

While the Arts Building was in course of construction McGill decided that the Little Theatre had a place in university life and announced the dedication of the memorial hall to this purpose. Previously the McGill Players, a student group, had produced a number of plays with varying success in a hall entirely inadequate for theatrical purposes, both in stage accommodation and lighting. Seeing in the announcement opportunity to realize some of their more ambitious dreams they waxed jubilant over the announcement.

Their elation was short-lived. Their Bubble-dream was speedily pricked by Dr. MacMillan, head of the English department, with the definite statement that Moyse Hall would not be available as an experimental station for would-be directors and actors. Radical ideas were to be taboo at this academic shrine of Thespis. The classical principles of the drama were to be sponsored into the students, with not any knowledge of untried theory.

And so, since its inauguration, the dream of the Restoration has reigned at Moyse Hall. The reason for the selection of seventeenth century plays as explained by Dr. MacMillan, is that instruction in the drama at McGill aims so as "train the students that in future days they can organize and direct amateur theatricals."

It is pointed out that a large proportion of the British students are training for business bankers and that the majority of these will follow their profession in rural districts. Amateur theatricals are a big factor in the community life: the school is the centre of the rural community therefore it is important that the teacher be fitted to fill the role of dramatic director.

It is therefore logical that Moyse Hall should model itself as a training theatre for future directors of school theatricals, rather than as a university theatre such as Hart House, where new ideas in dramatic construction and production may be tested under expert supervision, with the finest lighting and stage equipment in Canada at hand.

Baby's Own Tablets Always In The Home

Once a mother has used Baby's Own Tablets for her little ones she will always keep a supply on hand,for the first trial convinces her there is nothing to equal them in keeping children well. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulates the stomach, thus driving out constipation and indigestion, colds and simple fevers, and making teething easier. Concerning them, Mrs. Salaste Pelletier, St. Dumas, Que., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for the past ten years and am never without them in the house. They are always given the greatest satisfaction and I can gladly recommend them to all mothers of little ones." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or direct by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

WHAT A DOCTOR KNOWS ABOUT CONSTIPATION

There IS a way of overcoming the tendency to constipation. And here is how you can PROVE it.

The next time you bowels need any assistance, don't take the first laxative that comes to mind. Take one the Cascgrist can assure you is made with CASCARA. Just as effective as using force, and it's good for the system. Indeed, it helps strengthen them. For cascara is nothing but the bark of a tree. The Indians chew this bark, and live to an old age without a day's sick ness.

What happens when you cascarize the bowels? They will usually function well for SEVERAL DAYS. One more dose—no larger, and perhaps smaller, than the first—and the bowels functions of their own accord for a still longer time. Until you don't feel the need of any aid of any sort for weeks on-end.

So, the only habit you get from cascara is th't of natural and normal regularity. How different from things one must usually repeat on the morrow! Cascara is the ideal laxative, and the familiar little candy cascarets in doubtless its ideal form. Children beg for these tasty tablets, and many men and women wouldn't think of taking ANYTHING else for the purpose. And EVERY druggtore has them.

SHOULDN'T LOSE ONE NATIVE ART

All Too Few And Far Between In This Country

Montreal.—Native arts and handicrafts are all too few in Canada for a single one to be allowed to pass out of existence without protest. The honor of preserving for posterity the century-old art of weaving the colorful ceinture fleche of arrow sash's belongs to E. G. Massicotte, president of the Province of Quebec Folklore Society, who brought one of its last surviving votaries, an aged habitant woman, to Montreal that she might instruct nuns at the Mother House of Sisters of Providence. Watching her skilful fingers, two of the nuns have learned the secrets of the "ceinture fleches," secrets of which they will in turn pass on to habitants wives in far away backwoods settlements of Quebec so that a craft born in Canada may flourish in future years.

The arrow scarf, originally popular among the Indians and of recent years highly prized by devotees of winter sports who could afford to pay its stiff price, is produced in a wide variety of designs, all based on the barbaric arrowhead. Its color scheme is rich, almost sombre, never approaching on the gaudy. In a typical scarf produced by Mr. Massicotte sig-nag lines of dull red, old blue, rich yellow, dark green, light green and blue are arrangements blended.

It is woven of wool, entirely by hand Its dimensions vary, according to the taste of the customer, but a usual size is seven inches in width by 45 inches in length, to which must be added the yard of fringe which decorates either end.

It has been believed by some students of Canadiana that the "ceinture fleches" was of Indian origin, but Mr. Massicotte points out that this theory is unfounded as the Indians did not raise sheep for wool. Mr. Massicotte believes that the scarf originated in Acadia and was brought in to the Province of Quebec by exiled Acadians, who carried there after sojourning briefly in the New England States. The oldest scarf of which he has authentic record was woven 70 years ago, but there are some in existence whose age is fixed at 130 years One of the arrow scarfs has been found in the Maritime Provinces the original home of the Acadians.

The first Scarfs produced in the Province of Quebec were woven in the little village of St. Jacques L'Achigan and from that time the district of L'Assumption, in Montcalm County, has retained the secret—that is until Mr. Massicotte brought aged Dame Lord to Montreal to teach the nuns.

The weaving is an intricate and slow process and a surprising amount of wool is required for even a small scarf. For these reasons a specimen of the craft cannot be produced today at a cost of less than $65 or $70. Individuals who possess ceinture fleches regard them as heirlooms and prices running far into the hundreds of dollars have been paid by collectors for single scarfs.

Knotted about the waist or over the shoulder, the arrow scarf gives an impressive touch to any winter sports costume.

It takes a wasp to make a lazy man get a move on himself. All it has to do is to back up against him and push.

SICK ABED EIGHT MONTHS

After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Could Do All Her Work and Gained in Weight

Melfort, Saskatchewan. — "I had inward troubles, headaches and severe pains in my back and sides. I was so sick generally that I could not sit up and I was in bed most of the time for eight months. An aunt came to visit and help me as I was unable to attend to my baby and could not do my work. She told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and after taking two bottles I could get up and dress myself. I also took Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine. When I first took the medicine I only weighed seventy-eight pounds. Now I weigh twice as much. If I get out of sorts or weary and can't sleep I always take another bottle of the Vegetable Compound. I find it wonderfully good for female troubles, and have recommended it to my neighbors. I will be only too glad to answer any letters I receive asking about it." — Mrs. WILLIAM RITCHIE, Box 486, Melfort, Saskatchewan.

ACTRESSES LIKE CHI. FOR SUITS

Several Prominent Stagers Get Divorce In Windy City

Chicago.—Just why Chicago should have been chosen by several actresses during the past few months as the place to get divorces is not readily apparent to lawyers unless it be that the Illinois laws are reasonably broad and residential requirements not too strict.

Pannie Brice, the comedienne, was the leader in the most recent list of stage personalities to seek and obtain divorces here. There have followed through the past few weeks the divorce cases of Helen Menken, Marion Harris, Suzanne Caubet Odell, Winona Cranes, niece of Sarah Bernhardt, and Evelyn Herbert.

Illinois' legal requirements fo, divorce remain as stringent as ever, said one attorney, but complaints with them leads in many instances to forfeiture and speed.

Most causes require various one or two years established residence, but one prominent co-respondent named divorced her spouse quickly because she found him with another woman.

Illinois directory had immediate jurisdiction thrust upon it, and when the husband raised no objection he was divorced without ado.

Many touring actresses play in Chicago two or three months each year. It was pointed out, and having no established home, formally indicate Chicago as their official residence. Upon each Chicago appearance the same residence is inhabitated and in time comes to be recognized as the legal home. Then, should marital discord arise, suit for divorce legally can be instituted in Chicago.

Divorce suits are divided between two court calendars—one for contested cases and one for those in which there will be no fight. It is the latter variety which sometimes will permit an actress to rush here from New York, obtain her divorce and return east in time to miss merely one performance of her play, as in the case of Miss Herbert. Once a stipulation of nonopposition has been filed opposing counsel the actual divorce proceeding is a matter of minutes, although the stirge leading to it may have required two years or more.

MOTHER

A Cross, Sick Child is Constipated!

Look at Tongue

No matter what ails your child, a gentle, thorough laxative should always be the first treatment given.

If your little one is out-of-sorts, baffick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that the little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. Worm cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour,breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless, "fruity laxative" because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

"LINDY" FLIES TO BOGOTA

Bogota, Colombia, Jan. 28.—Lindbergh landed at Madrid at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon on his flight from Cartagena.

The Spirit of St. Louis was encircled by police and soldiers the moment it came to a stop after lasting across the field. Colonel Lindbergh's landing was without accident. He was received with great cheering.

Nothing but lettuce and parsley that have been carefully washed and placed in bags should be put in the ice chamber of the refrigerator.

HEARD VOICES, NOW HE IS IN ASYLUM

Bridgeport, Conn.—Joseph Kormendy, 37, was placed under observation at Hillside Home today after he had hurled his daughter, Elizabeth, three feet a second-story window and then run through the central streets, clad only in a nightshirt, carrying Grace, five, in his arms.

Kormendy told police that voices which only he could hear had told him that he and his two daughters were doomed to die.

Elizabeth suffered only bruises and cuts and the other child was unharmed, although badly frightened and shaken up.

FIGHT WITH MEXICAN REBELS

Nogales, Ariz., Jan. 28.—William P. Blocker, American consul at Matalan, Mexico, who arrived at this border point today, told the Nogales Herald that thirty-seven rebels and fourteen federal soldiers were killed in a heavy engagement at Ixtalan, Nayarit, Mexico, last week. Several hundred troops participated.

RIGGS MOTORS ARE NOW WILLYS OVERLAND AGENT

Have New Whippet And Willys Knight Cars On Display

Of interest to motorists of this city and district is the announcement made a few days ago to the effect the Riggs Motor Sales, under the direction of Messrs. Leo. B. Riggs and A. H. MacConnell, has assumed the Willys-Overland Agency for the district. In the comparatively short time since the business was taken over by the present management it has gained a wide and favorable reputation as Chrysler Sales and Service headquarters.

Now Riggs Motor Sales sell the fine new Willys-Overland line of motor cars, and are extending an invitation to the public to visit their showrooms and inspect the 1928 Willys-Overland cars—Whippet Fours and Sixes, and the Willys Knight "70" and Great Six Models—four great new cars, each with a complete range of body types, embodying engineering leadership in every price class. In these cars have been incorporated the most advanced engineering principles known to automobile designers today, as:

Four wheel brakes (Standard equipment on all Willys Knight and Whippet Motor cars, lower chassis—ensuring greater safety and comfort, clear vision corner posts, great engine efficiency, new body refinement, greater roominess and optional body colors. Then, too, the remarkable economy of the Whippet is now reflected in a great fuel economy through the whole Willys-Overland line and all at new low prices.

Demonstration of the new Willys-Overland models will be given gladly. A price range of $695 to $925 permits you to buy a car at a price to suit your pocketbook.

Drop in tomorrow to Riggs Motor Sales and inspect these leaders in engineering leadership.

TIP TOP FIRM OFFERS GENUINE CLOTHES VALUE

High Cost Of Clothing Is Now Thing Of The Past

Have you ever worn Tip Top clothes? Clarke W. Dickens at 312 1-2 Front street, is the leading agent for this immense one price clothing organization—the largest of its kind in Canada and since taking over the agency of this great concern some time ago, a great many Belleville people have learned of the extraordinary clothes values possible at the one low price of $24.00, no higher.

With the finest imported fabrics available to Tip Top buyers, no one need any longer complain of the high cost of men's clothing. When one can actually buy a made-to-measure, well cut suit or overcoat for as little as $24.00, the question of buying good clothing for very little money is made easy.

Clarke Dickens will be pleased to show you samples at any time—of the newest materials, and styles in Tip Top Clothing. Drop in and see him at 312 1-2 Front street and have a talk to him about your clothing needs.

SINGLE DEALERS SUCCEED THRU GIVING SERVICE

Bargman's Business Shows Increase—Good Quality And Service

Considering the trend of modern merchandising of various kinds towards combining and offering the purchaser the advantage of goods bought in immense quantities, it would appear difficult for the individual dealer to compete with his "combined" brethren.

Yet in spite of this the old style individual dealer appears nevertheless to a great percentage of persons, basing his chance of continued prosperous business on the service he can offer and the quality of goods, of course, which he sells.

In the grocery line, Bargmans locally have for a long time, offered patrons this—quality foodstuffs and an unexcelled service with the result that their business enjoys continued prosperity in face of the opposition of chain stores and others individually managed and united for buying power.

Patrons of Bargmans over a period of years continue to buy their groceries at this store, for they're perfectly satisfied with the intelligent prompt service offered, the speedy delivery and the satisfaction that a phone order will bring them the best obtainable in foodstuffs—day in, any weather and relieve them of the necessity of jourbeying outside and perhaps carry ing their order home.

Phone this firm an order and see for yourself if you won't get the type of service and the kind of food you like—at a reasonable price.

ONE PHONOGRAPH RECORD CROWDS ENGLISH CHURCH

Action is being taken by Benchers of the Inner Temple and the Middle Temple to stem the flood of visitors to the Temple Church services. The number of those that attend has recently become so great that their pressence constitutes a menace to the ancient fabric. The popular interest in the church, which had previously remained "un-robbed" for seven centuries, is due to the gramophone record made by the choir, and issued by "His Master's Voice" some months ago. The music recorded was Mendelssohn's "Hear my Prayer," and in the solo part sung by one of the boy choristers the public discovered a voice of extraordinary beauty. The desire to hear the singer himself has caused twenty people to travel long distances to attend services in the church, and on many Sundays the crowd seeking admission has exceeded the capacity of the building several times over. In future the attendance will be regulated by a strict ticket system introduced by the Benchers. The regulation will come into operation next Sunday.

The same record, it is learned, is now available in Canada, Victor V.S. Orthophonic record No. 35856—"Hear my Prayer," by the Choir of the Temple Church, London.

SPRAGUE OFFERS GOOD CLEANING AT LOWER RATE

Money Saving Rates Will Continue At This Firm

With the social season in full swing and parties and dances the order of the day, a necessary part of it all, and one which must be constantly considered is the question of a choice of a cleaner for your garments.

During the past year or so—in fact just about a year ago this month, Spragues introduced a lower cleaning rate to Belleville. After gaining a reputation during several years' successful business in this city, the management of Spragues decided to give their patrons the advantage of lower rates in men's and ladies' work; they anticipated of course that a substantial increase in business would result, and to say the least, the increase has been much greater than was anticipated, and the success of the change gratifying in every way.

Satisfactory cleaning and prompt service have resulted in a marked increase of business for this firm, and the exceptionally large number of repeat orders being received represent satisfied customers. Spragues are satisfied that their efforts to give residents of Belleville and District good cleaning at lower rate, are being appreciated.

After the next party or dance, call 283 and have Spragues send for and clean that frock or suit. You'll like their work, and at the same time will save money.

NEWS NOTES OF THE PAST WEEK

Riggs Motor Sales have taken over the local agency for the Willys-Overland line of motor cars, and are displaying this line in their showrooms now. See the new line of low priced Whippets.

Nash Cameron Motors in the Greenleaf building on Station street are now local agents for Packard Cars. Packard Sales and Service are now available along with Nash—a display of the Nash models and expert Nash Service in their headquarters on Station St.

Wongs Cafe, next The Intelligencer, has been among those improvements to the premises during the past week. Having found from experience that the average hungry dining desires not to eat with the eyes of numerous members of his brethren upon him—the management of Wongs has built two additional enclosed compartments, in which customers may singly or in groups may eat to their hearts content in privacy. The entire interior is being redecorated.

Chrysler this week announced new low prices on their line of models, which with many improvements, make the Chrysler a greater dollar for dollar value than ever before. Riggs Motor Sales have the complete line on display in their showrooms, Pinnacle street.

Above is a sample of the fine type of monuments to be secured locally at Moore Bros. Marble and Granite dealers, 404 Front street. In spite of the fact that many people associate the finest in such things with the big cities, local firms such as Moore Bros. are providing in competition of price, variety or workmanship as great or greater value than any of the larger city firms. Just another instance of how it pays to buy at home.

Field Marshall Haig Dies Suddenly --- Strange Case of Coal-Gas Poisoning of Local Family

POISONED FOR A WEEK BY GASES

Family Of Mr. Harry Greenleaf Made Sick By Strange Cause

NURSE OVERCOME

Origin Of Trouble Only Discovered At Midnight On Sunday

A poison as deadly as mustard gas and far more insidious has been the cause of a strange sickness in the family of Mr. Harry Greenleaf, 10 Foundry Street, for the past week. It was only at 12 o'clock last night that the cause of the mysterious illness from which Mr. and Mrs. Greenleaf, as well as the daughter suffered, was discovered.

Coal gas was at the root of the trouble. Some water had somehow worked its way into the coal bin and spontaneous combustion nearly resulted. For the past week the coal gas has been seeping through the house and the entire family was at one time sick in bed from the results of the poison.

Two Nurses Made Sick

Yesterday Mr. Greenleaf decided that someone was needed to take care of the family and procured a trained nurse. The nurse arrived about nine o'clock in the afternoon to commence her duties and by eleven o'clock in the evening stated that she was too sick to continue, so another nurse was sent for. This second nurse was also sickened by the gas, even more quickly than the first.

It was only midnight that the cause of the trouble was discovered. For the remainder of the night nearly every window and door in the house was left open and the coal was moved out in quick time.

Today Mr. Greenleaf was able to be up and around attending to his business duties, but Mrs. Greenleaf and the child are still suffering from the effects of a week of gas poisoning.

BAD FIRE DOES HEAVY DAMAGE

University Of Toronto Medical School Suffers Severe Loss

Toronto, Jan. 30.—Loss of more than one hundred thousand dollars resulted when fire destroyed the Medical Building of the University of Toronto today. While the damage to the building would not be more than $25,000 in the opinion of fire department officials, experience of valuable chemicals and scientific equipment at one hundred thousand dollars.

Many valuable chemicals were used for research work and water and fire totally destroyed these. Fire started on the third floor where research work on diabetes and other subjects was carried out, and it is believed that some kind of chemical experiment might have been the cause.

SEARCHING FOR BURIED TREASURE

$60,000,000 of Gold and Diamonds

A buried treasure of gold, silver and diamonds, valued at $60,000,000, is said to have been hidden by Jesuit priests in a hillside on the Sacambaya river, near Inquisivi Bolivia, is the goal of a party of Englishmen, headed by Dr. Edgar Sanders, a mining engineer. A company has been organized and a prospectus issued. The parchments that point to the existence of the treasure have been examined by Sir Edward Deloitte Ross, an authority, who has pronounced them genuine. Above are shown a map showing the area in which is believed the treasure will be found, with a photograph of Sir Edward Denison Ross.

APPEAL COURT DISMISSES CHARGE AGAINST FARMER FOR CONSPIRACY

$3000 Disappeared But There Is No Evidence Against Seguire

Toronto, Jan. 30.—The First Divisional Court has allowed the appeal of Charles H. Seguire, of Brighton township, who was found guilty at Cobourg and sentenced to three years for an alleged conspiracy to defraud a neighbour, George Palmateer, of $3,000. The court holds that there is no evidence that James Seguire, father of the accused knew anything of the trans action in which his son and Palmateer were interested, so the son could not be guilty of conspiracy with him.

Palmateer received $3,250 from Seguire Senior to embark with the son on a deal in morphine at Montreal, but the deal never came together and the money, entrusted to Seguire disappeared without any morphine being forthcoming. Seguire says he bought the morphine and it was stolen. Palmateer says that Seguire told him the money had been stolen from him.

EARL HAIG DIED SUDDENLY TODAY

Commander - In - Chief Of British Armies In The Great War

66 YEARS OLD

Death Recalls Criticisms Of Lord Birkenhead And Some Others

London, Jan. 30.—Earl Haig, commander-in-chief of the British Armies in France during the war, died today. Death was believed to have been due to heart failure. He was 66 years old. The Marshal's death occurred just as he was on his way to London, after a collapse while sitting in the edge of his bed and died shortly afterwards.

It was a caustic article on the war written by Lord Birkenhead some time ago the article concluded as follows: "Haig emerges from the war placed him, with whatever limitations he had, among the immortals."

Unkind References

Lord Birkenhead, however, was somewhat critical of Earl Haig in connection with his supreme command. He said "it is not, of course, suggested that his leadership was not disfigured by many terrible errors. Indeed few of the great commanders in any of the armies of the world can be protected from this charge. The whose of the Passchendaele offensive was vehemently protested against by the cabinet as being, futile in its results and bloody in its consequences and was a tragic illustration of obstinate error, and the equally pitiful loss prolongation of the Battle of the Somme was one of the greatest follies of the war."

"The trouble was that some time he and his staff were entirely misled, but he cared for the health and welfare of his men no less than for their steadiness and stability. He nevertheless was inaccessible and was always a little remote. Often there are men in high places, and he is one, who, from sheer selflessness cannot understand the egotism that attaches a great to the familiar nod of the head and the motion of an outstretched hand. Haig loved George Tribute

A flood of tributes quickly followed the publication of the news that Earl Haig was dead. One of the earliest was from David Lloyd George, Britain's war Premier, who speaking of the time when the unity of command in war was the supreme issue, said "the high army practicer of the understand Foche said, "Whatever might have been Lloyd George's failings as a statesman he always behaved not once but many times like a great patriot, but like a great gentleman."

FIRE DESTROYS BANCROFT HOME

Loss Of $1500 In Early Morning Blaze In North

Fire destroyed a frame house occupied by Milton Steenburg at Bancroft early this morning, with a loss of $1500. The dwelling caught fire from an overheated pipe and spread rapidly in the dry timber portion while the family were asleep. It was with some difficulty that the family managed to make their escape from the burning building. The house which is situated in the business section in the village was owned by Chas. Mullett. The house was a complete loss and the owner carried only $250 insurance. Mr. Steenburg with the assistance of neighbors managed to carry out half of the contents but he carried no insurance on the effects. The fire was first discovered shortly after five o'clock this morning.

The Bancroft Fire Department was called to the scene but the conflagration was practically beyond control when the steam engine and chemicals were placed in service.

HAPPY AGAIN IF 'IN-LAWS' BEHAVE

Magistrate Thinks a Lot Of Marital Trouble Comes From Parents

Interfering mother-in-laws, father-in-laws, in fact all the "in-laws" were put in their proper place by Magistrate Mikel in Police Court this morning when he handed down some short but pungent words of advice to a young couple who had waged a bitter quarrel which had continued for three months.

"The fathers and mothers who interfere in their children's marriages should be sent to jail," stated His Worship at the conclusion of the case. "These people are absolutely curses to people in the country. They are the cause of more trouble in married home life and are the reason for so many unhappy homes."

Stanley Graham, an employee of the Foundation and Construction Company was charged by his wife with non-support in police court to-day, and a second charge of assault was laid against him.

Fined $12.00 a Week

Mrs. Graham claimed that her husband had not given her enough money for what he earned. Graham stated that he had earned on an average of about $12.00 a week for the last three months and out of that had given his wife about $30.00.

The wife said that when she went to her husband's boarding house and asked him for money that he had given her $8.00 and then thrown her on the street. She claimed that from her. The husband denied this and said that his sister had thrown the money back at him and refused to take it and that he had followed her for blocks trying to induce her to accept the much-needed "cash."

All Happy Again

The affair was straightened out and now the pair are happy once more and are going to live together, but His Worship believed that the "in-laws" were the cause of the greater part of the trouble and expressed himself strongly on that point.

There is no such thing as a "spotter" under the new Liquor Act!" thundered the Crown Attorney in Police Court this morning. "These men (referring to Provincial Officers, Grade B) are special Provincial Police Officers and there are no spotters at all in Ontario." This the outcome of a question put the accused, Frank Weir, of Stirling, who was charged in Police Court this morning with illegally "having" liquor, by Mr. A. B. Collins, counsel for the defense. John Scouse was the spotter who was asked by the defense lawyer what his occupation was, he stated that he was a "Provincial Officer, Grade B."

"Better known as a "spotter," eh?" dryly queried Mr. Collins.

Scouse Is His Car

Scouse, on the 13th of January, found some liquor, wine, in Weir's car in Stirling and today Weir was fined $100 and costs or three months in jail. The case against Weir was dismissed before court adjourned in the morning.

FLAMES DESTROY METROPOLITAN CHURCH IN EARLY MORNING HOURS

DIED TO-DAY

Earl Haig
Commander-in-Chief of the British Armies during the Great War, died suddenly this morning, aged 66 years.

Historic Edifice Centre Of Methodist Activity For Half Century

BARE WALLS LEFT

Fierce Fire Did Its Deadly Work In About Two Hours' Time

Toronto, Jan. 30.—For half a century regarded as the cathedral church of Methodism in Canada, the Metropolitan United Church was totally destroyed by fire early today and the cost of replacing it, if rebuilding is decided on, will be not less than half a million dollars, as a Conservative estimate. Starting from an overheated furnace in the basement, a raging fire, within two hours, totally demolished the interior and entirely consumed the roof of the edifice, leaving only two walls on the rear portion of the structure standing. In the meantime huge volumes of water were poured into the blaze but it was so fierce that there was no earthly hope of saving the church.

Carillon Was Saved

Last night the church clock, under Dr. H. A. Fricker who is also conductor of the famous Mendelsohn Choir, rendered its "Nunc Dimittis" concert action while by a remarkable coincidence Dr. Sedgewick preached from the theme "God who answers by fire". The great organ, one of the finest in Canada, was completely destroyed, but the carillon installed a few years ago by the late Massey Harris as a memorial to his wife was saved.

Destroyed In Two Hours

Toronto, Jan. 30.—Fire which broke out about four-thirty a.m. today practically destroyed the Metropolitan Church, one of he leading United Churches in the country. Only the walls and tower are left standing and the loss is estimated at half a million dollars. Origin of the fire has not yet been determined. Rev. Dr. W. H. Sedgewick, formerly of Hamilton, is pastor of the church.

The destruction of the church was noted by Rev. Dr. Sedgewick in his sermon. With terrific intensity flames wrecked the entire interior and totally demolished the roof, leaving only charred beams stretching across the top of the edifice. The walls remain with a few pieces of tile.

Fireman trained on the edifice practically the entire volume of water ever directed at a fire locally, six high pressure lines were used, literally drowning out the fire which, however already had done nearly its utmost.

Fifty Years Ago

The beautiful structure was built about fifty years ago and for years was the centre of Methodist activities in Toronto. Situated in the heart of the business district of the city at Queen and Church sreets, the Metropolitan stands on approximately two acres of ground. Only a few hundred being

FIRE THREATENS ENTIRE COLLEGE

Loss At Villa Nova Estimated At Over Two Million Dollars

Villa Nova, Penn., Jan. 30.—Swept by flames which for a time threatened the destruction of the entire institution, the main building of Villa Nova College group, was a mass of ruins today. The fire, starting adjoining the lofty tower of St. Thomas church were ignited by flying embers, but only slight damage resulted.

Hampered by lack of water and thunderclaps and snow which overspred the campus, 24 fire companies from surrounding towns, battled the blaze for six hours last night before it was brought under control.

Hundreds of students and priests fought side by side with firemen and some of them risked their lives in salvaging priceless college records and laboratory apparatus. Father Daniel Driscoll, procurator, estimated the loss at $2,200,000, not including the person al belongings of the students.

FRIENDS

One of the most successful business men of the United States has given his opinion as to the most valuable thing in life. It is not wealth, nor ease, nor knowledge, nor pleasure, nor any of the things which are commonly held in the greatest esteem—but human friendship. Now, if we were given a choice, and promised the fulfilment of our earnest wish, how many of us would choose "a true friend" in preference to material possessions? Not very many, it is to be supposed. Was this rich man in earnest, then, when he spoke as he did? He is by no means alone in his opinion. Look back over history, how many times in books of ancient wisdom has friendship been extolled; over and over again in the Bible we find friendship commended as the most precious of human blessings; the classical writers of Greece and Rome were forever dwelling on this theme, and coming to recent times, there is scarcely anything which occupies a more important place in modern poetry and prose. The friends thou hast, and their adoption tried, grapple them to thy soul with hoops of steel," Shakespeare puts into the mouth of old Polonius as the best advice he can give to his son, Laertes. Nothing can buy the affection of a real friend, it is given without thought of return, out of sheer regard and with no ulterior motive. That explains why the rich man can find nothing to compare in value with the worth of a true friend. Richer, says the cynic, with command an army of friends; but that is not true. So-called friends who flatter, for the sake of personal advantage, are not to be reckoned as friends at all. It is the one who likes us just as well when we are in no position to reward him who qualifies for the honored name of friend. We are reminded of the school boy's definition of a friend—"One who knows you and likes you all the same." He it is who is to be grappled with hoops of steel, in Shakespeare's phrase.

Young people should be very careful in the choice of friends. Read further in the Shakespearian speech and you will find that Polonius warns his son against making too hasty friendships. It is a very necessary warning. For such a good friend can exert a beneficial influence over a person's life, it is dangerous in the extreme to make a friend of any one who is not good. Better far to live lonely than to consort with the vicious. True friends—desirable friends, unselfish and of noble character, who are prepared to bear with us in all our moods—these are rare. In the course of a lifetime—even a long lifetime—but one or two such friendships are made, and when they are formed in youth, it is a great good fortune. Throughout our lives the influence of such early associations will endure.

ADELAIDE ROBLIN

The death of Lady Roblin, wife of Sir Redmond P. Roblin, a former premier of this province, removes another of those pioneers who came West in the half-century-ago period to face the trials and vicissitudes of a new land.

Young men—now the veterans—fired with the enthusiasm of youth, had the great temptation of adventure, as well as rare opportunity. They were the advance guards of the homesteaders, later building the railways and the highways. It seemed then a country for men and men alone. Women were few. Sir Redmond came to Manitoba in 1877. His life partner followed three years later. She joined her husband in establishing a fine centre of beautiful home-life in then sparsely-settled Carman district, treking thither by horse and buggy from Emerson, at that time the northern terminal of the railway making its way from the south into Canadian territory.

A poet has said:

Seek to be good, but aim not to be great;
A woman's noblest station is Retreat:
Her fairest virtues fly from public sight;
Domestic worth—that shuns too strong a light.

Lady Roblin, throughout a long, useful and beautiful life, sought not to be great, but to be good. Her husband for many decades prominent in the public service, a man virtually decorated from his youth up to be a leader among men, found his retreat and his solace, midst the stress of business and political duties, in the quiet of a home, blessed by "God's rarest, blessing, a good woman."

Lady Roblin in older age, as in youth, was always thinking of others, and what she might do to help others, where she was known, and she was known by many people and in many places, her memory will remain a benediction.—Winnipeg Tribune.

A YOUNG FIR WOOD

These little firs today are things
To clasp into a giant's cap,
Or fans to suit his lady's lap.
From many winters many springs
Shall stretch them, in strength and sap,
Till they be marked upon the map,
A wood for the wind's wanderings.

And all need is in the sower's hand.
And what at first was trained to spread
Its shelter for some single head—
Yea even such fellowship of wands
May hide the sunset, and the shade
Of its great multitude be laid
Upon the earth and elder sands.

ANNUAL BANQUET OF MT. VIEW W. I.

The second annual banquet of the Women's Institute was held in the basement of Mount Zion Church on the evening of January 17.

The long tables were a goodly sight, laden with everything that could be wished for in the culinary line, provided by the members of the Institute of Mountain View and Huff's Island. Interspersed at intervals were beautiful potted plants, vases, epergnes and primroses, kindly furnished from the greenhouses of S. B. Potter, Esq.

After all had done justice to the many good things, a splendid toast list was carried out with Mr. Grant Sprague as toastmaster.

The toastmaster proposed the toast to the King which was responded to by all singing the National Anthem. "Our Country" was next, proposed by Mr. Van Dusen and ably responded to by Mr. H. J. Parliament. A splendid address by Mr. P. C. McLaurin was then given in his usual scholarly and finished style.

The toast to "Our Visitors" was proposed by Mr. John Black and responded to by Major R. D. Ponton in a very pleasing address to which he referred to P. E. Co. being a Royal County with three of its townships named after children of Geo. III. The Farmers was proposed by Mr. Alfred Potte and responded to by Mr. P. B. Hamilton and Mr. J. Hatfield. Then came the toast to "The Ladies" proposed by Mr. Sprague and responded to by Miss Beatrice Jones in a very excellent talk on Institute work and activities. The programme was interspersed with very acceptable solos by Mr. Howard.

At the conclusion, the President, Mrs. John Black in a few well-chosen remarks thanked the visitors who had so materially helped with the evening's entertainment after which the singing of "God Save the King" brought the evening to a close.

W. M. S. MEETING AT PLEASANT VIEW

The January meeting of the Pleasant View W. M. S. met at the parsonage, Wednesday afternoon, January 27, with 11 members present. After singing "Standing at the Portal," the President led in prayer. The minutes of last meeting were then read and adopted. The resignation of our treasurer, Mrs. Phillips, was then accepted.

It was moved by Mrs. Harris and seconded by Mrs. C. Vermilyea that Mrs. W. Holmes act as treasurer.

The expenses of the delegates to the Presbyterial at Picton were paid which amounted to $6.50. It was decided that Mrs. Lloyd and Mrs. Holmes buy material for sewing.

Our Pastor, Rev. E. Sexsmith, then offered prayer, also for the Sunday-school at our missionary efforts for the coming year. He was then asked to open the chapter of the Mission Study Book, Christian Missions and Racial Prejudices. This was much appreciated by all present.

Mrs. Harris and Mrs. W. Holmes, the delegates to Picton, gave their reports which brought home to many, new ideas for the work for 1928.

It was moved by Mrs. C. Holmes, and seconded by Mrs. Vermilyea, that a day of prayer be held in the church and that invitations be sent to Carmi ton, Alkens, Scotch and Wallbridge Auxiliaries to join us with the members on that day.

The meeting closed by repeating the watchword, after which a dainty luncheon was served, the hostesses being Mrs. Sexsmith and Mrs. Dotter. Collection was $1.30.

Somehow badness is far more contagious than goodness.

DIVORCE TO BE DISCUSSED SOON

At Parliament; Subject Will Be Thrown Open For Debate

Ottawa, (By Canadian Press) — The subject of divorce will be thrust into the Parliament of Canada at the session which has just opened. By a private bill to be introduced by Senator Willoughby of Moose Jaw the whole matter of divorce as it affects the province of Ontario will be thrown open to debate. Senator Willoughby's bill would remove Ontario divorce cases from the jurisdiction of parliament and transfer them to the Supreme Court of the province.

At the present time a special committee of the Senate of Canada hears all applicants for divorce from Ontario and Quebec. Witnesses are called and heard and hearings are given to the opponents of the applications. In short, the Senate Divorce Committee fulfills all the functions of a court. Such divorces as the committee sees fit to grant are put through both the Senate and the House of Commons as private bills, each requiring three readings and a committee stage. This system is regarded by many as cumbersome and expensive in the matter of parliamentary time. The Senate committee is always at a disadvantage in that while performing the functions of a court it has not the power to prosecute for perjury or other breaches of law.

The increased number of divorces coming from the provinces of Ontario and Quebec (the other provinces handle divorce by local courts) have now risen to a point which requires the appointment in Parliament and the committees were required to meet the ride of applications. Between 1922 and 1926 almost 800 divorces were granted by parliament.

Senator Willoughby, who has served as chairman of the Senate Divorce Committee, introduced his bill at the last session of parliament when it passed the Upper House without opposition and had only been introduced into the House of Commons when Parliament was prorogued. The Senator has announced his intention of re-introducing the bill this year.

The bill if passed, will give Ontario the same divorce law as that of Great Britain in the year 1870. The general grounds upon which divorces will be granted will be adultery, or non-consummation. The provinces of Manitoba Saskatchewan and Alberta have the same code applying with the slight variation that the publication of divorce evidence is forbidden. This has been a feature of the work of the Senate committee of divorce. It was forbidden under the Criminal Code of Canada to reprint any of the evidence taken during divorce hearings. Evidence was reprinted and printed for private circulation among members of parliament and Senators who were called upon to pass the bills. Only in rare instances have divorce bills been contested and

JUST WATCH MILADY IN DAY'S ACTIVITIES

By LOUIS E. BISCH

Woman is, by instinct, exceedingly active, while man is fundamentally indolent and lazy.

It happens, however, that because man's work—his activity—is more noticeable and apparent than woman's, he has been given credit for being the more active. Man has a greater capacity for work, but he doesn't work unless he has to.

Woman, on the other hand, works whether she has to or not. Observe the average woman in this connection. It she not forever doing something. Jussing about something?

Women restlessly jump from one form of activity to another. They sew, they clean house, they attend to the children, they play the piano, they trim a hat, they gossip, they play cards they cook, they talk and knit at the same time.

Many a woman does all of this and more beside in a single day. Even those who have the opportunity for leisure are forever busying themselves in some way. They may lie down, but how often do they do absolutely nothing? Usually they read or smoke. Seldom do they relax or just think.

Undoubtedly the habit of smoking among women has largely been motivated by their restless spirit. Women do not as a rule smoke because they enjoy it. They smoke because it gives them something to do. Women smoke because it takes care of her overplus energy, and that is why every woman who smokes tends to overdo it.

In all her activities she often goes to extremes.

But this does not mean that woman therefore builds constantly—as one might suppose. On the contrary, woman's work is often quite desultory. She does not work with a definite purpose, as a man does. She works simply to have something to do, and what she work happens to be does not so much matter.

Man only works when there is a reason arid he must. He works to make a living, or to achieve an ambition, or both. Woman works, not to help herself materially, but to help somebody else.

We find young women, therefore, quite willing and eager to enter any sort of employment that will benefit the family. Young girls often work so that a brother may be put through college. Wives gladly go to work in a shop or factory or office when the husband falls sick and the family budget is seriously threatened.

This restlessness on the part of the feminine nature dovetails, of course, with the demands made upon motherhood. The rearing of children and the maintaining of a home mean ceaseless activity and of a very varied nature A woman finds a lot of satisfaction in this. A man never could.

Men often do not know what to do with their time. One notices this in older men who retire from active business. These men are lost aboutlofty. They soon become disconcerted. It may make them positively ill. Sometimes they deteriorate mentally because of this unproductive idleness.

But women never are at a loss how to fill in time. Have you ever noticed how seen appears to jobs in which they sit around and look important?

The semblance of work rather than actual work suffices for a man. For a woman—never.

Woman must be busy to be happy.

CANADIANS SHOULD HAVE CULTURE NOW

Montreal, Que.—Canadians have got beyond the pioneer stage and should have a well defined culture that will measure favorably with that of European nations, Dr. Robert Falconer, president of the University of Toronto, declared before a largely-attended meeting of the Montreal Women's Club.

"We have, in the past, been accustomed to deprecate criticism when we have heard people say that Canadians are somewhat crude; you haven't any great artists or any great literature.' We have heard that pretty often. We have been accustomed to say: 'Well, we are a young people. We have been making a country for ourselves and haven't had time for these things.'

"That may have been an excuse, but that excuse can hold good no longer. We Canadians have to make up our minds in the coming generation, now that we are out in the world and the pioneer days are over, that we are going to have ourselves judged by the best, whatever it is, intellectually, morally, artistically and spiritually.

"We have also any art gallery in Europe; watch the people, listen to their remarks about the pictures, and see who they are—not wealthy folk who care afforded to buy the pictures, but just ordinary people.

"That is the sort of thing we have to develop in Canada. We are far enough up in comfort now to step out into larger development."

Use hot water for sprinkling clothes. It is it too hot use a new whiskbroom.

Automatic windshield wiper, rear view mirror, speedometer, ride light, gasoline gauge, etc. are a few features of the equipment of the new Ford. A phone call will have it Believed. Motors demonstrate one to you today, then you'd be wise to place your order for later delivery.

No More Piles

Pile sufferers can only get quick, safe and lasting relief by treating the cause—bad blood circulation in the lower bowel. Cutting and salves can't do this—an internal remedy must be used. Dr. Leonhard's Hemroid, a harmless tablet, succeeds because it relieves this blood congestion and strengthens the affected parts. Hem-Roid has a wonderful record for quick, safe and lasting relief to Pile sufferers. It will do the same for you or money back. J. S. CHAPTER 62.
THE NEW ACQUAINTANCE

Jack Farquahar was sitting in the lobby of his hotel, reading a newspaper and awaiting a telephone-call from Lila. She'd promised to dine with him in the races that afternoon.

The gold-plated lounge-lizards admiring chair leaned forward suddenly.

"Beg pardon, but have you a match?" A Farquahar produced a box, struck a light, and touched it to his neighbor's cigarette.

"Thanks," said the other. "I've a lighter, but it's out of gas."

"I picked up one in France that's very good," remarked Farquahar, "but I never remember to fill it, so it's not much use to me."

"You were in France?" asked the stranger quickly. "So was I. What division?"

The inevitable acquaintance was made then and there. They talked of their war experiences for the next half hour, when Lila's telephone-call summoned Farquahar.

The stranger's glance followed him; a moment later, he rose and sauntered carelessly in the direction of the telephone-booths. He acquired glance at the switchboard-operator resulted in her casual nod toward another booth. He waited, carefully enough, remained unlighted.

The stranger entered it.

"Jack," Lila was saying hurriedly, "I can't possibly make it today. I'm frightfully sorry, but there are reasons—"

"I've no doubt," he agreed dryly. "And I can guess their gender."

Lila ignored the implication.

"Tomorrow, dear," she promised.

"That's what you said yesterday, then. I came for tea, and you sent me away."

"But I was ill, really, Jack. I had a frightful headache."

"Speaking of illness, how's your father?"

His letter—or worse," she declared hastily.

"I'll give you one more fortnight," said Farquahar grimly. "After that—"

"What?" she queried tremulously.

"You come to me!"

Farquahar hung up the receiver with decision.

When he returned to the lobby he found that the rather interesting stranger with whom he had recently had a chat was no longer there.

He glanced at his watch, hesitated, then called a cab and was driven uptown.

Meanwhile, Lila, who had telephoned to him from Dorothy's studio, sat slumped in her chair, the picture of woe and desolation.

"I can't see why you're so sad, Lila," Dorothy remarked, for the fifth time. "You say yourself that Herbert's been fairly angelic since the episode of the missing jewels."

"That's just it! Something's up, I know it!" declared Lila. "Do you think Herbert would pass over such a thing? No, my dear. Not in a million years! I tell you, I'm fairly sick. I had to send Jack away yesterday, because my head was splitting—I hadn't slept a wink—and now he's gone! What am I going to do?"

Dorothy made her lie down on the couch. She brewed tea and forced her to drink it.

"Maybe this will buck you up. This is not the time to lie down in the dame said Dorothy.

Lila frowned and closed her eyes. Dorothy went back to her work, and Lila dozed for a long time in the cheery studio. Finally the subdued clang of the knocker broke the stillness Dorothy opened the door.

"Why—Captain Farquahar!"

"I've come to claim your promise to give me tea," he said boldly.

"I never promished!" said Dorothy, with mock indignation. "This is taking an unfair advantage. But come in, Captain. I've some one here you want very much to see."

He followed her wonderingly.

"Hello, Jack!" murmured Lila weakly, opening one eye.

He stopped still; a flush mounted slowly in his lean cheeks. Then he said, quickly:

"What is it, Lila. Are you ill?"

He came to her side and took her hands in his.

"Just sort of no good, Jack," she smiled wanly. "What do you think I've got, Dot?" she demanded languidly.

"Cold feet," said Dorothy, with a laugh and a little grimace behind Farquahar's back.

"Both on earth are you two talking about?" he demanded.

"Nothing much!" Lila suddenly flushed him with a glare. "How dare you call on Dot behind my back?"

He looked flushed again, as naively as a boy.

"Because I've been told you don't love you, if he ever finds out," went on Lila wickedly.

She had reached such a depth of misery that she was rather enjoying herself. It seemed impossible that she could sink any lower in her depth of despair, so she supposed she might as well be flippant, even at her own expense.

"Is Mr. Ware indiscreet?" asked Jack Farquahar asked, glancing at Dorothy.

"Is he?" answered Lila for her fervently, and unwisely. For Farquahar looked at her sharply and raised his brows eloquently.

"You seem to know a great deal about it," he remarked dryly.

"I'm not Dot's friend and confidante for nothing," declared Lila.

She dragged herself up from the couch and reached for her hat.

"Stay here with Dot, Jack. I'm going home. I feel ill—honestly."

Rather to her surprise and greatly to her relief, he made no protest. He even let her go down-stairs alone to her car.

There was a man loitering in the vestibule, apparently intent on a scrutiny of the letter-boxes. He opened the door politely for Lila.

Later, he watched her drive away. When her car had turned the corner, he leaped for a taxi and told the driver to follow.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young girl of sixteen and in love with a boy seven years my senior. This boy is in love with another girl, and my mother disapproves of my going with him because he is going with this other girl. I do not want to give up this boy because I like him. Please advise me.

UNDECIDED.

UNDECIDED: You are much too young to be at all concerned about love affairs. You could advise you to be guided by your mother's advice. If this boy is in love with another girl, it might indeed be wise to discontinue your friendship before you let yourself become unduly concerned about him. You should have many friends, my dear and I must urge you to be content with friendship alone and put aside all thoughts of love until you are quite a bit older and more capable of understanding yourself and this complex emotion.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl of sixteen and have many boy and girl friends, and am invited to many parties. My parents do not allow me to have dates. Please tell me if they are right?

BETTY.

BETTY: I quite agree with your parents, my dear. You are indeed too young to be concerned about dates. I would advise you to be guided by the advice of your parents; they are concerned primarily for your welfare and I am sure when the proper time comes they will permit you to have all the boy friends you care to. I would suggest that you devote yourself to your school work and activities and make yourself an interesting and companionable woman, so that your personality will be charming and you will be sought after. Do not be impatient, Betty, and rest assured that you will lose nothing by waiting a while for the privilege of going out with boys.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

For the past year I was engaged to a man several years my senior, for whom I loved very dearly and still do. But a few weeks ago he suddenly disappeared and I have not heard from him since, although I heard indirectly that he is not ill or anything like that.

Should I try to find him? He also owes money to several parties in town. Should I try to pay them saying he asked me to? Although he did not.

LONESOME.

LONESOME: Prove your letter I am inclined to think that you are well rid of this man and I urge you to make every effort to put him out of your mind. It does not sound probable that this man should suddenly leave town, neglected to several people unless he were involved in some unpleasant affair. By no means should you take upon yourself the responsibility of paying his debts. You do not know where he is or if he plans to come back, my dear, and I advise you to do nothing unless you hear from him. Try to forget him, my dear, and enjoy the companionship of your other friends. If I am wrong and this man's actions are justifiable from some other point of view, he will surely write you some word of explanation and unless he does just that, I must again caution you to forget about him.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl sixteen years of age. My father says I am too young to go with the boys. I slip away once in awhile with a boy. Do you think there is any harm in doing this?

WONDERING.

WONDERING: I must caution you to be guided by your fathers' advice, my dear, and I quite agree that you are too young to be allowed to go out with the boys. I urge you to discontinue this practice of needing this boy secretly as you will only incur your father's displeasure and disquiet if you continue to do this. Also you will forfeit this boy's good opinion if you meet him away from your home. I would most sincerely advise you to abide by the wishes of your father! he is concerned for your welfare and will permit you to go with boys when you are old enough and so on. At present, you should be occupied with your studies and school activities, and should have no time to worry about boys.

Turn Hair Dark With Sage Tea

By JEAN MACON

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and then making at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product for only 75 cents, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

ALL the joy of masquerading—of "dressing up"—is typified in this frock which so deceitfully suggests a costume of some ravishing fete at Versailles and yet includes so much that is distinctly modern. There are never more than one or two such frocks at any time, so their distinction is striking. In this case the subtle minds of the advanced designers are seen in the ever popular uneven hem line, the fashionable bow of metallic ribbon, and the vivid contrast between the simplicity of the bodice and the complication of the skirt allowed or gathered skirt. The personality of the wearer may be reflected by the use of materials and the varied cut of the neckline. For the perky miss, taffeta, radium, or organdie. The former with net edged skirt and the latter with lace. For the more dignified and older person, soft satin, satin crepe, or fabric, or velvet with edged skirt; and the neck cut by a low V in back or perhaps with the bodice held by shoulder straps and the skirt very straight at the bottom. DELIGHTFUL PARTY.

Miss Hannah M. Golden gave a delightful party at her home on Hillcrest Ave., on Friday to her teacher and class form. The evening was spent in games and music. The party broke up about 11.45 with all giving the school cheer; singing, "She's a jolly good fellow," and "God Save the King."

NOT "THE "LIVE WIRES."

In Friday's issue of The Intelligencer a complaint appeared which had been sent in by a resident on Victoria Avenue. The complaint was to the effect that his garbage had been upset by young people on a sleigh drive. As the "Live Wires" Class of the Bridge Street School was the only one reported in the paper although there had been others it left the impression on the public that they must have been the culprits. As chairman of that sleigh drive I would like to inform the resident and the public in general that the sleigh drive in question went up Victoria Avenue at 7 o'clock and at 8.30 we were home and there were no acts of disorderly or rowdyism on our sleigh drive.

The new Ford is remarkably easy to handle; a relaxed hand on the steering wheel will hold the car steady in loose snow and over rough roads. And it has a turning radius of 17'. Have Belleville Motors show you.

located immediately to the north while to the west is St. Michael's hospital.

For many years, the church has attracted some of Methodism's outstanding preachers, not only in Canada, but in Great Britain. Among the predecessors of Dr. Sedgewick have been Dr. Dr. Trevor Davis, now pastor of Timothy Eaton Memorial Church, Toronto, and Rev. Dr. Wm. Stafford another prominent old country divine.

Fire fighters report that the flames spread rapidly and in a remarkable rate and it was impossible to do more than prevent the conflagration from spreading, some apprehension being felt for the safety of patients in St. Michael's but from the start, the sparks were confined to the church area.

Many of the fine memorial windows were smashed by the great force of water used and others were wrecked by the fire itself.

CANADIAN CLUB PROMISE TREAT

Noted Traveller And Lecturer To Speak At Meeting Tonight

Something different and decidedly worth attending is promised to members of the Women's Canadian Club this evening when they will be privileged to hear Mrs. Madge MacBeth in a lecture on the subject of what will be "Trail-Rangers." Mrs. MacBeth is a writer and lecturer on travel and in this field has gained much renown.

Her wide experiences gained in travel and her perfect familiarity with beautiful maps her lectures particularly interesting and her enthusiasm and the happy personality which she possesses adds a further grace quite apart frogther subject. Mrs. MacBeth is the writer of a many books which have been well received and is a regular contributor to the Canadian Geographical Magazine. "Home and Garden" and other Canadian magazines.

The Canadian Club are especially fortunate in securing the renowned lecturer but arrangements for her coming were somewhat retarded so that the regular announcements were unable to be published in full. A full attendance is expected. Mrs. MacBeth comes from a lecture to the Women's Canadian Club in Montreal where she was most enthusiastically received and those yet engaged to hear her should not miss the chance to attend a splendid lecture this evening in the Lecture Room of The Armouries.

DEATHS & FUNERALS

JOHN McMAHON

The funeral of the late John McMahon was held this morning from the home in his nephew, Thomas McMahon, East Moira street, to St. Michael's Church where a requiem high mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Killeen in the presence of many sorrowing relatives and friends. There were also many spiritual offerings on the casket. The females were placed in St. Michael's Cemetery south to await spring interment.

The bearers were Messrs. M. J. Lynch, John Donovan, James Boyle, A. Burgoyne, H. Logue and George Hamilton.

MRS. SARAH BATES

Mrs. Sarah Bates died at the Belleville General Hospital yesterday after noon following an illness of some dur ation.

The late Mrs. Bates was born in Oxford, England, in the year 1848, and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Dale. She lived in this vicinity most of her life. Her husband died about 45 years ago.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. George Vandervoort, Belleville; Mrs. William Wilson, Toronto; Mrs. R. Del Barrett, Trenton, and one son, William Bates, Trenton.

The interment will be made at St. George's Cemetery, Trenton.

MRS. SARAH WILSON

All that was mortal of the late Mrs Sarah Wilson was laid to rest in the Belleville Cemetery Mausoleum Vault on Saturday afternoon, following an impressive service held in the funeral chapel of the Belleville Burial Company. By Rev. John A. Vicar of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, who also officiated at the committal in the mausoleum. The beautiful floral tributes from friends were mute evidence of sorrow caused by the death of the deceased.

The bearers were intimate friends of the late Mrs. Wilson.

WILLIAM EDWARD PATTON

William Edward Patton died this morning at his late home, 166 Mary street, at the age of 78 years.

The late Mr. Patton was born in Belleville and resided here all his life where he was engaged in blacksmithing and cattle buying. The deceased was a member of St. Michael's Church and a man who was held in high esteem by all with whom he came in contact.

Surviving besides the sorrowing widow, are one daughter, Mrs. C. H. Wilcox, Hamilton; two sons, William Patton, Spencer, N.H.; William, at home, and one sister, Mrs. John Fahey, Belleville.

MARY RITA O'CALLAGHAN

Mary Rita O'Callaghan, infant daughter of Dr. and Mrs. M. J. O'Callaghan, died at the home of her parents, 249 George street, this morning, following an illness of some duration.

LORD SACKVILLE DEAD

Seven Earls, Retired Soldier, January 30.— Lord Sackville, owner of Knole, one of the finest Elizabethan homes in England died this morning of a heart attack following influenza and pneumonia.

The heir to the barony is his brother, Major-General Sir Charles Sackville-West, who married Miss Anne Meredith Bigelow, United States actress, in New York in 1924.

Ceremonies may differ, but true politeness is ever the same.

MOIRA WATERS INUNDATE PARK

Anchor Ice Diverts Water In Direction Of Harbor —Flood Dangers

Victoria Park is nearly under water with the central part of the peninsula particularly inundated by the waters which have risen above the wall on the river side. Little trouble is noticed. Old-timers state that the water has assumed a high level for his time of year with the ice reaching within four feet of the railway bridge. The anchor ice in the shallows of the park has blocked the channels through which the waters flow and consequently it has been forced over the park. Dangers of a flood will be lessened in the advent of warm weather but with the present cold spell continuing and the channel blocked, residents near the western limit near the river are expressing possibilities of the recurrence of the flood. It is not known whether the Council will take any action in regard to the services of Dr. H. L. Barrett, Trenton, expert, this year. One of the proprietors of a boat livery reports that the water is three feet high on the floor of the shed. The civic rink on the harbor has now become an impossibility this year.

SEARCH FAILED TO SHOW TRACE

Four Men In Cabin Cruiser Disappeared In Lake Ontario

Kingston, Jan. 30.—No further developments occurred today in search for the cabin cruiser "Sea Hawk" and the crew of four men, who started out from Rochester on Jan. 18 on a trial trip and have not been heard from since. Harry Walker, of Oswego, N.Y., brother of one of the missing men, and P. H. Wilcox, of Rochester, have returned to Watertown after a visit by aeroplane here. Their arrival was followed by word that the search of the lea of the harbor here yesterday had failed. The search is expected to return in another plane with necessary parts to repair it.

Those Are Known

Donald Walker whose address is 39 Hamilton street, Rochester, is the owner, and the identity of two of Walker's three companions in the missing craft was established at Cobourg last night. They were named as Monroe Mallette and his cousin, James Mallette, both of Oswego, by Mrs. Joseph Ashley, of Cobourg, a sister of Mallette. Mallette is employed by the Chesler airplane company and his wife and four children live at Oswego. Mrs. Ashley said.

The boat did not belong to the men but it was understood that it belonged to the family of one of the quartette. A trial trip of the boat to Oswego or Cobourg was contemplated. One of the four missing men was said to be a Canadian.

TODAYS MARKETS

Corn Prices Steady

Chicago, Jan. 30.—Corn prices steadied early today after a moderate initial sag. Receipts of corn in Chicago, although large, failed to reach as heavy a total as had been looked for. Opening unchanged to 4 3-8 to 1-2c off the corn market soon reacted going in some cases to above Saturday's finish. Wheat was easy, starting unchanged to 5-8c lower and subsequently keeping near to this range. Oats showed but little alternative. Provisions tended to decline.

CHICAGO GRAINS

Chicago, Jan. 30.—Wheat Mar. 130 1-8, May 130 5-8. Corn Mar. 86 7-8, May 87 1-4. Oats Mar. 50 3-8, May 50 1-4

EXCHANGE RATES

New York, Jan. 30.—Foreign exchanges steady, demand rates in cents. Great Britain 485 1-2; France, francs dollars, 3-16 of one per cent. discount.

CLOSING QUOTATIONS

Market Reactionary

New York, Jan. 30.—Pronounced reactionary tendencies developed in today's stock market in apparent reaction of speculative uneasiness over the credit situation. Call money reversed at 4 1-2 per cent but advanced to five in the early afternoon as banks called $25,000,000 in loans, presumably for out-of-town account and to settle investment. Trading was only moderately heavy in volume. The stock market had discriminating support and time money an t commercial paper rates last week, however, continued unchanged largely, however, in a limited assortment of good specialties but the failure of the market to share in the advance led to heavy profit taking and the reaction was general.

THIRTY-FIVE DEAD

Bastavia, Java, Jan. 30.—Thirty-five men were drowned in a fire in the coal at Sawaroo. Twenty-four other miners are missing, nine bodies had been recovered this afternoon.

The farther a man gets away from home the more he exaggerates his importance.

TALKED ON NEW TRADE PROBLEMS

Rotarians Hear Address From C. L. Burton—Manager Of Simpson's

"It is perhaps still possible for a business with plenty of capital and technical knowledge to succeed without high record standards but it usually happened, said Mr. C. L. Burton, Managing Director of the Robert Simpson Company of Toronto in his talk to the Rotarians at noon today. Mr. Burton spoke on "Changing Conditions in Merchandising", particularly as concerns the retail trade and dealt with the varied conditions brought about by the large mail order houses and the chain stores. He is one of the men in Canada best qualified from his experience to talk on this subject and his remarks were keenly enjoyed by his audience.

Mr. Burton digressed somewhat from his main subject to discuss the possible Hyro Electric development on the St. Lawrence River. He is of the opinion that ti must become an international question, pointing out that the part of the River touching Ontario was an international boundary. Two-thirds of the possible developments of power from the St. Lawrence lies within the borders of Quebec and if Ontario attempts to block the proper development it is within the range of probability that Quebec may go ahead and thus accuse a big industrial lead on this Province.

In a two minute talk Mr. Charles Cameron said he was confident he could operate in the work of obtaining good trading results for the various publicity hropic institutions in the city. Books and magazines including books suitable for young children, will e gratefully accepted as the office of M.P. Joseph Bancroft, Boy of the Y.M.C.A. where the Committee headed by Mr. Cameron will take charge of them and they will be distributed to the Good Peoples' Home, the Children's Shelter, the public wards at the Hospital, the County Jail, etc.

DEATH OF NEW YORK CAPITALIST

Science Has Found a Way

It was only a short time ago that science found a way of putting long distance telephone lines in cables. Already the first big job of erecting telephone cable (106 miles from Toronto to Buffalo) is nearing completion. Eighteen miles of the cable are underground, and the latest type of motor-driven trench-digging machine completes one 1,100 feet of trench per day. The job will cost over $1,000,000, but cables resist sleet storms so much better than open wire that in the long run substantial saving will be effected, with a more assured service.

SHIP'S CAPTAIN ONCE A BOLD PIRATE

Chicago, Ill. Commodore Herbert Hartley, master of the Leviathan, once terrorized Spanish Main pirate on the high seas. Relating the incident in an address here he said he had sailed from New York on the "Louisville" on March 17, 1917. He defied the German edict that all United States vessels be painted with alternate red and white stripes, and follow a course prescribed by the German high command, and carried no such marks and followed his own course. His ship was armed. Several days out it occurred to him that he was without a commission to command an armed vessel.

Technically, the veteran host to transAtlantic travelers said, he was a pirate. The ship and its crew received a great ovation when they reached Liverpool. Its battle record, carrying guns and guard as an indication that the United States was in the war with the allies. War was not declared until three weeks later.

FOUL PLAY IS FEARED

Chicoutimi, Que., January 30.—No damage was caused by the earth tremors reported in fire parishes, Tadousac, St. Simeon, Ste. Marguerite, Anse St. Jean and Malbaie Saguenay district, yesterday.

The tremors which, according to reports received here, were as violent as the earthquake which shook Canada and the eastern United States four years ago, were not felt in Chicoutimi.

BROCKVILLE WOMAN SUICIDES

Brockville, Ont., January 30.—Body of Mary Gladstone, 54-year-old spinster, was found by her father, William Gladstone, in the summer kitchen of their home today. She had committed suicide by hanging after being in ill-health for some months.

News Of Movies

BELE THEATRE

International brains and ability have been assembled for "Started Wire," Pola Negri's newest starring vehicle for Paramount.

The film play, which is an adaptation of "The Woman of Knockaloe" by Hall Caine, the noted English novelist, is a tremendous story of wartime behind the lines, the locale being a German prisoners' camp in France.

Rowland V. Lee, an American, directed the picture, his first under his new Paramount contract.

Erich Pommer, the continental person responsible for "The Last Laugh," "Variety" and other unique Germanmade films, supervised. Baron Gustav von Koczian, a Hungarian, assisted Mr. Pommer.

Einar Hanson, the Swedish actor, plays the role of the Brother. Gustav von Seyffertitz, German, has the heavy role.

The technical advisor was Louis Van den Ecker, for nine years with the French Foreign Legion.

And so the list could continue, calling the roll of cinema notables world powers through their representatives on the Pola Negri set.

The part of Mona, the French girl, is ideally written for Miss Negri's generality. It is keenly dramatic, thoroughly human, and basically simple. Today at the Bele.

REGENT THEATRE

Irene Rich, the charming star of Warner Brothers' "Don't Tell the Wife," now at the Regent Theatre, in the part of Madame Cartier, shows new scintillations of delicate blushing humor, never before seen in her characterizations.

There has always been a wistful haunting quality in her personality. There is a poignancy in which she is past mistress. There is unfailing poise. She has the ability to stir audiences to unbelievable tearfulness. But in "Don't Tell the Wife" she, behind apparent effort, moves her beholders to breezy laughter, and that is truly a great accomplishment.

There is also a Universal Comedy.

PLAGUE OF RATS IN LONDON

London, January 30.—Rats which the recent floods have driven from the riverside have become a serious menace in South Lambeth.

It was reported today that rats suffering from hunger have invaded the living rooms of houses in this city. Here in search of food, even though people are in the rooms. At night the rats enter bedrooms and terrify the occupants.

GOT AWAY WITH $3,000

Milwaukee, Wis., January 30.—Two men believed to be Chicago gangsters who boasted of being members of a machine gun, held up members of the Wisconsin Athletic Club shortly after midnight, slugged one man, cut telephone wires and escaped with currency and jewellery worth $25,000.

MELROSE W. I. HOLD ANNUAL MEETING

The Melrose Women's Institute held their annual open meeting in the former Methodist Church, Melrose, Thursday evening, Jan. 26.

The meeting opened by singing the Institute Ode. This repeated the Lord's Prayer which was followed by Community singing.

The Debate was given next by four school teachers of the neighborhood, Resolved that a west tempered military woman is preferable to a quick tempered city one, which was most interesting being so well given. Negative side winning.

We were then favored with a solo by Mrs. P. Morden, a music selection from Mr. and Mrs. Fred Robinson and son; Ainie Laurie was then sung by John Leach given very nicely in his Scotch accent. Mrs. Orrin McLaren gave a very suitable reading "The Model Wife"; a solo by Alex Allison.

A vote of thanks was given to those who so ably gave debate, judges, and all who so kindly helped to make our meeting a success, made known by a hearty clapping of hands.

We had sold tickets on a quilt making $13.70, Mr. G. Badgely bring the one to have lucky ticket and afterwards gave the quilt to a young man of the neighbourhood. Collection $8.20. Dainty refreshments were then served.

MARMORA

Mr. William Noffall, Peterboro, was in town on Tuesday.

Mr. Charles Derry who has resided in the West for a number of years is visiting relatives here.

Nurse Watt, of London, is spending a few days with her sister, Miss Grace Watt, at Deloro.

Miss Lela Clements, of Tranlize, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Orville Leonard.

Mr. Thos. McInroy has moved into one of the Pearce Company residences situated near the Methodist church recalled.

Miss Gertrude Blakely and Messrs. Johnson and Milton Blakely, of Warsaw, were guests of their sister, Miss Blakely over the week end.

Mr. Finn Melvair, of Toronto, received acquaintances in Deloro and Marmora this week.

Mr. C. Haig spent an evening in town last week.

Mr. Isaac Neal, of Maple Creek, Sask., is on a visit to his brother, Mr. A. T. Neal after an absence of twenty years.

Rev. and Mrs. A. B. Caldwell attended the oyster supper at Springbrook on Friday evening.

KINGSTON VIEW OF LOCAL ACTION

Queen's Jubilant Over Belleville's Move In Forfeiting Games

Kingston, Jan. 30.—Belleville Intermediates, cryptic the fact that they are ahead of R.M.C. and Brockville in the group standing, have dropped out of the series, and have declined to play remaining games.

They had two games to play with Queen's and two with R.M.C., while they still had to play one game in Brockville, but stated that for this reason, as the other teams are doing, they dropped out.

Local fans were rather surprised at the action of Belleville, and the feeling is that their action is not exactly a demonstration of good sportsmanship. They may not be well off financially on the season, but they could have remained in the group, and not lost much more money, for they had three out-side games to play and their guarantees would more than cover their expenses. The fans in Belleville may not be flocking to see them play, but at the same time they should have been getting fairly crowded houses, and they are carrying out their schedule.

It is a singular thing that at the start of the season when the schedule was drawn up, Belleville refused to enter being two sections in the group, and were insistent that they be in with all the other teams, knowing at the time that they would have a long trip to Kingston.

At any rate Belleville's dropping out has been a relief to Queen's who could not have been sure over what might happen in the hand box rink at Belleville. As it is now, Belleville's remaining games defaulted, the standing of the group is:

	W.	L.	P. A.
Queen's	7	0	28 7
Kingston	4	1	21 20
R.M.C.	3	5	11 22
Cornwall	2	3	16 11
Brockville	2	3	7 16
Belleville	2	8	15 26

CITY LEAGUE STANDING

The standing of the city league clubs including last Friday night's games are as follows:

A Group	P.	W.	L.	T.	P.
Quinte Electricians	4	3	0	1	7
Intelligencer	3	1	1	1	3
Alemite	3	1	1	1	3
Cisco	4	0	3	1	1
B Group
Y's Men's Club	3	3	0	0	6
Point Anne	3	2	1	0	4
Moore	3	1	1	0	2
Tigers	3	1	1	0	2
Imperial Oil	3	0	2	0	0

Games scheduled for Mon. Jan. 30th will be played Tuesday Jan. 31st as the junior game between Picton and Bells ville is being played here this evening.

PORT HOPE TIMES GAME POSTPONED

It is probable that the game will go on Port Hope Times and the Daily Intelligencer which was to have been played on Saturday night last was postponed on account of a death on the staff of the Times.

The local newspapermen were notified on Friday to the effect which necessitated the game being called off.

It's probable that the game will go on this Saturday evening at Oar Armett's ice palace and the return game most likely be played at Bas. negotiations opponents and the conference broke up with no decision.

JUNIORS CLASH ARENA TO-NIGHT

Locals Must Win To Meet Trenton For Laurels

Picton Juniors play the last scheduled game of the series here tonight, defeated Belleville win, and all indications point that way, the locals will meet Trenton in home and away games with goals to count in order to determine where the championship of Section "B" of the group will rest. Belleville defeated Picton 10-2 in a game played in the Picton rink here town last week and while they may not run the score to such a large figure they should have little difficulty as the Picton team have not won a game to date this season. Belleville will be at full strength for the visitors and while they are almost cock-sure of victory they are taking no chance of slipping up on this tilt. The team will line up with Jeffery in goal, Gainsway and Asher at defence, R. Gainsway centre, Simpson and J. Canning on the wings with Darragh and Young subbing. The game with Trenton will likely be played on Wednesday and Friday nights of this week, the winner of Kingston will officiate tonight.

SHARKEY, RISKO WILL DO BATTLE

Winner To Meet Tunney In Title Bout Next Summer

Boston, Mass.—In a deal that shuffled an entirely new aspect into Tex Rickard's heavyweight elimination tournament, Jack Sharkey, of Boston, has been signed to meet Johnny Risko of Cleveland, at Madison Square Garden on March 12, the winner to meet Gene Tunney in a title bout some time next summer.

Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager, announced terms. Jess McMahon, Madison Square Garden match-maker after a deadlock at about 24 hours on the matter of a Sharkey-Risko bout under any terms.

McMahon came to Boston yesterday to sign Sharkey to the Risko bout with the understanding that the winner would meet the winner of the pending Delaney-Heeney fight on March 26 to determine Tunney's 1928 opponent. Buckley refused to consider either Delaney or Heeney as prospective opponents for the winner.

BLACK HAWKS TO PLAY IN FRANKFORD

The Intelligencer (Black Hawks) will journey to Frankford on Wednesday evening February 1st and play an exhibition game of hockey at the northern village. A good fast game is expected and there will likely be a big crowd on hand to welcome the newspapermen, as they have always played to a large crowd at the village.

Providing the Junior win here this evening the only question that the local squad will be Henry Canning, but Manager Toomey is going along and he will help out generously.

CURLERS PLAN ARTIFICIAL ICE

Kingston Men Hope To Have Plant Installed Soon

Kingston, Jan. 30.—Although nothing definite has been done as yet, it is understood that plans are under way whereby an artificial ice plant will be installed in the Kingston Curling rink, thereby insuring ice at all times during the winter.

Last year, because of mild weather the ice was impossible to finish up the regular schedule, and this year already there has been a flood of matches which have not been played because of the rott weather. On several occasions there has been discussion among the curlers as to the advisability of an artificial ice plant, and this year the question is constantly coming up among the enthusiasts of the game, more so during the past two weeks when the weather has almost wrecked the schedule.

In conversation with some of the curlers, the Whig-Standard learned that they are unanimous in stating that an artificial-ice plant is the only solution to the present situation, a situation which is liable to recur many times each season. The only stumbling block, it was learned, was the question of financing the proposition, and this it is stated, is being even now considered from all angles.

Few men have sufficient confidence in their own veracity to believe all they say.

INCREASE ASKED FOR THE POLICE

Commission Recommend Moderate Raises Be Given Local Force

COUNCIL SYMPATHETIC

Progress On Collegiate Reported — Debentures To Be Issued

A letter from the police commissioner dealing with a general increase in salaries for the department was discussed at Council last night. It was felt that it is in the best interests to increase the salaries. Several of the members of the force have filed their resignation of late when better offers were made by the Provincials. The matter was referred back to committee.

The proposed salaries: Constables, probationary, Formerly $1200 $1200
1st year, after 6 months 1250 1250
2nd year, after 1 year 1300 1300
3rd year, after 2 years 1350 1350
Sergeants—1st year $1450 $1500
Sergeants—2nd year 1700 1750
Sergeants—3rd year 1800 1850
Chief 2400 2500

Merit marks 10 cents a day.

The Commission asked the Council to approve of these increases.

Ald. French moved that the matter be referred back to Committee. Ald. Wooding was of the opinion that it should be settled in Council.

Ald. Payne concurred with Ald. French's suggestion. The total increases figure $850.

The question as to whether the Police Commission had the right to requisite the increases was discussed.

Long Hours on Duty

Ald. Reid stated that the long hours required by the constables on duty deserved recognition.

"If we are going to have an efficient police force, I don't think the proposed salaries are out of the way," he said.

Ald. Wooding believed the communication should be filed.

Ald. Cherry inquired as to whether police officers received extra remuneration for attending functions, etc. Ald. Wooten replied that only in cases where constables attended affairs outside their regular working hours did they receive the extra pay.

A Committee composed of Mayor Duff, Ald. Woodley, Payne, Reid, City Solicitor and City Auditor, was appointed to deal with the matter of settling the long standing grievance with the County of Hastings over the administration of Justice.

This matter was taken up at the January sessions of the County Council, and the members were of the opinion that some immediate action should be taken. The matter is in regard to the City's share of the maintenance for the quinquennial the County Jail.

BELLEVILLE'S FIRE LOSS DURING PAST YEAR HALF THAT OF 1926

Lowest Record In The Past Eight Years — Chief Makes Report

Belleville's Fire Loss last year was considerably less than the preceding year, amounting to over $17,000. Ninety-six calls were answered during the year, three of these outside of the city. Belleville's Fire Loss last year was the lowest since 1920, which speaks well for the efficiency of the department.

Chief Brown stated that a great improvement was shown in the matter of chimney blazes. He states in the report that he received the very fullest co-operation from the general public throughout the year in curbing fire losses. The report is presented to the Council last night, follows:

Belleville, Jan. 23rd, 1928.

To His Worship Mayor Duff and Aldermen of the City of Belleville.

Gentlemen,—I beg to submit herewith a report of the Fire Department for the year ending December 31st, 1927.

During the year the Department responded to 96 alarms, which may be classified as follows:

Clifford McQuaid Has Not Yet Communicated With Relatives

NOT WORRYING

Family Hoping That Youth Has Shipped On Ocean Steamer

Reports from Kingston state that no word has been received as the mission Clifford McQuaid of Belleville who mysteriously disappeared from his boarding house on Montreal Street, last Monday, one week ago yesterday. Miss Violet McQuaid, his sister, a member of the staff of the Aberdeen Optical Company, did not go to Kingston and as yet has received no word of her missing brother.

Refuse To Worry

The family refuse to become disturbed over messages to the effect that young McQuaid has been the victim of foul play. Miss McQuaid believes that her brother who is seventeen years of age, went to Montreal to join the crew of one of the ocean liners. A local truck driver states that he gave a lift to a young man answering to the description a lift to Belleville from Kingston a week ago today. The lad had stated that he had been employed on a lake boat during the summer months and had been in Kingston only since the close of the marine season. McQuaid's mother and sister live on Victory Street in the city and both of them are of the opinion that the youth is safe but they cannot understand why he has not communicated with them.

Left All His Clothes

The mystery is still further deepened by the fact that the young man's belongings were left at the home of Mrs. Pye in Kingston where he had been boarding. The police of Kingston have conducted an extensive search since the young man's absence was reported, but so far no trace of his sudden disappearance was not taken seriously by his immediate relatives. The truck driver stated that the young man got off the truck on Pinnacle Street on reaching this city. He was picked up west of Kingston on the highway. Friends in Belleville did not see him here that day and it is believed that had he been in Belleville he would have called at his home.

MORE TROUBLES TO STOP THE WEDDING

Bombay, British India, Jan. 31.—Thwarted by many obstacles which have arisen to the proposed marriage of the former Maharajah of Indore to Miss Nancy Ann Miller, of Seattle, Washington, the Maharajah's embassy in London today made further preparations for the ceremony. Orthodox Hinduism is opposed to the marriage. The Bombay Chronicle Sunday suggested that Miss Miller was a minor if the wife of the ex-ruler and it will be a formidable bar to the union.

Book of Memoirs From Earl Haig May Be Published Now

London, Jan 31.—The "Daily Sketch" today said that it was understood that the late Earl Douglas Haig has completed a history of the Great War. The book was said to have contained more of secret history than is now available and Earl Haig decided that it should not be published during his lifetime. It is believed that he left explicit instructions how the book should be dealt with.

HAIG WILL REST IN SCOTCH LAND

At His Own Request Remains To Be Taken To His Home Village

London, England, Jan. 31.—Although there had been every expectation that the late Earl Haig would be buried in St. Paul's with the highest honours that could be accorded a British military hero, it was announced today that burial at the Field Marshal's own with request he at his beloved Scotch home at Bermesyde.

It is likely that there will be no services in St. Paul's where so many of Great Britain's famous military figures lie buried. It is now believed that the first part of the funeral will be held at Westminster Abbey, probably Friday.

In addition to Marshal Foch, Generalissimo of the Allied Armies in France at the end of the war, and King Albert of Belgium, with whom Earl Haig was so closely associated during the world conflict, will come to London to give a last salute to their comrade-in-arms. Hundreds of other famous men and women, also will pay homage at his bier.

IRELAND NOW TO SEND MINISTER

President Cosgrave Says Government Has It In Mind

Ottawa, Jan. 31.—"Irish Free State has been conmeeung representation at Ottawa for a number of years", said William Cosgrave, President of the Executive Council of the Irish Free State here today and the question was now under consideration for the position. Such representation would be one of "service" as apart from politics, the appointment one that would have for its aim the closer linking of the commercial interests of the two countries.

The President did not indicate when this step would be taken but he did state but emphasized that the Free State Government had it in mind.

ONLY THREE PERMITS DURING JANUARY

Only three building permits were issued during the month of December in Belleville. One was to the Canadian Oil Company for erecting a gas station, costing $1,000, and the other two permits were issued to Mr. D. S. Larue, the one to alterate his residence on Dundas street, and build five garages costing $2000, and the other for two semi-detached cottages, to cost $500. This is a considerable different list of building permits than that issued last year.

10 YEARS WITH 15 LASHES FOR BANDIT

Thorold, Ont., Jan. 31.—Ten years with fifteen lashes was the sentence imposed on Karol Dimitroff yesterday by Magistrate J. Campbell on a charge of house-breaking while armed. The man was caught red-handed early Sunday, January 15th, in the house of John Konkski who, when awakened, put up a struggle and fought with the aid of two boarders who were awakened by the noise subdued the intruder.

SUBMARINE 'S-3' REPORTED SAFE

Message States She Is Proceeding Under Her Own Power To Cuba

Washington, Jan. 31.—Fears that another disaster like that of the submarine S-4 had overtaken the United States navy were dispelled today with the news that the "S-3" is proceeding in waters and steaming towards Cuba.

Missing since sundown last Saturday, the "S-3", sister ship of "S-4" was found last night at eight o'clock. Her position given in a message to the Navy Department by Rear Admiral Frank Brumby, commanding the control force of which the submarine was part, was latitude 27.30, longitude 74.7. The message added that the submarine was proceeding under her own power to Guantanamo, Cuba, but gave no further details.

LIKE THE CAT, HE WILL COME BACK

T. Clarkson, Belleville's persistent vagrant, is back in the city again. And he is back against orders this time, for less than a week ago Clarkson was brought up in Police court and unfeelingly told to "make tracks" in either direction as long as it let away from Belleville.

This morning the police received a call that a man was soliciting alms at a residential street. The Police quickly jumped into the police car to investigate and when they arrived on the scene who should they run into but Thomas Clarkson himself. Clarkson's bright as a new penny and cheerfully trying to avoid any kind of work. Protesting strongly the "tabor" was brought down to the police station and lodged in the cells, and tomorrow will appear before Magistrate Mikel.

THE WEATHER

Moderate south and southwest winds, fair today and Wednesday, stationary or little higher temperature.

BELLEVILLE BOY SUPPOSED TO BE MURDERED IN DETROIT LOST NOW

Letter From Lad's Mother Asking Why He Does Not Write

BELIEVED DROWNED

Efforts To Locate Mrs. Gray In This City Unsuccessful Today

Police of the city of Detroit are searching for the body of Gleason Gray, age 23, of Belleville, who is supposed to have been drowned in the Detroit River. Gray lived at 1697 Fullerton Avenue and his disappearance has been shrouded in mystery since last November. Two men who gave their names as William Brown and Robert Noe were questioned at police headquarters on Saturday in Detroit in an effort to establish the clue that would lead to the recovery of Gray's body. They are also believed to know the circumstances surrounding the death of William G. Leonard whose body was found floating in the river last week.

Dragging River

Immediately upon the recovery of Leonard's body the police men were arrested as it has been established by the authorities that the last time he was seen on the one party on the night of the fatality. The river is also being dragged for the recovery of a car supposed to have been owned by Gray.

Brown and Noe both told the same story to the police. They said they had been out on a party with Leonard and Gray on December 30th instead. Gray's car collided with another. They state that Leonard was a bad man and did not see Gray again. The latter may have accidentally driven the car into the river.

Letter From Belleville

In Gray's room was found a letter from his mother at Belleville, Ontario asking why he had not written to her. The letter was dated from Belleville, January 13th, 1928. The Intelligencer endeavoured to get in touch with Mrs. Gray at Belleville but efforts to locate her were fruitless.

VEXED QUESTION TO THE SUPREME COURT

Ottawa, Jan. 31.—Seven questions covering the whole field of Provincial and Federal rights on the Sir Lawrence Hanna Act, the Provincial race navigation, have been referred to the Supreme Court of Canada by order-in-council. This procedure arises out of an agreement reached at the Dominion-Provincial Conference of a few months ago.

DOCTOR LAUGHED IN WRONG PLACE

Frantic Father Stabbed Him To Death In Grief Over Son

New York, Jan. 31.—Francesco Cavaliere was permitted today to plead guilty to second degree murder in his second trial for the killing Dr. Carlo Pendola, in the belief that the doctor had caused the death of his son.

Cavaliere's three-year-old son was suffering from diphtheria when Dr. Pendola was called in. He gave the child an injection and when the child died, the father believed this to have been the cause and stabbed the doctor to death, he told the police later, when the doctor laughed on being told of it.

ABOUT WOLVES

In comment not long ago on the number of wolves killed in Ontario annually, according to the total of bounties paid by the Ontario Government for dead wolves, The Journal expressed the idea that the bounty, $15, was apparently high enough.

Jack Miner disagrees with us. He sends out a letter urging increase in the bounty. And, to our mind, nobody's ideas in a matter like that are entitled to more respect than Jack Miner's.

He is convinced that the deer will soon disappear entirely from Ontario, and that the cause will be wolves. The wolf kills not merely for food, but from a lust of blood and killing.

Twenty-five years ago, Jack Miner says, the $15 bounty was fair enough, because at that time all furs were cheap, and is paid a lumber or trapper to hunt wolves as well as spend time trapping other fur-bearing animals. But now that furs are high in price, the trapper or farmer does not bother much about wolves. A mink skin which brought a dollar and a half twenty-five years ago brings $20 now; a fisher or marten skin has jumped in value to $100 from $5.

The wolf bounty now, Jack Miner thinks, should be $50. We used to thing so too, and if we recanted recently, Jack Miner puts us back where we were.

The Ontario Government paid out $75,000 in bounties last year on dead wolves, at $15 per pelt. If the bounty were made $50, the cost in two or three years would not likely be greater than now.

There would not be so many wolves to kill.

PRESIDENT COSGRAVE

The British press is highly pleased at the reception given to President Cosgrave, of the Irish Free State, by the American people. The London Daily News looks upon his mission as of supreme importance to the Empire apart altogether from its utility to Ireland. His "candid acknowledgment" of Great Britain's good faith towards the Free State, it is hoped, will convince all reasonable people in the United States that the Mother Country has played the game, and that, inevitably, some expressions of dissent, and criticisms of a more or less personal nature. These may be discounted. What, for instance, is to be gained by raking over old sores, recalling Mr. Cosgrave's career as a Sinn Feiner, his lawless actions on behalf of a policy of independence which he afterwards saw fit to modify? For that misguided exuberance he has suffered the penalty, and there is no more loyal friend of Ireland to-day than the man who accepted in good faith the generous constitution offered.

There is no need for rebellion when those against whom we fit rebelling are willing to concede all the major demands. Mr. Cosgrave's action is logical and there is nothing inconsistent in his work for conciliation. History furnishes many instances of statesmen who have been converted by the magnanimous conduct of opponents into staunch supporters. South Africa furnishes an instance in General Smuts and our own Canada has had its D'Arcy McGee an Irish rebel who lived to become one of the most powerful factors in the establishment of Canadian federation. Not what a man was, but what he is, is what counts. Mr. Cosgrave is receiving the acclamations of his grateful fellow-countrymen for what he has done and is doing for Ireland. When he comes to Canada he will be welcomed with no less enthusiasm by all loyal British subjects. His labors on behalf of Ireland are heroic. None but a brave and clever man could occupy his difficult position with such credit.

OTHER MEN'S THOUGHTS

Canada exports more liquor than livestock to the United States. The way to rectify that situation is to make it illegal to ship the livestock.—St Thomas Times-Journal.

In sentencing the fiend at Flint, Mich., who kidnapped a little girl and then butchered her, the judge remarked that:—

"The details as shown by the confession and the proof almost convince me that we should have capital punishment in this state."

If the prisoner had been convicted of real serious offence it is impossible to tell how far the judge's righteous in dignation might have carried him.

Not long since a convicted murderer in Michigan escaped from the penitentiary where he was serving a life sentence and committed a second murder. When asked if he was still opposed to capital punishment, Governor Groesbeck said he was almost persuaded that a man who committed the second murder should be hanged.—Toronto Telegram.

Wife—"At last I see you have also something."

Hubby—"Yes, I have bagged four ducks."

Wife—"Were they wild ones?"

Hubby—"The geese were no! — but the farmer's wife to whom they belonged wasn't"

"Well, young man, I seem to be spoiling your kissing party.

"I—I—I didn't know she was your daughter, sir!"

"Ha! Ha! The joke's on you. That's my wife."

Young Man—Oh, doctor, I feel awful. Can't eat, can't sleep, can't concentrate on my golf, and work a nightmare. What do you prescribe?

Doctor—"Propose to the girl and get it over."

Science Teacher—"Name some liquid that won't freeze."

"Do you know how to make a peach cordial?"

"Sure; send her some candy."

An Eighteenth Century Governor

The collection of relatives now hanging in the City Hall, Toronto, has been enriched by the addition to it of the portrait Dr. Mountier of General John Graves Simcoe, after whom the county of Simcoe, Ontario, was named, and who was the first Lieutenant-Governor of Upper Canada, the first capital was Newark (Niagara) and later York (Toronto). His government was noted for its efforts to open up the province by means of the building of roads, and the encouragement of immigration and in many ways his policy was far-sighted.

The painting which was formally accepted by the Toronto Board of Control was offered by Sir Leicester Harmsworth, English baronet. It was brought over to the Dominion on Canadian Pacific steamship "Montcalm."

SOCIALIST PARTY TO REORGANIZE

New York, N.Y.—Faced by a decline in membership, officers of the Socialist party along more modern lines. Morris Hillquit and James Oneal, local members of the National Executive Committee have announced that the proposal to reorganize on a basis more adapted to "American political experience and practice" would be presented to the national convention which meets in this city in April.

At the same time Victor Berger, Socialist congressman from Wisconsin, issued a statement here saying the solution of the problem of the state today was the establishment of a government that would give a middle course between the all-powerful state such as Russia and Italy and the perverted ex of the individual's freedom of action This is the plan enunciated by the Socialist Party, he said.

Mr. Frazer was recently elected as the successor to the late Eugene Debs as chairman of the National Executive Committee of the Socialist Party.

NOW WE SHALL SCRAP THE POEM

Because Cassowary Didn't Eat Missionaries After All—Likes Fish

New York, N.Y.—The ladies of foreign missionary societies in all parts of the United States are busily engaged in grabbing the efforts of Dr. E. W. Gudger, associate in ichthyology at the American Museum of Natural History, in discovering conclusive evidence that the cassowary of the family Struthioniday does not eat missionaries as commonly reported, but confines its appetite almost solely to fish.

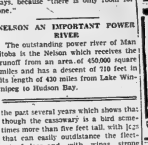

For years and years they had believed, as Dr. Gudger aptly expressed it in an article in Natural History, that

"Twas a bold cassowary
On the plains of Timbuctoo,
Blindly ate a missionary

Body, boots and hymn book too."

"There were many reasons why they should have so believed. Fifty years and more ago veracious traders who lived on Solomon Islands and the coast of Australia told terrifying stories of how they had heard of missionaries being eaten by the great birds and how they had on many occasions actually seen the eating performed. Ornithologists had also, in a sense, corroborated the tales of these traders by announcing the discovery that the cassowary bcine not unlike an ostrich, disliked water but had a great hankering for flesh. And, putting two and two together, the ladies of the missionary societies decided that the disappearance of their emissaries was due in large part to the omnivorousness of the cassowary.

But Dr. Gudger's announcement has routed the theory. As a bibliographer he has compiled imposing data during the past several years which shows that though the cassowary is a bird sometimes more than five feet tall with legs that can easily outdistance the fleetest of dogs and with wings strong enough to knock down a horse, he prefers a diet of berries and fish to one of blood and bones.

PLANS FLIGHT ON SKYROCKET

Condit Will Attempt To Reach Venus On Skyrocket

Miami, Fla.—Robert Condit, of Condit, Ohio, who says he is an "obscured chemist and engineer," postponed his 50,000,000 mile jaunt to Venus scheduled for today until between February 24 and March 4, when, he explained, meteoric conditions are most favorable.

The machine which Condit is assembling in a Miami Beach hangar also is not ready, the would-be planet jumper said. He has been working for more than a month on what looks to be a giant skyrocket and expects to have the machine ready during the early part of February.

Condit says teen-groups, the majority of them in Germany, are developing machines on the same construction principles as the one he intends to use.

"The motive power," he explained, "will be derived principally from a slow explosive, the most powerful alkali-peroxide of sodium being used. After leaving earth's atmosphere, the propelling power will be a series of units capable of being pelarized with the attraction of other planets and orbits of meteor streams."

He fixes the speed of the machine at 36,000 miles per minute.

Three men, George De Mengin, of Paris; Prance; Arthur Fisher, of Bloomington, Ill., and George Nemuth, of Los Angeles, have asked permission to take the trip with Condit. The offers have been rejected by Condit, he says, because "there is only room for one."

BOYS ELECT OFFICERS

The Employed Boys' Group of the Young Men's Christian Association held a meeting and election of officers in the "Y" last night. Clare Country-man will be Chairman for the fall and Frederick Sullivan is the new secretary.

The chairman of the various committees are as follows:

Physical—Basil Neal—James Cooke. Intellectual and Religious—Kinnear Scott.

Foreign Work—Stewart Anan.

The meeting was held at the conclusion of the gymnasium class last evening.

DITCHED THEIR CAR.

A heavy sedan, driver and passengers unknown, yesterday afternoon skidded from a road smashed into the ditch just outside Shannonville turning completely over. Luckily the occupants of the automobile, which did not belong to Belleville, were not hurt, and escaped a severe shaking up the there women and a man driving in the car, did not receive even a scratch.

The car itself only was damaged to a slight extent, one of the rear fenders and one pane of glass broken being the only injury. The driver, according to eye witnesses, skidded on the slippery highway and just missing a tree, crashed into the ditch, turning his car over. The automobile was righted by bystanders.

NEW SKYSCRAPER FOR TORONTO

Toronto, January 31—It was officially announced today that the Canada Permanent Mortgage Corporation has purchased for more than three quarters of a million dollars the property at the southwest corner of King and Adelaide streets here, on which stands at present the Harland Smith building.

Dr. Wills, Secretary of the Belleville Club, is spending a few days out of town on business.

Mr. Joe Shortt, General Secretary of the Y.M.C.A., and Mr. George Griffin, Director, are leaving tomorrow to attend a National Y.M.C.A. Convention at Windsor.

Master Reggie Trimble, son of Mr. Harry Trimble, Pine Street, who was operated on yesterday at the Belleville General Hospital, is showing signs of improvement.

Little change was noted in the condition of Mrs. Russell Woolley who is critically ill at the Belleville General Hospital today. Dr. O'Connor, specialist of Kingston, was called into consultation.

Mr. J. F. Hill, M.P.P., for East Hastings with Mrs. Hill left today for Toronto where they will for the opening of Parliament which takes place next week. While in Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Hill will reside on Sherbourne Street.

In the Quinecy-Craig wedding held yesterday, Miss Marie Marguerite Craig sister of the groom, acted as bridesmaid. This name was inadvertently omitted in yesterday's account of the marriage. Miss Smith wore a pretty gown of pale blue tafetta.

DIMENT—HAYWARD

An event of much interest locally took place last evening at seven o'clock in Christ Church when Miss Hazel Hayward, of this city became the bride of Mr. George Diment, also of Belleville. The Reverend C. E. Jeffery performed the ceremony.

The bride was charmingly attired in a gown of rose Marie georgette crepe and she wore a close fitting metallic hat. Miss Ira Barlow acted as bridesmaid and was prettily dressed in old rose georgette with trimmings of narrow velvet and small hat to match. Mr. Ernest McCarty supported the groom. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome bracelet watch, to the bridesmaid a string of pearls, and to the best man initialled cuff links.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride, Everett Street, at which the newly wedded pair left via C.N.R. for a wedding trip to points in the U.S. On their return they will reside in this city.

The bride has been connected with the Bell Telephone since its evening in 1924 and has been known as a popular employee of the C.N.R.

SPECIAL KINDS OF BRICKS

Sand-lime bricks, cinder blocks, and cement blocks are made at many points in Canada, both in competition with ordinary clay bricks and pressed bricks, and also for use in localities where ordinary bricks are not available except at relatively high cost.

OLDER BROTHER OF HAIG WORKED ELDORADO MINE

Captain John, Aged Sixty, Went Back To Serve In The War

The late Field Marshal Earle Haig had and elder brother, John, who lived for some years at Eldorado, 19 Hastings County, where he managed a lake mine. When war broke out, John Haig, the Canadian mining man, closed up his late property, which, by the way, ships but most of its product to Germany, and went back to England. The fact that he was 60 years of age did not prevent John Haig, who had formerly been an officer in the Scottish militia, from offering his services in his country.

Tried Three Times

Three times he was refused by the recruiting bureau—though capable in years his physique was excellent. At last the army accepted him, and in due course he went to France as captain in a battalion of the Lincolnshire Regiment. At first his distinguished young brother did not know that John Haig was at the front.

Meantime, Mrs. John Haig was doing duty as a V.A.D. in the Canadian hospitals. Her chief memories of Canada were mosquitoes in the Ontario bush and black flies, though she had pleasant recollections of visits to Toronto, where she knew among others Sir Henry Pellatt, Bickford and his wife, Al Edwards, Captain John Haig, a splendid type of the British gentleman, died in Canada, deeply mourned. Oddly enough the "romantic history Capt. Haig" left no public trace. He up did not appear to be known in England.

GENERAL LOZADA SURRENDERS

Mexico City, January 31—Word received from Orizaba, state of Vera Cruz, says that former General Rodolfo Lozada, who has been leading a strong group of rebels operating near the slopes of Orizaba mountain for several months, has surrendered. Other rebellions under his command also surrendered.

EARL WARWICK LED BUSY LIFE

Noted Soldier, Correspondent And Diplomat Died Today

Sovia, Sussex, England, Jan. 31. Earl of Warwick died today after a lingering illness. He was one of the great war he was side-de-camp to Lord French and commanded the 4th Division and the Twelfth Canadian infantry brigades.

Currie Pays Tribute

Montreal, Jan. 31.—"Death of the Earl of Warwick, more familiarly known to us who were the members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force as Lord Brooke, was a very great personality. He commanded for a short time the Fourth brigade of our second division and was a most gallant officer," said General Sir Arthur Currie, Commander of the Canadian Corps in France said on being informed of the death of the Earl.

"Yesterday's sad news of the loss of our old chief followed so soon by the passing of another gallant officer who served with us, leaves us with heavy hearts and shows how time's ruthless scythe daily lops off more in our ranks." Sir Arthur said.

Earl of Warwick 1924

The Earl of Warwick (Leopold Francis Maynard Greville) who only succeeded to the title in 1924, crowded many activities into his life, scenery, war, politics and journalism. He was a keen war and service as war correspondent for Reuters in the Russo-Japanese War.

He was aid de camp to the Inspector-General of the Forces from 1901 to 1902 and again in 1914. He commanded the second Canadian cavalry brigade in 1915 and was mentioned in despatches at Pettawawa, Ontario in 1914. He was appointed secretary to the chief of the Imperial General staff in 1913.

The Earl's heir is Charles Guy Fulke Greville, who was born in 1882 and married two years ago. Two younger sons and his daughter, former Countess Mayett Eden, daughter of Sir William Eden to whom he was married in 1905, survive.

DIED AT VANCOUVER

Winnipeg, January 31.—According to word received here today, Vancouver Harvey C. Simpson, of Winnipeg, former member of the Manitoba Legislature for Virden, Man., is dead on the coast.

Mr. Simpson was president of the Manitoba Society for several year. He was born 62 years ago near Ottawa, Ont.

COSGRAVE TRAIN IN A BAD WRECK

Distinguished Visitors Escaped Injury—President Praises Train Crews

Ottawa, Jan. 31.—President William T. Cosgrave, of the Irish Free State, who was returning to Ireland early this afternoon after a visit to Canada, was in the train which was derailed at Cobalt, Ont., on which he and his party, with railway officials and newspaper men, were travelling from Montreal to this city, yesterday, was wrecked at a point just south of a switch tower at Cobalt Station, at 12.46 noon. The scene of the wreck is 375 miles east of Ottawa.

The wreck, stated by C.N.R. officials to have been due to the locomotive travelling at a high rate of speed, split the switch, and crashing into some box cars on a siding, then demolishing a caboose near the track before turning over on an adjacent field, brought to a halt by one of the train crew's brakes, and indeed to nine others, one of them serious.

55 Miles An Hour

The dead man, Pilot Engineer A. Boyd, of Montreal, who was at the throttle of the big locomotive speeding at 55 miles an hour in the switch was crushed to death in the wreck of the engine and his remains was at South Indian pending the inquest, and will afterwards be shipped to his home.

The most seriously injured of the nine of the train crew, was Brakeman Frank LeFleur who, when the crash came, was riding on the roof of the car and his right leg was broken in a bone somewhere under a seat.

Cosgrave's Tribute

Speaking at the Prime Minister's dinner last night, President Cosgrave told a striking tribute to the resilience, courage and humour of the Irish people, coupled with a reference to the recent wreck of the Imperial Limited.

"I have witnessed some stirring incidents in my time," he said, "but never a finer example of bravery and coolness than on that train wreck, when a millionaire, blue on his back with a broken leg, called out to the engineer, 'All right?' The country which produces men like that is bound to succeed."

BEAUTIFUL CAR WAS BORROWED

Yesterday a smart-brand new roadster of exalted lineage came to Belleville and spent most of the afternoon parked in front of the Bell Office, Front Street. Admiring onlookers envied the happy owner. To make short term of more envious the car stopped in front of the local Liquor Store while the owner dashed into the store for a supply of local refreshments.

Later in the evening however, it was learned that the car was a visitor, belonging to a millionaire who had graced Belleville in the afternoon but on a more modest thrill. The police were said to be on the lookout for a car of the appearance and bearing a license plate answering to the one seen here during the afternoon, but as yet no word has been from Orlawa. The stranger soon has lots to sit and gaze at Belleville but deserves the excellence of his boss his car further down the custom list-away.

TODAYS MARKETS

Coin Market Active

Chicago, Jan. 31.—Aggressive buying brought about an early uptrend in corn prices today, despite the hesitant state. Stimulating the demand was the fact that arrivals of corn in Chicago today and in other main centres were relatively small. Opening 1-8c to 1-4c up, corn soon scored an all around advance which however, was not well maintained.

Wheat started at 1-4c to 5-8c decline and later held near to the initial figure. Oats were firm, provisions like-wise tended upward.

CLOSING QUOTATIONS

Market Sinkers Up Again

New York, Jan. 31.—Heavy liquidation of the public subscribers of stocks which has been in progress, featured the resumption of the upward movement of prices in today's stock market. Sentiment and merger reports apparently furnished the back ground for the rise in public buying. Montana power, common gas and Peoples Gas all moved up five points or more while, International Telephone, Adams, Electric, Consolidated Gas and Union Pacific rose two points.

General Motors and United States Steel Common, which had been largely responsible the general list for the past few days, recovered about half a point each. Rubber, in the early afternoon,

STANDARD MINING EXCHANGE

Quotations by Hesner L. Gibson & Co., per Jamieson Bros., local manager.

Mining stocks were subject to further heavy selling again today, and apparently the public is being shaken out from the old timers into the B. C. and Manitoba issues, and probably into the Industrials also. People who have not done very well lately on mines, are inclined to take a flier at the industrials the going is still good. There is not much use reciting the losses for the day, but Ia a few of the long one and they are nearly all down from yesterday's close. Malartic had a report up recently, and still Kootenay and Cap. Rouyn had a good deal of optimism being today. Mr. Nicol turned up again to 69 cents. Sherritt Treadwell were also firm. Quotations for the day are as follows:

MUSIC FEATURED KIWANIS LUNCH

Dr. Charles Bishop Talked On The History Of The Art

This was "Music Day" at the regular weekly meeting of the Kiwanis Club as well as a specially arranged programme of group singing and solos, the Kiwanis were treated to a final short address on the "Philosophy of Music" by Dr. Charles Bishop, D.D., of Albert College. The speaker, in presenting to his listeners some of his observations on music, was at first expressive the ideas resulting from a life time of interest in and study of this subject. Music, Dr. Bishop pointed out, was a second language serving to express sentiments beyond the reach of ordinary prose. All music is based on the three fundamental principles of history, patriotism and religion, and it is in the adequate expression of the first mentioned that we get our highest and our responsive notes, unreached without it its aid.

Harmony of Music

The speaker outlined the development of harmony in music the first step in this at todays are the culmination of this development. Harmony and melody are one of our greatest aesthetic inertia, and to in the sense that these elements are necessary to the appreciation of any richness and solo work, by absolute exercising in music for its own sake, and other efforts too, which have been bettered by men taught to work one with the other.

And in an orchestra, concluded the speaker, just as all harmony and richness depend on the members following closely the conductor and the latter follow through shrewder rules of living—this score—idea of music for him by the great Conductor of his life.

decrease as compared with other years. The increase in 1926 over the previous comparison I beg to give a total of the number of alarms responded to and amount of loses for the year 1927 in 1927 inclusive:

Year.	No. of Calls.	Am'nt. of Loss.
1919	49	$41,728.00
1921	43	18,544.00
1923	24	17,099.15
1924	111	20,744.75
1925	75	26,898.25
1926	88	34,948.00
1927	78	17,005.00

Many Chimney Fires

In my report for 1926 I called attention to the fact that a great many of the calls to the Department for dwellings were for chimney fires and that a remedy was neglect to have chimneys and pipes cleaned before fires were started in the Fall. I find a considerable improvement along this line for the past year, but there is still room for further precaution in this regard as out of a total of 29 calls to dwellings during the year, 17 were for chimney fires.

A further comparison of the value of property with the actual loss from fire for eight years:

Year	Value of Property Loss from fire	Loss
1920	$4,129,700.00	$41,728.00
1921	$2,913,350.00	$17,750.15
1923	$2,731,518.00	$20,744.75
1924	$2,780,000.00	$26,898.25
1925	$4,497,935.00	$34,948.00
1926	$ 345,000.00	$17,005.00
1927	$3,758,515.00	$17,000.00

The Department has received the hearty co-operation of every member of the Police force during the year. The Fire hydrants throughout the city have been kept under inspection especially during the winter months when there was danger of freezing and the water pressure has never been found sufficient.

I remain,

Yours respectfully

W. J. BISHOPP

Chief of Fire Department.

IMPORTANCE OF OUR WATER POWER

Canada's water-power resources form one of her most striking and important natural assets. Their nature extent, and location combine to give them a special value in relation to the chief centres of industry and population. Water-power is available in every province of the Dominion to too much to say that, apart from the human factor, natural power is the most vital force for hind Canadian industrial development.

CAROL'S LIFE IN DANGER

London, January 31.—A Vienna despatch to the Daily Express today hints that there is a plot afoot in Paris against the life of former Crown Prince Carol of Rumania.

COST OF WALK TO 300 MILE HIKE

With Hamilton as his destination a group of young people set up the highway this morning swinging along with his pack slung over his shoulders. Interest revealed that he made his home in Montreal but finding the art of making a living out there, he decided to make the dust from his feet and his to Hamilton "the ambitious city." He was making good progress in the long tramp assisted by kindly motorists. Certainly no one could refuse a three hundred mile hike in zero weather but the man undaunted, left Belleville with hopes of sighting the lights of Hamilton by Wednesday. He stooped in in Belleville for a supply of tobacco.

HERE'S A NEW GAME: OF BRAIN SOLITAIRE

By LOUIS E. BISCH

If you want to learn a bit about the workings of your unconscious mind try the so-called "Association Method."

The brain, of course, is a mechanism akin to other pieces of machinery, and the product of its workings—thoughts—are arranged in an orderly way.

This orderly arrangement is accomplished by means of nerves—delicate microscopic strands known as "association fibres"—that run here and there in all directions and link thought processes together.

There is no such thing as a thought living, as it were, off and apart by itself.

Every thought is linked up with every other thought by means of these association fibres I have mentioned in the same way that every telephone is connected somehow with every other telephone in the country. The paths of wire connection may be fairly direct and short. On the other hand, it may be round-about and devious and intricate.

Anyway, if a person lets his thoughts drift aimlessly, without directing them, one thought will suggest another, now slowly now more quickly, for just about as long as he may care to continue the experiment.

This is the association method. It not only is interesting to observe the way your thoughts will run, it often is extremely valuable in discovering some hidden truth about yourself.

As I write I take out my watch to consult the time; I replace the watch; I stop writing and let my thoughts run on.

Watch makes me thing of gold; then I think of the basic gasoline tax—and the other day that they had received their Christmas supply of gold pieces which so many seem to prefer to use as presents. Next my thoughts drift to the word yellow; then to yellow roses, a florist's shop on Fifth Avenue, the curious stunted plants on display there, the Chinese nation, finally the fact that the Chinese pay their doctors to keep them well, as contrasted to our own custom of paying the doctor when we are sick to make us well.

You see, I started with watch and I ended with Chinese doctors — two apparently unconnected ideas, yet perfectly and logically connected when one studies the intervening association steps, the way one thought led to another along the association nerve paths in the brain.

Now sometimes, when you are practising associations, you will find that suddenly and unexpectedly you come to a place where you are unable to think of another solitary thing. Your thoughts get stuck fast. You seem to have run up a blind alley.

This means that, in your associations of ideas, you have come across a thought that has some disturbing emotion attached to it. For instance, had I stopped associating on the words "yellow roses" it might have meant that yellow roses stood for some sorrow in my life, especially if such roses had been used at a funeral of a friend.

Perhaps I might have hesitated on the same words because yellow, in my mind, might have stood for yellow streak, cowardice, a trait which I particularly despise.

At any rate the practice of the association method will teach you a lot about real inner self.

You may be surprised what unconscious ideas and experiences are really disturbing you.

The daily practice of the association method for half an hour is a mighty beneficial mental exercise.

HEAD STUFFED FROM CATARRH OR A COLD

Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Opens Air Passages Right Up

Instant relief—no sniffing! A clogged nose, open right up; the air passages of your head clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffling, blowing, headache dryness. No struggling for breath at night; your cold or catarrh disappears.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic, healing cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane and relief comes instantly.

It's just fine. Don't stay stuffed-up with a cold or nasty catarrh.

THE CLOSING NET

The fortnight of grace Jack Farquahr had given Lila was nearing its end. Lila watched the days flying by; it seemed to her overwrought fancy that time had never sped so swiftly. And she was no nearer a solution of the desperate Problem. There was no way out, except to confess to both men—Herbert and Jack. Then she would hate Herbert and be cast into outer darkness.

Each day she saw this more clearly. She had played a foolish, desperate game, and she had lost.

The inexorable forces of retribution seemed to be massing up against her; Herbert was suave, polite, outwardly pleasant, but remote. He had held her at arm's length since the episode of the empty week-end. He was playing the role of the perfect husband, but he was no longer her lover.

Her father, who had paid so little attention to her during her girlhood, was beginning to watch her with grim disapproval, and he was not easily fooled.

May Varney had ceased to speak to her. It seemed that, after her fatal dinner-party, she and Jack Varney had had a row over the old story of May's supposed foreign romance. May blamed the whole business, quite naturally, on Lila. Herbert demanded that Lila do something to set her right with her him band and was in response: Lila's hands were tied. She couldn't vindicate May without letting Herbert know the truth regarding Farquahar's ring.

Biddons, the inevitable, was beginning to hint that another raffle in safety would be welcome.

Lila, with her jewels in a pawnshop and Irene's bills demanding her attendance for months to come, grew more and more desperate.

And added to her other troubles was Jack Farquahar's insistence that she marry him, and thereby confirm her behavior. Farquahar seemed to have become rather frenzied in his determination that Lila fix their wedding-day; he was irritable, irrational, more than ever quick to flare in anger. Sometimes it seemed to Lila that he hated her, in spite of his desire to marry her at once.

And Dorothy—Lila sensed some subtle change in Dorothy. She was sweet; she was helpful; she was under standing and generous. Lila could call on her for assistance at any hour of the night or day, and yet, she had a feeling that, something had come between herself and Dorothy. It frightened her to think of it; and sometimes it crept because of it, not knowing exactly what it was that she cried about.

But, if she was miserable, so was Farquahar. He hated Herbert Ware whom he didn't know. He hated his former friend, Sidney Holmes. Lila made him frantically angry, time and time again. He told himself it had to stop. He married Lila at once; he would put an end to this intolerable situation and to his own inexplicable state of mind.

It was at this time that he and the stranger whom he had met in the lobby of his hotel became better acquainted. The man's name was Jenkins. And it appeared that he was living in the hotel. He and Farquahar dined together frequently and went to the theatre. Once, when they were on the street, they passed Lila in her car, She waved to Farquahar.

Jenkins said, with a quick glance at his companion:

"That's one of the prettiest girls in New York."

For some reason, Farquahar was reluctant to say: "She's my fiancee." He hadn't quite liked Jenkin's tone or the look in his eye. It struck him that Jenkins, although an agreeable enough companion, was not the sort of man to whom another man would care to talk about the women of his family.

On the following day, when he was having tea with Lila, she asked: "Who was that man I saw you with yesterday?"

When Farquahar told her, she frowned.

"That's curious. I seem to have seen him before. He hangs around this neighborhood a good deal."

"I'm sure you're mistaken," Farquahar declared. "He's the purchasing agent for some big western concern, and he's downtown all day."

"But I'm not mistaken," she insisted. "Why, I even saw him in the vestibule of Dot's studio."

It was Farquahar's turn to frown.

"Then, if you've seen him there and also around this house, he must have personal interest in Mrs. Ware."

Left-over jelly may be used on top of a ball of cottage cheese served with a salad of on half a slice of orange as a garnish for the meat plate.

Instead of discarding used rubber rings sew four together with stout thread or string and use them for maids to place hot dishes on. They are also serviceable when placing a plate or dish of food directly on the ice.

"Haven't you discovered, old dear," drawled Lila, "that heaps of men have a personal interest in Dot?"

"I'm not at all surprised," was the somewhat dry reply. "What perplexes me is that her husband hasn't more."

The next time he saw Jenkins, he asked, with elaborate carelessness:

"Do you happen to know some people here in New York by the name of Ware? The Herbert Wares?"

Jenkin's glance was sharp and searching, but it was a full minute before he answered:

"Oh, I've met them once or twice. Ware's quite a big boy in the financial world, and his wife, well, I've already told that she's one of the best-looking women in New York."

SINCLAIR'S

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl nineteen years of age, and am keeping steady company with a fellow two years my senior. One night he asked me to go to a dance and I asked him to bring another fellow along for my girl friend. He said he'd try but it was a little late and he could get no one to join us. So on the evening in the paper I went up on arriving, he left the two of us promising to return within a short time.

We waited until quite late and then went home with some other fellows. Never called the next day or since explained what happened. Would you call it nice to call him?

WAITING.

WAITING: I is most decidedly your friend's place to offer some explanation for his absence and also render you the apology that is due you. Unless there is some remarkably urgent reason that prevented him from joining you and your friend as he promised, he is plainly to be censured for his indifference and lack of consideration. By no means should you call him, and unless he apologizes and explains I strongly advise you not to be further concerned about him. He left you and your friends in a most questionable position and you were fortunate to find some friends to take you home. I would advise you to renew your other friendships and do nothing as far as this boy is concerned unless he gets in touch and justifies himself.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in the eighth grade of school and I have lots of chances for dates. My father objects to me going out with boys. Boys have asked me for dates and I have to refuse them because of my father. Please advise me what to do.

BLONDIE.

BLONDIE: My dear, I most decidedly agree with your father that you are much too young to be at all concerned about boys. I would advise you to be guided by his advice and know that when you are old enough, you will be permitted to have all the dates you care to. Now, however, you should devote yourself to your studies and school activities. You should absorb all the knowledge you can so that when you are older you will be an interesting and well-informed person whose company will be very desirable. You will be much happier, my dear, if you respect your father's wish in this regard; I would advise you to do as he suggests.

WHAT'S NEW

(From a Woman's Standpoint)

Quaint flowered English prints in bluest greens and yellows are popular at Palm Beach.

Fox, ermine, kolinsky and caracul are considered the most important trimming furs for the coming season.

Kasha is designated as the most important evening fabric. Blue is expected to be welcomed as a change from navy.

Included in the jumper types developed for evening wear are models with gold or silver mesh inset in yoke effect with motifs of a similar mesh in graded sizes scattered over the jumper. The skirt is of plain silk with the fullness disposed in unpressed pleats.

"Youthful Slimness is This Dress's Charm"

It was a great shock to Emily when her husband's young fraternity brother still in college wrote home and asked her to be a chaperone at the mid-winter dance! Emily a chaperone! Why, not so many years ago, Emily had been the most popular prom-trotter of her whole set; Emily smiled—she accepted, but she made a vow at the same time. She would show them! Chaperone or no chaperone, there wouldn't be a smarter girl at the dance. And she wore the dress one chose. The flared tunic and draped bodice achieve its certain lines and ribbonlace or beaded trimming accentuates the head to waist which opens over a matching or flesh colored bodice of georgette. Satin crepe, transparent velvet, or soft light weight metallic fabric are all lovely materials for this model. Because it is two piece, there is an opportunity to combine a metallic fabric or bracade blouse with a satin crepe or velvet skirt in a color to match. The flower may be of the dress material or metallic fabric in either style. (Copyright, 1927, by Butterick.)

One of the outstanding events of the Ottawa social season was when following the formal opening of parliament, their Excellencies, Lord and Lady Willingdon, held their annual drawing-room reception. Among the hundreds who attended were: (1) Mrs. Turner Howard—Death of Toronto; (2) formerly Miss Elena Murdock, daughter of Hon. James Murdock, former minister of Labor; (3) Miss Rose Stewart, daughter of Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of the interior; (4) Miss Catherine Guthrie, daughter of Norman O. Guthrie, K.C., who made his debut at the gathering.

JOYS OF TRAIL RIDING PICTURED

Mrs. Madge MacBeth Carries Listeners To Wild Beauty Of Mountains

VIVID PERSONALITY

Journalist Traveller, Lecturer Gave Interesting Talk To Club

"It makes you fai if you're thin or thin if you're fat; it cures rheumatism, melancholia and that strange disease known as love-sickness." These were the amazing qualities attributed to the pastime known as "trail-riding" by Mrs. Madge MacBeth who addressed the Women's Canadian Club in the lecture room of the Armouries last evening. Mrs. MacBeth possesses a most fascinating personality and in addition that illusive quality which soothes her audience with her. She made one long to do the things of which she told, to climb up the winding trail to towering peaks and on back of a horse which, as the speaker said, "understood you." This is a necessary thing in trail-riding. If you mistrust your horse, all these things pass by unseen; your judgment must warn you in the same measure that you want them.

Mrs. MacBeth, in a talk replete with humorous situations carried her listeners up through the winding trails of the lofty Rockies with the high escarpment on the one side and eternity on the other, and you edged a far away from eternity as you could."

Gorgeous Scenery

"When you go trail riding," said the speaker, "you have not a thought in the world to disturb you, nothing to do but drink in the gorgeous scenery. These trail riding expeditions originate in bungalow camps. These camps have been in existence for twenty-five years and literally dot the country throughout the mountain district. One of these grew from a camp accommodating sixteen people the one year to, including the staff and attendants connected with the camp, nearly 2,000 in the ensuing year. One of the most popular is situated in the Yoho Valley and is centrally located near Lake Louise, Emerald Lake and other points of interest and beauty.

Personnel Interesting

"The personnel of these expeditions," said Mrs. MacBeth, "is varied and interesting. This particular one included a duke, an honorable, princes, paupers and just ordinary people and they ranged in ages from eleven to one little old lady who admitted to seventy years, but being a woman, this may not have been precisely correct." The speaker carried her listeners with her up, ever up, the winding trail, through the lofty peaks colored rose and gold and amethyst in the sunlight. "What one loves about it," said Mrs. MacBeth, "is the eternal variety and blissful freedom from all care. From the glaciers gleaming like huge pearls, through the long shadows of the morraines, to the country of the giant firs, which remind one with their quiet and shadows of a Cathedral, with shadows falling through ancient stained glass windows."

Spiritual Refreshment

One comes back from one of these expeditions the speaker said, with renewed physical vigor and spiritual strength. A wider patriotism also results, the real Canada lies in the country, not the city. Cities are all made after the one pattern but individuality and real beauty exists only when one gets close to Nature. A horse carries you through scenes of magnificence till with the Psalmist you find yourself "Lifting your eyes to the eternal hills whence cometh strength."

Mrs. P. C. Anderson conveyed the thanks of the audience to Mrs. MacBeth and expressed the wish that she would again be the guest of the Canadian Club in the near future when which all present heartily concurred.

Crystals, so cut that they closely resemble diamonds, are very fashionable at Monte Carlo.

DEATHS & FUNERALS

GEORGE BURKITT

In the death of the late George Burkitt, Sidney has lost one of its most respected residents. For the past seventeen years decedent proved to be an obliging neighbor and was connected with L. O. L. No. 240 Frankford, also a member of the Anglican Church.

Prior to his removal to Sidney, deceased lived on the 12th Concession of Rawdon where he was married in 1884 to Margaret Matilda McKeown, being the first couple to be married in St. Mark's Church by the Rev. C. M. Harris. The fruit of the union were nine children, one son, William, dying at the age of four. The remaining eight children are, Mrs. Mark Mumby, Rylstone; Arthur Burkitt, Bonarlaw; Mrs. Alex Bush, Stirling; Mrs. Thomas. George, John and Kathleen at home, also his Sirrowing widow survives.

The late George Burkitt was the eldest of a family of twelve, being a son of the late Frank and born in the year 1858. The brothers and sisters are, Christopher and John of Springbrook, Frank of Wellington and William of Michigan; the sisters are, Mrs. John Bateman of Mrs. Robt. Craig and Mary deceased, Mrs. Jane Mumby and Mrs. A. McComb of Springbrook, Mrs. Alex McInroy and Mrs. Fred Kingston, Rawdon.

The deceased was every bonde of church and township, having been rector's warden for years, President of Maple Leaf factory for a term of years during which time the new factory was built, trustee and councillor, also ex-Reeve of Rawdon.

The funeral was under the auspices of the Orange Order, the lodge being Fred Farmer's Friend Hyblde. Geo. Frost, Dan Frost, Wm. Mills, and Neil Wiley.

Floral tributes were: Gales Ajar by Family; Gales Ajar by Brothers and Sisters; Sheaf, Grandchildren; Sheaf, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Bush; Wreath, L.O.L. No. 240; Sheaf, Trinity Church Guild.

Rev. R. F. Byers who was a constans visitor, preached a very compelling sermon from Fifteenth Chapter, first Epistle of St. Paul to the Corinthians, forty-seventh verse. Interment in Frankford cemetery. The deceased who was under the doctor's care for five years, bore his suffering with Christian fortitude. Those who knew George Burkitt mourn his passing as that of a citizen of sterling character.

JOHN WALDRON COLLINS

The funeral of the late John Waldron Collins was held yesterday afternoon from the home of his father, Richard Collins, 70 Lewis Street, to Belleville Cemetery, where the interment was made in the family plot.

At the house in the presence of a legion of sorrowing relatives and friends the impressive funeral ritual of the Anglican Church was conducted by Rev. C. E. Clarke, Minister of Christ Church who also officiated at the committal at the graveside. There was also a wealth of beautiful floral tributes which acted as mute testimony of a sorrow and sythpathy.

The bearers were Messrs. C. Akey, F. Milne, P. Pound, G. Mathews, R. Earle and D. Grills.

MARY RITA O'CALLAGHAN

The remains of Mary Rita O'Callaghan, infant daughter of Dr. and Mrs M. J. O'Callaghan, who died at the home of her parents, 24 Bridge St. were placed in St. James Cemetery Vault this morning to await spring interment.

J. D. SULLIVAN

J. D. Sullivan, a former well known Belleviliian, died at Salt Lake City, Utah, yesterday.

The late Mr. Sullivan was born in Belleville and was a son of Alderman at Mr. Patrick Hayes of this city, who arrived in time to be at his brother's bedside when the end came. The deceased was a member of the Catholic Church.

Surviving are the sorrowing widow, two daughters and one son of Salt Lake City, one sister, residing in Utah, N.Y., and one brother, Patrick Hayes, Belleville. The interment will be made at Salt Lake City.

WANTS MONTREAL TO KEEP ITS POSITION

Montreal, Que. — "I hope t hat Montreal will always stay at the head of navigasion on the St. LaWrence" announced Hon. L. A. Tacherau, Premier of Quebec, in the course of a recent speech in this city. The Premier made this remark in the course of his thanks to the electors who had voted for his government's candidates at the provincial general election last July.

He further:

"We wish, I think, to aid Montreal to have still cheaper power. If we can aid Montreal to get cheaper power, why, that aid is already acquired. We are disposed to agreement with such companies as would wish to develop power around Montreal, to insure cheap power in this city.

"From the educational viewpoint of the French - Canadian in Quebec we have a mission to accomplish; that is to give Montreal a fine and big university.

Progress on Collegiate

In regard to the account of the Collegiate Institute, R. P. Frederick, City Treasurer reported a statement of expenditures charged against the Collegiate thus far;

Total charged against certificates to date $300,000.70
Bank Interest to Dec. 31st .. 2,966.61

The interest charge on this account for the month of December was $1,173.25. Mr. Frederick advised that some action be taken on the matter of issuing debentures.

The matter of changing the name of Pope St. to Burton St. Wert was referred to Clerk and City Engineer. A petition signed by a number of residents was placed on file. The present Burton St. will continue on Pope street.

To Close Street

A letter was received by the Council from Chas. Campbell, City Engineer, regarding the application for the closing of Bridge Street by the Springer Lock Company. It was the suggestion of the committee acting with Mr. Campbell that a mutual agreement be entered into whereby the city will under take to close King Street north of Brock and the Springer Lock Company will grant a right of way for the proposed sewer across their property. Mr. Campbell explained the city the right to operate he sewer in consideration of the city's action in granting a quit claim deed by proper legal procedure. The Springer Company desire to make an addition to the plant.

Chas. A. Campbell, City Engineer, stated that he and City Solicitor Graham had attended the convention at London, held for the purpose of discussing matters relative to pertinent to every community. Two representatives were appointed at this meeting to interview the Premier on these matters.

Flood Relief

A letter was received from T. Yarrow in regard to waters from sewers flooding his cellar thus causing a most unsanitary condition. Mr. Yarrow stated that a motor used on an electric washing machine was ruined.

Mr. Campbell stated that Mr. Yarrow's contentions were substantial as he had visited the place when under flood. The size of the pipe on the Bleecker Avenue sewer is not large enough to take care of the waste.

The joints are laid in quick sand and the joints are not tight with the result that quantities of sand have to be dragged out between Victoria Avenue and Bridge St. Mr. Campbell suggested the installation of a hydrant at the corner of Bleeker Avenue and Queen Street which would enable ine public works to flush the sewer and use the nozzle for cleaning it The present method of cleaning it out and is not extremely efficient.

Chas. Campbell, City Engineer, presented a report of the proceedings held at London and these were ordered filed.

A petition was received from the residents of Bleeker Avenue requesting the Council to take steps to remedy the un favorable conditions of sewage on Bleeker Avenue. The petition stated that the cellars were flooded in the spring periods and caused distressing conditions in the homes. These conditions have existed since the completion of the sewer in 1912.

Mr. Campbell stated that relief could only be given by the installation of a rain sewer of proper size and construction together with a fire hydrant at Queen and Bleecker Avenue. A storm drain between Queen and Bleeker normally along Bleeker might alleviate the situation. Mr. Campbell stated that no outlet could be provided on the open ditch, east of the playgrounds.

To keep the leaves of plants clean, carefully sponge them once a week with milk and lukewarm water (in equal parts).

LIGHT SHADE OF PAINT ECONOMICAL

Pottsville, Pa.—By painting gas tanks with a light color paint, a saving of 100,000,000 gallons of gasoline annually is made by refining companies of the United States, Dr. Henry A. Gardner, Washington, D.C., told the annual convention of the Master Painters and Decorators Association of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Gardner said the light color of the tanks reduced the temperature from 150 to 118 degrees, which accounted for the saving. He added that radiators painted dark prevented a proper radiation of heat and asserted that a saving of 15 to 18 degrees could be effected by the use of light color paint.

Music of Sunny Italy Woven Into Modern Hotel Decorations

Curtis A. Hale, Famous Power Engineer Inaugurates New Era in Decorative Plans

There are two things the rest of the world copies from America —our hotels and our jazz. Curtis A. Hale, managing director of the Belvedere Hotel, the most efficiently operated hotel in America, is the pioneer in a new decorational fame who has perfected the discovery methods now used by up-to-date American hotels, and copied by hotels all over the world.

Famous Engineer

Hale, who was a consulting engineer for two of the largest chain hotel organizations in the United States, is a vivid personality. A small, dapper little man with snow white hair and keen blue eyes, he attracts interested glances the moment he appears in any gathering. There is supreme energy in his slightest movement, and a personification of power, a cosmopolitan air of creative romance such as is frequently attached to men who have made a name for themselves in the adventurous field of engineering achievement.

Dish Washer

Hale's numerous friends—beginning with the door-man at the U. S. Grant Hotel in San Diego where the efficiency expert began his colorful hotel career, and ringing up the stale to millionaire hotel owners in every large city of the world, tell of fascinating incidents in the career of their owner. Out in San Diego, folks remember when Hale started as a dish-washer in the U. S. Grant for nine dollars a week.

"He was a mystery around here for a while. He worked during the day as a dish-washer for nine dollars a week, wiped the soap suds from his hands, and went up to his four dollar a day room right in the same hotel," says an old associate of Hale's. "We learned later that he had given up a $2,000 a year job to take one washing dishes so that he might learn the hotel business from the sink to the ceiling."

Offered $125,000

Hale's ability to get at the root of things, has made him the authority in hotel management both ads that he is today. His dynamic personality while driving him to the top-rung in the hotel business, has also made of his whole life an adventure. While living in El Paso, Hale was offered $125,000 to assist in the capture of Pancho Villa. Among his Mexican adventures is that of successful barricade for his life, offering his skill at repairing telephone pole wires in exchange.

The Belvedere

The Belvedere is a revelation to comfortable apartment hotels. A room in this new hotel is the most pleasing room at night, as the davenport becomes a comfortable bed, a fireplace, a gleaming tile bathroom, a large closet and a serving pantry make the apartment complete home in itself. Lounges have been made delightful places to entertain friends. Tapestries and upholstery are so harmoniously keyed as a color, jargon.

"Cheerie-Beerie-Bo"

"As a matter of actual fact," explained Mr. Hale, "I did get my idea for the tapestry covering from a new Italian slang song 'Cheerie-Beerie-Bo'. Both the music and words have been woven into my decorative schemes."

"Cheerie-Beerie-Bo" translated means "Has a melody from heart to heart."

And if music was the inspiration in more of our household decorations I feel there would be more warmth and beauty in our homes."

UNRELIGIOUS U. S. A. A BAD INFLUENCE

Winnipeg, Man. — Fifty years ago at this time, Mr. and Mrs. Enoch Winkler, bride and groom of 10 days, were sitting down in their little home in Emerson, Manitoba, after a honeymoon trip from Winnipeg by horse and cutter. Today they sit in their large and comfortable home on Wellington Crescent, still surrounded by some of the furniture from that first home. Mrs. Winkler is wearing around her neck a gold chain, on which are fastened five gold coins, a $20 piece in the centre, with a $10 piece on either side, and two $5 pieces completing the 50 which her husband presented her with on their golden wedding day. He laughed good-humorously as he tells you that it is a medal for a 50 years' successful endurance test.

During all the time of their married life, with the exception of a year and a half spent in California a little more than 20 years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Winkler have resided in Manitoba. It was the love for the good old Canadian observance of the Sabbath which brought them back to Canada from California, to which they had gone with the intention of making it their home. "I liked the climate, but I didn't like the Sabbath there," said Mr. Winkler, "I decided it was no place to bring up my children, for there could not play baseball any day but Sunday."

BELLE THEATRE

"Barbed Wire" has given me my opportunity to tell the world of the Great War as I saw it. It is for me the ideal war picture.
When the nations of Europe leaped at each other's throats in 1914 I was playing in a theatre in Warsaw. The theatre was taken over by the government and made into a hospital, and I volunteered to serve as a Red Cross nurse.
I saw suffering such that beggars mortal pain, as I recall it today.
After Warsaw was captured by the Germans I was offered a contract to play in a theatre in Berlin. I took it, for there was nothing else for me to do. Ah! Those dark days in the German capital. They will always be with me. Three poor, wounded boys there scarce unaimed to mind those hungry children. I too, often went hungry, for toward the latter part of the war there was not enough food for all.
So you see I looked upon the war from behind the lines of both sides. I saw that the men of all of the armies were human beings, no matter what color uniform they wore.
"Barbed Wire" sees the war from this standpoint. That is why I think it is the finest and most human war picture ever made. Now at the Belle

REGENT THEATRE

Seldom has the Regent Theatre seen such agreeably amused audiences as those which leave after seeing Irene Rich, in her new picture, "Don't Tell the Wife." The film is from a scenario by the brilliant young scenarist Rex Taylor and has the distinction of being the second American picture to be directed by Paul Stein, the Viennese who was brought to this country by Warner Brothers, who also brought to this country Britain's friend and colleague, Ernest Lubitsch. "Don't Tell the Wife" and its leading names of merriment and confusion, presents Irene Rich in the radiant mood of doing well of the ideal husband, played by the agreeable and dominant Hamilty Gordon. The doing husband caught in the toils of a fascinating blonde adventuress, Layan Tashman, tries to conceal his infatuation from his wife, a futile effort. What she does, what tempests in teapots she brews, what avalanches of retribution she merrily brings on daddy, the blonde, the blonde's boy friend, and of the family friend, the latter parts played by William Demarest and Otis Harlan—go to make up an evening's entertainment worth walking a mile, or ten miles, to enjoy. The play bubbles over with this unexpected and sparkling humor of which Irene Rich's millions of friends. At the Regent.

JUNIORS MEET TRENTON HERE

Defeated Picton By One-Sided Score Of 13-3 Last Night

A small crowd turned out to see Eddie Thomas' Juniors disport of Picton at the local arena last night by a score of 13-3. It was one sided from the start and Belleville youngsters tallied practically at will.

As a result of last night's win they will now meet Trenton in a two-game series for the championship of the group. It was announced yesterday that the first game would be played in Trenton but Manager Thomas received word late yesterday afternoon that the toss of a coin would decide the date. Belleville got the toss and as a result the first game will be played here tomorrow night.

This series with Trenton will be interesting and hard fought and tomorrow night's game may possibly be the last O.H.A. game to be seen here this winter. The Juniors have been outstanding faithfully during the last week and deserve a good house. It is the first opportunity in some years that the Juniors have had a chance to get anywhere and it is to be hoped that the fans will get behind them. They have high hopes of getting a good lead here tomorrow evening for the return on Friday night at Trenton. Bill Cummings of Toronto, will handle both games.

If they play against Trenton as they did against Picton last night they should win the series. Trenton lead by the astute Norm Johnston will give a good account of themselves. Each team has clubbed up one victory against the other this winter so the fur is sure to fly when they meet again. Leading 5-0 in the first period last night the locals increased this to 7-1 in the second while they scored six more in the final session to make it 13-3.

Belleville played fine hockey, the boys were unselfish with the puck and they kept no opportunities to drive home the rubber. They looked far better last night than on any previous occasion this year. In the first period Gainey counted twice and Simpson, J. Canning and H. Canning each once. Henry Canning and Simpson divided the mesh in the second period while Cole scored Trenton's first.

Not satisfied with the lead the kids made another attack on the Picton citadel in the final stanza with J. Canning, H. Canning and Simpson as the marksmen for Belleville while Cole and Hudgins tallied for the visitors.

Johnny Canning was probably the best of the home team. His wing shots were worth mentioning and Hart in the Picton net was kept real busy. Cole was the pick of losers. The Picton team were never in the hunt from the start. Bill Green, of Belleville, handled the bell.

Belleville— Goal, Jeffery; Defence, Galway and Ethier; centre, H. Canning; wing, J. Canning, Simpson; subs, Peets and Darragh.

Picton—Goal, Hunt; Defence, Storms and Cole; centre, Hudgins; wings, Welch and Ferguson; subs, Wright, Lockwood, Peets and Darragh made a splendid pair of substitutes and will likely be used against Trenton.

Cold water is much better than warm for scrubbing boards, as it does not sink into the wood, and dries very quickly.

Frankie Cerano, of New York, who of the flyweight division," Belanger was boxes Frenchy Belanger for the "crowned" him once and his admirers are world's championship shortly. Cerano confident that he will do it again. is styled by his manager, Joe Jacobs, At that it was a close thing when they of New York, the "uncrowned king" met, hence the return match.

BRAVES EXPECT BETTER SEASON

Have Best Baseball Team In The Past Six Years

Boston, Mass., Jan. 22.—"The best baseball team we have had in the six years I have been in Boston," is the way President Emil E. Fuchs regards his 1928 model Boston Braves baseball machine, which gets under way next season with a new driver at the wheel in the person of Manager Jack Slattery.

At the same time an integral part of the machine destined to furnish the necessary spark to pull it out of an habitual second division rut, is believed to have been acquired in the season's outstanding deal, which brought Rogers Hornsby to Boston from the Giants to captain the Tribe at second base.

For the rest, the squad will shape up as mostly veterans with one or two promising additions to a pitching staff which last year suffered for lack of an outstanding left hander. Johnny Cooney, Veteran southpaw, who underwent an operation on his left elbow, will attempt to comeback, while among the new additions are Ed Brandt, a big left hander from Seattle, and Art Delaney, formerly of Oakland. The veterans include Kent Greenfield, Joe Genewich, Bob Smith, Charlie Robertson and Henry Wertz.

Need Good Catcher

A gaping hole appears at present at the left end of the pitcher's alley due to the departure of Francis Hogan last year's young but regular backstop who went to the Giants with outfield-

Jimmy Walsh, in exchange for Hornsby. A replacement in the form of "an experienced big league catcher" is promised soon, however, to bolster a catching "department" at present headed by Lake Urban, former Boston college star, who came to the Braves from the Giants.

With the coming of Hornsby, the Braves now consider they have a big stone combination worthy of the name. The new team captain will run things from second base, and screen the box in the shortstop berth will be Eddie Farrell, last year's regular and a former team mate of the slugging ex-Giant.

Keep loose matches in a covered tin box or covered glass jar. Around the outside of the jar paste a strip of sand paper on which to scratch the matches

FLORIDA

More people would travel, according to W. Fulton, District Passenger Agent for the Canadian Pacific Railway, if they realized how simple it all was. "When a man who has done little travelling gets an idea that he would like to go to Florida, a thousand questions come into his mind which are apt to scare him off, whereas if he just walked into the nearest Canadian Pacific office all might be solved without any worry or trouble."

Why not just do that if you feel the urge at all?

Any Canadian Pacific agent will gladly assist in arranging your trip.

HIGH SCHOOL WIN SECOND STRAIGHT

Defeat Trenton In a Close And Thrilling Encounter

Belleville High School defeated Trenton last evening by the close score of 3-2 in a close and exhilarating game on the ice-bedecked arena. The issue was not decided until the final bell when Belleville got the puck past Trenton goalie to tally the winning counter. The game was the second of the series. They appear to be headed for interscholastic honors this year. Last night's game was always a repetition of the games played here last week when the local collegians won their first. They have but to win from Picton in order to carry off the laurels for this group.

St. Dennis, Young and Ross scored for Belleville while Bowers netted Trenton's two goals. All goals were the result of rush efforts, the goalies having little chance to stop any of them. The score at the end of the first period was 2-0, scored 2-1 and final 3-2. Belleville leading at all times.

A crowd of Belleville supporters accompanied the team to Trenton and were naturally much elated over the result. Collins played a nice game on the local, with Young and Black also turning in nice games. Bowers was the best of the home team. Belleville will play Picton here at an early date.

CITY LEAGUE AT ARENA TO-NIGHT

Point Anne will meet the tireless Imperial Oil team in a schedule six game game at the Arena tonight when the Y's Men undefeated champions will stack up against the Tigers. The Point Anne boys have defeated the Y's Men in the finals of group B and they cannot afford to lose tonight's game. The Marvobbers managed by Don Rose have been beaten consistently and they hope to break the jinx against the crement boys. The Y's Men are called to win over the Tigers in the second game although anything is liable to happen as the Rangals may upset the applecart. There two games should draw a large crowd.

Games scheduled for Wednesday night have been postponed until Thursday night owing to the fact that the Trenton Juniors will be here on hockey night. Friday night's games will be played as scheduled. The city league games have been drawing fine crowds and the hockey has been of the keenest variety. Tonight's game should be no exception to the rule.

5 CENTS PER YEAR GOT BOOK 100 YEARS AGO

Toronto, Ont.—Five cents a year was the fee for book-borrowing privileges at the old York Library, a little less than 100 years ago, Miss Staton, head of the reference department of the Church Street Library, told the Toronto Public Library Association.

Salaries were less extensive in those days. New employees worked gratis for a time, and were taken on probation. Later they were put on as temporary help at $1.00 a day, and finally taken on the permanent staff at $25 a month.

Holidays were few and far between Miss Staton believed her first holiday was June 11, 1892, when the library was closed out of respect to Sir John A. Macdonald. The next Queen Victoria's Jubilee in 1897. Miss Staton has been in charge of the reference depart ment since that service was instituted.

MORENZ KING OF HOCKEY PLAYERS

Canadian Wing Possesses Blinding Speed And Scoring Ability

New York, Jan. 24.—There are many qualities which combine to make a successful hockey player. Some can be found and others must be made requisite. Others say speed, and among these ready to take up this cause is Conn Smeaton of Joe Moore, a fleet youngster on a pair of steel runners who has won one of the many honors as a speed skater. Of course, Joe may be a trifle prejudiced in the matter, as he is also a hockey player from a different angle than the average fan and his views should be interest any follower of the ice games.

"If a hockey player possesses speed he has the battle won," remarked Moore the other evening at the Madison Square Garden game of hockey battle. "If speed is missing from the bag of tricks he's licked before he starts. A hockey player according to my way of thinking must have speed before anything else. Once he gets the jupper pass then he can and will start to improve along other lines.

"Some players emphasize stick handling. That, of course, is important, too, but not quite as vital as speed. I think I clinch this argument by just mentioning Howie Morenz and Aurel Joliat. Both are great hockey players. Morenz in my opinion is the best. In fact, he is the finest player in the league, and he gets rating simply because of his abnormal amount of speed.

"When Howie first broke into hockey he attracted my attention and I immediately picked him as a player who would rank with the best in the game. He was sensational from the start, but now he is not only flashy, but also effective. He has been lead of the league in goals and I think he'll finish the season on top, for they simply can't stop him.

Speed Carries Through

"That speed of his is too much. You can't stop a man who can't catch and that's why he crashes right through to the mouth of the net, where he gets the goals plenty of chances even when he doesn't score. Opposing teams send out two men to get him, and again his speed thwarts any of them plans.

"Joliat is a marvelous stick handler. That is his chief stock in trade and it gets him around many a defence. Still he hasn't Morenz's speed, and that's why he doesn't get in close quite as often. And don't forget that Joliat is no fast, too, bit he isn't quite as speedy as Morenz and that is where he loses the edge to his teammate.

"Morenz is a pet of mine because of his speed and also because he is the only player in the league who uses the same stroke as a speed skater. Any player who can acquire this knack will have a big ability materially. It gives him supreme command to a half flying charge of pace, which is a valuable asset because among hockey players, Joe Simpson had this stroke when he was at his best, and that was the reason why he was rated as one of the fastest men in the league.

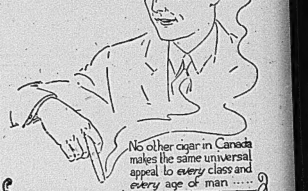

"And speaking of skating, don't for get Hapgood, the lad from Duluth. He has to take his hat off to any of them. He's the daddy of them all and the best that ever lived. You can put Bastie in the Garden, on Lake Placid or on the same little wooden pond up in Maine and he'll always be the same

ROCHESTER FANS HAVE HIGH HOPES

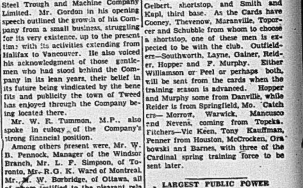

Cardinals Provide Colts With Raft Of Recruits

Rochester baseball fans believe the first International League pennant they have had in many moons will fly from the flagstaff at their baseball park next fall. The second-place Syracuse club, the champions of last year, has been moved to Rochester, and with the addition of several new men promised by the Cardinals, the Tribe looms as one of the most dangerous outfits in the loop. Newark; with Johnson, McQuillan, Fournier, Mamaux, Lamar and others, is veritably a big league outfit, and the Bisons are admittedly a dangerous club but in Rochester they believe the addition of veterans like Kaufmann, Southworth, Keen to last year's Syracuse team almost unbeatable combination.

The roster of the Tribe as it now stands follows: Infielders—Hurst, first base; Brown, second base; Urban and Colbert, shortstop, and Smith and Kopf, third base. As the Cards have Cooney, Thevenow, Maranville, Toporcer and Schultz from whom to choose for its very existence, up to the present time with its activities extending from Halifax to Vancouver. He also voiced his acknowledgment of those gentlemen who had stood behind the Company in its lean years, their belief in its future being vindicated by the hearty support they have given it. Speeches were made by Mr. W. R. Tummon, M.P., also spoke in eulogy of the Company's strong financial position.

Among others present were, Mr. W. B. Pennock, Manager of the Windsor Branch, Mr. L. F. Simpson, of Toronto, Mr. R.G. K. Ward of Montreal, Mr. J. W. Berridge, of Ottawa, all of whom testified to the pleasant relations existing between the different branches and the Head Office.

Vocal and instrumental selections helped to make up a very interesting programme.

WANTS BOUNDARY LINE RE-ADJUSTED

Victoria, B.C.—Dissatisfaction that has been voiced, but voiceless in western British Columbia for many years in respect of the Alaska boundary line, crystallized into a definite movement for its adjustment of the border, last week, when H. P. Kergin, Liberal member of the Legislature for Atlin, filed notice of a motion, asking the Canadian Government to open negotiations with the United States, with the object of acquiring the Alaska "Pan Handle", as Canadian territory.

The motion asserts that the "Pan Handle," a narrow strip of land projecting southward along the Pacific Coast from Alaska proper for 600 miles, acts as a barrier and is detrimental to the development of the northern half of the province of British Columbia. It asks that the British Columbia Legislature place itself on record as of the opinion that Dominion Government should open negotiations with Washington, looking in view a readjustment of the boundary.

Such readjustment would be in the interests of both Canada and the United States, the motion declared.

LONSDALE

The many friends of Mr. Frank McCullough are sorry to hear that he is not improving as fast as they would like to see him.

Mr. and Mrs. John McRae entertained a number of their friends one evening last week. All report a good time.

Mr. Joe Brennan, of Lonsdale, was quietly married to Miss Teresa Brennan of Read. We all wish them happiness in their wedded life.

A number from the village attended the funeral of Mr. Embury, Fourth Concession.

Mr. D. J. McHenry spent Tuesday in Napanee.

Whooping cough is the order of the day, but not serious.

RECEIVED LESS MONEY IN 1927

Did The Grape Growers In Chautauqua-Erie Belt

Dunkirk, N.Y.—Grape growers in the Chautauqua-Erie belt, for the season of 1927 received a million dollars less for their crop than they did during the year of 1925.

According to the figures just tabulated by the various shipping associations the total of last year's crop was $1,543,440 to the growers, while that of the year of 1926 was more than two and a half million.

In former years the growers averaged as high as $110 for the fruit, but last season the price did not ever get over $48 a ton.

The grape growers are at a loss to account for the situation in the industry, and are loath to make predictions for the future. It appears, however, that the California grapes have made heavy inroads on the New York state fruit for the fresh grape market.

It was found impossible last year to reach an agreement between co-operative and cash buyers on the matter of grading grapes, and for this reason efforts to establish one was abandoned. Hopes are now entertained that the New York Legislature will pass a law to establish the grading of grapes for the season of 1928.

The Interstate Commerce Commission last year granted a reduction in freight rates to the California grape growers, and as a result of this the New York State grape growers have filed an application with the Interstate Commerce Commission asking for a reduction of the classification of grapes from fourth to second class which will make a difference of several dollars a ton on grapes to the large city market.

HOPE TO DISCOVER LOST INDIAN TRIBE

Washington, D.C.—Hope of uncovering traces of a "lost" tribe of Indians, the Cahuas, which disappeared about 100 years ago after having played a dominant part in the history of southern Florida, for more than three centuries, is taking a Smithsonian Institution expedition under Henry B. Collins, Jr., to that state to excavate newly discovered mounds.

An account of a battle in 1513 in which 80 canoes filled with Cahuas braves attacked Ponce de Leon and prevented him from landing his forces along their coast is history's earliest mention of the tribe. Tradition says that later the tribe acquired prodigious wealth in gold which it secured, from Spanish ships, wrecked off the coast while returning to Spain with the treasure of the Incas.

The Cahuas were known to have made human sacrifices of their captives and also to have tortured the bodies of their slain enemies, and have often been accused of cannibalism.

About 100 years ago all traces of the tribe disappeared although it has been suggested that it might have been represented in a tribe of so-called "Choctaw Indians" who inhabited Florida as late as 1847.

Theories that the tribe might have fled to Cuba before the arrival of the white man or that it was assimilated by the Seminoles have been advanced by historians.

MANY WIVES STILL DO OUTSIDE WORK

New York, N.Y.—Of 9,500,000 women in the United States who go to work every day, 6,500,000 are combining career and family, according to Dean Virginia C. Gildersleeve, of Barnard College. Many of these, she said, have linked successful careers with motherhood, and many affirm that the more children in the family, the easier is the mother's task of happily combining the two.

"It is a perplexing problem American women are trying to solve," she said, "of trying to dovetail career and family. The sympathetic co-operation of her husband is one of the most important factors in the successful combination."

A survey of occupations in which women are engaged, she disclosed showed that 625,000 are school teachers; 564,000 office workers; 145,000 nurses; 13,000 librarians; 10,000 college presidents and professors; 9,000 physicians, and 8,000 writers.

"In future," she predicted, "for economic and psychological reasons, it will be increasingly unusual for the woman to have unlimited children, a home and a career outside the home."

NOVELTIES

New York.—With the acceptance of natural tan as a fashionable color, stockings to go with the new costumes or resort wear are being displayed in hort sock styles that have part of the ng tare. These socks are made in ither cotton lisle or all silk. Tops are woven so that they roll over and he design is such as at all times to it the ankles very snugly. Soonthat after the same idea are fancy stockings made in all sorts of designs and colors to give the bare leg effect for those who like the appearance but feel they cannot wear the short skirt.

Scarfs are important in the costuming. Three-cornered ones are used in pairs, one of which goes about the shoulder in pirate fashion, and the other about the waist to form a girdle. They are especially smart on any of the new white frocks, of china silk, pique, linen or tub silk. The gayer the colors the better. The new type of batik work is seen in a brushed-in effect—that is, with each part of the design kept clear and not run into the others. Polka dots are in red, black, navy blue, and brown. Tiny square decorative handkerchiefs are made to go with these scarfs which may be tucked into a pocket or worn at the wrist for their colorful effect.

In Paris a few seasons ago many Americans remarked about the attractive natural linens that were being exhibited with clear stripes in a bolder effect or down the centre. The striped were in bright reds and penetrating blues. This season the same linens have been made into smart french coats for wear on sandy beach es. The style is simple, following straight lines with plenty of fullness throughout, and they are made long enough to protect the most delicate frock from snagging when entering a boat. When worn over bathing suits and with the head covered with a gay scarf, the effect is most satisfying.

Parasols for Palm Beach are made of strong raffia and other imported straws with handles as sophisticated as the newest French modes. The natural-colored straw is used in combination with bright reds, greens, purples and oranges. Flowers are scattered throughout or worked in as borders.

Gentlemen may prefer blondes but a lot of sun-kissed brunettes won loud applause in St. Catharines when they vied for the title of colored bathing beauty of the Niagara peninsula, in which is believed to be the first beauty contest ever held for members of their race. At the left is Louise Freeman of Niagara Falls, Ontario, who smiled her way to victory in the competition.
